GOOD WILL CLUB

The club met Tuesday, July 14, at Mrs. Frank Simmons home with Mrs. Simmons and Mrs. Jones hostesses. After an interesting business session we had a few contests and a pleasant social hour planning to meet at the Masterson home next regular meeting day and go from there to Memphis or Clarendon for a theatre party.
The hostesses served ice cream and angel cake to the following ladies: Mrs. Hurley Moraman and Miss June, our guests for the evening, and Mesdames Cannon, Masterson, Mann, Finch, Jewell, Grimsley, Hunsucker, Jones, Simmons and Sonnie Grimsley. Little Mary Alice Hunsucker and the reporter.

To the Voters of Precinct 3:

I wish to thank each one of you for the courtesy shown me in making my campaign for commissioner. I have been shown the utmost respect by my non-supporters as well as my supporters, all of which I deeply appreciate. I urge all to go to the polls and vote for your choice. If I am defeated, I want you to know that I will hold no ill will toward any one. If elected I will serve you to the best of my ability.
Respt.
Claud Nash

You have a special invitation to come out and hear Rev. James L. Standridge, who is delivering some fine messages at the Church of Christ revival.

Rev. and Mrs. V. A. Hansard returned home Monday from Palacios, where they attended the funeral of Mrs. Hansard's mother, Mrs. Laura M. Luther.

Rev. J. F. Johnson of Amarillo spoke in Hedley Saturday in the interest of Gov. Allred's candidacy for re-election.

Rep. Eugene Worley of Shamrock addressed the voters here Saturday afternoon.

Grandma Ring, who fell and broke her hip and arm is reported getting along as well as could be expected, but will have to remain in the hospital for sometime.

A. B. Long and wife and little grandson of Albreed and Mrs. Louis Bowers of Graham visited the Informer family Sunday.

Mrs. J. D. Tamlinson and son and daughter of Spearman visited friends in Hedley Tuesday. They were enroute to Temple where they will make their home.

The Fred Lovelace family have returned from a visit in Ganado, Okla. Wilma Lovelace underwent an appendicitis operation while there.

PICNIC

Mrs. Hendricks took her Sunday school class on a picnic to Roadside Park Tuesday afternoon. Those present were Mary Rains Bridges, Marie Clawson, Frieda Wall, Kathryn Reed, Mary Lane Hendricks, Hilda Ruth Burden, Rev. and Mrs. A. V. Hendricks. Everyone reported an enjoyable time.

WIFADABOS CLUB

July 14, Mrs. Mary Newman was hostess to the Wifadabos club. There were 14 members present and one visitor. House called to order by the vice president. After a short business session followed the program of summer drinks, then a punch demonstration by Mesdames Adamson and Newman, which was served to gether with cookies furnished by Ola Gurd.

Next meeting will be July 28 at the home of Aunt Josie Adamson with Mrs. Pearl Adamson hostess.

Sheriff Pierce Asks Consideration of Record

You go to the polls Saturday, July 25th to vote. I just want to call your attention to my record again as a law enforcement officer of this county. I want you to analyze that record thoroughly. Compare it with any county officer you know. Compare Donley county with any county you know then vote the way you think best. I can show a saving in black and white here in the courthouse for the Sheriff's department of better than one half in the last four years. If you think I have made you a Sheriff that deserves another term, I promise to make you just as good a Sheriff as I have in the past and I believe I can make you a better one with my added experience. I have tried to see as many people as I could and still do my work. I hope if I have not seen you personally you will not hold that against me. I appreciate your vote and influence.
Yours respt.
Gay Pierce

HEDLEY SINGERS

Hedley singers will meet next Sunday July 26, at the Methodist Church at 2:30 p. m. We are expecting to have a supply of the new books on hand.

Every one is cordially invited and urged to attend. We are also expecting a number of visiting singers. Let's be on time.

JUST one more bit of information about that New York vacation of Robert Taylor's. His popularity with the fans was so great and took the home office so by surprise (they'd known he was popular, but hadn't expected that the fans would storm his hotel in such numbers) that bodyguards were engaged for him.

Anyone getting off the elevators at his floor was questioned. No one was allowed to go to his suite without a lot of to-do. The sad result of that was that friends whom he'd urged to come to see him, naming the time, found it practically impossible to get in to see him; in fact, one old friend was about to be turned away, but when she asked only that he be told that she'd been there, and he was, young Robert came rushing out and dragged her in.

He was practically exhausted by all the furore. But he kept his head through it all.

Herbert Marshall has turned farmer; he's bought a forty-acre place in southern California, and optimistically thinks he's going to rest there till he has to go to work in "Portrait of a Rebel" with Katherine Hepburn. But—he's supervising the building of a house. And all of us who've ever owned a farm know what a menace it can be. You begin planting, and cultivating, and first thing you know, that farm is the only important interest in your life except for your family. There's no rest on a farm!

Gloria Swanson seems to have hit bottom so far as her career is concerned. But you never can tell about her; she has a way of bouncing back when people say she's through. Off the screen (and she's been off it a long time, since that last picture of hers turned out so badly) she looks young and pretty, and no doubt she'll be landing a good role first thing anybody knows. At least she's not reached the place where she's appearing in "Hollywood Boulevard," the picture that's to show us the old-timers way back to the time of Maurice Costello.

Of course it was a foregone conclusion that somebody would leap to the front with a picture based on the veterans' receiving their bonus money. Metro grabbed the idea for Wallace Beery, and had camera men planted all over the place shooting bits that could be woven in as local color.

You'll want to see W. C. Fields in "Poppy"; he makes it a grand picture. Rochelle Hudson and Robert Cromwell take care of the love story, but Fields is so delightful that most of us wouldn't care if the authors had omitted everything but his scenes.

If you girls have ever thought that you'd like to dance in a Fred Astaire-Ginger Rogers picture, glance at this list of qualifications; RKO's dance director, Hermes Pan, will test all applicants by them before he selects the twenty-five girls who will work in "I Won't Dance."

A girl must be a whirlwind tap dancer—Fred Astaire er who can do every step in a tap routine; she must be not more than five feet, five inches tall, not less than five feet, two. She must mave a perfect figure and a face which photographs well. She must have personality that gets over to audiences, and must be able to average 99 per cent in a physical examination—so that she can stand ten-hour days of rehearsals without cracking. Oh yes—applicants who are brunettes will be given the preference, other things being equal, and if they aren't they'll have to wear wigs.

ODDS AND ENDS . . . Greta Garbo has started Hollywood by buying a new car, a big one at that . . . She's being paged to make a picture in the John Mack Brown's ten-year-old car when they celebrated their tin wedding anniversary . . . Marguerite Churchill and George O'Brien are starting east for a vacation . . . Maybe the stage will grab her again . . . Charlie Chaplin was in an automobile accident the other day—not serious, forunately . . . Donald Woods may appear in that Buffalo Bill picture, playing the hero as a young man . . . "Private Number" is one of the pictures you won't want to miss . . . And if you want to see colored pictures at their best, drop in on "Dancing Pirate."

FOR STATE SENATE

HE not only hit the nail—he hammered it home to the rest of Texas that the Panhandle is a well-populated portion of the state, and deserving of equal consideration when the purse strings are opened or taxes levied.

Orphanage Ended When He Ascended!

"He and I don't agree on everything," says Lt. Gov. Walter Woodul, "but that's no sign he is right and I am wrong or vice versa. He is right so many times, he ought to be returned."

Clint Small HAS NEVER BEEN WRONG when it came to defense of the people he served. Not even his opponent has been able to cite a single example when your Senator acted to the detriment of the district.

Actions Speak Louder Than Words!

The State Comptroller says Small's gasoline tax rebate law returned $552,000 to the Panhandle during the last year alone.

The Attorney General says his gas and oil conservation laws brought $1,000,000 into the state treasury during the last two years at little additional expense.

The other Senators say: "People in the Panhandle should not be misled by ridiculous propaganda . . . Able, honest, courageous, and active in the performance of his duties to constituents and the state. I have never seen Clint Small fail or falter in doing those things which in his judgment were for the best interest of the people of his district."

BOYS GOVERN THIS NEBRASKA TOWN

Its Name Is Boys Town, and Its Guiding Star, Father Flanagan, Has Given 4,000 Homeless Urchins a Fair Chance in Life.

By WILLIAM C. UTLEY

TEN miles west of Omaha, Neb., there is a community with the romantic name of Boys Town. It is just as romantic as its name, for, with the exception of a handful of supervising oldsters, it is peopled entirely by boys of sixteen or less. It has a boy mayor, a boy chief of police and it is governed by an elected commission of boys who live there.

Boys Town! It sounds like something manufactured in a dream! It is.

"Upon entering Boys Town, a boy realizes that he is stepping into a new world," says its high school sophomore mayor, Dan Kampan. "And," His Honor adds, "that boy realizes that this new world will be just what he makes of it."

The dream that became Boys Town had its beginning some twenty years ago, in the mind of a young Catholic priest, Edward J. Flanagan, then newly ordained. He became interested in the derelicts and misfits who were inmates of the Omaha city jail and, with the spirit of the true humanitarian, practiced such kindnesses upon them that they began to confide in him. In the pity of their life stories was born the mission to which Father Flanagan has since committed himself.

Fed Hungry Misfits.

He visited more sinners against society in the police courts, until he decided to help the miscreants keep out of jail by providing them food and shelter in the cold winter months and trying to steer them back to the ways of righteousness and happiness. It was an overwhelming task, for many of them were hopeless drunks and dope fiends and some even criminals.

"But in our working men's shelter, a hungry man was just a hungry man," says Father Flanagan. "He asked no questions. At times we sheltered and fed as many as 500 of them in a single night. The accommodations we were able to give them were pitifully inadequate. There just wasn't the money. Humanity so easily forgets that men are their brothers' keepers. It was discouraging work, but with the aid of God we persevered. Funds to carry on were scraped together wherever we could get them."

The priest and his friends began to study their guests, in an attempt to discover the causes that lay at the bottom of their troubles. Complete case histories were kept on 2,000 of them, until it became apparent that most of them were the result of neglected or homeless childhoods. Father Flanagan and his associates concluded that if they were to save men of this type they must begin with the grass roots and save them as children. That was the beginning of the dream of Boys Town.

With a borrowed capital of $90 the first month's rent was paid on a house in Omaha, and in it to live went Father Flanagan and five boys, two of them newsboys who had been sleeping in the working men's shelter and the others boys who had been entrusted to his care by the juvenile court. With amazing quickness the news of the new haven for homeless boys spread and in practically no time it was filled beyond capacity.

Donations Finance Work.

It was hard going in the early days, for Father Flanagan's Home, then as now, was supported entirely by the donations of friends and sympathetic persons. Then, as now, it admitted boys regardless of race or creed, and gave them the best it had. The best, on the first Christ-

Only half of these boys were Catholics. They came from 38 states, the District of Columbia, Canada, Alaska, China and Mexico. The boys are taught trades or business pursuits or farming, as their abilities and ambitions dictate. Tennis, baseball, football, track and other sports, as well as sanitary and hygienic education, enveloped into an institution made up of 10 large buildings, amongst which are a modernly equipped gymnasium containing a swimming pool, handball courts, boxing ring, stage, and an auditorium which has been rated as one of the best in the Middle West.

Many Help Work Farm.

"Our farm, of 320 acres on which four barns are located, produces partial upkeep of the boys. It is equipped with machinery to plant and harvest its produce," Dan continues.

"The print shop, which is part of the office building, contains enough machinery to publish 110,000 copies of the 16-page magazine published monthly by the boys. All other printing necessary for the maintenance of our Home is done by the boys."

"The recreational section of Boys Town" able them to grow into healthy, vigorous men. The average efficiency of health maintained over a period of years is 98 per cent.

Mayor Tells His Story.

Only 18 months ago, the unusual community was incorporated as a village. It has a second-class post office, and if you write a letter to anyone there, your reply will come postmarked "Boys Town, Neb." The mayor of Boys Town faces problems daily that few mayors in the land become acquainted with very well in an entire term. You would expect Mayor Dan Kampan to know as much about the town as any of its 217 inhabitants. I have invited him to tell about it as he knows it:

"First," says Dan Kampan, "let me call your attention to the spirit of the homeless boy, best portrayed by the athletic teams which are trained by coaches at Boys Town."

"Every instructor at Boys Town realizes the spirit of co-operation involved in the making of good athletic teams. Last year this spirit was brought out by the splendid is composed of a football field, tennis courts, baseball diamond, and a cinder track. Upon these fields 200 homeless boys build strong bodies and strong minds by participating in various sports. Amongst these sports we find that the most popular are football, baseball, tennis, basketball and all water sports.

Jan. 15 Is Election Day.

"The band, which is known all over the United States, is made up of 50 pieces, all boys under the age of eighteen. The popularity of our musical organizations is proven by the invitations for personal appearances, such as banquets, picnics, parades and sport programs.

"On January 15, 1936, Boys Town held its second annual election, for the purpose of electing a governing body."

"In the voting booths installed, each boy voted a straight ticket for one of the two parties, the Help Boys Town and the Build Boys Town. After this the votes were counted in the presence of both candidates for the mayoralty. When the results were announced it was found that the Help Boys Town mas day, that of 1917, was a barrel of sauerkraut. Together they all knelt and prayed that a nation would forget the hatreds and excitements of war long enough to help them to live a real, American life.

Their prayers must have been answered, for shortly afterward Father Flanagan was successful in financing the purchase of 160 acres of farm which had lain idle and neglected for years. The farm had a few flimsy frame buildings, but they promised shelter, and food could be secured from the land.

Today, through Father Flanagan's untiring efforts and the financial help of thousands of friends, who gave what they could, however little it was, there are 10 fine, modern buildings and the well-operated farm covers 360 acres. Nearly 4,000 boys, once homeless and friendless, have been built into good American citizens with every prospect of a fair deal from life.

records our teams established, often having to overcome odds that were thought invincible. Our football team often came from behind in the last minutes of play to overcome their opponents.

Boys Are Happy Lot.

"The boys in general are a happy and very appreciative group of boys. They, at all times, are willing to jump at the opportunity of helping their friends and boys who have no friends.

"From all parts of the United States homeless and abandoned boys receive shelter and food at Boys Town," Dan goes on. "In this manner they are brought together and after spending a few months at Boys Town they understand some of the boys, and learn many facts of that part of the country that this or that boy came from."

"When Father Flanagan rented a building for his first Home, it was a simple structure located in Omaha. Through the past 18 years it has de-party was the victor by nine votes! The party consists of a mayor and six commissioners, each having his various duties and assignments to fulfill.

"Among the most important of these duties is that of disciplining the boys, which is accomplished through the City Council and a Board of Advisors headed by Father Flanagan, which meets twice a week to discuss various points concerning the welfare of the boys. This is but one of the chief duties of the governing body. Other duties are taking care of minor infractions of rules and boys who cause disturbances by fighting and continuous disobedience."

Father Flanagan and Boys Town insist "there is no such thing as a bad boy." They have seen too many youngsters, once characterized as "bad boys," grow, after given a home, friends and a fair chance in life, into men who have become leaders in the business and social world.

For the Style-Conscious Little Girls

By CHERIE NICHOLAS

IT IS with ever increasing enthusiasm that designers are yielding to the urge of catering to the needs and fancies of style-conscious little girls.

The story of the modern child's wardrobe resolves itself into many chapters dealing with all phases of fashion. Beginning with simple, novel and amusing beach, swim and playtime togs and cunning sun suits, the plot carries on through thrilling adventures in the realm of smart school and dressy daytime clothes reaching a grand and glorious climax in way of entrancing pretty-party frocks that make every little girl look like a fairy princess of story book lore.

For practical daytime and playtime frocks the call is outstanding for cotton reps, gabardines, chambrays, crinkled seersuckers (no ironing required in their big appeal), gingham, novelty cottons soft and spongy, piques and most important, new linens both plain and printed. Now that a sturdy non-crush type of linen is obtainable mothers are jubilant, for in it they have discovered the fabric ideal to withstand the vigorous test of the wear and tear of the thousand and one antics which little folks enjoy in a day's sport.

Perhaps the most exciting news is gay printed linens in bold patterns and colorings. Peasant designs in a blaze of daring colors abound and these rustic prints are especially good-looking when made up into separate little coats with hats to match. Florals in effective spacing, cunning animal, vegetable and fruit motifs on the new printed linens are a special lure to children. Then there are the exquisitely sheer printed handkerchief linens and the fine dimities which are adorable for dress-up wear.

Lace-trimmed organdie or georgette is a favorite theme this season with the designers of little-girl party dresses. Georgette made over taffeta is shown quite a little. A significant trend is the use of pastel colors which seem to have almost gained precedence over all white.

In the matter of styling, the princess silhouette is a great favorite while most sleeves are just short puffs. Note the dress worn by the little girl with the gorgeous doll in the picture. Her smart school and playtime dress is of firm linen cut on the new princess lines. Gay striped printed linen is used as a bordering. The style distinction of this charming dress will make instant appeal to both mother and little daughter.

The other two children are looking their prettiest in dainty party frocks or perhaps they took part in "last day of school" exercises. At any rate their little pleated sheer frocks are lovely and will be a joy the whole summer through. The wee maiden to the left is wearing an accordion pleated voile as charming in pastel colors as it is in white. A wide sash about her waists ties at the back in a huge butterfly bow.

Tiers of narrow pleatings animate the frock centered in the group. The vogue for pleating is as pronounced in children's fashions as in grown-up styles. The pleatings about the neckline extend over the short puff sleeves so as to achieve the new-vogue wide shoulder line.

IT'S EMBROIDERED

By CHERIE NICHOLAS

The latest call of the mode is for frocks of monotone silk crepe with complementary jackets made of the identical silk crepe of the dress, the same handsomely allover embroidered in bright contrasting colors. In the instance of the model pictured the sports dress is of pink silk crepe with a short-sleeved box jacket of the same crepe embroidered with green and blue wool. Blue buttons are on the dress.

Short-Term Wigs.

Wigs are proving popular among fashionable women in London, who use them to cover hair while it is regaining its natural color after a "blond" period.

Black Is Smart

Much black is shown for summer wear with tailored white jackets and white accessories.

DESIGNERS PRESENT SKIRT INNOVATIONS

Unusual color combinations and a strong Oriental influence characterize the new Alix collection. Some skirts are so full and flaring that they resemble parachutes or lamp shades, while others, are caught under at the hem like Turkish trousers.

The feminine silhouette is stressed at all times and clothes at Alix are fashioned to display a slender waistline and curving hip line. For day wear, bodices are skin tight and are usually made with a high neck trimmed with bows or loops of material. All clothes show a certain amount of fullness at the hip, and this is frequently stressed by the use of a full and flaring pleatum.

Glamorous Apparel Wins Approval of Parisiennes

For the polo matches, the races and late afternoon occasions of summer in Paris, it is now the smartest fashion to wear frocks and hats of the glamorous variety. Sheer fabrics like organdie are altogether enchanting and feminine for frocks with wide and sweeping skirts and hats with wide and fluttering brims.

These decorative full-skirted frocks, with little capes or puffed sleeves, have not by any means replaced the tailored evening costume with a jacket, an important fashion for parties from five o'clock on. Daylight dining will enhance this tailored idea.

Calottes More Popular

The fashion for calottes (divided skirts) is no longer confined to the active sports field, say stylists. They will be seen everywhere for all daytime occasions this summer. Last season saw them first spring into popularity for sailing, bicycling and beach wear.

HOW ARE YOU TODAY

DR. JAMES W. BARTON

Talks About

Underweight in Children

WHEN parents consult the height and age table and find that their youngster is below the "normal" weight for his or her age and height their natural impulse is to try to increase the amount of food eaten.

This may be all right in some cases, but the big point in the matter is that children are like horses—race horses, light delivery horses, and truck or cart horses. There is just as much difference in the build or physique in human beings as there is in horses.

The first thought is to figure, as well as this can be figured, just which parent or member of the parent's family the youngster resembles. Generally speaking there is the slender type, the thick-set or stocky type and what might be termed the normal type which is neither tall and slender nor too short and heavy. And as the table for height and age is supposed to be made up from the normal or average type, it can be readily seen that the youngster of the slender type will be lighter and of the stocky type will be heavier for their age and height than will the normal or average type.

It is only too true that the youngsters of today are taller and more slender than their parents and grandparents. I have mentioned before the preparatory school in Toronto where the sons were able to use the beds used by their fathers in most cases, but the grandsons found the beds too short, so that new and longer beds had to be secured for the grandsons.

The slender type has light bones, narrow body, drooping shoulders, narrow back, sagging abdomen, flat chest. The stocky type has large heavy bones, broad body, deep broad chest, wide back, abdominal organs held high.

How Types Behave.

Just as there is a difference in outside build so there is a difference in the size and arrangement of the internal organs, and temperament or disposition.

The slender type are quick, nervous, sometimes irritable, high strung, blood thin, heart and lungs small, stomach long and narrow, small and large intestine short in length.

The stocky type are slower in body and mind, even tempered, blood rich, heart and lungs large, stomach broad, and small and large intestine a number of feet longer than in the slender type.

You can thus see that the slender type is not likely to want or desire much food and the body processes are likely to use or burn it up more quickly and completely so that there is nothing left to store away as fat.

However, because the parent resembled was weak or underweight at the same age doesn't mean that some weight cannot be added to the youngster, and it is worth the effort to try building up as much as his or her particular body can build up.

Extra Food Adds Weight.

At meal times an extra slice of bread, an extra pat of butter, an extra glass or half glass of milk, an extra lump or teaspoonful of sugar, with a chocolate bar or piece of taffy, banana, or glass of milk at 11 a. m. and 4 p. m., would increase the food intake by about one-quarter.

This extra amount would be sufficient to gradually increase the weight, that is, increase the weight as much as possible in each case. If there are emotional disturbances or upsetments, overwork, overtiredness, infected teeth or other conditions present, little or no increase can be expected.

By resting before and after each meal, having quiet and peacefulness at mealtime, with a little candy or fruit to "play on" at four o'clock, there should be a definite increase in strength and weight if these little extras in food are taken regularly.

Ailments Due to Foods.

Many individuals suffer with one or more of the following symptoms: Sour stomach, belching of gas, coated tongue, nausea or even vomiting, heavy burning pain in stomach, cramps in the stomach or abdomen, constipation, diarrhea.

Now research physicians are finding that the above symptoms are due to certain foods to which these individuals are sensitive, but because they do not come out in hives, get head colds, have attacks of hay fever or eczema, they do not suspect foods as being the cause of their symptoms. It is estimated that about 10 per cent of the population are greatly sensitive to certain foods and have these well marked symptoms.

However, Dr. W. O. Browning in Tri-State Medical Journal tells us that from 50 to 60 per cent of the population while not suffering with hives, eczema, asthma or head colds, do have one or more of the symptoms first mentioned.

THE GREAT PROPHETS

SENNACHERIB'S invasion of Judah might never have occurred had one man had his way. That man was a prophet named Isaiah, and his importance cannot be exaggerated.

And though Isaiah failed in the end, still his work was not all in vain, for he did manage to stave off the rebellion for many years.

Not alone Isaiah was responsible for this change, but also another prophet, Micah, who was not an aristocrat but one of the plain folk.

For almost half a century a spirit of heathenism was rampant in Judah, and then another wave of reform swept the country.

That gave the prophets their great chance. Up and down the land they went, calling on the people to heed the dread warning.

And the people did return. Led by the terrified young king, they foreswore utterly their past wickedness.

And the king, heard those curses, he rent his clothes in fear. Hastily he summoned all the free men of Judah to the Temple in Jerusalem.

BUT soon there was another reaction, brought on largely by the new evils that came to Judah from the outside.

Weight of Wood A cord of hickory wood weighs 4,468 pounds. The same amount of red oak firewood weighs 3,255 pounds; of ash, 3,449 pounds; of hard maple, 2,864 pounds; and of beech, 3,274 pounds.

for itself. An invading army was sent northward in the year 603, but the King of Judah was determined to be free at last of all overlords, and he refused to surrender.

Bravely he went out to join battle, but his handful of poorly trained troops proved no match for the disciplined and skilled Greek army which Egypt had hired for the invasion.

But the triumph of Egypt did not last long. In the east a new empire arose to take Assyria's place, and the Egyptians were driven back to the Nile.

At least one man in Judah saw the folly of the revolt; the prophet Jeremiah. From the beginning he had been opposed to insurrection.

Both king and people in little Judah were hysterical with courage and they would not surrender even though Nebuchadnezzar was already at the gates of Jerusalem.

After that he had left none save the lower classes in the land, soon there was another attempt at rebellion. The Judeans were confident that Egypt, which had stirred up the revolt, would come to their rescue.

The king of Judah was captured, his sons were killed in his presence, his own eyes were put out, and then he was carried in chains to Babylon. To terrify the nation still further, seventy of the leading citizens were put to death.

Through the government's vast testing laboratory, the national bureau of standards, there is one general trip, daily except Saturday, Sunday and holidays, beginning at 2:15 p. m.

Uncommon Sense

By JOHN BLAKE

Make up your mind that it is senseless to quarrel. You will meet many people that you dislike.

At Least Tolerate them will be your Neighbor. Many of them will be quarrelsome, conceited, ill tempered. Avoid such people, but tolerate them. They may turn out to be better than you think they are.

There is plenty of room on this earth for human beings of all sorts and kind.

Some of them will differ with you in politics, others in religion. Some may be downright ugly. But they are as they are made. Quarreling with them will make you unhappy, and you're going to need all the happiness you can find as you travel through life.

Some of them may be snobbish and "high hat". You can easily keep away from that sort. But you will be thrown in with certain people whom you cannot avoid.

They may live next door to you, they may belong to the same church or club, they may intrude themselves upon you in many unpleasant ways.

It will do you no good to "get your back up" when they are around. You will get only misery out of quarreling with them.

Just convince yourself that there must be that kind of people in the world with you, and that the easiest way is to be as cheerful as possible in their presence, eschew arguments with them, and let them go their own way.

You can kill mosquitoes and spiders and rattlesnakes and other creatures with which you may be thrown as you go on.

You can't kill human beings without getting into serious trouble. I do not contend that you ought to nurse odious people in your bosom, or try to reform them.

All I suggest is that if you must be with them you will not be unhappy about it, but get along as well you can.

And now and then, you are pretty sure to find that somebody you thought was a pest was a really good sort when you came to know him well, and that you lost a good deal by not getting better acquainted with him.

Dislike reacts on the person who harbors it. Better figure that wherever you go you will find men and women who are constant irritations to you.

Leave them alone if you can. If you can't, just be civil and pleasant and if they resent that keep out of their neighborhood.

The chief end of man I honestly believe is happiness. You can't be happy when you are hating other people.

But toleration will put it out of their power to annoy you.

Try this plan for a couple of weeks. I think you will profit by it.

All Around the House

Air the bread and cake boxes frequently during the summer months. Mould is likely to form on breads and cakes kept in boxes during the warm weather.

Mayonnaise may be kept for several weeks in refrigerator if a tablespoonful of boiling water is added to it before bottling.

Do not remove husks from green corn until just before putting on to boil. Corn spoils quickly, so it should be used as soon as possible after purchasing.

When cake or bread is too brown or is burned, grate gently with a fine grater (nutmeg grater preferred) until the cake or bread is a golden brown.

Sandwiches may be kept moist for 24 hours if they are wrapped tight as soon as made, in waxed paper, then placed in a box lined with a damp cloth and covered with a cloth. Keep in a cool place.

Mix salads with a fork instead of a spoon or ladle.

EUGENE WORLEY STATES POSITION

In this, my formal announcement for re-election to a second term in the Texas Legislature, you will find set forth the sound and logical reasons upon which I base my candidacy. I call your attention to the fact that each promise made when I ran for this office two years ago has been kept. They are as follows:

1. Changing the method of scholastic apportionment so that the Panhandle will receive the financial support for educational needs, both rural and city. East Texas and South Texas, having heavy colored and Mexican populations, defeated my efforts, but I promise them another spirited fight if re-elected to correct this unjust situation. The school fund is in the best condition of its history, being able to pay cash at $19.50 per capita, thus accomplishing a substantial reduction in the state ad valorem tax, thereby affording the long desired decrease in state ad valorem taxes, which I also pledged myself to work for, and shall continue to work for.

2. To provide free cotton classing service to all farmers without cost for such service, enabling them to receive the full value for their cotton from the various cotton buyers. Twice did I pass this bill through the House, but it was killed in the Senate. The expense for this service would have been borne by an increased tax on horse-racing, which can certainly stand additional taxation.

3. To set up and provide money for an adequate old age assistance program. I actively supported this program and assisted in raising approximately fourteen million dollars to care for the aged and needy. I pledge my best efforts to raise ample revenue to care for the bill which is now in force, and I also favor changing certain defects in the pension bill which have been brought to light since its application. Mine was the first revenue raising bill to pass the House.

4. I favor and intend to assist the farmers in their program of benefit and protection of prices when the Federal Government submits such proposals to the several states.

5. I advocate fair legislation to the trucking industry, thus insuring more economical transportation and greater safety on our highways to both the travelling public and the transportation industries.

6. To those other State, District and County officers who will be elected by the people, I pledge my sincere and wholehearted cooperation to work with them for the best interests of the District which I represent, and for the benefit of the State of Texas.

I have no desire to use the age-old Democratic custom of allowing a candidate a second term if he has done anything at all. My record is evidence of my activity. I freely admit that my activities did not register approval with the big-moneyed interests, but when I thought I was right, I did everything in my power to accomplish my convictions, and shall continue to follow that policy if honored with your vote for re-election.

Sincerely yours,
 EUGENE WORLEY,
 (Political Advt.)

Overheated summer kitchens are a thing of the past with "Miracle Cookery." Thick insulation keeps heat in the oven, where it belongs. And, in surface cookery, Hotpoint Calrod coils concentrate all heat on the utensil and do not diffuse it into the air of the kitchen. With electricity as the fuel, immaculate cleanliness is possible. Even the bottoms of pans do not become blackened.

Imagine spending all day away from home—then arriving just before dinner time to find the entire meal perfectly cooked, ready for serving. In the morning you can make the food ready for cooking, put it in the oven, set the temperature control, set the "Chef's Brain" (automatic timer) for the time it is to begin cooking and the time it should be finished—and then forget it until dinner is to be served.

CHAPTER X

"Not a word to anybody," Harwood had said. "Dig in 'til I phone you. One little leak, and we're finished."

Barry saw that. But why should Harwood fear the leak coming from him? Pat? Nonsense! Winslow, of course, who was Morano's lawyer. But Ernie had said, "Winslow isn't that kind of a lawyer." And he had said also, "If Winslow's shielding anyone, it's Judge Hambridge. Judge Hambridge, or someone else close to him." Except Winslow, who was close to Judge Hambridge, but Pat?

Into Barry's mind trickled slowly small, insistent recollections—one after another. Recollections that, in the beginning, seemed to have nothing to do with the case. Pat was in town the night of the murder. Naturally—with her father; what of it? "He wouldn't let me stay with him," she had said, at dinner the next evening in Southampton. What of it?

But the trickle was becoming a flood now. The afternoon Hambridge had confessed seeing Kelly, why did Pat keep checking the Judge? What did she fear his disclosing? And the confession itself; why did he make it?

"I'm off again," Barry raged at himself. "Just because Ernie said, 'Winslow may be shielding Hambridge, or someone close to him.' That might mean someone close to Winslow. But who's closer than the Hambridges?" And then he remembered declaring, the afternoon of the Judge's confession, "The man—or the woman—who killed Kelly knew what he—or she—was going to do."

"Why do you say 'she'?" Pat had asked, emotionally. "This wasn't a woman's crime."

Winslow had asserted, too; only a few hours ago: "that man." Curious. And motive? Well, you couldn't deny that. If Kelly was threatening Judge Hambridge, and Pat knew it. There was no doubt that she did. "I've got something in my pocket," the Judge had quoted Kelly as shouting, and Pat had intervened promptly. All those weeks, before the decision was filed, she had writhed under the newspaper attacks on her father. Suppose she had known what was compelling that decision, and undertaken to remove the compulsion. "Silly!" Barry fumed at himself. "Fantastic!"

The house of cards was a wreck now, and Barry turned to other self-questionings. "That paper in Kelly's pocket—the threat over Luis. But it seems to have been the threat over Hambridge, also. What's the connection?"

"None," he finally decided, interring that idea, too, and turning in bed, determined that he must sleep. "Something between Morano and Kelly, yes, but between Morano and Judge Hambridge—well, that's just beet-tops!" With that he fell asleep.

The telephone awakened him. "Ten o'clock," the girl at the switchboard droned. "Call from Southampton?"

"Mr. Gilbert? This is the hospital at Southampton, Miss Hambridge asked me to tell you that Jacky Rogers has been hurt. We don't know how badly yet. His horse threw him. She'd like to know if you can come at once."

"Certainly." "Miss Hambridge says, if you'll go straight to her house, she'll be there." Fortunately, he got Evans at once, and they were on the Merrick road less than an hour later. "Never mind the red lights," Barry ordered. "Keep going."

But Evans was wary, beating the lights when it seemed safe to do so; stopping when it didn't, and pushing the car to its limit on stretches of unpaved highway. Before two o'clock, Evans drew up in front of the Hambridges'. Pat was waiting.

"I've just this minute got back from the hospital," she declared. "Peg's still there, of course. But Jacky's arm's broken."

"Nothing worse?" Pat shook her head. "The whole thing's my fault," she said, tremulously. "Jacky's too young for a pony. Although I had one at his age."

She took him into the drawing-room, where they were joined by her father, who seemed terribly broken.

Between them, they told Barry what had happened. A bit of paper had blown across the pony's eyes, and he had bolted, with Pat after him. She got hold of the bridle, but the frantic little animal had dragged her out of her saddle. Still she had clung, until, maddened, the pony had bucked, and thrown his small rider. Pat had let go then; not without visible and invisible casualties to skin and clothes.

Pat's nerves were on edge, and Hambridge rambled on about the "poor kid," and this being "the last straw" for Peggy, and what were they going to do now, with the Ridders coming to Southampton.

And, suddenly, Pat said, "This is Wednesday."

Barry conceded the point. "We agreed to tell the truth if Jack wasn't free Wednesday."

The Judge's muscles stiffened.

"What do you mean by the truth, Pat?"

"That you saw Kelly after Jack left him."

For answer, Hambridge turned squarely to Barry.

"You're pretty shrewd, Mr. Gilbert," he said, for the second time. "If you were the District Attorney, and heard what I told you here a few weeks ago, what would you ask?"

Barry replied, "I'd ask what was that paper in Kelly's pocket? What was in it to compel an honest man to write a crooked decision? I'd ask who else might have wanted that paper—and what became of it?"

Both Pat and her father were staring at Barry now, with wide, startled eyes in which lay something like terror. The Judge cried, "We can't face that."

"We've got to face it," Pat said. "We've got to. There's a woman with a sick boy—"

"There's another woman, too," the Judge interrupted. "A woman closer and dearer to me—" He checked himself, remembering suddenly that he and his daughter were not alone. Remembering, he turned back to Barry. "You know how I feel about all this," he pleaded. "I've said repeatedly that we must clear the kidder at any cost. But now you've put my fear into words. They can't convict this boy. What's the difference whether he's free tomorrow or two weeks from tomorrow? If there were any possibility of convicting an innocent man—any innocent man—I'd have no choice. But now—"

The telephone rang in the hall.

"Mr. Winslow on the wire," a servant announced. "Very important, sir."

The Judge went out, closing the door after him.

Pat excused herself. "I think I'd better go to my father."

Barry waited, alone, but his anxiety was great, too, and, at last, he parted the double doors and went into the drawing room.

As he did so, he heard the Judge's voice.

Evidently, Hambridge had just hung up the phone, and was addressing his daughter.

"They've arrested Morano," he said. "For murdering Kelly. What are we going to do now?"

But the girl had seen Barry. Her hand closed over the back of a chair, and she swayed dizzily.

Barry caught her up in his arms.

"It's no use. We've got to have the truth. Who murdered Mike Kelly?"

His grip tightened on her shoulders. "For God's sake—Pat—darling—was it you?"

"Who murdered Mike Kelly?"

The question was being asked him from every news-stand in New York.

Beneath it, in huge headlines, the Globe answered, and accused. In journalistic circles, that story is still referred to as "the big beat": "Who murdered Mike Kelly?"

For answer, Hambridge Turned Squarely to Barry.

dered Mike Kelly?" "Do the police know?" "Have they always known?" "And has this knowledge been pigeon-holed, while an innocent man was held for the crime, because the real murderer knew too much about Tammany Hall?"

The Globe replied to these queries in a series of denunciatory statements, libel-proofed by a discreet sprinkling of the usual "it is alleged" and "who is said to be."

"Luis Morano owned the house at 24 Jefferson street. He bought it in 1929, and lived there alone, with two colored servants, until 1931, when he purchased a stock farm near Morristown, N. J. The house remained vacant, and last January, Morano sold it to the Progressive Realty company for $12,000."

"In March, when the Progressive company transferred most of Jefferson street to the city for a so-called boulevard, the value of the Morano property was set at $55,000."

"The Civic association alleged that the Progressive company was merely a stalking horse for Boss Kelly, and condemnation proceedings were instituted before Judge Curtis Hambridge, whose decision was filed only an hour after Kelly was found dead, his skull fractured by a blow from a heavy cut-glass decanter."

"On the day of the murder, a man, believed to be Morano, telephoned the Globe that he could and would establish Kelly's connection with the Progressive company. An appointment was made for 10:30 that night. The man did not appear."

"But at eight o'clock—two hours and a half earlier—Kelly went to the Coconut Bar. He is said to have had with him two henchmen, and a paper of some sort, with which he threatened Morano. Kelly alleged that an effort was made to pick his pocket of this document, but it was still in his possession when he left the Coconut Bar."

"When Kelly's body was found, the paper had vanished. All this, and always has been known to the police."

Kelly was killed between one and two o'clock in the morning.

"At one o'clock, Morano telephoned his attorney that he was hopping into his car to drive to Morristown. But the police know, and have always known that Morano's car was still in front of the Coconut Bar three hours later. They know, and have always known that a new traffic cop gave the chauffeur a summons at that time, and that the two men went into the Bar together to find Morano. He was not there, and the doorman said he had not been there since shortly after one o'clock."

"Where was Morano? The police know, or should know that he was the occupant of a taxicab that dashed out of Sixteenth street—where Kelly lived and was then lying dead—at two o'clock the morning of the murder. Half a block from Kelly's house, the taxi struck and killed a woman, Mrs. Theodore Jaxon, of 53 Washington square. The number of that taxi is, or should be known to the police. Its driver is, or should be known to the police. He is George Mundelein of 891 Cass street, the Bronx."

"Morano hired the cab at Sixteenth street and Sixth avenue, and told Mundelein to take him to the Coconut Bar. When the accident threatened to identify him, he changed his mind, and ordered the driver to 'keep on going.' He said then that he had to catch a 2:12 train at the Pennsylvania station."

"Whether or not Morano caught that train, he was not seen again until late the next evening, when he reappeared at the Coconut Bar with his right wrist heavily bandaged. Morano told the doorman he had sprained the wrist playing with one of the horses on his stock farm. But Morano was not anywhere near that farm the night of the Kelly murder, or the day following."

"Most of these facts are, or should be known to the police. Morano is still at liberty. No effort has been made to detain him as a material witness. For more than two months, another man has been locked in the Tombs, under indictment for this murder. If the police haven't known of Morano's connection with the case, they have been grossly and criminally negligent. If they have known, they have been grossly and criminally corrupt."

"In either event, the public awaits their next move."

And, at seven o'clock that night, Morano was "still at liberty." The police hadn't arrested him—in spite of the Globe, and Winslow's message to Hambridge—nor manifested the least interest in his whereabouts. The first show at the Bar was beginning when Tim Laugherty arrived with "Big Bill" Devine.

"Where's the boss?" Tim asked one of the head waiters.

"Upstairs—on the balcony. He's having his dinner."

He was.

Whether Morano counted too much on his pull, or whether he realized the impossibility of escape, so one ever knew. The platinum blonde had urged him to clear out. "What for?" he asked.

"Then he said, 'Even in America, you can't get away with murder forever—not forever, you can't,' she testified later. 'I'm tired of the whole business,' he said. 'We might as well have it over.'"

What Morano meant by that was soon evident.

It was buyers' night at the Coconut Bar. The street-door was so crowded that the detectives had trouble reaching the stairs.

Tim walked into Morano's little dining room.

"Hello, Luis! They want to talk to you at headquarters," Tim said.

Luis retorted his glass.

Directly beneath him, 20 brazen voices were bawling a chorus:

"Let me be—"

"That's all I'm askin' you. Can't you see?"

"That's all I'm askin' you. Take your hand from off'n my hips. Take your mouth away from my lips. Let me be."

"That's what I'm tellin' you—"

"I guess you better come along, Luis."

Morano rose.

"I'm not going," he said.

"No?"

"Because why?"

"Because I don't like your boarding house. I don't like that easy chair you got waiting for me. If you're gonna croak me, you might as well do it right here."

"Nobody don't want to croak you," Tim argued. "What's the use making trouble, Luis?"

For answer, Morano gave him the contents of the glass of champagne in the eyes.

"Big Bill" Devine seized Morano's right arm.

Only for an instant, however. As Luis came forward, "Big Bill" caught him straight on the chin. It was a terrific blow. It sent Morano spinning against his own chair, and then, over that, through the flimsy railing, and down among the dancers, 15 feet below.

"Let me be—that's all I'm askin' you," came voices, bawling the chorus. And then a babel of voices.

Screams, cries, shouts for help.

The band was still playing when a "bouncer" lifted the boss's shoulder. He was bleeding at the mouth, and stone dead.

Centuries of Competition in Homage to the Great Buddha

NARA

UPON entering Japan prepare to meet Daibutsu, principal of the Buddhist divinities. Everywhere one turns is to be found evidence of this transplanted religion out of India that entered Japan in 552 A. D. Today 71,193 temples and 41,962,000 adherents testify to its influence in the Flowery Kingdom.

Out of Buddhism in this part of the world eleven sects have sprung up, the Shinshu, which discards the idea of celibacy for the clergy, with 20,000 temples and 13,000,000 devotees, leading by a great majority.

During the earlier periods when sects were forming at a rate that threatened to retard rather than advance the teachings and spread of Buddhism, the Emperor Shomu, 749 A. D., caused to be erected at Nara a Daibutsu that still enjoys the distinction of being the largest metal image in the world.

One standing in the presence of this amazing creation, more fearsome than words can convey, cannot but be impressed with its character and its immensity. The temple in which it is housed offers little or no light for the figure. From every angle mighty pillars obstruct the view of this somber, awe-spreading colossus, twice almost destroyed by fire, for centuries neglected, at last restored by the Emperor Meiji, 1903, and completed without the slightest alteration in style by Emperor Taisho, 1913.

Image is Sinister

The Nara Daibutsu, containing 437 tons of bronze, 7 tons of vegetable wax, 288 pounds of gold, 165 pounds of mercury, the two latter ingredients used solely for gilding, although most of the glitter has disappeared, leaving only a black metallic epidermis, African in tone, which gives the image a sinister character, suggesting something medieval as it reposes cross-legged in the shadows of the temple.

The right hand is open and held waist high, the left likewise and resting upon the knee, while the figure itself is seated upon a throne of lotus leaves 88 feet in diameter, made up of 56 petals. Behind this tarnished Daibutsu is a halo 38 feet in height, containing 12 small images of Buddha, each nine feet in height.

The sheltering temple, built the following year, was completely destroyed by fire in the Twelfth century, and with it the head and shoulders of Daibutsu. By imperial order, the head was replaced and a new temple made ready in 1190. But the monument to Buddha, although escaping destruction, was not to enjoy peace, for, 370 years later, the temple was again destroyed by fire and the unfortunate Daibutsu was exposed to the elements for more than a hundred years, all of which added no luster to its appearance.

In the year 1700, the temple, rebuilt and completed after three years' labor, became the center of Buddhist pilgrimages to the extent of 3,000,000 people per annum, although in the next century the temple all but came to a complete ruin.

The comparatively recent restoration of the temple puts it in a class by itself: Width 188 feet, depth 166 feet, height 160 feet, and pillars, 60 in number, 45 1/2 feet in diameter. Said to be the largest wooden structure in the world.

A week later, at Kamakura, under a blue sky, the whole landscape shimmering midst the verdure of spring, in a forest of pine and maple mottled with cherry blossoms, I came suddenly upon another and smaller Daibutsu, cast 500 years later; a work in green bronze, 42 feet high, and weighing only 42 tons.

Smaller Buddha Has Beauty

But there was beauty in the face, humility in the downcast eyes and incomparable serenity in the posture. The two hands are laid in the lap, palms upward, thumbs touching, the Buddhist sign for steadfast faith. And over all, ineffable resignation approaching sublimity to whomsoever would "look carefully within himself" and find the Buddha.

The Kamakura Daibutsu, cast in 1252 by Ono Goroemon, was originally installed in a large building, damaged in 1368 by storm and carried away by a tidal wave in 1494, two years after Columbus had sailed his caravels into the Caribbean. Since then it has remained uncovered, a sublime symbol of patience, secure on its pedestal, against which the waters of the sea arose in accordance with prophecy and halted lest they disturb the meditations that had remained unbroken for 700 years.

To this traveler, as between the Nara and the Kamakura Daibutsu, the difference was as darkness and light. One is a mountain of crudity in a mighty wooden shed and the other a jade-tinted jewel gleaming untrammelled under the wide and starry sky.

Eczema in Big Watery "Bumps"

Burning and Itching Relieved by Cuticura

The records abound with grateful letters of praise like the following. Name and full address are printed to show that Cuticura letters are genuine beyond question.

"My eczema began with an itching on my hands, arms and feet, and when I scratched, big, watery bumps came. They burned and itched so, that I scratched and irritated the affected parts. It worried me so I could not sleep.

"I had this eczema for five years before I started to use Cuticura. After using three tins of Cuticura Soap and three tins of Cuticura Ointment the irritation was relieved."
