CHICKEN DINNER

One of the most delightful affairs of the season was the chicken dinner given by Mr. and Mrs. J. B. Masterson on the lawn of their home Monday night, July 13. The guest list included Messrs. and Mesdames F. A. Finch, Fred Finch, L. Spalding, J. W. Noel, G. E. Kinslow, Roy Jewell, Rev. and Mrs. A. V. Hendricks, Mrs. T. E. Naylor, Mary Lane Hendricks and Mrs. Cannon.

A delicious repast, consisting of fried chicken, salad, creamed potatoes, peas, hot rolls, iced tea, angel food cake and ice cream was served.

Those present report a very pleasant evening, and vote Mr. and Mrs. Masterson delightful entertainers.

To Attend Short Course

184 H club boys will leave Donley county Saturday morning for College Station to attend the farmers short course. The boys will have the opportunity to go through all of the experiment stations and will attend lectures on different phases of farming, etc. The Donley county group of 4 H clubbers will leave the short course on Thursday night and come up to Dallas and spend Friday and Saturday at the Centennial. This is the second time that Donley county boys have gone to the short course. It is one of the most educational trips that the boys of the county can take and still call it a vacation. The Centennial will be one of the best attractions and it is planned to take plenty of time at the Centennial so that the boys might get the most of it. Hedley boys who plan to go are Wesley Watson, Frank Spalding, T. J. Hansard and Foster Pickett.

All boys must be on time. The boys from Hedley making the trip will be picked up on the new highway about ten o'clock Saturday morning.

NOTICE

I wish to state that after investigation I find that a statement I have made in regards to Mr. Kavanaugh's being obligated to any organization in his campaign is only hearsay, and that such report is wholly untrue.

Respt. G. W. Howard
Prin. of McKnight School

Hooker's have some children's dresses for 60c that are knock-outs.

Ereel W. Brooks, former state school supervisor, was in town this week in the interest of Pat Bullock's candidacy for State Superintendent.

Mrs. R. D. Ketch of Berger spent the week end here. Joan Ray Mereman returned home with her for a visit.

CHURCH PICNIC

The members of the Methodist Church enjoyed a picnic at the W. G. Bridges home west of town Wednesday evening.

There were plenty of good things to eat, and everyone seemed to enjoy the occasion.

ZONE RALLY

The Nazarene young people's society zone rally will be held at the Nazarene Church here Friday Sept. 4, at 7 p. m.

-Golf Notes-

The Hedley golfers defeated a group of golfers from Estelline 5 to 4 in a match Wednesday afternoon.

A county wide golf tournament will be held next week at the Hillcroft club of Glendon. All entrants must qualify on Sunday, July 19. First round matches must be played by Wednesday night, and second round matches must be played by Saturday night. Final matches will be played Sunday, July 26. All golfers living in Donley county are eligible to compete, whether members of a club or not. Entry fee is $1.00.

GOOD NEIGHBORS

Sandwich Was Fresh

"Was that sandwich quite fresh that you sold me just now?" asked a customer in the snack bar, says London Tit-Bits.

"Quite, sir," the assistant assured him. "Each sandwich we sell is wrapped in transparent, airtight paper."

"Dear me!" was the reply. "I do wish I'd known about the paper!"

Destroying Equilibrium

"That former enemy of yours is paying you a great many compliments."

"Yes," replied Senator Sorghum, "and I wish he'd quit it. One of the easiest ways to throw a man down is to swell his head until he gets top-heavy."

Scientific Methods

"Are you going to make a farmer of your boy?"

"No," replied Farmer Cornstossel. "But just as soon as he gets home from school he's going to teach me agriculture."

Create Peace

PEACE will not come by indolent wishing for it. Our desire must be translated into action; we must seek to create the intellectual and moral atmosphere in which peace thrives, to cultivate links of personal friendship, to train the sympathetic imagination which will enable us to view the world from the standpoint of those from whom we are divided by race, color or culture. But love is the ultimate cure for prejudice and spitefulness, for bitterness and hatred, for greed and ambition.—A. S. SPEAKE.

VOTE FOR

A. S. MOSS CANDIDATE FOR DISTRICT JUDGE 100th Judicial District

Facts About Judge A. S. Moss
1. Born in Fayette County, Texas, 55 years ago, of parents who were also native Texans.
2. Educated in Fayette County Public Schools, completed general education at Teachers College in Huntsville, Texas, and received legal education in law office at LaGrange, Texas and the University of Texas.
3. He is an honest, upright, Christian gentleman and has been a teacher in the men's Bible Class in Memphis for many years.
4. He has been practicing law for 30 years, 25 of which have been spent in our district.
5. His record in the courts of our State, from the lowest to the highest court, has not been excelled by any lawyer in this District or the entire Panhandle.
6. His character and record as a man is clean and will bear the closest scrutiny by the most exacting. He is honorable in every way and worthy of the stamp of approval of every citizen.

7. His capacity and ability as a lawyer ranks him with the best and his qualifications to serve as next District Judge cannot be questioned.

8. His many years of practice, providing rich experiences, being in the prime of life, vigorous and capable of hard work, pre-eminently fit him to be our District Judge.

What Judge Moss Stands For
1. Judge Moss stands for everything that is right. Equal justice to every citizen with no thought as to the individual standing of the parties involved and with only the laws of our Country as the rule and guide by which the rights of society and man shall be judged.
No pets or favorites in the Court.
2. Economical dispatch of the business of the District Court with the very least expense to the tax payers.

3. Prompt and speedy trials of all criminal cases filed in the District Court without any unnecessary or costly delays.
4. Strict observance of the law by the Court itself and requiring the observance by all connected therewith.

We are proud to offer and recommend Judge Moss to the voters of this district basing our recommendation upon his HOME LIFE, his CHURCH LIFE, his CITIZENSHIP and his professional qualifications. We know we are offering to the voters a man qualified in every way to fill the office he seeks, with credit to himself and honor to the District. We invite all voters, in fact we URGE all voters, to make a thorough investigation of this man before casting your vote. You will be proud of him as your District Judge.

Friends of Judge Moss Club.

BUY the New Firestone
STANDARD TIRE
and SAVE
the Difference

HOW YOU SAVE MONEY—Firestone saves money by careful buying of high grade materials—manufacturing in large volume in the most efficient factories in the world—and delivering to you by the quickest and most economical distribution system. These savings are passed on to car owners.

FIRST LINE QUALITY—The new Firestone Standard Tire is a first quality tire, built of high grade materials, by skilled workmen, embodying Firestone patented construction features—used in no other tire.

THE FIRESTONE NAME AND GUARANTEE—Every Firestone Standard
Tire bears the Firestone name, your guarantee of greater safety, dependability and economy.

GUM-DIPPED CORD BODY—Every cotton fibre in every cord in every ply is soaked in liquid rubber. This is the only process known that prevents internal friction and heat, providing greater strength, blowout protection and longer life.

TWO EXTRA LAYERS OF GUM-DIPPED CORDS UNDER THE TREAD—This patented Firestone feature binds the whole tire into one unit of greater strength, cushions road shocks, gives extra protection against punctures.
LONGER NON-SKID MILEAGE—The new scientifically designed non-skid tread is wider, flatter, with more and tougher rubber on the road, giving long even wear and thousands of extra miles.

STAR DUST
Movie • Radio
By VIRGINIA VALE

IF YOU are among the many who never fail to tune in on Major Bowes' broadcasts on Sunday evenings, you'll be interested in the discussion of money matters that's going on.

The genial Major's contract expires in September, and the same sponsors want him again. So do others. He asked $18,000 a broadcast, then cut it to $15,000—twice what his old contract brings in.

As for the amateurs who appear on the program, they get five dollars an appearance. If they get the gong it's doubled. If they are good enough to land with a unit, they draw real money.

As soon as "The Garden of Allah" is finished the stars are going to scatter like spilled quicksilver.

Marlene Dietrich

Marlene Dietrich will go to London (she plans to put her little girl in school in Europe next year, which will mean their first separation for any length of time); Basil Rathbone will head for London also; Charles Boyer leaves for Paris, and Joseph Schildkraut for Austria. And as soon as they arrive, no doubt, they'll probably be summoned back to Hollywood for more pictures. The wise picture star, when starting for a vacation, leaves no address.

When you see "The Good Earth" don't sympathize with the actors, thinking that they had to shave their heads for the picture.

The head of the make-up department at Metro, Jack Dawn, mixed up a dressing that would give the effect of shaved heads—and by having the actors use it, the company saved a lot of money. You see, had the actors had to become bald for the picture, they'd have had to be paid till their hair grew again!

Ginger Rogers has been in pictures for six years. She celebrated the anniversary just the other day. She still likes them. But the girl has unlimited energy; after working all day with Fred Astaire on dance routines for their next picture, she goes out dancing in the evening.

Ben Lyons and Bebe Daniels sailed for England the other day with their daughter Barbara, aged four and cute as she can be. Ben and Bebe will make personal appearances (they've been coining money doing it over here), and then take a vacation on the Riviera. They have more fun than almost any other married couple in Hollywood.

Fred Allen could journey to Hollywood and make pictures this summer if he wanted to; the offers have been rolling in thick and fast. But he has turned them all down. When he is broadcasting he works all week on each broadcast, and he feels that he's entitled to a rest when he goes off the air for the summer. So he'll vacation in his home town in Massachusetts—and probably pick up new material for his next series of programs.

Katharine Hepburn is taking no chances on her next theatrical appearance. Signed with the Theater Guild to do "Jane Eyre" next fall, she insists on a preliminary out-of-town tour lasting six weeks, just to get her hand in.

Katharine Hepburn

It's rumored that Margaret Sullivan will also have a try at the New York stage, where she was doing very well indeed when the movies captured her, and she became a favorite of screen fans.

Robert Taylor's New York vacation remained hectic to the very end. Leaving a broadcasting studio after he'd been on the air, he was mobbed by a crowd that took 15 policemen to handle—and then one of the fans got away with his handkerchief, and another took one of Taylor's shoes, to remember him by!

ODDS AND ENDS . . . "The Rivals," the famous play by Richard Brinsley Sheridan which has been delighting theatergoers for some two hundred years, will reach the screen before long . . . Imagine Shirley Temple in a picture called "The Bower Princess" . . . Rudy Vallee was given an honorary degree at Suffolk Law school recently . . . Richard Barthelmess will appear in "The Spy of Napoleon," an English picture . . . George Koff traveled East for the Louis-Schmelzer fight . . . GREAT LAKES EXPOSITION OPENS

Cleveland's Fair Is Mammoth Spectacle Drama of Region's Progress; Built Around Romance of Iron and Steel Industries.

By WILLIAM C. UTLEY

PROBABLY four million persons will click through the turnstiles during the 100 days of the Great Lakes exposition which opened in Cleveland a few days ago. From the reports of the throngs of early visitors, they are destined to see a fascinating show, one which combines an exhilarating exploitation of the industrial and social progress of the Great Lakes region with colorful amusement features in the best tradition of world's fairs.

Yet the Cleveland show makes no pretense of being a World's fair. Rather, its makers wisely decided to confine it to the area indicated in the exposition's name. In such character it will be one of the largest fairs ever to be devoted principally to the resources of a particular portion of the earth's surface.

As the exposition began to take shape in Cleveland's front yard on the shore of Lake Erie, it became apparent that the only thing it was to lack in comparison with A Century of Progress exposition in Chicago in 1933 and 1934, admittedly the most successful of all expositions, was sheer bulk. Virtually all of the kinds of exhibits which fascinated nearly 40 million visitors at Chicago, as well as numerous added exhibits, will be found at Cleveland, but presented in far more concentrated form.

Perfect Setting for Expo.

For the vacationer or the week-end visitor this is certain to be welcomed in the light of a distinct advantage. It will save him many miles of weary walking, and it will enable him to take in the whole show in a minimum of time and without the annoyance of having to look at the same exhibit several times in different forms displayed by different sponsors. It will certainly enable him to get more for his money.

Cleveland concedes nothing to Chicago as a setting for an important exposition. The gates of the Great Lakes exposition are only two blocks from the Public Square, from which all transportation and activity in the city radiate. Railroad trains and buses come within five minutes' walk of the main entrance, while lake steamers, for which Cleveland is a principal port, dock in the heart of the fair.

Cleveland has a physical location for its fair which is perfect for the theme. On the one hand is the vast blue expanse of Lake Erie, unchanged over the decades since the first tiny boats of the early pioneers touched upon its shore. On the other hand rise the tall gray towers of the great city of a million souls which was incorporated just a hundred years ago and which grew out of the incomparable resources of the region into one of the world's important centers of iron and steel production, of shipping and manufactures.

The "expo" is unique in that it is built upon two levels, one of them in the heart of the Cleveland business district about the gigantic Auditorium, where the Republican National convention was held a few weeks ago, and the other on the lake front below.

This situation is going to furnish a pleasant surprise for visitors new to Cleveland who enter the fair through the main entrance, which is on the higher level. Looking past the main gate toward the lake, one does not see what lies below, except the water. After attending the exhibits on the higher level—which include some of the principal industrial ones and Radioland—he is likely to say to himself, "Well, it was a pretty good show," and then, reaching the crest of the hill, suddenly discover another wide panorama of more exhibits and amusement attractions than he ever dreamed of.

Fairyland of Light.

The visitor's first glimpse of the exposition should be at night, for here, it is claimed, is the best lighted fair the world has ever seen. This is natural, if not mandatory, from the fact that Cleveland is the center of the lighting industry, both research and practice, for the whole country.

Seven 70-foot pylons, slim, graceful shafts of light, guard the entrance. Throughout the grounds are decorative nautical structures bathed in stimulating light. Longitudinal louvers, in color, light the automotive building and the hall of progress. Behind the stage of the marine theater is a blazing Aurora Borealis of constantly moving, colored shafts of light. While there are no "dead spots" in the exposition illumination, there are likewise no overlighted buildings or areas to discomfort the eyes of fair-goers.

If there is one dominating theme of this exposition it is the "romance of iron and steel." An exhibit by that name shares the lakeside exhibition hall with the food exhibits; these and Radioland and the Court of Presidents make up the first of three sections into which the exposition is divided.

The iron and steel exhibit is a combination of models, dioramas and mammoth photographs after the manner of the renowned European museums. The visitor gets the opportunity of going, in effect, to the bowels of the earth via mine shafts, and watching unfold the story of the metals from the furnaces of prehistoric times to the present day. Modern mining is also shown, in motivated exhibits, as is the journey of the ore from the mine to the Great Lakes area. Blast furnaces, a foundry and bessemer converter will appear to be in actual operation. The exhibit is completed with a rolling mill and a modern steel laboratory.

Fun for Radio Fans.

With the enormous popularity of the big home radio shows, it is easy to see why one of the most crowded spots is Radioland, into which the Public Auditorium has been converted for the present. Here the exposition throngs are invited to watch the broadcasts of their favorite stars in the flesh (they can even watch the rehearsals if they want to). During the period of the fair it is expected that, at one time or another, there will be present on the Radioland stage such celebrities shore is the peaceful haven that visitors with aching feet welcome with delight—the horticultural gardens. There are three terraces on the unusual building in these gardens, and it assumes, somehow, the atmosphere of the forward deck of a great ocean liner. Its interior is devoted to the exhibition of transient flowers and the holding of floral contests of one sort or another. One of the features of the gardens which was attracting the most attention in the early days of the fair was the historical gardens—an 1836 garden, one of 1890, a 1929 garden, then examples of what not to do in a garden compared with what makes good taste in building a garden, and finally an exhibit of what might be the garden of the future. Like the horticultural gardens of A Century of Progress, these are the rendezvous of hundreds of vacationing lovers, enthralled by all the excitement, not to mention the moon over Lake Erie.

In the east section of the Fair are the automotive buildings, the hall of progress (whose principal exhibitors are the utilities and the manufacturers of appliances), and the giant amphitheater which houses a spectacular pageant of transportation called "Parade of the Years." This latter is a sort of 1936 edition of "Wings of a Century" from the Chicago fair and was written and directed by the same man as its predecessor, Edward A. Hungerford. All of the ancient locomotives, the great cast of hundreds of actors and actresses which thrilled millions in the "Wings of a Century" are here, but the show is embellished and improved and just as breathtaking to one who saw "Wings" as to a newcomer.

It is hardly possible within the limits of a short article to describe the hundreds of exhibits in detail, but here is a partial list of the exhibitors: the federal government, Westinghouse, General Electric, Ford, General Motors, Standard Oil, United States Steel, National Steel, Republic Steel, Youngstown Sheet and Tube, American Rolling Mills, Sherwin Williams, Swift, National Cash Register, Beechnut, White Motor company, Grassell Chemical, Chase Brass & Copper, International Business Machines, International Nickel, Cleveland Cliffs Iron, Timken Roller Bearing, and Addressograph.

"Streets of the World."

The third area houses the amusements, and here there is good news for the seasoned fair visitor. If there was one fault of the Chicago fair in 1934, it was that there were too many foreign villages, and they were too far scattered. Visiting them entailed much walking and considerable expense, for there was an admission charge to each.

Cleveland has retained the admitted attraction of these foreign villages without their drawback by combining them all in terms of simple line with a lavish use of varied color. Construction has been benefited by a million dollars worth of sound experience at A Century of Progress exposition, for all of it has been managed by Albert N. Gonsior, who was in charge of construction for the Chicago world's fair.

In the automotive building are some of the principal exhibits.

Gardens Delight Visitors.

One of the most lively spots of the grounds is the Marine theater, which is in the second area, for here, day and night, is presented a lavish fashion show, full of the glamorous girls that Broadway shouts about and performed to the accompaniment of gay music and gayer lights.

Between the stadium and the lake

one great amusement concession, the "Streets of the World."

Here, all for one admission, it is possible to visit replicas of famed scenes in Czechoslovakia, Poland, Germany, Italy, Ireland, Hungary, England and other countries. Among the sights are the bazaar at Krakow, the cathedral of St. Mary's with its broken trumpet call, an old-fashioned German photographic studio, the Baniyade castle and parliament buildings at Budapest, the Orava castle of Czechoslovakia, a continental type Italian movie house, and Dickens' Old Curiosity Shop. In each of the nationally sections there is free entertainment by national groups in native costumes.

TALL TALES

As Told to:

FRANK E. HAGAN and ELMO SCOTT WATSON

The Artistic Goat.

GEORGIA'S delightful climate gave continuous employment to the goats owned by that eminent Atlanta, Pat Candler Dinkins.

The goats were Sandy and Mandy. Mandy was tied in the barn most of the time. Pat noticed casually that she amused herself by plaiting straw into various shapes and sizes.

Sandy went out at night to attack trespassers. There was the pecan grove in the fall and luscious Georgia watermelons to be guarded every summer. And not a night passed but Sandy returned with scraps of clothing his horns had speared from the hind quarters of some picaninny whose judgment had surrendered to his appetite.

Pat says Sandy was invaluable as watchman and that the materials he brought in invariably were scraped from Sandy's horns into the goat stall. Size and color of samples depended, of course, on what white folks of the neighborhood had worn the year before. "I was proud of Sandy," Pat confesses, "but I didn't appreciate Mandy until I sneaked into the stall with a flashlight one night and learned how she used her spare time.

"There she was, calm and contented as can be, weaving a beautiful rag rug from the materials that Sandy'd brought in.

"Whenever we need carpets up at the house now I simply drop a supply of rags into Mandy's stall when it's real dark and make a scraping noise like Sandy's horns. That goat can weave four 3 by 6 rugs in one week and take a day off besides."

Ring 'Round Rosy

IN MILAN, TENN., where a specialty is claimed for watermelons, fine baseball clubs and tomato crops, they brag about their fat girl.

This lady, according to Bruce Oliver, was the most enormous gal inhabiting West Tennessee.

Nobody knew her name, said Bruce, because no one ever got that close to her. Just in fun he called her Rosy.

She came over to Milan from the nearby town of McKenzie and almost immediately was besieged with suitors. The most persistent of these was Bruce himself.

He used to visit the damsel, sit out on the porch with her and feed her ice cream from a double freezer. When the bottom of the freezer was reached, Bruce, sorely smitten by the fat girl's charms, was inclined to grow serious in his love making. He wasn't disillusioned even when she confessed she slept in a bed strewn with clinders to prevent her rolling off.

Bruce was a persistent cuss, he admitted. In attempting to express his true feelings he would place an arm part way around the fat girl. When he had reached as far as possible he would mark his position with a pink crayon. Then he would move around to the mark, resume a posture of affection, and so gradually encircle the waist of the girl he worshipped.

The romance progressed swimmingly, according to Milan records, until the day Bruce shifted position, crayon in fingers, and bumped into an utter stranger who was chalking his own way around the waist from the opposite direction.

The Erratic Gale

SOMETIMES in Chicago it isn't even necessary to go into a restaurant if you insist upon changing headgear.

This will be understood, as well as the reason Chicago is called the Windy City when it is known what happened during the second Century of Progress to the visitor from Kalispell, Mont.

This gentleman strolled blithely through the fair when a gust of Lake Michigan wind lifted the wide-brimmed stetson from his head, snipped it twice against a flagpole and disappeared with it in the dusk.

The dismayed fair-goer almost swallowed his toothpick in his exaltation. He had turned toward a nearby hat store to buy a new headpiece when there came a sudden swirl, another stetson dropped from out the sky and settled on his brow.

The second hat was of fine texture, in good condition, and fitted perfectly, all these details having been carefully attended to by the second errant breeze, which fortunately had decided to befriend the visitor.

As he related the experience that night in a Michigan avenue tavern he was approached by an entire stranger who smilingly returned the lost hat, and retrieved his own.

The second man, it seems, had brought three carloads of cattle to the stock yards. As he was marketing them, he, too, was selected by a playful breeze. The hat of each man had been whisked away to the head of the other, even though they were nine miles apart at the time.

Frozen Wells

Frozen wells are wells in which ice is found either with or without water. They occasionally occur both here and in Europe. A famous one in Brandon, Vt., was sunk through a mass of frozen ground 15 feet thick and formerly showed ice at 14 feet below the surface in the summer time. In most frozen wells the ice lasts until late summer and the temperature is above the freezing point.

DR. JAMES W. BARTON Talks About

Dangers of Gland Extract

ONE of the interesting things in Nature is "hibernating," when the animal eats nothing and appears lifeless during the cold weather, only to "come to life" with the warm weather—healthy and strong. The animal lives on the fat of its body during the cold weather.

Research physicians tell us that the animal is able to lie practically "lifeless" because the thyroid gland in the neck decreases in size and sends little or no thyroid juice into the blood, so that the heart is not stimulated to strong action as when under the influence of thyroid juice; the pulse is much slower and weaker.

The fact that thyroid juice stimulates all the processes of the body to work faster is now so generally known that many overweight individuals are using it to burn or use up their surplus fat. And thyroid juice or extract is very helpful in those cases when the thyroid gland is not manufacturing enough juice to burn up a fair amount of the fat food on the body.

Taken under the supervision of a physician this type of overweight gets excellent and safe results in reducing weight.

However thyroid extract is not only a poor reducer of weight in the ordinary or non-gland type of overweight, but it has proven very dangerous; many deaths have resulted and a large number of invalids are now paying the price of their efforts to take a "short cut" to weight reduction.

Fifth of People Obese

So great is the number of overweight individuals (estimated at one-fifth of the entire population) that any number of obesity (overweight) cures are on the market, a number of which contain thyroid extract. It is not to be wondered at therefore that thyroid extract is being used in larger quantities than ever before and that a great many overweighters are using it regularly and often with harmful and often alarming effects.

As other gland products are now coming into everyday use it appears that just as the drug habit takes hold of a number of individuals so the habit of taking gland products to stimulate various processes of the body is becoming widespread, much of which is not under the supervision of a physician.

Thus Dr. S. W. Patterson in the British Medical Journal writes of the "Addiction to Endocrine Gland Extracts": "In the use of thyroid extract products, which he considers first, instances of ill effects from prolonged or poorly supervised use are numerous. The development of symptoms of hyperthyroidism (too much thyroid extract) is the most common of these complications—fast heart, trembling of the limbs, indigestion, sleeplessness. The special danger of this is in prolonged self administration, usually aimed at the treatment of obesity."

Effects of Thyroid Extract

The effect of the thyroid extract is to speed up the building up and tearing down processes of the body and the rate at which the food is transformed into energy, and it is easily understandable that there should be a certain tonic effect or increased feeling of well being. It was this desire to "feel good," to be "toned up" that was responsible for three of Doctor Patterson's cases using too much thyroid extract and causing symptoms of severe poisoning.

Doctor Patterson's article concludes: "It is the duty of medical men prescribing gland extracts to exercise proper supervision and control of their use by patients. Physicians should be aware of the possible dangers so that the drug may be stopped at once if ill effects arise."

Treating Varicose Veins

The records show that hundreds of thousands of sufferers from varicose veins have undergone the injection treatment successfully. The question now arises as to whether this simple method of injecting the veins and causing them to dry up can be safely used on patients who have various conditions such as heart disease, kidney disease, high blood pressure or other ailments. In order to find out just how safe it was a study was made by Dr. Edward A. Edwards, Brookline, Mass., at the Boston City hospital and recorded in the Journal of the American Medical Association of 1,000 patients who had undergone the injection treatment.

Of the 1,000 cases, 375, that is more than one-third, might have been rejected for the injection treatment because they were suffering with such ailments as heart disease, diabetes, high blood pressure, nephritis (inflammation of the kidneys), inflammation of the thyroid gland, ulcer of stomach, anemia (thin blood) and other ailments. From these results it is evident that severe diseases of the body should not be allowed to interfere with the removal of the varicose veins by the injection method. In fact a point in favor of injecting the varicose veins in patients with other ailments was that the general condition improved.

Bob Davis Reveals

How a Macaroni Maker's Son Became the Pearl King

ONCE upon a time—this may start like a fable, and even read like one, but it is all truth. Once upon a time there lived in Tobamachi a macaroni manufacturer by the name of Moto Mikimoto, who was blessed with nine children, three daughters and six sons. The eldest, Kokichi, a boy, achieved distinction by doubling the output of a stone mortar in which he ground wheat flour.

He did not care for the macaroni business, however, and kept his eyes open for something more profitable.

In 1875 two British warships dropped anchor in Toba and remained several days. Kokichi, now in his eighteenth year, cornering all the chickens, eggs and vegetables in the village, hired a fleet of bum-boats, swooped down upon the English navy, such as it was, and "cleaned up" a snug surplus. Business stunts much appealed to the young man.

At twenty-one he shook Toba, came to Tokyo, married and set himself up as a dealer in mother-of-pearl, expanding through the empire, and trading abroad as well.

Makes Audacious Move.

At Japan's third industrial exposition in Tokyo, 1900, Dr. Kakichi Mitsukuri, a noted zoologist, delivered a lecture on the possibilities of producing cultivated pearls. Mikimoto was among those who attended. What he heard that evening made such a profound impression upon the son of the macaroni maker, that he then and there closed out all his business connections, turned his efforts into cash and retired to the island of Takokujima in Ago bay, Miye Prefecture. There he undertook in earnest, win or lose, those experiments with oysters that within a few short years, to the great disgust of natural pearl dealers throughout Christendom, gave Mikimoto the title of "Pearl King."

Though scoffed at by the gem dealers, laughed at by the toilers of the sea who had watched him in his efforts to rend profit from the shells of the bivalves with which he labored, Mikimoto, regarded as a visionary by all save his wife, stood at his task undaunted.

With the first news that he had succeeded in his audacious raid upon the customary habits of oysters by forcing them to make pearls for him in unlimited quantities, pearls that could not be distinguished from the so-called natural gems, European jewelers, fearing a depression in the natural pearl market which might throw upon the necks of Continental beauties pearls less costly but equally beautiful, brought action in the French courts against pearls forced to perfection by cultivation, alleging that they were mere imitations.

Scientists Stand by Him

Prominent biological scientists from America, England, France, Germany and Japan, summoned to discuss the issue, found for the defendant. Dr. David Starr Jordan, president of Stanford university, and a zoologist of international fame, said: "As they are exactly of the same substance and color as the natural, or 'uncultivated' pearl, there is no real reason why they should not have the same value."

The former macaroni maker, whose tomb, already planned, has for its base a flour-grinding mortar, surmounted by a colossal granite pearl, has the satisfaction of knowing that his cultivated and tamed oysters are equally dependable in their offspring with the progeny of wild oysters.

Today, Mikimoto has 11 pearl cultivating plants in Japanese waters and one at Palu island in the South Pacific, totaling over 40,000 acres, where 5,000,000 pearl oysters are cultivated each year. Seventeen patents held by Mikimoto for pearl cultivation have given him the lead against numerous rivals now springing up in Japanese waters.

The principle upon which he conducted his experiments finds justification in the fact that the mantle of the pearl oyster secretes the pearl substance (nacre) which forms a coating around any foreign substance, like a grain of sand, a piece of shell, etc., that might find lodgment in the oyster.

Now Fabulously Wealthy

Mikimoto solved the secret of how, through a delicate operation, certain foreign substances of certain shapes and characters, could be deposited in the oyster with reasonable certainty that at least five per cent of the oysters so treated would produce a marketable pearl within from four to six years.

The Pearl King of the World, now a multi-millionaire, possessing estates, villas, yachts and luxuries beyond classification, is the simplest of men, free from glamour, unspiced by prosperity, and in his attitude toward life still the macaroni-maker's son. He is now in his seventy-ninth year, surrounded by 18 grandchildren and 18 great-grandchildren.

Glazed Chintz and Quilted Print

By CHERIE NICHOLAS

COME to the party frocked in gay glazed chintz and you will look not only charming but "new" as to fashion. What! Glazed chintz going formal after all these years it has been serving as material for sofa cushions on summer verandas, as bathroom curtains and as general utility household hangings? Yes'm, it's not only true but what's more, glazed chintz is simply perfect in the new role it is playing as high-style fabric for evening gowns and wraps. Try a gown of glazed chintz, you'll love it.

You will be perfectly safe and sane in choosing a dress of glazed chintz for the merits of this charming material have been recognized by leading Paris couturiers. Worth fashions an evening redingote with big sleeves of this cotton, the patterning of which accents huge gorgeous flowers.

See in the picture the lady seated in the foreground. The adorable gown she wears is fashioned of gleaming glazed chintz or crede chintz, as some call it. The daring astral patterning is done in vivid coloring on a dark background. Bows of self-fabric accent the off-shoulder silhouette. The Alix skirt is cut with a very full circular flare in last-minute fashion.

It is nothing short of a revelation the way cottons of every description are coming to the fore in a formal way. Designers are fearless in appropriating the most ordinary of household cottons for their use in creating fashionable apparel. For instance, clever coats to wear this summer, are being made of bed-spread pique and they are that good-looking you will be wanting one at first sight.

As to printed linens and cottons, especially printed piques and cottons that look like linens, and linens that look like cottons and a host of other eye-catching wash fabrics, they are scoring a triumph in the most exclusive circles of high fashion. Some of the printed linen-looking cottons are gorgeously patterned with widely spaced florals that splash color unsparingly throughout their design.

If you haven't seen them already, there is a real thrill waiting you in the summer swaggers and jackets that are fashioned of hand-quilted gay print. The bright field flowers in the jacket worn over the black silk organdie, pictured, look as if they could be picked. Hand-quilting outlines each flower in this very beautiful silk shantung print. The enormous bouquet is composed of pink and yellow silk organdie flowers.

Quilting is being done in a great way this season. If you want to express the "last word" in a daytime jacket or coat to wear over summer dresses, make it of black or navy satin that has been hand quilted in decorative design.

Getting back to the subject of cotton fabrics the junior girls are having the happiest sort of a time wearing dresses of gingham that are made quite formally for parties. As to organdies, dotted swisses, cotton nets, especially pointed "esprit," printed voiles and a whole list of fascinating sheers, they are cutting a big spurge this season in "society"—made up as painstakingly as silks or velvets.

PIQUE CULOTTE

By CHERIE NICHOLAS

A culotte costume's the proper dress for sports wear—by unanimous vote in the world of fashion. For cycling, for tennis and for beach this pleated culotte costume made of sanforized-shrunk fine wale pique will be found most practical and attractive. The beauty of it is that the fabric has been so processed, it carries a guarantee not to shrink or get out of shape when laundered.

Cottons Gain Favor

Each summer proclaims the uprising of some particular cottons. Denim appears in some smartly tailored suits with fitted or swagger jackets. Long-cloth familiar in the past for intimate wear and baby dresses has been printed up for daytime, play and evening fashions that are fresh and fashionable.

HAT OF TULLE FOR SUMMER EVENINGS

The diner-out in summer, whether by daylight or dark, needs a hat as well as a gown. And the hats that are first choice this season are those of tulle. There are brimless hats or sailora made of layers of tulle, marked by rounds of stitching and a loose frill formed by the layers at the edge. Some of these stitched tulle hats are made in so many layers that they resemble sports fabric, although the edges are left rough to distinguish them from the tailored materials. The little bonnets made of tulle are particularly delightful for youthful heads when they are worn far back and have a flared-out, short veil from the crown edge. One of the new evening hats seen recently is a tricorn made of novelty or stitched net in brown, or black, or navy, with a splash of bright flowers tacked on at back.

Slide Fasteners in Bright Colors Is Latest in Hats

Slide fasteners are the latest news in spring hat trims. They appear in bright colors on the tops of several models, making a vivid streak across the crown. A bright red one was used on a navy blue felt hat and a green one on a black chapeau.

Crowns which button up are another innovation. Several new slouch felts have a row of buttons and buttonholes running from the peak of the crown to the edge of the brim.

Shapes of both crowns and brims for new models are distinctive. Crowns are triangular or square, while brims pitch over the right eye and are turned up in back to reveal the coiffure.

Barnyard in Prints

The barnyard is glorified in silk sheer animal prints of white roosters, birds and bunnies instead of traditional dots on black. One smart model features a vest and three printed tiers of a twill print on a red ground.

All Around the House

Chintz spreads are lovely for the summer cottage or to give a summery look to the apartment if you are spending the summer at home. Gay little flower designs are scattered over the surface of the chintz.

Meringue falls when the oven is too hot. If you wish to bake a meringue successfully, have oven less than moderate heat.

Don't use a stiff brush when washing linoleum. This destroys the luster. Wash lightly with soap and water.

Leftover fruit juices should be canned for next winter's use. Added to gelatin desserts, puddings, etc., they give a delicious flavor.

Oriental poppies always grow in the autumn. It is, therefore, wise to divide plants the latter part of July or in August so that they may get a good start before cold weather sets in.

One-third whiting, one-third plaster of paris (poison) and one-third flour mixed with water into a smooth paste, is excellent for filling small cracks in plaster.

The ends of rugs should always be left open when they are rolled and tied up for the summer.

Pinch off all side shoots of tomato plants and remove some of the large branches that do not bear blossoms. The flowering branches will then get more sun and fruit more quickly.

Fresh gingerbread topped with ice cream makes a delicious dessert.

When pressing a linen suit, dampen with cheesecloth that has been dipped in water, then press linen on wrong side.

Label preserving jars with adhesive tape and write on tape with red ink what each jar contains.

New cabbage cut in strips, dropped in salted water and boiled for from ten to fifteen minutes, is much more digestible than when boiled for a longer time.

School Progress

By Sloan Baker
The schools of Donley County have made an enviable record of achievement during the past year. This is due to the enthusiasm and incessant labors of the faculties, trustees and patrons of the different schools, who wish to take advantage of every progressive plan to forward the education of the children in Donley County. The County Board has been the guiding hand to point the goals for new accomplishments.

The fact that the Donley County children's chorus, consisting of three hundred and fifty voices, won the music contest at the Tri State Fair, shows that the teachers have stressed the musical training throughout the county.

The Texas Independence Day celebration by the school people of the County in which two thousand children filled two of the largest auditoriums in Clarendon for the singing of cowboy songs, southern melodies, Centennial music, and church hymns; the mile long parade of school people; and the exhibits of hand work of the pupils of the schools in twenty two show windows of the stores in Clarendon was the culmination of a curriculum unit in Texas history which is outstanding in the state of Texas for the Centennial year in school circles.

Seven schools, Windy Valley, Bray, Ashtola, Martin, Goldston, Chamberlain, and Midway were standardized. This means that these schools reach certain standards in education set by the state department of education, which signifies that the quality of their work is on the same basis as any accredited school.

The County Board set up for transportation in the county by the operation of thirteen school buses, transporting on the average of a thousand pupils per day, enables the child to attend more regularly his own school with the added privilege of finishing in one of the three excellent high schools of Hedley, Lelia Lake or Clarendon. Also the advantage to the high school graduate of attending Clarendon Junior College. Thirty per cent better daily attendance in Rural schools and the added enrollment of Rural pupils in the high schools and college have been the result of this excellent transportation system.

A Bus Drivers Association was organized and recommended to the County Board certain regulations for the safety and welfare of the children, the same being adopted. Newspaper articles on safety and a talky-film, which emphasized accident hazards, were sponsored. Due to the safety education and the carefulness of the bus driver, no children were injured this year while riding the busses.

The Rural Trustee-Teacher organization and The County Teacher Association have, through their efforts, brought in out of the County speakers to their meetings which helped to broaden the horizon of thought of their members besides the lasting good which has come from the social contacts in these associations.

The interests in the Interscholastic League Contests, increased as shown by the added number of contestants in literary and track and field events. Donley County Interscholastic League winners made enviable records in District Regional and State meets.

The improvement of school property and the beautification of school grounds shows the interest that the people of the different communities of the county take in their schools. These improvements have been partially financed by Federal Appropriations from Relief, W.P.A. and N.Y.A. funds.

The County Board of Trustees and the County Superintendent wish to take this opportunity of thanking the people of the entire county for their loyal support and co-operation in advancing the cause of education in Donley County.

Resolutions of Respect

Whereas our brother, W E Luttrell, a Master Mason of Hedley Lodge No 991 A F and A M. of Hedley, Texas, was on the sixteenth day of June, 1936, called from his duties on earth to join that innumerable caravan to the land from whence no traveler returns.

Brother Luttrell was a devout member of the Baptist Church and a Master Mason for twenty five years.

Whereas, he was an upright citizen, a worthy brother, a faithful husband and a good father.

Be it resolved, That we, the Hedley Lodge No 991 A. F. and A. M., at Hedley, Texas, hold brother Luttrell's life a worthy example of the generosity and uprightness of manhood and Masonry.

Be it further resolved, That the brethren of Hedley Lodge and community have suffered a great loss in the summons of our brother from the walks of life. We extend to the family our heart felt sympathy in this sad hour as they mourn the loss of their dear loved one.

Be it further resolved, That a copy of these resolutions be furnished the family of our deceased brother, one sent to the Hedley Informer, and one spread on the minutes of the Lodge

BUY

AN ELECTRIC REFRIGERATOR

To guide your purchase of a Refrigerator!

DON'T CHOOSE BLINDLY

FOR HEALTH—Your refrigerator must maintain safety food temperatures below 50° all the time. Before you buy, be sure it will do this in the hot hours of the summer time, too.

FOR CONVENIENCE—Your refrigerator must be able to freeze ice quickly—must have a high degree of usefulness. Before you buy, be sure it will produce fresh ice during the hot hours of the day.

FOR ECONOMY—Your refrigerator must maintain the above performance at low over-all cost. Before you buy, be sure.

• If you buy a refrigerator that cannot provide satisfactory, economical performance, all the time, you are wasting your money. It is inconvenient to own a refrigerator that cannot freeze desserts or plenty of fresh ice quickly during the hot hours of the day. It is wasteful to own one that has a high initial cost, though little to operate, if it cannot provide satisfactory performance, all the time . . . under all conditions.

Remember this when you buy. All refrigerators cannot provide all three of these basic requirements. Tests prove this to be true by actual use in the home. So don't buy on claims alone. Ask for and be sure you get convincing evidence of value. Only then can you be certain you are getting your money's worth. Choose carefully and you will choose a modern electric refrigerator.

★ MODERNIZE . . . CHOOSE AN ELECTRIC REFRIGERATOR ★

Do you know that your increased use of Electric Service is billed on a surprisingly low rate schedule . . . and adds only a small amount to your total bill?

"You were right in the beginning," Pat said. "There was only one thing to do. Father saw Kelly alive after Peg's husband left him, and we should have said so."

"I can't stand seeing Peggy," Pat continued. "Was that what you had in mind when you sent her here? Anyway, it's too terrible. She comes down to breakfast, looking—well, you know. You know about trouble like that—all night long—alone—and I didn't. I do now, and we've got to 'come clean.'"

"I don't think it matters," Barry replied. "I still think we can free Jack without that."

"How soon?"

"By next Wednesday."

Pat nodded.

"All right," she said. "We'll wait until Wednesday."

Barry had never seen her more charming.

As they walked down the beach, to rejoin the others, he asked, "Are you ever going to confess how you found out about me?"

Pat laughed.

"That was too easy. The night of Marian's visit, you told me you'd taken the name Barry Gilbert. And it had a curiously familiar sound. After a moment, I remembered that I'd once seen an actor called Barry Gilbert in a war picture."

"And then?"

"Then you shut your hand in the door. The expression of mingled surprise and pain in your face—that was what had kept the picture and the actor in my mind. You were the man who'd come out of the drinking place, laughing and talking, and been shot. I was sure of that—just as sure as I was that you'd crushed your fingers deliberately to keep us from knowing that, unlike the Jack Ridder you were supposed to be, you couldn't play a violin any more than you could play Hamlet."

"I'm glad you found out," Barry said. "I'm glad I haven't been deceiving you, at all events."

They had reached the railroad building.

"Pat! Jack called. 'Pat! We've finished—'"

"Jack! You mustn't call Miss Hambridge 'Pat.'"

"Everybody else does."

"I like it," Patricia came to the rescue. "We're Pat and Peg to each other now; why shouldn't I be Pat to Jacky?"

It was almost a miracle, Barry decided. Was this the same girl of whom, only a couple of months ago, her father had said, "Pat, for short, though it takes courage to call her that."

The change wasn't all his doing, or Peg's. Something else had contributed to softening Pat, and making her sweeter and lovelier. It was ironic, Barry felt, and bitter—that she should be the loveliest when he was losing her. What of his plan to come back for her—some day, when I've made good? A girl like that might carry an ex-vagabond; she certainly couldn't marry an ex-convict.

Barry drove back to town Sunday evening without having put anybody's house in order. He had dined with the Hambridges, and gone over there in the morning "to see Jacky start for his ride."

"Well, our trial's set for two weeks from today," said Winslow when Barry called at his office Monday morning.

"I'm still hoping there won't be any trial."

"Meaning that you think you've got Mrs. Kelly?"

That was the question Barry had dreaded. Winslow's frank amusement at his "sleuthing" nettled him, and made him feel foolish. Especially now that he was compelled to admit, "No; I'm afraid you were right about Mrs. Kelly. She slept at her sister's that night."

"Well, then," Peter asked, "who's the latest candidate?"

"Do you remember reading me your cross examination of the Filipino?"

"A new notes for it—yes."

"You found a lot of holes in the boy's story?"

"Yes."

But Peter was still amused.

"Well, I've got a few more," Barry said, "and a motive."

He sat down, and Peter opposite him. Barry repeated what Evans had told him of the dinner with Nolan.

"Well," Peter remarked, at the end, "that settles the case against Rogers."

"You think so?"

"Obviously," Peter sticks to his story. We say Nolan's testimony establishes that the decanter was downstairs all the time Rogers was upstairs. But we've got to make the jury believe it."

"Or the district attorney?"

Winslow shook his head.

"The district attorney wouldn't move for dismissal of an indictment on that evidence."

"But—"

"You're perfectly sure that the Filipino killed Kelly?" Winslow went on. "I'm not. And the district attorney wouldn't be. The Filipino was angry. And the decanter was downstairs. That's all there really is to that story."

"And Kelly was alive an hour after Rogers left."

"That's what we've got to prove to the jury. My own guess is that the decanter had been carried into the dining room when the murderer entered the house."

"After Nolan went home?"

"Yes, and after the Filipino went to bed."

"I'm Glad You Found Out," Barry Said.

have to get the guilty man to do it, we'll get him, but let's give the court a chance first."

"I guess we'll have to," Barry conceded.

Peter's secretary opened the door.

"What's Nolan's first name?" Peter asked Barry. "And where's his garage? Got it, Miss Clark? Now, get Nolan in here this afternoon."

He looked up at Barry.

"Don't mind my joking," he said. "Something tells me you did a grand job when you turned up Mr. Nolan."

"Peter's wonderfully kind," Barry told Harwood that evening, "but he makes me feel as small as an author's name in a motion picture advertisement."

"I don't think Winslow means to make anyone feel small," Ernie answered. "He's too big for that. It's the small men who've got to make other people smaller, in self-defense. The trouble with Winslow is that he's generally right, and that's trying, no matter how kind anyone may be about it."

"Winslow's a great lawyer," he went on, "and a swell guy. He's had his own troubles, too. Ever meet his wife?"

"Once."

"He's nearly wrecked his career for her, you know. She ran away from home with some youngster in a military school. The kid turned crook, and the cops killed him. Then she married Winslow. The tabloids played the story up all over the place, and Mrs. Winslow crashed, and had to be taken to Europe. She went to pieces again two or three years ago, and Winslow closed the office, and went to live in the South of France. The money gave out, I guess. Anyway, they didn't stay long. Of course, that telephone message doesn't prove anything."

"You mean Moran's message to Winslow?"

"Yes. Winslow might have sent that at one o'clock, and still've been in time for the murder."

"Is there any chance that Luis didn't send it?"

"Why do you ask that?"

"It occurs to me that Peter might be shielding someone."

"Whom? Moran?" Harwood shook his head. "Winslow isn't that kind of a lawyer. As a matter of fact, I saw Moran phoned him."

"Who told you?"

"Violet Fane."

"Then you've been to the Coconut Bar?"

"Yes. I went Saturday, and met all your cronies. Miss Fane says Luis followed Peggy Rogers around to the police station, and then came back to the Bar, and called up his lawyer, and drove to Morristown."

"At one o'clock?"

"Yes."

"How about 'faking an alibi'?"

"You reminded me it could be done," Barry went on.

Ernie turned suddenly.

"Ever strike you as queer," he asked, "that nobody ever connected Kelly's murder with the Jefferson Street grab?"

Barry couldn't trust himself to reply.

"They were pulled off about the same time. As I remember it, Judge Hambridge's decision was handed down the day after the killing."

Barry remained silent.

"Kelly stood to make a million or two on that deal," Harwood continued. "Those Jefferson Street houses were pretty decent once. Then they went slummy. Through agents, Kelly bought 'em in, one by one, for little or nothing, and turned 'em over to a phoney corporation to sell to the city at a huge profit. Some of the original owners may have been a little bit sore, don't you think?"

The conversation was drifting into safer channels, and, relieved, Barry let it flow on.

"As a matter of fact," Harwood resumed, "someone was—very sore. He called me up, the day of the murder, and offered to squeal. He wouldn't give me his name, but he said he'd be here, at ten-thirty that night, to deliver the goods on Kelly."

"And then?"

"Then he didn't show up."

"Somebody got to him."

"Probably. And then somebody killed Kelly."

Barry asked, "Is that the clue you had in mind when you said, 'Tell Winslow I may have a tip for him some day?'"

Harwood nodded.

"Yes, but, as I remarked later, that guy who phoned might have been anybody. I didn't have a darn thing to go on except that he had a soft voice and a funny impediment in his speech."

"And then—"

"Then you told me about Moran, and I went to the Coconut Bar. The guy that phoned me was Moran, all right. But what does that mean? Not a thing, maybe. If Moran did hop in his car at one o'clock that night—"

He paused.

"I've got a dozen men on this trail. Now, I'm going to send somebody to Morristown. Not you. They know you. Your job is to lay low. Moran hasn't the faintest idea who I am. I told him I came from Grand Rapids. But—"

"My God, how this picture begins fitting together," he cried. "Moran threatens to spill the beans. Someone tells Kelly, Kelly goes to the Coconut Bar. With two strong-arm men. Why? To silence a squealer. That was around eight o'clock, and at ten-thirty, the squealer didn't squeal. Why? Because Kelly had something on him."

Barry was on his feet, too, now.

"Something in writing," he said.

"Sure! The paper he accused Peggy Rogers of trying to steal."

"Yes," Barry went on, "and get this: somebody did try. Violet Fane, probably. Peggy Rogers says Violet had just left the table when the row started. And that Luis was talking to VI, outside the dressing rooms, just before that."

"—What did he say? He said, 'I'll send this date to jail, and you to the hot spot.' And you can't send a man to the electric chair for picking pockets."

"No."

"But you might, if you knew of something else he'd done, and had the proof of it. There was a paper, and it had disappeared when the body was found. Who got it? Moran. And not in the Coconut Bar, because it was still in Kelly's pocket at midnight."

Harwood laid down his pipe.

"How do you know that?"

"Somebody told me."

"Jack Rogers?"

"No."

Harwood's eyes narrowed.

"Was it Judge Hambridge?"

Barry didn't answer.

"If Winslow's shielding anyone it's Judge Hambridge," Harwood said. "Judge Hambridge, or someone close to him. I've been thinking that ever since you put the idea in my head. The judge has always been a straight shooter. Why did he write that decision? Was that paper a threat to him, too?"

Barry said, "I don't know."

"I don't either. But I'm going to find out before Saturday."

"Can I help?"

Ernie looked at him.

"No," he replied, curtly. "For the present, I want you to keep out of this."

(TO BE CONTINUED)

The Junior League

The Junior League originated among a small group of young women in New York city who in 1900 sent a large number of roses from a party to a hospital. Later they and others banded together "for mutual benefit and the good of the community." From giving entertainments for the benefit of a college settlement they extended their activities to many other forms of social aid. Similar organizations of young women were formed in other cities out of which grew a national association of leagues, each interested in its particular ways in the educational, cultural and civic conditions of its community and in volunteer charities and other service.

STATIONARY TOURING

ONCE there was a well-to-do and well-mated couple, known as Mr. and Mrs. Sangwin, living in a nifty Residence Street and always planning to hie to the far-away Show-Places. These two did a lot of Summer Traveling early every Spring. They never had been to Europe or the White Mountains or Yellowstone Park except by listening to Burton Holmes and reading Folders, yet they had a Knowledge of Geography which was a great Help when they tackled a cross-eyed Puzzle.

Probably no one in the World knew more about Beauty Spots which they had failed to visit. If they were well informed regarding Switzerland and the Golden Gate and the Piney Woods, it was because they had dreamed about them with so much regularity. They had been all over the Map without putting a Nick in the Letter of Credit.

Next to picking out a Pearl Necklace in a Show Window and then walking rapidly up the Street, this Chautauqua Method of visiting Africa by Proxy and going to the Mediterranean by reading the Ads in the Sunday Paper is probably the least expensive of all Dissipations.

It just seemed as if the Dandelions and the Pussy-Willows and the hopping Robins, all of them Harbingers of Spring and gay Advance Agents for glorious Summer, seemed to work on the Sangwins and produce a Form of emotion Squiffies.

You could bank on it that every Vernal Equinox, about the Time for changing from Heavy to Light, Mr. Sangwin would look out on a new Crop of tender Leaflets, basking in the Sunshine, and remark, with an Air of Finality, "No two Ways about it, I'm going to arrange my Affairs so we can go Somewhere this summer."

EVERYTHING SITTING PRETTY

"Attaboy!" the Good Wife would exclaim. She was glad to know that at last they would cut out the Stalling and take a long, dandy Trip. She had everything doped for the Getaway.

Everything seemed to be Sitting Pretty. Stimulated by the Coffee, and with the Ham and Eggs between them, they would build Castles in the Air which made the Equitable Building look like a Woodman's Hut. Before Mr. Sangwin left the House they would have their Tickets bought and be walking up the Gangway, bound for Europe, Romance and Adventure.

Many and many a crowded Hour did Mrs. Sangwin devote to the blissful Task of picking out the Liner on which they would plover across the Atlantic. Without ever seeing the Ocean, she came to know more about Vessels than anyone on the Shipping Board ever knew. She wrote to every Company and got Bales of Printed Matter including Diagrams, indicating all of the Staterooms, Social Hall, Life Boats, Dining Salon, Funnels, Drink Parlors, etc., etc. These had to be spread out on the Floor and she would devote happy Days to fussing over the Lay-Out and trying to decide where they would have their Steamer Chairs placed. She and Friend Husband had quite a Run-In over the Rating Arrangements. He wanted to take the Regular Meals and she wanted to go to the Ritz Carlton Restaurant because she had read in the Papers that Constance Bennett and the Marquis and Charley Schwab always had small Tables in the Cafe instead of patronizing the main Gorze.

A COUPLE OF OBSTACLES

When the Time came, they were eating Cold Snacks in their own Dining Room. You see, when they made all of their elaborate Plans for going over and turning the Eastern Hemisphere inside out, Mrs. Sangwin had overlooked the Fact that she was Corresponding Secretary of a Local Club which generated Culture and peddled the late News. It seemed that this Club was to have the Honor of entertaining the State Federation during the

MCCORMICK-DEERING

For Better, Easier, More Profitable Dairying

If your cream separator is losing money by wasting butterfat at the skimmilk spout, it is high time to invest in a new McCormick-Deering Ball-Bearing Cream Separator. A Babcock test of the skimmilk will tell whether you can afford to continue using your cream separator.

The McCormick-Deering is the closest-skimming cream separator on the market. It is easy running, easy to clean, and it will give many years of good service. It is built in six sizes—capacities from 350 to 1500 pounds of milk per hour. Come in and let us demonstrate its efficiency. We will also demonstrate the McCormick-Deering Milker on request.
