

THE HEDLEY INFORMER

VOL XXV

HEDLEY, DONLEY COUNTY TEXAS NOVEMBER 16, 1934

NO. 2

Buy Your School Supplies
at Hedley Drug Co.

Everything for the Schoolroom
High Quality Right Prices

Hedley Drug Co.
THE RETAIL STORE
PHONE 3
This Store is a Pharmacy

COTTON GINNED

Up to Wednesday noon, the three Hedley gins and the Mc Knight gin had ginned a total of 2286 bales of cotton

There were 4,162 bales of cotton ginned in Donley Co. prior to Nov. 1, 1934, as compared with 10,250 bales ginned to Nov. 1, 1933, according to information received from Tom A. Ballew, collector of cotton statistics for the Dept. of Commerce, Bureau of the Census

ATTENTION

The ladies of the First Baptist Church will send a box of cookies to Buckner Orphan Home Monday Nov. 26. Every lady in the church is requested to send cookies and help make a large box for the home for Thanksgiving.

NOTICE

I will call at your home the first Monday of each month to collect your shoes which need repairing. Dig up that old pair and get a lot more service out of it by getting one of my expert halfsole jobs. A. L. Wall.

Lost—Pair of new dark brown kid gloves on highway between Hedley and Memphis. Return to Informer office. Reward.

Gift goods of all kinds.
B & B Variety

For Sale—No. 1 milk cow 6 or 7 years old with young calf. Gives rich milk. A bargain at $25.00. See Winfred Doherty.

Found—Pair of glasses in case. Owner may have same by calling at this office and paying for this ad.

ATTENTION

Lee tires and tubes and accessories at Phillips Service Station. We give Trades Day tickets.

Miss Ethel Fox of Tell visited at the W. C. Payne home the past weekend.

Mrs. A. G. Nipper who has been visiting relatives here left Saturday for an extended visit with her daughter at Tulsa.

John Auliff and family, Mrs. A. A. Nipper and Mr. and Mrs. Joe Nipper of Turkey spent the past week end in Decatur. Betty Lou Nipper returned with them for a visit.

Oswell Watkins of Canyon visited relatives and friends here the past week end.

R. H. Munn and family of Amarillo visited in the J. K. Caldwell home Sunday and Monday.

Mrs. R. E. Newman visited the R. F. Newman family in Wellington Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. Richard Long shore visited in Memphis Sunday.

Rev. A. V. Hendricks and family accompanied by Robert Watkins and Ralph Meroman left Wednesday of this week for Abilene, to attend the annual session of the Northwest Texas Conference.

A real bargain in hosiery for men, women and children. See them. B. & B. Variety

Subscribe for the Informer.

CLARENDON LIONS TO SPONSOR BENEFIT FOR CRIPPLED CHILDREN

Princess, the vanishing pony, will be in Clarendon Nov. 22, and will assist her master, Birch, the famous magician, in entertaining during the engagement at the College Auditorium.

The program includes a great array of thrilling illusions and demonstrations of the magic art.

The performance is being given for the benefit of the Crippled Children's Fund of the Clarendon Lions Club. Matinee at 2:30 p. m., night show 7:30.

ALUMNI BANQUET

Announcements are being mailed this week for the ex-Senior banquet which will be held Dec. 1. All ex-Seniors are requested to let Mrs. Chas. Rains, the secretary, know by Nov. 24 if they plan to come, so that proper arrangements can be made.

SCHOOL VISITED

Deputy State Supt. Bryan Dickson of Childress visited the Hedley schools last week. He reported the general condition of the school good, and was especially pleased with the installation of the new transportation system. His last year's recommendations have been carried out.

This district will receive over $12,000 from the state this year. Both teachers and pupils appreciate the backing of the people of the district, which has made possible the excellent development of our school system.

HOOVER GIFT SHOP

Will be open for business next door to Wall Shoe Shop on Main street Saturday, Nov. 24. Please come in and see us. One box of candy given free to the first fifty customers. I give tickets.

KO-ZEE BEAUTY SHOPPE

Begin now to get that Thanksgiving permanent. We want our patrons to have the admiration that beautiful hair brings. We endeavor to extend courtesy, consideration plus a sincere effort to please you, and will make all wrongs right. We thank you now for all future patronage. Trades day tickets given here. Permanent guaranteed, $1.00 to $7.50.

For Rent—Dec. 1, the Daddy Nipper filling station and store building. See A. A. Nipper.

Kermit Johnson and family of Amarillo visited relatives in Hedley the past week end.

For

Right Merchandise
Right Quality
Right Service
at the Right Price
See

Barnes & Hastings Grocery Co.
PHONE 21

Chunn & Boston Prices Good Friday and Saturday

Fruits and Vegetables
Grapefruit, doz.	35c
Texas Oranges, doz.	17c
Grapes, 3 lb.	25c
Lettuce, 2 for	15c
Celery, 2 for	25c
Spuds, 10 lb.	19c

Flour
Kansas Cream, 48 lb.	$1 85
Cream Meal, 10 lb.	29c

Soap, Crystal White, small, 5 for	15c
Soap, Toilet Complexion, 3 for	10c
Melo, each	10c
Unstope	10c

Syrup
Pure Ribbon Cane, gal.	59c
Sorghum flavored, gal.	59c

Lye, Red Top, doz.	85c
Peanut Butter, 5 lb.	69c
Fruit Cake Materials---Prices Reasonable

Convenience
With Confidence

You'll find a bank account the convenient practical way to keep track of money, particularly now, when the farmer's busy season is here. You'll find that this bank's state charter enables it to better care for the needs of this community.

You'll find this bank has ample resources, sound policies and experienced management and that its policies are guaranteed by the Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation.

Security State Bank
HEDLEY, TEXAS
Member F. D. I. C. A Safe Bank Made Safer

A Personal Service Store

A drug store with a genuine desire to serve must render a wide variety of services. You'll find this store of that type. You'll get prompt attention regardless of your purchase---large or small.

Wilson Drug Co.
Where You Are Always Welcome
PHONE 63

THE KENNEL MURDER CASE

By
S. S. Van Dine

Copyright by W. H. Wright
WNU Service

SYNOPSIS

Phil Vance, crime expert, is called to investigate the supposed suicide of Archer Coe. With District Attorney Markham, he goes to Coe's house. They find Wreda, a friend of Coe's, there; also Signor Grassi, a guest. The door of the death chamber is bolted from the inside. They force it. Coe is seated, a revolver in his right hand and a bullet hole in his temple. He is clothed in a dressing gown, but wears street shoes. Markham thinks it is suicide. Vance says it is murder. Medical Examiner Doremus declares Coe had been dead for hours when the bullet entered his head. A wound, made by a dagger, is found on the body, and there is proof that Coe was fully dressed when he was stabbed. The investigators find a wounded Scotch terrier in a room of the Coe house. Vance declares the animal will prove an important connecting link. Gamble says Brisbane Coe, Archer's brother, left for Chicago the previous afternoon.

CHAPTER III—Continued

"He wasn't in Chicago at that time, sir," Gamble explained. "He was en route, so to speak. He took the five-thirty train from the Grand Central last evening."

"How do you know Mr. Coe took the five-thirty train?"

Gamble looked perplexed. "I didn't exactly see him off, sir," he replied, after blinking several times. "But I phoned for the reservations, and packed his suitcase, and got him a taxi."

"What time did he leave the house?"

"A little before five, sir."

Vance roused himself from apparent lethargy.

"I say, Gamble,"—he spoke without looking up—"when did Mr. Brisbane decide on his jaunt to Chicago?"

The butler turned his head toward Vance in mild surprise.

"Why, not until after four o'clock. It was a rather sudden decision, sir—or so it seemed to me. He generally plans on his Chicago trips the day before."

"Ah!" Vance raised his eyes languidly. "Does he make many trips to Chicago?"

"About one a month, I should say, sir."

"Do you know what the attraction is in Chicago?"

"Not exactly, sir. But several times I have heard him discussing the meetings there of some learned society. My impression is that he goes to Chicago to attend them."

"Yes, quite reasonable. . . . Queer chap, Brisbane," Vance mused. "He's interested in all sorts of out-of-the-way subjects. . . . So he made a sudden decision to migrate west after four o'clock yesterday, and departed before five. . . . Most interesting! . . . And now, Gamble, think carefully before you answer. Did you notice anything unusual in Mr. Brisbane Coe's manner last evening?"

The man gave a slight start. His gaze turned quickly to Vance, and he swallowed twice before answering.

"I did, sir—so help me God, I did! He was not altogether himself. He's usually very calm and even-going. But before he left he seemed distracted and—and fidgety. And he did a most peculiar thing, sir, before he left the house—he shook hands with Mr. Archer. I've never seen him shake hands with Mr. Archer before. And he said 'Good-by, brother.' It was most peculiar, for he has never, to my knowledge, called Mr. Archer by anything but his first name."

"As I understand it, when Mr. Brisbane had gone you and Mr. Archer were left alone in the house."

"Why, yes, sir." The man was breathing heavily; all of his obsequiousness had departed. "But I only stayed long enough to prepare Mr. Archer's supper. . . ."

"And left Mr. Archer alone?"

"Yes! He was sitting in the library downstairs reading."

"And where did you go and how did you get yourself?"

Gamble leaned forward earnestly. "I had dinner, and then I went to a motion picture."

"And what other servants are there in the house?"

"For some reason the man breathed a deep sigh of relief. 'There's only two, sir, beside myself.' His voice was steadier now. 'The Chinese cook—'

"Ah, a Chinese cook, eh? How long has he been here?"

"Only a few months."

"Go on."

"Then there's Miss Lake's personal maid. And that's all, sir."

"When did the cook and Miss Lake's maid leave the house yesterday?"

"Right after lunch. That's the usual order on Wednesdays, sir."

"And when did they return?"

"Late last night. I myself came in at eleven. I was just retiring—about midnight, I should say, sir—when I heard the cook sneak in."

Vance's eyebrows went up.

"Sneak?"

"He always sneaks, sir. He's very sly and tricky and—and devious, sir—if you know what I mean."

"Probably his oriental upbringing," remarked Vance casually, with a faint smile. "Tell me, is it usual for the servants to stay out late Wednesday?"

"Yes, sir."

"Then, if anyone were familiar with the domestic arrangements here, he would know that he could count on the house being free from servants Wednesday nights."

"That's right, sir."

Vance smoked thoughtfully a moment. Then:

"Do you know at what hour Miss Lake and Mr. Grassi came in last night?"

"I couldn't say, sir." Gamble shot Vance a curious look from the corner of his eye. "But it must have been very late. It was after one o'clock before I went to sleep, and neither of them had returned at that time."

"Mr. Grassi has a key to the house?"

"Yes, sir."

"How long has Mr. Grassi been Mr. Coe's guest?"

"It was a week yesterday."

Vance was silent for a moment. There was the suggestion of a frown on his forehead; and I knew that something was troubling him. Without change of expression he put an apparently irrelevant question to Gamble.

"Did you, by any chance, see Mr. Archer Coe after you returned to the house last night?"

"No—I didn't see him, sir." There was a slight hesitancy in the reply, and Vance looked toward the man quickly.

"Come, come, Gamble," he admonished severely. "What's on your mind?"

"Well, sir—it's really nothing; but when I went up to bed I noticed that the library doors were open and that the lights were on. I thought, of course, that Mr. Archer was still in the library. And then I noticed the light in Mr. Archer's bedroom here, through the keyhole, and I took it for granted that he had retired. So I went back to the library and turned out the lights and shut the doors."

"You heard no sound in here?"

"No, sir."

Vance yawned mildly.

"By the by, there's a question I forgot to ask. Did Mr. Brisbane Coe take a walking stick with him when he set forth for Chicago?"

"Yes, sir. He never goes anywhere without a stick. He's subject to rheumatism—"

"So he's told me a score of times. . . . And what kind of stick did he take with him?"

"His ivory-headed stick, sir. It's his favorite. . . ."

"The one with a crooked handle and the carvings?"

"Yes, sir."

"You're quite sure, are you, that he took this particular stick with him to Chicago?"

"Positive. I handed it to him myself at the door of the taxicab."

Vance kept his eyes on the man, and stood up. He walked very deliberately to where Gamble sat, and looked down at him searchingly.

"Gamble,"—he spoke pointedly—"did you see Mr. Brisbane Coe in this house after you returned last night?"

The butler went white, and his lips began to tremble. The question was so unexpected that even I received a distinct shock from it. Markham half rose in his chair, and Heath froze into a startled attitude, his cigar half raised to his lips. Gamble cringed beneath Vance's steady gaze.

"No, sir—no, sir!" he cried. "Honest to God, I didn't! I would have told you if I had."

Vance shrugged and turned away.

"Still, he was here last night."

"What's back of that remark?"

Markham demanded. "How do you know Brisbane Coe was here last night?"

"Very simple; his ivory-headed stick is hanging over the back of one of the chairs in the lower hall."

CHAPTER IV

The Missing Man and the Ting Yao Vase.

There was a momentary tense silence. Vance's statement, with the possibilities it suggested, threw a pall of vague horror over all of us. Unsteadily Gamble rose, and bracing himself with one hand on the back of his chair, glared at Vance like a man who had seen a malignant specter.

"You—are sure you saw the stick, sir?" he stammered, with a hideous contortion of the face. "I didn't see it. And Mr. Brisbane never hangs his stick over the hall chair. He always puts it in the umbrella stand. Maybe some one else—"

"Who but Mr. Brisbane himself would bring that stick back to the house and hang it over a chair in the hall?"

"But, Mr. Vance, sir," the man persisted in an awed tone, "he once reprimanded me for hanging it over a chair—he said it might fall and get broken. Why, sir, should he hang it over the chair?"

"Less noisy, perhaps, than chucking it into a brass umbrella holder."

Markham was leaning over the desk scowling at Vance.

"What do you mean by that?" he demanded.

Vance lifted his eyes slowly and let them rest on the district attorney.

"I opine, my dear Markham," he said slowly, "that brother Brisbane didn't want anyone to hear him when he returned here last night. He started for Chicago on a night when he knew no one but Archer would be home. And then he missed his train—to speak euphemistically. He returned to the house—with his stick. And here's his stick. . . . but no Brisbane. And Archer—the sole occupant of this cluttered domicile last night—has gone to his Maker in most outlandish fashion."

"Good G—d, Vance!" Markham sank back in his chair. "You don't mean that Brisbane—?"

"Tut, tut! There you go jumping at conclusions again. . . . Vance began walking up and down, his hands sunk deep in his coat pockets. "I can understand Brisbane's presence here last night," he murmured as if to himself, "but I can't understand the presence of his stick here this morning. It's very curious—it doesn't fit into the picture. Even if he had not taken the Lake Shore Limited to Chicago, there were other trains later on."

Heath took his cigar from his mouth.

"How do you know the bird didn't take another train—that is, supposing he'd missed the Lake Shore Limited?"

"By the stick in the lower hall, Sergeant."

"Couldn't a guy forget his stick?"

"Not Brisbane Coe—and certainly not in the circumstances. . . ."

"What circumstances?" cut in Markham.

"That's what I don't know exactly," Vance made a wry face. "But I begin to see a method in all this seeming madness; and that stick downstairs stands out like some terrible and accusing error. . . ."

He stopped abruptly, and suddenly swinging about, went toward the door.

"I'll be back in a minute. There's a possibility. . . . He passed swiftly into the hall."

Heath looked disgustedly at Markham.

"If you ask me," he submitted surlily, "I think Mr. Vance is leaning too heavily on that stick. We've only got this guy's word"—he jerked his thumb toward Gamble—"that he took it with him in the first place."

Markham made no comment.

Presently Vance returned to the room, smoking abstractedly. His face was crestfallen.

"He's not there," he announced. "I thought Brisbane might be in his room. But the shades are up; and the bed hasn't been slept in; and the lights are out." He sat down wearily. "His room's empty."

The sergeant planted himself in front of Vance.

"Look here, Mr. Vance, even if he did miss the Lake Shore Limited, he's probably on his way to Chicago. Anybody might forget a stick. His suitcase ain't here—"

Vance leaped to his feet.

"The suitcase—that's it! What would he have done with the suitcase if he had not taken the early train and had intended to go on to Chicago later. . . ."

"He has checked it in the station, wouldn't he?"

"Exactly!" Vance wheeled to Gamble. "Describe that suitcase."

"It was quite an ordinary case, sir," the man replied in a dazed tone. "Black sealskin, leather lined, with rounded corners and the initials 'B. C.' in gold letters on one end."

Vance turned back to Heath.

"Can you check on that in the parcel room at the station, Sergeant? It's important."

"Sure I can." He beckoned Sitkin with a jerk of the head. "Got the dope?"

The detective grinned.

"H—l, yes," he rumbled. "A cinch."

"Then hoo to it," ordered Heath.

"And phone me pronto. . . . Make it snappy."

Sitkin disappeared.

"Where do you think Brisbane Coe fits into this affair?" Markham asked Vance.

"I don't know—I'm not sure." He spoke quietly, without turning. "But many strange things happened here last night. Certain plans went awry. Events overlapped one another. Nothing happened on schedule."

"But Brisbane Coe," persisted Markham.

Vance turned slowly back to the room.

"There has always been bad blood between Archer and Brisbane, for some reason. I've never understood it. . . . By the by, maybe Miss Lake could enlighten us while we're waiting for Sitkin's call. . . . I say, Gamble; ask the young lady to be good enough to join us here."

The butler went out, and five minutes later Hilda Lake came swinging into the room.

"Sorry to have kept you waiting and all the usual amenities," she said, sitting down and crossing her knees;

"but I hadn't quite finished doffing my golf togs when the far-from-admirable Crichton summoned me. Anyway, I should be furious with you. Why was I denied my muffins and tea?"

Vance apologized.

"We've been using Gamble a bit intensively. Gamble, take tea and muffins to Miss Lake's quarters." The man, who had been standing in the door, bowed and disappeared; and Vance turned pleasantly back to Miss Lake.

"By the time your breakfast is ready we will let you return to your rooms." Then he added with a serious mien, "There are a few questions we'd like you to answer. What was the cause of the animosity between Archer and Brisbane Coe?"

"Oh, that!" A cynical smile curled her lips. "Money—nothing else. Old Major Coe left everything to Uncle Archer. Uncle Brisbane had only an allowance—until Uncle Archer should die. Then the money was to go to him. The situation naturally irked him, and he got pretty nasty about it at times. It amused me no end,—I was in the same predicament. The fact is, I've often been tempted to make an alliance with Uncle Brisbane for the purpose of murdering Uncle Archer. Together we could have got away with it, don't you think?"

"I'm sure you could—even alone. And now some one has killed Uncle Archer for you."

"I'm sure it's my reward for virtue." Though her tone was hard, there was an undercurrent of bitter passion in it. "Or perhaps," she added, "Uncle Brisbane went ahead on his own."

"That might bear looking into," smiled Vance. "The only difficulty is that Gamble tells us Mr. Brisbane hopped to Chicago at five-thirty last evening."

"That doesn't mean anything. Uncle Brisbane has dabbled enough in criminology to prepare a perfect alibi. In the event he himself contemplated a flutter in crime."

"What takes him on these periodical trips to Chicago?" Vance asked.

Hilda Lake shrugged.

"Heaven knows. He never mentioned the matter to me and I never asked." She leaned forward. "Perhaps it's a lady!" she exclaimed in a taunting tone. "If he told anyone, that person was Uncle Archer. And I'm afraid it's too late to get any information from that quarter now."

"Yes, a bit too late," agreed Vance. "But let us suppose that after Mr. Brisbane announced his intention of going to Chicago last evening, he remained in New York all night. What would you say to that?"

Hilda Lake scrutinized Vance shrewdly for a time before replying. Then she answered gravely.

"In that case you may eliminate Uncle Brisbane as a suspect. He's much too smooth and canny to leave any such loopholes. If he planned a murder, I'm sure he'd arrange it so as to escape detection." She paused momentarily. "Did Uncle Brisbane remain in New York last night?"

"I don't know," Vance responded candidly. "I was merely indulging in suppositions."

"How clever of you!" There was a steely look in her eyes.

"At this moment Gamble passed the door on his way upstairs, with a small covered serving-tray in his hands."

Vance stood up.

"Ah! There are your muffins, Miss Lake. I shan't keep you any longer."

"Thanks awfully." She rose and went quickly from the room.

Vance stood at the door until Gamble returned from the third floor, and ordered him to wait in the lower hall. When the man had gone below, he glanced at his watch and strolled back into the room.

"I'd rather not go on till we hear from Sitkin. Do you mind waiting, Markham?"

"Have it your own way," Markham grumbled. "But I can't see the importance of the suitcase. There's some probability, it seems to me, of its being at the station. And in the event it isn't there, we will be no better off than we are now."

"On the other hand," Vance returned, "if it is at the station, we may conclude that Brisbane did not go to Chicago last night. But I'm quite sure he intended to go. And if he didn't go, something unexpected kept him here."

"But his being in New York doesn't connect him with Archer Coe's murder."

"Certainly not. . . . But, Markham, that last-minute decision of Brisbane's to get out of town had some connection with Archer's death—I'm sure of that. He knew something—or feared something. Or perhaps. . . . But, anyway, he intended to go to Chicago last night. And maybe he did go. . . . but I want to be sure."

The phone rang. Heath answered it, and after listening for several minutes, replaced the receiver on the hook.

"The suitcase is there, all right," he announced. "The bird at the window says a middle-aged nervous guy checked it around six last night, saying he'd missed his train—and he was shaking so he could hardly lift the bag to the counter."

Vance nodded slowly.

"I was afraid of that—and yet I was hoping it wasn't so. Markham, I don't like this situation; I don't at all like it. Something unforeseen has happened: unforeseen—and sinister. It wasn't on the cards. Brisbane Coe intended to go to Chicago last night—and he didn't go. Some terrible thing stopped him. . . . And something stopped Archer Coe before he could change his shoes. . . . Don't you see what I mean? Those shoes of Archer's—and that stick of Brisbane's. . . . That stick!—in the front hall! It shouldn't have been there. . . . Oh, my precious aunt! . . . He threw his cigarette into a tray, and hurried toward the door."

"Come, Markham. . . . Come, Sergeant. There's something hideous in this house. . . . and I don't want to go alone."

As he spoke, he ran down the stairs, Markham and Heath and I following. When he had reached the lower hall, he pulled the portieres aside and opened the library door. He looked round him, and then passed into the dining room.

After several minutes' search, he returned to the hall.

"Maybe the den," he said; and hurrying through the drawing room, where Wreda and Grassi sat near the window, he went into the small room at the rear. But he came back at once, a bewildered look in his eyes.

"Not there." His tone was unnatural. "But he's somewhere—somewhere. . . ."

He came again into the front hall.

"He wouldn't be on the third floor, and he's not on the second. There's his stick," he said; "but his hat and topcoat. . . . Oh, what a fool I've been!"

He brushed Gamble out of his way, and walked swiftly down the narrow corridor along the stairs until he came to the closet door at the rear of the hall.

"Your flashlight, Sergeant," he called over his shoulder.

TO BE CONTINUED.

murder, I'm sure he'd arrange it so as to escape detection." She paused momentarily. "Did Uncle Brisbane remain in New York last night?"

"I don't know," Vance responded candidly. "I was merely indulging in suppositions."

"How clever of you!" There was a steely look in her eyes.

"At this moment Gamble passed the door on his way upstairs, with a small covered serving-tray in his hands."

Vance stood up.

"Ah! There are your muffins, Miss Lake. I shan't keep you any longer."

"Thanks awfully." She rose and went quickly from the room.

Vance stood at the door until Gamble returned from the third floor, and ordered him to wait in the lower hall. When the man had gone below, he glanced at his watch and strolled back into the room.

"I'd rather not go on till we hear from Sitkin. Do you mind waiting, Markham?"

"Have it your own way," Markham grumbled. "But I can't see the importance of the suitcase. There's some probability, it seems to me, of its being at the station. And in the event it isn't there, we will be no better off than we are now."

"On the other hand," Vance returned, "if it is at the station, we may conclude that Brisbane did not go to Chicago last night. But I'm quite sure he intended to go. And if he didn't go, something unexpected kept him here."

"But his being in New York doesn't connect him with Archer Coe's murder."

"Certainly not. . . . But, Markham, that last-minute decision of Brisbane's to get out of town had some connection with Archer's death—I'm sure of that. He knew something—or feared something. Or perhaps. . . . But, anyway, he intended to go to Chicago last night. And maybe he did go. . . . but I want to be sure."

The phone rang. Heath answered it, and after listening for several minutes, replaced the receiver on the hook.

"The suitcase is there, all right," he announced. "The bird at the window says a middle-aged nervous guy checked it around six last night, saying he'd missed his train—and he was shaking so he could hardly lift the bag to the counter."

Vance nodded slowly.

"I was afraid of that—and yet I was hoping it wasn't so. Markham, I don't like this situation; I don't at all like it. Something unforeseen has happened: unforeseen—and sinister. It wasn't on the cards. Brisbane Coe intended to go to Chicago last night—and he didn't go. Some terrible thing stopped him. . . . And something stopped Archer Coe before he could change his shoes. . . . Don't you see what I mean? Those shoes of Archer's—and that stick of Brisbane's. . . . That stick!—in the front hall! It shouldn't have been there. . . . Oh, my precious aunt! . . . He threw his cigarette into a tray, and hurried toward the door."

"Come, Markham. . . . Come, Sergeant. There's something hideous in this house. . . . and I don't want to go alone."

As he spoke, he ran down the stairs, Markham and Heath and I following. When he had reached the lower hall, he pulled the portieres aside and opened the library door. He looked round him, and then passed into the dining room.

After several minutes' search, he returned to the hall.

"Maybe the den," he said; and hurrying through the drawing room, where Wreda and Grassi sat near the window, he went into the small room at the rear. But he came back at once, a bewildered look in his eyes.

"Not there." His tone was unnatural.

Same Price as Last Year

BARGAIN DAYS

(Expire December 31st)

STAR-TELEGRAM

Largest Circulation in Texas

LESS THAN A CENT AND A HALF A DAY
FOR A STATE PAPER

ONE YEAR

$5.60
6 DAYS
MONDAY
TUESDAY
WEDNESDAY
THURSDAY
FRIDAY
SATURDAY

TO INCLUDE SUNDAY ISSUE ADD 10¢
*6¢ FOR A PAPER EVERY DAY IN THE YEAR

Order a $10.00 State Paper for Next Year NOW
on REDUCED RATE

MORE NEWS—MORE FEATURES—
MORE READERS

Be as Well Posted as Your Neighbor

FORT WORTH
STAR-TELEGRAM

Morning—Evening—Sunday

AMON G. CARTER, President

THE HEDLEY INFORMER

PUBLISHED EVERY FRIDAY
Mrs. Ed C. Boliver, Owner
Edward Boliver, Editor and Publisher

Entered as second class matter
October 28, 1910, at the postoffice at Hedley, Texas, under the Act of March 3, 1879.

NOTICE—Any erroneous reflection upon the character, standing or reputation of any person, firm or corporation which may appear in the columns of The Informer will be gladly corrected upon its being brought to the attention of the publisher.

All obituaries, resolutions of respect,
cards of thanks, advertising of church or society doings, when admission is charged, will be treated as advertising and charged for accordingly.

JOHN W. FITZJARRALD

Chiropractor

18th year in Memphis

PHONE 462

Lady in Office

Dr. F. V. Walker

General Practice.

Female Diseases a Specialty

Residence Phone 5

Office with Wilson Drug Co.

Hedley, Texas

J. W. WEBB, M. D.

Physician and Surgeon

Hedley, Texas

Office Phone 8

Residence Phone 20

ADAMSON-LANE POST 287

AMERICAN LEGION

meets on the first Friday in each month

Huffman's
Barber Shop

Expert Tonsorial Work. Shiner
Chair. Hot and Cold Baths
You will be pleased with our service. Try it.

W. H. Huffman, Prop.

COFFINS, CASKETS
UNDERTAKERS'
SUPPLIES

Licensed Embalmer and Auto

Hearse at Your Service

Day phone 24

Night phone 40

MOREMAN HARDWARE

HEDLEY LODGE NO. 991

A. F. and A. M.
meets on the 2nd
Thursday night
in each month

All members are urged to attend
Visitors are welcome.

L. Spalding, W. M.
C. E. Johnson, Sec

A SURPRISING VALUE

J. H. Pierce Grocery
McKnight

Miss Jessie Mildred Carlwell spent several days last week with home folks. She is attending college at Bethany, Okla.

Fred Tidwell left Monday for Canyon, where he will attend W.
T. S. T. C.

HIGHWAY NEWS

The following information was taken from the Clarendon News:
According to advices received here the past week bids on grading and drainage construction work on Highway 5 from Clarendon to Hedley 18 and a fraction miles, are due to be opened at Austin on Nov 21, with the section from Hedley to Hall Co., line to follow on Dec 10th. Plans are also being perfected for the hard surfacing of Highway 5 through Donley and Armstrong Counties in 1935 following the completion of the grade and drainage which will begin likely around the first of the year, according to Divisional Engineer W. J. Van London who visited in Clarendon
yesterday.

This work is to be done with funds allocated from the $12,000,
600 federal road funds allotted to Texas and marks this section as of major construction of highways for the coming year. This work is in line with promises made by Judge Ely and Governor elect Allred to fill the gaps in major highways by Centennial year. All lines of business should profit by the road money to be spent in this locality within the next year.

Texas Highway Commission
announced Monday six Panhandle highway projects totaling more than $150,000 would be favored for allocations of money from the federal emergency highway fund in addition to those major highway improvement projects previously announced.

Bro. Pope, Bro. Lawson, and
W. A. Armstrong of Clarendon attended the Masonic lodge meeting here last Thursday night.
Bro. Pope made a very interesting talk.

LEGION CONVENTION

The Aubyn E. Clark post of the American Legion will be host to the Nineteenth Convention of the Eighteenth District of the Department of Texas, American Legion, in a two day business session December 8 and 9.

The last convention was held in Canadian April 7-9 and Clarendon was chosen for the next meeting place.

Mr. Van W. Stewart of Perryton, who is the Commander of the Eighteenth District was in the city the latter part of last week completing plans for the convention. The Chamber of Commerce pledged their best support, and urged the business men to register their willingness to assist the Legion in their entertainment fund.

Well known and important speakers will take part in the convention, which will be a gala day for the boys of the local post.
There will be delegates from Legion Posts from over the entire Eighteenth Congressional District.—Clarendon News.

W. M. SOCIETY

The women of the Methodist auxiliary observed the annual week of prayer Thursday and Monday afternoons. A good number of our members attending. The special offering is to be divided between Sue Bennett College in Ky., and Holding Institute, Old Mex.

Monday, Dec 19, is our World
Outlook program. Leader, Mrs.
Jno Edwards

C. O. Cooper and family of Canyon, Miss Hazel Cooper of Panhandle and John Cooper and family of McLean were Hedley
visitors Sunday.

Spot Lighting
A Real
Bargain

13th ANNUAL SUBSCRIPTION OFFER

YOUR CHOICE of the
Wichita Daily Times
(Daily and Sunday)

OR THE

Wichita Falls Record News
(Daily with Sunday Times)

BY MAIL in Texas or Oklahoma—ONE YEAR

$4.50

GREATEST NEWSPAPER
VALUE

EVER OFFERED

The Wichita Daily Times, daily and
Sunday, or the Wichita Falls Record
News, daily and Sunday Times . . .
every day 365 days a year, anywhere in Texas or Oklahoma by mail . . . All
for $4.50.

Act Now!

NO ADVANCE IN PRICE
8 Pages Comics Sunday
Seven Complete Papers
Each Week

You Need Refrigeration
Every Day of the Year

There are only a few days each year that the temperature is low enough for the proper refrigeration of foods. Although foods may not spoil during cold Fall weather, the temperature is not low enough to prevent the growth of bacteria, the real danger of poor refrigeration.

The electrical refrigerator's economy and dependability of operation has been proven. The saving on foods alone makes the investment of your money amply repay you.

To protect your family's health, proper refrigeration is a necessity every day of the year. The cost is no greater than obsolete methods of refrigeration.

Low incentive rates make it possible for you to secure the maximum of benefit at the minimum of expense. Buy safe—buy dependable electrical refrigeration.

West Texas Utilities Company

SUCH IS LIFE—The Bill to Uncle

By Charles Sughrue

Bares Massacre of Old Alaskan Race

Scientists Find Skeletons on Kodiak Island.

Washington.—Evidence of a prehistoric "massacre" on desolate Kodiak Island, Alaska, at a time when it was inhabited by an unknown race of advanced culture, was uncovered this summer by Dr. Ales Hrdlicka, curator of physical anthropology of the Smithsonian Institution, who has just returned to Washington.

This was the sixth expedition of Doctor Hrdlicka to Alaska, and the third summer he has conducted extensive excavations on this site, which in some respects probably represents the highest aboriginal art in North America north of Mexico, although there is as yet practically no clue to the exact identity of the people who developed it or brought it from Asia.

"Nest Burials" Puzzle.

In past years Doctor Hrdlicka has been puzzled by what he terms "nest burials," where a number of skeletons would be found together, of all ages and both sexes and without any of the customary mortuary offerings which the ancient people ordinarily placed in graves.

The clue came with the discovery that many of the skeletons had cracked skulls and other evidences of combat. This is a strong indication that they were not wiped out by some epidemic and justifies a picture of a village massacre from which a few escaped, to return later and bury their dead in heaps.

Assisted by five volunteer college students, Doctor Hrdlicka was able make substantial progress this summer in uncovering the remains of the old settlement—apparently the "metropolis" of the bay on which it is located in the days when the island was an important center of population. The site rests on glacial till and in places on a peculiar geologic formation called by Doctor Hrdlicka "butter earth," a gritty, yellow clay, identified by geologists as representing old metamorphosed volcanic ash.

Had Higher Culture.

The unknown people were master craftsmen, especially in the making of beautiful stone lamps and in the carv-

Minnesota Fullback

Sheldon Bese, who played fullback on the Minnesota team last year, is on the job again this season. He is a great blocker and punger although weighing only 180 pounds, which is light for the Gophers.

ing of ivory. The latter art they carried to the extent of carving individual portraits.

Doctor Hrdlicka added extensively to his collection of skeleton remains and artifacts gathered there in other years; besides what was sent previously there are more than forty boxes of material on the way to the institution. But, he reports, one of the most important results of the excavations this summer was the great family difference found in the many ancient households studied.

All partook of a common culture, yet each family group had its own variation. Some were good lamp carvers, others specialized in other artifacts. The work furnishes a potent illustration of the fallacy of considering a prehistoric culture as almost invariable from individual to individual, or of judging of the whole culture of a people from a localized sample.

Aid in Housing

George H. Buckley of Iowa has been appointed assistant to James A. Moffett, federal housing administrator. He is in charge of all administrative functions.

ODD THINGS AND NEW—By Lane Bode

ANOTHER ICE AGE?
SCIENTISTS ARE STUDYING THE PLANT LIFE ON THE EDGES OF GREENLAND'S GLACIERS TO DETERMINE WHETHER THE WORLD IS EMERGING FROM OR ENTERING A GREAT ICE AGE.

RARE BUTTERFLIES FROM COMMON—IMITATING RARE BUTTERFLIES BY PATCHING TOGETHER PIECES OF COMMON ONES HAS BECOME FREQUENT IN PARIS.

ENAMEL PROTECTED—TOOTH DECAY PREVENTION HAS BEEN ACCOMPLISHED FOR THE FIRST TIME BY STUDY AND CORRECTION OF CONDITION OF SALIVA.

Paid for Building White House
The cost of erecting the White House was defrayed from the sale of lands donated in 1789-90 by Maryland and Virginia to the United States government.

VICTORIOUS VITALITY
By LEONARD A. BARRETT

The fatalist believes that, regardless of our best efforts, conditions occur according to the decrees of fate. Fruitless are all efforts to alter that decree. We may as well accept the inevitable without argument or explanation. If the decrees of fate are thus final and irrevocable the only alternative is wholehearted acquiescence. But is fatalism the true interpretation of values? Is there not some other explanation of the ills of life? Is a complete surrender to fate the only way out? If fatalism were accepted as a philosophy of life in the business world all progress would be blocked and complete disintegration of economic values would be near at hand.

Sports Ensemble

A two-piece sports ensemble of gray ribbed wool, with two pockets and a smart leather belt. The buttons are of tortoise shell. The bright green scarf is worn twisted at the neck. From Dilkusha.

him, he sees no way out but suicide, so the fatalist commits mental and spiritual suicide. The man who drives his work, however, substitutes for the law of surrender the law of control. A sudden calamity will either paralyze us or urge us on to "vaster issues." Much has been written about Theodore Roosevelt's "second wind." He never recognized defeat and the word failure was not in his vocabulary. This same philosophy of life which substitutes control for acquiescence is very greatly needed in the depression experiences through which many people are passing. Acquiescence kills pride, lowers the "morale" and makes one a prey to many of the false social theories rampant today.

Control creates a victorious vitality which refuses to be mastered by outward conditions. Instead of surrendering to fate it uses every unfortunate experience as a means to higher ends. The loss of money may lead to the conviction that "life does not consist in the abundance of one's possessions," and that life should be counted by heart throbs and not dollars in a bank. Using misfortune for higher ends creates values which we may never have thought existed. An entire new world has been opened up to many who refused these days to surrender to the irony of fate. Victorious vitality may come to everyone who uses misfortune as a "stepping stone to higher things," and who hears, "A deeper voice across the storm."

© Western Newspaper Union.

The Household
By Lydia Le Baron Walker

GLASS is invading the realm of interior decoration. Never before has it taken quite the place it does now, although it has had repeated revivals. Today even the walls of a house may glisten from tiny filaments of spun glass introduced into the wall paper together with similar filaments of metals to give a burnished surface. Mirrors have returned in all their glory and are hung to duplicate beautiful portions of rooms, or of bough, branches and landscapes glimpsed through windows. It is easy to see that the positioning of mirrors is important to bring out the desired reflections for beauty or for impressions of space. Mirror doily reflections of vases, usually of silver or glass, and flower-filled, give added attraction to tables, since the arrangement is in duplicate. These table mirrors are fascinating dining-table centerpieces as reflecting visions of those seated across the table are often caught, adding to the jollity of an occasion, or permitting swift, unspoken messages to be exchanged. It is true that these are matters apart from the decorative function of the doily mirror which is to reflect the ornamental centerpiece standing on it, but interest is added just the same. Doily mirrors come in round, oval, etc., shapes merely beveled at rims, or with dainty etched decorations on the glass. These mirrors are again in high favor after a lapse of several years.

The Table in This Living Room Has Crystal Book Ends, Reflecting Mirror Doily and Glass Paper Cutters, Etc.

Collector's Glassware. Glassware is still in the ascendency as a collector's hobby. It results to the advantage of interior decoration as many of the pieces take their places on mantelpieces, tables, sideboards, and also on glass shelves in windows. The light shimmers through the transparent crystal white or colored surfaces in a gay and enticing fashion. Many of the pieces can be of genuine practical use, serving as vases, salad bowls, cream pitchers and sugar bowls, paper weights, but we are not so familiar with glass book ends, paper cutters, and letter holders. Novel they are and handsome, whether in plain solid blocks or molded and chiseled or cut and engraved. Speaking of cut glass, its vogue is becoming more and more in evidence each season.

Cut Glass Comes Back. Cut glass is returning to favor. It may be said that it has always been in fashion since very light cutting has been in style during the many years when deep cut glass was demode. But the cutting was so very delicate that it made little impression on the surface of the glass, and also but little impression in the minds of purchasers. Etched glass has been in higher favor than cut glass.

Two designs are especially featured—pineapple and star cutting. Cut-glass goblets come in all sizes from the very small wine-glass size to the large water goblets. The cutting on this stemware has to be completed on the sides of the glass, for the rims must be polished smooth.

Scarce Advice Combination. "For advice to do any good," said Uncle Eben, "dar has to be one man smart enough to give it and another smart enough to take it; which is a scarce combination."

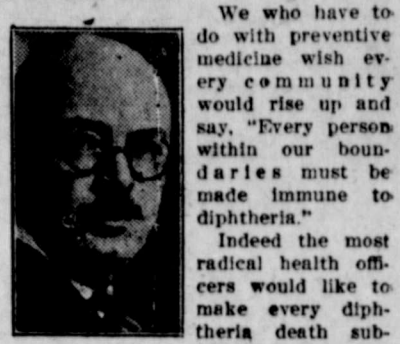

Frances M. Robinson, better known as "Hobbie," who has been the very active executive secretary of Gen. Hugh S. Johnson during his regime as NRA administrator, is now a real Kentucky colonel. Here she is seen examining the commission bestowed on her by Governor Laffoon.

Let Our Motto Be
GOOD HEALTH
BY DR. LLOYD ARNOLD
Professor of Bacteriology and Preventive Medicine, University of Illinois, College of Medicine.

DIPHTHERIA CAN AND SHOULD BE WIPED OUT

Every death from diphtheria today is a needless death.

We who have to do with preventive medicine wish every community would rise up and say, "Every person within our boundaries must be made immune to diphtheria." Indeed the most radical health officers would like to make every diphtheria death subject to a coroner's inquest, as if it were a case of murder. And they would bring to trial the parents, or the doctor, or whoever it was who let the child go too long before antitoxin was administered. If these radical officials could have their way, they would make it a criminal offense even for anyone to get diphtheria. Because diphtheria is a disease we could stamp out completely in this country in the space of a few years if every one would do his part.

Diphtheria is no longer a spectacular disease in the minds of the public. It would be well if it were. Older persons can remember when epidemics of diphtheria were feared. Cases of "black diphtheria" put dread in everyone's heart.

But even though diphtheria does not come in waves any more, as influenza does, it nevertheless bobs up continually. Diphtheria is the second greatest cause of death among children from five to fourteen years of age in the state of Illinois. It is led only by accidents. In Illinois in 1930 there were 545 deaths from diphtheria. That was 545 deaths too many. The same condition holds true practically for other states in the north temperate zone, for diphtheria is essentially a cold climate disease.

Diphtheria is a treacherous disease. It is what physicians call a toxoid disease, that is, the diphtheria germ, as well as doing its own particular damage, develops a poison that goes through the system, and as a result, even though the child recovers, damage may be done to the heart or the kidneys, and in later life the victim becomes a semi-invalid, or is otherwise handicapped. Children weakened by scarlet fever or measles are particularly liable to diphtheria if exposed to it.

The greatest number of cases occur among children from five to seven years of age, at the time they are beginning school and coming in contact with more people.

Diphtheria germs enter the body by the nose or throat and leave in the discharge from the nose or throat. Hence the person caring for a diphtheria case should be very careful in the handling of these discharges, and in the handling of anything touched by the patient's hands. Milk, if touched by infected hands, can become infected and transmit the disease. A patient should not be considered safe to mingle with others until two cultures from both the throat and nose are declared free from germs by a competent laboratory. Certain individuals, immune to the disease themselves, can have germs in virulent form in the lining of their noses and throats, and can transmit these germs to susceptible persons. In other words, they are carriers. Diphtheria germs are not killed by freezing, so that ice cream can transmit them; but they are killed by heat.

Different persons vary greatly in their susceptibility to diphtheria. Some have a natural antitoxin in their blood, and will not contract diphtheria under any circumstance. But others can get a second case within a few weeks after recovering from a first attack, so it is not safe to assume, without a test, that an attack of diphtheria will give immunity.

But every single person can be made immune to diphtheria. By the use of the Schick test, a doctor can tell whether antitoxin is present or absent in the blood of an individual.

If it is present, then that person will not contract diphtheria, even when exposed to it. If the Schick reaction is positive, then an injection of toxin-antitoxin given once a week for three weeks, will immunize the person against diphtheria. The toxin-antitoxin works slowly, however, and it may be eight to twelve weeks before immunity is complete.

In case a child who gives a positive Schick test is exposed to diphtheria, that child should be kept under frequent observation by a physician. Diphtheria can be an insidious disease. A child can have it for several days before the characteristic sore throat becomes painful enough that the child seems really sick. It is much better that the parents of a susceptible child be overly suspicious when diphtheria is about than to be worry free.

The period of incubation for diphtheria is from two to seven days, usually two days. If a child develops diphtheria, the physician should not delay a moment in the administering of antitoxin, so as to minimize as much as possible the toxin development of the disease. Speed has a meaning in diphtheria.

If there were a law that every child on his third birthday should be made immune to diphtheria, we could stamp out this dread disease in a very few years.

© Western Newspaper Union.

VOLCANOES IN ACTION

The volcanoes which erupted recently in the state of Vera Cruz, Mex., and in Alaska, are in that belt of volcanic activity which engirdles intermittently the huge basin of the Pacific ocean. This ring of volcanoes may be traced, on this side of the Pacific, from Cape Horn to Alaska, while on the other sides the cones are found in Japan, the East Indies, New Zealand, and other islands.

In South America, the Andes are studded with volcanoes, some of which are among the loftiest in the world. In April, 1932, a number of volcanoes roared into activity, terrifying inhabitants for 400 miles and sending dust as far away as New Zealand, 6,000 miles distant. Desabado, Chico and Planchon in the Andes erupted again in July, and last January Llaina, in southern Chile, poured smoke six miles in the air.

Why Liquid Laxatives Do You No Harm

The dose of a liquid laxative can be measured. The action can thus be regulated to suit individual need. It forms no habit; you need not take a "double dose" a day or two later. Nor will a mild liquid laxative irritate the kidneys.

The right liquid laxative will bring a more natural movement, and with no discomfort at the time, or afterward.

The wrong cathartic may often do more harm than good.

An approved liquid laxative (one which is most widely used for both adults and children) is Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin, a prescription. It is perfectly safe. Its laxative action is based on senna—a natural laxative. The bowels will not become dependent on this form of help, as they may do in the case of cathartics containing mineral drugs. Ask your druggist for Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin.

And There Are Many
Hokum is for the easily taken in; but they like it.

Cleaned PLUGS SAVE YOU money!
STOP THE WASTE OF 1 GALLON OF GAS IN 10... HAVE YOUR SPARK PLUGS CLEANED BY THE AC SPARK PLUG CLEANER

only 5¢ a plug

When your spark plugs are Oxide-Coated, they mis-fire intermittently. This wastes as much as 1 gallon of gas in 10. Ask any Registered AC Dealer, Garage or Service Station to stop this loss of money—by cleaning your spark plugs with the AC Cleaner. Replace badly worn plugs with new ACs.

Delinquencies and Duds
"How is your husband behaving?"
"Oh, badly enough for a new dress, I think."

NASAL IRRITATION

Believe the dryness and irritation by applying Mentholatum night and morning.

MENTHOLATUM
Gives COMFORT Daily

WNU-L

44-34

HELP KIDNEYS

If your kidneys function badly and you have a lame, aching back, with attacks of dizziness, burning, scanty or too frequent urination, getting up at night, swollen feet and ankles, rheumatic pains... use Doan's Pills.

Doan's are especially for poorly functioning kidneys. Millions of boxes are used every year. They are recommended the country over. Ask your neighbor!

DOAN'S PILLS

OUR COMIC SECTION

Events in the Lives of Little Men

THE FEATHERHEADS

Crawling

FINNEY OF THE FORCE

Real Art

POULTRY

LIKE GRADING PLAN IN MARKETING EGGS

More Careful Practices Are Found Profitable.

By R. E. Cray, Poultry Extension Specialist, Ohio State University.—WNU Service.
Each year more eggs are marketed on a graded basis. Along with this trend it is noticeable that poultrymen are taking better care of their eggs. And we are finding that the farm practices leading to better quality are no more difficult to follow than many of the practices now in vogue that lead to poorer quality.

Eggs, like milk, deteriorate. Because the egg comes in a sealed package, and its appearance seems much the same whether kept under good conditions or poor conditions, farmers have come more slowly to those practices that make for quality.

Here are the four practices poultrymen say lead to good quality:

Remove all cockerels from the flock as soon as the breeding season is ended.

Use good laying ration. It happens that the best laying rations also are proving to be the rations that give quality and, when the eggs are fertile, hatchability.

Produce clean eggs, by using good litter in nests, on the floor, and covering dropping boards with wire netting.

Gather eggs frequently. One poultryman reports saving time by gathering four times a day. He had less washing to do, he explained.

Guinea Fowls Marketed Like Other Game Birds

The marketing season for guinea fowls is during the latter part of the summer and throughout the fall. At this time the demand in the city markets is for young birds weighing from one to two pounds each. As the season advances, the demand is for heavier birds.

Guineas are marketed as game birds and, like game birds, are usually sold on the market unplucked, although hotels and restaurants buy them plucked. There are three varieties of guinea, white, pearl, and lavender, and although they were probably one of the earliest domesticated fowls, they still retain many of their wild characteristics. They can be raised profitably on most farms where the young birds are allowed to range, picking up waste grain and insects.—Missouri Farmer.

Warns Poultrymen on Iodine

Because production of eggs with a high iodine content is quite easy, and lately has become somewhat of a fad, California poultrymen have been advised by Dr. H. J. Almquist, research assistant in poultry husbandry, University of California, to proceed cautiously along this line. "The principle guiding much of this work," he said, "seems to be that, if a small amount of iodine in eggs is desirable, a large dose of it would be much better. This is following the same rule which caused the Indian buck to kill himself with cough medicine." Minimum and maximum iodine requirements of laying birds and growing chicks, according to Doctor Almquist, are not known, and until they are, considerable caution in the use of iodine supplements is to be recommended, he said.

Watch the Water Supply

Water fountains for poultry are often counted expensive appliances. Those who keep only a small flock are apt to think ordinary open vessels which can be bought for a small fraction of their cost will do as well. The great advantage of the fountain is that it keeps the water much longer at the temperature it was when put in, and that in summer there is very little evaporation from it. On a hot, dry day water will evaporate from open drinking vessels so fast that they may be dry long before the time when they are usually refilled. Where the attendant is away from home all day, the consequence is that the birds are without water when they need it most.

Poultry Affairs

Poultry houses should be ventilated at the top.

Poultrymen have found it costs just as much to feed a nonlaying hen as it does a high producer.

The good layer has a long, slightly curved keel, a deep abdomen and body, a broad, straight, smooth back, good chest development, straight sides, with the width carried back from the hip bone to the stern.

Most of the hens in a flock can be kept in laying until late fall, when they should be allowed to rest about six weeks.

Yellow corn is much more valuable for scratch feed than white corn. It contains vitamin A which is so necessary for poultry growth.

Poultry experts have found that fowl pox, commonly known as "sore-head," is caused by a microscopic germ affecting the skin and mucous membranes of the fowls.

Mercolized Wax

Keeps Skin Young

Almost blemishes and discolorations using Mercolized Wax daily as directed. Invisible particles of aged skin are freed and all defects such as blackheads, tan, freckles and large pores disappear. Skin is then beautifully clear, velvety and so soft—face looks years younger and so fresh. Use Mercolized Wax daily on your face and neck. At all leading druggists.

Powdered Sazoite
Reduces wrinkles and other age signs. Mercolized Sazoite cream cleanses in half an hour with hand and use daily as face lotion.

Sabbath Slumber
"How late do you usually sleep Sunday morning?"
"It all depends."
"Depends on what?"
"The length of the sermon."

DRUGS?

Don't make the mistake of giving even a 14-year old boy strong medicines meant for adults.

Boys and girls who have reached their "teens" are not ready to be given powerful drugs!

It is not wise to give laxatives of adult strength to a child, just because you give them less frequently or in less amounts. Many stomach upsets and bowel troubles of growing children can be traced to this single mistake.

Use a liquid laxative containing senna (a natural laxative). California Syrup of Figs has the right amount for children's use, and this rich, fruity syrup does not harm or upset a child's system.

Give that headachy, bilious child a little of this gentle laxative when constipated, and a little less, if dose is repeated until bowels seem to be moving regularly and thoroughly without need of help.

Get the true California Syrup of Figs containing senna and cascara, which will not weaken the bowels or irritate the kidneys. You'll soon have full evidence that it safely relieves constipation in children.

THE "LIQUID TEST." First: select a liquid laxative of the proper strength for children. Second: give the dose suited to the child's age. Third: reduce the dose, if repeated, until the bowels are moving without any help at all.

An ideal laxative for this purpose is the pure California Syrup of Figs, but be sure the word "California" is on the bottle.

Large Numbers
"Gert seems to have quite a head for figures, doesn't she?"
"I should say so. She says she has the number of numberless admirers."

If you tire easily

why not reason out the cause of this unnatural condition?

Your first thought may be, "I must eat more." That's not all. You should enjoy what you do eat. Frequently, the blood cells are low... and this, perhaps, is what makes you feel weak. If this is your trouble the stomach may not be calling for sufficient food. Zest to eat may be lacking. But what a difference S.S.S. makes when taken just before meals. Just try it and notice how your appetite and digestion improve.

S.S.S. stimulates the flow of gastric juices and also supplies the precious mineral elements so necessary in blood-cell and hemo-globin up-building. Do try it. It may be the rainbow you need to brush away present discouragement over your health condition.

Do not be misled by the efforts of a few unethical dealers who may suggest substitution. You have a right to insist that S.S.S. be supplied you on request. Its long years of preference is your guarantee of satisfaction.

S.S.S. the world's great blood medicine

Poor Contest
"He's wrestling with his conscience." "Yeah, a featherweight match."—Kansas City Star.

CREOMULSION

Your own druggist is authorized to chemically refund you money on the spot if you are not relieved by Creomulsion BRONCHIAL TROUBLES

WHEN

Samples are advertised ask for them either through the merchant or by mail, and then buy the merchandise, if you like it, from our local merchants.

Mrs. Fred Lovelace visited her daughter, Mrs. Earl Gibbs, in Wellington the past week. She attended the Nazarene assembly while there.

Bro. W. E. Lawson, Mrs. Ethel Josey, Mr. and Mrs. O. R. Cui well, Mrs. Josie Adamson and R. G. Adamson attended the Nazarene assembly in Wellington last week.

Harold Barnett of this city entered the bronc riding contest in the rodeo at Memphis last week end, and was successful in carrying off a part of the prize money.

The L. B. Chunn family visited his mother in Clarendon Sunday.

Mrs. Effie Engrim of Dallas visited her brother, Reed Saunders, the past week end.

J. B. Lamb and family were Memphis visitors Sunday.

Ed Jennings of Pueblo, Colo., son-in-law of Mrs. J. H. Kirkpatrick of this city, passed away there first of the week. Mrs. Kirkpatrick, Herman and Paul attended the funeral.

Miss Myrtle Mims visited home folks in Wellington Saturday.

Good PACKAGE COFFEE

Our Xmas stock will be on display soon. See ours and save money before you buy elsewhere. B & B. Variety

Guernsey male for service. $1.00 at time of service. See Roy Blanks. 24tp

Rev. Nannie Carter and husband left this week for Dodsonville, where they will live for the present. The new Nazarene pastor, Rev. Robinson, is expected to move here from Altus, Okla., with his family this week end.

Miss Loretta Moore is pending this week in Kirklind with Miss Mary Lee Cooper, who is teaching school there.

Rev. Dennis Lawson, pastor of the Hedley circuit, M. E. Church, left Tuesday for Abilene to attend the annual Conference. He made the best report of any pastor on this work for the past three years. He expects to enter school somewhere next year so that he can better equip himself for his life work.

The I. J. Spurrin family of Cloud Chief Okla., former residents of Hedley, were present at the Nazarene assembly in Wellington last week.

R. W. Alewine and Ralph Jr. attended a meeting of 18th district mail carriers in Amarillo Saturday.

Mr. and Mrs. Perry Seago of McLean spent the week end with the lady's parents, Mr. and Mrs. A. C. Maness.

Mrs. Donley Hall and Miss Ethel Bell of McLean visited home folks here Saturday night and Sunday.

PASTIME THEATRE

Clarendon, Texas

Thursday, Nov 15th
Bring Em In Dead
A road show. 10 25c

Friday 16th Clark Gable and Myrna Loy in

Men in White

A new romantic team, blazing across the screen, with a message you should see. Also News and Novelty 10 25c

Saturday 17th Hoot Gibson and Helen Foster in

The Boiling Point

A western, new different, unusual. Dynamic in every scene. Matinee 10c to all, night 10 15c

Sunday 18th Edna May Oliver, Billie Burke, Marion Nixon and several others in

We're Rich Again

The high cost of living made loving a cash proposition. Dealing with a family hit by the depression, and furnishes plenty of laughs. Also Richard Himber and his orchestra, and Buddies, Cartoon comedy. Mighty good program. Matinee only 10 25c

Mon Tues 19 20, Franchot Tone, May Robson, Karen Morley and Jack LaRue in

Straight is The Way

A girls love can make or break you. A drama romance. The thrill of life in the great city. Also Laurel and Hardy in Going Bye-Bye 10 25c

Wednesday 21, Ricardo Cortez and Barbara Robbin in

Hat, Coat and Glove

A mystery drama. A hat, coat and glove, the only clues, but they were the means of clearing an accused man. Also our Bank Nite and novelty, 10 25 cents

Thurs Fri Warren William, Mary Astor, in

Case of the Howling Dog
A Liberty story with plenty fun, also news and novelty

UNQUESTIONABLY SUPERIOR

Eads Grocery Co.

CLARENDON LIONS TO SPONSOR BENEFIT FOR CRIPPLED CHILDREN

Princess, the vanishing pony, will be in Clarendon Nov. 22, and will assist her master, Birch the famous magician, in entertaining during the engagement at the College Auditorium.

The program includes a great array of thrilling illusions and demonstrations of the magic art.

The performance is being given for the benefit of the Crippled Children's Fund of the Clarendon Lions Club. Matinee at 2:30 p. m., night show 7:30.

A real bargain in hostery for men, women and children. See them. B & B. Variety

Every Day Specials

FLOUR, GUARANTEED, 48 LB. $1.75

Coffee, Admiration, 3 lb. 93c

Oatmeal, Crystal Wedding 23c

Whole Wheat Flakes, 3 boxes 25c

Meal, 20 lb. 57c

Salt, 25 lb. bag 30c

Baking Powder, K C 17c

Hominy Grits, 3 boxes 23c

Bran Flakes, box 10c

Rice Krispies, box 10c

Syrup, Singleton, gal. 63c

Breakfast Bacon, sugar cured, lb. 22c

McCalister Market

Friday & Saturday Specials

Steak, choice cuts, lb. 15c

Beef Roast, nice, fat, lb. 7c

Pork Chops 18c

Pork Roast 18c

Sausage, pure perk, lb. 15c

Hot Barbecue, gravy free, lb. 15c

Be sure to see our Lunch Meats before buying.

EADS GROCERY CO.

PHONE 23

Used Cars

Prices Slashed Again

We will be in Hedley again Friday and Saturday with another lot of used cars, priced lower than ever. Fords and Chevrolets, all models and body types, that we are offering far below their value. Come in, look them over and drive them.

We Trade and Give Terms

Heath Service Station

Hedley, Texas

FOOD SPECIALS

We have the ditch on south side of store filled, making lots of parking space

Chili, lb. 15c

Flour, guaranteed	$1.69	East Tex. Yams, pk.	29c
Flour, Yukon Best	$1.89	Spinach, No. 2 can	10c
Lard, 8 lb.	85c	Tomatoes, 3 No. 2 cans	25c
Sugar, 25 lb sack	$1.29	Lettuce, head	5c
Salt, 25 lb.	29c	Bananas, doz.	19c

Cabbage, 10 lb. 19c

Grapes, 2 lb.	15c	Round or T-bone Steak, lb.	15c
Onions, 10 lb.	29c	Roast, choice, 2 lb.	25c
Peaches, gal.	49c	Roast, rib, 3 lb.	25c
Blackberries, gal.	49c	Bologna & Weenies, 2 lb.	25c
Peanut Butter, 2 lb.	29c	Sausage, lb.	15c

Spuds, pk. 23c

Highest Prices Paid for Cream and Eggs

'M' SYSTEM

SPECIAL - FOR A LIMITED TIME Only

THIS BEAUTIFUL NEW 1935 SUPER Aladdin MANTLE LAMP
KEROSENE (Coal-Oil)
REGULAR RETAIL PRICE $4.95 for only $3.25
SHADE AND TRIPOD EXTRA
Act Quick! Get Details Here Today! Cash - when your purchases at this store amount to $10.00

Thompson Bros.
Hardware and Furniture