unspoiled, the sweet girl graduate is the star of her commencement week and must be costumed daintily and lovely as can be for her part. She must also plan for the commencement parties. Being wise, as her diploma declares her to be, she will choose a graduation frock that will be appropriate for evening wear right through the summer.

Some of the most entrancing dualpurpose frocks are of Swiss organdle. Romantic, youthful and flattering, these sterling. exquisitely sheer cottons come in endless variety. Embroidered organdles are immensely popular this year. They are patterned in versatile fashion, ranging from flowing vine and floral motifs to demure bowknot, also novelty dot effects. Eyelet and all-over cutout embroidered patterns are delicately lacy and have an added crispness that is refreshing and cool for summer wear. Flecked Swiss organdies are fascinating, too, with chenille-lik dots and geometric patterns applied in colors or white on

Pleasant to Take

People who know Feen-a-mint don't have to "talk themselves" into taking a laxative when they know they need it, They like Feen-a-mint, the delight-ful chewing gum laxative. For just as soon as you start chewing Feen-a-mint, its stomach-settling mint brings a clean, fresh taste to the mouth. As you chew out the laxative ingredient which is absolutely tasteless, the flow of digestive julces is increased. The hax-ative is mixed with them and carried of digestive juices is increased. The lax-ative is mixed with them and carried into the system gently. Feen-a-mint doesn't gripe, nauseate or cause upset, and it is non-habit-forming. It passes through the stomach and into the bowels so scientifically that your ac-tion is wonderfully easy and thor-ough. STRIKING BUTTONS ADD BRIGHT TOUCH

Many striking ideas are being de veloped in the button line. For sport blouses, a clever manufacturer uses numbers to replace ordinary buttons down the front. These, ranging from one to nine, are of plastic material, sometimes in bright color to form a contrasting effect against the blouse fabric or else in imitation lvory, tortoise shell or delicate, pale amber.

The signs of the Zodiac also have been a sotree of inspiration for button designers and have been used with great originality by leading dressmakers for summer afternoon or beach dresses. The Chinese inspiration has seen responsible for one style showing Chinese script engraved over mother-ofpearl discs or plastic plaquettes in lacquer red.

Dull Fabrics Choice for Deshabilles and Lingerie

Lingerie and deshabilles are more popular than ever in dull fabrics, such as mossy crepes and delicate rayon sheers. Favorité colors are periwinkle and turguoise blue, pale pink and salmon. Tones of maize, champagne and canary yellow are seen also as well as delicate tones of mauve, which are especially requested by discriminating women to wear with dresses in the new shades of purple, Bishop or Parma violet.

Small Watches Attached to Suit Lapel Is Latest

The new small watches, in a colored leather backing and suspended on a colored leather fob, are worn attached to the lapels of suits. The same watches, but on a larger and simpler scale, are being worn in the lapels of men's business suits. The only catch to these new watches is that it is more difficult for the wearer to tell the time than for the rest of the world who happens to pass by.

Buying Violet

Thanks go to the butterflies whose small cocoons are now being used as handbag material. The cocoon is dried and pieced together, the whole giving the appearance of grayish-brown tree barw with a rough woody texture. Before buying any of the pleasant violet shudes that are so popular test them in the light of day. They look vastly different, you'il find, from their indoor color.

-14-Her voice broke.

"Ridder'll be free in a few weeks," she pled. "Wait, Mr. Gilbert. You don't know how many innocent people you may drag into this." Barry hesitated.

He now remembered that he had told Pat he loved her. "It didn't get me anywhere," Barry thought. "It never will. I'm not even sure that she heard me, but I'm glad I spoke, all the same.

Aloud, he said, "I'll wait, Pat." She glanced up at him, gratefully. "Not until the trial, though," he warned her. "I won't take that chance I won't let this girl, Peggy, go on suffering until then. But now I be-lieve I know who murdered Kelly. Someone who came into the house while your father was there. Some one so full of the thought of it that she bungled the new lock on the front door."

"Yon think-" Hambidge began

"I think that's why it blew open And I think, too, that revealing your visit-now-would be merely 'tipping our hand.' The person I suspect has already covered her tracks pretty well."

"Then," Pat said, almost incredu-lously-"Then you're not going to repeat this story?" "Not even to Winslow. He hasn't much more faith in my 'sleuthing' than you have. We'll leave him to work out Ridder's defense. For the present let's agree on an armistice. Mutual silence. If the time arrives when I feel I must speak, I'll come to you first. Is that fair?"

"Quite."

From the very beginning, Barry had suspected Mrs. Kelly. "She sued for divorce recently, and withdrew the case," Peter Winslow had told him. "Do you think that might indicate that she killed her husband?" Barry did, and one discovery after another confirmed the idea. "But," as Barry had reminded his city editor, "Mrs. Kelly was in Harlem. She went to a dance.'

"Ever hear of faking an alibi?" Harwood had asked, advising a "check That sounded promising until, as the first move in his investigation, Barry dug up The Herald Tribune of "the morning after the body was found." Mrs. Kelly had told him that paper contained a full record of her social activities, and it did. "At the time the murder, Mrs. Kelly, for divorce recently, and withdrew the case, was awarding prizes at a fancy dress ball of the Crosstown Chowder and Outing club in Harlem Gardens. reflected.

There wasn't much to overlook in the Cocoanut Bar. Not in the way of clothing, at all events. The lobby was full of men, more or less surreptitiously glancing at framed photographs of girls whose costumes might almost have been packed in a vanity case. Inside was a square dancing floor with tables about it, like the seats about a prize ring. Above, there was a balcony with more tables, except at one spot, occupied by offices. There were three shows a night, the Barry had his expense account and his ingratiating grin, and used both to the limit. It wasn't long before the drunk, and with the accumulated blonde was telling the story of her life. "I bin with Luis ever since I was a kid," she bragged. "He's a swell guy, You oughta know him. I'll give you The design began being almost too a tumble after the next show."

Luis was most affable. A sentimen-talist, but a business man, with a keen eye to spenders, and a withering contempt for tight-wads.

A flashy young fellow, Morano was, who wore sporty clothes, and much jewelry. Slim and dapper, his shining ebon hair was slicked back from his forehead. He had a long, thin nose, and straight, thin lips, and a slight but rather curious impediment in his speech. His voice could be very soft at times.

"Tender hearted, Luis is." Miss Fane declared later. "I've seen him cry when somebody sang about mother, or the kid, or sumpin'. That loved-herand-lost-her stuff specially. He was married onct." "Didn't it take?"

"Sure, it took. That's why he cries. The Jane died, or sumpin', Know what Luis did-when he got the coin, I mean? Bought the house they used cent on livin' alone, with a couple of servants." "Gee !"

your business all in the family! Gene Markey wrote a scenario, "By the Dawn's Early Light," (and can't you see that title being shortened so that it will fit theater marquees?) and RKO has bought it for his wife, Joan Bennett, which is nice as he wrote it espe-cially for her. Fred Stone will be the other star. It sounds pretty exciting. Stone will play an American consul stationed in China. Joan will be his daughter, and a revolution will furnish the drama. Joan is making a picture in England now, and is eager to get home and begin work in her husband's story.

It rather startled everyone to have Myrna Loy and Arthur Hornblow get ting their romantic affairs straightened out I at last; there have been sumors of a matrimonial nature about them for a long time. Hornblow and his wife, the lovely Juliet Crosby, had separated, but he had been opposed to a divorce. (Meanwhile Hollywood gossips were rushing Eventually Mrs. Hornblow went to Reno, and after that it was plain sailing.

Don't refer to Buster Crappe as Buster any more; he doesn't like it. He got the studio to let him be Larry Crabbe, but they insisted on putting "Buster" in the middle, and now he's known by all three names. He's working in "The Arizona Raiders" for Paramount, with Marsha Hunt.

Warner Brothers and Paul White man have joined forces in an effort to discover talented children. Children from all over the country will appear with Whiteman on his radio broadcasts each week, and be given tests at the Brooklyn Vitaphone studio. Warner Brothers will also make a series of shorts, the casts to be composed entirely of children. And of course any children who make the grade will be under contract to War ner Brothers.

While we're on the subject of children, the settlement of the squabble over little Freddie Bartholomew is goos news. Apparently he didn't want to leave his beloved aunt, who had done so much to develop his talent and taken such good care of him, yet naturally his mother couldn't be denied her rights. His aunt said recently that

And step by step since time began there has been practically no abso-1 see the steady growth of man. lute destitution. Whittier was a kindly old Quaker gentleman, with a devout belief in Learning regarding his fellow creatures.

Moreover, he was right. That is not so easy to believe in these days of racketeers, but we have advanced since the times of the iron creeds of the older days. . . .

Naturally, human nature hasn't changed much.

The phase of it which is being exhibited in central Europe just now is not pleasant to behold.

But Whittier lived in a time when men still talked of the old dayswhen men and women were burned as witches and when religious prejudices were rampant.

Throughout the country today religious tolerance is to be found.

Education, which in old New Eng land was confined chiefly to the village schools, was often in the hands of poorly educated men, filled with prejudices. . . .

All the great systems of hospitals schools and opportunities for ad-vancement have been built up chiefly since the time when the educational center of the country was confined largely to the states along the Atlantic seaboard. There was little ease, and more hard work than was good for the men and women of the time. . . .

But through it all the people lived and learned. By the time when Emerson, Whittier, Thoreau and many other really able and broad mined men had begun their work of building and teaching, the West was still "wild" in the sense that parts of it were populated by savages, and the greater areas were still forest and prairie.

How astonished would the men and women of that time be if they could come back and look at the industrial development of the country!

Today there are few "backwoods' districts. The schools are everywhere; old prejudices and superstitions have been forgotten.

There are havens for the afflicted poor. It is possible for any boy who has purpose and grit to get an education.

And even in the black days through which we just have passed

"Kelly wasn't killed at midnight," Barry realized. "He wasn't killed until two hours after midnight. If Mrs. Kelly got through with her prizes-"

"Well," Barry exulted, climbing into the subway. What next? Say nothing, and saw wood-that's what. One more link in this chain, and I'm going to change a lot of people's minds about me and my 'sleuthing !" "

Monday morning, Barry dropped in on Peter Winslow. He was still carrying the Ridder check for $2,000, and he wanted Peter to take part of it as a retainer, and bank the rest for Peggy.

Peter did accept it, as a matter of course, though he waved aside the offer of a retainer. "I'm in no hurry." he insisted. "Wait 'til I do something. I know you're good for it."

Obviously, he was doing a great deal. "Got the defense all planned," he declared, showing Barry a thick sheaf of memoranda. "Loose - leaf" memoranda it was, in the most literal sense-scrawled on waste paper and backs of envelopes. Order may be Nature's first law, but it wasn't this lawyer's.

"No. I'm not neat." Peter smiled, intercepting Barry's glance. "Except personally, and that's Julie's achievemen Julie's Mrs. Winslow, of course, and she buys all my clothes. Lays 'em out for me, too-even the boutonniere. I often ask her if she wants me to look like a gigolo. Don't worry about this stuff, though,"-indicating the sheaf of memoranda. "Miss Clark'll have that straight by night."

Miss Clark was his secretary.

Women keep you in order," he went on smiling; "that's about the only thing I have against 'em."

"There's nothing to this case," he continued. "It'll come to trial in a few weeks now, and be over in a few Want to hear what I'm going to ask that Filipino?"

Listening, Barry felt again that his own activities had been merely fool-ish. A dozen questions disposed of all the evidence the butler had given so far, and made it apparent that what he actually knew of young Ridder's visit was exactly nothing. "You heard visit was exactly nothing. "You heard a quarrel? A violent quarrel? And you were alarmed? That's why you came upstairs? Rogers left then? And and the youngster to Southampton the

"Tomorrow at one." Pat was eagerly anxious to hear his news, and there was no other way But, if Pat's nose remained static when she learned she was to encoun ter Peggy, her mouth straightened. "Why? What have I in common with this girl?"

"Well," Barry answered, flatly, 'you're keeping her husband in prison.' Pat flushed.

"You owe her something for that, don't you think? What're you being so high hat about? This girl's Mrs. John Clarke Ridder, Jr., you know." "I'm not being high hat. Only, naturally, just now, I don't feel much like meeting strangers. Especially strangers with whom I have no community of interest."

Lunching together, however, it soon became evident that there was a "community of interest." Pat warmed to this painted chorus girl, fearful for her husband exactly as Pat was fearful for her father. Though Peg didn't know it, their fate hung on the same Both heard Barry's account of his discoveries with regard to Mrs. Kelly. "It seems pretty conclusive," Pat sald.

"I never thought of that dame mean, woman," Peg added. "Would that get Jack off quick?"

Barry explained his understanding that, if there were definite proof of another person's having committed a crime, anyone in custody was released immediately. "The district attorney moves for a dismissal of the indictment, I believe," he told them.

"Gee !" Peggy said, with the tears in her eyes.

Pat was no fool, and she found he self respecting and liking this "night club hoofer." She was Mrs. Ridder. after all. "Whoever the girl might have been, it was the tears beginning to dissolve the beads that stirred Pat. She had never seen anyone cry that way before-cry with her lips twisted into a smile. "You've certainly stuck to your husband," Pat observed. "Why not? When you really low

"Ain't that romantic? I'll say 'so! He's still got the servants, too. They all moved to a farm, somewhere in Jersey, a couple'a years ago. Would you believe it-he drives out every morning, after the last show. Nuts about horses, Luis is. Not to bet on. Just likes 'em.

"Learned about horses in Fauquier county," Luis said, returning at that instant. "I lived there 'til I was uineteen, and that's all they know. Go on, VI: you'll be late."

"I never was late for a show yet," Not she retorted. "Nor out of one. in all the years I've worked for you.' "That's straight," Morano admitted, as she was leaving. "Never been out of a show in her life. She's a swell girl, Vi."

There wasn't much to be got at the Cocoanut Bar; not that Violet and Morano weren't willing to talk. Morano's romance had left him a gentle melancholy-or, perhaps, he was only worried about business. But, if he had anything to conceal, it certainly seemed to have no relation to Kelly. On that subject, everything was open and above board.

"Just a gorilla," Morano said of the Big Boss, the next night, when Barry returned to the Cocoanut Bar.

"Oh, Mike was a' right," Miss Fane protested.

"Sure !" her employer agreed. "He wouldn't do nothing worse than steal pennies from a dead baby. Pal of Vi's though," Luis added, winking at Barry.

"Yeh," Violet declared, dryly; "until that Barclay dame came along." "He was in here that evening, wasn't he?" Barry asked. "Yeh. Just a few hours before they croaked him."

"He had a girl pinched, or some thing?"

"Yeh," Morano repeated. "Nice kid, too. Took her around to the station in them things."

"I don't blame the Jane's hushand for getting sore," Morano continued, "though bumping a guy off for that's going a little too far."

"Kelly was soused," Miss Fane said. "Yeb. Plenty. And he thought the kid was picking his pocket. Nothin to IL" whole thing had had on him; he forgot his lines when he was working, a thing he had never done before, and had told her that, if he was taken away from her, he'd run away and keep running away until he got back to her.

The Yacht Club Boys, whom you've heard on the air and seen on the screen, have been asked by both the Republican and Democratic national committees to write their campaign songs. Judging by some of the songs that the Yacht Club Boys write for themselves, it seems to me that that request is a bit dangerous!

Irene Dunne has been, having a grand time in New York. She and het husband were guests
