LUNCHEON CLUB

The Hedley Luncheon club met at the Cooper Hotel at 7:30 Tuesday evening. Mr. Brown of the construction company working on highway 5, was the guest of honor, and made a very interesting talk on linking Hedley with the highway.

A sewer system for Hedley and a tennis court for the school were also discussed. Eighteen were present and report an enjoyable and profitable evening.

BASKETBALL

It is one of the most closely contested cage games ever played here, the Hedley Owls defeated the Clarendon Broncs 28-27 last Friday night.

Although the Owls trailed 15 to 13 at half time, they came back to overcome the two point margin.

With only one minute left to play, the Owls were still one point behind. Elton Howard made a field goal to put the fans into a frenzied uproar, and eked out a one point margin for the Owls, 28-27.

This marks the fourteenth consecutive year in which the Owls have defeated the Clarendon Broncs.

The Owlets have taken a decided turn in the field of basketball. Before Friday night, they had been defeated by a few points in every game. When Clarendon marched onto the court, however, they suddenly decided that they could play ball, and defeated the Clarendon girls 16-11. Great was the rejoicing thereof.

The Owlets also scored a victory at Groom Saturday night. The score was 20-15. The Hedley girls that participated in the two games Friday and Saturday night are as follows: Forwards, McPherson, Settle, Howard and Bell; Guards, Adamsen, Edwards, Whittington, Watt and Glenn.

McPherson and Howard tied for high point honors Friday night with 6 points each. McPherson led her team mates with 9 points Saturday night.

We cordially invite all patrons to attend our games. Many faces inspire victory.

NEW FUNERAL HOME IN MEMPHIS

Hedley people are especially invited to attend the formal opening of Hodges new funeral home at 9th and Noel sts Memphis, Texas, any time during the day, Saturday Feb. 9th. Appealing to the President:

Will Rogers says: "Just sitting here reading where so and so appealed to the President. Is there nothing that anybody can do for themselves any more?"

What has become of the old American spirit of doing things and the pride we once had and the backbone to get up and fight for ourselves.

We are "appealing to the President" too much. Lets do something for ourselves. We are living in the best part of the United States and have been blessed with our share of crops and have received our share of the "recovery program" and we need more initiative.

SUCH IS LIFE—Such Grammar

By Charles Sughrue

"BOHEMIANS" TO HER

A New York woman who numbers both the great and near-great among her acquaintances gave a function one day which was attended by Mrs. William Astor, then the dowager of the Astor family. A few days later Mrs. Astor met her hostess and remarked casually:

"I am having a Bohemian party, also."

"And whom have you invited to give it the bohemian atmosphere?" she was asked, to which she replied with emphasis:

"J. P. Morgan and Edith Wharton."—Boston Globe.

Bring Dead to Life With Late Devices

One Stimulates Heart, Another Restores Breathing.

New York.—Nearly 500 persons apparently dead have been brought back to life in New York and Chicago by two of the scientific instruments recently developed by physicians.

Many of these 500 were quite literally "dead" by ordinary tests—a few of them new-born babies whose bodies had been laid aside with the last hope given up.

The 500 were restored not only to life but to health. They are the answer of organized medicine to spectacular cases of reviving dogs, suicides and executed criminals. They are the practical application of the same knowledge which is being used for the more sensational experiments.

The immediate objective is an annual company of American "dead" about equaling the number of automobile fatalities. It is believed that as many as 50,000 in this group could be saved yearly if the new devices reacted when soon enough.

Gold Needle Saves.

There is no progress yet toward restoring to life the person who has died of a wasting disease—nor any wish by physicians to attempt it.

About 200 of those brought back to life here and in Chicago were treated with the artificial pacemaker, a gold needle which stimulates heart beats with electrical impulses at the rate of 30 to 120 a minute.

The needle was brought out two years ago by the Witkin foundation of the David hospital, New York city. It grew out of the fact that up to 1940 about 60 persons, apparently dead, had been brought back to life by hypodermic injections directly into their hearts.

Adrenalin was frequently used, but even a "shot" of caffeine similarly given restored some of the "dead." This all called attention to a mighty effort which nature herself makes in every heart. In the first 90 seconds after it stops, to get it to resume beating.

The heart quickly loses alkalinity, and its acidity rises. With rising acidity the heart becomes a better conductor of electricity, its own natural control is partly electrical, with exceedingly faint chemical-electric currents.

Gives Electric Shock.

The prick of a needle, without any hypodermic at all, is an electric shock to a heart in this condition. Realization brought the protection of the "artificial pacemaker" to supply electric impulses.

It was found, also that the heart has an electrical pacemaker of its own, a small group of cells in the right auricle, which seem to regulate the beat of the entire heart muscle. The gold electrical needle is used to substitute for these pacemaking cells.

Use of the needle tip there, instead of haphazardly about the heart appears to be frequently the direct source of recovery of life and permanent health.

The other new device for restoring the "dead" is an insufflator, sponsored by the society for the prevention of asphyxial death. It is a pressure apparatus for mechanical breathing, which goes a step farther than the "mechanical lungs," the equipment of emergency squads and artificial respiration.

Insufflation forces oxygen and carbon dioxide into the lungs. Moreover it mixes them when necessary in proportions to stimulate as well as give the ordinary effects of air.

Capital Squirrels in Need of Dentist

Washington.—White House squirrels need a dentist. They are suffering with pyorrhea, gingivitis and plain toothache, park commission experts said recently.

A frisky young squirrel of the Coolidge administration died recently and examination of its teeth disclosed the shocking truth.

The White House squirrels are the most pampered in the world. They are overfed on soft foods and never gnaw any nut harder than a peanut.

Keeping Young By LEONARD A. BARRETT

How old are you? Birthdays come and go. We either celebrate or forget them depending on our mood. Age is not a matter of years. It is an attitude of mind. At forty, with ideals crushed and all hope lost, we certainly could not help feeling old. If there is no "forward glance" then age has already settled upon us. But why should a person permit such attitude to dominate his mind? At three score years and ten we could be seventy years old as well as seventy years old.

Perhaps a few suggestions for keeping young may not be amiss, especially as the work of 1935 lies before us. One of the most important mistakes to avoid is the tendency to worry. Worry is like sand in a piece of machinery. It creates friction, retards progress, and may ultimately wreck the machine. If you must worry, then set aside a certain hour in each day for that purpose. Do it all at once, and then forget it. Next in importance

The Household By Lydia Le Baron Walker

This Tester Bedstead Is Fitted With Casters Which Are Correct for All Types of Bedsteads.

Most pieces of furniture should be provided with casters or gliders so that they can be moved easily. This being the case, it is well to consider the comparative virtues of each kind of fitting. There is a tendency toward using gliders in preference to casters although certain articles are exempt from this rule. Bedsteads should have casters, so also should davenport, day beds, and heavy furniture such as sideboards, dining tables, etc. Lighter pieces such as chairs, smaller tables, piano benches etc., are well suited to the glider fittings.

Casters raise furniture perceptibly while gliders do not. Neither are the latter visible, while casters are unless they are those which do not swivel, and these are not satisfactory usually. The reason for this is that the piece of furniture is easily movable in one direction only. Also the casters have an inclination to scrape in moving the other direction. When buying furniture fitted with casters be sure that they are swivel casters and then you will have no difficulty in moving it in any direction.

Height of Furniture

The matter of casters raising furniture should be remembered since this is taken into consideration in the making of some pieces and so they are at the correct height only when on casters. Sometimes chairs so constructed have had the casters removed and gliders put on in order for them to match the fittings of other pieces in the room. The actual comfort of the chairs is not altered, but the person sitting down in such a chair may be slightly surprised to find it lower than expected, and many a person finds these lowered chairs not so easy to get out of. It is not hard to pick out chairs which have had casters changed to gliders. To the initiate they appear shorn of a needed fitting. However it is true that the invisible element of gliders is desirable in chairs.

Metal casters are preferable to wooden ones which in time and with wear will lose their fully circular shape which the metal ones seldom do. Gliders are merely disks of polished metal. They must be absolutely smooth at rims as well as on surfaces.

Versatile Canine Plays Piano, Drums, Mandolin

Seattle.—Micky, four-year-old fox terrier owned by Mrs. D. C. Read, is said to be America's most versatile canine musician. The dog plays the piano, drums, mandolin, zither and a one-string Chinese instrument. He started his music lessons when six months old, on a toy piano.

Mickey handles the drums with small sticks clipped to his paws. Picks for the stringed instruments also are slipped on. His selections are not always classical, but are effective.

WATCH YOUR KIDNEYS!

Be Sure They Properly Cleanse the Blood

YOUR kidneys are constantly filtering impurities from the blood stream. But kidneys get functionally disturbed—lag in their work—fail to remove the poisonous body wastes.

Then you may suffer nagging backache, attacks of dizziness, burning, scanty or too frequent urination, getting up at night, swollen feet and ankles, rheumatic pains; feel "all worn out."

Don't delay! For the quicker you get rid of these poisons, the better your chances of good health.

Use Doan's Pills. Doan's are for the kidneys only. They tend to promote normal functioning of the kidneys; should help them pass off the irritating poisons. Doan's are recommended by users the country over. Get them from any druggist.

SUCH IS LIFE—Such Grammar

By Charles Sughrue

Bring Dead to Life With Late Devices

One Stimulates Heart, Another Restores Breathing.

New York.—Nearly 500 persons apparently dead have been brought back to life in New York and Chicago by two of the scientific instruments recently developed by physicians.

Many of these 500 were quite literally "dead" by ordinary tests—a few of them newborn babies whose bodies had been laid aside with the last hope given up.

The 500 were restored not only to life but to health. They are the answer of organized medicine to spectacular cases of reviving dogs, suicides and executed criminals. They are the practical application of the same knowledge which is being used for the more sensational experiments.

The immediate objective is an annual company of American "dead" about equaling the number of automobile fatalities. It is believed that as many as 50,000 in this group could be saved yearly if the new devices reached them soon enough.

Gold Needle Saves.

There is no progress yet toward restoring to life the person who has died of a wasting disease—nor any wish by physicians to attempt it.

About 200 of those brought back to life here and in Chicago were treated with the artificial pacemaker, a gold needle which stimulates heart beats with electrical impulses at the rate of 30 to 120 a minute.

This needle was brought out two years ago by the Witkin foundation of 1233 David hospital, New York city. It grew out of the fact that up to 1930 about 60 persons, apparently dead, had been brought back to life by hypodermic injections directly into their hearts.

Adrenalin was frequently used, but even a "shot" of caffeine similarly given restored some of the "dead." This all called attention to a mighty effort which nature herself makes in every heart, in the first 90 seconds after it stops, to get it to resume beating.

The heart quickly loses alkalinity, and its acidity rises. With rising acidity the heart becomes a better conductor of electricity, its own natural control is partly electrical, with exceedingly faint chemical-electric currents.

Gives Electric Shock.

The prick of a needle, without any hypodermic at all, is an electric shock to a heart in this condition. Realization brought the protection of the "artificial pacemaker" to supply electric impulses.

It was found, also that the heart has an electrical pacemaker of its own, a small group of cells in the right auricle, which seem to regulate the beat of the entire heart muscle. The gold electrical needle is used to substitute for these pacemaking cells.

Use of the needle tip there, instead of haphazardly about the heart appears to be frequently the direct source of recovery of life and permanent health.

The other new device for restoring the "dead" is an insufflator, sponsored by the society for the prevention of asphyxial death. It is a pressure apparatus for mechanical breathing, which goes a step farther than the "mechanical lungs," the equipment of emergency squads and artificial respiration.

Insufflation forces oxygen and carbon dioxide into the lungs. Moreover it mixes them when necessary in proportions to stimulate as well as give the ordinary effects of air.

Keeping Young

By LEONARD A. BARRETT

How old are you? Birthdays come and go. We either celebrate or forget them depending on our mood. Age is not a matter of years. It is an attitude of mind. At forty, with ideals crushed and all hope lost, we certainly could not help feeling old. If there is no "forward glance" then age has already settled upon us. But why should a person permit such attitude to dominate his mind? At three score years and ten we could be seventy years young as well as seventy years old.

Perhaps a few suggestions for keeping young may not be amiss, especially as the work of 1935 lies before us. One of the most important mistakes to avoid is the tendency to worry. Worry is like sand in a piece of machinery. It creates friction, retards progress, and may ultimately wreck the machine. If you must worry, then set aside a certain hour in each day for that purpose. Do it all at once, and then forget it. Next in importance would be relaxation. We may become so engrossed in our business affairs as to grow old and stale on the job. Get away from it long enough to study it from a distant point of view. You will take on fresh courage and new hope. It is possible that you will discover a solution for your problem which could not be seen before because you were too near it. Take time to play. "All work and no play, makes Jack a dull boy." Cultivate the humor in life. A good hearty laugh is the best possible tonic. Develop a sincere appreciation of friendship. A man to have friends must show himself friendly. Live close enough to nature to learn the secrets of perennial youth. Have a garden in the summer time no matter how small may be the parcel of ground upon which your home is built. Guard your health. It is your most valuable possession. In other words, the secret of keeping young is

To live in deeds not years, in thoughts not breaths, in feelings and not in figures on a dial. We should count time by heart throbs. He most lives who thinks most, feels the noblest, acts the best.

The Household

This Tester Bedstead is Fitted With Casters Which Are Correct for All Types of Bedsteads.

MOST pieces of furniture should be provided with casters or gliders so that they can be moved easily. This being the case, it is well to consider the comparative virtues of each kind of fitting. There is a tendency toward using gliders in preference to casters although certain articles are exempt from this vogue. Bedsteads should have casters, so also should davenports, day beds, and heavy furniture such as sideboards, dining tables, etc. Lighter pieces such as chairs, smaller tables, piano benches etc., are well suited to the glider fittings.

Casters raise furniture perceptibly while gliders do not. Neither are the latter visible, while casters are unless they are those which do not swivel, and these are not satisfactory usually. The reason for this is that the piece of furniture is easily movable in one direction only. Also the casters have an inclination to scrape in moving the other direction. When buying furniture fitted with casters be sure that they are swivel casters and then you will have no difficulty in moving it in any direction.

Height of Furniture

The matter of casters raising furniture should be remembered since this is taken into consideration in the making of some pieces and so they are at the correct height only when on casters. Sometimes chairs so constructed have had the casters removed and gliders put on in order for them to match the fittings of other pieces in the room. The actual comfort of the chairs is not altered, but the person sitting down in such a chair may be slightly surprised to find it lower than expected, and many a person finds these lowered chairs not so easy to get out of. It is not hard to pick out chairs which have had casters changed to gliders. To initiate they appear shorn of a needed fitting. However it is true that the invisible element of gliders is desirable in chairs.

Metal casters are preferable to wooden ones which in time and with wear will lose their fully circular shape which the metal ones seldom do. Gliders are merely disks of polished metal. They must be absolutely smooth at rims as well as on surfaces.

TEACH CHILDREN TO TASTE FOODS

Should Be Encouraged to Try Strange Dishes.

By EDITH M. BARBER

"MY LITTLE girl just won't eat vegetables. I can't make her," is a common remark heard so often. Some mothers really believe this, some almost take pride in having a child with such "firmness."

I have, however, seen a child like this join a group of children in a nursery school and within a few days she was eating all the foods which her mother said she could not be persuaded or forced to eat at home.

There seem to be several reasons for this apparent phenomenal change in food habits. The first of them is the great force of public opinion which even the little child senses. You know the common plea of children, "Oh, Mother, all the other kids do—can't I?" This same power is used to advantage in this case. Another reason for this startling conversion is that in the nursery school the fact that all the children will eat what is set before them is taken for granted. A child is not forced in the first place and there is consequently no struggle.

If children are taught to eat various foods as soon as they are allowed in the diet, the children are gradually acquainted with those things which for the sake of health must be part of their daily food throughout life. It takes patience and time on the part of the mother who does not always have a large supply of either on tap. One thing to be remembered is that the food question should not be made to appear of abnormal consequence. Do not try to get the child to eat more than a taste of a novel food at first, and do not bring on a struggle so that it will be associated with the food in question the next time it comes on the table. Remember also that the taste of any new food is an adventure for the child into the unknown. Encourage this adventure with patience and tact.

- 1½ teaspoons cinnamon
- 1½ teaspoons ginger
- ½ teaspoon cloves
- 1½ cups seeded raisins
- ½ cup chopped walnuts
- ¼ cup sliced citron
- ½ cup sour milk

Cream shortening and sugar, add eggs, well beaten, and applesauce mixed with molasses. Mix and sift together the flour, baking powder and spices. Add the raisins cut in pieces, the walnuts and citron. Mix well. Add the dry ingredients alternately to the sugar mixture with the sour milk. Bake in a moderate oven (350 degrees Fahrenheit) one hour.

Lights of New York

By

L. L. STEVENSON

Henry Goddard Leach, editor of the Forum and recently elected president of Poetry Society of America, received much publicity when, just after he had concluded an editorial on crime, he was snugged and robbed in Central Park. His case was by no means unique, however.

There have been many holdups in the biggest open space in the heart of Manhattan. A number of them have never even come to the attention of the police though in some instances, injuries were inflicted and considerable sums lost. The victims were unable to identify their assailants and considered themselves lucky to get off as lightly as they did. Others withheld their reports because they feared publicity. Residents in the vicinity of the park hesitate to walk in it evenings, especially in the upper reaches. There are pleasant walks—but there are also criminals, hoodlums and degenerates.

Central park covers an area of 844 acres. It is easily the most valuable piece of land in America. Yet, it is policed by something like 100 men, only a portion of which are really effective since policemen, injured or convalescing from illness, are assigned to parks. The result is attacks, rowdiness, vandalism and even in broad daylight, annoyance of girls and women by degenerates. Some time ago, there was talk of reviving the "sparrow cops"—plain clothes men who patrolled Central park—but nothing came of it. The best explanation of lack of proper park policing seems to be lack of funds.

The bootblack who shined my shoes on Eighth avenue had the hands of an artist. Also he had a sense of humor. He was chuckling over a recent happening. Along with a number of others of his trade he had been arrested and taken to a police station. The arrest occurred shortly after one o'clock and by the time they were all registered and taken into court, it was well after 2:30. They were all given a day in jail by the magistrate and after sentence were herded in a big room. At 3:30, they were turned out, a jail day officially ending at four. And the bootblack was tickled because he had served his sentence of a day in less than an hour.

Owners of shoe shining parlors and stands are the ones who make trouble for bootblacks my informant said. The men in the street take away their business. If it weren't for those complaints, the cops wouldn't bother them at all, he declared, cops being human after all. When he remonstrated with a cop for arresting him, the officer informed him that the owner of the nearby store was broke. "Has he got a bed?" the bootblack asked the policeman. "Sure, he's got a bed," was the reply. "Then he ain't as broke as I am," declared the bootblack. The cop took the bootblack around the corner and said, "Beat it."

W. Reid Blair, director of the Bronx zoo, is a tradition shatterer. Animals don't know any more about whether a winter will be mild or severe than do human beings, he holds. If they store up a lot of food it means nothing more than that there is plenty. If they grow thick coats, it is because there is plenty of food and their health is good, also because nature has a way of providing for emergencies and thus supplies the animal with a coat heavy enough for the coldest part of its range. As for the groundhog, it's merely a groundhog and not a weather forecaster.

HOW IT STARTED

By JEAN NEWTON

Calling Him a "Lame Duck"

AS IT is popularly used in this country, "lame duck" describes a defeated candidate for public office. People have used the expression to indicate general weakness or frustration, but that is an adaptation of its primary significance.

In Great Britain the term is applied to a defaulter, and adaptations there are to indicate a scapegrace, a black sheep. The origin of the expression can logically be attributed to the fact that in England for centuries a defaulter on the Exchange has been referred to as "wobbling out of the Alley."

Lets Houses Go Vacant

Rather Than Pay Taxes

Budapest.—Four modern apartment houses are standing vacant in Debrecen. The buildings are owned by a wealthy citizen who has decided that taxes are too high.

"I would not demand excessive rentals," he said, "but I am a victim of taxation, and I should like to complete the few years I still have here in peace. There is no peace for house owners."

"Sixty-five per cent of the gross income goes to the tax office and I have to defray repairs and other public charges from the remaining 35 per cent."

"As I have a pension after my former office, I do not want to continue this struggle with the authorities, and when my tenants die or move, I close down the vacated apartment for good."

City Spending More on

Automobiles Than Food

Fresno, Calif.—Fresno spends more money on its automobiles than it does on food or clothing, a retail survey revealed.

The Bank of America disclosed that 28 per cent of the city's retail purchases was in stores dealing in automobile supplies or accessories; 18 per cent was in food stores, and 10 per cent in clothing stores.

Natural Finish

For a certain charming simplicity, many like a natural wood finish in furniture. The wood is first rubbed down with 00 sandpaper or steel wool. If open-grained, such as oak, ash or chestnut, a filler is applied to seal it and create a perfectly smooth surface. A thin coat of varnish is then put on, which is protected and freshened up with liquid or paste wax applied and rubbed down.

Colonial Wall Colors

"Wainscot color"—mulberry—was a popular hue for walls in Colonial times, according to Marion Nicholl Rawson, in her new book, "Sing, Old House," which gives many hints for the restoration of old-time homes. Other colors discovered by Mrs. Rawson are olive green, a light blue known as "early Virginia blue," cedar, "lead color" or gray, and a marbled effect.

DETECTIVE GEORGE MARTIN, off duty, had been sitting in at a quiet little game in the neighborhood. The evening had been most profitable and his pockets bulged pleasantly as he strode homeward through the silent streets.

The detective was a personable young man in the early thirties.

Martin lived alone in a small and rather shabby apartment house in the West Sixties. The building boasted a central court with a tiny fountain, and as he entered the paved square he glanced up at his own windows on the fourth floor.

He stopped suddenly then, with a stifled exclamation, and remained rooted, his eyes straining incredulously upward. Between the apartment ran a narrow ornamental ledge or coping, and moving slowly and carefully along this shelf, in the direction of his windows, was the figure of a woman!

He watched, fascinated, as the woman moved, step by step, across the twelve-foot space. It was apparent that she had emerged from the window of his neighbor, Harry Crashaw.

Martin scowled. From their first encounter he had disliked and distrusted the sleek and dapper Crashaw—gambler, Broadway hanger-on and thrower of late and noisy parties.

He muttered against Crashaw now. Some poor girl risking her life to get away from that bird! He'd have it out with Crashaw and ask him what the devil he meant. . . . The girl had almost reached his window, and she faltered uncertainly at the sill.

Like a flash Martin bounded across the court. This was a walk-up and there was no elevator. He took the dimly lit stairs two at a time.

In his apartment he found the girl in a crumpled heap under the open window. She did not move when he snapped on the lights.

Stripping himself of coat and hat, the detective stooped to pick her up. Laying her gently on the couch, he went swiftly into the adjoining room and returned with a bottle of brandy. But even as he shook it, he remembered the boys from across the hall had killed it last night. Swearing softly, he sped out into the hall, closing the door behind him.

Better go into Crashaw's room. It was nearest, and he would be sure to have some spirits. He'd tell the smooth crook a thing or two while he was about it.

He was surprised to find Crashaw's apartment brilliantly lighted and apparently half full of people. Crashaw, himself, lay in a large armchair, his sleek hair ruffled and a new white bandage on his shoulder.

Jackson, the superintendent of the building, came forward excitedly. "Just the man we want, Mr. Martin," he said. "Mr. Crashaw here was robbed and half murdered this evening."

Martin's jaw dropped. He came in quickly and shut the door.

"Yeah," snarled Crashaw, "and you dicks better get busy on this. It was a girl, see? One of these apartment house thieves. I came in and found her at the wall safe, and she cleaned it out while she held a gun on me. I was mad and I tried to rush her. I did get the gun away, but in the rumpus it went off." He glanced ruefully at his shoulder. "It must have stunned me; anyway I crumpled up, and the girl made her getaway."

"What I can't understand," he added irritably, "is how she got out, with you fellows out there pounding on the door."

Martin, his head in a whirl, had a momentary flash-back of a terrified small figure clinging to a wall. But his eyes betrayed nothing as he fixed them on Crashaw. "Just what did she take?" he asked levelly.

"Six hundred dollars in cash," snapped Crashaw. "It seems to me you're damned cool about it, Martin."

"What do you expect me to do, burst out crying? I'll go and report it." Martin turned on his heel.

He knew very well what he had to do. Duty was duty. But she was a game kid all right— Oh, well, what the h—!

He went swiftly down the hall and entered his own apartment. The girl was standing in the center of the room, her hands thrust deep in the pockets of her worn leather coat. Her wide eyes met his challengingly, but he sensed the mute appeal behind them. She did not speak.

"Scram, kid," he said quietly. "Out the window. You can make it to the fire-escape and down into the court. Step on it, because they're out for your blood." He gestured toward the other room.

"Put the Crashaw loot on the table as you go by," he ordered, without looking at her. "It's all right, I'll give it back."

He waited till he heard her cautiously descending the fire-escape, then, relaxing, reached out for his coat which still hung on the chair near the bathroom. He needed a cigarette badly.

Regarding the coat, his mind went back to the forgotten poker game. Three hundred dollars he had won in that game and had come home with his pockets bulging. He realized with a shock that they were not bulging now! With a sharp indrawn breath, he examined the pockets.

Sheepishly, Detective Martin lit his cigarette.

FINE RECORD OF ACHIEVEMENT BY 1934 EXPLORERS

The maze of water passages and adjoining islands in Tierra del Fuego, near the southern tip of South America, was explored in 1934, in a 26-foot boat by Amos Burg, on an expedition sent out by the National Geographic Society. Burg also rounded Cape Horn in his small craft.

An expedition of the California Institute of Technology rediscovered a chasm in a mountainous section of Chihuahua, Mexico, comparable in size and grandeur to the Grand Canyon of the Colorado. It was known only to Indians and a few miners.

The 17,000-foot twin peaks of Mount Foraker in McKinley national park, Alaska, were scaled for the first time August 6 by Charles Houston, T. Graham Brown, and Chychele Waterman.

logical discoveries of the year came in March when two French aviators, Capt. Edouard Cornillon-Molinier and Andre Malraux, flew into the interior of Arabia northeast of Yemen and sighted and photographed from the air the ruins of a great city previously unknown to the West.

The remains of seven Mayan cities, one surrounded by a moat, were discovered in northern Guatemala by expeditions of the Carnegie Institution of Washington.

The Man Who Cut the Wires

SOME years ago Pittsburgh was much wrought up over the robbery of a safe belonging to the Union Express company.

One hundred thousand dollars was taken from the receptacle, and no one knew how it had been done.

The safe came into the Union station in the usual manner, locked and guarded, and was conveyed to the office of the company in the custody of armed men.

But the messenger, who was supposed to be in charge of the valuable property, could not be found.

That fact, however, gave a clue upon which the authorities were able to start an investigation.

Thomas Furlong, one of the ablest railroad detectives in the United States, was put upon the case, and the first question he asked was the name of the messenger who had charge of the safe when it left the other end of the line.

"That was easily answered. The man was J. J. Bingham, not only a reliable employee, but a brother of the superintendent of the express company."

"Find Bingham," said Furlong, curtly.

He was found very readily at his home and was just as much astonished to hear of the robbery as the officials had been.

But he was able to give Furlong some significant information.

He said that he had received a telegram the day before from his brother, George Bingham, which directed him to look out for the new messenger, "J. C. Brooks."

The telegram added:
 "Meet him at Templeton, en route. Turn over cash and valuables to him and take receipt for same. Then report to superintendent at Parkersburg, who will give you further orders."

Obedience to orders was ingrained in J. J. Bingham, and he did exactly what he was told to do in the telegram.

The suspicion that anything was wrong never occurred to him.

The men in the service were used to being shifted at short notice.

He did not find the superintendent at Parkersburg in his office, and had gone home to change his clothes.

The telegram was a forgery.

Detective Furlong made his decision quickly. He determined to go to Templeton to get the lay of the land.

While he was walking around the station he came across a little girl, sitting on a log.

He got into conversation with the child and she remarked that he was not the first stranger that had been in town in the last two days.

Questioned further, she said another man had been there and had torn a sheet of paper into little bits and thrown them behind the station.

By rare good fortune Furlong found the scraps of paper. He got down on his hands and knees and gathered them, and, after that he went into the station, and, by the use of muclage and a fresh sheet, managed to paste them together.

The result was a blank check on a bank at Carlisle.

But that was not all. While Furlong was doing his Sherlock Holmes act he found a little pocket telegraph instrument.

In itself it meant nothing.

In connection with other things it meant everything.

The detective hastened to Carlisle, where he continued his inquiries.

He talked to the station agent and wanted to know if there was a telegraph operator in town.

There was one by the name of Maculey, and only a few days before he had been inquiring where he was likely to obtain a small instrument.

In less than a week Furlong had reconstructed the whole affair.

Maculey, a shiftless character, needed money.

He conceived the idea of robbing the express company.

Getting his telegraph instrument and ascertaining the name of the messenger who would be on duty with the safe of valuables, he had gone to a lonely spot in the wood near Kittingan.

He cut the wire and connected it with his pocket instrument.

He sent the telegram to Bingham, met him at the appointed place and then proceeded with the safe to Pittsburgh.

Having been given the keys, he opened the safe en route and rifled it of the valuables.

Then he locked it and accompanied it to the Smoky city and saw it loaded on the express wagon and started on its destination, duly guarded.

Before reaching the office he slipped away and disappeared with the loot.

The search for him went almost around the world, and he died before being brought to trial.

The Bob-White

The bob-white is an American per-cidine bird, especially the common quail of the northern United States or the partridge of the southern section.
 They are about ten inches long, the lower breast and abdomen are white or buff, barred with black; the males have white throats and a white band over the eyes as well as a black crown, and bands on the upper breast and under the eyes.

RUG WELL NAMED "BED OF ROSES"

By GRANDMOTHER CLARK

The original rug shown measures 44 inches and requires four pounds of rags to complete. It is braided with three strands, but can be crocheted. A crocheted rug has better wearing properties. Many colors are used in the following combinations: Center circle in white, yellow, red, and black. Three of the outer circles in various rust shades. The other three circles in two shades of blue, and yellow. Outer edge is rose, yellow, black.

This rug shows that beautiful rugs can be made of rags. The regulation or common rag rug is either round or oval, with various color combinations, and when finished has no particular beauty. In making the above "Bed of Roses" rug, make seven small round rugs about twelve inches in diameter, and set together as shown here, then work rows all around to size wanted. It's a different rug and only another idea of what can be made of rags.

The best material for making rag rugs is "Linkraft." When using this new material no cutting or matching of sizes is necessary. Linkraft is a round knitted material like jersey. It comes in links about five inches long, but stretches to about nine inches when linking together. These links are to be linked together in solid colors or mixed as desired. Linkraft is very durable, does not fray like rag strips and Linkraft rugs weigh about 20% less than rag rugs.

If you are interested in making rag rugs, send for Grandmother Clark's Book No. 25 on Crocheted and Braided Rugs. Twenty-six rugs are illustrated, with instructions. A wonderful selection to pick from when having a good-looking rug in mind.

How Calotabs Help Nature To Throw Off a Bad Cold

Millions have found in Calotabs the most valuable aid in the treatment of colds. They take one or two tablets the first night and repeat the third or fifth night if needed.

How do Calotabs help Nature throw off a cold? First, Calotabs are one of the most thorough and dependable of all intestinal eliminants, thus cleansing the intestinal tract of the germ-laden mucus and toxins.

Second, Calotabs are diuretic to the kidneys, promoting the elimination of cold poisons from the blood. Thus Calotabs serve the double purpose of a purgative and diuretic, both of which are needed in the treatment of colds.

Calotabs are quite economical; only twenty-five cents for the family package, ten cents for the trial package. (Adv.)

Height of Angels

The customs authorities of one of the central European states have been engaged in a very interesting controversy. A sculptor entering their country objected to paying duty on a statue of an angel, which, he said, he had no intention of selling. Under the rules, he was told, works of art of this type were only exempt if they weighed over ten pounds and were at least life-size.

But what, in the case of an angel, was life-size? The statue was five feet high, but the customs officials were quite sure an angel was taller than that. So, in spite of his protests, the sculptor had to pay.

He really can't grumble, because the best authorities seem to agree that, while angels can change their height and general appearance at will, they are normally considerably over five feet.

This appears not only from Milton's "Paradise Lost," but also from details given by the learned men of the Jews. According to them some angels, at least, are nearly 8,000 miles high, and one of them, Sandalfon, is described as "taller than his fellows by the length of a journey of 500 years."

CONSTIPATION Can be Helped!

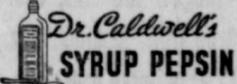

(Use what Doctors do)

Why do the bowels usually move regularly and thoroughly, long after a physician has given you treatment for constipation?

Because the doctor gives a liquid laxative that can always be taken in the right amount. You can gradually reduce the dose. Reduced dosage is the secret of real and safe relief from constipation.

Ask your doctor about this. Ask your druggist how popular liquid laxatives have become. The right liquid laxative gives the right kind of help, and the right amount of help. When the dose is repeated, instead of more each time, you take less. Until the bowels are moving regularly and thoroughly without any help at all.

The liquid laxative generally used is Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin. It contains senna and cascara, and these are natural laxatives that form no habit—even in children. Your druggist has it; ask for—
