R. L. Hunsucker Dies

R. L. Hunsucker, age 67, passed away Tuesday, Oct. 5, in Clarendon, after an extended illness. Funeral services were held Wednesday at the First Baptist Church here, conducted by Rev. M. E. Wells, pastor. The choir sang "Nearer My God to Thee," and a duet "Where We'll Never Grow Old," was sung by Mrs. Alva Simmons and Mrs. Hebert Moffitt. Interment was made in Rowe cemetery. Pallbearers were T. N. Messer, W. B. Lawrence, Newt Waldron, Chas. Swinney, Bill Seales, Win. Fred Doherty, Carl Naylor and O. R. Caldwell.

Robert Lee Hunsucker was born July 11, 1870, in Moscow, Tenn. He was married in 1898 to Miss Doris Fulford. To this union were born six sons and two daughters, all of whom are living. They are: Henry, Zask, and Ross Hunsucker of Palatka, Florida; Claude Hunsucker and Mrs. Pearl Wagener of Tulare, Calif.; Elmer Hunsucker of Goodnight, Cullen Hunsucker and Mrs. J. E. Kidd of Hedley.

He is also survived by two sisters, Mrs. S. F. Sutton of Waxahatchie and Mrs. R. W. Conder of DeLeon, and a number of other relatives and friends.

He had lived in and near Hedley since 1921, and at one time operated a cafe here.

The Informer joins their many other friends in extending deep sympathy to the bereaved.

Cotton Ginned

Up to Tuesday noon, the three Hedley gins had ginned a total of 410 bales of cotton this season.

A new shipment of low priced utensils just arrived at Hooker's.

Weddings

McQueen-Burns

Announcement has been made of the marriage of Willard McQueen of Abilene and Miss Francis Burns of Clovis, N. Mex., which took place Sept. 19 at the home of the bride's parents in Clovis. Marvin Hickey was best man.

The groom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. E. M. McQueen of Hedley. He is a graduate of Wellington high school and is manager of a shoe store in Abilene, where they will make their home.

The bride attended Clovis high school and Texas Tech at Lubbock. She has been employed in a Lubbock motor company.

Pierce-Harrison

Another recent wedding was that of Fred Pierce and Miss Iola Harrison, both of Hedley, who were united in marriage Saturday, Sept. 25, at the home of the bride's parents. Rev. M. E. Wells read the ceremony.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. Davis Harrison. She attended school at Lela, and had been employed for some time in Clarendon. The family moved here last year from Shamrock.

The groom is the son of Mrs. J. E. Pierce. He attended school at McKnight, and has lived in and near Hedley many years. The couple plan to make their home in Hedley.

The Informer joins a host of friends in wishing the young couple success and happiness.

Warning

I am asking all citizens of the county to cooperate with me in keeping down petty theft during the cotton season, when the county is filled with transients. Most of these are honest but some are not, and everyone is urged to keep all money and valuables locked up and leave some one at home when you come to town. Do not leave your car parked in front of your house at night, or leave tools and other articles out where they can be easily stolen. Your cooperation will be appreciated.

Guy Pierce, Sheriff

Hazel Hurd Players Here All Next Week

The Hazel Hurd players will be in Hedley one week, starting Monday, Oct. 11, to give Hedley and Donley County citizens a legitimate drama by a company with whom all local people are acquainted.

This is the twentieth successive year the Hazel Hurd Players have been in the show business in the southwest.

Fred Twyman, of Spearman, is manager of the players, and was in Hedley Tuesday making arrangements for their stand here next week.

Mr. and Mrs. Twyman make their winter home in Spearman, where they take active part in the civic and social affairs of the town. Mr. Twyman owns considerable real estate in that city.

The Hazel Hurd Players are experienced troupers, friendly and courteous. These people have shown their faith in the restoration of this Plains region by booking their show solid over the "dust bowl."

Mr. and Mrs. Twyman have been engaged in this work for several years and have gained a wide reputation among all classes and professions for producing a clean type of entertainment.

See the coupon attached to this week's advertisement in this week's issue, and come to Hedley for many enjoyable hours of good clean fun and entertainment.

A brand new tent has been purchased since their last engagement here. A new cast of actors accompany the show, since it is the policy of the company to make a complete change of players each year. A high class orchestra is also one of the features of the Hazel Hurd Players.

A new shipment of ladies hats; also men and boy's caps.

Course in Shop Work Added to Curriculum

A decided trend of the curriculum of our present day schools toward the practical arts, the present economic conditions and the steadily increasing demand for skilled labor has made it logical and necessary for the local school to add a course in Shop Work to its high school courses this year.

The main objective of the course will be to acquaint the boy with the proper and efficient use of the ordinary tools found in the average home work shop. The course this year will consist largely of bench woodwork with projects selected to meet the needs of the individual student as much as possible. It has the very important advantage of teaching by doing rather than by theory without practice.

The department has added much new equipment this year and has opened with its limit of students, a class of 16 boys from the sophomore, junior and senior classes. To date the boys have equipped and properly arranged the tool room, done several repair jobs about the school buildings, and started their first fine furniture projects.

87 SPEED RECORDS BROKEN TO MAKE TIRES SAFER FOR YOU

Never Before Have Tires Been Put to Such Gruelling
Torture

AT SPEEDS as high as 180 miles an hour—with the hot, coarse, abrasive salt grinding, tearing, scorching his tires—Ab Jenkins' special racer weighing nearly three tons, pounded over the Bonneville Salt Beds at such terrific speed that it caused the surface to break up. Before the end of the run the track was so pitted and rough that it was almost impossible to hold the car on its course. Yet Jenkins set 87 new World, International and American speed records on Firestone Tires.

Building tires capable of establishing such records is made possible only because of patented Firestone manufacturing processes. These exclusive features enable Firestone to provide car owners with tires that are extra safe.

For the greatest protection of yourself and your family equip your car with Firestone TRIPLE-SAFE Tires. By TRIPLE-SAFE we mean—

1 PROTECTION AGAINST SKIDDING—The scientific tread design gives longer non-skid mileage and stops your car up to 25% quicker.

2 PROTECTION AGAINST BLOWOUTS—Firestone Tires run up to 28 degrees cooler because every fiber of every cord in every ply is saturated with liquid rubber by the Firestone patented Gum-Dipping process. This counteracts the internal friction and heat that ordinarily cause blowouts.

3 PROTECTION AGAINST PUNCTURES—Two extra layers of Gum-Dipped cords under the tread add strength to the tire and give extra protection against punctures.

Now is the time to make your car tire-safe for fall and winter driving. Join the Firestone SAVE A LIFE Campaign today by equipping your car with a set of new FIRESTONE TRIPLE-SAFE Tires—the safest tires that money can buy!

YOU CANNOT AFFORD TO DRIVE WITHOUT FIRESTONE TRIPLE-SAFE TIRES

Last year highway accidents cost the lives of more than 38,000 men, women and children and a million more were injured! More than 40,000 of these deaths and injuries were caused directly by punctures, blowouts and skidding due to smooth, worn, unsafe tires!

School Is Training Ground for Manners

DEAR Mrs. Post: Will you please tell me whether my son, who is fourteen, ought to continue to give up his seat on the school bus to girls going back and forth from high school? He complained the other day that if he has to continue this practice he will have to stand all spring since the bus is too small to provide seats for everyone?

Answer: Since a school bus can hardly be rated as a public conveyance, I am afraid that as long as the seating is inadequate to take care of everyone, the boys will all have to give up their seats to the girls standing near them—and especially is this true if they know the girls. This seems very unfair. I know, but it would really be demoralizing to his social training were he to do otherwise. Even in a public bus a man who is a gentleman would not think of remaining seated if the woman standing in front of him were someone he knew.

Real Epicure Insists on Mixing Own Salad

DEAR Mrs. Post: In a certain restaurant at which I eat my lunch every day, when I order a salad bowl of greens they bring the dressing in a separate pitcher. Is it proper to mix the salad in the bowl or to put a little salad on one's plate at a time and pour the dressing over it? People seem to do both and I wonder why the bowl and wooden implements are provided if one is not supposed to mix it first.

Answer: Genuine salad lovers all mix salad thoroughly beforehand, but others would be more inclined to pour the dressing on a portion at a time. In other words, you do as you choose.

Decorative Covers Only.

DEAR Mrs. Post: Is it incorrect to keep dust covers on books when these are displayed in open book shelves? I have kept on the covers because they were more decorative than the books themselves and thought they would add color to the living room. My daughter now comes home from college and says they must come off because in bad taste. Where did she get this idea?

Answer: If you mean they have their own paper jackets on them, I think these look too much like a store. But if they are uniform covers, which you have put on for decorative color, then leave them on by all means.

Depends on Circumstances.

DEAR Mrs. Post: Socially I know it is proper for a young man to rise when women enter the room, but does this apply equally when a woman teacher enters the classroom?

Answer: If the class is very small the boys (or young men) would naturally rise for a woman teacher, and strictly speaking, also for a man. But in a very big class where the pupils are practically the audience and the teacher is a lecturer who takes her (or his) place on a platform, the students would remain seated.

Adopting a Child.

DEAR Mrs. Post: We are expecting a young boy from an orphanage very soon, having been able to get him through a local politician who recommended us highly and used his influence. Is there anything we could do to show our appreciation to him? I do not know his wife.

Answer: I think it would be better to wait until the child has become thoroughly established in your family and then write the politician a letter and tell him how happy Johnny has made you.

Say What You Mean.

DEAR Mrs. Post: Even weddings in our community are not rare and at a great many of them people wear full evening regalia. I am going to have a small evening wedding at home only because this is the time that seems best suited to our plans. How can we make it clear to the guests that this will not be a dress occasion? Otherwise some will come in evening clothes and others will not, and some might feel uncomfortable.

Answer: At the end of the invitations write "Not evening dress."

Don't Dirty a Dolly.

DEAR Mrs. Post: When the finger bowl is brought to the table on the dessert plate, on which is a lace dolly, how does one remove the finger bowl from the table, and where is it put? Is the dolly removed with it or is dessert put on the dolly?

Answer: The dolly should be lifted off with the finger bowl and both put down at your place wherever there is room. On no account put anything eatable on top of a lace dolly.

Silks Are Most Sumptuous This Fall

By CHERIE NICHOLAS

THE fourth annual silk parade is on in country-wide pageantry and during this time your favorite stores will have an unusually wide selection of silk merchandise and the smartest new silk fabrics. Plan to do your shopping for your fall wardrobe at that time when the highlights of the season will be available.

For the important evening wrap, silk and metal brocades in quaintly beautiful colorings or exotic tones are in high favor. These are often elaborate in texture and include self and metal faconne as well as exquisitely colorful metal brocaded flowers. For a floating full-skirted frock, silk and metal marquise that reminds of oriental sheers that veiled harem beauties, is new this season.

The queenly figure descending the stairs to the right in the picture is gowned in one of the opulent new silks. It is a black satin with self and metal faconne in a leaf pattern. Here is a perfect demonstration of the new trend toward styling the gown with that utmost simplicity that ignores any suggestion of trimming in order the more to play up the superbness of the fabric. It is interesting to note the gloves milady wears in that the cuffs are finished with bands of gilt-tering sequins that match perfectly. For evening there is nothing more breath taking than the colorful lacquer-printed silk satins. These feature flowers, geometrics, Indian and Persian designs, and they are very new and important. See to the left in the picture how dramatically printed satin of the glamorous type drapes to the figure.

Describing the swatches of handsome silks shown in the insets below, the one to the left is a multi-color stamp printed silk satin for evening. It will prove charming for a short-skirted young dance frock. It is also the type of silk that makes a fetching deep girdele for a black velvet dress—which is one thing about these more elegant silks: if your allowance does not permit buying yards and yards just a mere dash of them used in a trimming way on a monotone frock will give it an aristocratic air.

To the right is a black silk satin with self and metal faconne richly interwoven into a leaf pattern. It ranks high among silks that are done in a grand manner.

Centered in the trio of insets is a black faille with silver metal bandings, suitable for trimmings, blouses, dinner gown or evening jackets.

LEATHER TIE-BELT

By CHERIE NICHOLAS

This very good looking fall coat in bold herringbone patterned soft wool in natural beige has a notched collar of beaver and a wide crush belt of brown leather with fringed ends, each of which is a distinctive feature. The collaring of cloth coats with handsome fur is one of fashion's most notable styling features this fall, while the use of leather in numberless trimming ways, especially for smart girdles, is one of the highest highlights of the mode this season. You can vision for yourself the swank that a leather tie-girdle as pictured will give to coats made of cloth. The broad shoulders are also good points in the styling of the coat pictured.

SMART FROCKS USE LAVISH EMBROIDERY

A craze for embroidery is on. Some of the smartest newest woollens for daytime frocks and for the stylish little separate jackets and boleros and for waistcoats and blouses are embroidered with an all-over scattering of tiny motifs or perhaps with florals arranged in the popular striped effects.

Knitted fashions also reflect the flair for embroidery in that they carry flowers and designs done in bright yarns showing peasant influence.

The black dress that has a gorgeous bouquet embroidered like a corsage at either the waistline or shoulder is a winsome number. Any woman who can embroider could be the happy possessor of a fetching dress like this for "embroider your own" requires but little effort.

Evening fashions fairly scintillate with dazzling embroideries. Short sleeves, allover sequin-embroidered, enrich black velvet dinner gowns. Embroidery is done on lace on tulle, on velvet ribbons that girdele the waist and so on and so on the story of embroidery is endless this season. Even the simplest linen, cotton or wool day dress is apt to yield to the present urge for hand-stitchery of some fanciful sort.

Youthful Effect Stressed in New Wedding Clothes

The extremely youthful trend of this season's clothes has had its effect on wedding gowns. The most recent Paris brides have been dressed in demure creations of white mousseline or organdie which greatly resemble the frocks worn by French children for their first communion.

Instead of the halo head veils or the conventional wreaths of orange blossoms, lilies of the valley or camellias, the dressmakers are using little round caps of tulle with a long floating veil attached just in back.

Roomy Jackets

A gray velveteen jacket with fullness at the front is smart over a pencil-slim wool dress in matching gray.

GO FARTHER BEFORE YOU NEED A QUART

How long should a quart of oil last?

No one can answer that question specifically because driving habits differ. But there is one thing certain... you will go farther with Quaker State because it gives you "an extra quart of lubrication in every gallon." You can easily prove the economy of Quaker State by making the "First Quart" Test. And remember... the oil that stands up longest is giving your motor the safest lubrication. YOUR MONEY BACK-- IF SWITCHING TO POSTUM DOESN'T HELP YOU!

MANY people can safely drink coffee. But many others--and all children--should never drink it. If you suspect that the caffeine in coffee disagrees with you... try Postum's 30-day test. Buy a can of Postum and drink it instead of coffee for a full month. If... after 30 days... you do not feel better, return the Postum container top with your name and address to General Foods, Battle Creek, Mich., and we will refund purchase price, plus postage! (If you live in Canada, address General Foods, Ltd., Cobourg, Ont.) Postum contains no caffeine. It is simply whole wheat and bran, roasted and slightly sweetened. It comes in two forms... Postum Cereal, the kind you boil or percolate... and Instant Postum, made instantly in the cup. Economical, easy to make, delicious, hot or iced. You may miss coffee at first, but you'll soon love Postum's own rich flavor. A product of General Foods. (Offer expires Dec. 31, 1937.)

Restraint Will Cheer Those in Mourning

DEAR Mrs. Post: I am in mourning and many people have called on me in the past few weeks. Always they talk about my dear departed husband and I live through the torments of having to face the hard realities of the future alone. Today a friend came to see me and not once during the whole time did she mention my trouble. She spoke of the things that had been happening in the outside world with which she knew I must have grown out of touch, and when she left I felt very much cheered. This seems a good point to make in your column for the benefit of those who would co-operate in making the world a more comfortable place for those in real sorrow. I feel sure that most people think they should talk about the departed one when paying such a visit.

Answer: I am very glad indeed to make the point you suggest, although it seems almost unbelievable that anyone could be so insensitive as to speak to people about their really great sorrow further than to reply to whatever they themselves may say. Even they who do talk about the one they have lost would be more greatly comforted by a person who listens with sympathy and perhaps says something appreciative about the one who has died, but it almost always causes pain to be asked questions or to have the subject pursued by the visitor.

How Does One Speed a Lingering Visitor?

DEAR Mrs. Post: What is the most courteous way of telling formal acquaintances, who come to call and stay longer than expected, that it is necessary for them to leave? In the case I am referring to we hardly knew the visitors and did not know how to tell them that we had to dress and drive a distance through city traffic into the suburbs in order to keep a dinner engagement.

Answer: No question is so hard to answer as that of politely speeding a not departing visitor. And we are all of us apt to put those with whom we have an engagement to inconvenience because of the fear of being rude to a visitor in our own house. To glance at the clock and become restless is very bad. The way would be to say frankly, "I am sorry; I wish we could keep on talking but we must dress and drive to Suburbantown." Sometimes when time is really limited and someone comes, it is better to greet her by saying, "I am so glad to see you but I am very distressed to have to tell you that we have only a few minutes before we have to leave for the country."

Mixing Up Furniture.

DEAR Mrs. Post: Will you please tell me just how far one may go in mixing furniture? I mean, should one room contain pieces of the same period, or may pieces of various styles be combined properly in one room? And what periods are most compatible?

Answer: Rooms with mixed furniture have generally much more charm than those which too strictly adhere to a definite style. The only important rule to be observed is that crude pieces can not very well be put with those which are finely finished. And yet, the becomingness of one piece to another is much more a matter of feeling than of rule. For instance, one might put Jacobean pieces with Georgian as well as with Italian, but one could not very well put Jacobean next to fragile examples of Hepplewhite.

Greeting the Boss.

DEAR Mrs. Post: On the way out of our office building the other day I passed one of our executives whom I seldom see. He said, "Good morning Miss Brown, how are you?" and took me so completely by surprise that I said, "Fine, thank you" and don't believe that was the proper answer for me to have made. Under such a circumstance, what does one say?

Answer: "Very well, thank you" is the punctilious reply and the fact that you said "Fine" was certainly not out of the way. In the business world, however, it would have been equally proper to merely say "Good morning" unless you had really been ill and his question was therefore asked intentionally.

Catching Last Drop.

DEAR Mrs. Post: How can syrup or cream poured from a pitcher be kept from losing the last drop over the side, which not only looks unsightly but often soils the tablecloth?

Answer: If you stop short when pouring, the last drop is not likely to run down the side of the pitcher. But if it should spill over a little, take your clean spoon and hold it under the lip to catch the drop. A pitcher, by the way, which is to be set upon the table should have under it a tray or a coaster or possibly a matching saucer.

She thought Rachel was afraid and she went on to childish threats: "I shouldn't think you could. But you're going to hear this and much worse. I'll make it my only object in life to see that you're paid out for this. I'll do as much to you as you have to me, more if I can."

"You've done that already," said Rachel slowly, "just by letting me know what sort you are. I would have given anything to find you different."

"What do you mean?" demanded Elinor. "How dare you talk like that!"

Rachel opened her lips to say it. "But you're my mother"—she held the four words waiting, unspoken, running them over in her mind, thinking what they might mean to both of them.

"If I tell her," thought Rachel, "if I tell her . . . how I came here, wanting her, loving her, hoping she would . . . no, I can't do it. I can't. She is not my mother, I was born to her, but that doesn't make her my mother, not really. Anne's my real mother. This woman doesn't want me, she hates me, she'd hate me more if she knew I was her child."

She pushed it up and climbed in. She knew her way up the stairs and then, not into her own room, but into Anne's. There she threw off her hat, pulled the dust cover from the bed and lay down on the bare mattress in all her clothes, with her coat for cover. And then at last she could cry. She did not know when her tears stopped and she fell into a deep, dreamless, healing sleep.

Bright chilly sunshine woke her, the room was full of it coming through the shutterless uncurtained windows across the ocean, the reflection from the water giving it a restless white brilliancy, the waves' movement translated into the medium of light. Cold, stiff and crumpled, Rachel sat up blinking, hardly knowing at first where she was. Her principal feeling was one of ravening hunger and there was nothing to eat in the house, she was sure. There wasn't even any water turned on, she couldn't so much as wash her face, and it was very dirty.

Her face in the mirror, streaked with last night's tears over the dust and grime of her journey, was so comical that Rachel laughed aloud. "I am a sight!" she said. "Sim-dis' little house she stopped short, she had left him out of her calculations. She turned and gave his door a resounding knock.

"Hello," she said, as the door opened, "could you give a poor but worthy girl a bite to eat?"

"Rachel! What are you doing here?" He drew her in and held her hands in amazement and delight.

"Asking for my breakfast. Mayn't I come in?"

"Of course, but what on earth—"

"Listen, Bob, I'm hungry enough to eat raw fish—oh heavens, I smell bacon—and coffee—do give me some—but if you haven't a lot I'll go on to the inn. I mean, I must have a great deal of food, at once. Get the idea?"

She looked about the room—the bed wasn't made but Bob had bathed and shaved and was in the midst of getting breakfast. The cooking cupboard was open, the stove lit, and bacon sizzled and a coffee pot steamed on it. On the table were rolls and butter and an orange. There was a fire on the hearth, too, fresh-made, and the room was deliciously warm.

Bob forked the bacon to one side, broke two eggs in the hot fat and covered the pan so they would cook slowly. Then he turned and deliberately began to make his bed. "I usually air the clothes, but I'll dispense with that this morning since I'm entertaining," he said. "Gee, Rachel, it's grand to see you!"

Rachel drank her coffee and stared about the bare white room and at Bob.

"You're fatter," she said, "or should I say you're not so skinny? You look awfully well."

"You're thinner," countered Bob, smoothing the quilted white coverlet over the bed, "or should I say you're skinnier? And you don't look so well. There, that's in order."

"And you're just as nasty-neat as ever. For heaven's sake, aren't those eggs done? Got any marmalade?"

Bob brought another plate and fork and cup. "Start on a roll if you're fainting away." He took up the eggs and the bacon and set the plate before her with a flourish.

"Dig in, my good woman, and when the first wolfish pangs are appeased maybe you'll tell me why you have been brought to beggary and shame. I hope the story is fit for my refined ears."

"I dunno about that. However, you're the librarian and you keep a shelf marked 'For adults only' and I dare say you've read them all. How's the library doing, by the way?"

"We're pretty much in the public eye just at the moment because a group of our local matrons have just got round to demanding a ban on Anthony Adverse—a movement heartily opposed by the youth of the town. Me, I don't take sides, let 'em fight it out, gives them something to talk about in the long-winter evenings. More coffee?"

"Lots more!" All very well, she thought, to sit and jape like this, but something was different with Bob. He sounded just the same, but there was something lacking—and she couldn't define it. Last summer she had not hesitated to tell him of Anne's story of her real mother and it would have been natural enough to tell him the sequel, only she found that she wasn't going to. It was something in him that had changed. And what on earth could it be! For all he had asked her why she had appeared so suddenly and unexpectedly in Rockboro, she wasn't sure that he wanted to hear any outpouring of confidence from her. And it might be a great deal better to keep it to herself, anyway. She dumped more sugar in her coffee and began to talk.

"I'm sorry there isn't snow on the ground. I wanted to see snow against the sea."

"There's been plenty snow around New Year's there were drifts so high I couldn't open my front door. We may have more, too."

"I came down," improvised Rachel, cautiously, "to get something out of the house—we forgot to take, or rather Anne forgot. Some papers. I daresay it's just as well there isn't any snow. I got in on the late train and went out to the house and slept there last night and it wouldn't have been any fun walking through drifts that distance."

"Why on earth didn't you let me find the papers for you? Or wire me to meet you? I could have come down to the Junction."

"One lie always leads to another," thought Rachel. Then aloud: "I meant to wire you but I only had a minute to catch the train and I couldn't ask you to send me the things because I don't know where they are. I've got to hunt for them. They have," she concluded brightly, "something to do with insurance. Anne's trustee wants them right away."

To her great relief he accepted this tale with no further questions.

"It was a fool thing to do, land here after midnight and go walking up that lonely road. I know damn well there weren't any taxis at the station. But you specialize in fool things, Rachel. You like to do them. It's a form of exhibitionism."

"How right you are! How about that marmalade, Mr. Freud?"

"Honestly, I never saw anybody eat such a lot. Disgusting!"

"It's swell. You've been digging into that marmalade yourself, you've left very little for me."

"There's plenty for you. Why are you looking at me that way?"

Rachel giggled. "I was doing a little Freudian stuff myself. You've changed somehow, Bob. It isn't just the fat. What is it? What've you been up to?"

To her astonishment he was embarrassed. "Don't be an utter nitwit," he said, and there was an undertone of real irritation.

"Ah me," she sighed, "I suppose it's not done, eat up a gent's marmalade and pry into his double life. Tell me, what do you think—would Mrs. Duffy admit me and let me take a bath? I'm stinking with dirt and the water's off at the house, likewise the heat. Mr. Kreele's been going in and out for the radio and had a tiny fire in the living room—"

"Which reminds me that you did not friendly act when you loosed Mr. Kreele on me. I've eaten 29 different kinds of cereal and been deluged with samples of shaving stuff, soap, perfume, cold cream, and laxatives, all because of Mr. Kreele's passion for the radio. And now the poor old geezer thinks he's going to win an automobile."

"Maybe he'll give you that, too."

"I think his idea is to escape from the missis and Sister Susie in it and go to California."

"I hope he succeeds. I'm going over to Mrs. Duffy's, Bob. Thousands of thanks for a delicious breakfast. I'll be seeing you when I'm clean again."

"When are you going back to New York?"

"I don't know. This afternoon maybe." As she spoke she was surprised to find that she was ready to go. Last night had broken the spell of her chagrin and disappointment. She had no more great need of solitude, no more great need of reflection. Yet she wondered if she was perhaps more Elinor's daughter than she wished and if she had veered round too quickly to have felt as deeply as she had imagined.

"I'll study that out after I've had a bath," she decided. "I don't want to be a flutterbrain. But oh, I'm glad the worst is over!" Aloud she said to Bob: "I'm going to roam around town a bit and say hello to everybody I know, then I'll go back to the house for a while and then I'll drop in at the library and maybe we can have lunch at the tea shop or the inn. Eh, what?"

ply foul! I've got to clean up before I can go downtown and get my breakfast." She had not remembered to wind her watch, so she didn't know what time it was, but she glanced through the side window at the Kreele house which offered no sign of life so she concluded that it must be very early. No use standing and shivering! She opened her suitcase and found cold cream, scrubbed her face with it, combed her hair, shook her disheveled clothes into better shape and felt infinitely better.

Downstairs it was warmer, there was a tiny banked fire in the living room fireplace and a chair drawn up by the radio indicated the recent presence of Mr. Kreele. He had left his pad and pencil on another chair, he must have been there the night before, possibly until just before she came. The sun filled this room, too. Mr. Kreele had kept it clean, though the furniture was still covered with dust sheets and newspapers. And there was the desk where Anne had sat while Rachel had begged to know about her real mother! Rachel walked about the room, remembering.

As she remembered she was conscious that she missed something in herself, she missed the unrest, the foolish feverish purpose that had seized her that very day and driven her into her search for Elinor Cayne and all that had come with it. She knew she had been wise to come here. This house was Anne and Anne was her mother, not the poor vain little creature she had sought.

She couldn't go on thinking about all this, she was much too hungry. Downtown at the drugstore she could at least get coffee, but first, "Well, I am dumb!" she thought, "I can turn on the radio and find the time."

A trickle of music—those thin early morning programs of small hard-working orchestras—and then four warning notes and "Eight o'clock." Eight o'clock! Why, the Kreeles ought to be up and about, but she supposed all Rockboro slept late in winter to rest from the vagaries and exactions of summer people. She smiled at that, it was easy to feel amused this morning.

As she walked down into the town she thought vaguely of what she ought to do, but she would make no plans further than eating an enormous breakfast. It was wonderful to be like this, free and idle and happy! "Nothing on my mind but my hat," she thought, gaily, giving that battered object a more rakish tilt. Every familiar house was a friend. "I never thought I'd be so glad to see Rockboro all by myself!" When she came to Bob Ed-

Insects Popular in Fare of Balinese; Eat Anything That Walks, Swims, Crawls

Balinese food is difficult for the palate of a Westerner. Besides being served cold always food is considered uneatable unless it is violently flavored with a great variety of crushed pungent spices, aromatic roots and leaves, nuts, onions, garlic, fermented fish paste, lemon juice, grated coconut and burning red peppers. It was so hot that it made me, a Mexican raised on chili-peppers, cry and break out in beads of perspiration, writes Miguel Covarrubias, Mexican artist, in Asia Magazine.

Outside of certain religious prohibitions—"human flesh, tigers, monkeys, dogs, crocodiles, mice, reptiles, frogs, certain poisonous fish, leeches, stinging insects, crows, eagles, owls and in general all birds with mustaches!"—the common people of Bali eat everything that walks, swims, flies or crawls. Chicken, duck, pork and more rarely beef and buffalo are the meats most commonly eaten, but the people are also fond of stranger foods such as dragonflies, crickets, flying ants and the larvae of beetles.

Dragon-flies were caught in a most amusing manner: Boys and girls wandered among the rice fields waving long poles, the ends of which were smeared with a sticky sap. The supposedly rank-conscious dragon-flies must always stand in the highest branches and all the boy had to do was hold the stick above the place where a fly stood; it flew on to the sticky end of the pole and was caught. Large numbers were obtained in this curious manner, their wings taken off and the bodies fried crisp in coconut oil with spices and vegetables.

Great delicacies are also the scaled anteater, the flying fox (a great fruit bat), the porcupine, large lizards, wild boar, squids, rice birds and all sorts of crayfish.

Burlington Buys Iron Lung

Because of the prevalence of infantile paralysis throughout the country, and the fact that the Burlington Lines serve a wide area in which a respirator is not quickly available, a Drinker Respirator, or 'iron lung' has been purchased by the Burlington.

This respirator will be made available for use, without cost, to employees of the company,
their families and the citizens of any community served by the Burlington Lines.

The respirator will be stored at Omaha, Neb., under the direction of F. R. Mullen, O B & Q
General Manager, 1004 Farnam
St., to whom requests for permission to use the respirator may be addressed by any physician by wire, through the local agent of the Burlington Lines.

In addition to poliomyelitis, the respirator has been used in cases of carbon monoxide, morphine and other drug poisoning, alcoholic coma, etc.

McKnight Quilting Club

On Tuesday, Sept. 28, several ladies met at the McKnight au-and then Thursday 48 women were there to help quilt them.

The materials for these quilts were donated by members of our
