OKS more and more as I if those goofy comedies were n the wane. First Carole ombard said she'd have no ore of them. Now Claudette olbert, who helped to start the cycle with "It Happened One Night," has balked.

she returned from that European jaunt, but instead she'll go to work in "Midnight," which is romantic and dramatic and everything but

Speaking of "It Happened One Night," it was revived recently in New York, and a lot of people who'd heard about how funny it was but had missed it the first time round had a chance to see it. And the addicts who went to it over and over when it was first released found it just as funny as ever.

The revival of Valentino's "The Sheik," seems to have been ill-advised. Any picture that old is bound to look funny nowadays. And the generation of movie-goers that has grown up since the days of Valentino just couldn't understand why he had been such a world-beater. Some of them roared with laughter. They thought Agnes Ayres, the heroine, a bit too fat-though in her day she was considered streamlined! However, no matter what the young folks thought of that picture and the other Valentino revival, "The Son of the Sheik," they brought mobs to the theaters and oney to the box offices.

It looks as if George Arliss had been tempted into returning to Hollywood, thanks to Samuel Goldwyn. Goldwyn has a picture called "The Exiles" on the fire, based on the stories of the many famous men who have had to leave their homes in Europe because of political troubles. Arliss would play the role of a distinguished scientist.

Warner Brothers will, at last, screen "The Miracle," with Bette Davis in the coveted role of the Nun. Ever since it was so successful as a dramatic spectacle-in London in 1911 and in New York in 1924-there has been talk of doing it for the screen. Now, with Max Reinhardt, its original producer, available, they are ready to start.

When Bob Burns ducked away from Hollywood for a rest, preparatory to taking over the Bing Crosby radio program for the summer, he didn't do so well in choosing a spot to rest in. He and his wife went to New York, but were so besieged by people that they left and went to Buffalohe wanted to show her Niagara falls. And the public caught up with them again. He might try wearing a mask, if he really wants to rest!

Margaret Tallichet, a comparative newcomer to the screen, will be Ramon Novarro's leading woman in "As You Are." When and if "Gone With the Wind" reaches the screen she will be seen as Kareen O'Hara, younger sister of Scarlet. Miss Tallichet tried the summer theaters in the East last year, as a way of getting much-needed experi-

ODDS AND ENDS-Nancy Carroll will be seen on the screen again in "There Goes My Heart" . . . Judy Garland has a wrenched shoulder, the result of an automobile accident . . . Bobby Breen won't have the kind of financial trouble that Jackie Coogan is having when he grows up; his parents have arranged to put his earnings into a trust fund, keeping $200 a month for themselves . . . Sigrid Gurie says her husband threatened to humiliate her by getting a job in a gas station . . Lots of wives wouldn't see anything humiliating about that . . . Harold Lloyd's new picture, "Professor Beware," will be released simultaneously at special showings in New York, London and Paris.

the year you should replace tires that are worn and smooth for greatest safety during the summer driving season. Tires may look alike on the outside but inside they are different. The name FIRESTONE on a tire is your assurance of extra safety and long mileage because only Firestone Tires are built with these patented and exclusive construction

Gum-Dipping, the Firestone patented process by which every fiber of every cord in every ply is saturated with liquid rubber, counteracts tire-destroying internal friction and heat which ordinarily cause blowouts. Nine extra pounds of rubber are added o every 100 pounds of cord. Two Extra Layers of Gum-

Dipped cords under the tread, another patented Firestone construction feature, protect against punctures.

Scientifically - Designed Non-Skid Yread made of tough slow-wearing rubber, assures safer stops and longer non-skid mileage.

Now that Firestone gives you all of these safety and economy features at these low prices, you cannot afford to take chances with unsafe tires this summer. ★ Speaking of Doubles

* Flynn Out-Lynn In

★ Musical Lombardos By Virginia Vale-

WHEN you see "Robin Hood" you're going to see some remarkable archery; it will look as if Errol Flynn is a wizard with the bow and arrow. But the man behind the bow was really Howard Hill, and you will be able to see him in a film of his own before long -one of those Pete Smith shorts. Hill will go William Tell one better by lining up fifteen pretty girls with apples on their heads and shooting the apples off.

Remember the days when no studio would ever admit that any actor had a double for any stunt? They used to make Douglas Fairbanks have one sometimes, when the stunt was too dangerous - and he'd manage to it himself when the cameras weren't grinding, just to that he wasn't afraid.

Speaking of Flynn-recently he worried Warner Brothers no little. He bought a new yacht, and decided to go on a six months' trip in search of adventure. The executives objected. They finally gave him three weeks off. He had to go to Miami to get the yacht; he was to sail it through the canal, and fly to Hollywood to work in "Sister Act." Off he went, and off he stayed. He spent four weeks in Miami. A studio representative went after him, and went back without him. So Jeffrey Lynn, whose face isn't exactly familiar on the screen as yet, was given the lead in "Sister Act," with everybody cheering for him, and now the studio's delighted with his work. It may be another of those cases where a star walks out and a new star walks right in.

* If Jeffrey Lynn does climb to stardom he can thank Bette Davis for giving him a start. While appearing in a road company of a New York stage success he was given a screen test by Metro. Nothing came of it so far as Metro was concerned, but Miss Davis saw the test and wanted Lynn for a role in "Jezebel." He didn't get it, but Warner Brothers liked the test and gave the young man a contract.

They're admitting now that the clever Miss Davis was right when she refused to play in "Comet Over Broadway," saying that the story and dialogue weren't up to scratch. One newspaper man called it "a very badly written stopy full of inane dialogue."

Jimmy Cagney has bought three tractors for his farm at Martha's Vineyard, and would rather talk crops than movies any day. They're a smart family, those Cagneys; his sister took honors at Hunter college the other day.

Unlike some news broadcasters, Boake Carter writes his own stuff. But he has able assistance from his wife, who used to be society editor of a Philadelphia newspaper.

ODDS AND ENDS-Judging by recent demonstrations, it looks as if television would be in its infancy for a long time to demonstrations, it tooks as if lelevision would be in its infancy for a long time to come . . . Helen Hayes is willing to return to the movies if somebody can find her a story as good as "Farewell to Arms" . . . "Farewell," etc., has recently been reedited, because of the mix-up in international affairs, and will be re-issued . . . If "Woman Against the World" comes you way you'll see Alice Moore, daughter of Alice Joyce, in a leading role . . . The novel, "Sixteen Hands," has been bought for the screen for Bob Burns; it's a story about a mule . . . He'll do "Arkansas Traveler" too . . . And he went to court the other day to ask that the records he made in 1933 and 1934 be kept out of circulation, on the ground that they injure his reputation as a creative artist . . . In 1934 he made $1500; in 1937, $400,000 . . Nothing like getting a good break, and deserving it!

Carefree Cotton Fashions

THESE two designs are particularly good inspirations for summer daytimes-they're cool, simple, becoming and easy to make. More than that, they are styles that adapt themselves to all seasons and many different materials, so that you can use them over and over again. The house dress can be made in a few hours, with a diagram, and the jumper frock includes a detailed sew chart, so it's no trouble at all.

House Dress in Large Sizes. With darts at the waistline and inside tucks on the shoulders, this dress has an unusually good linetrim and slenderizing. Pleats in the short sleeves make them loose and easy to work in. It buttons down the front, and therefore goes on in a jiffy. Gingham, seersucker, percale and broadcloth are the best materials for this. Trim it with bright ricrac braid.

Girl's Jumper Blouse Frock. With a jumper frock in dark cotton and several crisp white blouses, it's easy to keep your young daughter looking fresh and smart-and cuts down on the laundry, too. This style, with its flare

Strange Facts Movies Catch

Fire-Rain RAIN of fire, thousands of degrees in temperature, fell upon the surface of the sun. Sprays of flaming atoms shot up 150,000 miles from the sun's surface. A terrific explosion took place in which part of the sun's atmosphere was lifted 600,000 miles above the sun's surface. On the earth there were clear skies and cloudy skies, sunshine and rain. Even the most sensitive radio waves were not disturbed. Yet one instrument, made by man, recorded this rain of fire.

The spectroheliograph is the instrument invented by scientists which has made possible these amazing photographs of fire-rain. This instrument is essentially a spectroscope with a slit which transmits only one line of the spectrum. A photographic plate is moved across the slit at a rate equal to the sun's apparent rate of passage, the sun's light entering the slit through the object glass or mirror of a telescope. On September 17, 1937, the eye of the solar camera received and recorded celestial fireworks in motion pictures.

These solar pictures were shown for the first time in Philadelphia at the recent annual meeting of the American Philosophical society. They are the work of Dr. Robert R. McMath. The rain of hot fire falling upon the sun, re-vealed for the first time by improved solar photography, presents the greatest mystery. No one knows why it rains fire on the sun, or where the fire-rain comes from. Yet pictures have been taken of it, falling in great curving spirals. It is as mysterious to modern scientists as rain water was to our primitive ancestors.

"I'm armed all right," the bandit sneered. "Don't make any mistake about that. But I may take you up on yore offer. Maybe I can use Norris ate ravenously. He drank cup after cup of coffee. More than once he went back to the bottle. At last he pushed his chair back.

"I reckon you know it was Lee Chiswick's crowd attacked us in Live Oak canyon," he said. "I left in some hurry. Me and Kansas. Did they collect the rest of the boys?" "Mile High got away, But Sid Hunt was killed. Lou they cap-

"Too bad about that, Sherm," the other man jeered. "He'll blab, of course, and you'll be in this up to yore neck." The big man looked at him bleak-ly, but made no answer in words. Kansas got away with you, didn't he?" was his comment.

A film of wary blankness came over the eyes of the hunted man. "Kansas made it out of the canyon with me," he said slowly. posse jumped us at the old Walsh place and got Kansas. I fought 'em off and lit out with the girl."

"Got Kansas. You mean killed "He'll never be any deader," Norris answered callously.

"Come clean, Morg. We've got to know just where we're at. Did you do this Chiswick girl any harm in any way?"

The sulky look spread over the face of the kidnaper. "Didn't hurt the li'l fool at all, outside of slapping her white face once when she got sassy." "What are yore plans?" Howard

"First off, I aim to dress my wounds and bathe my feet in hot

"Sure, Morg," the fat man said with oily smoothness. "Help yoreself to anything I have here. You are welcome to whatever I've got." Norris leered at him. "I'll bet you feel like I was your prodigal son. A fatted calf wouldn't be near good enough for me."

His host decided not to put the welcome on too thick. Morg Norris was not a fool when his passions were not involved. 'You can have it straight, Morg, since you ask for it," he retorted "You've played yore brusquely. hand like a damn fool. I was hoping you wouldn't show up here, but would slip across the line to Mexico. Well, you're here. There's nothing I can do but give you a lift on yore way. Right now all the passes will be watched. You wouldn't have a dead man's chance of getting through unless you had all the luck in the world. Question is, where do you aim to hole up? They will watch Tail Holt the way a cat does a mouse-hole. Even now someone may know you're here."

"Only Sherm Howard, and of course he wouldn't give me away," Norris said derisively.

'Sure nobody saw you come in?" "Sure. While I think of it, Sherm, I'll take that other gun you promised me." The slitted eyes stabbed into those of the older man.

For a barely perceptible instant Howard hesitated. He had a suspicion Morg was not armed. If so, he could be killed now with no risk. The man had become a menace. It would be well to get rid of him. He could use just now the credit that would come to him for rubbing out the desperado. But he could not do it. He found he had not the sheer nerve to draw and pump lead, not with the killer's gaze on him and his hand close to where the butt of a revolver might lie inside his vest. "Glad to give it to you," Howard said in his cheerful voice of false "You'll find it in the tray of the trunk there. It's a good gun too. Throws just a mite high, but you'll make allowance for that."

"You get it for me, Sherm," the visitor urged. "You know just where Howard got the gun. He handed it to Norris, who broke it and made sure the chambers were loaded. "Much obliged, Sherm," the outlaw said, mockery in his voice. can sure use this. Haven't had a gun in my hand since those skunks jumped me at Wild Horse."

The fat man made the best of it he could. He said promptly: "I'm not dumb, Morg. Knew all the time you didn't have a cutter. Trouble with you is you're so damned suspicious. Why wouldn't I let you have a gun when you're up against it? You don't think straight."

"You'd bust a trace to help me, wouldn't you, Sherm?" the killer

"Personally, far as I'm concerned, you can go to hell yore own way, Morg," Howard told him blunt-"But I stand by my crowd, and you're one of the gang, even if you do wear out our patience. You can't stay here, of course. Everybody in town comes and goes to this house, as you know. Where do you aim to hole up till you can slip you out for right now."

"I don't care where you hide," the older man replied. "Nothing to me. Go to the L C ranch and stay with the Chiswicks if you've a mind to. Point is, when they crowd me, I'd like to make sure I'm giving them the wrong steer."

"Sure. You'd hate to see them collect me. But don't worry about it. They won't." The outlaw got a basin, poured hot water into it from the kettle, and reduced this to the proper temperature. All the time he watched his host out of the corner of his eyes. "But there's one thing you can do for me, Sherm, since you're so anxious to help. I'm about out of mazuma. I'll take a small loan if you can spare it."

Howard took his time to answer. Money was his god. To part with it unless he saw a chance of getting it back with interest was a positive pain to him. He could read Norris like a book. The fellow was sneering at him, but back of this lay a threat. His request was an order.

"Haven't got much here, Morg, but what I have is yours," the big man said. "Ten dollars-or even

"Wouldn't be of any use to me," Norris said coolly. "I'll take five hundred."

"Five hundred!" Howard stared at him. "You're loading me, Morg.

Mile High's forty-five came into action.

You know I haven't got anything like that in the house.

"You'd better have it. Don't try to fool me, Sherm. I know you. The narrowed eyes were glittering dangerously. Howard knew he had to make a choice. He must either pay or fight. For a moment he played with the idea of shooting it out. Reluctantly he gave this up. Morg was a dead shot. From a coffee-pot in the cupboard he drew out a roll of bills. He counted five hundred and pushed the money across the table. There was about fifty dollars left.

With his evil grin Norris mentioned that it was more blessed to give than to receive. "Pay you when Jay Gould sends me a million," he added cheerfully.

He busied himself doctoring his wounds and taking care of his feet. Before he left he gave Howard instructions, a purring threat in his

"You haven't seen me, Sherm. You don't know where I am. It wouldn't be healthy for you to get busy rustling a posse to take after me. Understand?"

Coldly Howard answered: use trying to help you, Morg. You don't know how to appreciate kind treatment." "If I got any from you, I'd sure keep my eyes skinned till I found out why," the man on the dodge cut

He backed to the door and stopped there for a last word of

"I'll stick around a few minutes outside. Don't move from yore chair for half an hour. Just take it easy and see if you can beat the solitaire game.'

Presently the door closed behind

Howard sat in the chair as he had been advised. He was busy thinking, and his thoughts all pointed to one conclusion. Norris was too dangerous a man to let live.

CHAPTER XI

Morgan Norris closed the door of the Howard house and ran through the garden to a back street. Before moving into the open road he glanced up and down it to make sure nobody was in sight. Swiftly he went up the road until he came and tuna-in addition to the well

"I won't worry you about that," to a path crossing the vacant space Norris said with a cynical grin. "If used by the town for a baseball you are a Good Samaritan to me ground. This he followed. Behind while I'm here that will about let | the plate were two or three adobe houses belonging to Mexicans. He wound around these and came to the rear door of the Golden Nugget.

He did not enter the gamblinghouse, but crept along one of the walls until he could look through a window and see what was going on inside. The sight of that room gave him an acute nostalgia. He had been one of the king-pins there for many months. He had ruffled it with the best of them. Fifty times he had cantered into town with some boon companion and strolled in to drink, loaf, or play the wheel. Sick and weary as he was, nothing would have pleased him more than to drop in there and relax.

But he dared not show his face. The Golden Nugget was closed to him forever. When he had run away with Ruth Chiswick, he had put himself beyond the pale. If he were to open the door and walk in now a dozen cold, hostile faces would stare at him, and at the right moment bullets would crash into his body as they had into that of Wild Jim Pender. Howard had been right. The thing he had done had hurt all the Tail Holt outlaws. If they got the chance they would square themselves by planting him in Boot Hill.

He crept along the wall toward Main street. From this spot he had fired the shot that had wounded Lee Chiswick only a few weeks ago. Then he had been riding the top wave, a leader among the reckless, lawless cowboys of the vicinity. Now he was a fugitive, every man's hand against his.

A poor broomtail stolen in the hills had brought him to town, but he intended to leave on a better mount. That was why he had ventured so close to the heart of the town. There were sure to be horses in front of the Golden Nugget.

A half a dozen of them stood at the hitchrack. His eyes went up and down the street. A few people were in view, two or three of them lounging in front of saloons, one or two others moving briskly toward some destination.

Norris stepped to the hitchrack to choose a mount. To him there came the sound of hoofs. Three men rode round a corner and drew up at the Golden Nugget. One of them was Curly Connor.

Back of a horse Norris crouched, revolver in hand. He guessed that one here. these men had just come back from a fruitless search in the hills for him. They swung stiffly from their saddles as riders do who have not left them for many miles,

"Me, I could use a drink," them said wearily.

The speaker was Mile High. He tied the rein with a slip-knot and turned toward the Golden Nugget. As he did so his glance stopped abruptly. He was looking into the glittering eyes of someone standing back of a horse. "Goddlemighty, it's Morg," he broke out. "Right, first guess," Norris said evenly, not raising his voice. "Don't monkey with yore hardware, any of you, unless you want to go out in

Mile High said bitterly: "You killed Kansas, you double-crossing devil."

"So I did," the bad man jeered. "And I'm still on the shoot, Mile High. Roll right along and get that drink, with yore arms down. Stepping swiftly to the left for a better view of the man, Curly dragged out his revolver. Two guns blazed, one of them that of Connor. With a ribald yell of triumph Norris vaulted to the saddle. Mile High's forty-five came into action, but the horse was plunging at the feel of the spur. Again Norris fired, his mount still in the air. An instant later he was dashing into the darkness, crouched low in the seat.

"Rout the boys out of the Golden Nugget, Jim," Curly said excitedly. 'Get after him immediate! He got "Bad, Curly?" asked Mile High.

"In the shoulder. I'll make the riffle all right, but I don't reckon I can ride with you."

The lank puncher picked his hat out of the dust. There were two little holes in the crown. "The sonof-a-gun sure gave me a haircut. Been one inch lower he would of collected me. Better get inside and have the boys look after you,

"Yes," agreed the black-headed man. "I'll be all right when I'm fixed up. Get fresh horses, Mile High. That rapscallion don't aim to pick no daisies on the way." "Curly was right. The fugitive had already left the road and turned up a gulch trail leading into the hills. If there had been any room for doubt as to how he stood at Tail Holt there was none left now. His roaring gun had cut down the most popular man in town. He had seen Curly stagger from the impact of the bullet. As soon as possible he must get out of the country. Until that time he must lie hidden.

Old Man Haskins would take care of him-for a price. That was one of the reasons he had been forced to hold up Sherm Howard. Nobody did anything for nothing, the bandit reflected bitterly. Not when you were down on your luck, with the cards stacked against you. He would have to pay Pete well for protection.

Norris rode steadily till late at night. He was in a vile humor. His swollen feet tortured him. The clout on the head, a souvenir from Jeff Gray, still pained at times. From lack of sleep he was dead tired.

The cabin of the nester was dark when he rode up to it, but a hound dog filled the night with its barking. A man came to the door. He opened it only an inch or two.

"Who is it?" a piping voice demanded. "Lemme in, Pete. It's Morg Nor-

The hillman hesitated. "I ain't exactly fixed for visitors, Morg. That's a fact sure enough." He lowered his squeaky tones to a whis-

The hunted man was taken aback. He had counted on Haskins being alone. Few came up to this neck of the woods.

Who you got here?" Norris asked. "Why, I don't rightly know his name," Haskins said. "A fellow from Texas."

Morg swung from the aaddle and walked close to the other.
"I'm listenin'," Pete," he said, and his voice dripped menace. "Is this some guy sent up to get me?"

Haskins was a big, unkempt, slovenly man. He was of middle age, large, with a deep barrel chest from which one would have expected the roar of a bull.

"Jumpin' Jehoshaphat, no!" The high falsetto registered excitement. "Don't start lookin' for trouble, Morg. This is a bird sent up by Sherm Howard. He's on the dodge.' Someone inside the cabin joined the talk. "Who is it, Pete?"

"A friend, Clint. Wants to stay with me a spell. He got into a kinda jam. Name is Norris." "The fellow they're after?"

"Yes." "What's all the powwow about? Why don't you bring him in?" (TO BE CONTINUED)

By-Products Are Important in Fishing Industry; Waste Used for Fertilizer

thoughts of the fishing industry is the importance of by-products. These are principally meal, fertilizer, and oil which are manufactured from the waste of canneries and other fish plants. In a big plant the waste may make up as much as half of the "raw material."

Oils are extracted from all parts of the fish, although the public is most familiar with fish liver oils, which, as the name implies, are obtained only from fish livers. An interesting quirk, observes a writer in the Chicago Tribune, is that bodies of fish yielding liver oil are usually very lean, while livers of fat fish contain little oil. Medicinal oil is made from fresh livers, although stale livers are used in making other oils.

Oils are obtained either by pressing and cooking of waste or simply by cooking the waste and skimming the oil off the top of the vat. Fish oils are used, among other things, in making paints and varnish, waterproofing materials, linoleum, leather, soap, and lard substitutes. Salmon, sardines (young herring),

Often forgotten about in casual | known cod-are important in contributing oil from cannery waste to add to the supply obtained from whale, porpoise, and menhaden fishing waste-particularly the Fish "scrap" left after oil extraction-is being successfully used as a fertilizer and is one of the most important sources of organic nitrogen. The scrap is treated with acid and the resulting fish fertilizer often is mixed with other fertilizer compounds to form a "complete" fer-

The feeding of fish and fish scrap to animals has been recommended and practiced for many years, but it is only in recent years that use of fish meal as a stock and poultry food has grown rapidly. Like fertilizers, meal is made from "scrap." must be dried carefully and ground into granular form for poultry feed or into a rather fine meal for other purposes.

SEEN and HEARD NATIONAL CAPITAL By Carter Field FAMOUS WASHINGTON CORRESPONDENT

WASHINGTON .- A considerable | nal, but, much worse, he not of bloc of railroad officials do not want | was deprived of the money he ha form of loans. They think more borrowing merely increases the inunder, and making the future blacker instead of brighter.

They are strongly in favor of permitting such railroads as cannot now pay their bond interest to go through the wringer. Of course this Turns on Berry does not include borrowing from the government to retire existing bond For example, if a bond issue of $10,000,000 should fall due next month for railroad A, and this bond issue bears interest at 6 per cent, while the government is willing to lend railroad A the ten million at 4 per cent, then the road will save $200,000 in interest charges every year from now on by taking advantage of the RFC offer. That is quite a different thing from borrowing money for no other reason than to pay bond interest, and thus keep out of the hands of receivers. In this latter case, which is typical of most of them, the railroad would be in a worse fix next year than this, so far as interest charges are concerned. Next year it would have to pay as much interest on outstanding bonds as this year, and in addition would have to pay interest on the money it borrowed from RFC to pay the interest this year. There are plenty of reasons for the present difficulty of the railroads, but most of them are not susceptible to much change. The only improvement, apparently, can come from increased traffic, and this can come only with better times. Even that is threatened here and there by the development of more and more rivers for navigation. It is not important, from the standpoint of the railroads, that these rivers may never actually handle much traffic. The important thing is that the development of the rivers for traffic will prove an ample excuse for shippers in that territory to obtain rate reductions on heavy products from the interstate com-

Hit by River Traffic

It is only on heavy products that the railroads at present can depend for revenue. A very small increase in rates on light products will drive shippers to trucks. So that the railroads are menaced from the top by trucks, and from the bottom, measuring in terms of revenue per pound, by river traffic. The administration, however, is anxious to avoid a flood of railroad per. "I ain't alone. I done got some- receiverships. It sounds bad. It tends to make conditions generally worse. From the cold-blooded Treasury standpoint, it tends to reduce revenue, particularly from personal income tax returns. For obviously every time a railroad defaults payment of bond interest a good many personal incomes are reduced, and this reduction is the cream of the income from the Treasury standpoint. Naturally it comes off the top, and hence out of the higher tax brackets.

There is the additional worry to the administration that default of railroad bond interest bears heavily on the savings banks and life insurance companies, which have a heavy stake in these securities, once considered the most prudent investments in the world. Some of the railroad men who do not wish to increase the present debt load of their properties are not averse, however, to advertising to the country the tremendous burden the roads are bearing in taxation, not only federal but state, county and local.

Tennessee Is Next

The next political question involved in the "purge," now that the Iowa contest has become history, is what is to be done about Tennessee. Senator George L. Berry has from the administration standpoint "stuck his neck out" and is sure to face attempted reprisals.

Never was any senator closer to the White House at the time Major Berry took his oath before Vice President Garner. He had worked for President Roosevelt in a dozen different capacities. He had been put in the senate, on appointment by Governor Gordon Browning, by the persuasive powers of the President. In fact, Browning had very different ideas when the vacancy in the senate occurred through the death of Senator Nathan L. Bach-

But all that has been changed. The split began, apparently, about the time Senator Berry discovered that David E. Lilienthal, of the TVA was not as friendly as had appeared. Or perhaps Lilienthal had been sincere in his friendship but was compelled to change his atti-

At any rate Berry thought Lilienthal was treating him fairly, and bitterly resented the implications of Arthur E. Morgan, chairman of TVA, the latter plainly implying, as he later testified, that Berry was just trying to hold up the government, and get some millions of dollars for "worthless marble" submerged by the TVA development. Berry lost his fight before a tribuany more government help in the expected, but he was maligned in a public hearing by the TVA congres sional investigating committee. Ber terest they are already groaning ry had expected A. E. Morgan to at tack him. In fact he probably knew that some admirers of A. E. Mor gan hoped the "Berry marble case" would prove very effective in turning public opinion against Lilienthal.

But the senator was shocked be yond measure when Lilienthal virtually joined A. E. Morgan in attacking Berry, thus taking this case, unless A. E. Morgan springs some thing now unanticipated to clinch this particular point against Lilienthal, virtually out of the controver-Since this "repudiation" Senator Berry has stopped being an administration rubber stamp. He actually voted to curb federal loans and grants for the construction of government electric plants-with the relief money-to compete with privately owned electric plants. He voted for several other amendments to the relief bill which were distinctly distasteful to the White House and Marry L. Hopkins. So now he's on the list, and the administration hopes very much that he will be missed after the November election. Tennessee being overwhelmingly Democratic, the arrangements to have him miss when the senate convenes next January in its next session will have to be aimed at the primary. Which is rather amusing when it is re-called that President Roosevelt just a few weeks back was writing an earnest letter to Representative Samuel D. McReynolds to keep that veteran in Tennessee politics from opposing Berry. Also the Berry case may complicate an existing very warm struggle in Tennessee politics, in which armed clashes threaten between Ed Crump's police down in Memphis with special state police appointed by Governor Browning. Crump backed Browning two years ago for the nomination for governor, but he has turned on him, so that the gubernatorial battle so far has overshadowed the senate fight.

St. Lawrence Seaway

Prospects for the St. Lawrence seaway, despite the beautiful picture of what could be done as painted in the note to Canada by Secretary of State Cordell Hull, continue to be very dark indeed. This is revealed by conversations with senators as to the probability of any treaty involving the idea being rati-

It might not be difficult to obtain senate approval for a St. Lawrence river development, including all the features of the Tennessee valley development, if only the one phase of navigation should be left out. The privately owned utilities of course would fight it, but they have not shown themselves very successful in blocking legislation, and there is not much indication that they would be successful on the St. Lawrence. In fact, they would be more impotent there than in some other proposals, for whatever they may think about other power projects, the general impression on Capitol Hill is that Niagara power is a good idea. The senators can sense the power possibilities there, and harnessing the falling water seems to even the least informed of them a practical matter. The sticking point in the whole beautiful picture is navigation and nothing else. Incidentally navigation has been the driving force behind the whole movement ever since its inception. Originally it was in two parts. The cities on the Great Lakes, with the exception of Buffalo, were intrigued with the idea of becoming world ports, with ships from all over the globe steaming into their harbors. It aroused the chamber of commerce and civic booster spirit to the nth degree. Buffalo had a different angle on the situation. Its citizens feared in the early days, and still fear, that if ocean-going ships could navigate right into the Great Lakes, Buffalo would lose its present tremendou trans-shipment business. Farmers Interested

Even more important, politically, was the desire of the farmers in Minnesota, the Dakotas, Montana, Iowa, and other nearby states to obtain lower freight rates on their wheat shipped to Liverpool. For many years the price of wheat any where in the world has been deter mined by the price in that Britis city. The price anywhere else we and is the Liverpool price, less the freight rate from the point in que tion to Liverpool. Various estima as to how much the freight fr northwestern points to Livery could be cut by the St. Lawre seaway have been made, but w ever figure was used appealed v strongly to farmers shipping la quantities of wheat. However, since the early day the movement, the exports of w by the United States have bee clining. Manufactured goods b much larger now in the export tals of this country.
