"Uncle Penn" Johnson Dies at Home Monday

One of Hedley's oldest settlers and most respected citizens, P. O. Johnson, passed away at his home here Monday evening at 7:35 Uncle Penn, as he was affectionately called, had been ill several months, and became critically ill Sunday morning.

Funeral services were held Tuesday afternoon at 3 o'clock at the First Baptist Church. The choir sang "Throw Out the Life-line," and a duet, "In the Garden," was beautifully rendered by Meses Alva Simmons and Hobart Moffitt. Rev. B. J. Osborn led in prayer and gave the Scripture reading. Rev. Vick Allen, pastor of the Lella Lake Baptist Church, delivered a fitting sermon. A male quartet of Rev. Osborn, Robert Watkins, W. H. Poffman and E. W. A. wine concluded the short service with "The Old Rugged Cross."

Interment was made in the Odd Fellows cemetery at Clarendon, under direction of the Moreman-Buntin Funeral Home. An impressive service was held at the grave by the Masonic Lodge.

Flower bearers included Meses Clyde Bridges, L. E. Thompson, Willie Seales, Ruby Glass, J. B. Masterson, Edd Todd, G. C. Eldor and Miss Fairy McQueen.

Mr. Johnson was born in Texas May 16, 1871, the son of Watkins and Hettie Johnson. He was married Nov. 22, 1894, to Miss Ella Hill, at Caddo Mills. They came to Donley county in the late nineties.

He is survived by his wife, one son, W. P. Johnson of Laguna Beach, Calif., one grandson, Jerry Aerd Johnson of Laguna Beach, a brother, Ed Johnson of Buffalo, Texas, and six nieces, Mesdames Corrie Curran, Era Thrasher and Eula Davis, all at Houston. Mrs. Lela Edwards of Albuquerque, Mrs. May Foreman of Wellington, Kansas, and Mrs. Alice Hawkins of Pease.

He was a member of the First Baptist Church here, having joined with the Baptist Church at Caddo Mills at the age of 20. He was also a member of the Masonic order, and had been treasurer of the local chapter 22 years. He had held various public offices, and was Justice of Peace here at the time of his death.

Naturally of jovial disposition, Uncle Penn made friends for himself wherever he went, and leaves many who will miss his cheery greeting.

The Informer joins a host of friends in extending sincere sympathy to the bereaved ones.

Dr. and Mrs. J. C. Coffey, former Hedley residents, moved back here last week from Benjamin. Their many Hedley friends are glad to welcome them back.

Friends from Amarillo attending the funeral of P. O. Johnson Tuesday included Spencer Sibley and family, Luke Hart and family and Grover Eider and family.

Monroe Aard and wife of Clarendon visited here Tuesday night.

BASEBALL

Hedley played one of their best games of the season Sunday when they blanked Memphis on the latter's home grounds. Milton Foster pitched the entire game for Hedley, and backed by errorless playing from the entire team, held the league leading Memphis nine scoreless.

Foster made the first Hedley tally in the 3rd inning. They "cut loose" in the 5th when Foster, Holland, Jap Shaw and Booker Shaw scored making the count 5 to 0. After 3 scoreless innings, Lance Leggett came in with the final run in the 9th, the game ending 6 to 0.

In the other league games Sun Salisbury outlasted Crossroads 7 to 6 in 11 innings, and Parnell defeated Childress 11 to 9, leaving Salisbury and Hedley tied for the cellar, one game behind Crossroads.

Hedley plays Crossroads there Sunday.

Political Rally

The Women's Culture Club sponsored a political rally at the school auditorium Friday night. Almost all the county and district candidates were present, as well as speakers for G. H. Nelson and Wm. McOraw. The ladies sold ice cream, pie and cake, and reported that they were well pleased with the proceeds.

For Sale—pen fed fryers, big breed. See Mrs. W. G. Bridges. Phone 69.

B. J. Osborn, Pastor

To the members of our Church: The above is a directory of the meetings at your church. Note the time of the services and please be in your place to help to inspire the interest of the services. As your pastor I look forward to the time with deep concern for a spiritual fellowship. I want to fill my place to which I have dedicated my life and have been assigned to serve. As I promised you in the beginning of my pastorate to give you the best that is in me, I still promise I want to bring you the messages that the Lord gives me, and that I feel you need. These are strenuous days, trying on your faith, and you need fellowship that only the church can give. God is still on His throne. He rules the universe and deals with His people according as they remember Him. He has commanded that we keep the Sabbath Day holy, and has provided the Church where we may assemble and worship Him. Let us all say with the Psalmist "I was glad when they said unto me, let us go up to the house of the Lord." Will you not come up to His house next Sunday and worship with us?

B. J. Osborn

Mrs. J. G. McDougal was very pleasantly surprised this week by a visit from her brother, M. Pye and wife and Miss Julia Rath Priestly of Van Horn.

Casting Casualty
Synthetic Cobwebs
Radio Build-Ups
—By Virginia Vale—

WHEN Irene Dunne was in New York recently she had what might have been an embarrassing experience. She lunched alone in a smart restaurant, and when it came time to pay the check she discovered, to her horror, that she hadn't enough money.

She appealed to the manager, asking him if he would cash a check for the amount. He assured her that he would. So she wrote the check—and he promptly framed it. Just one more case where a well known face was worth a fortune!

Kay Francis is looking forward to September, when her current motion picture contract expires. She is going off for a long vacation in Europe. And nobody can blame her for wanting to be rid of the movies for a while, at least. Bad pictures have affected her box-office value, but when she fought for roles that she knew would be good, she didn't get them. Now that theatrical producers go to Hollywood when they want to cast new plays, it may be that she will return to the stage when that vacation is over.

KAY FRANCIS

Here's an odd note on the old stage-screen battle. "Stage Door" was a very successful play. The movies bought it and made it over—threw away the story and started from scratch. Now some of the summer stock companies would like to do the stage version, but one of the authors, Edna Ferber, won't release it to them—because she feels that the film version was so much better than the original!

Next time you see a cobweb on the screen think of the man who is Hollywood's expert cobweb-maker, Jess Wolf. His most recent assignment was constructing more than two miles of cobwebs for a castle in Warner Brothers' "Kidnaped." He has a gadget that squirts a rubber compound in a tiny thread. Then he weaves the threads into a cobweb pattern, and sprays them with gray paint.

Kay Kyser with his College of Musical Knowledge has a grand program with a really new idea. Kyser from the Middle West, where a great deal of the talent seems to come from these days. Remember him on Wednesday nights.

W. C. Fields, who's out of movies for the time being, may return to the radio program which he deserted months ago. He left then because of a disagreement over scripts. The same reason was given for his movie contract's being terminated. Meanwhile Charlie McCarthy has become so popular on that radio program that one can't help wondering if there is a place for Fields.

It's becoming more and more evident that radio programs coming from cities and stations outside New York are better than a lot of those broadcast from the big city. One reason is that fast-talking agents can sell talent that isn't really very good. Questioned not long ago about the success of a certain singer her agent broke down and confessed all—told about how she had been built up, pushed ahead; how he landed this contract and then that one for her. Now she's one of radio celebrities, drawing a huge salary for her work on a well-known program. And a lot of girls who sing on local broadcasts made in smaller stations are ever so much better.

ODDS AND ENDS—Phil Baker has another daughter; that makes two daughters and two sons. . . . Claudette Colbert spent just an hour in New York after arriving from Europe and before leaving for Hollywood. . . . Irene Rich's radio sponsor has agreed to let her play Donna Durbin's mother in "That Certain Age" on the screen. . . . Luise Rainer didn't want to play a leading role in "The Great Waltz" until the company showed her Francis Gaal's tests in the part—which was a little hard on Francis!

MESSIAH from WISCONSIN?

House of La Follette Again Sponsors a Third Party

By JOSEPH W. LABINE

Since 1930 American politics has seen Messiahs by the carload. In Minnesota the Floyd B. Olsons attempted to project their Farmer-Labor party into the national picture; in Detroit the Father Coughlins came forward with a platform that was anti-Democratic and anti-Republican; Townsendism had its day, and dynamic Huey P. Long raised his voice from the bayous of Louisiana.

These are the malcontents, "radicals" if you please, many of whom argue that it's safer to build a new balloon than patch the old. In an era featured by change, they want more change. Individually they are powerless, but if a new Leader should emerge—

In Wisconsin a few weeks ago that potential Leader did emerge, but he was not an unknown Messiah. His father was the fire-eating Progressive who kept the United States senate worried until his death in 1925. His brother is today a member of that same senate and very much respected. He himself is governor of Wisconsin.

The name is Phil LaFollette. If America's anti-Republicans and anti-Democrats had searched a generation they might not have found an abler Leader than the man who popped up in the quiet college town of Madison. Like his brother, Senator Bob, Phil LaFollette has been doggedly fighting for the ideals of Progressivism more than a decade. He's never shouted; only the false Messiahs shout. But he has applied his ideals to state government and has made them work.

A Brotherly Combine.

Together the brothers LaFollette form a unique combination to win support from labor, the farmer and the small business men.

They are not socialists but the LaFollettes want to "harness the profit motive for social ends." They are not capitalistic but they think organized labor is foolish to bargain for fixed wages instead of an annual income based on a share of the company's profits. Nor are these farm state boys opposed to agriculture but they do censure the farmer for haggling with purchasers of their crops for a set price level. Instead, say the LaFollettes, farmers should bargain collectively for a share of the ultimate price.

These proposals come under the heading of making new balloons instead of patching old ones. Phil LaFollette built a new balloon in his state unemployment insurance law, a piece of legislation that reflects the LaFollette fetish for justice. Under this act a separate set of books is kept for each business organization in the state. The corporation with the smallest labor turnover pays the least.

What Phil LaFollette doesn't say, Senator Bob supplies. In Washington he rants about the "hodge-podge" of taxation that has grown up these past hundred years. He'd like to junk it all and develop a sane, thoroughgoing program.

Brother Bob's Opinions.

Senator Bob has also voiced a family opinion concerning the New Deal and its efforts to cure depressions, recessions and crises within crises. But the New Deal is only an immediate victim of his denunciation. He says this business of waiting for "economic cycles" is foolishness.

Governor Phil LaFollette of Wisconsin, charming and unassuming, will be the "public appeal" factor in the National Progressive party's campaign. He's presidential timber.

Throughout the past decade's topsy-turvy experimentation in social and economic reform, the LaFollettes have remained pretty much in the background. In Wisconsin, Governor Phil has done his own experimenting and in Washington Senator Bob has listened carefully to each successive crop of reform proposals.

Old Bob LaFollette, dead since 1925, is still the moving spirit in Wisconsin's progressive politics.

Comes the Announcement.

In 1938, at a strategic moment when the New Deal shows signs of bogging down, when the Republican party still lacks leadership and the country cries with discontent, Phil LaFollette has launched the National Progressive party with an eye to pushing himself to the White House by 1948. Perhaps it will be sooner. On the surface Bob LaFollette, well versed with official Washington, is the logical National Progressive candidate. But the brothers recognize that Bob is the politician and legislator while Phil is an executive.

This is a queer trick of fate because old Bob LaFollette intended that his namesake should carry on the family tradition. Young Bob went to Washington immediately after he finished college and became his father's secretary. In 1924 he managed the LaFollette presidential campaign and found himself in the heat of politics while brother Phil was twiddling his thumbs.

Phil once thought of entering the ministry. His wise old father discouraged him from politics but his heart was in it. In 1924, at the ripe age of twenty-seven, he ran for district attorney of Dane county, delivering not a single speech for himself because the elder LaFollette needed his help in the presidential campaign. But Phil won.

Wisconsin's Wonder Boy.

The next year his father died and Phil's ambitions were nipped in the bud when young Bob ascended to the senate. It looked like a political fade-out but Phil won the Republican nomination for governor in 1930 and has been at Madison for three terms since.

Wisconsin's allegiance to the LaFollette tradition is a thing of wonder. In November, 1928, young Bob came up for election the first time and was sent back to the senate with a plurality of 400,000. Yet Wisconsin gave its electoral vote that year to Herbert Hoover, for whom the LaFollettes had said not a single good word.

Governor Phil is by no means an idol with his constituents. The past two years have seen many scraps from which he has emerged victorious but badly scratched. In most of these he has shown a judgment for diplomacy that would credit any President. One of his accomplishments was legislative enactment of a governmental reorganization bill, the same stumbling block over which President Roosevelt tripped last winter.

"Trigger" La Follette.

The governor's private life and hobbies account for much of his popular appeal. He is a devotee of Americana of the Sam Houston period and is also a student of Napoleon.

His quick-on-the-trigger aptitude in speech-making wins him many converts. Never caught short, he faced a momentary crisis when addressing a crowd of Farmer-Laborites in Iowa a few weeks ago. A bench collapsed noisily, spilling its occupants to the ground.

"That," cracked Phil, "must have been the Democratic or Republican platform."

The next few months may see Governor Phil and Senator Bob carrying their National Progressive party to the nation. The two brothers never disagree on major points, so America's farmers, laboring men and small business men are apt to be offered two Messiahs instead of one, each preaching the same political doctrine.

To them may fall the task of cementing our growing crop of malcontents into a unified political group, of soothing Labor's quarrels with the farmer and the corner grocery man. To their flag may rally a strange mixture of men and women, disillusioned followers of defeated third party movements.

But Phil will be the dominant LaFollette, a dynamic crusader in whom more than one aging Progressive will see a carbon copy of old Fighting Bob LaFollette, the man who wanted his son to be a minister.

HOW to SEW By RUTH WYETH SPEARS

Bright Embroidered Borders for Towels

THESE borders you will find easy to make. All six strands of six-strand mercerized embroidery thread are used. Crease 1 1/4 inch hems first. Draw threads of the material to make straight guide lines for the embroidery. Sew the hems by hand after the embroidery is done.

The top border is royal blue and turkey red. To make the straight lines at the sides, couch blue thread in place with red as at A. The loop stitches along the edge are made as at B. The vertical loops are red and the smaller horizontal loops blue. The fish-bone stitch in the center is made in red as at C.

The lower border is light yellow and orange. The edge lines are yellow, couched in place with orange. The alternating groups of yellow and orange ray stitches along the edge are made as at D. For the center chain make evenly spaced yellow stitches in double thread as at E, then weave orange thread through them as at F.

Readers who have received their copy of Mrs. Spears' book on Sewing, for the Home Decorator, will be pleased to know that Book No. 2 is now ready. Ninety embroidery stitches are illustrated; fabric repairing; also table settings; gifts; and many things to make for yourself and the children. If you like hand work you will be pleased with this unique book of complete directions for every article illustrated. Price 25 cents postpaid (coin preferred). ## Strange Facts

Night Worker Wilts at 90°

WHY do expensive gardenias wilt and drop their blossoms when grown in greenhouses? The common garden varieties, grown out of doors in warm climates, keep their blossoms fresh until picked. In mid-winter when they bring the highest prices the sweet scented white blossoms often fall from their stems before they can be shipped from the greenhouses. Cornell university's department of horticulture has just solved the mystery for the florists. Most plants do not grow during the night. Gardenias are night workers.

Curtis Keyes discovered gardenias work in two shifts. Like other workers they gather food in daylight hours, but when night falls the glamorous gardenia begins to grow. Daylight is the signal for the shift back to the food-making process, when the plant gathers sunshine, moisture and carbon dioxide to make starch. Night temperatures in greenhouses must be reduced to 58 or 60 degrees for the hard-working gardenia. The usual high temperatures of 80 and 90 degrees cause the blossoms to wilt and drop from the stem.

In America and Europe the plant is grown only for its beautiful white flowers and for perfume. In China and Japan one species of gardenia is raised for its large orange fruit. This fruit is used for a yellow dye to color silk. In the East Indies another variety produces a valuable gum.

"What has Lou got to do with it?" Howard asked.

"He's one of the gang that did this. We caught him. He's our prisoner now. A hostage, you might say. If anything happens to Miss Ruth, it's all off with him."

"What d'you mean, he's one of the gang that did this? Lou doesn't go around carrying girls up into the hills, if that's what happened, though so far I can't make head or tail of it." Howard looked reproachfully at the L C man. "You hadn't ought to talk that wild, lawless way, Dan. About stringing up Lou, and crazy talk like that. Be reasonable. First off, tell us the story. Begin at the beginning. Let's hear what happened . . . Will you have a drink?" He pushed the bottle toward Brand.

"I will not," Brand said curtly. "No need to begin at the first of it, Sherm. You know that better than I do. Through yore spies you found out some Mexican smugglers were going to run silver through Live Oak canyon to Tough Nut. You sent five of yore gang out to waylay them."

"Wa-ait a minute, Dan." Howard raised a fat hand to stop him. "No such a thing. Some of the boys headed for Tough Nut to see the elephant. They may have gone by way of Live Oak canyon. I wouldn't know about that."

"It isn't more than 40 miles off the direct route to Tough Nut," Brand said contemptuously. "Don't try to load me, Sherm. I know what that outlaw bunch went to Live Oak for. We found two Mexicans they had rubbed out and the pack-mule with the silver. Yore crowd was still shootin' when we took a hand."

"The Mexicans must have attacked them," Howard protested. "That would be the way of it."

"Sure. When a brush rabbit gets nerve enough to spit in the eye of a rattlesnake. Like I said, Lou is our prisoner. That boy hasn't any sand in his craw. He wilted right off and blabbed all he knew. Don't waste my time trying to lie. Here's the nub of it. Two of yore men slipped away from us up a side canyon. They cut across to the L C ranch-house and picked up Miss Ruth. After she had rustled grub for them, they took her with them into the hills."

"What two men?"

"Morg Norris and Kansas."

"I'm not responsible for what that killer Morg Norris does," the fat man burst out. "You know that, Dan. He's a bad hombre. Long ago, soon as I saw what he was, I washed my hands of him."

"Lee holds you responsible. So do the rest of us. You can't get away with that, Sherm. Every decent man in this country will be against you in this thing. If that devil Norris hurts Miss Ruth, you'll be in a jam. Don't think anything else for a minute."

The big moon face of Howard was pallid. The reverse at Live Oak was bad enough. Not much chance to play innocent with Lou a prisoner. But this crazy adventure of Morgan Norris was ruinous. Sherm did not know which way to turn. Lee Chiswick hated him, anyhow. The oldest son of the L C ranchman had been a private in the Texas Rangers and had been killed while on duty. The father of the dead boy had always suspected Howard of betraying the youngster to his death, though he had never been able to prove it. If this girl was injured, Lee would go hog wild. His revenge would never stop at Norris—not even at Lou Howard.

"We want to be reasonable, Dan," he said. "I wouldn't have had this happen for all the money in the world—if it has happened. I can't believe it. Morg is a good-looking fellow. Maybe he just persuaded her to ride along a ways. If it was Morg. We want to be sure of that."

"Morg left a note," Brand said quickly. "Besides, the girl who works at the ranch got away and told us. What's the sense in trying to fool yourself? If it is yoreself and not me you're trying to load, I'm here to tell you to get busy. Send some of yore scallawags out to shoot down Norris. Get Miss Ruth back somehow safely. If you don't, you're out of luck, Sherm." The face of the foreman was harsh and grim.

Howard mopped his perspiring face with a handkerchief. He made up his mind to sacrifice Norris. It was too bad Mile High was present, since it would be fatal for the idea to get out that he would not stand by any of his gang in trouble. But even Mile High must see they had to throw Morg to the lions after doing such a thing.

"We'd better talk turkey," he admitted. "First thing is to get Miss Chiswick back. I can promise to put 30 men to combing the hills inside of two hours, Dan. I'll go the limit on this thing."

"Good, if you send them to the right place," Brand made blunt answer.

"I don't know where he is any more than you do," Howard cut back sharply. "And I won't have you saying I do, Dan. There's one thing more I'll say. My boy Lou isn't in this. If you—or Lee—or any of his riders—do that boy any harm, I'll never quit till I've cleaned up the whole Chiswick nest. You can put that in your pipe and smoke it."

"All I'm saying is that you'd better find Miss Ruth and get her home," Brand replied, frowning at him.

The foreman turned and strode out of the room.

Mile High said to Howard angrily, "Is it yore idea to throw down on Morg?"

The lifeless eyes of Howard slid round to meet those of the other. "Don't always be a lunthead, Mile High. What has this fellow done but throw down on you and me and all of us? You know this country won't stand for such stuff as he has just pulled off. He'd know it, too, if he wasn't crazy. We've got to play our hands to save ourselves. When Morg Norris took this girl with him against her will, he signed his death-warrant. Don't you go signing yours. We're going after

He pushed through the brush for half a mile.

Morg to get him. You had better get you a horse and trail along with one of the posses. You'll find it's doggoned good insurance against a few years in the pen at Yuma."

CHAPTER X

Jeff Gray had to fight down an impulse to hurry. It would be folly to wear out the horses getting to the Walsh cabin, only to find out that Kansas had sent them on a wild-goose chase. After all, the man was one of the gang. What more likely than that, under instruction of Norris, he had been trying to direct the pursuit in the wrong direction when he freed Nelly?

With a heavy heart Jeff admitted to himself that this was very likely a job that could not be done in a hurry. He might have to sleep on Norris' trail for a week. The fellow knew every pocket in these hills. If Kansas were false-carding, they might not find the outlaws at all.

The two men traveled steadily, Sorley in the lead. The little Irishman was a good guide. He had an instinct for short cuts, and he held his horse to the fastest gait that would not sap its strength. They flung the miles behind them, moving always deeper and deeper into the hills.

"Much farther?" Gray asked once, his mouth set to a grim straight slit.

"Not so far," Sorley answered. "That's Crowfoot over to the left. We're swingin' round it now."

They circled back of the mountain, dropped into a gulch, and clambered up its stony bed. Near the top of the canyon Sorley stopped his horse.

"The cabin is in a little park just over the ridge," he said. "What do we do? Bust right down on them? Or wait till it's dark?"

"Better have a look first from the ridge," Gray suggested.

They left their horses just below the lip of the park, climbed up to the ledge, and looked down. No smoke rose from the house. There were no horses in the corral, but one saddled bronco was grazing near the spring.

"They sure have been here," Sorley said. "But they have done gone, and in some hurry, looks like. Didn't even take time to unsaddle. Why did they leave one of the horses here?"

Gray was looking down at something sprawled out in front of the cabin. "They didn't need but two horses," he said, his voice harsh and cold. "One of them stayed here." He pointed at the still body. A pulse of excitement hammered in the scrawny throat of the line-rider. "Begorry, you're right. There has been a fight, and one of them got killed."

The younger man differed. "Not a fight, but a murder. For some reason Norris made up his mind to get rid of Kansas. He did so, and then lit out. I'm going down."

"Look out for a trap," the old-timer advised.

"Don't think it's that. Two of the horses have gone."

But Gray did not take any unnecessary chances. His rifle was across the saddle as he rode down into the park. He made sure nobody was in the house before he took a close look at the dead man.

"Kansas, like you said," Sorley looked at his companion and then looked away. Both of them were thinking of what this meant to Ruth.

"They can't be far ahead of us, if we knew which way they had gone."

It would be possible to find in what direction they had started, but both the men knew there was little chance of running down Norris in hundreds of miles of rough mountain terrain.

Sorley began to quarter over the park looking for sign.

"He shot Kansas in the back of the head, from off to one side," Gray mentioned.

"The horses headed up toward that patch of little pines near the ridge," Sorley called to him. "Two of them. Morg was in a sweat to get away."

"Yes," Gray's voice raised in sudden excitement. "Come here, Pat. Someone left a message for us."

Sorley ran to him. He pointed to some writing scratched in the sand. The old man read it aloud slowly.

"Wild Horse basin."

"It's meant for us," Gray said. "Either the girl wrote it—or Norris did. It's signed with her initial, but that doesn't mean a thing. The scoundrel may have left it to fool us. The letters are done kinda shaky, as if she had made them in a hurry, on the fly." His eyes were back again on the writing.

"That's right," agreed the line-rider. "If Norris had done it, he would have fixed the letters deeper, so we wouldn't miss seeing them. I'd say Miss Ruth wrote it."

"Where is Wild Horse basin?"

Sorley pointed to the north. "Up in the high hills, back thataway. Say, how would the girl know where he was heading for?"

"She might have heard him say—or Kansas may have told her before he was killed. Likely Kansas made some move to help her. Morg wouldn't have shot him if he hadn't figured the other fellow was turning against him. Let's get going."

"For Wild Horse basin?"

"Yes. I have a hunch the girl did that writing. Morg never would have thought of it."

Sorley looked down at the dead man. "I hate not to bury him before we go, even if he was a scallawag. But we've got to jump. It will be night soon."

They carried the body into the cabin and covered it with two gunnysacks.

The riders followed the trail left by Norris and his prisoner. Once out of the park, Sorley waited only to make sure of the direction taken by those in front of them. He struck into the hills, dipping across gulches and winding round the shoulders of elephant humps. The country grew wilder and more rugged. Sometimes they were in a region of stunted pines. More often the hills were dry and scarred with rock outcroppings. From the summits they could see a saw-toothed range of the girl's head was low. Jeff could see she was sobbing. Her courage had washed out. There could be no help in heaven or on earth for her now, she must be thinking.

Norris rose, stretched himself, and yawned, his arms above his head. The man's evil smile looked down on her. He opened his mouth to speak, but words were frozen on his lips. From out of the brush came a chill crisp order.

"Keep yore arms right up where they are, Norris."

The figure of the outlaw grew rigid. A man was coming out of the scrub, revolver in hand.

"Don't make any mistake," Gray ordered, "or it will be yore last." He moved toward the outlaw slowly.

Fragments of thoughts raced chaotically through the brain of the bad man. He yielded to a desperate impulse and dived back of the fire, dragging at his gun.

Geologist Sees Third Ice Age in Next Two Thousand Years' Period

A new ice age, the third, in geologic history, is being indicated by measured risings of parts of the eastern hemisphere, according to Prof. F. X. Schaffer of the University of Vienna, writes a Berkeley, Calif., United Press correspondent.

Dr. Schaffer, who is an internationally known geologist, said that exhaustive measurements taken at Stockholm show that in the last 50 years Sweden has risen about eight inches, while similar measurements in Finland show that that country has risen 10 inches in 34 years.

"An increase in the altitude of a continent," declared Schaffer, "or even a portion of a continent by approximately 600 feet lowers the annual average temperature by one degree, centigrade. We know that a decrease in the present temperature of Scandinavia by about three degrees centigrade would start a glaciation in Europe as big as that of the Quaternary, in which period the last ice age took place.

"During the last period of glaciation ice covered one-fourth to one-fifth of the present area of continents. Before that time man had appeared on the eastern hemisphere and he moved ahead of the coming ice until he reached Africa, where he was secure.

"A study of the deposits left by glaciers in Sweden shows that the flow started northward some 12,000 years ago. In other words, it took the ice 5,000 years to recede to its present limits in the polar areas, where it has remained for 7,000 years.

"At last, however, signs indicate that it is again getting ready to move southward, and unless those signs should fail it should start within the next 2,000 years."

Oysters are very prolific. The Atlantic coast species spawn five or six times during the season—from May to August. An oyster may discharge as many as one-half billion eggs in a season. Only a few survive. Less than one per cent hatch and reach maturity. The eggs hatch and the young begin to swim in a few hours. At the end of the day they form a bivalve shell, then attach themselves permanently to rocks or other submerged objects. They feed on microscopic water life and grow rapidly.

Watch Your Kidneys! Help Them Cleanse the Blood of Harmful Body Waste. Your kidneys are constantly filtering waste matter from the blood stream. But kidneys sometimes lag in their work—do not act as Nature intended—fail to remove impurities that, if retained, may poison the system and upset the whole body machinery.

Symptoms may be ringing backache, persistent headache, attacks of dizziness, getting up nights, swelling, puffiness under the eyes—a feeling of nervous anxiety and loss of pep and strength. Clear signs of kidney or bladder disorder may be burning, scanty or too frequent urination.

There should be no doubt that prompt treatment is wise in such cases. The Doan's Pills. Doan's have been winning new friends for more than forty years. They have a nation-wide reputation. Are recommended by grateful people the country over. Ask your neighbor!

NOTICE

The Army Recruiting Office at Amarillo is now accepting applicants for enlistment. The Amarillo Office has been closed for original enlistments since Jan. 14, due to the army being full strength.

A limited number of vacancies now exist at Fort S. E. Warren, Wyoming; Fort Logan, Colorado and Fitzsimons General Hospital, Denver, Colorado.

Properly qualified applicants will be forwarded at once, all expenses paid by the government. Young men interested should contact Sgt. R. A. Jackson at the Amarillo Office without delay as it is not expected that the present vacancies will last long.

Resolution of Respect

It is with deep sorrow that the members of Hedley Lodge No. 991 A. F. & A. M. deposit in the archives the record of the death of one of our most beloved brethren, Brother P. C. Johnson. For many years he was a living example of the tenets of our order and served the fraternity in the capacity of Treasurer for twenty two years. His zeal for the cause of right and Christianity was exhibited daily and attested by the words of those who knew him. His love for humanity was proven by his actions and will long be remembered by his many friends and loved ones who have felt the confidence imparted to them through the support of his loving hands, the good counsel of his wise words, and the heart beat of his faithful breast. His invisible aid was given to his fellow men as he remembered them when on his banded knees offering his devotions to Almighty God; and hundreds know the beauty of his feet which never tired in the service of his brethren. He wore his White Apron proudly and with honor. His gain is great; our loss is incalculable.

Mindful of their association with Brother Johnson and his good works, the Lodge records its appreciation of him by adopting the following:

Be it Resolved, That we attest to the inspiration and support which Brother Johnson gave to the Order of Freemasons which he served faithfully; and

Be it further Resolved, That a copy of this resolution be spread on the minutes of No. 991 A. F. & A. M.; that a copy be sent to the family of Brother Johnson as an expression of condolence and sympathy; and that a copy be sent to The Hedley Informer for publication.

Combest and children of Clarendon.

West Texas Utilities Co. Speeds Up Repair Work

The job of rebuilding the picturesque little town of Clyde, struck June 10 by a tornado which took a toll of 14 lives and nearly $100,000 in property damage, includes construction of many blocks of electric distribution lines, according to Ted Dudley, local manager of the West Texas Utilities Company, who said speedy restoration of light and power in the unstricken portion of the village had been cited as "greatly facilitating rescue work."

Despite the tangled mass of poles and lines, uprooted and buried into the jumble of splinters from some 20 homes and 19 freight cars, lights were on again in Clyde only 22 minutes after the storm first struck the company's 66,000 volt line a few miles north. The "juice" was cut off instantly so that there was no danger from live wires when the tornado swirled into the residential section.

"Our service men from Baird, in charge of the electric system at Clyde, were on the scene in 20 minutes," Mr. Dudley said. "The first line went out at 8:27 p. m., lights were on again at 8:59 p. m., and our first emergency truck and crew was in the stricken area at 9:15 p. m., helping to disentangle both living and dead from the debris when the first highway patrol arrived." Damage to the electric system was estimated at less than $10,000 he said.

"While the storm's visitation was one of death and destruction said H. H. Monk, WTU district manager of Olcese who was reared at Clyde. "It served to reveal the splendid spirit of cooperation existing in our organization and the capable system built through the years to meet just such emergencies. Towns served by WTU have the protection of a trained staff of men whose loyalty extends far beyond the company itself and into the homes of those it serves."

WIFADASOS CLUB

The Wifadasos Club met June 14 with Mrs. Hogue as hostess. 3 members and 2 visitors were present. We opened the session by repeating the club prayer with Mrs. Newman leading. Our vice president having resigned, Mrs. Lucille Swinney was elected to fill the vacancy. Business being finished, the hostess, assisted by Mrs. Grimley and daughter, served delicious punch and cookies. We all spent a very pleasant afternoon together, as always when Mrs. Hogue is hostess. Mrs. Reese will be hostess June 28, at 1.30.
