HISTORY OF HEDLEY BEGINS WITH TOWN OF ROWE; SETTLERS HAD A DIFFICULT TIME IN THE NINETIES

The history of Hedley may be properly said to begin with the old settlement of Rowe which was located about where the J. H. Clawson place now is, and was named for the Rowe Ranch.

According to all the information we are able to obtain, J. P. Devine is the oldest settler now living in Hedley. He came to this vicinity in 1890. The John Henry Myers family, Pat and Tom Powell, and the Naylor family were living near here at that time. Tom Owens, Mr. and Mrs. W. I. Rains, Mr. and Mrs. W. T. White and G. R. Cash moved here in 1891.

At that time the only fence in this vicinity was the Rowe Ranch fence, which extended south to Mrs. Nellie Kuteman's home, east to White Hill, west to J. G. McDougal's Spring, and north past Alanreed. It was bounded on the west by the JA, on the south by the Shoe Bar, and on the east by the Diamond Tail. The state sold grazing land for $1.00 per acre and water land for $2.00 per acre. Nesters, as farmers were then called, were given 160 acres of land by the state, provided they lived on it three years. There was no work to be had except on the ranches and the railroad. The diet of the early settlers was restricted to sweet potatoes, kershaws, black-eyed peas, sorghum molasses and cornbread. Rev. B. J. Smith had a sorghum mill where molasses was made. It was used instead of sugar in coffee and other foods which required sweetening. The corn was ground into meal at a mill in Memphis.

Wild game of all kinds was plentiful. The country abounded in deer, quail, prairie chicken and jack-rabbits, and a few wild turkey were found. A wolf or a panther was seen occasionally, and coyotes and bobcats were numerous. Game constituted a large part of the meat diet of the early settlers.

A trip to Clarendon required a full day. The nester spent the night at the wagon yard, and returned home the next day.

The first post office was in the W. I. Rains home. In 1893, the little settlement became a town, and a post office was built on the south side of the Denver track. Rev. B. J. Smith was the postmaster. After his death his widow was postmaster until the town moved to Hedley.

In 1907, R. E. Jones bought the Hedley townsite, and the town was moved to the present location. The name was changed to Hedley in honor of Mr. Hedley, who, together with Mr. Jones and Col. W. E. Reeves, promoted the moving of the town. So far as we know, the only business still in existence which was moved here from Rowe, is the Cicero Smith Lumber Co. It was begun in Rowe about 1900.

The first baby born in Hedley was Miss Nita Culwell.

The first newspaper in Hedley was the Hedley Herald, which was started by Thomas Durham on October 16, 1908. The paper was sold to a Mr. McBride, and suspended publication in 1909, which was a poor crop year in this community. On October 21, 1910, J.

J. Claude Wells

Claude Wells, now of Memphis, founded The Hedley Informer. He was a good newspaper worker, and successfully operated The Informer until July 16, 1917, when Ed C. Boliver, who was editor and foreman of The Clarendon News, bought the paper. He edited the paper until his death, January 25, 1934.

There have been no startling events in the progress of Hedley. Progress has been slow but steady, and Hedley shows no signs of the stagnation common to so many small communities. Hedley has grown and prospered in the 25 years since the Informer was founded, and an intelligent citizenry and progressive merchants are Hedley's best insurance for the future.

CARNIVAL

The P. T. A. carnival was a fair success. In comparison to the net proceeds of last year, excluding one item, the carnival itself brought in more money than last year.

Last year, with the crowning of the queen, the carnival brought in $90. The crowning of the queen netted about $4500 which left about $45 income from the carnival itself.

This year the total proceeds amounted to $78.97. A full list of the booth receipts was not available, but the following were good: grade booths, $2.48; candy stand, $10.99; basket ball girls, 80c; and the football boys, $12.61.

The program in general was enjoyed by all and everyone seemed to have a good time.

"Well Begun's Half Done" When Making Your House Frock

There was never a truer phrase than that, and how well it applies here! For before you know it your dress is cut and ready to stitch. This pattern is so easy to follow there's everything new about the lines of this fetching house frock and doesn't it look like a different dress when buttoned up to the neck see small sketch—with those enormous buttons? When household chores are finished, button up the deep pointed surplice and wear the frock to market. It's smart enough. Try it in colorful novelty cotton or gingham.

Pattern 9614 may be ordered only in sizes 34, 36, 38, 40, 42, 44 and 46. Size 36 requires 4 yards 36 inch fabric and 3/4 yard contrasting. Complete diagrammed sew chart included. Send FIFTEEN CENTS in coins or stamps (coins preferred) for this pattern. Be sure to write plainly your NAME, ADDRESS, STYLE NUMBER and SIZE.

Send your order to The Sewing Circle Pattern Dept., 232 West Eighteenth St., New York, N. Y.

JUST AS GOOD

The lady customer entered the store and headed straight for the proprietor.

"You sold me some rotten apples yesterday," she said, "and I'm bringing them back to you."
"That's all right, lady," hastily apologized the merchant. "You needn't have taken the trouble to bring them back. Your word's just as good as the apples."

A Hard Job

"Yes," said the doctor, "you're worrying too much about yourself. The thing to do is to sink your self in your work."

"Oh," groaned the visitor. "I'm a cement worker!"

A Cheap Name

The tightwad was told his name on a telegram wouldn't cost anything.
"O. K., I'm an old Indian Chief and my name is 'Chief Got-Business-in-City-Will-Arrive-Later.' Just send that," he said.

A Mother's Sacrifice

Vera Alice

Grace was tired and discouraged by her continual search for work. She had searched the entire town for months. She was not thinking of herself but the baby. The baby was the picture of Jim. Grace could work, but nothing could be found. She provided a meager living and that is all. After her neighbor moved away she could not leave the baby, then she felt helpless.

The next day at church she saw Mr. Henderson, a wealthy old bachelor, who seemed to love children. The next morning she dressed her very carefully and put her in a basket and left before daybreak. As she placed the baby and clothes on the step she would have changed her mind if she had not heard a inside the house.

Mr. Henderson was disturbed by the noise in front of the house. He got up and went to the front door. He wondered if he were still dreaming when he picked up the basket. To stop the walls he gave it some warm milk. He wondered where it had come from and why it should be put there, later he named her Patsy Ann.

She grew to love him more as she grew older. He gave her such opportunities as his business partners said girls should have. Her Uncle Abner, as she called him, was getting old and feeble; by the time she finished school, he died, and with the leg say she started an inquiry for her mother as she had heard some women talking about her once, who said they believed she was Grace Wilson's girl.

It was a year before she found her mother, who was in a western town. Then her mother told her why she had left and of the opportunities she had received by her doing so.

WEINER ROAST

The energetic Juniors entertained the aged Seniors with a weiners roast Friday night, Oct. 11. Although we were not athletes, we had our games out on the football field, and if you don't believe you missed a swell time just ask those who saw Mr. Lovell's athletic feet run away with him. After Mr. Lovell's misfortune, we decided that we had better be little kids again, and pay the games that we earned in the good old days, such as: Red rover, Little white house over the hill, Flying dutch man, and others.

Being completely exhausted and rather weak with hunger, we began to look for the most important part, the refreshments, which consisted of good old weiners with juicy pickles, delicious buns, and burned

Today you can use a winter oil which builds itself right into the "innards" of your engine. That is, a certain portion of Conoco Germ Processed Oil really forms a BOND with metals, and stays on continuous duty where all the worst friction used to come.

This uncanny action, created by the patented Conoco Germ Process, automatically wipes out the costliest winter wear...

"Dry," unlubricated, wracking starts? ... Not with the oil that's Germ Processed to stay up on the job every minute, every hour, every day that you park—"whatever the weather"... Not when Germ Processed Oil has become a part of all metal surfaces... Not with the Hidden Quart, which has enabled many an engine to run with the crankcase absolutely empty—in verified show-down tests.

And this same patented Germ Process means extra protection not only for the conventional babbitt bearings, but for the newest bearings—whether copper-lead, high-lead or cadmium-alloy. Germ Processing also creates the high-durability oil film... hence a light, free-flowing winter oil that's tougher too, for the toughest going of all the year. LOVES OATMEAL MORE THAN EVER

Once you learn that oatmeal is so rich in Vitamin B for keeping fit, IS IT ANY WONDER THAT THOUSANDS STICK TO OATMEAL BREAKFASTS?

Many are nervous, poor in appetite, system out of order, because their daily diets lack enough of the precious Vitamin B for keeping fit.

Few things keep them back like a lack of this protective food element.

So give everyone Quaker Oats every morning. Because in addition to its generous supply of Vitamin B for keeping fit, it furnishes food-energy, muscle and body-building ingredients. For about 1/2c per dish.

Start serving it tomorrow for a 2-weeks test. Quaker Oats has a wholesome, nut-like, luscious appeal to the appetite. Flavors, surpassingly good. All grocers supply it.

HOW ARE YOU TODAY

DR. JAMES W. BARTON Talks About

The Alkaline Reserve ONE of the points that is often forgotten in reducing weight is that as the weight goes off, owing to the food intake being reduced, there is a tendency to acidosis—that listless, tired feeling that makes the individual feel that he or she is faint from lack of food. It is often not the lack of food so much as not enough of fruits, and the cutting down on white potatoes, that is making the blood and tissues less alkaline than they should be.

You are hearing and reading a great deal about acidosis—the effects upon the system of "acid-forming" foods.

You are told that as a nation we eat too much of the acid-forming foods—eggs, meat, fish, breads, cereals, pastries, and not enough of the base or alkali-forming foods—milk, fruits, vegetables and nuts. The result is the condition known as acidosis in which we feel "tired" all the time just as if we had worked hard physically. This is because these foods and hard work both form acids; acids consume a great amount of oxygen and so we feel tired.

The best alkaline foods or alkalinizers are the fruits, which not only have an acid taste but do contain acid. This is due to the fact that the acid we taste (organic) is the kind the body can easily burn up or oxidize as fuel in the tissues, while the rest of the fruit contains a great amount of base or alkali-forming elements, so that an alkaline ash is left in the body after the food is burned in the tissues.

About the only organic acids which the body cannot burn are found in cranberries, rhubarb, prunes and plums. Apples, bananas, oranges, muskmelon, raisins, peas, beans, and white potatoes are foods which have been found to be very efficient in reducing the slight acid condition of the body caused by eating too much of the acid-forming foods for a long time.

As mentioned above too much acid-forming food uses up too much of your body energy in trying to overcome its acid qualities, and you feel lazy and listless. Thus lecturers and health writers do well to warn you about acidosis which is the name given to these symptoms.

In fact so insistent are some of these writers and lecturers about the danger of acidosis that there is actually set up in some individuals who follow this advice too closely a condition of "alkalosis," where the blood and tissues are too alkaline to do their work properly.

Now we all want to be at our best, to be not only able to work but anxious to do it, and while we must eat the acid-formers—eggs, meat, fish, bread, and cereals—to maintain the "structure" of the body and supply energy, we must not eat so much of them that so much oxygen is used up in burning or oxidizing them that we are left listless and tired. Because, after all, our "snap" or "pep" depend to a great extent in maintaining the "alkali reserve" of the body. Any departure from this alkali reserve, that allows the blood and tissues to get more nearly to the acid condition means just that much lack of energy or desire to work.

Another important point is that our resistance to infection is lessened if the alkali reserve is not maintained. "Recent experimental work has produced quite conclusive evidence that resistance to the organisms of infection depends to a large extent in maintaining an excess of the alkali elements in the tissues." This explains why our mothers, without knowing much about alkali reserve, gave us, as youngsters, the half or more teaspoons of baking soda when our stomachs were upset, or we were threatened with a cold. It is real scientific treatment to give baking soda under these circumstances.

The thought, then, is that the blood and tissues in good health contain more alkali than acid elements and your best health depends upon maintaining this alkali reserve.

Some health writers advise a certain percentage of alkaline to acid foods but no such rule can be advised for everybody; there are differences in body build, in the amount of work done, in the way a particular body handles particular foods.

Generally speaking, however, most of us would be well advised to eat "more" of the alkali-forming foods—fruits, vegetables and milk.

The Weight-Reducing Drug

In an editorial on dinitrophenol, because of its widespread use, the Journal of the American Medical Association states: "There seems to be agreement at present that dinitrophenol is a drug with a certain degree of danger when used without supervision. Its sale should be restricted to that ordered by the physician's prescription and its use by medical men should be carefully supervised. Probably it should be used only when reduction of excess weight is important and when the ordinary reducing diets have failed."

Fabric Honors Go to New Woolens

By CHERIE NICHOLAS

MOST of the glory in the fabric realm is going to the new woolens this season. Whether you work or play, whether you travel or saunter about town, whether you are campus bound or en route to the office, whether you are counted among the spectator sports group in the grandstand or whether you tea at five or dance at the midnight "prom," if you would register among the best dressed, fashion decrees that your costume be of some one or other of the handsome new woolens that are showing this season.

Time was "way back when" that the merits of woolens were reckoned in terms of sturdy utilization qualities that insured comfort when the temperature went low as well as steering wearability throughout the practical hours. But now all is changed in that you may have your woolen weaves as fastidious, as eloquent of chic and charm as you please.

Wherefore, the new wool fabrics have become the idol of fashion. The current collections intrigue with their wide versatility, their breath-taking novelty, the colorings which are rich and beautiful beyond wildest flights of fancy, together with weaves and textures the likes of which were not dreamed of in days of yore.

The woman who knows her woolens will choose according to time, place and occasion. For sports and for practical daytime clothes, rabbit woolens are outstanding. They are shown in cunning novelty checks and stripes and bold plaids which particularly stress the new wines, chic violet tones, dark browns and deep rich greens. Nubby mixtures tweeds and herringbones are also favorites in sports woolens. Popular also are homespun, surface cordings, diagonal or vertical ribbings and endless weaves that are nubbed, slubbed, flecked and highly metallized, fascinating and mysterious beyond anything previously achieved in the annals of the woolen industry.

Wool crepes, printed chamis and cashmeres are especially lovely styled in soft types that are suitable to wear under fur coats. There is much excitement, too, in regard to the new sheer woolens.

Quite the newest trend in fashioning the smartest woolen suits is to bind the edges with supple fur after the manner shown to the left in the group pictured. Here we see a young fashionable clad in a jacket frock of sheer black woolen. It has the new short peplum. The edges of the jacket and the modishly flared skirt are banded with black Persian lamb. The crushed ascot scarf is of bright green moire. Speaking of sheer black, at this moment it is the rage for daytime dresses, with clever buttonings, shirings, pleatings and metal gadgets to give the individual touch.

Campus-bound, the chic girl centered in the trio is wearing a smart two-piece frock of lightweight wooler styled to look young. Gray Persian lamb decorates the collar and the patch pockets of the tailored jacket that fastens down the front with self-fabric covered buttons.

Smartly simple in line, the three-piece frock for the junior, shown to the right, is practically a "must" in the school wardrobe. The cardigan jacket and the tailored skirt are made of a sheer soft rabbit woolen fabric. The tuck-in blouse of soft wool Jersey in the natural tan color, worn with a Peter Pan collar outside the cardigan

STRESSING PLAID By CHERIE NICHOLAS

The world of fashion is growing increasingly plaid-conscious. Never has eye seen plaids so gorgeous, so bold in color and in such fascinating wool weaves as are now enlivening the style panorama. The tunic of soft spongy woolen here pictured is in the smart new gray. The same gray is in the plaid contrasting the vivid reds, greens, yellows and white. Note the ascot tie, which is a very special style feature of the majority of sports costumes.

Two-Piece Dresses Two-piece styles are exceptionally good for this fall, especially in thin, light-weight wool or crepe.

TROUSERED STYLE FOR WOMEN GAINS

The trousers-for-women idea is strong in the new fall fashions, and girls who heretofore have restricted their manly costume to the beach or the back yard, may now come right out in the open and wear trousers to dinner and dance.

There seems no doubt that some of the leading designers are all for the trousered mode.

Some gowns have the trousers beneath a skirt, slit to the waist. Some feature divided skirts concealingly draped.

And some come right out with undisguised trousers in formal afternoon and dinner clothes.

The most daring variation of the theme presented thus far is the slashed evening skirt which reveals matching shorts.

Umbrella Skirt Is Favored by Coeds for Sweater Use

The umbrella skirt is the newest thing on the campus horizon. It's the skirt that college girls will wear with their sweaters this fall, it looks like its name. It's a skirt with a decided flare, gored in the umbrella manner, with crosses between the seams. It demonstrates the new rule of shorter and fuller, and it's shown in all the new flannels and tweeds.

College girls, tired of the classic button-down-front skirt of wrap-around cut, are going in for gored this fall. The majority of skirts shown in college shops around town are definitely flared, and gored to the last notch.

They come in nice soft monotone tweeds and Angora fabrics, and are shown in colors to blend or contrast with any sweater.

Evening Cape

A luscious satin evening cape is bordered at the front with silver fox and caught together at the neckline with a large baguette diamond and ruby clip.

Golden Phantoms FASCINATING TALES OF LOST MINES

By Editha L. Watson

THE VALLAGRANA LEDGE

DON TOMAS AGUILA was the richest man in Monterey. Surely he had no need for more, but such is wealth that no one ever thinks he has enough. Don Tomas, certainly, felt that he would like to add to his riches. There was a silver mine in Lower California—the Vallagrana—which brought forth enormous quantities of the pale metal. Don Tomas wished to own a part of this mine—a third would do—and he would pay $150,000 for the privilege. But why should its owners part with a third of their wealth? Alas, no, senior, it could not be!

To whom the Don made his offer is slightly obscure. The Vallagrana was an Indian mine, owned and worked by the natives of Baja, California. Surely he did not imagine that they would be interested in the transaction. Or perhaps he was gambling in futures, and made his offer to the men who started out to locate the fabulous ledge of silver—the offer to become valid if and when that location had been successfully made.

The mine was real—there is no doubt of that. It takes its name from the Mexican governor of Lower California, who, due to one of those political tempests which have flurried every so often over Mexico, was forced to flee in 1800 to La Paz. On the way, Vallagrana and his followers took refuge for a time in an Indian camp.

The governor evidently had a manner of making friends. Before he left the hospitable Indians they had showed their guests the wonderful ledge of silver which was their treasure. Wonderful it certainly was, for the outcrop could be traced for over 1,800 feet, and was over 25 feet wide at the surface!

After promising absolute secrecy, the governor and his party were given seven specimens of the ore for souvenirs, and later they departed for La Paz. Various vicissitudes befell them, then, and a year later only one man still had his piece of ore. At last he had it assayed. It ran 3,900 ounces of silver to the ton!

The prospect of obtaining more of this precious ore overcame the memory of promises made. Vallagrana told, then, what had happened, and in July of 1803 he and five other men landed in La Paz on their way back to the wonderful ledge.

But Indians had strict codes of justice. After the former governor and his men left La Paz, they were never seen nor heard of again.

Every year since 1803 there have been others who hoped to find the ledge of silver. They have started out confidently; often they have paid an Indian or two to guide them to their goal. But these "guides" have never seemed to find the location of the silver.

UNPROFITABLE MURDER

AN OLD Uintah Indian told Pete Madison, prospector-at-large, a story of gold. There were two miners, the tribesman said, who spent the winter in the Pat's Hole section of Moffat county, Colorado. They worked all winter, in spite of storms, and at last collected about 25 pounds of gold.

Finally they ran out of provisions. It would seem pleasant to see other people again, a sort of vacation after the long, tiresome winter, so the two left their camp and started west toward a settlement where they expected to buy supplies.

In the early days of the West, "bad men" seemed to be hidden in the most unexpected places. A band of such outlaws appeared after the two miners had crossed the Utah line, and they found that they must fight for their lives.

There was a ledge back of them; they stood against this and defended themselves as best they could against the desperadoes.

It was an uneven battle. One miner went down; the other tried to fight his way through but a bullet stopped him.

Much to the chagrin of the outlaws, the miners had only enough gold with them to pay for their supplies and a modest spree. It had been scarcely worth while killing them for this. And now the point arose that if these bodies should be discovered, posses would certainly trail down the murderers.

The only thing to do was to conceal the corpses where they lay. Accordingly, the outlaws pried off the face of the ledge so that fallen rocks and dirt covered the two dead men, and hurried away from the scene.

This was the story that the old Uintah Indian told Pete Madison, and Pete, a characteristic chaser of golden phantoms, made up his mind to hunt out the mine. He went as far as the ranch of Harry Chew, an old-timer in that region, and here he found substantiation to the story of the fight: Years before, while Chew was exploring a steel cliff in Pool canyon, Utah, he had found a human skull, exposed by erosion, at the foot of a ledge. Curious to know what lay out of sight, he dug around and uncovered two bodies—evidently those of the unfortunate miners.

Beyond this neither man was able to trace. The mine remains hidden among the hills, perhaps concealed by fallen trees or rock slides, and the lucky discoverer has not yet come along.

Do You Ever Wonder

Whether the "Pain" Remedy You Use is SAFE?

Ask Your Doctor and Find Out

Don't Entrust Your Own or Your Family's Well-Being to Unknown Preparations

THE person to ask whether the preparation you or your family are taking for the relief of headaches is SAFE to use regularly is your family doctor. Ask him particularly about Genuine BAYER ASPIRIN.

He will tell you that before the discovery of Bayer Aspirin most "pain" remedies were advised against by physicians as bad for the stomach and, often, for the heart. Which is food for thought if you seek quick, safe relief.

Scientists rate Bayer Aspirin among the fastest methods yet discovered for the relief of headaches and the pains of rheumatism, neuritis and neuralgia. And the experience of millions of users has proved it safe for the average person to use regularly. In your own interest remember this.

You can get Genuine Bayer Aspirin at any drug store—simply by asking for it by its full name, BAYER ASPIRIN. Make it a point to do this—and see that you get what you want.

Let Our Motto Be GOOD HEALTH

BY DR. LLOYD ARNOLD
Professor of Bacteriology and Preventive Medicine, University of Illinois, College of Medicine.

MOTORING HAS GOOD INFLUENCE ON HEALTH

A cartoonist in a Chicago newspaper depicted a scene the other day that had a very enticing appeal. It showed a man seated at his desk, all sorts of rush orders around him, and through the window a man with a cowboy hat labeled "The Call of the Outdoors" was reaching in and, grabbing him by the vest, was yelling: "Yippee! Well, tan my hide! Look what I found hibernatin' in here—C'mon out an' sit some sunshine! Yippee!" And over the cartoon was the caption, "The First Time You Open the Window Real Wide on a Warm Spring Day."

It was good health advice that grinning cowboy gave. When spring comes, it's good for us to do like the bears—quit hibernating and get out into the sunshine. And if you have a family bus, it's time to send out for the latest road map, and away for a week-end vacation trip.

The highways have always played an important part in the health and habits of man. There has ever been an effort to make them safe from a health standpoint. In ancient times lepers and other unclean persons were excluded from the highways, for it was early recognized that pestilence walked from community to community with the footsteps of man.

The world in which we live is now a much bigger one. We can easily travel three hundred miles in any direction within a day. We are as familiar and conversant with a geographical area several hundred miles square as our grandparents were with a thirty mile area.

The development of automotive power has changed our life in many ways. The social and family environment has been altered. We compare ourselves with more people. We are broader minded in that we can see more and, therefore, judge values from a better perspective. There is less difference in social customs, dress and living standards in adjacent communities. The residents of Horse Creek and Turkey Run no longer regard each other with suspicion. In other words, we have become a more homogenous population. This is very important from a health standpoint. The community that has had a habit of an unbalanced diet, with consequent general illness of the population can now see the error of its ways and apply the remedy. No community wants a reputation for disease.

Another important health influence due to hard roads and automobiles is the greater amount of time people now spend in the fresh air and sunshine. In the country we used to go to town in the buggy or wagon when it was necessary. City dwellers did very little traveling. Now with the automobile we joyously seek the open road. It is only during rainy or stormy weather that we stay indoors. From a health viewpoint, this is as it should be. The ride after supper that so many people take nowadays provides a period of relaxation, and it allows for restful digestion and family visiting. It is much better than staying home to wash the dishes.

One question that naturally arises is: Are contagious diseases spread more by automobile travel than they were before the use of such rapid and easy transportation increased human contact? The answer is that the health level of the population is much better than it ever was before. There is plenty of fresh air to be had on a trip and lots of sunshine and little dust. This keeps the healthy person well and aids the sickly person to regain health, and the sickly person has no contact with the healthy travelers in other automotive vehicles. The stimulating effect of the air forced against the body during automobile travels is a good tonic. Germs are carried from the sick to the well person by shoe leather, not by the air or wind.

It is intimate contact, such as coughing, sneezing and touching with the hands, that transfers contagious materials. Happy and contented people are healthy folk. You see more laughs and smiles among automobile travelers than you do among the passengers in the staterooms of the de luxe transcontinental trains.

The one thing that the person traveling into "unknown parts" should look out for is contamination of food or water. Typhoid fever and dysentery are about the only diseases you need guard against. Direct contact with the travelers you meet (unless they have colds) is pretty safe. Some few hotels and tourist camps are not what they should be, but so many are good that there is no excuse for putting up with one that has not the best sanitary conveniences.

Do not buy milk unless it is pasteurized. And do not stop by the roadside to drink from a spring unless there is a notice by a state health department that the water has been analyzed and found fit. Eat plenty of fruit and vegetables, and not many sweets, and you'll come home yearly improved by the outing.

Unemployed Youth to Get Chance

1. Miss Josephine Roche, Chairman of the Executive Committee of the NYA. 2. What Is to Become of These Young People Now They Are Out of School? 3. Aubrey Williams, Executive Director.

By WILLIAM C. UTLEY
WITH a snort of disgust the young man tossed his hat on the table. And as he sank into the chair, his worn newspaper, folded with the "help wanted" ads to the outside, their gray columns smudged with the sweat of much handling, fell to the floor; he didn't bother to pick it up.

He bent in defeat, his hands hung limply from the arms of the chair. His eyes fixed in a red stare on the thin carpet, his nostrils widened in a sneer and his lower lip pouted. He looked as if he would do something desperate—if there were anything desperate to do.

His throat was dry as he spoke. "I give up!" "I've been in every darn place in this town where they might need anybody to do anything. I'm a graduate engineer with one of the best records in my class—and I can't get a job washing dishes. I've been trying for three years."

"The jobs there are for married men who have families that need food and a home. That's all right, I suppose they should. But Lord, I want to get married myself some day, and here I am twenty-five without a chance in sight of getting myself any kind of a start. I've got a right to my life and happiness. But I've got to work!" "And what do they say to me? 'You've no experience. We can get good men with years of experience for what we have to pay you.'"

"Good Lord, how am I going to get experience if I can't get work?"

"The mar is, of course, a hypothetical case. But if you think his counterpart does not exist in reality and in appalling numbers, you are sadly mistaken. The International Labor office at Geneva has just issued a statement which declares that at least 25 per cent of all the world's 25,000,000 unemployed are less than twenty-five years old."

But wait, despairing youth! There may be an end in sight for all this. America has an idea. It may work and it may not, but at least something is going to be done. The President of the United States is speaking. . . . "I have determined that we shall do something for the nation's unemployed youth because we can ill afford to lose the skill and energy of these young men and women. They must have their chances in school, their turn as apprentices and their opportunity for jobs—a chance to work and earn for themselves."

"In recognition of this great national need I have established a National Youth Administration, to be under the Works Progress Administration."

Out of the $4,800,000,000 which Congress in the emergency relief appropriation act of April 8 turned over to Mr. Roosevelt that he might sink public dollars into the mire of depression to make a foundation for a sturdy structure of sound prosperity, $50,000,000 will be poured as a pylon to support the new NYA during its first year.

As chairman of the executive committee of the NYA, the President named Miss Josephine Roche, assistant secretary of the treasury. She was long a professional champion of youth and later, as a coal operator, waged the battle for the rights of young men and women in different form. As executive director she will have Aubrey Williams, first assistant to Harry L. Hopkins, works-progress administrator.

These two will set up the organization which will execute the challenge taken up by the President to remove youth from the depths of disillusion and defeatism and the dangerous radicalism which so often arises from such conditions. Youth in the case of the NYA is limited to men and women between the ages of sixteen and twenty-five. Here are the services the organization will attempt to perform:

1. Find employment in private industry for unemployed youth. "Work designed to accomplish this shall be set going in every state in order to work out with employers in industry, commerce and business, ways and means of employing additional personnel from unemployed young people."

2. Train and retrain for industrial, technical and professional employment opportunities.
3. Provide for continuing attendance at high school and college.
4. Work relief projects designed to meet the needs of youth.

An estimated 150,000 youths will receive job training of some sort; 100,000 will be aided in finishing their high school courses; 120,000 will be assisted in pursuing a college education, and additional thousands will be given financial aid to enable them to take post-graduate work. Many more may be absorbed without cost through the finding of jobs in industry.

The smallest unit in the set-up will be the local or community committee. This will be under the supervision of the state administration, which in turn will report to Washington headquarters. Efforts will be concentrated upon youths who are out of work and no longer financially capable of attending school.

The tasks of the various divisions, according to the announcement from the White House, will be "to mobilize the industrial, commercial, agricultural and educational forces to provide employment and other practical assistance to the unemployed youth; to develop and carry out a co-ordinated program of work and work opportunities, job training and retraining for unemployed youth, utilizing all existing public and private agencies, industries, schools and various training facilities which can assist in meeting various phases of the problem."

How Money Will Be Spent.
These tasks will all be undertaken with a view of furnishing youths (who are eligible for relief) compensation for work they may do on their new jobs, or expense money if they are going to school.

Boys and girls over sixteen who have been forced to stop attending high school because they have no money for car fare, lunches and incidentals will be given an average of $6 a month to enable them to complete their courses.

An average of $15 a month will go to unemployed high school graduates under twenty-five to help them finish college. Institutions will receive no subsidies; the students will be expected to pay part of the cost themselves, as they have in the past. There is a rule now that those receiving work relief shall not account for more than 12 per cent of the enrollment of institutions of higher learning, but this will in all likelihood be revoked or changed to make room for the NYA proteges.

Post-graduate students who have been unsuccessful in their job-hunting will be carefully selected for aid in completing their study. A special effort will be made to find jobs for graduates of the class of 1935.

An average of $15 a month will be paid to youths given outright work-relief jobs; since one of the qualifications is that they must be from relief families, it may be assumed that the head of the family will be holding a work-relief job at better pay.

Regarding this type of worker the plan says: "Particular stress should be laid upon the building and use of recreational and community centers which, depending upon local conditions and the energy, ability and enthusiasm of local youth groups, can be anything from an old-fashioned 'swimming hole' to a complete center including all types of athletic facilities, community houses, library, classrooms, etc. In most communities these recreational centers can be made self-liquidating. Substantially all of the direct labor in the creation of these centers shall be performed by youths themselves, working as apprentices under the direction of skilled mechanics."

Take National Census.
Work relief youths will also be kept busy taking a national census of all youths in the United States between sixteen and twenty-five.

To secure employment, the NYA will ask industrial employers to hire youths as apprentices under special arrangements. Governmental bureaus, county, municipal and state, will be asked to take apprentices and train them for public service. Concerning the latter, the NYA said: "The opportunity afforded by this type of work should be used to develop a new type of trained public servant, rather than to merely add to the immense groups of men and women who now clamor to get into government service."

It has been called possible that this may foreshadow a permanent civil service organization, like that of England.

Job training and job placement are to be accomplished by:

- (a) Utilizing available school shop facilities for initial or basic trade training, through special late afternoon or evening classes, taught as work relief projects by needy unemployed persons qualified to teach the special field.
- (b) Utilizing available private factories, industries, or plants, at times when they are not in regular operation, as places to hold training classes, taught by needy unemployed.
- (c) Using public libraries for training youths to function as librarians and enabling the libraries to be kept open for the public a greater number of hours a day.

Co-operation Needed.
"This undertaking will need the vigorous co-operation of the citizens of the several states," said the President.

"It is recognized that the final solution of this whole problem of unemployed youth will not be attained until there is a resumption of normal business activities and opportunities for private employment on a wide scale. I believe that the national youth program will serve the most pressing and immediate needs of that portion of unemployed youth most seriously affected at the present time."

The NYA is a definite step toward solving the problem of unemployed youth in America. What will be done about the remainder of the six or seven million unemployed youths in other parts of the world is being considered by Geneva's International Labor office, with the object of doing away with the discontent that often results in serious social dangers. It is particularly worried about the method which is being used to a wide extent by many European nations—military conscription. Forced labor camps and incorporation of young men in other organizations more or less of a military character it deprecates.

"Attendance at such unemployment centers should be strictly voluntary, should exclude any idea of military training, and these centers should only undertake work which under prevailing economic conditions would not be carried out by workers in normal employment."

Serious Problem.
In the I.L.O. subjects usually receive two discussions, one when they are first called to attention, and another the following year, after all the available information has been gathered. This question is considered too urgent to hold over.

The real seriousness of the problem, according to the I.L.O., "is to be found in the particularly unfortunate consequences of continued idleness for young people, more than older persons. If adults, after long years of work, are unable to face the difficulties of life, on the other hand how can young people on their own resources successfully resist the demoralizing effects of prolonged unemployment?"

The remedies for the situation, as held up by the I.L.O., are pretty much the same as the plan which the President has outlined for this country. They include work-relief, job placement and apprenticeships, and vocational training and retraining.

The I.L.O. suggests that the minimum age for leaving school and being admitted to employment should be set at fifteen years; that there should be more technical schools, and that its plan, similar to the President's, should be carried out.

It will be interesting to see what effect the President's NYA will have on the youth of our nation. Says he: "The yield on this investment should be high."

Madness of Anarchism Seems to Be Passing

In the '60s, '70s and '80s, in Italy, Spain and, above all, Russia, the mad wisdom of the anarchist gospel had a strong hold on many people, and the history of the Nineteenth century is full of their bloody deeds. Now only small factions of the party still remain in Italy and Spain.

The real anarchist sees the only way to happiness through the destruction of all kinds of governments. To an anarchist a Bolshevik government is just as bad as a monarchy. If he could, he would gladly kill any high official who represented the principles of ordered government.

A real anarchist should not be confused with those sporadic madmen whose deeds we have witnessed in recent years. The murderer of Mayor Cermak of Chicago, Zangara, who confessed that he had an inner urge to kill the President, was not an anarchist but just criminally insane. So was the slayer of President McKinley or the wretch who killed Empress Elizabeth in Switzerland two generations ago.

The real anarchist is mostly a wide-eyed idealist who has acquired a queer little twist in some corner of his brain. Behind the explosions of bombs and the scattered remains of his victims he sees a new and better world rising. Fortunately for us, this strange specimen of humanity seems to be disappearing.—Harry Soderman in the Forum and Century.

SUCH IS LIFE—Jest Plain Ignorant

By Charles Sughroe

Great Liner to Be Sent to Graveyard

S. S. Mauretania Will Be Wrecked for Scrap.

London.—The Mauretania, speed queen of the Atlantic from her launching in 1907 until 1929 and the most famous of British ships, will soon make her last trip—to the scrap heap. At least she will be spared the indignity of a tow to her grave.

Under her own power she will sail from Southampton, England, for Rosyth, tiny town at the head of the Scottish Firth of Forth. Arrived off Rosyth the once mighty queen of the Atlantic will drive head on to the beach with her four steam turbines, marvel of their day, going "full ahead."

Beached in the shallow waters of the Firth, wreckers will tear the heart out of her for the value of the metal in her hull.

Foreigners Sought Ship. Foreign interests, particularly Italian and Japanese, have tried to buy the Mauretania with a view to recommissioning her and putting her back in passenger service.

Whether from sentiment, or because of pressure from the high command of the English navy, the officials of the Cunard-White Line refused to sell the ship to other than English hands. She went to the Metal Industries, Ltd., of Glasgow, Scotland, for a reported price of £80,000—approximately $384,000 at the present exchange. The cost of building her was £3,000,000, or roughly $14,400,000.

The Mauretania, sister ship of the torpedoed Lusitania, established the record for crossing the Atlantic at 5 days 10 hours and 45 minutes back in 1907. Despite the desperate efforts of her owners to recondition her in such a way that she might regain the record she held for 22 years, the German Bremer and Europa and the Italian Rex have been too fast for her since 1929.

Her Last Attempt.

In her last vain try for her former place as the fastest of the Atlantic ships she made the crossing from Cherbourg to the Ambrose channel lightship in 4 days 21 hours and 44 minutes, arriving in New York August 8, 1929.

The present record for the crossing is 4 days 13 hours and 58 minutes, set by the Rex of the Italian line in August of 1933 and closely approached by many others of the modern luxury liners. The greater speed of the new ships, embodying all the modern improvements and the latest developments in streamlining, as well as greater stability and more comforts, combined to start the Mauretania on the down hill path to her grave.

More fortunate than her mate, the Lusitania, the Mauretania went through the war unscathed. Used in troop transport to the Dardanelles in the early days of the war, she was later recommissioned as a hospital ship. Before the war ended the English government handed the great ship back to her owners. She was then refitted and placed in the passenger service.

Lighting Trick

If the newly painted walls of a room do not appear the desired color when artificial light is turned on, try substituting blue bulbs in your lighting fixtures for the usual white-frosted ones. "Daylight" bulbs have quite an effect on the wall colors of the room in which they are used.

Statue of Liberty Gains in Popularity

Washington.—A register for visitors, hidden in a nook of the Statue of Liberty for nearly 40 years, has been discovered.

The book contains 1,500 pages, each page having 54 signatures. The signatures are those of persons who visited the famous monument in New York harbor between 1890 and 1906.

Comparing data found in the old book with that shown in last year's register, George A. Palmer, acting superintendent of the statue, was amazed by the immense increase revealed in the number and range of visitors.

Forty years ago, it was revealed, only 11 states were represented by 39 visitors who registered on August 8, while on August 8, 1934, 1,262 actually visited the monument and 579 registered. Thirty-six states were represented in the latter group.

UNFINISHED SYMPHONIES

By LEONARD A. BARRETT

More than a century ago a young man began a great symphony when he was only about twenty-one years of age and his name was Franz Schubert. While taxing his strength to interpret a divinely inspired message he died at the age of thirty-one before completing the composition. The work is greatly treasured and it has come to be known in the musical circles as the "Unfinished Symphony."

Our lives are like symphonies. Tragedy and pathos, sorrow and joy, success and failure, sunshine and rain, light and darkness. In music the major chords express joy, the minor chords strains of sorrow. Every life is a symphony in which not only are expressed these major and minor chords but also a great theme—the purpose and meaning of life itself. Try however hard we may, no great life purpose is ever completely fulfilled. However high and praiseworthy may be our ambition, we know from experience that these ambitions will never be ultimately realized. Ideals are not meant to be achieved. They are goals which urge us, as it were, "On stepping stones to higher things." It is this eternal "urge," to express in whatever may be our life's work, our highest and best self that makes the symphony. Even though we may never complete it, we have known something of the exalted joy of self-expression.

An Evening Ensemble

A midsummer night's dream by Mainbocher of multicolored flowered taffeta on a white ground has a white chiffon bodice. The hem cut up in front to show the feet is an important style note. A corsage bouquet and wreath of artificial flowers matching those on the silk complete one of the most glamorous evening ensembles of the season.

Life will always be an unfinished symphony—perhaps this was why Robert Browning wrote, "A man's reach should exceed his grasp, or what's a heaven for," or as in the "Faithless Painter" he wrote, "I do what many dream of all their lives, Dream? Strive to do, and agonize to do, and fall in doing." Perhaps this same idea gave rise to the rather crude custom of the early Indians to bury in the grave of their departed a gun and a dog, so that they might continue in their work in the Happy Hunting Ground. Surely the old philosopher was right when he suggested that a human life was not built as a child would build a house of blocks, just for the thrill of seeing it tumble down. No—there is an eternal meaning and purpose in life itself and though we never reach the ideal and much of our work must necessarily remain unfinished:

Yet we trust that somehow good Shall be the final goal of ill, That nothing walks with aimless feet That not one life shall be destroyed Or cast as rubbish to the void When God has made the pile complete.

The Richly Toned Patterned Paper, Applied to the Back of the Closet Slides, Lent Distinction to Them.

CLOSET backgrounds are becoming increasingly attractive as they gain in decorative attention. No longer is it considered quite right for them to be left with the white plaster finish. If the interior is conspicuously visible when the door is thrown open, although in the case of clothes closets the white may remain if it lightens the interior. In many instances these closet side walls are bright with color. For dining room and kitchenette closets these finishes may properly be considered the last word in decoration.

Dining room cupboards on the Dutch and Colonial types are in high favor, and these are objects of especial attention in the vogue of fancy backgrounds. Wall paper is a favorite medium of decoration, the kind of paper which is gay with birds and blossoms, landscapes and pictorial designs. The background of the paper generally is rich in tone, bright blues, intense reds, deep yellows being esteemed. Against such colors the beauty of other bright hues in corresponding color values carry out the designs in a strikingly effective manner.

The papers must have strength as well as beauty. No merely pretty or dainty paper is pleasing for this purpose. The colors must harmonize well with the color scheme of a room or match it in the main. Also the contents of the closet shelves have to be considered. For instance for peasant wares red would be in keeping, while if the china was decorated in pink the color would kill the beauty of the ware. Pewter and brass are congenial to these decorative paper backgrounds. With certain papers, silver and glass show to advantage, although there is a peasant aspect to these walls which accords better metals of lesser value than silver.

Painted walls make good side wall finishes for dining room and kitchen closets. The colors used are not tints but stronger tones, not dark but gay.

Green and yellow are two colors against which most decorated china, whatever its hues, can be seen advantageously. Blue is very pleasing with some old fashioned wares, and Chinese red is just the thing with some decorations and some chinaware.

Any homemaker can paint the walls as there is not apt to be much wall space. Shelves are white, cream, or natural wood. The paper used is especially since very little is needed. The actual outlay would not be great. In the average closet, matching paper would not be necessary. Watch step-by-step the work for the home decorator.

Progress of West Texas Utilities Co.

The West Texas Utilities Co. started progress about 12 years ago, when they launched our small plant here with one small engine serving its few customers. The company installed a larger engine to give the customers better service, in fact 24-hour service.

Hedley began to grow, then the company completed the high line from Childress to Clarendon, and Hedley had abundance of power for lights and power, and the rates were reduced from 18c to our present rate.

The company has progressed as Hedley has, and has done their part to help build Hedley.

Our merchandise department has made it possible for customers to get the same class merchandise as the larger towns, at no increase in price.

The service department has the same training as the service in other larger towns, and can give the customers the same type of service.

H. H. Hall Features
Conoco Gas and Oil

The Hall Service Station, owned and managed by H. H. Hall, is the local agency of the Continental Oil Co., wholesale and retail. They feature the famous Conoco Bronze gasoline and Germ Processed motor oil, which emphasizes the "hidden quart" of oil which stays up in the motor. The station also has the local agency for the Firestone Tire and Rubber Co., and displays Firestone tires, tubes, batteries, spark plugs, etc.

W. T. Hall and M. C. Raney assist in carrying on the business. See them for expert greasing, washing and tire repairing. Hall Service Station stands back of the products they sell, whether oil, tires or accessories. They will appreciate a share of your trade.

This station, incidentally, is as old as the Informer, having been built by John Crow in 1910.

R. A. Carter For Better Used Cars

R. A. Carter needs no introduction to old timers of this vicinity, having lived here in 1913, and from 1915 to 1920.

On September 23rd, he opened the old Hedley Motor Co. building and installed a number of used automobiles. He sells all makes and models of used cars, and attempts at all times to give his customers a dollar's worth of transportation for each dollar they invest. He promises a fair and square deal to all, and invites you to see his selection of used cars before you buy.

Mr. Carter's slogan is "Where Price and Quality Meet."

Save On Your Food
At the "M" System

The "M" System Grocery, owned by J. W. Vallance of Memphis, opened in 1927, in the building now occupied by Chunn & Boston. Harold Hodges of Lakeview was manager of the store. In July, 1930, J. B. Lamb became manager, and has remained in that capacity until the present time. At about the same time, the grocery was moved to the most southerly of the group of modern buildings, which were built on the west side of Main in 1928. The front of the building was remodeled, and more windows were installed, greatly improving the interior lighting and the general appearance of the store.

The "M" System stresses "the most of the best for the least," giving their customers the best foods obtainable, at a price they can afford to pay. The store has a sanitary market, with all kinds of fresh, cured and lunch meats, efficiently tended by Richard Longshore. They invite your inspection.

Will Holland Runs
Hedley Dray Line

Will W. Holland has lived in Hedley since 1926, and has been operating the Hedley Dray Line for the past six years. He hauls anything—anytime—anywhere. A resident of Hedley for nearly 20 years. M. G. Whitfield, the popular blacksmith, came to Hedley in 1916, and was employed by J. Walker Lane. In 1917 he began business for himself. He is equipped to do good blacksmithing, and with his long experience, serves the public promptly and efficiently. He requests a share of your business, and will appreciate your consideration. Mr. Whitfield's son, Ewell, assists him in the shop.

Call on them when you want blacksmithing done properly and done promptly.

Moreman, the present owner, bought the store from Mr. Johnson January 12, 1911. It was at that time located in a small frame building on the east side of Main Street, and contained $3,500.00 worth of stock. During the same year, C. B. Battle, now deceased, bought a partnership in the business, and the next year the present building was erected and the stock moved in. The store continued as Moreman & Battle until 1921, when Mr. Moreman purchased Mr. Battle's share in the business.

Moreman Hardware stocks all kinds of furniture and fixtures for the home, and will be glad to discuss your home furnishings with you. They invite you to visit them for your farm or home needs.

C. E. JOHNSON SELLS GOOD PROTECTION

C. E. Johnson, a resident of Hedley for 22 years, is, so far as we know, Hedley's oldest insurance agent. He sells fire, tornado and hail insurance, and has been doing so since 1917. "Before the disaster is the time to insure. Property losses are disastrous in these times, so make sure you have enough insurance coverage to protect you against loss." See Mr. Johnson for insurance on your home or other buildings, and save needless worry and trouble.

Mr. Johnson is also manager of the local telephone exchange, the Hedley Telephone Co.

"Love Apple" Ranks First as Vegetable Canning Crop

Once called the "love apple," and grown mainly as an ornamental plant, the tomato now ranks first in the United States as a vegetable canning crop.

When introduced into the United States from the American tropics about 1800, the tomato was thought to be poisonous because it is related to the nightshade plant.

About the middle of the last century canned tomatoes became an article of trade. The value of the annual crop is now estimated at more than $50,000,000, of which approximately $20,000,000 is spent for tomatoes by canners and manufacturers.

The industry is widely scattered over the United States, but Maryland, New Jersey, Virginia, Indiana, and California produce a large part of the crop for canners and manufacturers.

The tomato, like the potato, is the poor man's friend. It is not difficult to grow, it is not expensive, and can be served the year around, either fresh or canned.

Handkerchiefs in Millions American men use approximately 102,000,000 handkerchiefs a year, while the women require about 158,000,000.

Since the failure of Mussolini's Four-Power pact, which was designed to make the four great European nations—France, Great Britain, Germany and Italy—agree to force the others to maintain the peace in Europe, Italy has minimized in its press every act of the league.

Germany Wants No War. As far as Germany is concerned, a war seems to be out of the question, at least for the present.

Germany and Poland have their ten-year pact signed in 1934, aimed principally at Russia. Hitler is not going to forget about his interests in Austria; more of this, as has been said before, may be heard when Italian strength on the northern frontier is weakened by the expedition into Ethiopia.

Italy seems to be the only nation who has her heart set upon war—and that is not a European war. She has only one idea in mind—the conquest of Ethiopia, and probably nothing can prevent the war in Africa.

Italy's single purpose today is territorial expansion through a protectorate over Ethiopia, for she must have more room for her people. With respect to European affairs, she will fight to maintain the status quo.

GREAT BRITAIN'S NEW SCHEME FOR BIG NAVAL FORCE

With statements and denials flying back and forth in London about the new navy Britain will build when the present sea power limitation treaties lapse, one clear fact emerged:

King George intends to have a navy second to none. Surrendering before immovable Japanese objections to continuing limitations under a system of ratios, the British are now negotiating with the principal powers for an exchange of building programs beyond which the powers concerned would agree not to build.

Thus, the United States would agree to lay down only five battleships in a stated time, Britain would agree to build only five and Japan five.

But even if such naval programs are declared in advance, they will not be binding on the powers, Lord Londonderry, the cabinet's spokesman in the house of lords, now reveals.

Any power changing its mind would promise to give a year's notice, he stated.

Chief initial difficulty about this system is that no government wants to declare what it is going to do until it learns what the other nations will build.

So Britain has taken the bull by the horns and submitted its tentative building program in the next few years to the United States, Japan, France and Italy. Germany already is tied to 35 per cent of the British navy.

But the British cabinet refuses to whisper a single detail of this program to parliament, which will have to vote the money, let alone the public, which will have to foot the bill.

So a sensation was caused when what purports to be the British seven-year naval plan was published and the cost of the vast armada put at approximately $750,000,000.

"Sunburst" Collar and Cuff Set for Fall

This Collar and Cuff set is quite a departure from the many models shown in open net work. The solid work gives the pieces more definite form and very little starching is necessary to hold the shape.

Package No. 711 contains sufficient white Mountain Craft crochet cotton to complete this three piece set. Complete instructions and set illustrated on a model are also included.

SECURITY BANK HAS KEPT STEP WITH PROGRESS

The Security State Bank of Hedley was organized in 1913 to take care of the needs of a growing community. The bank was organized as the Guaranty State Bank with $15,000.00 capital. J. G. McDougal was the president, W. B. Quigley was the vice president, T. T. Harrison cashier, and C. B. Akers, assistant cashier. Mr. Harrison and Mr. Akers left the banks employ after a few years. Mr. Quigley served continually as vice president until his death this year, and Mr. McDougal is still president of the bank.

Mr. Harrison was succeeded by J. D. Swift who served as cashier and active manager of the bank until 1919, when J. W. Noel, the present active vice president, took over the management of the bank.

The bank enjoyed a steady growth and in 1919 the capital was increased to $25,000.00 to keep in step with the growth of the community.

In 1929 the Security State Bank purchased the assets of the First State Bank and the two banks were consolidated under the name of the Security State Bank. To take care of the increased business the capital was raised to $35,000.00. Mr. T. R. Moreman, a director of the First State Bank, was added as a director of the Security State Bank.

In 1933 the bank again raised the working capital by selling $25,000.00 capital debentures which gives the bank working capital of $60,000.00, which amply takes care of the needs of the community.

The present officers of the bank are J. G. McDougal, president; J. W. Noel, vice president; C. L. Johnson, Cashier and Miss Ruby Hall, bookkeeper. Mr. McDougal has served the bank continually as president for the 22 years of its organization. J. W. Noel has completed 16 years of service with the bank and C. L. Johnson has also been with the bank 16 years and Miss Ruby Hall, the present bookkeeper is working her third year with the bank. The directors are J. W. Noel, M. C. Allen, T. R. Moreman, A. N. Wood and J. G. McDougal.

The policy of the bank has always been safety for the depositors' money, service to the community, respect for confidence, helpfulness and courtesy.

Good Lumber Yards Located In Hedley

Hedley has two well-equipped lumber yards. Cicero Smith Lumber Co. and J. C. Wooldridge Lumber Co. Both are among Hedley's oldest business enterprises, Cicero Smith being started in 1900, and J. C. Wooldridge in 1908. Cicero Smith was begun in Rowe, and moved to Hedley when Hedley was founded, in 1907, while Wooldridge was opened for business not long after the town was moved.

Both yards are equipped with everything necessary to the builder, including lumber, shingles, nails, roofing materials, paints, varnishes, glass, etc. They also have a large supply of good coal for both cooking and heating.

H. M. Horschler is local manager of the Cicero Smith Lumber Co. and Leon Reeves is local manager of the J. C. Wooldridge Lumber Co. They will be glad to assist you with your building plans.

LET BOZEMAN DO YOUR WELDING

The Bozeman Garage and Service Station, owned and operated by J. W. Bozeman, was opened in Hedley in about 1929, being first located in the building just north of the Land Mill and Feed Co. This year it was moved to the old W. A. Luttrell place, and a new building was built in which to handle the repair business. Mr. Bozeman repairs all makes and models of automobiles. He guarantees a fair and square deal to his customers, and good work at reasonable rates.

Barnes & Hastings Is Oldest Grocery

The Barnes and Hastings Grocery holds the distinction of being the oldest grocery store in Hedley. It has been located in Hedley for 19 years, having been opened for business in 1916. Jet Brumley was the first manager of the Hedley store, and continued in this capacity until 1928, when he was transferred to the Barnes and Hastings store in Pampa, where he is still manager. At the same time L. Spalding, genial and efficient clerk, was appointed manager of the store here, and has always given the same loyal and satisfactory service.

This grocery handles a complete line of staple and fancy groceries, including both necessities and luxuries in the food line.

Mr. Spalding is assisted in attending to the wants of customers by J. S. Gilliam, who has many years experience in the grocery trade. They invite you to call on them.

They make prompt delivery on all telephone orders.

M. & M. Dry Goods Here Since 1912

The M. and M. Dry Goods Co. was opened in 1912 in the building just south of the present location. After several years in that place, space became insufficient for the needs of the growing store, and in 1918 J. B. Masterson, the proprietor, moved the stock to the present building, which measures 25 by 130 feet. Until that time the building had been occupied by Richerson and McCarroll, a dry goods store and grocery combined.

M. and M. Co. specializes in ladies' ready-to-wear, gents' furnishings, and general dry goods. They have a full line of shoes for men, women and children, and carry the latest styles in dresses, suits, and coats at popular prices.

This store has been in Hedley 23 years, and still upholds their original policy of giving the customers high quality merchandise at low cost.

Clarence Davis, Mrs. Dannie Battle and Mrs. Weldon Bennett, all experienced dry goods clerks, assist in waiting on the customers.

C. E. Thompson For Used Auto Parts

C. E. Thompson has been in business in Hedley for one year. He moved here from Wellington in 1934, and purchased the Phillips 66 Service Station from W. D. Clawson. He operated a wrecking shop as a sideline. Some months ago he sold the station, and devoted his time to the Thompson Auto Salvage Shop. He enlarged the stock, and has used parts for all makes and models of automobiles, and has a good supply of used tires. See him when in need of any kind of used auto parts.

B. & B. Handles Notions, Novelties

The B. and B. Variety Store opened for business on February 20, 1929. The name stood for Brinson and Brinson, as W. G. and Miss Laura Brinson were the proprietors. After Miss Laura's death, Mr. and Mrs. W. G. Brinson continued the store under the same name. In spite of the fact that the store was opened not long before the "depression," it has progressed, and today has a much larger and more varied stock than in 1929. General racket goods are, of course, featured, and the stock in addition includes candy, school supplies, shirts, hosiery, overalls, play suits, toys, and all kinds of useful and ornamental articles to be found in a good variety store. They will appreciate your patronage.

P. L. Dishman Sells Sinclair Products

P. L. Dishman, operator of the Highway Service Station, has been a resident of Hedley since 1903. For the past 11 years he has been in business here. The Hiway Station was built in 1921 by P. V. Dishman who operated it until his death. Mrs. Dishman was the proprietor until a short time ago, when P. L. (Shack) Dishman took the station over. He handles the well-known Sinclair Refining Co. products, including the justly famous Sinclair Pennsylvania motor oil, "mellowed a hundred million years." He is salesman for the Ford V-8 and features "dependable used cars."

Who Knows How, Clarke The Tailor

J. M. Clarke, the tailor "who knows how" came to Hedley and opened his shop on May 23, 1912. He relates that he spent his first night in Hedley in the old Nippert Hotel, opening his shop the next morning.

He reminds the public that it is unnecessary to wear dirty clothes when cleaning rates are so low at Clarke's. All winter clothing should be fixed up to wear, and all light clothes should be cleaned and pressed before being put away. Your satisfaction is his desire. See Clarke for service.

Frank Kendall Is Old Merchant Here

One of the oldest merchants in Hedley is Frank Kendall, who has been actively engaged in business here since 1912. For two years he was located in the present Security State Bank location. In 1914 the bank building was erected, and Mr. Kendall moved to his present location. He has been in the same building for 21 years.

Mr. Kendall sells all kinds of leather goods, harness, etc. He repairs shoes, saddles, and other leather articles.

See Kendall's stock of second-hand clothing before you buy. He has quality goods at prices that will surprise you. Pay him a visit and let him show you his stock.

Clifton's Garage Repairs All Autos

B. G. Clifton needs no introduction to Hedley citizens. He made his home here from 1927 to 1930, when he moved away. He moved back to this community in February of this year, and opened up Clifton's Garage. He repairs all types of automobiles and trucks quickly and properly. All repair rates are reasonable. He and his assistant, C. R. Hunsucker, specialize in washing and greasing all makes and models of cars and cleaning motors and upholstery. They carry a complete line of new and used parts.

Mr. Clifton guarantees all his work, and appreciates your patronage.

Hedley Has Good Ginning Facilities

Hedley is fortunate in possessing three good gins, all of which are equipped to give the farmer a good sample and turnout. They are efficiently managed, and are prepared to serve their customers courteously and honestly.

The oldest of the three is the Westberry Gin, which was built in 1906 by Bunchy Lewis. It burned in 1913 and again in 1920, being rebuilt both times by B. W. Moreman. It got its present name in 1928 when Rainey Westberry took charge of it.

The next gin in age is the Beaty Gin, built by Ed Dishman in 1920. It also burned twice, in 1923 and 1928. The late Z. T. Beaty bought a partnership in the gin in 1926, and in 1927 Dishman sold out his remaining interest. The gin has had its present title since that time.

The third gin was built in 1923 by the Farmers Equity Gin. This gin is unusual in that it has never burned. In 1933 the McKnight Gin was sold to the Quail Gin. The gin became the Farmers Gin Co. in 1932.

Managers of the three gins are:
 Westberry Gin—Tom McDougal,
 Beaty Gin—C. A. Mann,
 Farmers Gin—J. C. Rushing.

of the Wilson Drug Co., has builded his store upon the theory that a successful drug store must offer a wide variety of services to the discriminating buyer. The foundation, of course, is a complete line of nationally known drugs, which are made not merely to sell, but to give the desired results to the customer. A policy of customer satisfaction, together with low prices, make the Wilson Drug Co. a valuable part of Hedley's progress. The store features excellent fountain drinks, and carries at all times a complete stock of smokers' supplies, including pipes and all popular brands of cigars, cigarettes and tobaccos.

The store was begun by H. P. Wilson in November, 1928, this month being the seventh anniversary of the store. Dr. F. V. Walker has his office in the store. Miss Ruby Moffitt is Mr. Wilson's assistant clerk.

The Wilson Drug Co. may be said to truly carry out the meaning of their slogan—"Where You Are Always Welcome."

E. W. BUTLER IS OLDTIMER HERE

Among the old settlers in this county is E. W. Butler, who operates Butler's Cafe. He came to Donley County in 1898, locating at Clarendon. He came to Hedley in 1928. He has been engaged in the hotel and restaurant business during all the 37 years he has spent in this county.

Butler's Cafe specializes in wholesome, well-cooked meals. Mr. Butler is an experienced chef, and well-known all over this section for his good food. He furnishes excellent meals at depression prices, preferring to give the public full value for their money and thus make satisfied customers than to make a large profit on a smaller volume. He invites the citizens of this community to give him a trial, and judge for themselves.

RELIABILITY

Does not change with the seasons. Our service, courtesy and good work is the same the year 'round. Peace of mind comes easily to our patrons, for they know we will do the job. We wish to thank the public for their past favors, and solicit their future patronage.

British Empire Celebrates King's Jubilee

By WILLIAM C. UTLEY

STRETCHING out over the vast expanse of the United Kingdom, a great panorama of beacon fire flared forth in the black night atmosphere of May 6. Fingers of light broke from the summit of Ben Nevis, highest peak in the British Isles, from

Snowdon, lofty Welsh mountain, from Arthur's Seat, Edinburgh, and from scores of other fabled hills between.

In their usual capacity, these beacons, of which there are about 30 in each county, are warning signals, calling the countryside to meet some great emergency. This time they heralded a more joyous event, one of the most joyous the British empire has known. It is the Silver Jubilee of the twenty-fifth anniversary of the accession to the throne of King George V and Queen Mary. Now at its height, this glorious celebration, observed the length and breadth of the most extensive empire in the world, is scheduled as 100 days of rejoicing and still has many weeks to go.

For the onlooker in America, such a sentiment spread throughout possessions so widely scattered that "the sun never sets on the British flag" might well fill him with wonder as to how a people who govern themselves so completely can feel such a devotion and loyalty for the figureheads of a monarchy which they struggled almost to the limit to crush in centuries past.

That is not so hard to explain. Perhaps one of the reasons is that the king is just that—a figurehead. But he is a figurehead vastly more important than most of us who have had little or no association with monarchies, other than in books, can understand.

To the average citizen of the British Isles and to citizens of every far-flung outpost of the empire, the crown represents the empire. Time was when, to territorial possessions, the name England itself stood for the paternal wing of shelter and discipline over all, but today most of the many nations that comprise the empire are self-governing, and loyalty to the crown and the sovereign as exemplifying the paternal wing of shelter is perhaps the greatest single unifying influence, drawing the vast realm together under George V as the head of the great national family.

Symbol of Unity.

The crown and the sovereign are not quite the same thing, however. The crown is the technical symbol of unity, the king, himself, the sentimental one. Laws are still passed in parliament under the Norman "Le Roy le veult." In state legal cases it is "The crown versus (name of defendant)." All functions of this true people's government are conducted in the name of the crown.

King George in his latest Christmas address said: "I would like to think that you who are listening to me now, in whatever part of the world you may be, and all the peoples of the realm and empire, are bound to me and to one another in the spirit of one great family." The king is the head of that family.

The prince of Wales, after returning from visits to Canada, Australia, New Zealand, South Africa and India, was articulate in his realization of the unifying power of the crown—a power of tradition and sentiment without which it would be mighty difficult to keep Britannia hanging together.

"The people of the old country must realize that the patriotism of the Dominions is national patriotism, and not mere loyalty to Great Britain," he said.

"It is loyalty to the empire, of which Great Britain, like the Dominions, is only one part. The loyalty of the Dominions is, in a very special sense, loyalty to the crown—and the crown represents the unity of the empire. The king, as constitutional sovereign of the empire, occupies the same place in Canada and in the whole British empire, as he does in Great Britain, and his house, although originally founded in Great Britain, belongs equally to all other nations of the Commonwealth."

Although your average Britisher might be reluctant to admit it, one of the chief reasons for that loyalty is that the crown is, to the Dominions, about the safest symbol of allegiance they could adopt, since in it is vested all the glory and splendor of the empire, but little or none of the power to interfere in Dominion government.

Progress of the Reign.

Self-government in the Dominions has progressed by leaps and bounds since George V became king May 6, 1910. That was the date of his actual accession; he did not receive his coronation until June 22, 1911. In the 25 years which the Jubilee celebrates, here are some of the things that have happened in the Dominions and which have gone far toward making the king the tremendously important figure, symbolically, that he is:

Colonies which reached the status of Dominions in Queen Victoria's reign, as well as some protectorates, have progressed to a state of virtually complete self-government. The only real exception is Newfoundland, which floundered about in heavy financial seas until it, of necessity, waived its Dominion status and became once more dependent upon Great Britain.

At the other extreme is southern Rhodesia. This at the outset of the reign of George V was merely an uncharted land in southeastern Africa, owned by the British South Africa company, Ltd. Southern Rhodesia has become almost a Dominion today. It is supervised not by the colonial office, but by the Dominions office. Its principal difference from other Dominions is that the king's ministers in England still reserve the right to veto laws passed by the Rhodesian legislature, while in the other Dominions the veto power rests entirely with ministers in the Dominion.

Under the reign of George V, many of the colonies have made progress with their constitutions which allow them more and more freedom in choosing their own legislators, rather than having a good share of them appointed in the name of the crown.

Since the war, many of the colonies peopled with races other than the white have seen their share of this progress as well. These include the Gold coast, Ceylon, Sierra Leone, and the protectorates of Uganda and Zanzibar, which have been given new and more liberal constitutions. In some of the colonies definite restrictions have been placed on the white inhabitants to protect the rights of the colored natives. Native interests have been protected in Tanganyika, the Cameroons, Palestine and Transjordan. Iraq, once a colony, has achieved complete independence and is now a member of the League of Nations.

Gain New Rights.

These places are, however, the only ones which have fallen back. New constitutional rights were gained by Hong Kong, northern Nigeria, Trinidad and British Guiana. India, with its 312,000,000 people, large as Europe and with as many different races, has been brought to the very doorstep of complete self-government, with only a British protecting influence.

From this it may be seen that many a land over which the British flag flies is simply a protectorate, many are colonies, and many independent Dominions. All of them in all classifications have individual governments, no two just alike. The power of the crown then, despite the fact that we in America often fail to realize it, is absolutely essential to a people whose very existence depends upon its relations with colonies and Dominions. It matters not that the power is little more than symbolic. It is there.

The colonies and Dominions have more than a jubilant interest in this Jubilee, for trade and defense problems of world significance affecting them are scheduled to be ironed out by ministers from these lands, scattered about the earth, during the London meetings to do honor to the king. Prominent statesmen are coming from Canada, Australia, South Africa, New Zealand and India; in fact, some of them have already arrived.

This conference will decide upon the merit of results of the important Ottawa conference of July, 1932.

Helps British Trade.

Resulting from the Ottawa conference has been a large transfer of British trade into the channels of the empire. In the year before the conference 28.73 per cent of the United Kingdom's imports and 43.69 per cent of its exports went to and from units of the empire. Last year these figures had risen to 37.07 per cent and 46.86 per cent, respectively. Some of this gain has, of course, reduced the trade possibilities between the United States and Great Britain.

Australia and New Zealand, while they have been benefited by an advantage over non-British competitors under the terms of the agreement, have been rather hampered by the quota clauses which have largely reduced the amounts of goods which they are allowed to send into Great Britain. It is the purpose of the present conference to take steps toward substituting tariffs for quotas. In order to alleviate the condition, delegates will be extremely wary of these discussions, however, for they remember the near famine times of the middle Nineteenth century when similar tariffs were in force. Especially concerned are states which ship dairy produce and meats, like Australia and New Zealand.

A similar problem has presented itself to the Canadian wheat farmer, but he has been protected by a tariff on flour, which creates a fund out of which the British wheat grower is subsidized. During the Jubilee these ministers will discuss the possibilities of extending such protection to nearly all farm products. This, of course, would have a considerable effect upon world commerce.

Consider the Taxpayer.

As regards defense the Jubilee conferences will make some effort to relieve the taxpayer in the United Kingdom of some of the burden he has carried to provide defense for the colonies, and to discuss developments and necessary protection of interests in the Far East. Here, in the British opinion, the interests of the United States are closely allied with their own, and in official circles there has been some talk that a new Anglo-American agreement of co-operation will be formed, especially in matters where Australia is concerned.

These are things with which the outside world is concerned chiefly, with respect to the Silver Jubilee. But, after all, it will be the spectacle of the king and queen riding through the London streets to receive the cheers of the multitudes upon many scheduled occasions that will receive most of the English enthusiasm. All throughout the Jubilee events have been scheduled, which will bring their beloved king out among his people. And he is beloved. When for months he was lying sick in Buckingham palace, throngs of thousands upon thousands hung about the walls and the gates for hours, hoping every minute for the word that their prayers had been answered and God had saved the king.

But perhaps the most remarkable deference of all is that which has been declared by employees of certain British hat factories. To show their respect for the king, they have agreed not to steal any hats during the Jubilee.

Unique "Primrose" Rug to Crochet

By GRANDMOTHER CLARK

This rag rug measures 42 inches and requires about three pounds of material to finish. It appears to be made of six squares each of a different size, with the horizontal positions alternating. Work is started with the center square about 5 inches in diameter. Triangles are then crocheted on the four sides of inner square forming the second square. Continue same way for third, fourth and fifth squares. The sixth square is the same size as fifth square and therefore requires smaller triangles on sides than the others. Colors should be so arranged that center is in light shades of yellow, while outer triangles represent the petals of flowers, and may be shaded in color desired. This can be made into a very attractive and unique rug, depending very much on the color scheme used.

This is one of the twenty-six crocheted and braided rugs illustrated with instructions in Grandmother Clark's rug book No. 25. Detailed instructions are given in this book for the "Primrose" rug, and if you are interested, send 15c to our Rug Department and we will send it to you by mail.

Printing Blocks Made in China Centuries Ago

The oldest printing blocks in existence are on exhibition in a collection of bamboo, root and wood carvings from China at Chicago's Field Museum of Natural History.

The blocks are engraved with floral designs and must have been made before the year 1108 A. D. They were found in the ancient city of Chu-lu, in the southern part of the province of Chi-li. This city, excavated by archeologists in recent years, was submerged by a flood in 1108.

The Chinese are the inventors of block-printing, and, in fact, of all the essentials for printing—paper, writing brush, ink and ink-pallet or inkstone. They invented and perfected these entirely from their own resources, unaided by any other nation. Paper was invented and manufactured in China as early as 105 A. D.

The Rural Community Has Come to Town

The rural community and small city faces a new future. Electric service and all that electric power and light mean to home life, commercial and industrial development is now available for a more constructive and wider field of achievement.

Much work, planning, testing, engineering and large investments of capital was necessary in order to make this possible. Our 2600 miles of power transmission lines, interlacing 49 counties in West Texas and serving 160 towns and communities provide an adequate and economical source of dependable electric service with precise regulation to meet the requirements of modern day appliances.

Today hundreds of small West Texas towns and communities can offer to industry this modern electric service in proximity to its raw materials . . . two very necessary prerequisites for industrial progress.

We point with pride to our part in assisting the small towns and communities in this way, thus guaranteeing to them the same opportunities in respect to power as the larger metropolitan cities enjoy. It is our policy to fully co-operate with the small towns and communities we serve so that they may realize the full benefits accompanying and made possible by electrical development.

Hedley Compress Is An Asset To Hedley National Tire Line At Heath's Station

The Hedley Compress Co. is owned and operated by the Memphis Compress Co., of which M. C. Allen of Memphis is superintendent. Mr. Allen is a former resident of Hedley, and is well known to farmers in this vicinity. The compress stores and weighs cotton for farmers, gins, and others. It has ample storage space, and guarantees correct and honest weight. DeSoto Bilderback is local manager.

The Compress Co. has been in Hedley for six years, it having built in the summer of 1929.

G. C. Heath, who owns the Heath Service Station, has been in business in Hedley for about 18 years, and is well-known to the people of this vicinity. He has operated a cafe, a shoe shop and a confectionery; has sold real estate; was water works superintendent one year; and has been in the auto business for 10 years. For the past six years he has operated service stations, selling Phillips, Texaco, Conoco and Bell products. He is representative of the Smith Motor Co., Ford dealers of Childress, and sells good used cars.

Mr. Heath handles the National line of guaranteed tires and tubes. He invites you to call on him when in need of anything in his line.

POSTOFFICE FORCE

In spite of the fact that it is one business in Hedley which has never advertised, we cannot refrain from mentioning Hedley's postoffice force. J. M. Everett is postmaster; Joe Everett is assistant postmaster; and R. W. Alewine is rural route mail carrier. They serve the public efficiently and courteously, and are always ready to go beyond their duty to assist patrons.

SCHOOL PROGRESS

The Hedley school system began with a little one-teacher school in Rowe. After the town was moved to Hedley, the pupils went to school in a small frame building on the present school ground. In about 1910 a brick school was built, which was adequate for the scholastic needs of the town until 1922, when the present grade school was built on the same location. In 1929, the modern high school building was erected, giving Hedley Hedley a school system unequalled in towns its size. In identally, the first Rowe school building is now the Informer office.
