Cal Farley Program Is Decided Success

The Flying Dutchman program brought through the courtesy of Cal Farley of Amarillo was attended by one of the largest and most attentive crowds ever in the high school auditorium. This record breaking attendance increased the proceeds for the Parent Teacher Organization to a net profit of $79.00, which was a welcome reward for every interested patron and P T A member's effort to make this program a success.

P T A wishes to recognize its indebtedness to Burden Grocery for aid on candy, chewing gum and pop. Especially do the members wish to thank Harve Wilson for bringing his electric pepper and popping the corn for the concessions.

To those ladies who prepared the food for the meal which was served at the Methodist Church, may we share the praise of those people with you. They said it was one of the nicest meals they had ever been served. And really their eating the food spoke more eloquently than their words.

Every person who aided in any respect had a helping the Parent Teachers earn the money which in time will be spent to meet the needs of your school.

We wish to express our appreciation for the quiet and courteous attention of all members of the audience.

Alvin Winters of Lakeview and Miss Willie Mae Stone of Hedley were united in marriage Saturday evening, March 5, at the home of Mr and Mrs. Tom McDougal. Rev. M. E. Wells performed the ceremony. The bride wore a dress of gold satin and wore a corsage of white carnations.

The groom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. A. R. Winters of Lakeview. He has lived at Lakeview for a number of years, and attended the schools there. The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. B. C. Stone, and has lived in Hedley most of her life. She attended the Hedley schools.

After the ceremony, a wedding dinner was served to the following guests: Mr. and Mrs. B. C. Stone, Rev. M. E. Wells, Mrs. T. L. Hunnicut, Misses Myrtle Willie, Mayme Hunnicut and Annie Mae McLaughlin, Mr. and Mrs. Tom McDougal and the bride and groom.

The couple left immediately afterward for Lakeview, where they will make their home.

Their many friends will join us in extending congratulations and best wishes.

Richmond Bowlin Dies

One of Hedley's oldest citizens Richmond Bowlin, passed away Wednesday morning at his home here after an extended illness. He was born April 25, 1849, being nearly 89 years of age at the time of his death. He came to Texas from Virginia seventy years ago, first settling at Jefferson. In 1893 he moved to Donley county, and has been one of the county's oldest pioneers and most highly respected citizens.

The funeral services were held Thursday morning at the Methodist Church in Hedley conducted by the pastor, Rev. B. J. Osborn. Interment was made in the Citizens cemetery at Clarendon, with the Bantin Funeral Home in charge.

He is survived by his wife and several children.

A more lengthy article will appear next week.

Attend Conoco Meeting

A meeting of Conoco dealers of this district was held Tuesday night at Childress. The meeting was opened with a banquet at the Childress Hotel, about 100 Conoco dealers being present, after which Paul Erdworm of Ft. Worth, assistant division manager, outlined the spring advertising campaign. The Continental Oil Co. is, as usual, relying mainly on newspaper advertising as the most effective method of reaching potential customers. This year the company is particularly stressing the idea of oil plating instead of mere oil changing, and refers to each Conoco dealer as Your Mileage Merchant. Harrison Hall, Ross Adameon, Allen Edwards and the editor attended the meeting.

DORIS DENE'S COLUMN

Second Heart Break for Maid Who Forgives Unreliable Suitor.

DEAR MISS DENE: I am twenty-seven and the man I love is thirty-one. He is well-educated and good looking and many other things which make him a desirable husband. Two years ago we were engaged and very happy. Then he decided that he didn't care for me. He went out with other girls and finally became engaged to someone else without telling me about it. He lied to me and even ridiculed me for believing in him. When it all came out my heart nearly broke. It took me months to get over his desertion. Well, his engagement to the other girl lasted six months and then he began to treat her as he treated me. Now after all this time he wants to come back and as I have not forgotten him nor been able to get over him, I want to take him back. Yet I am so afraid of letting him hurt me. I am so anxious to see him. I know that his lying habits could break my heart all over again but he swears he will reform for my sake. What is the right thing to do?—Milly.

ANSWER:—It seems to me that you are inviting a second dose of disillusionment and disappointment if you take back a man who has hurt you cruelly and who seems temperamentally unfitted to be true to any one woman. Don't misunderstand me. I'm not saying that a man can't live down one mistake. I'm not saying that it doesn't take courage on his part to admit that he has been wrong and to ask forgiveness of the girl he has treated abominably. Many a young boy has jilted the girl who loved him—has tried to find happiness with another charmer and has lived to repent of his hasty action. When his old love has granted him forgiveness he has proved to her and to the world at large that his repentance was sincere and lasting.

But when a man of thirty uses unfair and dishonorable methods in breaking off with the damsel who has trusted him then it's time to wonder whether he could ever be anything but a soy philanthropist and an unprincipled liar. It is one thing for a man to discover an error in judgment and to go frankly to his fiancée with the news that he no longer cares for her. It is quite another story for the disillusioned suitor to sneak away with another girl—to mock his former sweetheart—and to cover up his traces until detection is inevitable. All that smacks of habitual deceit.

I consider, Milly that you've given this man his chance already. You played fair with him and in return for that he gave you lies and deceit. Now he's tired of his new conquest and it is quite natural that he should think tenderly of your devotion and kindness. But if you're fair to yourself you won't let him come back to torment you all over again.

DEAR DORIS DENE: I am a boy of nineteen and have lived at home all my life. My mother is a very strong character and has managed me successfully. I am now in love and want to marry. My mother has put her foot down and refuses to consider my marriage. She offers to give a college education—which she refused to do until she heard I was in love. I want to get a job but unless I can live at home I cannot hope to support a wife right away. I like your advice and will be grateful for any you give me.—C. G.

ANSWER:—Your mother's strong character will be of value to you now my boy even though you are not in the mood to appreciate it. If she were indulgent and weak enough to agree to your marriage at the present moment, she'd be doing you an injustice for which you might never forgive her.

Any boy who ties himself up in matrimonial chains at the age of nineteen—with nothing to depend on but his mother's income, is virtually throwing away his life's happiness.

Take my advice, C. G., and accept the offer of a college education. Equip yourself to face the world—and to hold down a job. Prepare to be an independent citizen—not a dependent son for the rest of your life. And don't forget this: that the more you learn and the more you study, the more able you'll be to resist your mother's strong influence. You have lived at home so long that the maternal protection has become a habit with you. Get away from that sheltered area and learn how to be a man among men. Then when you've reached a more suitable age and when you have acquired the stamina to stand by yourself, you'll have no cause to worry about mother's interference when matrimony occurs to you again. And if the girl is sincere in her love for you she'll wait till you have fitted yourself to become a real wage-earner able to offer her a home of her own.

Can Spring Be Far Away?

WITH Winter almost over, March blizzards to the contrary notwithstanding, you find yourself eyeing the fashion sheets a little more than casually. Indeed you probably already have your needle threaded, just waiting for some nice Spring patterns to make your acquaintance. And here they are, three quick tricks, each pleasantly awaiting your choice, each designed to make some wardrobe happy. Which do you prefer?

Fitted Bodice. Look your Sunday best in this graceful afternoon frock with its snug and softly shirred waistline. The skirt flares slightly to the front and emphasizes the slimmness of the silhouette. Note the saddle shoulder and short, puffed sleeves—details that are unusually becoming and make for distinction. One of the new widely spaced flower patterns in rayon or silk will make your informal afternoons and evening a double delight, and the pattern is a particular joy to work with. So simple, and so pleasing.

Trim Morning Frock. Don't be caught around the house without your best foot forward. You needn't be, with this crisp and flattering morning frock at your beck and call. Simple as pie, yet charming fresh and youthful, this model dispenses with all fussy details yet achieves an appearance which will see you through the busiest day. The skirt flares a bit from a neatly fitted waistline, and the ric-rac trim, in contrast, adds a note of brightness. Just nine pieces including the belt and pockets. Try dotted swiss or a printed percale.

For the Full Figure. This charming frock is really more than a house frock—you'll find it flattering enough and dressy enough to wear throughout the day. The slim, straight lines make every provision for comfort. The skirt has a kick pleat at front, the sleeves are full and pleated, and the neck line is just right to be very flattering. Furthermore you can make this dress, of a rayon print or gay percale, in a brief afternoon or evening, resulting in a pretty, runaround model at far less than you usually spend.

The Patterns. Pattern 1450 is designed for sizes 12 to 20 (32 to 38 bust). Size 14 (32) requires 3 3/4 yards of 39 inch material with short sleeves. Fourteen inch zipper required for front closing.

Pattern 1312 is designed for sizes 14 to 44 (32 to 44 bust). Size 16 (34) requires 3 3/4 yards of 39 inch fabric; 1 3/4 yards braid required for trimming.

Pattern 1444 is designed for sizes 36 to 52. Size 38 requires 4 3/4 yards of 35 or 39 inch material; 1/2 yard required for revers facing in contrast. Bow requires 1/2 yard ribbon.

Send your order to The Sewing Circle Pattern Dept., Room 1020, 211 W. Wacker Dr., Chicago, Ill. Price of patterns, 15 cents (in coins) each.

TIPS to Gardeners

Locate Crops Logically IF YOU have a choice of location for your garden, select a place where there is plenty of sun, away from trees. Treat roots take nourishment from the ground and the foliage shades the garden from the sun.

If you have had little experience, your gardening will prove more satisfactory if you grow several vegetables in the easy-to-grow classification. In this group, according to Harold Coulter, vegetable expert, are radishes, beets, Swiss chard and turnips. If your garden is fairly large, spinach, peas, beans and corn can be sown.

Where the garden is small and you wish to get a good volume yield from a limited space, the vegetables to be grown should again be selected carefully. Radish, leaf lettuce, beets, carrots, peas and beans are quick growing items which should prove satisfactory.

Before planting, work soil deeply, make the top four inches fine and loose. Plant seeds according to directions on seed packet.

As the Olive Mark how fleeting and paltry is the estate of man—yesterday in embryo, tomorrow a mummy or ashes. So for the hair's breadth of time assigned to thee live rationally, and part with life cheerfully, as drops the ripe olive extolling the season that bore it and the tree that matured it.—Marcus Aurelius.

Millions have found in Calotabs a most valuable aid in the treatment of colds. They take one or two tablets the first night and repeat the third or fourth night if needed.

How do Calotabs help nature throw off a cold? First, Calotabs are one of the most thorough and dependable of all intestinal eliminants, thus cleansing the intestinal tract of the virus-laden mucus and toxins. Second, Calotabs are diuretic to the kidneys, promoting the elimination of cold poisons from the blood. Thus Calotabs serve the double purpose of a purgative and diuretic, both of which are needed in the treatment of colds.

Calotabs are quite economical; only twenty-five cents for the family package, ten cents for the trial package.—(adv.)

Daughter's Won't Make Parents Happy

UNCLE SAM is the producer of "The River," regarded by many as the greatest of current motion pictures, and one of the greatest motion pictures of all time. Specifically, "The River" was produced for the Farm Security Administration by Pare Lorentz, a former New York film reviewer, who for the past two years has been turning down big-money offers from Hollywood in favor of working for the government.

"This is the story of the Mississippi, where it comes from, where it goes, what it has meant to us, and what it has cost us," the beautiful voice of Thomas Chalmers intones as the picture starts. From then on in magnificently photographed scenes we are shown an epic. The Mississippi rising in rebellion is far more stirring and majestic than all the actors who have ever seen in imaginary crises.

Months ago David Selznick and Paulette Goddard, who sometimes answers to the name of Mrs. Charles Chaplin, indulged in a bitter argument. Friends reported that Paulette expected to play the role of Scarlett O'Hara in "Gone With the Wind," Mr. Selznick replied crisply that she was not even being considered for it, and Paulette was so upset she said she wouldn't play it even if he begged her to. Now they have patched up their troubles, she has signed a contract and both admit that if her tests are satisfactory she'll play the role.

Kate Smith had a guest star on her program who cost her almost as much as the sponsor. The guest star was Hortense Odium, who took over a failing store a few years ago and built it into one of the greatest sources of women's fashions. Kate doesn't have much time for shopping, and she was so impressed by Mrs. Odium's talk that she gave lavish orders for her spring wardrobe then and there.

Peter Lorre, the sinister "Mr. Moto" of Twentieth Century-Fox films is never the victim of practical jokes in Hollywood. Folks out there know he always strikes back. When he was leaving London for America, his director had a big dray horse delivered to him at the last minute as a parting gift. Mr. Lorre sent the horse to a friend's farm, then arranged to have three hundred singing canaries delivered to the director at three in the morning.

Norma Shearer has never forgotten the stars whose pictures thrilled her when she was just getting started in pictures fifteen years ago. She gave the names of some fifty players to the casting director of her "Marie Antoinette" and asked that they should be given roles. It was hard to locate many of them, for in recent years hard luck, poverty, and despondency had dogged their footsteps, but now they are all happily at work.

Norma Shearer

ODDS AND ENDS—Between scenes of "Island in the Sky" the cast surrounded Toby Doolan with "Nice Work if You Can Get It" because for two days he did nothing but lie still on the floor while a cinema coroner and his assistants pronounced Doolan dead. Warner Brothers are going to feature Olivia de Havilland and Anita Louise in "Sundown" which they hope will be as great a picture as R.K.O.'s "Stage Door." Pick and Pat, radio comedians, are going to make motion pictures for Republic. Although pretty busy conducting the Magic Key and Friday night concert hours, Frank Black found time to stock his one hundred and eighteen acre Pennsylvania farm and now he is actually making money from his prize live stock and chickens. Ronald Colman will return to the screen in "If I Were King," one of the grandest of old costume melodramas. Reed Kennedy, song-shop baritone, is teaching his four young sons to sing for the radio.

During 20 minutes they listened spellbound while she talked. At first Margarida Fonseca seemed a volcano on the verge of eruption; while occasionally she protested with a snort of startling volume, to no statement did she deign to voice actual denial. But gradually—very gradually—the scowl began to clear from her brow, her clenched fists relaxed, a gleam of admiration dawned in her eyes and at last the smile Joyce had seen only once before transfigured her expression.

"Ah!" cried the ex-minister of war, and it sounded like a groan of understanding mixed with rage. "It is clear what happened—too clear! Licenciada Fonseca baited the hook, Onelia gladly swallowed it. By abandoning you to your fate in La Barranca without killing Dorado they created an unparalleled international situation which made me totter. One more push would send me over with a crash, and Onelia herself supplied the impulse by facilitating the theft of the howitzers and casting the blame on me. Ah, senorita, you did well by yourself to bring me here today. All All!"

Without bothering to take his leave, he rushed to the room. A shadow swept across Margarida's face, but promptly cleared. "Well, chica," she rumbled, "what wouldn't I give to have you for a partner!"

"No more than I'd give to have you for a friend," said Joyce from her heart. "Oh, Margarida, please be my friend."

"No," said Margarida, tossing her iron-gray mane of hair. "Impossible. I detest you gringos—all of you and all you stand for. Your insufferable pride in dynamics as the true and only end of man! Your price labels on everything pertaining to the soul! You jeer at our thieves' market; what about your furies, weighing gold against bushes of injured hearts? I could go on for an hour, but enough is enough. At the end we'd have to arrive at the truth. I love you, chica, my little one, and I've always wished I might have a tiger just your size for a pet. You're adorable."

Dirk's telephoning from the embassy now bore fruit. Pablo entered and whispered to him, withdrew and a minute later came back accompanied by a respectable though threadbare individual. The newcomer seemed nervous, at odds with his surroundings and the company in which he found himself. He had the look of a man whose world has been yanked from under him, leaving him floating in air out of reach of help from heaven or hell. He regarded the ambassador, Joyce and even Margarida Fonseca's arresting presence with lackluster eyes, then turned to Dirk.

"I'm the Reverend Ellerton Jones," he announced in the ghost of a voice. "I understand you sent for me, Mr. Van Suttart, but I'm not at all sure—not at all sure—"

"Sit down, sir," said Dirk, "and let's talk the thing over. This is more or less a family gathering. The ambassador isn't an ambassador this afternoon; he's acting as my father. As for Licenciada Margarida Fonseca, one of the high-lights of the Mexican bar, she's a very dear friend of the girl whom I wish to marry, Miss Joyce Sewell. Surely you'll help us out."

felt. What though the voice of the preacher was the voice of habit, precise in intonation, humdrum in intent; it could not lessen the surge of emotion which took possession of the hearts of his hearers, choked their throats and turned dry eyes luminous. To the sight of the men and the woman present and in the sight of God no longer were Joyce and Dirk arrayed in whipcord and saddle-stained moleskin, nor yet in silk or broadcloth. They were clothed in light, their faces bathed in a glory from within which presaged a devotion beyond any that lips alone can pledge.

The ambassador put his arm around Joyce, kissed her and stood looking down into her eyes. "My dear, I've never given away a sweeter bride to a more lovable boy." He turned his head to look at Dirk. "What now?" he asked. "When do you intend to return to your job?"

"That's up to Joyce, sir," said Dirk. "I've married her. I mean the whole of me has married her. I've just heard some words I've never heard before in my life—though I and you and everybody else know them by heart. I take them as they stand."

"He means it!" murmured the ambassador and returned his attention to Joyce. "What about it, my dear? I understand you have no use for embassies and all their works. What do you want Dirk to do—shake his job and become a drone?"

"A drone?" gasped Joyce, and caught her lip lest she laugh. She left his side, walked toward a window, and turned. "You're a great ambassador," she stated gravely. "I've known you only an hour and already you stir in me something I'll have to call love—one of the sweeter kinds of love—because there's no other word that comes near it. I can imagine that sort of power doing good no matter where a man walks. If Dirk, like you, is headed toward awaking the love of his fellow man—not of his nationals, his fellow man—what difference does it make where we live, what path he and I take together?"

The ambassador stared at her, then turned very slowly to look at Dirk. "That's your release, Dirk, and I don't mind saying you've cut out a full-sized job for yourself whether you stay under me or go. Want more time to think it over?"

"Yes, sir," "How long?" Dirk looked at Joyce and she answered for him. "Long enough to settle with Dorado." There was a disturbance in the hallway; General Sebastiano, fuming with impatience, opened the door for himself and hastened toward the ambassador. "Excellent," he cried, "I have accomplished much since I left here. I have been closeted with the president himself and return with a budget of news. For your relief let me say at once that our troubles are over."

"Which trouble?" asked the ambassador feelingly. "All, all," said the general. "Our countries can be at peace as never before and we may yet look upon the incident of La Barranca as a godsend." "That would be good news with a vengeance," murmured the ambassador. "So it's the president himself who found the solution?" "A perfect one and so simple it cuts the Gordian knot at a single stroke. What was the situation? A young girl, with the eyes of the world upon her, battling to hold her own property—international dynamite as you yourself admitted. Had my government followed your suggestion of sending a battalion to

"I don't follow you," said the ambassador testily. "Send a battalion to keep her in," continued the general with slow emphasis. "In short, the president suggests that the government support the Mexican-born senorita Joyce Sewell in the lawful possession of her property, subject only to such restrictions as the national law provides, by every means in the power of the republic. As a first step he has directed me to dispatch at once a sufficient force for the capture of General Dorado—bandit, bootlegger of illicit gold, and purloiner of a battery of howitzers."

"Directed you?" asked the ambassador with emphasis on the pronoun. "Why not General Onelia?" "Ah, Onelia. The president ordered his instant arrest, simultaneously with my reappointment as minister of war. Incidentally, the traitor is no more."

"You mean Onelia's dead?" cried the ambassador. "Through his own fault," asserted General Sebastiano sorrowfully, "and only in the last half-hour." Then he added in explanation, "Our regrettable national habit of ley de fuga—shot while attempting to escape from his guards."

Margarida advanced with hand extended. "Mr. Minister," she rumbled, "let me be the first to congratulate you on the resumption of the portfolio you know so well how to administer to your own honor and the honor of our country." She marched onward and turned in the door. "I trust both your excellencies will keep me in mind as a good lawyer though an honest woman."

Historians Given Unpublished Letters
Written by Explorer Meriwether Lewis
Hitherto unknown—or unconfirmed—sidelights on the life of Meriwether Lewis, co-explorer with William Clark of the Northwest, have been revealed with the bequest to the Missouri Historical society of unpublished letters written by the great explorer and scout, according to a St. Louis United Press correspondent in the Detroit Free Press.

Scholars have been working on the letters and documents, which were given to the society by the late Dr. Meriwether Lewis Anderson, a descendant of Lewis. Anderson died at Richmond, Va. Included in the group are numerous letters written by the explorer to his mother. One, written in 1795, when he was twenty, was in a semi-apologetic tone for his seeming inability to stay home. He had enlisted with some Virginia troops at the time, and wrote:

"So violently opposed is my governing passion for rambling to the wishes of all my friends, that I am led intentionally to err and then have vanity enough to hope for forgiveness."

"I do not know how to account for this Quixotic disposition of mine in any other manner or its being inflicted by any other cause than that of having inherited it in right of the Meriwether family." He asked his mother to forgive him on that basis; then promised to let her know of his whereabouts "by every opportunity."

One of the prizes of the new additions to the society's already large collection of Lewis-Clark material is a letter written by Lewis to his mother in July, 1803, less than a year before he departed on the expedition which was to make his name prominent in the history of American exploration.

Dirk went out with the clergyman; the ambassador withdrew, arm in arm with the minister of war, each aglow with plans for a rapprochement that would bring glory to both. Joyce, the small cause of weighty matters, was left alone. Standing at a high window she watched their excellencies depart but turned at the sound of a footstep. She and Dirk hung poised for a breathless moment with the room between them. Slowly they moved forward. The days they had spent together seemed to lengthen into years, reaching back into a common childhood and knitting the innermost fibers of their being. Their hands touched, clung, and as they looked deep in each other's eyes the same fear was born in them, the same silent cry: "This is I; if I lose you I'm lost, torn, maimed." Then his arms opened and she crushed herself against him.

"Oh, Dirk! Darling! Dirk!" "Don't worry," he whispered thickly. "I feel it too, Joyce. We won't lose each other, we can't. I love you—all of me loves all of you. Nothing ever can happen to one of us again."

She raised her face, blinding with its incandescence. Their kiss opened the floodgates of the heart and swept their veins with fire. Life with its inevitable pitfalls stretched far and wide before them, but one thing they knew: this was the topmost pinnacle of surrender. Never could they give again what now they gave, never step back out of that world of love to which all other loves are but an echo.

Daughter's Won't Make Parents Happy

DEAR DORIS DEN: Teen and for tried to help my pa in financial need. I ha successful as my job just ports me. Now I am of riage by a much older seems to love me. I h for him but respect a fection. He can give thing I need and also different for my father as They are my chief worry it are a very devoted family H. F.

ANSWER—You can't make voted family happy and come through your own unhappy riage. And no girl of mine marry an older man she love and escape much ment and heart-ache be through.

Other girls have tried ment you propose to me gone well for a while. Th daughter in a glow of gr at the man who is helping to family the comforts they lieves herself to be happy. few months she is contented to know that her people are taken care of. Relief from a present worry makes her soar and causes her to belie she has found life's true ness.

But in another few month of her exultation dies down the most self-sacrificing gi world begins to want a ha more personal than that offe the spectacle of her parents' being. As she learns to ace, fact that the wolf is now estab permanently at a respectu tance from the door of the ances mansion so her joy in this fact minishes and her demand for other kind of happiness begins.

It is then that she begins to critic the man she has married; to realize th she can never love him—and that but for her first blind delight in their material comforts, she would never have been able to stand him. All his faults are magnified in her eyes. Even gratitude cannot keep her from expressing her unfavorable opinions bluntly. Because she is not in love she cannot make her benefactor happy. And he shortly comes to know the bitterness of being unwanted except for his money—while his young inexperienced wife struggles desperately to conceal her distaste for an unloved spouse.

The result is sordid domestic misery. And it is inconceivable that the parents of the self-sacrificing daughter can find pleasure or happiness in the comforts which have been given at the cost of their child's happiness.

DEAR MISS DENE: I am eighteen and am in love with a boy of whom my parents do not approve because of his nationality and religion. He is wealthy and gives me a very good time. Should I break off with him to please my parents? I now see him every day. I enjoy reading your column every day. —D. G.

ANSWER — No good running around with the boy if you have to do it on the sly. That kind of romance never made for permanent happiness. The sly date may give you a romantic thrill but it doesn't give you the faintest chance to know and understand the boy you're going with.

On the other hand it would be a pity if you broke up a nice friendship simply because your hero happened to be of a different race and creed from yourself.

Dancing M.

It's not a question of ethics, my girl, just a case of plain bad manners.

Nobody has invented any laws yet to cover the conduct of a young lady who has been escorted to a dance by a beau she doesn't care a hang about. The whole question is just a matter of personal opinion—and personally I think you behaved very badly.

If you use a man as an entrance ticket to a dance, you might accord him the same courtesy you would show to the keeper of the zoo when he gives you the special privilege of going inside the monkey-house for a few minutes. That's all I claim.

It is simply good taste to show, occasionally during an evening, that you recognize the boy who brought you to the dance, and who paid for the taxi and who will probably have to take you home. It is definitely not unreasonable of the lad to demand one dance with the fair lady whom he mistakenly supposed wanted him to be her escort for the evening.

If you persist in your rather casual treatment of swains, Dancing M., you'll find that your popularity with the stag-line will be of no use you, since no practical minded will bear the expense of carrying you to the dance when you are at play.

self inflicted gunshot wounds.
The act was due, it was said, to despondency over a long illness.

A Telephone

Is no longer a luxury - - - It is a necessity. For calling your greengrocer, butcher or doctor it is indispensable. And remember, one minute's emergency might pay a year's telephone bill.

Bringing the News

DOWN to SIZE

BIG NEWS STORIES often keep alive for weeks or months until readers are confused or overwhelmed by the mass of printed detail. Occasionally readers fail to grasp the true aspects of such a story when it comes to a head, because they missed the earlier developments. Typical news of this sort were the Hauptmann case before it came to trial; the Italo-Ethiopian fracas; Philippine independence and old-age security legislation.

WILLIAM C. UTLEY, whose syndicated articles appear regularly in this newspaper, analyzes each case of this kind. In a single story he presents all the facts that are essential to enable the reader to conclude for himself what the outcome should be. He covers sport as well as government, business as well as every-day life. You'll find his work anything but dull—it will often give you a chuckle.
