GEO. M. REED DIES AT STRATFORD HOME

George M. Reed well known resident of Clarendon from 1915 to 1930, passed away Saturday at his home in Stratford after a fatal attack of pneumonia.

George Monroe Reed was born in Pilot Knob, Mo. Feb. 25, 1885, being 49 years of age at the time of his death. In 1909 he was married to Miss Bess Caraway, of Clarendon. During the 15 years he spent in Clarendon and Hedley, he was associated with Odos Caraway in the bakery and restaurant business. In 1920 he moved to Stratford where he engaged in the same line of business.

Mr. Reed had been a member of the Baptist church for many years, and was also a member of the Masonic Lodge and the Order of Railway Conductors.

He is survived by his wife, one daughter, Gertrude, his mother and two sisters.

Funeral services were held in Clarendon Sunday afternoon, conducted by Rev. J. Perry King pastor. Interment was made in the Citizens Cemetery with the Masonic Lodge in charge.

Harry Mendenhall and family and Earl Mendenhall and family left Saturday for New Mexico, where they will make their home. They are located near Socorro for the present. Their many friends here wish them good luck.

The missionary ladies of the Nazarene church met in their regular meeting Monday, with a very interesting meeting and mission lesson from "Under the Tropical Skies."

O. R. Cuwell and wife, and son Buster, went to Amarillo Wednesday, returning Thursday.

Rev. and Mrs. E. T. Robinson and Mrs. O. R. Cuwell spent Tuesday with friends near Ash- tola.

Mrs. T. S. Parks of San Antonio visited relatives here and in Amarillo the past two weeks. She will be remembered here as Miss Theima Horschler.

Homer Grimsley and family of Memphis visited here Sunday.

WHITTINGTON BABY

Kenneth Carol, 21 day old infant son of Mr. and Mrs. S. M. Whittington, died February 7, at the family home three miles west of Hedley.

As I was sitting by the fire side

There came into my mind A thought that God is wisdom. He knows best and He is kind. He sent little Kenneth to us, We thought he'd come to stay, But God knew otherwise And took our darling away.

We know that he's safe at rest In that bright world above, He's resting on the Savior's breast

Where all is peace and love.

Dear friends, my wish to you is When death has stilled our hearts,

We all shall meet our precious babe Where we'll never have to part.

CARD OF THANKS

We wish to thank our many friends and relatives for their kindness shown during the illness and death of our dear baby Kenneth

Mr. and Mrs. S. M. Whittington and children.

Mr. and Mrs. H. J. Whittington and family

COTTON COMMITTEE

A mass meeting was held at the high school auditorium last Friday for the purpose of electing the local committee on the cotton control program. W. C. Bridges was elected.

The following Monday the 9 local committeemen from over the county met in the county agent's office and elected the county committee. J. G. McDougal, E. L. Lewis and Nolie Simmons taking M. M. Noble's place. McDougal and Lewis were holdovers from the 1934 committee.

REVIVAL

Rev. W. B. Merton, conference evangelist of the Methodist church from Abilene, will start a revival meeting at the Methodist church next Sunday, Feb. 17. This will not interfere with the Nazarene meeting, as they have kindly consented to defer their meeting for the present, as this was the only time that Bro. Merton was available. The public is cordially invited to attend these services.

JUNIOR CLASS

The Junior class had charge of the chapel program Tuesday morning, Feb. 12. They presented a one act play entitled, "The Rest Cure." The play was sponsored by the Junior sponsor, Miss Hixon, and Miss Gamewell. The cast was as follows:

Mr. Reed, the patient, C. C. Horschler.

Mrs. Reed, his wife, Imogene Bell

Nurse Palmer, the dark cat, Verlin McPherson.

May, nurse fair cat, Laura Bell Birchfield

Muriel, the servant and comedienne, Sammie Dee Whiteside.

Men's work shirts, and dress shirts, work pants, overalls

Pants and coveralls for boys B. & B Variety

JOHN W. KENDALL PASSES AWAY

A message received by Frank Kendall informed him that his youngest brother, John, had passed away last Friday morning at the family home at Boise, Idaho, and was buried at that place on last Sunday afternoon.

He was 28 years old and was born near Clarendon soon after the family moved to this country. He was a world war veteran, was an active member in social and church work.

He leaves a wife and one son about 12 years of age besides an aged father, 5 brothers and one sister. One sister and his mother having preceded him.

He moved with his parents to the Idaho country some 20 years ago, and was engaged in the bakery and restaurant business at the time of his death, which resulted from a cancerous formation of the stomach.

HEDLEY P. T. A.

Hedley P. T. A. observed Pioneers Day on Feb. 7, with a beautiful and appropriate program directed by Miss Hixon, Home Ec teacher. Assisting Miss Hixon were Misses Helen Settle, Ruby Aldridge, Imogene Bell and Zona Adamson, of the Home Ec department, and Yvonna Meeks from the Sixth grade. The cooperation between local, state and national groups was presented by the high school students, while the service of these units to the school child was given by Yvonna Meeks.

After the program, the chairman, Mrs. Luttrell, called for a business session. The body voted to sponsor a basketball game on Monday night, Feb. 11, to be played by teams composed of ladies of the association and of ex students.

A count of the members present in the contest revealed a tie between the Third and Sixth grades, with another meeting to determine the winner of the reward for the month.

After adjournment of the business session, the members met in the English room where delicious refreshments were served by members of the Home Ec department.

Appealing to the President:

Will Rogers says: "Just sitting here reading where so and so appealed to the President. Is there nothing that anybody can do for themselves any more?"

What has become of the old American spirit of doing things and the pride we once had and the backbone to get up and fight for ourselves.

We are "appealing to the President" too much. Lets do something for ourselves. We are living in the best part of the United States and have been blessed with our share of crops and have received our share of the "recovery program" and we need more initiative.

Start that saving account today and begin to do something for yourself.

SUCH IS LIFE—Oh, Mom!

DROUTH BLAMED ON RECESSION OF ICE FIELDS

A theory that changes in climate conditions which have brought drouths to western Canada and parts of the United States may be caused by the recession of glaciers in the Canadian Northwest and Alaska is being studied by a committee of the British Association for the Advancement of Science under the secretaryship of Moses B. Cotsworth of Vancouver and London.

The scientists have found that the warm winds of the Pacific are not only demolishing great ice sheets in this district but are hollowing out a path across northern Canada on their way east. Formerly they were diverted by ice fields in the North and passed through southern British Columbia to drop their moisture in rain on the Canadian and United States prairies.

Now with less ice each year in the North and no mountains to precipitate their moisture, the winds reach the 9,000-foot ice cap of Greenland. The change, Mr. Cotsworth says, seems to be making Alaska warmer and Greenland colder.

Meanwhile, the Greenland ice cap has grown immensely. It is estimated to be sufficient to cover North America with a layer of ice 50 feet thick. Gravitational weight seems to be very gradually exerting a tendency to move the earth's crust around its central core of the heaviest metals. These changes, Mr. Cotsworth suggests, may prove helpful in the detection of further climatic changes.

Queer Vocabulary Spoken by Hoboes

Punk Means a Boy Tramp or Loaf of Bread.

Baltimore, Md.—Most folks think sailors have the strangest vocabulary of their own, but sailors have nothing on the American hobo when it comes to quaint and curious lingo, writes Charles A. Scarpello in the Baltimore Sun. That is my final opinion after a few hobo trips of my own in which I drifted from port to port.

I was born in the City of Chicago, where I completed the seventh grade in grammar school before I ran away to sea at the age of thirteen. In my nine years of wanderings, beginning as mess boy and now as a quartermaster, I have sailed the Great Lakes and some of the tributaries of the great Mississippi and the well-known seven seas. I have been on the beach in Havana, Copenhagen and Stockholm. In between trips I have hit the trail through every state in the Union and Canada and Mexico. And the folks who think a tramp is just a tramp or a hobo ought to try the life for a while and see.

Among the tramps with whom I have traveled in the United States are bindle stiffs, pack stiffs, mission stiffs, fingle stiffs, gas bounds, mush fakers, jungle buzzards, panhandlers, bowery bums, highway bums, dock rats, beachcombers, rubber tramps and local characters.

The Bindle Stiff.

The bindle stiff is a bum found in southern and central California mostly. You can see them any day, rain or shine, either in the jungles or walking along the railroad tracks. He is either carrying his bed roll or bindle or is followed by a young boy whom he calls his punk and who carries it for him. Most bindle stiffs are too lazy to carry it themselves. The bindle consists of a piece of canvas, two blankets or quilts, a few pieces of clothing, soap and towel, shaving and sewing gear and cooking utensils. It is tied up and slung over the shoulder.

Kit Is Busy Again

Kit Klein of Buffalo, N. Y., who was the women's speed skating champion in 1932, is active in this winter's contests. At Newburgh, N. Y., she won the 220 yard dash in the Middle Atlantic meet, her time being 24 1/2 seconds.

The pack stiff is somewhat like the bindle stiff and you find him mostly in and around Oregon, Washington, Idaho, and Montana; almost anywhere in the Pacific Northwest. He almost always carries his own pack. Lumberjacks carry a pack looking for work, but they are not to be classed as tramps like the pack stiff.

The mission stiff is seen mostly in the big cities where there are lots of missions, soup lines and bread lines and they can live without work. They get up in the mission prayer meetings and tell how religion has saved them, and tell about their wicked, sinful lives before they were saved. The wilder the story the better, because it arouses the sympathy of the worshippers therein. The mission always feeds them and gives them a place to sleep, and old clothes until they find a job. They never find it. When one mission wears out they tackle another. I even found several who made such convincing speeches that they began to believe it themselves and became religious fanatics. All the others detest the mission stiff. When any other kind of a tramp or bum goes to a mission, the mission stiff acts as if he was the whole cheese and you ought to bow down to him because he is "saved," and they even preach to you.

Teacher of Bumology.

In Los Angeles a few years ago the best place to get picked up by the police was just outside a certain mission. The police railroaded you on a vagrancy charge and you either got 30 days in Lincoln Heights Jail or 24 hours to get out of town. This is called getting a floater out of town.

The hoboes have a vocabulary all of their own. Punk means a young boy tramp or a loaf of bread. Ryno, dyno and dingbat mean old bums. A jocker is a teacher of bumology. A buck is a Catholic priest. A banjo is a frying pan. A telescope is a series of tin cans each smaller than the other carried inside each other for cooking in the jungles. A hippins is a mattress of straw or wadded paper. A sougan is a quilt. Gas is denatured alcohol diluted in equal parts with water. Peoria may be a city in Illinois to some. To a tramp it is a dish of potatoes and onions, first boiled and then fried. A shack is a railroad brakeman. A hole is a railroad sidetrack.

Breaking With the Past

By LEONARD A. BARRETT

Historians tell us that civilization will go forward just so far as it has gone backward. The pendulum of a clock swings in both directions an equal distance from the center. Society can make no progress without a past out of which that progress emerges. The past, remote and inaccessible as it is, is very definitely related to and responsible for the present. "Out of the yesterdays many and great" come both the mind and material which makes our future. So far as society is concerned the most important contribution the past makes to the present is experience. All else may be forgotten, but that remains. It is experience that urges us to avoid past mistakes and profit by the lessons we have learned. If this were not so progress would be impossible. We become stagnant when we live more in the past than in the present. Living in the past means that we repeat the same mistakes, think in the same old grooves and harbor the same selfish mental attitudes toward life's value.

A fresh start, or the power to begin over again, whether we start with the new day, week or year, requires a very definite breaking with the past. The song of Pippa in Browning's poem, expresses the true philosophy of progress.

"Where'er we repine with thee to lead me O day of mine."

Breaking with the past demands the elimination of all remorse and the removal from our vocabulary of that obnoxious little word, "if." The moment we carry into the future all that is suggested by the phrase, "it might have been" we impair vision, diminish vitality and cloud judgment. The decision to begin again demands a tremendous amount of will-power. Theodore Roosevelt always took keen delight in speaking about "his second wind," "our second wind, or the opportunity of a fresh start, is within the reach of every person who casts off weakness taken over from the past and permits courage, hope and perseverance to lead him on.

The Household

By Lydia Le Baron Walker

ONE of the petty annoyances that every one has who wears shoes that fasten with ties or shoe strings, is their coming untied. That is unless these persons have learned the way to make the bows secure, and few have found the solution. So let me tell you today of a method whereby this bother can be prevented. It is so easy any one, even a child, can do it.

Make the first twists of the strings about each other, as usual, which is loosely termed tying the knot. However as a knot is defined as intertwining parts "so that they will not slip," the use is scarcely correct. But we will understand what is meant whether we signify this crossing of shoe strings (one over and one under the other) as tying them together or knotting them.

Make a loop of one of the ends close to this tying as usual and proceed to loop the other end about it exactly as you do when tying a bow. But, instead of making the second loop immediately, draw the whole length of the string or ribbon through and proceed to make the second loop, which this time is actually formed into the loop of the bow. Draw tight as is customary. This bow will not come undone or work out.

Make Bow Straight.

It is easy to understand that when the strain and rub come on the bow, the knot beneath, instead of working loose, tightens. We now have a real dictionary type of knot for it "will not slip." This is no theory, but a practical working plan, one I have used for many years and found absolutely successful.

While the first requisite of a tied shoe lace is that it remains tied, the second is that the bow comes straight across the front of the shoe without twisting. How you do this depends on how you make the first tying, and the direction of the ends, which must follow their natural tendency or the bow will be askew. A little careful watching and experimenting will be all that will be needed to perfect the tying of the bow. When knot is tight and bow straight, both comfort and good looks are well met.

Selecting Silverware.

Selecting silverware is a pleasant task which, at one time or another falls to the lot of every homemaker. It may be the silver is for her own home, or it may be for a wedding present for a new home. In either event the person sees the beautiful pieces, reproductions of choice old patterns or new pieces and new styles. As silverware has both a decorative and practical purpose, it should fulfill both missions, and always prove an artistic pleasure.

The shapes and sizes of flatware and hollow ware have been carefully thought out by makers in order for each piece to fulfill best its special use. The name flatware refers to knives, forks, spoons and all such pieces as lie flat on the table and are service or individual pieces. The name hollow ware pertains to all containers, which in order to hold things must be hollow, such as pitchers, coffee and tea pots, sugar bowls, and plates, dishes of all sorts and descriptions that are made of this precious metal. Trays and platters, although they may be flat, yet nevertheless, are containers come under the category of hollow ware. Flatware consists of small articles. Hollow ware pieces are larger, although their sizes differ widely.

Eats 80 "Hot Dogs," "Is Not Very Hungry"

Belgrade—Dragolju Illic wasn't very hungry, otherwise he might have bettered his record of eighty sausages at one sitting. Illic, a carpenter, devoured eighty of the Serbian "hot dogs" called "cevapici," highly spiced roasted pieces of lamb, pork and veal, washing them down with four bottles of wine.

He started fast on his first forty, but lagged a little the next ten and coasted on toward sixty. There the going got tough, and he barely limped through the last twenty.

A large crowd watched him and applauded his efforts.

Lois Picks Cotton From a Tree

Picking cotton from a tree might be something new to cotton growers in this country. But it's nothing new to pretty Lois Smith, who is shown picking real cotton from a tree in Miami, Fla. This cotton tree is one of the few left in south Florida. It is a native of tropical America and was introduced into the state by the Calusa Indians in the days before Columbus. The tree grows to a height of 30 feet.

NEW DEAL BRIDGE CLUB

Mrs. Ray Moreman, assisted by Mrs. Roy Kutch was hostess the New Deal Bridge club and several more friends Friday afternoon, Feb. 8, in the home of Mrs. Moreman. Five tables had been arranged for bridge. The games terminated with a sur-

Homer Simmons. She received many lovely and useful gifts.

Traveling prizes for the afternoon games were held by Mrs.
P. L. Dishman and Mrs. Harrison
Hall, these were presented to the honoree.

A Valentine theme was carried out at the bridge tables and also in the dainty refreshments served at the close of the afternoon.

Those present were: Mes-
sames Homer Simmons, Sher-

Looking Forward—

West Texas has untold possibilities for development. Although much progress has been made, there is much room for further achievements by all thrifty and enterprising citizens.

A bulk of our natural resources lie virtually untouched. A continued diversification of agriculture in its broadest sense will materially benefit our section. Homes and places of business, as evidenced in travel over West Texas, need repairing, painting or entirely rebuilding. Many of our cities have faced a shortage in the better class of homes for the past several months. Industry and capital needs encouraging in West Texas so that more labor can be profitably employed.

Capital can be secured and this continued program of development can be realized when men are convinced of the attitude of governing bodies on taxation and government competition in business. The debacle of 1929 to 1934 will have passed and progress will have begun when government experiments give way to co-operative efforts of American principles of private initiative.

Your power company has co-operated fully, and eagerly anticipates the part it will play in the future development of West Texas at rates and service in keeping with the demand.

Do you know that your increased use of Electric Service is billed on a surprisingly low rate schedule... and adds only a small amount to your total bill?

SCORN NOT THE LOWLY LEFTOVER

Dab of This and That Often Makes Tasty Dish.

By EDITH M. BARBER

SOME housekeepers have a prejudice against leftovers. I do not share this feeling. I actually welcome them. Nothing is more fun than to find in the refrigerator a dab of this and a dab of that and to combine them with the help of a few eggs, some white sauce and a few bread crumbs, which may themselves be a leftover, and to evolve a completely new dish.

There are any number of dishes whose names suggest special delicacies and which can be made from leftovers. I am speaking of timbales and souffles which demand a foundation of soft bread-crumbs-and-milk-or-a-white-sauce-combined-with-eggs-and-strained-or-minced-cooked-vegetables-meat-or-fish. You may even use mixed vegetables or a combination of vegetables with the last pickings from the fowl or roast.

Then there are those scalloped dishes which may be made from any leftover materials placed in alternate layers with buttered crumbs in a greased baking dish. White sauce or tomato juice may be used to moisten them if you like, and I must not forget croquettes which have a very thick, well-seasoned white sauce for their base.

Be sure to chill your croquette mixture before you attempt to mold it into little pyramids or rolls which are then dipped in sifted dry bread crumbs, beaten eggs and crumbs again. I particularly like sweet or white potato croquettes because this is such a good use for mashed potatoes when you may have supplied too liberally. These are merely moistened with egg, seasoned with onion juice and parsley, if you have some on hand, before they are crumbed and fried in deep fat.

Meat Timbales.

- 1 cup soft bread crumbs
- 1 cup milk
- 1 cup minced meat, chicken or ham
- 4 tablespoons butter
- Salt, pepper
- 2 egg whites

Put the crumbs in the milk and cook until very soft. Add meat, butter and seasonings, fold in the beaten egg whites, and pour into buttered molds, filling not more than two thirds full. Set molds in pan of hot water and bake in a medium oven about one-half hour. Serve with white sauce, seasoned with mushrooms, vegetables or cheese.

Vegetables With Curry.

- 1 onion, minced
- 2 tablespoons butter
- 2 tablespoons flour
- Salt, pepper
- 1/2 teaspoon celery salt
- 1 cup milk
- Leftover vegetables

Fry minced onion in butter, add flour and seasonings. Add milk and stir until smooth and thick. Pour this sauce over diced vegetables and chopped parsley. Heat thoroughly and serve with boiled rice.

Baked Fish in Cheese Sauce.

- 3 tablespoons butter
- 3 tablespoons flour
- 2 cups milk
- 1/2 cup American cheese
- 3/4 cup chopped mushrooms
- 1 or more cups flaked fish
- 1/4 can shrimp
- Salt, pepper, paprika

Melt butter, add flour, and when well blended add milk and stir until smooth and thick. Add the cheese, cut into small pieces, and melt. Arrange the mushrooms, flaked fish and shrimp in greased baking dish. Season and pour over cheese sauce. Bake in a moderate oven until thoroughly hot and brown on the top. Bread crumbs can be sprinkled over the top. The sides of the baking dish can be lined with leftover mashed potatoes and the creamed mixture poured in the center.

Dressing for Green Salads.

- Livers of 2 chickens, boiled
- Yolks of 2 hard cooked eggs
- 1/2 teaspoon salt
- 1 teaspoon prepared mustard
- 1/2 teaspoon white pepper
- 3 tablespoons vinegar
- 1/2 cup olive oil
- Chopped parsley
- 1/2 teaspoon Worcestershire sauce

Mash and mix to a paste the chicken livers and yolks. Add seasoning, pour olive oil drop by drop, stirring until the consistency of thin mayonnaise. Mix with salad and chopped parsley.

Lights of New York

By L. L. STEVENSON

Most New Yorkers would not have done what Herbert H. Holland did. The great majority would merely have shrugged their shoulders and gone about their business. Some might have laughed about it later but many would have said nothing—the New Yorker does not like to seem a sap, and that's the way most persons feel when they receive the attentions of a pickpocket. But Holland, a law student in St. John's Law school, over in Brooklyn, is of different stuff. He believes that citizens have a duty to their community. Doing that duty caused him some exertion and the loss of time. But that did not deter him. He did what he thought was right. So, William Johnson, a negro with a coast-to-coast record as a pickpocket, has been held without bail to await grand jury action.

Holland, a passenger in the subway during the rush hour, felt a tug at his hip pocket as he was leaving the train at Fourteenth street. Turning quickly, he grasped a hand. In that hand was his check book, he testified later. The owner of the hand was Johnson, who, it developed, has done time in Sing Sing, in Sacramento, Cleveland and elsewhere, and who has been arrested 19 times for picking pockets. Johnson dropped the check book between the cars and grinned. The crowd forced Holland outside. But he got back into the train and rode as far as Brooklyn bridge. There he found an officer and Johnson was arrested.

Being a law student, Holland didn't stop at that. He went back and looked for the evidence. A subway employee had found the check book. Holland took the matter up with the company and got permission for the employee to go to court to testify. That clinched things and Johnson went to the Toms. After it was all over, Holland explained that he knew he was losing nothing—that he never carried money in his hip pocket, and it was easy to get another check book. But there was that consciousness of duty to his community, so he acted.

In his recently published book, "Tin Box Parade," Milton MacKaye, former Post reporter, relates a number of interesting incidents in connection with the Seabury investigation of municipal affairs, which led to the resignation of Jimmy Walker and the ousting of Tammany. According to MacKaye, a big break in the investigation came because one of Mr. Seabury's bright young lawyers was kind to a bank teller. The young lawyer assigned to go over Walker's bank accounts met with no success. Then he decided to go through them again. The teller detailed to assist him wanted two days leave. His wife was ill and alone at home, and he thought he should be with her. The bank refused the leave.

Hearing of this, the Seabury assistant went to the bankers and told them he was willing to postpone his investigation if the teller got his leave. On his return, the grateful teller informed the investigator that as he had done him a good turn, he was ready to do one himself. He told the investigator to look carefully at a check with a certain number. The investigator did, and what he found led to the discovery of one Sherwood, supposed to have been Walker's financial agent.

Another story has to do with Al Smith during the bitter Democratic state convention in 1932. Franklin D. Roosevelt and Smith wanted Herbert H. Lehman nominated for governor. John F. Curry, Tammany leader, advised by Max D. Steuer, didn't. After some wrangling, Al informed Curry that if he didn't name Lehman, he'd come down to New York, run for mayor and take the city away from him. "On what ticket?" asked Curry. "On the Chinese laundry ticket," rasped Smith. Mr. Lehman became governor of New York.

How It Started

To Out-Herod Herod

IN THE old morality plays King Herod was always depicted as cruel and ferocious and to exceed even him in violence one had to be indeed inhuman.

The expression to out-Herod Herod owes its origin to Shakespeare who used it in scene two of the third act of Hamlet, that famous scene where Hamlet gives advice to the players. We find it so: Hamlet: "Speak the speech, I pray you, as I pronounced it to you, trippingly on the tongue; but if you mouth it, as many of your players do, I had as lief the town-crier spoke my lines. Nor do not saw the air too much with your hand, thus; but use all gently . . . O, it offends me to the soul to hear a robustious periwig-pated fellow tear a passion to tatters, to very rags, to split the ears of the groundlings who, for the most part, are capable of nothing but inexplicable dumb-shows and noise; I would have such a fellow whipped for o'er-doing Termagant; it out-Herods Herod; pray you, avoid it."

IRONY OF FATE

By R. H. WILKINSON
© Bell Syndicate—WNU Service.

BEGINNING with the day Sheila Flake commenced her duties at the Bellevue hospital, she promised herself that, under no conditions, would she fall in love with Dr. Julian Oakes.

The resolution was made entirely because of hearsay.

Until the moment she stepped into Doctor Oakes' office, garbed in her immaculate, starched uniform, she had not set eyes on the unsuspecting object of her self-denial.

And for this reason, Sheila can be forgiven for so hasty a decision.

For as Sheila stood there just inside the office door and looked across the room at the tall, spare man who, at the moment, was stooped over a filing cabinet, understanding came.

In one breath-taking moment she knew why it was that all the other nurses (with no exceptions) so frankly admitted their affection for this noble-looking surgeon.

He looked up at her and smiled. Sheila saw the marks of strain and worry that lined his face.

She saw eyes that were filled with kindness and gentleness; eyes that were at once alive and interesting, yet thoughtful and appraising.

He came across the room and spoke to her, introduced himself, offered a chair.

And for some unaccountable reason her heart began to pound, a pounding she could not still.

There was something about him; his voice, his manner of walking, the gentle appeal of his personality, that sent the warm blood coursing through her veins.

And from that day forward Sheila was miserable.

She loved him.

She admitted it frankly, but only to herself.

And this reluctance to release the last fragment of her crumpled resolution only served to make the misery in her heart more poignant.

Those others—her fellow-nurses—who so openly discussed their regard for "handsome Doctor Oakes" found relief for their feelings in those little intimate tete-a-tetes that are forever in progress in one room or another during the course of a day or night; a relief that Sheila would not permit her tortured soul.

Never, she told herself, would she admit or even hint at the depth of this strange emotion that stirred her at sound of Doctor Oakes' familiar steps in the corridor, at sight of his tall form bent over an operating table.

There was consolation in the knowledge that Doctor Oakes' attitude toward the obvious flirtatiousness of the other nurses was quite phlegmatic.

Though by the same token Sheila knew that should she betray her own feelings, her humiliation would be 10 times greater; her hurt unbearable.

For even as Sheila was certain of her love for the man, she was even more certain that that love was a thousand times deeper and more lasting than that of all her companions combined.

Sheila knew it couldn't last.

Sooner or later he would have to know.

Either that or she'd have to go away. And of the two courses that were open to her she wondered on more than one occasion if she had the courage to choose the latter.

For the present it was bearable; though with each passing day the torture increased.

Her work brought her in close contact with him.

Irony of fate it was.

For of all those to choose from, old and new, Doctor Oakes had selected her to aid him in the majority of his operations.

Little did he know that the act was adding fuel to the fires of conflict and suppressed emotion that raged within the girl's soul.

If, at first, Sheila had dimly hoped his discrimination for her attendance upon him was prompted by personal interest, she hoped in vain.

Not by the merest broadening of a smile did the man indicate his concern was other than professional.

During business hours he looked upon her with the same expression as he bestowed upon an unusual streptococci infection.

And when, during off hours, they chanced to meet in one of the many corridors, his greeting was nothing more than the bright nod which he reserved for all nurses alike.

The climax came six months after the first day that Sheila had stepped into Doctor Oakes' office.

The conflict in her soul had not raged without leaving physical traces of its existence.

The color had left her cheeks.

There were rings under her eyes.

Her nerves were jumpy.

And when at last she was forced to admit to herself that the end had come, that she must get away, she was thankful.

She thanked God for the courage that would enable her to depart from the hospital without betraying her secret.

It was mid-afternoon when Sheila descended to the floor where the superintendent's office was located.

The corridor was empty, the hospital unusually quiet.

But as Sheila hurried past one door after another, the quietude was abruptly interrupted.

A door was flung open, and a doctor emerged.

He stared wildly about him for an instant, and his eyes fell on Sheila.

He gestured excitedly.

"Quick! It's Doctor Oakes! We must operate at once! He's collapsed as a result of overwork and strain!"

Sheila's heart stood still.

For just a moment she hesitated. The doctor had gone.

The corridor was empty again. Beyond lay the superintendent's office.

Could she go through with it?

On top of everything else, this! Would her nerves stand the strain?

Other nurses were available. . . . There was one in the corridor now.

She shuddered at the thought.

Another in attendance while an operation was being performed on this man who had stirred the very depths of her soul! Unbearable!

Sheila steeled herself to the task.

It was the smile with which he had looked upon her before going under the ether that steadied her; that bore her up during that delicate performance of the surgeons.

And now it was over.

Things waned crazily.

Sheila leaned against the wall for support.

She felt herself sinking; knew that she had found a chair.

She tried bravely to rally.

How humiliating for them to find her like this.

And her last operation, too.

But no one was looking, no one paying any attention.

Doctor Oakes was coming out of the ether.

She heard him moan.

She stood up, tried to reach the door, failed.

She must go, must get away from him.

He was safe now.

It would be better that she didn't wait until he'd regained consciousness, better that she didn't look into his eyes again.

She clutched at the door jamba.

The unconscious man was talking, mumbling incoherently.

Sheila tried not to listen, tried not to hear his voice. . . . And then her grip on the door jamba tightened. Her heart stood utterly still. . . . A strange nausea swept over her. But through the thickness of it she heard Doctor Oakes' voice. Clearer now, more distinct, unmistakable.

"Sheila! Darling, come to me. Oh, it's been torture not telling you, trying not to let you know I loved you. . . . Silly I was to even think there was a chance, that you could care. . . . Why, I'm so much older. . . . Of course you couldn't care. . . . No fault of yours. . . . Idiot I was for even thinking. . . . But it's got the best of me. . . . I must get away. . . . some place where I can forget. . . . Darling, I love you. . . ."

"Man of Mars" Is Myth, Scientist's Photos Show

There are no men of Mars. There is no life on the great planet that has intrigued the world for many years. The statement was made as a scientific fact by Dr. Walter F. Adams, director of the Mount Wilson-Carnegie Institution observatory. The evidence has been sent to the institution's headquarters in Washington.

Here is how one of the observatory scientists, whom Doctor Adams would not name, convinced himself that "a trip to Mars" and the discovery there of splay-toed, froglike bipeds, must remain fiction forever.

Through Mount Wilson's great lens he photographed the earth—as it looks from the moon! This was done by shooting a spectral photograph of the dark side of the new moon. The thin bright crescent, of course, reflected the sun; but the dark side reflected the earth as clearly, to the scientist's eye, as a mirror.

With the developed negative there was a photograph of the earth as it looks 239,000 miles away. He then compared the earth's photograph with those of Mars, taken from the earth, of course. He was able to show that earthly atmospheric conditions—of the kind necessary to sustain life—do not exist on Mars. Ergo, there is no life; if there ever was, it has long since died. It is a bleak expanse of cold, hard dirt and rock, devoid of vegetation.

TRUE DETECTIVE STORY

by Vance Wynn

The Man With the Dark Lantern

WHO killed John Hayes in the old inn between London and Oxford? The facts can be stated very briefly. The gentleman in question was an English squire of great wealth.

On his way from the capital to the old university town he stopped at a tavern kept by Jonathan Bradford.

There were two other guests at the place and Mr. Hayes struck up an acquaintance with them.

They had supper together, and during the course of the meal the squire laughingly remarked that he had a large sum of money with him.

The two other guests—Brown and Harley—exchanged significant glances at this unexpected confidence.

Bradford, the landlord, was in the room at the time, and it was noticed he listened to this part of the conversation with eagerness, if not greediness.

Late that night each of the three guests was escorted to the room that had been assigned to him.

John Hayes was domiciled in a middle apartment on the second floor, and his valet was placed in a room on the same floor and in the rear of the house.

James Johnson, one of the permanent guests of the inn, sat up late that night reading.

He used a candle which stood in its socket on the table, and just when this began to sputter Johnson was aroused by sounds of a scuffle in the adjoining room.

This was the apartment to which John Hayes had been assigned.

Sounding the alarm, Johnson rushed to this room and, opening the door, rushed in.

To his horror he saw a man in the bed, covered with blood.

Standing over him, with a knife in his hand and a dark lantern fastened to his arm, was another man who averted his face.

Johnson was so petrified with astonishment that he was unable to speak.

Two other boarders came into the room, and they were so shocked that they were helpless.

In the meantime the man with the lantern slipped around the foot of the bed and out into the darkness of the night.

The police were summoned and they began the investigation to discover who killed John Hayes.

Suspicion pointed to the two men who had been the companions of the deceased at supper on the previous evening.

But when the inquest was held Mr. Johnson said that the man with the lantern and the knife who stood by the side of the bed was Jonathan Bradford, the keeper of the inn.

He was much confused at this charge, but positively denied that he was in any way responsible for the murder.

He said he had heard the groans of the dying man and had gone to the room to ascertain the cause of the trouble, and was thus found standing there by Johnson and the other boarders.

But the evidence was against him and he was convicted and duly executed according to law.

After it was all over one of the county detectives was curious enough to get a list of the property that had been stolen from the murdered man.

One of the articles was a gold snuff box which had engraved upon it the coat-of-arms of George I.

The investigator made a tour of the pawnshops of London and in one of them he found the gold snuff box.

With the assistance of the pawnbroker he managed to locate the man who had pledged the article.

And whom do you suppose it was, gentle reader?

None other than the valet of John Hayes, who had slept in the inn that night!

He was followed to a little room where he was living in London, but was found to be in a dying condition.

Before he passed away, however, he made a full confession, in which he admitted that he had gone into the room that night and murdered his master for his money.

It might be imagined that a cruel miscarriage of justice had occurred if another and even more startling revelation had not come to pass.

One of the men who accompanied Jonathan Bradford to the scaffold said that the inn keeper had told him that while he had not committed the murder, he was morally guilty.

He confessed that he had conceived the idea of killing the poor old man for his money and, securing a dark lantern and a knife, had slipped into his room for that purpose—only to find him dead by the hand of another.

Sleep a Repair Period

Authorities agree that sleep is a repair period. According to the chemical theory, the body burns up cells during waking hours. This burning releases energy. But, as when coal is burned, waste products form. These waste products act as poisons. They accumulate as the day wears on. They dull the mind and slow the body. During sleep another set of toxins is generated. In proper ratio these neutralize the toxins formed during waking hours. If a person gets too much sleep he has the same feeling as when he has had too little sleep.

Lace, an Ideal Choice for the Matron

By CHERIE NICHOLAS

YES, the fashions paraded in style shows and pictured in newspapers and magazines are attractive enough, but they are only for slim and svelte young creatures, why don't they ever consider the needs of women who have reached forty and plus! It's a complaint, and only too often a just one, which those older are continually voicing.

Just to prove to mothers and matrons that they are not left out in the scheme of things, look what's here in the picture—two of the loveliest flatteringly lace gowns imaginable, for women of stately grace be they young or not so young. In spite of all the frenzied excitement over sumptuous gowns for the budding debutante, when it comes to beautiful appearance, smoothly groomed self-confident and slim-of-silhouette, daughters better look to their laurels when it comes to competing with mothers and matrons in the art of dress these days.

The fact that lace is scheduled to play so important a part in fashions coming and here, is a good omen for matrons who appreciate the magic which flatteringly apparel yields in erasing the years, and as every woman knows, there is nothing more flattering, more exquisitely feminizing than beautiful lace. The stately matron to the left in the picture is wearing a lace gown of high distinction. It is particularly ideal for the woman who has a limited wardrobe, for it is a rich black lace, which will give grand service the year round, winter and summer. With an eye to being practical, the designer has created a short matching jacket, making the gown as happily apropos for informal dining as for formal dancing.

The other gracious lace gown which is here pictured is charmingly tuned to a very youthful matron's dress-up needs. Bands of green moire at the back enliven it. This lovely dress is a Lucille Paray model.

Lace is also being worked into chiffon dresses very cleverly, the lace and the chiffon going fifty-fifty. A very winsome gown has a deep flounce of the lace with the same lace intricately set into the bodice and sleeves.

There are legions of novelty laces being shown in the advance displays. Most interesting are the laces which have cellophane and metal accents. Beaded laces and embroidered laces of every imaginable type are also among the showings.

Interesting news about laces includes the shirtwaist dresses which are being fashioned for resort wear and which will be good for summer wear later on. Midseason afternoon frocks in dark or bright crepes or light woolsens are also trimmed with lace dyed a perfect match.

Tailored lace is also being smartly featured for afternoon wear. The laces are of a somewhat sturdy character and the ensemble idea is carried out in that there is always an accompanying jacket.

SMART SPORTWEAR

By CHERIE NICHOLAS

For fun and right smart jauntness, look to the leather hiplength jacket. It is easy to slip into, comfy, free with action back, and inside it has a Johnny collar to keep out wintry blasts. The Scotch plaid skirt has as its predominant color, the same color of the jacket, as do the calfskin kiltie tongues that are excellent for walking. The берет adds yet another note of jauntness.

A New Velvet

A new velvet with a pile of shiny cellophane on a silk back is recommended for making accessories, such as hats, bags, capes and evening jackets.

FASHIONS INSPIRED BY PEASANT THEMES

Peasant themes, with their lovely colorfulness and freshness, are inspiring the season's fashions. In virtually every branch of apparel there are innumerable details that bear the unmistakable imprint of peasant inspiration.

Materials, with the new fringed edges in rustic fabrics, the peasant print cottons in sports frocks, and the combinations of gay colors, like red and green, purple and pink, are distinct changes from the modern trends.

Bloused bodices and gathered skirts, belts embroidered in peasant colors and motifs, raffia, cord-tied details and heavy linen and cotton laces in accessories further establish the pre-eminence of this influence.

Trains Are Short for the Evening, Gowns Are Slit

Most likely your new evening frock will have a slit skirt to show an alluring few inches of silk-clad leg, but if it has a train, the train will be short. And it is quite likely that it may have a tunic and it may be trimmed with fur. All these points mark a lovely gown which is of dull rose taffeta with slanting shoulder straps of brown kolinsky that continue down the back to the waist. Delightful for the more mature woman is a tunic dress of plum colored Chantilly type lace with a long slim tunic and a trained skirt. There is a sash of plum-colored satin. Another tunic dress has a tunic that is pointed at the back to form an overtrim. It is of red sequins over a dull red crepe skirt.

Patou Uses Moderate Slit in His New Dress Designs

Patou has surpassed himself with the simplicity and elegance of his "little season" collection. He probably never before has designed such completely lovely things.

The lines which were felt to be a bit over-severe in his August collection have been modified into the most graceful of curves and angles, and the slits have become shorter for daytime and smartly moderate for evening.

INDIVIDUALISM

Individualism is a fat poison. But individuality is the salt of common life. You may have to live in a crowd, but you do not have to live like it, nor subsist on its food. You may drink at a hidden spring. Be yourself if you would serve others.

Old Age Pensions Pressing Problem

President Presenting His Economic Security Plan to Congress.

By WILLIAM C. UTLEY

"NO ONE can guarantee this country against the dangers of future depressions, but we can reduce these dangers," said President Franklin D. Roosevelt in his special message to congress, January 17. That was his summed-up explanation of his plan for economic security, prepared by his committee on economic security, and introduced formally to the convened legislators in the form of a bill by Democratic Senator Robert F. Wagner of New York.

One of the important measures of his plan and the bill was the proposal for old age pensions. For many years the United States has kept away from establishing such pensions with the sponsorship of the federal government, although virtually all of the other leading powers and a great many of the smaller nations have, during those years, set up programs for the maintenance of aged and unemployed persons.

For the larger part, the other nations have been divided between contributory systems, which require periodical contributions from employees and employers with assistance from the government, and non-contributory systems, financed entirely by the government. Only one nation, Japan, has steadfastly adhered to a voluntary plan, which puts it entirely up to the worker what is to become of him in his old age.

The proposed American plan, of necessity, is a combination of all three.

The first part provides insurance against poverty in old age for those workers who are now comparatively young, and is the contributory plan. It would compel all workers who make less than $250 a month, as well as their employers, to contribute. State and federal funds would assist. The second, proposed to care for the aged not covered compulsorily by the first part, provides for annuities paid for by the federal government; this is especially necessary in the case of people who are now old or approaching old age and will not have time to pay into the fund enough contributions for their care. The third, and voluntary, provision is for those whose earnings place them outside the contributory requisites; they would be allowed to pay of their own volition into a fund administered by the federal government.

Senator Robert F. Wagner.

Total cost of the plan would be $50,000,000 for the first year and $125,000,000 for each succeeding year.

Not a New Idea.

Old age pensions are not a new idea by any means. For centuries the human race has recognized the necessity of providing for the time when earning power decreases rapidly or when justice seems to make it fair to expect a life of reasonable ease in the sunset years. The first on record is that of the French seamen in 1763; later France extended it to civil servants and miners. Russia extended it to certain state employees in 1797.

England began selling annuities to citizens in 1833, and in 1850 France and Belgium set up general old age funds.

It was in the latter days of the Nineteenth century that such pensions began to become common in Europe. Germany obliged employees and employers to contribute to a comprehensive system in 1889. It is this German plan which, with alterations, has been adopted by all the nations, the Scandinavian and the United States and the British empire excepted.

Since the turn of the century the number of persons inhabiting the earth who are covered by old age pensions has multiplied six times. Before 1900 five nations provided for 100,000,000 citizens. Now 42 governments make provisions to keep 600,000,000 out of the poorhouse. Three times as many countries have contributory insurance as have non-contributory insurance.

Other nations studied the German experiment for about fifteen years before following her lead. In 1906 Austria fell in line, although waiting twenty years to extend the benefits to the largest share of the populace. The new nations which appeared in Central Europe after the war have maintained and improved the systems of the governments which preceded them. All workers in the Soviet union are covered.

Sweden's plan is the one which has been advocated for the United States by the American Association for Old Age Security, Inc., through its secretary, Abraham Epstein. He favors the method of collection of contributions through the regular tax collecting agencies instead of through various separate institutions.

Sweden makes no exceptions for different classes of work, but obliges workers in all lines to contribute to the fund.

Workers Contribute.

Ages at which contributory pensions are granted vary from fifty in Chile to seventy in Portugal and Yugoslavia, with some nations granting benefits to women five years earlier than to men. In the majority of the systems workers, employers and state all contribute.

Denmark established the first system financed by government alone in 1891, followed by New Zealand in 1898 and two provinces of Australia in 1901. Great Britain started with voluntary pensions, but in the first 25 years of the system's operation only 21,000 persons subscribed; in 1908 the non-contributory plan was adopted. Canada, the Irish Free State and the Union of South Africa eventually followed suit. However, in all twelve countries which have the non-contributory plan a total of only about 600,000 pensioners receive benefits.

Japan in 1916 authorized its post office department to sell annuities to persons who volunteered to maintain them and remains the only nation in the world to rely solely on this plan.

In America, the new industrial trend of the past few years which in so many cases draws the employment line at forty or even at thirty-five years of age, has caused the percentage of unemployed aged persons to increase by leaps and bounds.

There are other factors in making the care of the aged a more difficult problem from year to year. The average life expectancy has increased, but the working years have not; we still retire between sixty and seventy. There are less opportunities for people of middle age and past to get jobs. Modern efficiency looks to the young workers oftener than to the old. It is estimated that of the 2,700,000 to 3,000,000 persons sixty-five and over who are dependent upon others, only about half are cared for in any way by private and public agencies.

Difficult Problems.

Five states now have pension funds for their employees, as have a large number of cities. The largest of all American pension systems and probably the largest in the world is the military pension system, which has cost the government $8,500,000,000 up to the middle of 1932. All in all, the great mass of elderly people have probably not been adequately cared for in this country, and depression conditions have made the situation worse.

The President's plan asks for a payroll tax which would start at 1 per cent and increase by 1 per cent every five years until it reaches a maximum of 5 per cent in 1937. Any employee who paid for 200 weeks over a period of at least five years before he became sixty would be eligible for benefits. For the employee who had paid premiums before 1942, the pension would amount to 15 per cent of his average monthly wage if only 200 weekly payments into the insurance fund had been made. One per cent more would be added to the benefits for each additional 40 weeks of payments, up to 400 weeks, and 2 per cent more for each 40 weeks up to 800 weeks.

For the employee who paid premiums after 1942, the benefit would be 10 per cent of his average monthly wage and 1 per cent additional for each 40 weeks he paid in addition to the first 200 weeks.

Senator William E. Borah of Idaho has been the principal opponent on the senate floor. "I am not satisfied to make an outlay of nearly a billion dollars for armaments and $15 for old age," he said, referring of course to the entire economic security proposal.

The Townsend Plan.

The President is by no means the only one who has proposed an old age security plan. Sweeping the country like wildfire has been the idea of Dr. Francis Everett Townsend. His more ambitious plan, which claims 25,000,000 signatures on petitions to congress, also claims to be able to doctor all of the ills of the depression and create a prosperity the like of which the world has never seen. Oddly enough, it is based upon a fundamental of old age pensions.

The Townsend Old Age Revolving Pension Plan, acclaimed and supported by 25,000 Townsend clubs scattered throughout the United States, would pay every American over sixty who is not an habitual criminal $200 a month on the condition that he spend the entire amount in the United States within the month. The necessary $20,000,000 would be raised by a federal tax. They haven't decided what kind.

There has been no centralized opposition to the plan, for the simple reason that business leaders, finding an expressive voice in Dr. Raymond Moley, former assistant secretary of state, thought it too fantastic to bear credence. But it has.

It would cost $24,000,000,000 a year and the entire national income is only $48,000,000,000. Taxing might lead to an inflation of prices until the turnover of business could stand a tax of that size in a year. But then the prices would be so high that the monthly dole of $200 would be in value far less, or, as a leading columnist puts it, "a sexagenarian meal of bread and milk would cost $5."

Based on the premise that money turns over ten times before it is retired the Townsend plan tax on each turnover of business transactions, it is claimed, would increase the national income by $240,000,000,000 to $300,000,000,000; but this is based also on the presumption that the physical circulation of money has much more to do with income than it has. Last year $32,000,000,000 were paid out in wages, salaries and other forms of labor income; yet total retail sales were less than $40,000,000,000. So $24,000,000,000, paid to 10,000,000 people, is expected to produce up to $300,000,000,000 worth of business, when $32,000,000,000 paid to 40,000,000 persons produced less than $40,000,000,000.

HERE'S CHAIR SET EASY TO CROCHET

By GRANDMOTHER CLARK

Since crochet work is again interesting the art needleworkers, why not pick up your No. 8 or 9 steel crochet hook and thread about size 15 and crochet this attractive three-piece set for your living room chair, or for a gift? It will surely be appreciated and admired. Chair backs and arm rests are old decorations but now growing in popularity and are modern. This set is worked in the large filet stitch, works up rapidly and is simple work even for the inexperienced. The center piece measures 14x11 inches, the arm rests 6x11 inches, with about size 15 thread. By using a larger hook and crocheting looser, the finished pieces will be larger, if desired.

In the large filet an open mesh equals 1 triple crochet (thread twice over hook). Chain 3, skip 3. A solid mesh equals 5 triple crochet. Add 4 triple crochet for each additional solid mesh.

Send 10 cents to our Crochet department for directions and working diagram for this No. 805, or if you have no material you can get the entire outfit for 40c, namely, instructions, diagram, crochet hook, and sufficient cream color thread to complete the three pieces.

SMALL WORD "IF" AND ITS PART IN WORLD HISTORY

"If," says Albert Payson Terhune, writing in the Elks Magazine, has done more to change the course of history's wayward currents than all of the forces of man rolled together. Here are some of his own best ones:

If Thomas Edison, when a poor newsboy, hadn't been hit over the ears by a cranky brakeman for stealing a ride on a train, he wouldn't have been deaf. If he hadn't been deaf, he would not have perfected the phonograph.

If Napoleon's mapmaker had not formed the habit of scamping his work, he would have drawn the line indicating the sunken road at Waterloo and the French emperor would have carried the day.

If the mother of George Washington had not been stricken with a sudden hysterical whim just as her son was leaving to join the British navy, the father of his country would probably have been a British naval officer.

If a bullet had svered by a very few inches in 1914, when a crazed student aimed at an Austrian grand duke, perhaps there would have been no World War.

If Patrick Henry had not been too lazy to make a success of his grocery store, he would not have turned to statesmanship and stirred the nation with his oratory.

If Major Andre had been content to wait for his boat to come back to its moorings at West Point, or if he had chosen some other land route to New York, or if he had had the sense to keep his mouth shut instead of babbling needlessly when he met three card players along the road—the United States probably would be a British province today. As it was, he was captured and Benedict Arnold's treason was discovered and America was saved.

And Unregretted

The miser dies that fools and lawyers may live.

HUMANENESS TO LOWER ANIMALS GROWS IN ITALY

Cruelty to animals in Italy is far less apparent than it used to be, and the shooting of small birds is not quite so popular a sport, writes the Rome correspondent of the London Sunday Observer. The example given by Signor Mussolini in making a bird sanctuary of Capri had an effect on public opinion, and there was an attractive ceremony in the Giardino del Lago last year, when about 1,000 caged birds were given their liberty.

Animals in Italy were protected under the law of 1913, which stipulates severe penalties for maltreatment of animals. There are also restrictions with regard to vivisection, and steps are being taken to make the killing of animals in slaughter houses as humane as possible.

"There are 2,200 international societies for the protection of animals registered with the League of Nations," says Giuseppe Gregorac, president of the Federation of Italian and Rome Societies for the Protection of Animals. It is obviously a question that no longer only concerns hysterical old ladies. Young and old are combining in defense of animals.

The main difficulty, however, he said, was that among the eighteen Italian societies in Italy, only two or three were financially well provided for. The Rome society, for instance, only receives about $33 a year from the public in subscriptions. The Rome municipality, however, gives a subsidy, as it is realized that the society does good educative work, and also that the lack of care that has been taken in previous years with regard to animals in Italy has created a bad impression among British and other foreign visitors.

Cheerfulness

Cheerfulness will attract more customers, sell more goods, do more business with less wear and tear than almost any other quality. Optimism is the greatest business-getter, biggest trader, the greatest achiever in the world. Pessimism has never done anything but tear down and destroy what optimism has built up.

"So you always pay down?"
"Yes, then I don't have to worry about paying up."

Doctors Know! ... and they use liquid laxatives

You'd use a liquid, too, if you knew how much better it makes you feel. A liquid laxative can always be taken in the right amount. You can gradually reduce the dose. Reduced dosage is the secret of real and safe relief from constipation.

Just ask your own doctor about this. Ask your druggist how popular liquid laxatives have become. The right liquid laxative gives the right kind of help—and the right amount of help. When the dose is repeated, instead of more each time, you take less. Until the bowels are moving regularly and thoroughly without aid.

People who have experienced this comfort, never return to any form of help that can't be regulated! The liquid laxative generally used is Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin. It contains senna and cascara, and these are natural laxatives that form no habit. It relieves a condition of biliousness or sluggishness without upset. To relieve your occasional upset safely and comfortably, try Syrup Pepsin. The druggist has it.

P. T. A. BASKETBALL GAME

The P. T. A. basketball game Monday night was quite a success. The ladies certainly played a good game, a much better game than the score shows. The married ladies had not played ball for some time, having been out of school from 9 to 18 years. Some of them had never played much ball before, but I'm here to tell you they played a real game. They were up against a "real" team. I believe I would put those young ladies (the winning team) against most any team, for they can really play. The final score was 18-35 in favor of the single girls. The line up for the married ladies team was as follows: Forwards, Hooker, Todd, Sherman and Howard. Guards, Simmons, Quisenberry, Longshore, Kirkpatrick. Wood. Line up of single girls, Forward, Lois Wood, Ila Mae Kyser and Wauline Wall. Guards, Opal Wood, Opal Hess and Thelma Ruth Burdine.

The proceeds was for the benefit of the P. T. A.
