RKO has already finished the screen version of "Stage Door" with Katherine Hepburn and Ginger Rogers in the leads. The dialogue, everyone says, simply sparkles, and although Hepburn and Rogers are at their very best in it, Andrea Leeds and Lucille Ball, who play small roles, draw a big share of the enthusiastic comment.

Bill Powell paused in New York briefly on his way to the Scandinabrought them their biggest success, he says that they enjoy them more than audiences do.

Very few actors enjoy success in but producers never find a newcomer who can handle Alan Hale roles. He has just signed to play Little John in the new version of "Robin Hood" with Errol Flynn. It is the same role he played 15 years ago when Douglas Fairbanks made the picture.

It looks as if all Hollywood will be trying to congregate on the Bing Crosby set soon, for Bee Lillie, the elegant Lady Peel no less, is going to play opposite him. If you missed Bee on a recent Vallee hour, you should shed one tear at least. Country Newspaper Editor's Discovery Led to Huge Industry, Affecting Every Walk of Life in "the Plastic Age."

By WILLIAM C. UTLEY

OUNTRY newspaper editors have exerted upon American life an influence which is perhaps second to that of no other group of men. But one country editor little dreamed 65 years ago that he had started something destined to become a new and amazingly common factor in the daily life of virtually all Americans-indeed, in the lives of persons in every corner of the world. He simply believed he had failed to win

Now country newspaper editors are not wealthy as a rule, and John Wesley Hyatt, editor and printer of Starkey, N. Y., was no exception. He had ideas, though. And when a billiard ball manufacturer, discouraged by the expense of stalking African pachyderms for the raw material of which his product was made, offered $10,000 for a synthetic ivory substitute, Hyatt began some serious tinkering with test tubes, retorts and a Bunsen burner in the back of his shop.

Somehow, between type cases, an old Washington hand press and his laboratory, Editor Hyatt managed to keep from getting highly explosive gun cotton mixed up with the local items and the legal notices, and conducted exhaustive experiments. From this gun cotton (nitrocellulose) he failed to produce synthetic ivory, and of course he missed out on the $10,000 prize. But he did stumble upon something of far vaster importance to the human race than all the ivory in the world-he found the formula for celluloid

Celluloid was the first commercially usable plastic; it opened the pages of history to what we now think of as "the plastic age." They make billiard balls, jewelry and a few fancy doo-dads out of ivory, and they still do. But today, through the magic of modern chemistry, more than 300,000 articles in general use are manufactured by the men who pioneered in plastics.

What Plastics Are.

The end is nowhere in sight; in fact the plastics industry is still in its swaddling clothes. But the effect it will have upon society in the days to come is not going without recognition. The national resources committee, in its much-publicized report to the President, recommending social planning for the development of new inventions and young industries, named plastics with television, airplanes, the mechanical cotton-picker and other innovations, as one of the inventions most likely to have profound effect upon our society of the next fifteen years. Yet you cannot find one person in fifty who can tell you much about how plastics are made, or one person in ten who can even tell you what they are.

Actually, a plastic is anything that can be molded or pressed into a desired shape. In industry the term applies to a wide range of synthetic materials classified according to their chemical nature and the way they are made. The most important classification in industry -and in our daily life-is phenolic resin. The utility of this plastic was accidentally discovered; in fact fortunate accidents were largely responsible for "the plastic age."

Ten years after Editor Hyatt stumbled upon celluloid, the material was in general use: 10,000 highly diversified articles were made from it, the most famed probably being the old celluloid collar that reached popularity in the days of handlebar moustaches.

Catalin Was a War Baby.

Next in the succession of plastic accidents was the discovery made by Dr. Leo Baekeiand, Belgian-American scientist, forty years after the Hyatt incident. Experimenting in his laboratory at Yonkers, N. Y., Dr. Baekeland was searching for a highly insulating material much in demand by the electrical industry. He inadvertently hit upon the formula for a cast phenolic resin which was non-inflammable.

This was highly important. Any one who can remember back three decades can recall when "the best dressed man in town" had to be mighty careful with his cigar be-cause his celluloid collar, which could be wiped off with a damp cloth, could also be touched off by a tiny spark, leaving him a bit hot under the collar. The inflammabil-ity of celluloid and the consequent hazard of storing it had precluded the extension of its use, but the discovery of the new non-inflammable material gave impetus to the broadening use of plastics.

The World war set the stage for the third and most recent important development in the world of plastics. European Entente chemists worked feverishly trying to create a synthetic rubber from phenol (the carbolic acid derivative of coal) and formaldehyde (a gaseous derivative of wood alcohol captivated in water).

Desperate they were, these researchists. With their ports blockaded and supplies cut off, the Entente nations needed raw materi-Rubber was sorely needed to soften the screech of iron-tired creaked and rattled, indicating their positions to the enemy just as definitely as if they had shouted, "Here we are." Gas masks, footgear and other articles required the precious rubber. Synthetic rubber eluded them. But the German scientists did discover catalin, a material similar to that discovered by Dr. Baekeland, and made from the same ingredients. but so processed that it would be produced in a new aurora of color ranging from water-clear white, resembling glass, to delicate pastels, vivid hues, black, white, ivory and many combinations of colors definitely divided or blended by mottling.

The Germans had too much other business on hand to spend a great deal of time in the development of catalin, so the formula, patent rights and manufacturing privileges were bought by Americans.

Industry Still in Infancy.

Three important plastics had now been introduced to American indus-It was not long before 3,000 manufacturers, many of whose wheels had been idle, learned that they could make many salable items from plastic materials, using the same machinery which had formerly been used in tooling wood or soft metals and with the same craftsmen and technique. A shining example is a Canadian firm which made spools for thread. Its community depended upon the employment it offered for a living; yet its market had fallen to nearly nothing. The plant turned to the manufacture of catalin articles and now, with the same equipment and craftsmen, it produces buttons, jewelry and scores of other items that amaze the public with their brilliant

The flood of plastic articles to the market has in a few years altered fashion trends in costume jewelry, made insignificant accessories an important part in the fashion picture, created thousands of new versions of useful articles-and the President's natural resources com mittee warns that the industry is only in its infancy, that society will have to plan to adjust itself to its development. Thus is the magnitude of this "plastic age" being recognized by men who contemplate our future!

How do the 300,000 articles now made from catalin and other plastics affect our daily lives? We start the day with a plastic-handled tooth brush, razor and comb. At the breakfast table we may find knives forks and spoons with colorful handles of catalin-the insulating handles of the toaster and percolator are of the same material. The kitchen electric service comes through a plastic switch, plate and fittings, and in all probability serves a table lamp with a plastic shade. (For lamp shades are now being made of paper, glazed with liquid phenolic resin, as the most commonly used plastic is called, commercially. Dials for clocks, ra-dios and speedometers are similarly treated, providing an attractive, efficient and economical substitute for previous processes.)

This is just a fair morning start. Driving to business, we use a plastic steering wheel, gear shift lever handle and all sorts of gadgets on the instrument panel. At the office the telephone instrument is made of plastic, and it is an "oddson" bet that so are the inkwell, pen and ashtray on the desk. Veneer surface woods in the furniture are cemented in place with a liquid plastic adhesive.

How Catalin Is Made.

Almost no matter what you do, you encounter plastic products. Colorful wall panels in modern theaters, dwellings and ocean liners are made of them. So are jewelry, toilet articles, cosmetic containers, buckles, umbrella handles, bag and golf club fittings and game fish lures. Even "store teeth" are made of plastics, as are the dental plates to which they are affixed. For those who like to quaff the flowing bowl. the advent of catalin dental plates was a welcome boon, for the old type plates were deteriorated by alcohol, while catalin is not. But dentistry is only one of the numerous professional fields in which plastics has left an indelible mark. You can turn into almost any other line of endeavor and there it is-plastics, making important new strides.

Catalin is made by mixing formaldehyde and phenol in nickellined kettles of approximately 3,000 pounds capacity. The weight is reduced to about 1,500 pounds by the time the first production phase is complete. The mixture is cooked at a low temperature. Heat is produced by the reaction of the two ingredients and held down to an even temperature by the use of water, vacuum or steam in an outside jacket. At this stage the color is added.

Here catalin has the consistency of molasses, and is poured into lead molds to form the shapes required by the fabricators. Two or three color combinations may be cast at a single pouring, the mold leading the different colors into their proper places. Catalin is also poured into pans and when semicured (heated until it becomes gelatinous) is sliced into required Magnificent Future Seen.

In the curing ovens, the even, moderate temperature of which would permit a man's walking around in them, catalin is completed by curing for about 50 hours. It is then ready for delivery to the fabricator, who cuts it, lathes it, buffs it and otherwise works it into the finished product which he sells.

So great has been the public curiosity about plastics, especially since the national resources committee's report, that one of the leading moving picture producers in Hollywood has filmed the manufacture of multi-colored catalin in full colors. The picture was scheduled for release in 8,000 theaters in Octobera

What of the future? The almost utter lack of limitations in the field for cast resins defies description. Because of its beauty, its low cost, its extreme "workability," and its many peculiar characteristics it is the stuff for pioneers in almost every branch of industry.

Country newspaper editor John Wesley Hyatt really started something when he began dabbling outside his chosen field 65 years ago.

SEEN and HEARD NATIONAL CAPITAL By Carter Field
FAMOUS WASHINGTON CORRESPONDENT

Washington.—What amounts to a money spent—money which other-ad case of jitters over possible war wise would stay in Europe. It means bad case of jitters over possible war and its effects on America, aggravating a business situation which is none too satisfactory, is obvious in administration circles, particularly in the Federal Reserve board.

This is the second reason for the recent action desterilizing $300,000,-000 of the frozen gold. The effect desired to remedy both troubles was to insure continuance of low interest rates. Primarily, putting this huge amount of gold back in use, so to speak, was aimed at preventing the slide in government bond prices.

Government bonds have been selling at a price absurdly high-from an investor's standpoint-even with due allowance for their tax advantages. Moreover, the banks have entirely too large a proportion of their assets tied up in government securities. But just the same the government did not want to see a decline in bond prices. That would spell higher interest rates on future government financing.

But that secondary reason, to make money cheaper for investment purposes in order to encourage expansions by existing business concerns and the development of new business, was also quite important.

Most experts in international affairs do not believe there will be a world war this year. They think the nations most likely to provoke such a war are not ready. But there is constantly in mind the danger that the situation may get out of Memory is still green about what happened to American business at first, when the war broke out in Europe in 1914. After a while busi-ness boomed, the war babies in steel and munitions grew and bloomed. The price of sugar and cotton soared.

But all this was much later. The first reaction was such a crash on the stock market that it was necessary to shut it down and keep it closed for months. The price of cot-ton dropped until President Wilson himself was encouraging the "Buy a Bale of Cotton" movement.

Take Precautions

Nobody knows just what would happen this time, should the crisis develop this year instead of 1938 or 1939. The year 1939, by the way, is preferred by most experts as the most likely time for the next world war. So the reserve system is just taking precautions, providing in advance the certainty of plenty of cheap money to cushion possible temporary drops in prices, not only of securities, but commodities.

This cushion, most experts figure, would be necessary for only a short time. Ways and means would be found by the belligerents to get needed supplies from America despite any and all obstacles, the neutrality law and the reluctance of this country to buy foreign bonds or extend war credits to the contrary notwithstanding.

Very confidentially, of course, officials admit that the neutrality law would not prevent United States manufacturers from selling airplanes, or tanks, or cotton, or copper to neutral countries from which they could quite simply be shipped to belligerents. But this would take time-that is, to get the new roads to the market in working condition. But the sort of trade that made Holland rich during the last war would certainly develop in some way or other.

All of which, however, does not reassure the people who seem to want to get rid of their securities so as to be ready to jump into something new under changed conditions, or perhaps just with an idea of playing safe. This attitude adds on to the desire of so many to hedge against inflation.

Gets a Laugh

There are lots of chuckles in Washington, and especially in the State department, at James W. Gerard's new job. The idea of the wartime ambassador to Germany and Democratic war-chest fund provider figuring in a tourist agency strikes the average diplomat and the average political bigwig as sort of a edown.

But the job is far from a joke. Secretary of the Interior Harold L. Ickes does not think it is a joke. Neither do the railroads leading to the West, nor the hotel men from the Rockies to the Pacific. think "Jimmy" has what it takes to bring them some new business, and very high-class new business at that -suites instead of singles with baths in the hotels, drawing-rooms and compartments instead of tourist sleepers on the railroads.

For Gerard's job is to make desirable to his old friends in Germany and throughout Europe-and to their friends-and through the resulting publicity to many more—the attractions of Yellowstone, Yosemite, Glacier and Grand Canyon National parks, to mention just a few of the highlights. And of course any foreign tourist making this "big cir-cle" would also visit San Francisco, and Seattle, and Portland, yes, and even Hollywood. All of which means a lot more a lot of food sold in the most profit-

But that's just the commercial aspect of his "joke job" that Gerard has undertaken.

It's a bromide in the West that the New Yorkers think anything west of the Hudson river is unimportant, save perhaps on election nights. "Out there" is just the provinces, from which one returns, when one has to go there at all, as speedily as possible.

But if that "west of the Hudson river" is changed to "west of the Mississippi" a lot of folks in this country might be included!

An Eye-Opener

The late Charles F. Murphy, famed boss of Tammany Hall when that venerable institution amounted to a lot more than it does now, had plenty to say to friends when he returned from the Democratic national convention at San Francisco. He told friends he thought every American ought to make a trip to the Pacific coast, just to see what this country was really like.

When it comes to Europeans seeking to understand America, and usually writing a book about it after a few weeks' stay, the question becomes even more important. It sounds as if Gerard's job is just to sell the cultured Europeans whom he got to know during his diplomatic service the western scenery of America. Actually of course that is all he is appointed to do, because that is what the national park service is interested in doing.

But a visitor cannot see the Grand canyon, and Yellowstone, and Glacier and Yosemite without seeing a pretty good cross-section of the United States doing it. And he or she would get a very different slant on this country from that which is normally acquired by the average distinguished visitor on a lecture tour, rushing from lecture to reception to autographing stand in the big store's book section

It may actually prove very important in future international rela-

About Sugar

Sugar always has been political dynamite, is now, and probably al-ways will be. Concern about the interests of the housewives and consumers generally has been the bunk, in the opinion of this writer and most observers, ever since sugar became an issue under the original protective tariff, with just one exception.

That exception was under the Underwood-Simmons tariff bill, passed immediately after Woodrow Wilson entered the White House, and which did not prove very satisfactory. It deprived the government of a revenue of around $60,000,000 a year, which, in those days, was important money from the Treasury standpoint. For a time also it played hob with the Louisiana cane interests. Then along came the war and sugar prices began to soar regardless of any governmental policy.

From the progressive viewpoint, the worst tariff of all was that passed under President Hoover, in which the duty on sugar was fixed at two cents. It happens, however, that Americans were paying, during that period, just two cents above the world price. In short, the duty determined precisely the differen-

But under the quota system, which any economist or free trader will admit is much worse than the tariff system in practical workings, Americans were paying, around the first of this month, 2.38 cents a pound above the world price! So the consumer is getting it in the neck even worse than under the Hawley-Smoot tariff.

Hits Consumer

Assuming this, it becomes interesting to discover just what they are doing to American consumers of sugar in the way of profiteering. According to computations following the formula approved by the United States District court for southern New York, the profits of the refiners during 1936 averaged seven cents on every hundred pounds of sugar. For the year 1935 the refiners' profit averaged six cents on every hundred pounds. And in 1934 the profits averaged five cents on every hundred pounds. The year 1935 was thrown out of line by some bad calculating on the part of the refiners as to advance buying under the quota system. Briefly, they were "caught short." They had sold sugar at a price in advance and then had to pay more for the raw sugar than they had calculated.

This profit seems rather unimportant, from the housewives' standpoint, when one figures that the excise tax on sugar (on both domestic and imported) is one-half a cent a pound, ten times the 1935 refiners' profit. And sympathy with the consumer is rather strained when it is considered that the administration wanted this tax to be three-quarters of a cent a pound instead of half a

Germ Causes Tuberculosis

DR. JAMES W. BARTON

IT IS hard to convince the average man or woman that tuberculosis is not inherited. They look about them on every side and know that a parent, an uncle, a brother, or a sister of a patient with tuberculosis has died of tuberculosis.

Yet physicians, particularly those working close to tuberculosis, tell us that while tuberculosis may appear to "run in families," it is only "because children catch the disease from an older member of the household who has

Shortly after I graduated in medicine the superin-tendent of a large sanatorium told me that he believed that in at least half the adult population evidences of past or healed tubercu-losis could be found. Today it is believed that if every part of the body could be examined some evidence of tuberculosis would be found in everybody, which, for the time being at least, was in a "quiet"

Caused by an Organism.

Why then, if tuberculosis can be found in practically everybody, do we not all suffer with the symptoms or at least show some signs of it?

"The specific or definite cause of tuberculosis is a germ or organism. If a few tuberculosis germs get into a healthy body no harm is done because the body fights back. But if one lives daily with a careless person who has the disease the danger is great. Kissing, coughing and spitting may be the means of spreading tuberculosis germs. Anything which has touched the sick person's lips may have germs on

It would be well for all of us to remember also the first signs—the danger signals-pointing to tuberculosis. These signals may not mean | tubbing. tuberculosis in every case but should cause one to suspect tuberculosis. These signals are: (1) too easily tired; (2) loss of weight; (3) indigestion; (4) cough that hangs on.

Overweight and the Failing Heart. One of the hard tasks for physician and patient is when there is a damaged heart.

The most effective method of reducing weight is cutting down on the food intake and increasing the exercise. Unfortunately the overweight patient with a heart condition needs food to maintain his strength and can take little or no exercise owing to the strain exercise puts upon the heart.

In addition to getting out of breath easily many of these patients begin to get a little swelling in the feet which means they must get off the feet more, and keep the feet on another chair when sitting. While this may mean less work for the heart it of course means less work or exercise for the body and more fat accumulates.

Therefore when the physician undertakes the treatment of the overweight heart patient he does so, not with fear and trembling as to what must be done, but with fear and trembling that his patient will not follow his suggestions faithfully; that he will continue to eat more than his body needs.

One of the laws that applies to all the organs or functioning processes of the body is briefly: organ performing its work with difficulty undergoes a gradual deterioration, if increased activity is persisted in." This doesn't mean that the organs or tissues will not or are not able to do many times the necessary work, but it does mean that if an overload is placed on it, and it has to work with this overload for a long time, the fibers or tissues of the organ lose their strength and elasticity, just as a piece of elastic kept greatly stretched too long will lose some of its power to contract.

It is, therefore, getting these overweights to lessen the amount of their food intake and thus take the overload off the heart (due to its having to nourish this extra fat and weight of the body) that the physician so persistently aims at.

The converse or opposite of this rule is: "If the work demanded of a diseased or failing organ be a little less than it is really able to do, a certain degree of power will be restored." In the case of the heart this is known as "heart reserve."

You can see then how important it is to the overweight heart patient that he get rid of his fat and lessen the work on the heart. "When the heart muscle is suffering from any abnormal mechanical handicap (such, for instance, as having to pump blood to a large qantity of inactive fat tissue) and shows signs of failing, it should be given as nearly as possible absolute rest to regain some of its lost power."

All sorts of plaids are on the au-tumn fabric list from high-tone dressy plaids of silk velvet and handsome wool weaves down to the most utilitarian, practical, washable types—the kind that go bicycling along dusty roads and then come out "fresh as a daisy" after each

Bicycling is a fad so important nowadays designers recognize they must create fashions tuned to the sport. The new sturdy washable plaids are proving most likable for outfits of this sort. The girl on the "bike" as shown in the group illustrated is fashionably and sensibly frocked in a dependable completely shrunk washable plaid that gives great amount of fat in and on the this rider the look of being keenly style-minded.

The schoolgirl centered in the picture is likewise alertly fashionconscious in that she also selects plaid for her voguish blouse, and it's safe to say she will be getting a lot of wear out of it besides enjoying that feeling of confidence it brings to be appropriately clad for the occasion.

Another way to subscribe to the plaid rage that is now featuring in every phase of fashion is to wear a true clan plaid skirt and neckerchief with your new fall sweater as shown to the right in the group.

when it comes to swank in | This most commendable outfit is dress. There's no doubt about it, sure to prove an inspiration to the colorful, youthful practical plaids fit schoolgirl. It was shown at a recent fall style clinic held in the Merchandise Mart in Chicago. Viewing the new fall fabrics one becomes fully convinced that plaids as a fashion "must" are definitely here. It is interesting to note that the more classic plaids are labeled each with its clan name. Also the many smart ways to wear plaids makes them all the more intriguing.

In enrolling as a plaid enthusiast we suggest that you line your jacket to match your plaid blouse, or wear a plaid dress matched to the lining of your coat, or top a pleated plaid skirt with a bright velveteen jacket, or enliven your fur coat or your fleece coat with a stunning plaid lining. Plaid velvet dresses to der fur coats is another outcome of the present craze for plaids. You can also find cunning jackets of plaid velveteen. Some are bolero versions with plaid belts to match. If it is just a touch of plaid you favor, buy a dozen or so of the new plaid composition buttons and et them go marching down the front of your dark velveteen dress or coat. #### FASHION STRESSES FABRIC ELEGANCE

By CHERIE NICHOLAS

Fabrics play a most important part this year, and by their richness explain the apparent simplicity of the styles which are the greatest challenge to the dressmaker. Velvets, lames, brocades, laces, tulles are all in the picture.

Lace becomes a happy medium for day dresses, almost severe in their simplicity. These may be relieved by rich belts, patent trimmings, etc. Lighter laces in silk or rayon are combined with a colored fabric lining for day dresses or two tones used in combination as Worth has done. Lelong takes a heavy white wool lace for a hip-length top of a dress which ends in a simple black velvet skirt, with four rows of the velvet used at the side front from the high waistline to the hip. Patou offers rosepoint collars, cuff or bodice trim with severe dresses-but real rose point. Schiaparelli makes lace of gold cord for three huge medallions on the topper of a two-piece effect black marocain. While dresses are simple in effect, fantasy goes into the head-

There's Good Reason for Visiting Cards

EAR Mrs. Post: Visiting card formalities are something I never will understand. I've moved into a strange community and neighbors and friends of friends are calling and leaving their cards. Why do they leave eards when I'm in and receive them? I can understand why they would leave cards in my absence but not otherwise. Answer: It is really essential that they leave cards so that you will know their full names and the spelling and possibly their house addresses. After all, you would have to have better than average hearing not to say anything of memory to remember the names announced to you. And later when you look for Mrs. Jimson in the telephone book. you may have no way of knowing whether she is Mrs Alexander - or Mrs John - or Mrs George Excepting on this first occasion, visitors are not apt to send in their cards unless they find you

Wedding Announcement Need Not Name Town

EAR Mrs. Post: On wedding announcements may I omit the name of the town in which we were married? Or if there must be some town mentioned may I use the name of my home town instead? We were married out of the state and I don't care especially to use the name of the town if it is possible to omit it.

Answer: The best way to overcome this is to leave a space between the line giving the year of the marriage and the name of the town. In other words, actually the announcement ends with the date. Adding the name of the town merely gives the people to whom the announcements are sent your parents' address.

The Wedding Breakfast DEAR Mrs. Post: Will you suggest a good menu for a ten o'clock wedding breakfast? There will be only about two dozen guests. Answer: The reason that "tails' are never seen on Sunday evening is that balls and dinners of ceremony, which alone require them, are never given on Sunday.

-17-Bob's acquiescence wasn't wholehearted, she thought, after she'd greeted Mrs. Duffy and pre-empted the Duffy tub. It might be that he was still in love with her and found it painful to see her . . . it might . . . but somehow she didn't believe it.

It was grand to be clean again, even if her clothes were tired and wrinkled. She felt quite herself as she made the rounds of the various stores, or hailed old friends on the street. She told them all the same tale she had invented for Bob and felt she didn't care if they didn't believe it. At last she headed back to the house to be met on the terrace by an agitated Mr. Kreel.

"Right away when I went over this morning I knew someone'd been in. And I ducked around downstairs and didn't find anybody, but up in your ma's room there was your suitcase and I recognized it. How to gracious did you get in?"

While he put wood on the fire Rachel explained about the kitchen window and Mr. Kreel was greatly bothered.

"I mighta noticed that window and nailed it shet, and then where would you been?'

"I'd have come over and pounded on your door, Mr. Kreel, I knew you had a key."

"But what'd you do this morning? You didn't have a fire, or nothing to eat. You should've come over then. Mis' Kreel's none too neighborly, I know, and sorry I am to admit it, but she'd surely have made you a cup of coffee." "I went down and had breakfast with Bob Eddis.' "You did, Miss Rachel?" It sounded sly, amused. "What's all the excitement about Mr. Eddis? Come on now, be a good sport, tell me. I know there's something going on.

Mr. Kreel liked nothing better than a dish of gossip. He pursed his mouth with importance and crinkled his eyes in a knowing smile.

"He's beauing the new primary schoolteacher, she's a right pretty girl, too, and cute as Christmas She come to Rockboro after you and your ma left last fall and first off she boarded at Mis' Duffy's and then Mis' Duffy sent her over to her sister's, Mis' Catlin's, just an act of charity because Mis' Catlin was so hard up an' Mis' Duffy knew a schoolteacher'd pay regular, but she and Mr. Eddis they made it right up, quick, and most every day they eats their dinners together at the tea shop, and he takes her to the pictures and they walk on the beach, just like you and him used to

"Mr. Kreel, this is interesting!" exclaimed Rachel. "This makes a lot of things clear to me. What's the schoolteacher's name?"

"She's a Miss Alice Hale. Hope you don't feel bad about it, Miss Rachel. I contend to Mis' Kreel that you could have had him if you'd wanted him, but you didn't want him. A body with a pair glass eyes could've seen that he was after you last year. She's a light blonde."

"I wouldn't have any chance against a light blonde, so I'll have to make the best of it, though it breaks my heart.

"Now, Miss Rachel, quit your fooling. I guess you didn't want Mr. Eddis and I say you were right, for though he's a nice young feller, he's a mite, so to speak, peculiar. It's no way for a young man to live in a little made-over shack, housekeeping for himself. A hermit, you might as well describe him. And then, he don't like the radio. That's unnatural. He goes on like this and he'll just grow into an old crank. 'S too bad. I've certainly had pleasure out of your radio, Miss Rachel, this winter. My name was mentioned twice, once for my birthday Cheerio sent me a greeting and Kel Murray's orchestra played a special tune for me and called my name and address in full and said it was for me. Several people downtown spoke to me about it." He interrupted his spate of talk to look out of the front window. "Here comes somebody up the road, looks like a stranger. Probably another one of these dinged brush peddlers hunting me down. They give a body no peace! He's coming in here by Rachel turned to follow Mr. Kreel's glance, then she jumped up and ran to the door. The stranger was Curt Elton.

CHAPTER XIII

It took a little maneuvering to get rid of Mr. Kreel without hurting his feelings or indulging his curiosity, but it was managed at last. And this being accomplished and Rachel and Curt left alone, an odd restraint fell on them.

Rachel broke it. "I do believe you're disappointed that I wasn't in the hands of gangsters or something wild, so you could rescue me. Did you bring a tommy-gun?"

"Not even a slingshot. Rachel, why did you come?"

"Why did you come?" Curt got up and put some wood on

"It's very pleasant here," he said. "Any room with sunlight and a fireplace full of driftwood is decorated. And besides, there's the sea over the dunes. It must be lovely in summer.'

"But quite!" said Rachel, mockingly. "Too, too lovely! Simply dee-vine. Gay rugs and chintz covers, ornaments on the mantelshelf, books, pictures and fresh flowers artistically arranged, my dear, you have no idea how really charming the little dump can be!" "I don't deserve that, do I?"

"But what do you deserve, Curt? I don't even know why you've "But you're not sorry I came?"

"No, of course not." "I was worried about you, that's why I came. Pink showed me your telegram and I phoned Terriss and he said the Caynes had taken finding out about their son pretty hard

"Come Back to This Mysterious Man. I Want to Know About and I was afraid they'd been so rotten to you that you'd run away. And then, another reason for coming, I didn't know when you were coming back."

"You could have wired me, or telephoned."

"I wanted to see you with my own eyes. You've been awfully over- nor Cayne! Rachel stopped her runstrained, Rachel - remember the ning beside this relic. "I might last time we talked? You were so undecided about searching that brat's room, you took it all so seriously, as if it mattered what happened to any of them. I got you into that job and I insisted that you ought to make the search, so I felt

"But how did you get here this time of day, there's no train?" "I took Vinco's car and drove I'd have been here earlier, but I lost my way in the night." "You've been driving all night?" "Pretty nearly. Want to drive back with me?" "I suppose I might as well. I thought I'd take the afternoon train. But you can't drive back without a rest and a sleep, Curt."

"If you'd let me take the newspapers off that sofa and catch an hour's nap I'd be all right. You really want to go back today? There's no reason for you to stay?'

His voice was anxious. "No, not a thing. I was awfully upset by that last interview at the Caynes'. And I felt I couldn't go back to the gat and begin in the morning at Vinco's. I suppose I let my nerves trick me, Curt. And so, I came down here, and-and had a good night's sleep and a great big breakfast-and I feel all right again. Now, I'll tell you-I had a sort of half-date for lunch, but I'll break it and while you take a sleep I'll go downtown and get some food and we'll have a picnic here. Or we could go down on the beach and make a fire, no, it's too cold for that. I'd like to have a run on the beach before we start back, though just for a minute. By the way, where's Vinco's car?"

"In a garage, one of the inner tubes was leaking, it's nothing, they only have to put on the spare. I am sleepy, it's this warmth getting me. And the relief of finding you

" he paused. "Finding me how?"

"Yourself again." She left him lying on the sofa and went joyfully down the long road once more. Curt's coming had been a marvelous lift-and then, the news about Bob and this Alice Hale! Her mouth quirked remembering. No wonder he had been awkward and evasive! She stopped at the library and was glad to find him alone and she pulled her face into gravity. "Now, Bob-about lunch-" she began. But he stopped her. "I'm-I'm awfully sorry, Rachel,

-I'm afraid we can't have lunch together today-'

"That's all right. That's just what I came to say. I've been obliged to make another engagement—" She began to laugh. "It's almost impossible for you to look relieved and annoyed at the same time, Bob. Don't be fussed, Mr. Kreel told me all"—she was halfway out of the door, ready to jump—"about your light blonde." She banged the door and ran down the street and when she heard him call after her she dashed precipitately into the tea shop. There she leisurely purchased a quart of oyster stew, half a dozen sandwiches, celery and apple salad, a package of peanut brittle and a bottle of homemade cider. "And if the isn't a magnificent lunch," she mought, "what is?" Then her eyes fell on a tray of fresh sugared crullers and she

It would do Bob good to wonder who might be said Curt firmly. "I observed doughnuts as well as oysters." her luncheon date. Curt was fast asleep when she got back. room into the kitchen and noise lessly hunted a pan to reheat the stew, got out dishes, spoons and glasses. Back into the living room and she set the pan on the coals and arranged the other food on the desk.

"He might just as well sleep while longer," she thought. "I'll slip out and run on the beach. I must do that before I go."

The morning wind had fallen, the winter sun was almost warm and the sea had caught blue light from the sky. The path across the dunes was hidden under wind-blown sand, but she knew her way and down on the curve of the beach the sand was hard and smooth. That searching breath of the sea, cold to penetrate and envelop and make even wool and fur chill to the touch, yet giving a sense of vigor and power, welcomed her to the familiar scallop of the cove and made her want to shout. There wasn't any reason why she shouldn't run, though it would be wiser not to shout, but run she did, all down the white causeway, turning to run back when she reached the rocks that led out to the point. Sun and sea, a hard beach, and best of all the maggot in her brain was gone, she had herself destroyed it. No more worrying about her own mother, no more secret resentment against Anne! There was the old spar Anne had leaned against last summer when she'd told Rachel the story of Eliput a tablet on it," she thought frivolously, "'Place of revelation," or 'Here's where the blues began,' or something." And then, "I ought not to be high-after all, that poor Elinor-and Mr. Cayne-" But it was no use, they were gone, she couldn't drag them up from the shadows and reproach herself with them any more.

Then she heard her name called and saw Curt coming down the dunes. "I woke up and there was all that elegant food spread about, but no sign of you, and then I discovered do you think you are—a beach bird?"

"Almost. Mother and I practically live down here in the summer.

Are you rested?" "Oh fine! This is a grand cove. Come along, I'll run up and down a couple of times and get the sleep out of my head. Want to race?" They ran together now all the way to the spur of rock on the other side. Curt kept beside her and though she ran her swiftest, she knew he could easily beat her best

"Golly, what a day!" he said, as they turned, "and after what a dis put him farther away from her.

Cutwork That Is Anything but Work

"Cutwork without bars?" Exactly-and that's the very reason this lovely Wild Rose design for doilies or buffet set is so easy to do. The delicate shades of pink would be most realistic, of course, but the pattern is no less if worked in thread to match your linen: A refreshment table set with these would be most tempting! In pattern 5503 you will find a transfer pattern of a doilie 11 by 171/2 inches and oneand one reverse doilie 6 by 9 inches; material requirements; illustrations of all stitches used; color suggestions.

To obtain this pattern, send 15 cents in stamps or coins (coins preferred) to The Sewing Circle Household Arts Dept., 259 W. Fourteenth St., New York, N. Y.

How CARDUI Helps Women

Cardul is a purely vegetable medicine, found by many women to ease functional pains of menstruation. It also helps to strengthen women, who have been weakened by poor nourishment, by increasing their appetite and improving their digestion. Many have reported lasting benefit from the wholesome nutritional assistance obtained by taking Cardui. If you have never taken Cardul, get a bottle of Cardul at the nearest drug store, read the directions and try it.

METHODIST CHURCH

Church School, 9:45 A M Preaching, 11 A. M. 7:30 P. M Missionary Societies Circle 1, Monday 8 p. m. Cir ale 2, 8:00 p. m.

It has been our custom for several years to preach a special sermon en "The Mode of Bap tism 'once a year. Not in the spirit of controversy, or to stir up centroversy but for instruc tion of our membership, especial ly the young people, as to the Methodist view of the purpose of Baptism. There is a small percent of the members of all denominations who have any con ception of the purpose of baptism What is signified in the set e baptism? What does the church, the preacher, the candidate, have in mind when it is performed? What is being represented? Dif ferent denominations have dif ferent conceptions of the mean ing of baptism, therefore do not agree on the mode, which con forms to their idea of the pur pose, what is being signified The Methodist Church has a very decided conception of what the meaning of baptism is, and her mode conforms to this conception So our message Sunday will be instruction of the mem bership on the Methodist view point. It may be surprising to some as to the amout of Scrip ture that bears on this question As we view it the Scripture is elear on it. We shall try to stay close to the Scripture. The Methodists are criticised often for net preaching on the subject more, in view of the fact that oth er denominations preach on it so much That is one reason we make it a rule to preach on the subject once a year We shall have no caustic denunciations to make on any who see the matter differently It shall be in the spirit of the true Christian that
