W. M. SOCIETY

Circle No. 1 of the W. M. S met at 2 o'clock Monday at the Masterson home and had a most interesting lesson in our mission study book, "That Other America." The hostess served refreshments after which we all went to Aunt Georgie Disman's for our Bible study, which was given by Bro. Hendricks and was enjoyed by all. We will meet with Mrs. Hendricks next Monday and will have the 4th chapter in the study book.
We're insisting that the ladies of the church come and enjoy these good lessons.

CHURCH OF CHRIST

Brother Frank E. Ohism will preach in Hedley, at the Church of Christ, the second Sunday of each month.
Everybody is invited to come out and hear him.
Bible Classes every Sunday morning from 10 to 11 o'clock. Everyone is cordially invited to attend.

REX ALVIN LONG

Hundreds of friends throughout the entire Panhandle were deeply shocked and grieved Sunday morning upon learning of the death of Rex Long of the JA ranch. Rex had been ill for some time, but his condition became serious Saturday, and he was rushed to the Adair hospital at Clarendon where he passed away at 8:00 o'clock Sunday morning. He was 29 years, 8 months and 6 days of age, and was the son of Mr. and Mrs. A. B. Long, former Hedley residents now living near Alarend.

Rex Alvin Long was born Feb. 28, 1907, in Graham, Texas. In 1911 the family removed to the Panhandle, first locating at Silverton, and later living on the JA ranch. It was at this time that both Rex and Floyd, his younger brother, stated that they would some day be cowboys on the JA. Except for two years at Graham, the family has lived in and near Clarendon since 1914. Rex attended school in Clarendon and Graham. In 1925, he was converted and was baptized, together with his mother and brother, on August 31st of that year. He united with the first Baptist Church of Hedley, in which he still held membership at the time of death.

In 1929 Rex's boyish dream was realized, and he became a cowboy on the JA ranch, together with his brother, who was his "buddy" and constant companion. Rex "made a hand," which is the highest compliment a cowboy can bestow on a fellow worker. He was of a shy and retiring disposition, but his willingness, honesty and sincerity won the hearts of all who knew him. He was that rarest and best of combinations, a man of thought as well as a man of action. For all of this writer's life, he has known and loved Rex, was baptized into the church with him, and has never known him to make an enemy, has never known him to wrong anyone, and has never seen a part of his character that was not pure and noble. He was not merely Christian in his speech, but was Christian in his life and acts. A well-known preacher author of the Panhandle once said "a true cowboy is God's own nobleman," and a life like Rex's justifies these words.

On Monday, June 1, a multitude of friends paid their last respects to the cowboy who had gone to the "range in the sky," in one of the largest funerals ever seen in Clarendon. Rev. J. Perry King conducted the service at the home of Mr. and Mrs. S. E. Johnson, and spoke at length on the love of God for the cattleman, as shown in the life of Abraham. He was assisted by Rev. Charley Williams of Goodnight, an old-time friend of the family. The Baptist Male Quartette sang "What a Friend We Have in Jesus," "The Cowboy's Dream," "Death is Only a Dream" and "Home on the Range." A veritable mass of flowers attested the esteem in which Rex was held. Flower bearers were Mesdames Dick Bell, Bill Helm, S. E. Johnson, Joe Ritter, Gay Wright, Tom Blasingame, Nash Blasingame, and Misses Evelyn Jones, Frances Morris and Julia Polley. Pallbearers were Henry Rowden, 'Pad' Otis, Pete and Ted Merriam, 'Snooks' Sparks and 'Chief' Bernard. All of the other JA "boys," about 40 in number, were honorary pallbearers. Rex, by honest and conscientious work,

SCOUTS GO TO PAMPA

Hedley Scout Troup No. 36, accompanied by Rev. A. V. Hendricks and T. E. Easterling, journeyed to Pampa Friday, and took part in the pioneer Centennial celebration. The 62 scout troops of the Adobe Walls council, led by Governor James V. Allred and Ranger Capt. J. W. McCormick, opened the four day celebration. Jerry Hunt, Billy Clifford Johnson, Truell Hoffman and Billy Biffle acted as honor guard to Gov. Allred. Other scouts making the trip and taking part in the parade were J. D. Goin, Ralph Alewine, C. L. McQueen, Billie Bridges, Keith Bain, Billie Hart, S. L. Swinney and J. M. Dickson.

County Singers

The county singing convention meets at Naylor Sunday, June 7, in an all day meeting. Everyone is invited to come and bring a well filled lunch basket.

had become second wagon boss and was admired and respected by every person on the ranch. He had been on the JA for some seven years.

The funeral procession was led by Montie Ritchie, manager of the JA, followed by the other cowboys, Rex's sorrowing comrades, all on horseback. Rex's saddled horse, Timber Line, was led by Henry Rowden, and was a most touching tribute to his memory. In the Citizens Cemetery of Clarendon, Rex was laid tenderly to rest beneath a mound of flowers to await the resurrection morn.

He is survived by his parents, Mr. and Mrs. A. B. Long, a son, Rex Alvin Jr., and his brother, Floyd, of the JA ranch.

Among the out of town relatives attending the funeral were Mr. and Mrs. Wayne Briscoe, Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Goode and Mr. and Mrs. Louis Bower Jr. all of Graham, Mr. and Mrs. Henry Long of Canyon, Mr. and Mrs. C. L. Long of Newcastle, Mr. and Mrs. A. H. Kelly of Sagerton, Ray Long of Kansas City, Mo., Mrs. Ruth Roach of Trinidad, Colo., Mrs. Joe Montgomery of Lakeview, Arthur Howard and family of Memphis, Mrs. Ed C. Boliver and family of Hedley. Two former JA cowboys, Les Beall and Bill Shirley, drove all the way from Ft. Stockton to pay the last respects to a beloved friend.

We cannot think of the passing of Rex without remembering these immortal lines from William Cullen Bryant's "Thanatopsis":
"So live, that when thy summons comes to join
The innumerable caravan, which moves
To that mysterious realm, where each shall take
His chamber in the silent halls of death,
Thou go not, like the quarry slave at night,
Scourged to his dungeon, but, sustained
And soothed
By an unfaltering trust, approach thy grave,
Like one who wraps the drapery of his couch
About him, and lies down to pleasant dreams."

The milk wagon collided with an auto and many bottles of milk were broken. A crowd gathered. "Poor fellow," said a benevolent-looking man, "you will have to pay for this accident, won't you?" "Yes, sir," said the driver. "That's too bad, here is a quarter towards it and I'll pass the hat for you?" After the crowd had contributed and dispersed, the driver said to a bystander: "Ain't ne the wise guy? That's the boss."—Watchman-Examiner.

Dealing With Others

THE longer we live the more we shall need to deal kindly with the limitation of others. Many are doing their best, even though there are some things which they cannot do very well. . . . Parents, teachers, employers, and all the rest of us need to be patient and kindly when we face the limitations of our friends and loved ones. Criticism will not help. "Nagging," will be out of place. Let us take certain limitations for granted, and move on with appreciation of all the other good things we find in friends.—E. B. Allen.

In bilious spells, one of the first things to do is to take a dose of Black-Draught to relieve the attending constipation. Mr. T. L. Austin, of McAdenville, N. If I did not take it, the dullness and headache would put me out of business. It is the quickest medicine to relieve me."

Are you tired, nervous—feel all unstrung and don't know what is wrong? Then give some thought to your kidneys. Be sure they function properly for functional kidney disorder permits excess waste to stay in the blood, and to poison and upset the whole system. Use Doan's Pills. Doan's are for the kidneys only. They are recommended the world over. You can get the genuine, time-tested Doan's at any drug store.

Revival at Church of Christ

A revival meeting will begin at the Church of Christ Sunday, July 19. Rev. Jas. L. Standridge of Plainview will do the preaching.

The Growth of Bureaucracy

By RAYMOND PITCAIRN
National Chairman
Sentinels of the Republic

During the past five years the population of the District of Columbia, seat of our national government, has increased more than 22 per cent.

No state, or group of states, has approached that rate of growth during the same period. It compares with a population increase of 3.9 per cent for the nation as a whole.

What caused the jump? A recent report of the Census Bureau, whose estimates supply the figures, attributes it to an unprecedented peace-time influx of Federal employes to jobs in the scores of new bureaus and commissions functioning during the past few years at Washington.

These are significant facts. They introduce an arresting element of novelty in the American picture. Except during the brief emergencies of war-time our most striking growths heretofore have occurred along what might be described as our geographical and industrial frontiers.

Population increased at the swiftest pace in states where new and productive lands were being developed by agriculture; in cities where new and productive industries were originating and expanding.

Inevitably such growth meant greater opportunity for the men and women who took part in the development; greater wealth for the nation and its citizens as a whole.
But an unprecedented increase of job-holders at Washington has quite a different meaning. It shows only a growth of Bureaucracy. Unlike the men and women who, by their energy and their labors, continue to develop America and to bear the costs of its government, many political job-holders produce little or nothing. They consume, instead—out of the share of all men and women who labor in the home, on the farm, in the factory or in business. And they increase the number of those who merely consume, the greater the burden on those who produce.

GUM-DIPPED TIRES

WIN INDIANAPOLIS 500 MILE RACE

Louis Meyer won the Indianapolis 500-mile race, at an average speed of 109.069 miles an hour, breaking all track records, without tire trouble of any kind.

No tires except Firestone Gum-Dipped Tires could have resisted the terrific heat generated at such high sustained speeds on the hot brick track, lap after lap, hour after hour. You can have no greater proof of blowout protection.

Not one of the thirty-three drivers would risk his life on any other tire, for each driver knows that heat is the chief cause of tire failure and blowouts. Firestone cords are soaked in liquid rubber, which saturates and coats every cotton fiber, preventing friction and heat and adding great strength. This is the Firestone patented process of Gum-Dipping, that gives you greatest blowout protection and safety.

Profit by the experience of race drivers. Equip your car today with Firestone Gum-Dipped Tires — it costs so little to protect lives worth so much.

STAR DUST Movie • Radio

IF YOU'D like to see a motion picture that has everything, be sure to be on hand when "Under Two Flags" is shown in your neighborhood. It's great! Ronald Colman donned his Foreign Legion uniform again for this one.

Now that the reticent Garbo has broken down and talked and been photographed and been interviewed by reporters, almost anything can happen. Arriving in New York on her way back to Hollywood from Sweden, she made no effort to dodge newspaper men.

Microphone fright is a strange thing, as the news reels show you over and over again. Take the case of Nellie Grainger, the air line hostess who showed such remarkable courage when the plane she was working on crashed not long ago.

Sylvia Sidney wanted to dodge the people who appeared to interview her when she traveled from Hollywood East, but she had a good excuse—make-up poisoning, an ailment that causes a good many of the stars to suffer, and in some cases does lasting damage.

Want to enter a beauty contest, girls? If you do, you'll be interested in knowing how at least one experienced judge works. He is Max Factor, Hollywood's make-up king, who has judged more than 1,400 beauty contests during the 27 years he has been in Hollywood.

These are the days when a talented child is a better investment than stocks, bonds or real estate. The greatest difficulty is that, provided you have the child, you've got to be a talented parent as well, for success is likely to spoil the child, and then movie and radio contracts go by the board.

Buck Jones experienced one of his worst moments recently in Max Factor's studio. Buck is planning to do his next "western" in color, and wanted some advice on make-up for it, so he went, naturally, to Factor, who has specialized in Technicolor make-ups ever since Hollywood began going color-mad; he's responsible for the realistic effects in "The Trail of the Lonesome Pine."

Radio has done something to Fifi D'Orsay that Hollywood couldn't do. Her fiery temperament used to be the buzzword of the directors for whom she made pictures, but when she gets up in front of a microphone, with some 20,000,000 people listening in, she doesn't dare blow up. No matter how she rages inwardly, she goes on without a break, and usually by the time the broadcast is over the rage is gone, too.

ODDS AND ENDS... Spring may be here, but Paramount is getting ready for autumn by making a football picture... Bette Davis rushed home to Hollywood from her New York vacation, just in time to be asked to take a three-weeks' layoff, without pay... It's all in her contract; she works forty weeks a year... John Boles has just signed a new contract with Paramount, which calls for $50,000 per picture... Think of the ice he'll have to pay!

TRANSATLANTIC AIR SERVICE BEGINS

Zeppelin Hindenburg Will Make Crossings Regularly; Schedules Are Also Planned for Heavier-Than-Air Flying Ships.

By WILLIAM C. UTLEY

THE biggest news in the New York newspapers the first Sunday in May was not on page one. It was not even in a news story. It was an advertisement buried way back in the travel section, or part 11, which the average reader reaches about Tuesday afternoon.

This is what the ad said: "The Travel Event of 1936. "Europe by Air in 2 1/2 Days by the World's Greatest Airship, the Zeppelin 'Hindenburg' of the German Zeppelin Company. "Lakehurst, N. J., to Frankfort, Germany. Staterooms with running hot and cold water. Spacious promenade-dining salon, smoking room, bar, lounge, reading room. $400, including berth, meals, tips.

To Europe: May 11, May 20, June 24, July 5, July 15, August 8, and August 19; regular schedule September and October."

Ad Understates Importance The advertisement then went on to list the ticket agents and other pertinent information. For the commonplace tone of the "copy" it might have been for any ordinary week-end tour, and not the herald of the experimental beginning of regularly scheduled passenger air service over the North Atlantic.

The great Hindenburg, 803 feet long and the 129th lighter-than-air craft to leave the plant named after the German Count Zeppelin, who left the Kaiser's cavalry to build airships better than anyone else has ever built them, may be only the forerunner of a series of transatlantic air services to be established between Europe and America this summer.

All of the other services now planned to span the North Atlantic are to be maintained with heavier-than-air ships. The Hindenburg on its first crossing made the jump from Friedrichshafen to Lakehurst in 61 hours, or, as the schedule calls for, approximately 24 days. But the airplane, being so much faster than the airship, will be able to make the crossing in one-half the time or less.

It has been announced by the German air ministry that the Nazis will also attempt to be first in the field with the service by heavier craft. Within a few months, it has been indicated, the giant Luftansa seaplanes will be dashing back and forth between the Spanish or Portuguese coast and Charleston, S. C., stopping en route at the Azores and at Bermuda, where they will refuel.

Between the Azores and the Bermudas is the longest hop of the journey, more than 2,000 miles over seas that are ordinarily stormy. To provide the maximum amount of safety for this jump the Germans intend to maintain a floating airport and fueling station midway between the islands. This, it is reported, will be constructed from an old freighter.

Britain Enters Field Planes will land on a fabric apron to be towed behind the freighter, and will then be scooped up to the deck by a giant crane. When they have refueled, a catapult will send them once more on their hurrying way. The floating station will be equipped with a powerful radio broadcasting station to keep in touch with the flying ships at all times.

Another bidder for the traveler's patronage over the North Atlantic will be Imperial Airways of Great Britain, who plan test flights this summer and may begin carrying the mail between England and Canada before fall. Pan American Airways has also indicated that it is also set to begin service across the Atlantic.

Transoceanic air passenger service is not so new, of course. But because of the treacherous weather which prevails on the seas between America and Europe, it has never been attempted on the North Atlantic before. The flying clipper ships, now on regular schedule, have an earlier time of it over the Pacific, the Caribbean, and the Mediterranean. And the Graf Zeppelin, now eight years old, has plied its way so older, safer one, it is certain that the most important developments in transatlantic air travel will come from the heavier, faster craft.

Nevertheless, the dirigible will retain a grandeur that can be easily understood. Anyone who has seen the Graf, the Los Angeles or the Hindenburg knows that the zeppelin compares with the airplane as a giant ocean liner compares with a cabin speedboat; the one is ponderous and majestic, the other is sleek and swift.

The Hindenburg on her maiden American voyage carried 107 persons, of whom 51 were passengers. The passengers found all the comforts of a first class hotel, according to the account of James McVittie, Chicagoan who made the trip and had his reservation in since 1931. There was room for dancing, parlor games and luxurious dining. There was a fine bar. There were berths as comfortable as you would find in a Pullman car. There was even a radio broadcast of music and speeches from the spacious salon of the ship.

In an address from the ship as it sped across the sea, Dr. Hugo Eckener, veteran of airship navigation who accompanied Capt. Ernest Lehmann as special adviser, told of the wonders experienced by those on board.

"America is ahead of us," he said. "About three hours from now we will be approaching Nantucket lightship and tomorrow morning before sunrise we will have left Sandy Hook behind. Our trip from coast to coast will have lasted just about fifty hours.

Describes Inspiring Day "I want to greet you all in just these few words. This present trip is like a dream to me.

"Earlier in the day we had a marvelous piano concert. Now our passengers have gathered in the social hall and smoking room, having a grand time. All this at a speed of ninety miles an hour and an altitude of 1,000 feet above the clouds.

"Many passengers told me today all this seems unreal. How long will it be until all this will have become just the ordinary thing, that will cause fear to nobody, and will hardly be mentioned in the newspapers?

"You know, this trip and those that are to follow are only experimental. We want to be on safe ground before proceeding to the inauguration of regular airship travel across the Atlantic. The beginning is indeed encouraging. I think we could learn a lot during this trip, and I am convinced that in due course we shall gather enough experience that will enable us to cross even in unfavorable weather conditions, not employing too much time.

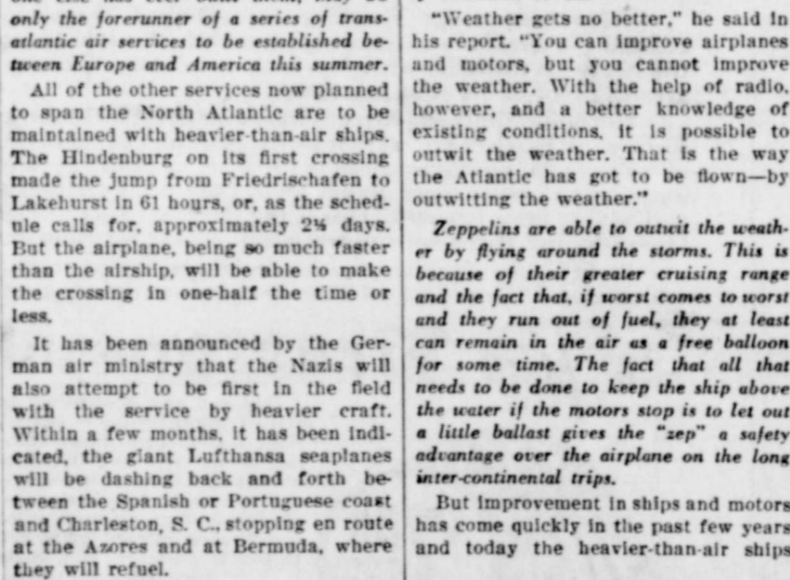

"The interest is tremendous..." Sir Hubert Wilkins, the noted explorer, who, with his wife, was a passenger on the Hindenburg, expressed an opinion that the airship was the more desirable mode of travel for journeys of more than 15 hours over the water.

Zep May Replace Liner "There is no doubt in my mind," was the way Sir Hubert put it, "that if airships were built in such numbers as to bring down the cost of construction, they could be operated on a higher profit basis than the big sea-going liners of today."

The primary purpose of the Hindenburg's crossings this summer will be to attract financial backing for a combined German-American transatlantic passenger service, Doctor Eckener admitted.

The United States had cooled off to almost zero in its sympathies toward airships as a result of the Akron and Macon disasters, but it is hoped that the new "zep," making regular trips will win back America's confidence. There was a scheme in 1929 to buck such an air servare much safer than they were even two or three years ago. They have increased in range and efficiency; they now have the added advantage of the controllable-pitch propeller, which gives them a sort of "gear shift" comparable to the automobile, and radio and the robot pilot have removed much of the hazards and rigors of navigating them.

An airplane depends upon sustained forward speed to keep it aloft, and if the motor stops for a fraction of a second (which means that if any one of thousands of delicate parts goes wrong, even with the wear and vibration of many hours of flying through all kinds of weather at high speed) it must land.

"Zep" Is Grand Sight But the zeppelin only flies 60 to 80 miles an hour, normally, and the airplane flies two or three times that fast. Since mankind has never yet refused a new, faster mode of travel for an ice which would have been extended across the Pacific as well as the Atlantic, but the depression wiped it out. Meanwhile, America may perhaps look forward to having Doctor Eckener's expert advice in any future plans for lighter-than-air craft. It was rumored in the press that the venerable pioneer of the airways, in Hitler's disfavor for refusing to allow the Hindenburg to be used for political ballyhoo, would take a job in this country.

Uncanny Decorations Among the most uncanny decorations are those of the grotesque animals painted on the sides of elephants' heads during festivals in India. They are drawn in such manner that the one visible eye of the painted animal is represented by the elephant which, in moving, gives the painting a life-like effect.—Collier's Weekly.

AMAZING NEW STOVE USES 96% AIR-4% FUEL

Housewives Everywhere Now Can Enjoy Modern Gas-Cooking Service At Low Cost, Thanks to W. C. Coleman's Invention

Utilizing the principle of carburization used in present day automobile engines, W. C. Coleman, noted inventor and pioneer manufacturer of gas-pressure appliances, has invented an amazing new cooking stove that makes its own gas from ordinary lead-free gasoline.

An ingenious device converts liquid fuel into vapor gas—then mixes it with fresh, live air so that the fuel, when it reaches the burner, is actually about 96% air and 4% vapor gas. This remarkable invention has effected fuel-saving economies which, combined with the heating efficiency of the Coleman patented Band-A-Blu Burners, makes the new Coleman Safety Range cheaper to use than wood, coal or kerosene. Housewives everywhere express appreciation for the convenience, safety, economy and beauty of a stove which provides cooking equalling that of the finest city gas range.

Readers of this paper wishing full information about these wonderful Coleman Ranges will receive beautifully illustrated literature and a valuable stove check chart by addressing a postcard to Mr. W. C. Coleman, Dept. WU-237, Wichita, Kansas.—Adv.

Faultlessly Tailored for Spring

By CHERIE NICHOLAS

FASHION is in a contradictory mood this season, which makes the game all the more exciting and fascinating. Either you are strictly tailored or you go beguilingly feminine with all sorts of fur-below.

Your wardrobe for spring and summer is made to play this dual role in that you may choose between being that faultlessly and uncompromisingly tailored the masculine members of the smart set will see themselves out-ripped in the matter of meticulous detail or your costume feminizes to the extreme via gay prints, gay flowers and a lavishness of adorably frivolous accessories that are utterly devastating in their coquetry of color and flutter and chic and charm.

Speaking from the smart tailored viewpoint every fashion-wise American woman is dashing out with joy in her heart to fit herself with a feminine version of the latest in men's swanky topcoats or trim business suits. Always she has envied the slim distinction of well-cut masculine attire, and from experience with riding habits and active sports costumes she knows that mannish styles accent rather than detract from femininity.

Broad shouldered and slender hiped, the two models pictured are man-tailored in the best tradition with a custom-built look that makes them eminently correct. The jacket suit of men's wear wool has arrived at a highspot of perfection which makes instant appeal with best-dressed women. Its lines are in the latest fashion with gracefully sweeping lapels, single-button jacket closing and braided edges and pockets. One of the very smart details in high-style tailoring this season is the preference given braid-bound edges. The stunning straight-cut skirt closes oh-so-neatly with a concealed slide fastener at the side. The oxford shade of the wool is beautifully adapted to the formality of the jacket, and the skirt may be changed for a pin-stripe matching flannel for the girl who has always had a hankering for a chance to pin a gardenia in her buttonhole and look like the handsomest usher at a fashionable wedding.

The Chesterfield type topcoat shows, of a fine herringbone medium weight woolen, is an ideal choice for wear over any tailored costume. The traditional velvet collar, high lapels and side pockets with flap tops are both chic and mannish. The coat is fitted for a slender-waisted effect, which is further accentuated by the double-breasted closing.

The varying length of this season's coats makes it important to suit your coat length to your wardrobe. This Chesterfield is cleverly designed in the new style which allows just an inch or two of the skirt to show at the hemline. As here pictured an excellent ensemble idea is carried out as it ties up accessories, skirt and hat as accent to the topcoat.

Because of its fitted lines, this model is easily adapted for both sports and street wear over the new sheer wool tailored frocks as well as over spring suits. The beauty of this season's woollens is that they are related in color so as to be friendly and tuneful to versatile combinations that admit of interchangeable alliances and effects.

LONG NET CAPE

By CHERIE NICHOLAS

Multi-color carnations on black silk crepe interpret the new fashion in prints that calls for dark backgrounds with widely spaced single flowers. The shoulder straps of cutout flowers forming a ruche effect are also of style significance. As to the long cape made of dotted net it defines fashion at its smartest, for wherever possible designers are veiling both daytime and evening prints with net or tulle. The jewels worn with this stunning gown are superb.

Hold Berets in Place

Jeweled perfume plus are Schiaparelli's new invention to hold velvet berets in place. She trims halanets with cabochons or rhinestones for evening wear.

Taffeta Pattern Raised

The pattern on black taffeta material is being raised with the aid of rubber to impress the design for dressy wear.

LESS UNIFORMITY SEEN IN NEW HATS

Less uniformity is noticed in the new hats than was previously the case. Besides the general tendencies already in vogue, there are new interpretations of Bretons by Agnes in grosgrain and rayon satin ribbons with handwork on the crown. The crowns of her Abyssinian Negus hats are shaped something like a tiled roof and her Chinese caps are extremely pointed. Talbot shows little Flemish bonnets that are very cute. Among the Catherine de Medici coiffures and Reine Margot bonnets at Marie-Alphonse's are models in crocheted rayon straw with open work, others in laize of slit cellulose film and bright straw of this weave.

New Colors and Materials for Women's Spring Shoes

New colors, contours and materials are making the spring shoe styles as exciting as the costumes they complement. Mannish pumps, strap sandals, ghillies and peasant type shoes with heels of all heights are only a few of the modes that will be represented in fashion's march. Graceful variations of the Cuban, continental and boulevards heel, in both built-up and covered models, will direct new attention to the back view of shoes.

Polka Dots

You can't do polka dots in the spring. Even so great a designer as Mainbocher uses them in a new dinner ensemble. The material is navy crepe de chine dotted with white, the same fabric in red and white marking the underarm seams and making a wide waistband. A finger tip mandarin jacket accompanies the dress.

High-Waist Corsets

Corsets with a definitely higher waistline are being designed in Paris to wear under the directorate evening gowns of the styles shown in recent Paris openings.

Divided Skirt and Shorts Combination That Equips the Young Lady for Sports

PATTERN NO. 1875-B

You know yourself that half the enjoyment of any sport is spoiled if you aren't correctly dressed, and really there's no excuse for not being equipped for any active sport when a model such as illustrated is so easy and inexpensive to make.

The divided skirt is suitable for golf, tennis, bicycling, riding and hiking. It assures plenty of room and comfort, buttons on the side and supports the most youthful blouse. Note the sports pocket, Peter Pan collar, raglan sleeve and dainty feminine bow.

Instead of the divided skirt, you may have shorts if you prefer, for the pattern is perforated at just the proper length. Notice the small sketch.

Barbara Bell Pattern No. 1875-B is available in sizes 12, 14, 16, 18 and 20. Corresponding bust measurements 30, 32, 34, 36 and 38. Size 16 (34) requires 4 1/2 yards of 35 inch fabric. For shorts only, 3 1/2 yards is required. Send 15 cents for the pattern.

SYNOPSIS

The Duke, Barry Gilbert, likable youth of twenty-three, jobless and broke, enters an unoccupied summer home in Southampton, seeking shelter from a storm. He makes himself at home, dozing at the fireplace, he is startled by the arrival of a butler, Willetts; and a chauffeur, Evans. He learns that the son of the owner of the house, Jack Ridder, whom the servants had never seen, is expected. He decides to bluff it out. His supposed parents have left for Germany. Next morning he is given a letter for his "mother." He opens it and finds a message from the real Jack, saying he could not come, and returning a hundred-dollar bill. The boy's father had pensioned him into obscurity. Barry pockets the money, intending to return it later. He orders Evans to take him to Montauk, intending to disappear there. On the way he meets Judge Hambidge and his daughter, Patricia. Believing he is Jack Ridder, she invites him to dinner the following Thursday. Barry returns to Southampton, deciding to stay a bit longer. Mr. Ridder, Sr., through his newspaper, the Globe, accuses Judge Hambidge of taking orders from Tammany Hall in a condemnation proceeding. Barry meets Peter Winslow, prominent attorney. Winslow tells Barry that Judge Hambidge had seen an accident in which a woman was killed by a taxicab. At home Barry finds the wife of the real Jack Ridder awaiting him. Her husband is in jail in New York, charged with the murder of Mike Kelly, Tammany boss. The girl, Peggy, tells Barry how she had met Jack in Florida and married him, as Jay Rogers. Jack lost his job, and they went to New York, where she got work at the Coconut Bar. There she was accused of trying to pick the pocket of Mike Kelly, and was arrested. Her husband went to Kelly's to induce him to drop the charge. Later Kelly was found dead, his skull crushed by a decanter. Barry suggests he can help as Jack Ridder, and Mrs. Rogers agrees. Judge Hambidge delivers a decision in the condemnation suit in which Kelly had been interested. Barry cables Mrs. Ridder for $2,000. Winslow takes Rogers' case. Barry sets a job on the Globe under his true name. The editor, Ernie Harwood, assigns him to cover the Kelly murder. Barry suspects the Filipino servant of Kelly.

CHAPTER IV—Continued

"Yes, sir."
"I've been a loafer most of my life—and this is the beginning of a new chapter."
"Thank you, sir," Willetts said. "I'm very pleased, sir. If you don't mind my saying so, very pleased."
There were three memos of telephone messages from Pat.
Looking at them, on the library table, Barry went on grinning. He called her immediately, and she asked where he'd been all week. When he told her, she seemed almost annoyed. "So you've deserted me for a chorus girl," she said.
"Could Pat be jealous?"
"How soon can you come over?" she inquired. "Marian's not here yet, and dinner'll be late, but I simply can't wait to hear your adventures in sleuthing."
As he dressed, Barry kept thinking of this conversation. Absurd that Patricia Hambidge could be worried by his attachment to the "glittery lady." Willetts and Pat both oozing disapproval. Or do I merely imagine it?
But Pat's disapproval, at least, was depressingly evident from the moment he saw her.
She met him at the door, looking lovelier than ever.
"The one girl in the world for me," Barry thought.
"Let's sit on the sun porch," Pat greeted him. "Father'll be down in a minute. Marian came over by ferry from New London. She's dressing. Fancy your being concerned with this Kelly murder. A true motion-picture hero. Go on; I want all the details."
And, as Barry related them, the girl's irritation began to show in her face. It wasn't fair, she said, to "drag poor old Peter into it." Just because they'd met in this house at dinner. Nor could she see why he wanted to go into his father's office under the name of Barry Gilbert. "Frankly, I'm disappointed in you," she concluded, and obviously meant it.

Before Barry could reply, the Judge appeared, looking tired and haggard. That changed the subject, and Patricia's voice, which had been a little strident, softened again. She was plainly disturbed about the old gentleman, and kept glancing at him anxiously. "Father's been ill all week," she said.
"You ought've called off this dinner."
"I wanted you to meet Marian. But I do hope she comes down soon. Father's got to get to bed early."
The Judge patted her hand.
"Nonsense!"
"The doctor warned you against late hours," Pat reminded him. "But you would go to that banquet last Friday."
"That wasn't late hours," the Judge argued. "We were all through before midnight."
"But then you went for a walk," Barry said.
He said it quite innocently, but he was startled at seeing Hambidge's hand close spasmodically over Patricia's.
"Who told you that?" the Judge asked.
"Mr. Winslow."
Hambidge relaxed again.
"So I did," he recollected. "But only a couple of blocks."
"Nearer a couple of miles, wasn't it?"
Barry was still making conversation, but there was nothing casual in the Judge's "Why do you say that?"

"Mr. Winslow says you saw that taxi accident at Sixteenth street and Fifth avenue."
The Judge raised his eyes to Barry's, almost defiantly.
"The taxi accident I saw was in Times square," he declared. "I don't know where you got the idea that it was at Sixteenth street. I certainly didn't say that to Peter."
"What does it matter?" Pat asked.
"Here we are, gossiping, when I'm supposed to be preparing you for a reunion."
"A what?"
"A reunion. With an old friend. That's the reason Marian was so anxious that I should have you here. I didn't know myself until half an hour ago. Marian Lorn. Do you remember? She knew you at Harvard."
Well, it was bound to come, Barry thought.
"Are you surprised? Marian wanted you to be—terribly."
"I am—terribly."
This was the pay-off. What would Patricia say?
Patricia was saying, "Well, you must be delighted, too. Marian was going to surprise all of us, and then she lost her nerve. 'Wouldn't it be too catastrophic,' she said, 'if he didn't remember me?'"
Miss Lorn was on her way down the stairs.
Barry braced himself.
"Come on, you!" Pat called. "Dinner's waiting, and so's Mr. Ridder."
Marian raced down the steps, and halted, looking at him across the balustrade.
"Mr. Ridder?"
Now for it!
"Well," she continued, "the joke's on me. I should never have known you."
"I've known you anywhere."
"Of course, you had to say that. But didn't your hair used to be dark?"
"Sure; I hennaed it."
"No foolin'! I thought you were slighter, too. But, of course, there was only that one evening."
Thank God for that!
"Don't tell me we met only once?"
"Don't you remember?"
"It doesn't seem possible that I let you slip through my fingers."
"Come on," Patricia urged. "Everything's getting cold."
Not Barry. He was warming up.

"Well, it was bound to come," Barry thought.

and actually enjoying himself. It was amazingly how his luck held!
A pretty girl, Marian; all stuff and gurgie. She and Barry had the table conversation pretty much to themselves. Patricia put in a word occasionally, but she was distressed about her father, and with reason, for the Judge seemed suddenly worn out. Exhilarated by this newest escape, Barry was almost brilliant. They were finishing their coffee, when Marian said, "Do you still play?"
"Bridge or golf?" he asked.
"Silly! The violin, of course! I hope you haven't been flatter your self that it was you I remember. It wasn't. I didn't even know whether your hair was dark or fair, but I'll never forget the way you played the Liebestod."
"You never told me you played," Pat said.
"Oh, I don't any more. That was a youthful indiscretion."
"Youthful genius, I call it!" Marian persisted. "That night was full of music, Pat. A party at Betty Fletcher's. I came late, as usual, and the lights were very low, and Mr. Ridder was just beginning the Liebestod. Little you knew what an admirer you left in that darkened room."
"Shame on you!" exclaimed Patricia. "You've got to play for me now." Waterloo.
"I haven't touched a violin since I left college," Barry protested. "I don't even know where the old fiddle is."
"Mine's upstairs," Marian interjected. "I'll bring it down."
And she bounded out of the room.
"I can't play any more," Barry held out, lamely, "and I flatly decline to destroy Miss Lorn's illusions, or yours."
"No excuses," Pat said, very definitely. "Come on; we'll go into the drawing room."
As they passed through the old-fashioned sliding doors, Marian, instrument in hand, reappeared.
"I'll accompany you," she insisted

"and I've brought the Liebestod."
"That's great," Barry said, "but I warn you—"
Patricia was opening the piano.
"I warn you," Barry said. "I'm going to make the most awful sounds human ears ever heard."
And, with that, he pulled together the double doors.
"Ouch!" he exclaimed.
They all turned to him.
"What's the matter?" Pat asked.
"Nothing serious," Barry replied, clammy. "I've slammed the doors on my fingers."
He held up his right hand.
It was crushed badly.
Everybody was extremely solicitous, and Pat wanted to send for the doctor.
"Certainly not," Barry declared. "It's a broken skin."
"I'll take care of it now," Patricia said, dispatching the butler for witch-hazel and bandages.
"Well, that's the end of the violin playing," Marian remarked.
"I'm afraid so. Wasn't I stupid?"
"Not at all," Patricia answered, manipulating the gauze deftly.
"The Judge wanted to go to bed early, anyway. I wonder whether you'd mind telephoning for Evans."
"I'll run you home in the roadster," Pat volunteered, touching the bell again.
"It's been a swell evening," Barry insisted, giving Marian his left hand. "Pleasant surprise, meeting you here. This isn't good-by, is it?"
"That's up to you. I'll be around until Monday."
"Good night, Judge, and I hope you feel better tomorrow."
The roadster had been brought to the door, and Patricia climbed into it. "I'll be back soon," she promised.
Five minutes later, the car halted in front of the Ridder house.
"Thanks awfully," Barry said.
"Don't mention it."
There was something very like mockery in her voice.
"And, Mr. Gilbert—"
For an instant, Barry wasn't certain he had heard aright.
"You've got courage," Patricia went on. "I'll say that for you. And a grand sense of melodrama. I suppose you picked that up in Hollywood."
"I don't know what you're talking about," Barry floundered, helplessly.
"No? Well, maybe I'll tell you sometime."
She laughed.
"Meanwhile—as he alighted from the car—I'd watch my step, if I were you."
"I'm all right," Barry rejoined.
"That depends," Patricia said. "You're being a little bit reckless, I think."
She put her foot on the accelerator, and the car moved away.

CHAPTER V

Pat knew of his imposture.
That was clear. And what else? For hours after her car had left him at the door, Barry sat in the library of the big house where he had no right to be, thinking, thinking. And the more he thought, the more complete was his mystification.
Every word Pat had spoken, every intonation, was impressed on his mind. "And, Mr. Gilbert—" she had said. "You've got courage. And a grand sense of melodrama. I suppose you picked that up in Hollywood."
How did she know?
Obviously, the crushed finger had not deceived her. No question about it; the girl had seen through his desperate ruse, and realized that he had closed the doors on his hand deliberately to avoid the discovery that he was not John Clarke Ridder, Jr. She must have had some hint of his brief career in the movies.
After all, that would have been simple. The vague recollection of his appearance in a picture; an old circular, with his photograph. Not without pride, Barry reflected that he had won mention in advertising before he left Hollywood. What did it matter, anyway? She knew. And she had advised him to watch his step. "You're being a little bit reckless, I think," she had warned him.
Was that a warning—or a threat? And why should Pat threaten? The answer to that was apparent. "She doesn't want me to ask questions about her father. But why not? What is she trying to conceal?"
That, too, was easily answered.
Of course, there had been no taxi accident in Times square. It was absurd to suppose that two cabs had mounted the pavement and killed two women almost simultaneously. The Judge's accident had been at Sixteenth street. What was he doing down there—a hundred yards from Mike Kelly's—at two in the morning? The same morning Kelly was murdered? A few hours before the filing of a decision alleged to have been dictated by Kelly.
"None of my business!" Barry snapped at himself. "I'm not a detective." But, why should Pat be afraid of investigation?
Why "afraid"? She was worried about her father's condition, and did not want him harassed needlessly. Under the circumstances, of course, she resented Barry's proddings. "But, damn it," Barry exclaimed, "she began resenting before I even mentioned her father!"
He made an effort to marshal his facts.
"Three things are clear," he began. "Kelly was expecting someone when Jack left. . . . Or was he? Winslow doubted that, too. Anyway, Kelly told Jack someone telephoned. And then Hambidge arrived at Sixteenth street. Hambidge denies that he did so. And then Hambidge's daughter warns me—"
He had begun pacing the floor.

HOW ARE YOU TODAY

DR. JAMES W. BARTON
Talks About

How "Extras" Add Weight
"SOME people dislike to be fat because they regard the extra weight as a physical handicap, others consider a slender figure more graceful, and still others realize that excessive body weight is a menace to health. But whatever the objections to being fat, correct body weight is now widely recognized as an essential to enduring health and a long life."
I am quoting from "Diet and Like It" by Mabel E. Baldwin, Ph. D.
Doctor Baldwin states further, "If one is overweight and decides to reduce, the most obvious need is for a diet that will cause loss in weight. But for the welfare of the individual it is also necessary that the diet be one that will maintain the body in a state of excellent health and vigor while the loss in weight takes place." Of course the thought in the above statement is that if food is reduced weight must necessarily be reduced, but if the food is reduced too rapidly, or if certain vital foodstuffs are reduced in health or worse may follow.
The body needs only simple foods but yet there must be a great variety of these foods—vitamins; minerals—lime, iron, phosphorus, magnesium, iodine; animal proteins—eggs, fish, meat; vegetable proteins—beans, peas; carbohydrates or starch foods—sugar, bread; and fats—butter, cream. And each of these foods must be present in suitable amounts.
Size of Meal No Guide
"Nor does the size of a meal give the correct idea of how much actual fuel or food value there is being eaten, for a pound of shelled almonds is equivalent to nearly thirty pounds of tomatoes and so neither the weight nor the bulk of the meal gives any idea of how much fat it will produce."
"Food values are measured in calories. High calorie foods are those of which only a small amount is needed to supply a large number of calories such as olive oil and other fats, sugar and confectionery."
Lettuce is a low calorie food as three medium-sized heads of lettuce equal in value only one tablespoon of olive oil. High calorie foods such as fats, flour, and sugar, contain little or no water whereas most fruits and vegetables, low calorie foods, are three-fourths or more water. "A lunch of a cup of soup, lettuce, a tomato, a small slice of whole-wheat bread, and a tangerine—a small orange, will weigh about a pound and a quarter. Another lunch consisting of a pork chop, two fried sweet potatoes, a slice of white bread, and a piece of chocolate cake of ordinary size will also weigh a pound and a quarter but will furnish more than three times as many calories."
Desserts Add Pounds
High calorie foods are less bulky than low calorie foods, which is the reason that many people have a greater tendency to eat too much of the high-calorie foods than of the low-calorie foods. Also most of the foods that are eaten between meals or after the food eaten at meal-times is already sufficient, are high-calorie foods. "A man eats a sufficient amount of food for his energy requirements for the day by the time he reaches the dessert course at dinner, and then eats a piece of cake. This 'surplus' or unneeded amount of food will yield 200 to 300 calories and will increase the body weight by one ounce. Or a woman obtains from her usual three meals a day a sufficient amount of energy to meet her needs and eats during the afternoon a dish of ice cream, several nuts, or a few pieces of candy. She will obtain from them 200 to 300 calories, and she will, likewise, increase her weight by one ounce."
"Suppose either of these people indulges to this extent only once every four days; by the end of a year the increase in weight will still have reached five or six pounds."
With the above simple statements of fact by Doctor Baldwin it can readily be seen how easy it is to acquire many pounds of fat, without being what is considered a "big" eater.
It is the little "extras" of the high calorie foods that put on the excess fat, very gradually it is true, but nevertheless they put it on Indigestion in Children
Mothers are often at a loss to understand why their youngster sometimes loses his appetite, may have a headache, and may have vomiting spells.
This condition is sometimes called acidosis. As these attacks occur from time to time they are sometimes called "cyclical" vomiting attacks, as they appear to come in cycles.
It has been suspected that it may be one, or more than one, article of food that causes these attacks, but making skin tests and actually testing out certain foods has proved of no assistance in finding the cause of these attacks.
Dr. K. Tallerman in the British Medical Journal thinks that these attacks are much like or related in some way to migraine—one-sided headache—and he therefore recommends that the fat food be cut down in the diet.

Now What Excuse Does Prof Suppose Senior Will Use?
The reason he didn't have his theme, explained Fred Lemmer, University of Minnesota senior, was because his typewriter broke down. There had been other alibis, recalled Prof. Edward Weaver. "The next time," he supposed, "I suppose you'll tell me your house burned down." Without his theme the next time, Lemmer said: "Sorry, professor. My house burned down." It did, too, freshmen affirmed.
