Family Reunion Is Held At J. W. DeBord Home

A very happy event that followed the old settler's picnic was that of the Second Annual Reunion of the DeBord family. It was held Sunday, Aug. 15, at the home of J. W. DeBord in the Mc Knight community. As each friend or relative arrived they were asked to sign the register putting down name, address and age. This was a sly way of learning some of their ages. We found Mrs. S. R. Johnston of McLean to be the oldest person present, her age being 75. By noon 68 people were signed up and ready to partake of the very bountiful dinner that was spread on three tables.

The afternoon was spent in taking pictures, laughing and recalling funny and pleasant memories of the days gone by. We were proud that so many of the relatives were here this year. This reunion is to be an annual affair and will be held each year at the above mentioned place and the same date, the 3rd Sunday in August.

Relatives present included: Mrs. Joe Dyches and children, Tabitha, Modena, and Billie Roff, and Mrs. May Roff, all of San Angelo; Mrs. Nannie Watkins and Oswald Canyon, Mr. and Mrs. Clois Vandergriff of Skellytown, Mr. and Mrs. W. H. DeBord and children, Clifford, Lawrence and Helen of Hedley; Mr. and Mrs. Leo Jester and children Ella, Clifford, Weldon and Derrel of Quail; Mr. and Mrs. Elmer Dishman and daughter Lavane Ann, Mr. and Mrs. C. L. DeBord and children, Wesley and Alton, Mr. and Mrs. Haskell Muncie and Bobbie, and Mr. and Mrs. J. W. DeBord and Dalton Duggins of Hedley; Mr. and Mrs. Conley DeBord and children, Patricia, Joannie and Dewey Lynn, Mr. and Mrs. Garnet Willingham and sons, Herbert and Don, and Mr. and Mrs. E. C. Duggins and daughters Rexie Mae and Eugene of Quail; and Mr. and Mrs. Elvin Hickey and children, Leetta and Carol of Clarendon.

The friends of the family present were: Mrs. S. R. Johnston and son Jimmie of McLean, Mrs. T. P. Willingham, J. R. Kunkle and Mr. and Mrs. M. N. Willingham and son Arnie, of Shamrock, Mr. and Mrs. J. M. Tidwell and daughter Francis, and Mr. and Mrs. W. E. Adams and children, Della, Iva Mae and Leota of Goodnight; Mr. and Mrs. T. F. Heath and M. L. Sims of Hedley.

Miss Emma Lewell Plunk returned first of the week from Canyon, where she attended summer school. Miss Plunk will leave Sunday for Rancee, where she will teach school this year.

Hedley Schools to Open

The Hedley schools will open Monday, Aug. 30. The opening exercises will begin at 9:00 and last probably 30 minutes. Registration of pupils will begin immediately after the opening.

Busses will return the children by late noon. Parents are welcome and urged to accompany the children. Your kindest cooperation with the school is solicited by the administration and will greatly increase the value of the school for your child.

Revival

A revival meeting will begin at the Church of Christ Aug. 29. Tillitt S. Teddlie of Dallas will do the preaching. The public is cordially invited.

Baptist Revival Meeting

The Baptist revival is still in progress, with good attendance at every service. Rev. Whatley is delivering some fine sermons and the song services are good. Between 50 and 60 boosters are attending each night. Night services are held outside when the weather permits.

The public is invited and especially urged to attend the balance of the services.

A nice assortment of fresh candies at Hooker's.

Mr. and Mrs. W. G. Brinson have opened a new variety store in the building formerly occupied by Chunn & Boston, which will be known as the B & B Store. They invite their friends to call on them.

Miss Billie Huffman underwent a tonsil operation in Amarillo Tuesday. She is reported getting along nicely.

Burton Hines and family and Sam Bullock and family of Westbrook, Mrs. Oia Hastings of Lamson, Paul Crozier and family, Mrs. D. Mullins and Mrs. Roy Lane of Portales, N. Mex., are visiting in the J. D. Shaw home this week.

Miss Marieta Shipley of Wichita Falls is visiting her aunt, Mrs. E. C. Bellver, and family.

Rev. M. E. Wells made a trip Sunday to White Deer, where he performed a double wedding ceremony. He was accompanied by Misses Hope and Ruth Wells.

Mr. and Mrs. A. R. Marshall announce the arrival of a fine 8 lb baby girl, on Tuesday, Aug. 24.

David Hall of Hardin-Simmons at Abilene is a guest of the In former family this week.

Miss Inez Lindsey, who has been visiting Mr. and Mrs. A. A. Cooper, left Tuesday for her home at Idabel, Okla. in response to a message that her mother was seriously ill.

Mr. and Mrs. Hudson Couch of Altus, Okla. are visiting in the C. E. Johnson home.

Please write your name, address and pattern number plainly.

Stop-Go Oratory

A "stop" and "go" signal light system has been installed in the Danish folketing, or lower house of the national legislature, to check undue verbosity. No longer can members run over time allotted for speeches.

A little box on the platform desk contains a green and red light. The green comes on warningly for one minute before the red signal, and when the red flashes the politician must stop talking at once, no matter what heights of rhetoric he has achieved.—Science Service.

STOP THOSE CHILLS AND FEVER!

Take a Proven Medicine for Malaria

Don't suffer like a dog! The minute you feel a chill or fever coming on, start taking Grove's Tasteless Chill Tonic. This good, old medicine will soon fix you up.

Grove's Tasteless Chill Tonic contains tasteless quinine and iron. It quickly stops chills and fever and also tends to build you up. That's the double effect you want.

The next time you suffer an attack of Malaria, don't take chances with new-fangled or untried preparations. Get Grove's Tasteless Chill Tonic. It's pleasant to take as well as effective.

All drug stores sell Grove's Tasteless Chill Tonic, 50c and $1. The latter size is the more economical.

Watch Your Kidneys!

Help Them Cleanse the Blood of Harmful Body Waste

Your kidneys are constantly filtering waste matter from the blood stream. But kidneys sometimes lag in their work—do not act as Nature intended—fail to remove impurities that, if retained, may poison the system and upset the whole body machinery.

Symptoms may be nagging backache, persistent headache, attacks of dizziness, getting up nights, swelling, puffiness under the eyes—a feeling of nervous anxiety and loss of pep and strength. Other signs of kidney or bladder disorder may be burning, scanty or too frequent urination.

There should be no doubt that prompt treatment is wiser than neglect. Use Doan's Pills. Doan's has been winning new friends for more than forty years. They have a nation-wide reputation. Are recommended by grateful people the country over. Ask your neighbor!

RESEARCH FULFILLS COW'S MILK NEEDS

Experimental Farm Lets Dairy Herd Determine What's Needed for Production.

Quite frequently the housewife is heard to say, "This milk is mostly water." Strange to say, the cow that gave the milk will agree with her. As a matter of fact, water is the principal ingredient in milk. As W. R.
Arends, well-known dairy authority points out, "The cow needs about 5 times as much water every day as she produces milk. That means a 4 gallon cow should drink about 20 gallons of water daily. Of course, in the winter a cow's water requirements may be a trifle less."

Other important materials in milk are the milk sugars, butterfat, minerals and proteins. According to Arends, the place where dairymen can give their cows the most help in making milk is in a true balance of proteins.

"Some dairymen," says Arends, "feel that protein is protein and that by simply mixing a lot of some protein carrier with grain, the cow gets all she needs in milk making. This is far from the truth, for the proteins in milk are complicated. It takes a combination of different protein feeds to supply all of the elements needed for best milk making."

"Lined oil meal, cottonseed meal, gluten feed, soybean meal and alfalfa meal are all excellent sources of protein, but none of them alone doesn't give a cow all the proteins needed to make milk at her best. It takes a carefully blended combination of such feeds to give the cow what she needs in milk-making proteins. Certain high protein concentrates, such as cottonseed meal, are very forcing, and when fed to excess, may cause unlimited cow troubles."

Arends says that a good part of the research work at the Purina Research Farm has been given over to finding out just how much of one and how little of another ingredient is needed to do the best job of making milk at the lowest cost to the dairyman. "Taking nothing for granted and letting the cows themselves determine what's best for milk at the lowest cost, the Purina Research Farm has been able to develop dairy concentrates that are far more profitable for dairymen than those of a few years back. Today a cow can get exactly what she needs without any waste of feed and the dairyman can make more money giving her that kind of feed."

The Office-Holder Is Your Employee

By RAYMOND PITCAIRN

National Chairman
Sentinels of the Republic

No business enterprise of any importance can depend for success on the knowledge and ability of its top executives alone.

It must rely also on the quality and training of the men in the ranks—whether they labor in office or shop or field.

Within recent weeks there has become evident a growing conviction that this is also true of government.

Both at Washington and elsewhere plans are being discussed for better training of the non-coms and privates who hold or look forward to jobs in the public service. A federal agency has recently recommended such training as a step towards economy and efficiency.
Its proposals are supported by private research groups which have studied the problem independently; by colleges of high standing which offer courses leading to careers in the public service, and by various state and municipal governments which encourage special training for their own employes.

But the one who should be most deeply concerned is the average worker and taxpayer. Why?

Because he, in the last analysis, is the real employer. He—with millions of his fellow citizens—constitutes the government, whether federal, state or local.
He doesn't merely share in its benefits;
he meets all its bills—including the payroll. The higher the quality of the public service for which he pays, the more he gets for his money.

And the service is likely to be higher in quality if his employes are chosen and retained on the basis of what they know rather than that of whom they know. Not only that, but the field is likely to be less overcrowded—therefore, less costly to the taxpayer who foots the bill.

If the American citizen would get his money's worth he must insist on ability not only in the top offices of government, but in the lesser jobs as well.
This, too, becomes part of his responsibility as a shareholder in the most important business on earth.

The office-holder is his employe.

"The Child in the Corner ..." NEEDS GOOD LIGHT, TOO!

Home lighting problems have been solved by the student lamp. Installed today, the I. E. S. student lamp is a guarantee of ample light conductive to sight conservation when your boy or girl begins the forthcoming school term.

IT is unfortunate that so many West Texas school rooms were built without consideration for "the child in the corner". Too often he or she is surrounded by blackboards that give off no light. Crowded conditions make it impossible to seat every child where ample light is obtained from outside.

It is safe to predict that school rooms of the future will be constructed so as to assure students the maximum light provided by nature. But, meanwhile, it is impractical to re-build the present facilities. Hence, it is highly important that artificial light be used to give EVERY child an opportunity to develop under normal circumstances.

Nor can the most scientifically constructed school room, depending upon nature alone, provide sufficient light on gloomy days during the winter school months. Children are required to read on cloudy days when light is reduced to less than 10 foot-candles.

This company has developed a school lighting system that is economical. It is designed primarily for "the child in the corner". At the same time, it throws no major burden on school trustees—responsible for school finances. Inquire at our local office for free estimate.

Matching Lace Trims Silk Sheers

By CHERIE NICHOLAS

NO MATTER how much your taste and the general tenor of your life may call for practical tailored and sporty-type clothes, none other than a really and truly dress-up dress will answer to occasion. If anything more apropos can be found than either of the stunning models pictured in the way of dressiest-dress gowns that tune graciously to afternoon functions, garden parties and such, pray tell where is it?

The illustration presents exactly the type of dresses we have in mind. Here you see two gowns that are one hundred per cent voguish. They are modern up to the instant, and they are fascinating in regard to nicety of detail and they carry that air of sartorial elegance which every woman of discriminating taste covets. Make it yourself, have it made, or buy it ready made as you will, a dress of the type of either of these handsome frocks will give you endless satisfaction, for no matter what comes up in the way of social affairs unless extreme formality demands ultra full-dress attire, gowns such as pictured class their wearers as among the those-present in the best dressed group.

This gesture of dying lace in exact match to the silk sheer it trims is proving a most exciting venture to designers in that it invites such free play of imagination. Then, too, the lace being the identical color enhances the dress without making it look too fussy or overdone—gives it the exclusive accent that many covet but few attain.

Current collections include both dark and light sheers with matching lace trims. A costume done in monotone color scheme of either the very fashionable spruce green or beetroot red would be outstanding. Grays in the pastel shades are greatly stressed, also rose-beige.

As to swank styling the redingotes there prevails since it offers such excellent opportunity to introduce border effects with lace insertions after the manner shown in the charming dress to the left in the picture. This redingote gown is a most fetching style for the cocktail hour. It is made of gray silk marquisette tastefully embellished with insets of matching lace. The huge red straw open-crowned hat worn with it plays up in dramatic contrast to the demure gray of the dress. It is flower-trimmed and has black streamers that tie under the chin.

The other young woman seeks and finds midsummer coolness in a gown of beguiling rose-glow silk marquisette trimmed with insets of matching lace. The tiny self-fabric buttons add to the choiceness of this dress. Short sleeves and short gloves also try their bit toward giving smart style accent. The modish poke bonnet is a blue straw with violet and old rose velvet ribbon trim.

SMART SHEER WOOL

By CHERIE NICHOLAS

The midseason dress problem when it is too warm to wear this and too cool to wear that need no longer set any woman into a worry and flurry for the answer has been found in the new sheer wools that are the very thing to do at the first hint of autumn's approach. Pictured is a stunning dress that will bridge from summer to fall perfectly. This distinctive tailored frock combines sheerest wool weave in attractive dusty rose coloring with chic accents of snowy pique. Pleated-in sleeves and an intriguing pleated skirt convey early style messages. Note the high crown in her smart fall felt. As the new season advances crowns keep going higher and higher.

MANY COLORS SEEN IN COATS FOR FALL

Coats of many colors have been featured so extensively in Paris that they are expected to be early fall fashion successes in this country. All of these coats are very brief and are made of elegant fabrics or of ribbons, thus indicating their place with evening dresses. One French designer has introduced a little jacket made of two-inch velvet ribbon sewn together in vertical strips, the ribbon combining shades of apple green, old blue, chamois, pink which has a blue cast and an orchid-purple. This is worn over a gown of black Chantilly lace. Another jacket is made of red and blue grosgrain ribbon interlaced to suggest a woven pattern.

Matching Headdress and Heels Offer Gala Touch

Matching headdresses and heels are providing a gala touch to simple summer outfits worn by attractive young spectators at smart midwestern country clubs. Dusty pink frocks combined with beige turbans and ostrich skin pumps with beige-colored built-up heels are a popular combination. On many of the smartest white ensembles, effective accents are furnished by paisley print headbands and heels.

Tailored Jersey Suit Is Made With Loose Jacket

Chanel's tailored suits in jerseys and wools are made with loose jackets that are cut somewhat like box coats. Blouses are finished with round collars or jabots, which are worn outside the jackets. The short and comfortably full skirts often are trimmed with hip pockets.

Parma Violet Undies Parma violet underwear! They are doing it in Paris, featuring the violet as well as the more delicate mauve and orchid tones in georgette and satin negligees.

Overweight and Life Span

By DR. JAMES W. BARTON
© Bell Syndicate.—WNU Service.

FOR many years it was believed that overweight shortens the span of life but it was not until the large insurance companies with the records of thousands of "healthy" individuals accepted for life insurance, gave out their figures to physicians that the true facts became known.

These facts are that overweight definitely shortens the span of life. Taking the life expectancy of individuals of definite height, age and weight, it is shortened in the exact proportion to the amount or percentage of overweight that exists.

The tables state: "Taking the life expectancy of any individual as 100 per cent, his mortality or death rating as influenced by overweight is given in percentages. Thus a person 5 feet tall whose standard weight is 129 pounds, but who weighs 50 per cent in excess, or 193 pounds, has a mortality or death rate of 170 per cent, or 70 per cent above normal."

In commenting upon this fact that the death rate is increased in proportion to the percentage or amount of overweight, Dr. Harry Gauss, University of Colorado, in his book "Clinical Diabetics" says: "There is nothing amazing in these statistics. A person whose normal weight is 150 pounds and who weighs 180 pounds is carrying 20 per cent excess body tissue. His heart is required to pump blood to 20 per cent increased tissues by weight, the kidneys must get rid of waste matter from 20 per cent increased tissue, the liver and pancreas must do the work for the same increase in tissue, and so all the organs in the abdomen (and also in the chest) are taxed by the increased burden."

Now we know that Nature is very generous, that the limit or margin of safety in these organs is much beyond the everyday needs of the body (we could live with one kidney, one half or less of the stomach, of the liver, and of the intestine), but the extra strain of overweight over a number of years must result in a breaking down before it otherwise would occur.

Tendency to Diabetes.

"And the reducing of the span of life is not the only penalty of overweight. The increased tendency toward diabetes is another. Dr. E. P. Joslin, Boston, the outstanding authority on diabetes, has shown that diabetes is from ten to twenty times more common among fat persons than in normal or undernourished persons." Dr. W. E. Preble, Boston, who made observations on 1,000 cases of obesity (overweight), found that 432 of the patients showed evidence of organic heart disease, 230 showed functional diseases of the heart (disturbances such as increased rate or irregularity) while 463 showed evidences of interference with the work of the kidneys.

That overweight persons are poor surgical risks is a common observation of the surgeons, and that they offer less resistance to such infections as pneumonia is a common observation also.

Now the above facts should not make those of normal weight think they would feel better, be more free of ailments, and live longer if they were to reduce their weight. To be of normal weight, with just the right amount of fat (15 to 20 per cent of the total body weight) is an asset.

Cut Down on Bread.

Nor should those who are slightly overweight give the above figures much thought; a matter of 5 to 8 pounds over the average weight should cause no concern. Perhaps cutting down slightly on bread, butter and potatoes—nothing more—would reduce the weight to normal over a period of two to three months.

It is of course fortunate up to a certain point that the fashion for slimmness has passed its height; stage directors no longer demand that members of the chorus shall be "skinny" and women in general are not ashamed of curves any more. This will prove helpful if women, and men also, will not let the pendulum swing too far the other way, and allow themselves to become overweight, because there is no getting away from the facts presented in insurance tables.

Insurance companies do not refuse applicants for insurance if they can help it. Their business is to insure all that they "safely" can. The fact that they refuse applicants with excessive overweight, and charge a higher premium for those who are even moderately overweight is the strongest possible argument that overweight is not only a menace to health but definitely shortens the life span.

Jade Symbol of Long Life Jade has been regarded as a symbol of long life among the Chinese for thousands of years. The gift of a piece of jade was equivalent to wishing the receiver happiness and long life.

Sew, Sew, Sew-Your-Own

TO MAKE you the girl of his dreams (and to keep him always dreaming), that's the happy ambition behind these newest creations by Sew-Your-Own. One of these frocks to enhance your beauty, and an evening to spend in that romantic lane of Moonlight and Roses—isn't it quite likely that you will become the girl of his dreams?

Luncheon for Two.

When he takes you out to luncheon you should be the very essence of chic. A two piece like the one at the left will bring the sort of eye-compliments you like, and you'll find it a great boon to comfort if the date is to be soon. You will probably want it made of the season's hit material, sheer crepe. The vestee is smart in a contrasting color.

When It's Dancing.

He'll be very Scotch about giving away dances when he sees you in your copy of the frock in the center. It was really born to dance. The tucked skirt has all the thrilling sophistication of a gored one, and it's much easier to sew. Little touches of grosgrain, and pretty puff sleeves add the kind of quiet elegance that makes this your choice for those happy hours of dancing under the stars.

End of Summer.

The season, like romance, rolls swiftly. But you still have time to do a few summery things in a summery frock such as the one at the right. In dimity or swiss it will make you more youthful and charming than many a more ornate style (and after all the girl of his dreams must be young and charming). A good suggestion might be to cut a carbon copy, while you're about it, in sheer wool with long sleeves. Then there'll be nothing to worry about when a cool evening happens along.

The Patterns.

Pattern 1288 is designed for sizes 14-20 (32 to 42 bust). Size 16 requires 3 1/2 yards of 39-inch material.

Pattern 1326 is designed for sizes 12-20 (30 to 38 bust). Size 14 requires 4 yards of 39-inch material.

Pattern 1228 is designed for sizes 11-19 (29 to 37 bust). Size 13 requires 4 1/2 yards of 35 or 39-inch material. With long sleeves 4 3/4 yards are required.

Send your order to The Sewing Circle Pattern Dept., Room 1070, 211 W. Wacker Dr., Chicago, Ill. Price of patterns, 15 cents (in coins) each.

True or False Views

Everyone is continually, by every action and thought, building up within him a true or false view of his own nature and of the world, a view which puts him into a right or wrong attitude to himself and to his fellow men.

Hot Weather is Here—Beware of Biliousness!

Have you ever noticed that in very hot weather your organs of digestion and elimination seem to become torpid or lazy? Your food sours, forms gas, causes belching, heartburn, and a feeling of restlessness and irritability. Perhaps you may have sick headache, nausea and dizziness or blind spells on suddenly rising. Your tongue may be coated, your complexion bilious and your bowel actions sluggish or insufficient.

These are some of the more common symptoms or warnings of biliousness or so-called "torpid liver," so prevalent in hot climates. Don't neglect them. Take Calo-tabs, the improved calomel compound tablets that give you the effects of calomel and salts, combined. You will be delighted with the prompt relief they afford. Trial package ten cents, family pkg. twenty-five cents. At drug stores. (Adv.)

When to Have Done There seems to be no part of knowledge in fewer hands than that of discerning when to have done.—Swift.

Enthusiasm Nothing great was ever achieved without enthusiasm. The way of life is wonderful; it is by abandonment.

CHAPTER VIII—Continued

She went to the servants' entrance of the apartment, rang the bell. A middle-aged man in a houseman's coat opened the door. "Oh, the new maid," he said. "Mr. Cayne said you'd be coming. This way."

Rachel followed him into a large hot kitchen where a stout woman was arranging an elaborate tea tray. "This is Lena, my wife," he said. "My name's Towers. What's yours?"

"My name's Rachel," she said meekly, adding still more meekly, "pleased to meet you both."

"I'll show you your room," said Mrs. Towers, giving Rachel a cold prolonged stare. "And you get along with this tray, Bert, the madame's rung twice. You're to go in and see her as soon as you've taken off your coat and hat, Rachel. Come right along."

Down a back hall was her room—no smaller than the one she had at Pink's, Rachel noticed—with white iron bed, unmade, a bureau with wavy mirror, a chair and table, a stationary stand.

"Bedding and towels in the bureau," said Mrs. Towers, "but don't stop to fix anything now, the madame's waiting. There's the closet, put your hat and coat in there. Mr. Towers and me have a room two doors down, the bathroom's between. Come ahead."

With a strong sense of masquerade and warning herself to be very careful, Rachel followed Mrs. Towers again through the back hall, then at the kitchen door they turned into another hall which led to the front. At a mirrored door Mrs. Towers paused and tapped, then opening it, announced in sugary tones: "Here's the new girl, madame."

Rachel found herself in a long, too-decorated, too-crowded, too-cluttered drawing room. Directly before her against the light were a smallish woman dressed in fluttery pastel chiffons and a very young man, lounging in one chair, his feet on another. And for the first time in her life she waited to hear her own mother's voice.

"Now where on earth," said Mrs. Cayne fretfully, "did Peter pick up such a great overgrown gawky creature?—she's sure to be clumsy."

The snock of the unfeeling comment sent the blood flying to Rachel's face. She couldn't speak. Then the very young man said, "Look, she's blushing!" and began to laugh.

His laughter brought back Rachel's composure. She comprehended that this was her half-brother, Peter Cayne's and Elinor's son, and she remembered that she must play her part. "Good afternoon, madame," she stammered, "I hope—I hope I will be able to do the work satisfactorily."

"I suppose you haven't a uniform? Not even an apron?" said Mrs. Cayne.

"No, madame." "There, you see, Holbrook," Elinor Cayne turned to her son. "Your father leaves everything to me. He would have it that I needed a maid and he sends one who hasn't so much as an apron."

"What color uniforms are you going to get for her? Why don't you try something interesting—soft blue or violet or bright pink?" Holbrook Cayne's voice was not boyish and he seemed older than his seventeen years, though he was slender and not very tall.

"Your father would have a brain storm!" Mrs. Cayne laughed now. Then she spoke again to Rachel. "What's your name?"

"Rachel." As she said it Rachel wondered if her mother would ask her last name, but Mrs. Cayne seemed satisfied and as she was busy with the teapot Rachel could look at her closely for the first time, the blue eyes Anne had described, the dark hair, the fair white skin, the general loveliness and an amazing youthfulness of outline and manner.

"Youthful," thought Rachel, "but obviously not young. And this is my own mother! How strange, how strange this is." Mrs. Cayne's many rings, the bracelets clinking down her arm as she lifted the cup, the twisted bar of diamonds in the chignon at her breast recalled Rachel to the reason she had been sent there. "I must be careful, I must be awfully careful," she thought. Aloud she said: "If you don't need me to do anything right away, madame, I'll unpack my suitcase. Or if you'd like me to I could go out and buy an apron to use tonight."

"But I do need you to do something," Rachel followed the small fluttering figure down the hall again and into an astonishing bedroom, roccoco pink and blue with endless mirrors. "There, look in that closet and you'll find some evening dresses that need pressing. I don't know which one I'll wear tonight, so you can press them all. That closet's for evening clothes alone. This one over here is for day things."

The evening dress closet was wide and deep, with so many gowns of every color, every material, that Rachel paused in surprise. Mrs. Cayne was impatient. "Take the first row and get them done before dinner, I'll wear one of them. You can do the others tonight."

"It's a tryout for me," thought Rachel. She took an armful of dresses and went back to Mrs. Towers, who indicated a small laundry beyond the kitchen with an iron and pressing board.

The dresses were expensive and elaborate, too elaborate, too showy. Rachel worked at them carefully, surprised to find herself almost without feeling. She wasn't even disappointed, she was simply numb and blank.

Mrs. Towers called her. "The madame's ringing for you."

"I'm not half done," said Rachel. "Take 'em all back and don't say nothing. She won't look 'em over," advised the cook with a shrewd, not unfriendly glance. "She don't know good work from bad. She just likes to think she's making people step."

Thus warned, Rachel carried the dresses back to the bedroom. Mrs. Cayne was sitting before her dressing table taking off her bracelets.

"I'll wear that blue crepe, I think," she said, and Rachel laid it carefully on the bed. "Silver sandals—on the rack in the evening dress closet. And I want my bath quite warm, but not hot. Heaps of scent."

Rachel brought the slippers and was sent for fresh stockings and underwear from one of the tall in-laid French chests. There seemed to be no end to Mrs. Cayne's wardrobe. The bathroom was an exotic arrangement of colored marbles, mirrors, plate glass, silver. Rachel started the water, added quantities of gardenia bath salts and was startled to see how somber and shabby she looked in her old knitted suit in the middle of the glitter and luxury. She fetched a negligee of crushed pink velvet, pink velvet mules bordered with white fur, helped Mrs. Cayne to take off her chignons and to slip out of her girdle.

"Press every dress before you hang it up, that's most important," said Mrs. Cayne absently. She was absorbed in watching her reflection from every possible angle with open pleasure.

Rachel put the room in order while Elinor bathed. The door opened and Mr. Cayne looked in. He recognized Rachel with satisfaction. "Here you are then," he said, nodding. "Where's Mrs. Cayne?"

"Taking her bath, sir."

"Oh Elinor," called her husband, "want to see a show tonight?"

"I can't tonight. Holbrook and I are going to the movies."

Mr. Cayne came into the room, his keen glance ran over the bracelets and rings on the dressing table, he put out a cautious finger, moved them, counting. "I'll go with you," he said.

Mrs. Cayne's voice was sweet, but faintly mocking. "Dear, you won't like it, I'm chaperoning a party of Holbrook's friends."

"No, I couldn't stand that." He looked round at Rachel with a sly twinkle. "How do you like your new maid?" he called.

"She's terribly overgrown and gawky and rather dumb. I don't see why you couldn't get me someone experienced."

"Oh pooh, nobody ever suits you." Rachel realized that this remark was in the nature of explanation and apology to her. She seized another armful of dresses and escaped to the laundry. When she came back Mr. Cayne had gone to his own room and Mrs. Cayne was waiting to be dressed. She was in much better humor. Rachel tried to seem accustomed to her work, buckled the sandals deftly, manipulated the hooks and snaps with concentrated attention. Just before the gown went on Mrs. Cayne settled herself to the prolonged labor of make-up. It was plain that she enjoyed the process and she did it skillfully. Rachel watched her with an obscure painful resentment, which she could not reason away.

When Elinor's face was tinted to her pleasure she stepped into the dress she had selected, a blue crepe exactly the color of her eyes, and Rachel drew it up over the slim hips, adjusted the intricate shoulder straps and buttoned 25 tiny buttons down the back. Then Elinor again put on her rings and bracelets and brooch, reshaped her lips, touched perfume to each wrist and behind each ear and finally, directing Rachel to move the long mirrors so that they would offer her entire reflection, she walked back and forth the length of the room, observing her effect intently.

When she was quite satisfied, she had more orders for Rachel. "I'll want my mink coat and muff and that little hat of blue velvet flowers and a blue velvet bag. Have everything ready as soon as dinner's over, and you might as well open the beds. Towers will show you, you'll have to do that regularly. But you don't need to wait up until I come in tonight."

Rachel went back to the kitchen and asked if there was anything she could do to help Mrs. Towers, an offer which pleased the woman. "No, you go on and unpack your bag and make your bed," she said. "She may think up something for you to do tonight."

"I have the rest of those dresses to press," said Rachel. "You take them out of the closet and shake them and put them back. She won't notice. Is she going out tonight?"

"She and—and—young Mr. Cayne are going to the movies with some of his friends."

"You better call him Mr. Holbrook, that's what they like. Mr. Cayne not going?"

Rachel reported the conversation on that subject and Mrs. Towers smiled grimly. "She likes to run around and pretend Mr. Holbrook's her beau. She can't get away with it when Mr. Cayne's along. Go ahead now, fix your bed, we don't begin our dinner till the dessert's gone into the dining room."

"I'm awfully obliged to you for helping me out, Mrs. Towers," said Rachel. "Any time you want me to do anything here please say so."

"That's all right. I guess we'll get along. You can call me Lena if you want."

Lena liked her. Rachel knew that was an asset. She hurried into her tiny room and made haste to unpack and put the bedclothes on the bed, then scrubbed her face and hands and smoothed her hair flat again for her curls were perking up—everything at top speed to be ready if Mrs. Cayne rang for her and to keep her thoughts off the display of vanity and uselessness she had just seen. It had disturbed and hurt her in a way she could not explain nor forgive; she was shaken with disappointment which she must not yet admit.

When Rachel went back to the kitchen dinner was going into the dining room. The serving table was filled with massive silver and red and gold French china and Lena was making fresh toast, draining artichokes and stirring golden Hollandaise sauce all apparently at the same time. Towers, impressive in his dress suit, had just carried in boned stuffed squabs, he brought out the platter, seized the tray with gravy, wild grape jelly and buttered crumbs in individual dishes and disappeared again. He and Lena had the serving beautifully systematized, it was fascinating to watch, every one of the many dishes was ready for him exactly as he needed it. Lena glanced up only once as she spooned and garnished and turned from the stove to the serving table: "You could set our table if you want, Rachel," she said "on the side there, the dishes in the cupboard up above, see?"

So Rachel prepared the table for her first meal under her mother's roof in the kitchen with the cook and the butler. She did it carefully, anxious to win Lena's approval, but it took only a few moments, she had it finished before the salad was served. It was a marvelous-looking salad, white endive wreathed with green crex, and it came chilled from the icebox with its plates. The sight and smell of the food made Rachel very hungry and Lena guessed it. She ladled out a bowl of soup and handed it to her: "They take their time," she said "but that's no reason why you should starve."

Towers hastened in. "They're going to have coffee at the table on account of her and the boy going out." He looked at Rachel: "You better be ready to jump."

Rachel slipped down the hall past the dining room door to Mrs. Cayne's bedroom and took out the coat, hat and gloves, but she could not find a blue bag and was wary of rummaging. Presently Mrs. Cayne came in, head in the air, bright with triumph. "The blue bag's in that chest, top drawer—no, no, stupid, the bag with the lapis top's the one I want!"

She flung that direction at Rachel but otherwise hardly noticed her, for she was again intent on herself in the mirrors. But when she was ready, the little blue velvet hat set exquisitely on her exquisite little head, her slim body wrapped in the softness of her furs, she had one thing more to say and she said it with thoughtless cruelty: "Borrow an apron from Lena before I see you again, you're too depressing in that dreadful old rag."

The atmosphere in the kitchen had greatly changed when Rachel went back for the rest of her dinner. Towers had taken off his coat and he and Lena were leisurely and thoroughly eating their way through the generous remainders of the family's meal. They piled Rachel's plate, but she had lost her hunger. "I'm tired," she told them, wishing they wouldn't chew so audibly and visibly.

"Got to wait up for her?" asked Towers, taking another squab. "No, she said not to, tonight. But she said I was to open the beds, that you'd show me how she likes it done and then I'm to do it regularly."

Towers and Mrs. Towers exchanged meaningful looks. "She don't want Mr. Cayne to know what time she gets in. She wouldn't take the car, she knew Yates would keep tabs on 'em." This was Towers' explanation.

"What was she nagging him for tonight?" asked Lena. "Wants an grime cape and some jewelry, pair o' clips, I think. They only cost seven thousand."

"She's got enough jewelry now to stock a shop," said Lena to Rachel, "and she takes no more care of it than if it came from the five-and-dime. Did you see where she keeps it?"

"No, I didn't." Rachel hid her now stimulated interest. "It's all in a little wall safe behind her dressing table and half the time she don't remember to lock it. If Mr. Cayne didn't look after it she wouldn't know what she's got, nor where she'd put it."

"She don't keep track of anything," added Towers. "I don't see how she can," said Rachel. "I never saw a place so full of ornaments."

Towers wagged his head. "It's a junk shop, that's what it is. Mr. Cayne used to have the nicest nicest bachelor apartment before he got married! But she likes things fancy, everything."

Mathematics Book by Babylonians in 2000 B. C. Shows Existence of Experts

A "math book" written by Babylonians 2000 B. C. has been deciphered, and scientists are deeply impressed by the amazing early progress of those ancients in higher mathematics. The mathematics book, written on 44 clay tablets, shows that 15 centuries before Greek math wizards were born, Babylonians were already doing many tricks with figures that Greeks have been credited with discovering. Babylonian mathematics included multiplication tables, a symbol for zero, negative numbers, tables for calculating areas and volumes, tables of squares and cubes and reciprocals.

For 25 years, all but two tablets of the book have lain unread in Yale's Babylonian collection. Now, Prof. O. Neugebauer of the University of Copenhagen has deciphered them, working from photographs and hand-made copies of the cuneiform inscriptions. The two missing "pages" of the ancient book have just recently been located in Paris. Babylonians were more practical in their mathematical science than Greeks, the ancient book indicates. Many of their tables would be useful in surveying and building, in digging dykes and constructing walls. But when it came to theoretical problems, the Babylonian math sharks understood quadratic and even higher degree equations and solved them by tables, as they are still solved.

The small mathematics book, written in clay, clears up for mathematicians the puzzle of how the Greeks made such swift progress in this science. "It seems now that a large body of facts must have been inherited by the Greeks from Babylonian sources," says Prof. Oystein Ore, Yale mathematician. "The exact manner in which this knowledge was transmitted is not yet altogether clear. The theorem of Pythagoras, for example, was well known to the Babylonians."

Divorces don't interfere with business judgment in Hollywood. For instance, when William Wyler was asked what player he would like to have in the leading role of "Having a Wonderful Time" he said that only Margaret Sullavan, his ex-wife, had the beauty and acting skill required for the role. Up spoke Henry Fonda, another ex-husband of Margaret's, to say that he would like to play opposite her. So, just to complete the cycle, they telephoned her present husband, Leland Hayward, who is her manager, and asked him if she would be free to make the picture before going back to New York for stage engagements and he said he would be happy to arrange it.

"The Toast of New York" starring Frances Farmer is a fascinating picture. It deals with the picturesque period when Jim Fisk was becoming a big shot in Wall Street, when business men went around brandishing buggy whips when they weren't conniving to get control of a railroad, or wreck each other's fortunes.

All over the country box-office records are being broken by "Saratoga," the picture on which Jean Harlow was working at the time of her tragic death. Her fans would be happier, I think, to see one of her old pictures again, a gay, light-hearted picture like "Bombshell" or "Reckless," for in "Saratoga" she is but a pallid shadow of her former self.

After arguing for weeks about her salary demands, RKO have at last signed Ruby Keeler to make two pictures a year for them. She won't be in the next Fred Astaire picture, however, for Joan Fontaine has that leading role nailed down. Joan has been working like a beaver, taking dancing and singing lessons preparing for this big chance. Ruby's first will be "Love Below Freezing," the picture which will bring little Mitzi Green back to the screen.

A few weeks ago Josephine Hutchinson was busily reading plays, planning to go back to the stage because she was so depressed over the parts Warner Brothers had given her. But when her Warner contract expired, M-G-M signed her up and now she says she won't go back to the stage until she is old enough to play character roles.

Freddie Bartholomew's guardian has lost one round of her battle to get M-G-M to pay him more money. The studio has taken him out of the cast of "Thoroughbreds Don't Cry" and given the role to Douglas Scott who played in "Wee Willie Winkie." As soon as Freddie Bartholomew started making big money, his parents, who had left his care in the entire charge of his aunt from his infancy, swooped down on the household and wanted the privilege of spending his money. A court fight followed wherein his aunt tried to protect him, and she did win his guardianship.

ODDS AND ENDS—Paramount troupe on location are running into plenty of trouble: "The Buccaneers" company near New Orleans had their camera barge wrecked in a sudden storm. An earthquake in Alaska held up work on "Spencer of the North." Feroocious weather on the California desert knocked out several members of the "Wells Fargo" troupe, and expense checks did not arrive in time to cover production expenses of Clyde Elliott and his gang in Singapore. Bob Burns and his basovols have a rival! Mischa Auer has invented a popo-phone and plays it whenever offered the slightest encouragement. It consists of a row of pop bottles containing varying amounts of water.

STAR DUST
Movie • Radio
By VIRGINIA VALE

SO GREAT has been the success of "A Star Is Born," all the Hollywood studios are busy making pictures concerning the private lives of film stars. Just copy cats, that's what the film producers are.

First one of these pictures to reach the screen is "Hollywood Cowboy" with George O'Brien as the star and it is a very entertaining Western. Most pretentious of them all is "Stand In" which boasts Leslie Howard and Joan Blondell in the cast. Most soothing to the ears is "Music for Madame" in which Nino Martini lifts his voice in song, and the biggest novelty is Grand National's "Something to Sing About."

Divorces don't interfere with business judgment in Hollywood. For instance, when William Wyler was asked what player he would like to have in the leading role of "Having a Wonderful Time" he said that only Margaret Sullavan, his ex-wife, had the beauty and acting skill required for the role. Up spoke Henry Fonda, another ex-husband of Margaret's, to say that he would like to play opposite her. So, just to complete the cycle, they telephoned her present husband, Leland Hayward, who is her manager, and asked him if she would be free to make the picture before going back to New York for stage engagements and he said he would be happy to arrange it.

"The Toast of New York" starring Frances Farmer is a fascinating picture. It deals with the picturesque period when Jim Fisk was becoming a big shot in Wall Street, when business men went around brandishing buggy whips when they weren't conniving to get control of a railroad, or wreck each other's fortunes.

All over the country box-office records are being broken by "Saratoga," the picture on which Jean Harlow was working at the time of her tragic death. Her fans would be happier, I think, to see one of her old pictures again, a gay, light-hearted picture like "Bombshell" or "Reckless," for in "Saratoga" she is but a pallid shadow of her former self.

After arguing for weeks about her salary demands, RKO have at last signed Ruby Keeler to make two pictures a year for them. She won't be in the next Fred Astaire picture, however, for Joan Fontaine has that leading role nailed down. Joan has been working like a beaver, taking dancing and singing lessons preparing for this big chance. Ruby's first will be "Love Below Freezing," the picture which will bring little Mitzi Green back to the screen.

A few weeks ago Josephine Hutchinson was busily reading plays, planning to go back to the stage because she was so depressed over the parts Warner Brothers had given her. But when her Warner contract expired, M-G-M signed her up and now she says she won't go back to the stage until she is old enough to play character roles.

Freddie Bartholomew's guardian has lost one round of her battle to get M-G-M to pay him more money. The studio has taken him out of the cast of "Thoroughbreds Don't Cry" and given the role to Douglas Scott who played in "Wee Willie Winkie." As soon as Freddie Bartholomew started making big money, his parents, who had left his care in the entire charge of his aunt from his infancy, swooped down on the household and wanted the privilege of spending his money. A court fight followed wherein his aunt tried to protect him, and she did win his guardianship.

ODDS AND ENDS—Paramount troupe on location are running into plenty of trouble: "The Buccaneers" company near New Orleans had their camera barge wrecked in a sudden storm. An earthquake in Alaska held up work on "Spencer of the North." Feroocious weather on the California desert knocked out several members of the "Wells Fargo" troupe, and expense checks did not arrive in time to cover production expenses of Clyde Elliott and his gang in Singapore. Bob Burns and his basovols have a rival! Mischa Auer has invented a popo-phone and plays it whenever offered the slightest encouragement. It consists of a row of pop bottles containing varying amounts of water.

American Boy Introduces A New Football Game

In the early fall issue of the AMERICAN BOY there'll be presented the story of a new game—six man football—fast as professional football, wide open as basketball, thrilling as hockey

The game came to life through the need of small schools for some substitute for 11-man football, which was too expensive.
Stephen Epler, a Nebraska graduate student in athletics, developed the game of six man football to meet this need. In six man football anybody can score, the possibility of injury from mass plays is minimized, and the game is open enough for spectators to follow every exciting development.

The new game is a hit. New schools are taking it up every day. In coming issues THE AMERICAN BOY tells the world about this practical new game.
In addition, it presents THE AMERICAN BOY Official Handbook, which can be obtained from the magazine at 20 cents a copy or 15 cents when bought in bulk

NOTE: Subscription prices of
THE AMERICAN BOY will be raised in the near future. Send your subscription order at once to take advantage of the bargain rates now in effect: one year at $1.00 or three years at $2.00
Foreign subscription 50c a year extra. Send your name, address and remittance to THE AMERI-CAN BOY, 7430 Second Blvd.,
Detroit, Mich. On newsstands
the price is 15c a copy.

John Mitchell visited in Lubbock Sunday and Monday.
