Large Crowd Sees FDR at Clarendon Monday

A closely packed crowd greeted the presidential special train which pulled into the station at Clarendon at 5:20 Monday afternoon. Citizens of Donley, Hall, Gray and Collingsworth counties were on hand to greet the nation's chief executive, Franklin D. Roosevelt.

Texas' Governor, James V. Allred, spoke briefly to the crowd and introduced Senator Tom Connally, who in turn presented Congressman Marvin Jones of this district. After a few introductory remarks by Congressman Jones, the President made his appearance on the platform, to be greeted by a deafening cheer from the enthusiastic crowd. Wearing a gray suit, a nice coat of tan and his famous smile, Mr. Roosevelt appeared a picture of health and energy. The text of his speech follows:

"I am very glad to get into Mr. Jones' district and your portion of Texas. I have been hearing about it once a week for about five and one half years. Then I am glad of another thing. Away out east of here on the Hudson River, where I live, and down in Washington, there have been occasions in the last few years when the sun has been darkened in the middle of the day, blackened by top soil from the Panhandle. I had much rather see top soil of the Panhandle stay right here. That is the way most of you think about it. The very fine rains you have been having here should help keep this top soil from leaving here. We should be able to keep all the water that comes out of the heavens here. That is one of the major problems before us in Washington and it is one of your biggest problems here in West Texas. It is very vital to the rest of the Nation. If your people are not prosperous it hurts the farming people and the city people in every part of the country. If your people are prosperous not one year out of seven but seven years out of seven, that means more to the prosperity of the rest of the country. The purchasing power and the means of the rest of the Nation depend on your prosperity. So I am glad to make this trip through a portion of Texas that I have never seen before and I expect to come back and see more of you."

Methodists Meet

The Methodist Church of Hedley was host Wednesday to eleven churches in the Clarendon district. Only two were not represented. All phases of the church work were discussed. Presiding Elder Barcus was in charge. Dinner was served to home folks and visitors, and a general forward movement of the church extended.

Hurricane Elopement
Story of Earhart
Norma Steps Out
By Virginia Vale

OVIEDOM is still gasping a little over the elopement of Frances Langford, the radio singer and movie actress, and Jon Hall, who skyrocketed to fame in "Hurricane" and hasn't been seen on the screen since.

Just after it was announced that they wouldn't marry until he had become more firmly established in pictures, they slipped off to Prescott, Ariz., with her mother and his sister and got married. But Hollywood didn't know about it until four days later, possibly because he used his real name, Louis Locher.

Even after Hall made such a hit "Hurricane" he drew only $150 a week for some time—mere chicken feed in Hollywood—but this salary was finally raised to $200.

Francis' last picture under her present contract will probably be based on a story that she herself wrote and sold to the studio. It's all about a famous aviatrix who goes into a round-the-world flight contest, and gets lost on a desert isle. Can it be possible that Miss Francis heard about Amelia Earhart?

Fashion news: Claudette Colbert has a daytime costume of dark blue with white floral buttons down the side of the jacket, like one which the duchess of Windsor likes to wear. Recently, one evening in New York, Helen Vinson wore a black chiffon gown with a skirt yards and yards wide, banded with many rows of narrow black velvet ribbon. No shoulder straps.

The New York revival of those two Valentino pictures, "The Sheik" and "The Son of the Sheik," was so successful that Agnes Ayres, the heroine, has been booked for a 20-weeks' personal appearance tour. And two more Valentino pictures will be brought forth.

Speaking of those Valentino pictures, Verree Teasdale and Adolph Menjou were in New York, before sailing for Europe, when they were being shown, and he was none too anxious for her to see "The Sheik" and see how funny he looked on the screen in those days.

Norma Shearer would like to do a smart modern comedy, after her long siege of costume pictures, so you may see her in "The Women," which had a long run as a successful play before being handed over to motion pictures. Norma has a way of getting what she wants—as Marion Davies found out when they both wanted "Marie Antoinette" and Norma got it.

Remember Eric von Stroheim, who used to make pictures ("Greed" and "Foolish Wives" among them,) that cost millions? He's acting in French pictures now—which usually cost not more than $75,000.

Incidentally, Jean Hersholt was reminiscing about "Greed" the other day—how it was way over the right length, and von Stroheim felt so badly about having it cut that he wouldn't even look at the film that was finally released.

ODDS AND ENDS—A radio actor and director who learned nineteen languages is on the air—as a dialect stogie and imitator of animals. . . . Many of the professional radio announcers are bad, but after hearing a dozen amateurs try out the other day the worst of them sounded marvelous. . . . Bette Davis refused to be included in a list of movie dom's ten most beautiful girls; said "The idea is silly, because I'm not even a near beauty" . . . It's said that Metro spent $250,000 developing "I Married an Angel" as a picture, and finally abandoned it—whereupon it was bought for the stage, where it's a tremendous success.

Chief Justice Asks First Elective Term

M. J. R. Jackson became associate Justice of the Court of Civil Appeals at Amarillo in 1924. He served in that capacity until 1937
when he was appointed to succeed
Chief Justice R. W. Hall, who died while serving in that position.

M. J. R. JACKSON

Justice Jackson is asking now for his first elective term as chief justice.

Justice Jackson is one of the state's outstanding jurists. As an attorney and as a jurist he has won wide recognition.

He was born in Montgomery County, Ala., and came to Texas in childhood with his family. He was educated in the public schools of Texas and Southwestern University at Georgetown, Texas.

Justice Jackson was admitted to the Texas bar in 1896. He served as the Madison County attorney from 1898 until 1900 and practiced law in that county until 1905 when he moved to Amarillo.

Judge Jackson was elected associate justice at the November election 1924 and upon the resignation of Judge Boyce shortly after the election, Governor Pat
M. Neff appointed Mr. Jackson who served under the appointment until January 1, 1925, when he assumed office under his election.

With Judge Jackson as chief justice, the court has won wide recognition for its handling of the cases that have come before it.

Speaking of the Governor's Job....

ERNEST THOMPSON

Trained...Talented...Tested

Qualified for the Governor's Job by a Sound Record of Public Service

WHAT HE HAS DONE!

As Mayor of Amarillo, he saved citizens nearly a million dollars a year by cutting every utility rate in the city and lowering the tax levy.

As Texas Railroad Commissioner, he assisted the farmer through lower freight rates and the livestock industry with emergency drouth rates; brought many millions of dollars to the school fund by sensible supervision of the Texas oil industry; helped lower the gas rates in scores of Texas towns.

As a man, whose boyhood was spent at hard work, he has achieved a brilliant record of private and public service, fought for his country with high honors during the World War, is chairman of the Oil States Compact Commission, has earned the respect and admiration of straight-thinking people all over the nation.

WHAT HE WILL DO!

Tackle the farm problem with both fists and help the farmer and rancher work out a solution that will take the penalty off owning or working a farm or ranch—his belief being that the farmer is entitled to a fair profit, the same as any other man.

Urge the legislature to change the old age assistance law so that no needy old person will be denied a pension merely because a son or daughter happens to have a job.

Actively encourage industrial expansion to relieve unemployment; wage war on governmental waste and fight new taxes;
and advocate state control and regulation of all utilities.

JUST THEY GAMBLE?

Men Aren't the Only Devotees of This American Institution; Women Like It, Too!

By JOSEPH W. LABINE

She might have been hypnotized, but slot machines don't actually hypnotize people.

The girl with the little red hat tossed quarter after quarter into a mechanical pickpocket, drunk with her desire to win. If she had paused for a moment, if someone had taken pencil and paper to show her how slot machines work, how 80 cents out of every dollar goes to line somebody else's pocket—

But the girl in the little red hat was playing a hunch. She thought hunches always win because last week she won $5 on a horse called "Rainy Weather," having placed the bet in the middle of a thundershower.

Women will gamble, it seems, and if you think daddy is the only one who spends his paycheck at a bookie, take a look at the record!

Gambling, the law notwithstanding, has grown into an institution of the first water, filching millions of dollars a year from the pockets of those who can ill afford it. Some favor legalized lotteries on the theory that people will gamble anyway. They claim it offers the poor a chance to get rich, thereby making for less dissatisfaction. What they forget is that "small money is sucker money" in the gambler's parlance. Big winners in the betting racket are those who start with big stakes and can afford to lose.

Big Business in Bookies.

A two-minute tour around the country shows that bookmaking on horse races is thriving despite its illegal status. Chicago's city council set a precedent last winter by legalizing bookies to operate outside the race tracks provided they pay an annual license fee. But the state of Illinois clamped down on this scheme to fill Chicago's coffers, just as Ohio, Maryland, California and Michigan have rejected similar proposals in the past.

Several southern California cities recently decided to license bookies at fees ranging from $2,500 to $5,000. Then the appellate court stepped in and ruled the ordinances violated California's racing act. New Orleans is a bookmaker's paradise even though they operate illegally. In Louisville between 250 and 500 bookmakers work openly and in Miami, Fla., they operate at ease despite threats by the state.

But this is a story about gambling in general and women in particular. The story is more interesting because a few years ago there were social and moral taboos against gambling, while today Mother leaves Junior's buggy on the sidewalk while she walks into the corner bookie and places a bet on the fifth race at Suffolk Downs. Fortunately this situation isn't commonplace throughout the country. It's confined mostly to large cities and for laboratory purposes let's put New York under our microscope.

Here is a town where it was once unladylike to sit down on the floor and throw the dice.

Housework Is a Bore.

In this metropolis, where Friend Husband spends his days at the office it's often easy for the wife to become bored with housework, knitting and reading. To satisfy her desire for something new a huge gambling business has arisen, catering exclusively to women and making good money at it. A conservative estimate is that New York women invest half a billion dollars a year in gambling.

The "policy racket" or "numbers" game, a polite form of larceny responsible for the rise and downfall of many a big-time racketeer, is the New York woman's favorite form of gambling. This is true because you can invest any amount from one cent to a hundred dollars. Wash women down in Harlem and go up and down. This situation has produced a queer type of woman customer. One wizened old lady arrives promptly each morning at a brokerage house and sits in silence until closing time, seldom trading.

Women are suckers for horse races. They play hunches, placing their money on a horse because they like his name or because he hasn't won a race for two years. There's no way of estimating how much money they bet, or what percentage of the total annual investment comes from them. But half the 300,000 daily calls coming into telephone rooms of dope sheets in New York are from women. If women are allowed only 10 per cent of the annual $350,000,000 total bet at New York tracks and bookies, it still amounts to $35,000,000, which isn't chicken feed.

Sometimes They Win.

Sweepstakes take millions out of the country every year and half of it is said to be paid by women. The figures for New York stand at $40,000,000 grand total per year. A favorite plan is for several women employed in the same factory to buy "shares" in a sweepstakes ticket.

Bridge, the genteel game of club women, has become a high-powered gambling business in New York and other cities. Sometimes the stakes are only a dime for the entire afternoon's play; sometimes a twentieth of a cent a point. Again, some women play for 25 cents a point but they must be "well heeled" before trying it.

New York is infested with bridge "sharpies," professional players who make their living gambling. Sometimes they sit in as partners to men (always poor bridge players, they say) who want to make an impression.

From bridge it's only a short jump to poker, a traditionally masculine game that is winning women followers in New York. "Poker urge, something like dope, and they go back night after night, satisfied if their $3.00 investment nets them a $2.00 bathroom scale.

Stock market speculation isn't exclusively a man's game in New York and there are those who claim it isn't speculation at all. But women are heavy customers along Wall Street—call it speculation or just plain "investment"—and many of them spend five hours a day in brokerage houses watching the ticker tape and the exchange boards.

The stock market is a big money game and most women gamblers are small players, being content merely to sit and watch the lines flats" are commercial institutions where the girls may gather of an afternoon. Then there's dice, mah jong and backgammon, besides such ill-mannered pastimes as rummy, pinochle, hearts and euchre.

Maybe the men taught them to gamble and after all it's probably no more sinful for women than men. But lady gamblers merely add to an already large population that spends its money recklessly and eventually gets into trouble. Maybe legalized lotteries are the answer because mankind has been gambling since Biblical days. It seems to be human nature.

"There's the Doorbell Again"

SUPPOSE daily to your door came the butcher, the grocer, the clothier, the furrier, the furniture man, and every other merchant with whom you deal? What a tedium of doorbell answering that would mean!

● It would be even more impractical for you to visit daily all these stores to find out what they have to offer and the price. And yet you need those merchants' service quite as much as they need your patronage. Contact between seller and consumer is essential in the supplying of human needs. Before a sale can be closed the goods must be offered. Every week, through the advertising columns of this newspaper, the merchants of this city come to your home with their choicest wares. Easily, quickly, you get the news of all that is worth while in the market-places of the world.

● They are not strangers at the door, but merchants you know and trust. You are surer of high quality and fair price when you buy an article advertised by a reputable firm.

Farm Champions on the Air

AMONG the Champion Farmers of America who are being featured on Firestone's series of 26 "Voice of the Farm" programs, is this representative group of leading crop growers and stock raisers. Each program in the series presents a farm champion in an interview with Everett Mitchell, popular farm commentator who has been heard on the National Farm and Home Hour for the last eight years. Each champion tells the fact story of his climb to championship rating in his particular branch of farm operation.

Buckingham Fountain

The Buckingham Memorial fountain is the gift of the late Miss Kate Buckingham of Chicago, art patron, in memory of her brother, Clarence, a former trustee and benefactor of the Art Institute of Chicago. The fountain cost $1,000,000 and is set in a garden 600 feet square with three basins rising in a central pool surrounded by four minor pools. When in full play the fountain flows about 5,500 gallons of water a minute, one column rising to a height of 75 feet. It is beautifully illuminated at night in five different colors.

HOW TO SEW

by Ruth Wyeth Spears

Make a Pattern for a Slip Cover

THE most economical way to cut a slip cover is to make a pattern first. Do this before you buy the material, then fold several bed sheets the width of the fabric you wish to buy, and lay the pattern pieces on them to estimate the amount of goods needed.

Some of the pattern pieces may be made of paper, though unbleached muslin is better for parts that must be fitted. Allow 1 inch at all seam lines to insure an easy fit, and 3 inches for a tuck-in all around the spring seat as shown here at A. Cut the sections with straight edges, then pin them in place and shape them to follow the lines of the chair as at B. Also mark each pattern piece with an arrow, as shown, to indicate which way the grain of the goods should run. The lower sketch shows the pattern pieces pinned on the slip cover material. Brush fringe accents the main lines of this slip cover. The top of the fringe is stitched in place at the same time the seams are sewn.

NOTE: Every homemaker should have a copy of Mrs. Spears' book SEWING, for the Home Decorator. It contains forty-eight pages of step-by-step directions for making slip covers and curtains; also dressing tables; lampshades and other useful articles for the home. Price 25 cents postpaid (coin preferred). Address Mrs. Spears, 210 S. Desplains St. Chicago, Ill.

Glass Train

With the exception of the roof, the exterior of a train made in England is all of glass and more than 120,000 pieces of a special type were used to construct it. In the interior are glass floors and walls, a glass bathroom and pictures made of glass. The train was constructed by a Lancashire (England) firm of glassmakers to advertise its products.

Let's Talk About Service

MOST everyone knows that SERVICE, as defined in the dictionary, means: "the act or occupation of working for another... the manner of performing work... that which is supplied or furnished to meet a demand," etc.

Working for you is Your Electric Servant's occupation. By that act of providing light and power for your home and business, the electric company renders a service. You pay a small amount each month as compensation for this service.

It, perhaps, seems like a simple transaction:
 but, in order to perform the work of providing the electric service you demand, this company is forced to employ approximately 1,000 men and women to whom it paid over $1,200,000 in wages during 1937. As a citizen and property-owner in every community it serves, it paid the equivalent of $9.25 in taxes per customer in 1937.

By maintaining three centrally-located power generating stations, it eliminates the necessity for less-efficient, isolated and expensive small

Reddy Kilowatt
 Your Electric Servant

Says:

"DON'T KILL YOURSELF!
 It ain't worth it!"

plants in each community. Its 2,000 miles of high tension transmission lines are interconnected with still other sources of electric power so that failure of any one, or all three, of its own plants means only temporary interruption of the service you have learned to demand.

Efficiency in operation of this system of power plants and transmission and distribution lines permits rendition of electric service at its present low cost. The "manner of performing work" allows this company to render the good service you are receiving at an average net residential rate of .0482 per kilowatt-hour.

We want you to know we are glad to render this service, "supplying and furnishing that which meets a demand," and we invite you to use this service freely.

COPYRIGHT WILLIAM MACLEOD RAINE—WNU SERVICE

"Go in and light a lamp, Pete," ordered Norris in a low voice. "Put it close to yore friend. Then I'll come in."

Haskins lit a lamp and set it on a table. The light shone on a man sitting up in bed. His hair was tousled, his face unshaven. The chest of the man, seen through the opened shirt, was matted like a mane tangled with cockleburrs. He held his right hand beneath the blanket. The scarred cheek, in conjunction with the shifty, ratlike eyes, gave him a sinister appearance.

Norris came into the room, moving with the padded, panther-like stride that marked him. His gaze locked with that of the stranger. That there was a weapon in the hand beneath the blanket he did not need to be told.

"Who are you?" he demanded in a snarl.

"He's visiting me, not you, Morg," mentioned Haskins mildly. "Keep outta this, Pete," advised the Tail Holt bandit out of the corner of his mouth. "I'm asking a question, and I aim to get an answer."

"My turn to ask one now," the man in the bed said, a hard rasp in his voice. "Who do you think you are to talk thataway to me?"

"I'm Morgan Norris." The owner of the name waved a hand in the direction of Haskins, without lifting his eyes from the other. "He told you who I am, but he didn't tell me who you are. Come clean, fellow. I'm in a tight and I don't aim to throw in with anyone I don't know. These hills are full of guys that are poison to me."

"Morg is all right, Clint," Haskins put in. "Might as well tell him who you are."

"My name is Doke—Clint Doke." Norris stared at the man. "How many Clint Dokes are there?" he asked. "Another bird has been claimin' that name around here."

"So Howard tells me," the hairy man nodded. "He's a damn liar. Jeff Gray is his name. He's a United States marshal."

Morg Norris stared at the man in the bed. His mind was struggling to adjust itself to the implications of this information.

"He showed us a poster with his picture on it offering a reward for his arrest," Norris said. "Beneath the picture was the name Clint Doke. It was sure enough the spittin' image of this Jeff Gray."

"I wouldn't know about that," answered the man who claimed to be Doke. "I'll describe Gray to you. Red-headed—crooked nose—scar on the back of his hand—medium size."

"That's the fellow," Norris said with a bitter oath. "So he's a spy. I knew he was wrong all the time, but Sherm wouldn't listen to me. That big tub always knows more than anybody else."

"Gray is dangerous. Don't make any mistake about that."

The younger man admitted this. "But how come he to have that poster?" he asked, still suspicious. "What's the idea in his claimin' to be you—if you are Doke?"

The hairy man scratched his tousled head to help him to think. "Search me. Unless he figured you all would have heard of me account of the Texas and Southern holdup and he was using my name for a stand-in."

"That's the way I figure it," Haskins said. "Easy enough for him to get a poster printed with his picture on it claimin' to be Clint here. Clint is a Wyoming man. Leastways he has spent most of the past fifteen years there. Not likely he would be known up in this neck of the woods."

Norris drew a bottle from his hip pocket and passed it round. All three of them took a pull at it.

"My feet hurt like all get out, Pete," the most recently arrived fugitive said, embellishing his resentment of the fact with an oath. "I was afoot for twenty miles. How about lookin' after my bronc for me?"

Haskins departed to take care of the animal.

Norris sank into a chair and drew off his boots. He looked sourly at his aching feet.

"So you're scared of this son-of-a-gun Gray," he jeered.

"Surest thing you know," admitted the train robber. "Scared he'll drag me back to Texas where Old Man Trouble is sittin' waiting for me."

"He's no bigger than you are behind a gun, is he?"

"Not a mite. I'd as lief stand up and swap bullets with him if it came to a showdown. But there's something about him. Maybe it's just luck. Seems like he always drags in the guy he starts after."

"He went after me, but he didn't get me," Norris boasted.

"Story I've heard is that he set you afoot without a gun," Doke told him maliciously.

The younger man ripped out another angry oath. "Like you just said, he had luck. Came outa the bushes at me and whanged away before I had a chance. All I ask with him is an even break. I'm gonna get it too. Me, I'm tired of being hunted. I aim to turn hunter. This Gray is poison to you, the same as he is to me. What say we throw in together and collect him—hang his hide up to dry?"

Doke slanted a side look at him and grinned. "They ought to call you Sudden Morg. Five minutes ago you hadn't made up yore mind whether to cut loose at me with yore hogleg or not. Now you're talking up a partnership. May be good medicine, but I'd have to sleep on it first. We don't hardly know each other."

"Sudden Morgue is good," Norris said, and broke into jangled laughter. "I've sent a plenty guys who got in my way to morgues here and there. I'm in this part of the country for only a short visit longer, but before I leave I aim to meet Mr. Jeff Gray and stop his clock."

"We'll talk about this again," the man from Texas said. "Doesn't have to be settled tonight. With yore feet the way they are you're in no shape to travel for three-four days yet. If we can find out where this fellow is roosting, and if he hasn't got too many friends around him, I might take chips in yore game."

He moistened his parched lips.

To the surprise of Ruth, her father did not blame her for having assisted Morgan Norris to escape. He was so happy at the fortunate termination of her adventure that there was no room in him for criticism. Apologetically he defended what she had done, explaining the reason for it to Gray.

"Ruth was so nervous and worked up she didn't know what she was doing. You saved her. That's the main point. Someone else will kill the miscreant even though you didn't."

Gray shrugged his shoulders. "All right with me. I was sore at first, but I'm past that now. Yes, one of these days someone will get him."

"When I was captain of Rangers more than once I was forced to kill men who were better dead," Chiswick said, his speculative gaze on the red-headed man. "Ruth doesn't understand that this is in the day's work for an officer, that he doesn't rub out the scoundrel personally. You and I know it is the law wipes him out."

"So I'm an officer, am I?" Gray countered.

"Must be. The criminal on the dodge story won't hold water. Of course you're under sealed orders and can't talk. Probably you're gathering information. Well, when you've got it count on me if you need help."

"Much obliged. I may take you up on that. I'm going to drift to town today, but before I go I want to talk with young Howard, if you don't mind."

"I'll have the boys bring him in to you," Chiswick rose from the chair where he had been sitting. "About that going to town? You mean Tail Holt?"

"Yes."

"Don't you reckon that would be a little foolhardy? By this time Sherm Howard must have a pretty good idea you are responsible for his boys falling down at Live Oak canyon."

Gray smiled. "Some might say it was foolhardy for you to have gone out into the brush to collect the Brayton gang about ten years ago."

The former captain of Rangers dropped the point. He had taken his life in his hands to run down this bunch of outlaws. There had been a special reason for this, an intimate and personal one, though he would have done it anyhow from a sense of duty. But that reason was one he could not discuss with anyone. They had killed his oldest son, a boy of nineteen, a fine lad who had enlisted in the Rangers a month or two before.

To get evidence against the Brayton gang, Lee Chiswick had gone into the brush country alone and spent weeks there. Not until he had built up a convincing case had he sent for his men. There had been only one slip-up. He mentioned this now, harshly, his eyes fierce and hungry.

"I didn't do so good a job," he said. "I missed one, the brains of the outfit. He escaped."

"I didn't know that," Gray replied. "Left the country, I reckon."

"Yes. Left Texas and came here."

"Here?" The steady eyes of his guest were fixed on the cattleman.

"Unless I've been fooling myself for years. I'd never met Buck Brayton, so there's a millionth chance I'm wrong."

"Sherm Howard," Gray guessed.

"Yes. Hope you have better luck and don't let him slip away."

"I'll put my cards on the table, Chiswick. No reason why I shouldn't tell you now. I'm a special deputy United States marshal sent to get evidence against the outlaws operating around Tail Holt. I'm pretty nearly ready for the gather. When I am I'll need you."

The face of the cattleman lit. "Best news I've heard in a long time. The L C men will be with you to the finish."

"Good. Now if I can have a pow-wow with this scalawag."

"Soon as I can get him to you," Chiswick promised as he left.

Frank Chiswick presently came into the room, bringing with him the prisoner Lou Howard. That young man was dejected, sullen, and alarmed. He no longer looked the Beau Brummel of Tail Holt, but much more a schoolboy called in for a thrashing from the principal.

Gray continued to lounge in his chair. He looked at Howard out of chill, accusing eyes.

"You've sure got yore tail in a crack," he said at last.

"They got no right to hold me here!" Lou burst out, his voice shrill with fear and anger. "I haven't done a thing—not a thing. Anything I've said because they were third-degreeing me don't go. A man would say whatever they put into his mouth when it was a question of saving his life. You know that, Gray."

"Suits me if it does you," the crook-nosed man said coldly. "I'm a special United States marshal sent to clean up the criminals in this part of the country. If you want to go to prison for ten or fifteen years, in the event you aren't hung, that's all right with me. Today you can write your own ticket, but you can't do that tomorrow. There are weak links in every chain. As soon as someone else turns state's evidence, you lose your chance. Talk or keep your mouth clamped, whichever you like."

The matter-of-fact manner of the officer left young Howard no room for doubt. He was in a trap. A wave of panic swept through him, but he made a feeble effort to stem it.

"Thought you claimed to be Clint Doke," he said, and rolled a cigarette with fingers that trembled.

"Curly and Morg saw a poster with yore picture on it."

"I wanted them to think I was Clint Doke and they obliged me," Gray said. He rose from the chair where he sat with the brisk manner of one who has finished his business.

"Take him back to the dog-house,

Frank Chiswick said at last.

"That all?" asked Gray.

Another name was scribbled, then still another. "That's all I know," the writer said, pushing the paper from him.

"Add yore own and Sherm Howard's."

"I tell you I wasn't in on whatever was doing."

Gray picked up the list. "I'll have a check on everything you tell me, so you'd better not dish up any lies. We'll take the names in turn. You'll tell me all you know against them."

"I'll just be guessing," Howard said doggedly.

"See you guess right."

Tracks of Birds in Snow Are Easy to Identify; Ringnecked Pheasant Prancer

Although snow tracks of fur bearing animals such as the rabbit, squirrel, mink, and weasel usually are more interesting to the outdoor fan than those left by birds, winter birds can tell us a number of interesting stories if we are familiar with their tracks, notes Bob Becker in the Chicago Tribune.

One of the birds which leaves good sized prints in the snow of fields and woods is the ringnecked pheasant. It is possible to see pheasant tracks whenever there is snow on the ground. They are quite easy to identify. In the first place, the pheasant leaves a snow print that is large enough to catch the eye. Secondly, the middle toe of the bird stands in an almost straight line in the trail. This particular feature of the pheasant's track is one that makes it quite easy to distinguish from footprints of other good sized wild birds.

One peculiarity of the pheasant tracks in the snow which always catches our eye is the blurred line that usually can be seen between footprints. This mark is left in the snow by the dragging feet of the bird Frank. He has had his chance. I'm hitting the trail."

Howard wilted visibly. He moistened his parched lips with his tongue. "Wait a minute," he said hoarsely. "What—what is it you want to know?"

"How did Sherm Howard know the Mexicans were coming up through Live Oak canyon with silver?" the United States marshal demanded abruptly.

"One of the smugglers gets him information, a Mexican called Juan Pasaqual," the prisoner said, shakily and reluctantly.

"Who were in the gang that held up the Mexicans last spring?"

Lou shook his head. "I don't know," he pleaded. "They didn't tell me about that. I never was in anything of this kind before. I wish to God they had left me out this time."

"Who held up the Benson stage?"

The officer lifted a hand of warning sharply. "Either talk turkey or shut up. Don't lie to me. You know who did it. You've heard plenty of conversation about it."

"Just talk," the badgered man protested. "You know how it is. Folks gab, and it doesn't mean a thing."

"If you aim to save yore neck, Howard, you'll come clean," the officer said quietly.

The story is that Morg Norris and Mile High did it. All I know is from gossip."

"That's not all you know. You're not a fool. After word of the holdup came to Tail Holt, you looked around to see who had been missing. When did Morg and Mile High leave town? How long before the holdup?"

"The evening before," Howard replied sulkily. "But that don't prove—"

"On what horses?" Gray interrupted curtly.

"Mile High was riding his buckskin and Morg a sorrel with white stockings."

"How'd you know?"

"I saw them when they came back to town."

"Which was when?"

"The day after the holdup."

"Sit down at the table and write a list of all those in the Howard gang. I want all of those connected with it in any way. Any explanations I want I'll ask for later."

Howard took the offered pencil with palpable unwillingness. "I don't know what you mean," he protested. "There's no Howard gang. Maybe there's been a little—"

"Get busy," snapped the officer. "I don't want argument or explanation."

Lou sat down, twiddled the pencil, and began to write names. Sid Hunt, Mile High, Kansas, Curly Connor, Morg Norris, Yorky Slim Burke, Pete Haskins, Curt Dobbs, Jim Reynolds. The prisoner wrote the names painfully and slowly, biting the end of the pencil between each before he could make up his mind to put it on the list. Three or four others he added.

"That all?" asked Gray.

Another name was scribbled, then still another. "That's all I know," the writer said, pushing the paper from him.

"Add yore own and Sherm Howard's."

"I tell you I wasn't in on whatever was doing."

Gray picked up the list. "I'll have a check on everything you tell me, so you'd better not dish up any lies. We'll take the names in turn. You'll tell me all you know against them."

C. Houston Goudiss Discusses

CALCIUM

The Captain of the Minerals

Nationally Known Food Authority Explains How to Include This Vital Food Element in the Daily Diet

By C. HOUSTON GOUDISS

6 East 39th Street, New York City

A FEW years ago there was an earthquake in the Far West. When the tremors were over, the frightened people looked in dismay upon the damage that had been done. In some places they were saddened by the loss of a great number of their buildings, and in one community, mingled with their sorrow—almost crowding it out of their emotions—was indignant ANGER. For they observed that their schools had suffered greater damage than any other group of buildings in the city.

On every side, the cry of indignation arose. It was all too plain that poor materials had gone into the construction of those schools which were supposed to house children in security.

The most vehement cries went up from the mothers, not only in that community, but all over the country. That is natural, for all mothers believe they have the children's welfare at heart. Unwittingly, however, they may be doing them irreparable harm by failing to feed them the foods that will construct sound bodies, able to withstand the stress and strain of life.

Calcium Starvation

The mineral calcium is to the human body what steel and stone are to a building. It is necessary to construct the bony framework. The mother who fails to consume adequate calcium before her baby is born, or fails to give the child adequate calcium throughout the growing years, is as guilty as the contractor who constructs a school building of poor materials.

Without sufficient calcium, the bones become soft and porous. They break easily and knit slowly after they are broken. They may bend and twist during growth, so that the child who is a victim of calcium deficiency may become bow-legged and deformed, with a malformed chest or enlarged forehead. Rickets—that horrible deficiency disease which causes stunted mis-shapen bodies—may develop. And so may tetany—another scourge of childhood.

Crooked Defective Teeth

The teeth, too, depend upon calcium for the soundness of their structure. When this precious mineral is inadequately provided, the baby teeth may soon decay; the permanent teeth may come in crowded and unsightly—and quickly develop cavities.

There are also many other ways that calcium deficiency may handicap your children. For this mineral is intimately concerned with all the body processes. It increases the strength and pulsations of the heart; helps the blood to coagulate in case of injury, thus effectively aiding in preventing hemorrhage. It strengthens the resistance of the body in fever and other diseases. It tones up the nervous system, lessening nervous tension.

Adults Require Calcium

Adults have a vital need for calcium. A lack of this mineral not only results in defective teeth, but may also be responsible for nervousness, quivering and twitching of the muscles and defective heart action.

To be normal, the full-grown human body must contain more calcium than any other mineral element. Yet, every individual is, of necessity, born calcium-poor. For if the bones were as rigid as they must eventually become, the ordeal of birth would be too difficult for both mother and child.

Easily Lost From Body

The homemaker's task of providing adequate calcium is complicated by the fact that the body loses large amounts of calcium every day, and this loss is greater during sickness, especially in fever or when one is worried, overworked or has taken too strenuous exercise.

Outstanding nutritionists unanimously agree that the American diet is more deficient in calcium than in any other element. And it is squarely up to the mothers and homemakers to correct this tragic state of affairs, which is undermining their own efficiency and threatening the present health and future happiness of their children.

How to Obtain Calcium

Milk is an outstanding source of calcium. That is why it should form the cornerstone of every balanced diet. Cheese, which is milk in concentrated form, is likewise notable in this respect, and one and one-fourth ounces of American Cheddar cheese are the approximate equivalent of an eight-ounce glass of milk. Leaf and stem vegetables are richer in calcium than other vegetables or fruits, but while their calcium has been found to be well-absorbed by adults, it is not so readily available to children.

Among the vegetables, however, there is a wide variation, turnip tops and dandelion greens providing unusually large amounts.

List of Calcium-Rich Foods

I have prepared a list of foods rich in calcium which I shall gladly send to homemakers upon request. I urge every woman to write for this list and use it in planning the daily diet of herself, her husband and children.

You really need such a list in order to avoid the grave consequences of calcium deficiency, for so many of our common foods are calcium poor that it is possible for a diet to be abundant and varied and still be inadequate in respect to calcium.

The list of calcium-containing foods will help you do a perfect job of building strong, fine bodies for your children.

There is no joy like the joy of creating perfect, healthy children. The architect and the sculptor stand in awe before the realization of their dreams. But you, mothers of children, the builders of their bodies, you are the mightiest of all. A diet adequate in calcium, for you and your children, will help you build beautiful, wisely and well. Your reward will be the joy, the pride, the heart-warming satisfaction of having accomplished a worthwhile purpose.

Questions Answered

Mrs. F. R. T.—There is nothing as a specific brain food. Nutritionists are convinced of the quality and efficiency of functioning of the mind, partially on the character of food consumed. Mental efficiency appears to be influenced by quantity and quality of protein in the diet, and it has been demonstrated that the proteins, including cheese and eggs are superior in cal value.

C. J. K.—It is a fallacy to assume that garlic is a blood purifier. Garlic improves the food for those who like it. It cannot be considered a special health properties.

To the Citizens, Taxpayers and Voters of Donley County

In behalf of my candidacy for Sheriff, I have lived in Donley county almost ten years. In that length of time I have had the pleasure of meeting everybody personally in the county. In making this acquaintance I have come to appreciate the good citizenship of Donley county.

In regards to the office of Sheriff to which I aspire I am not unmindful of the duties of that office. Having had one and a half years of experience as an officer, I feel that I am fully qualified to serve as your Sheriff. The Sheriff's office and Constable's office are much the same in respect to their duties. Since I have been your Constable the last year and a half there has been less crime in Donley county, than there has been in ten years. I don't want the people to think I am bragging, just take the court records for what I say.

If this type of law enforcement meets with your approval, I will appreciate your support of me on July 23rd. One of my opponents has held the Sheriff's office the past eight years and is asking for his fifth term. I am asking for my first term. Don't you think he has eaten out of the county feed trough long enough? If I am deserving for this office I will appreciate your support more than I can tell you, and if elected I have but one promise to make, that I will do my duty and enforce the law in Donley county if it takes twenty four hours a day to do it. My policy is to treat each and every person with the same fair consideration, whether he is a poor man or a rich man. I will give you rigid enforcement of the law.

Respectfully, C. Huffman

JOHN DEAVER
For District Attorney

Do not be MISGUIDED by APPEALS TO PREJUDICE. Vote for the man you think is best qualified. He can and will serve the district to your best interests.

A Record of Convictions that has not been Excelled in this District.

Out of Donley County cases tried all have been convictions except three acquittals and two hung juries.

Stand by a man who offers you more experience, better equipment, and harder work.

Weigh the SOLID ACCOMPLISHMENTS of your present District Attorney against the PROMISES of his opponent. The man for the job is the man who has proved he can do the job.

WHY EXPERIMENT? VOTE FOR

JOHN DEAVER

CANDIDATE FOR DISTRICT ATTORNEY

To the Citizens of Donley County

I have tried to be diligent in my efforts to contact personally each voter in the county as regards my race for the office of County Judge. I find, however, that it has been almost impossible to do this by virtue of the fact that some were not at home when a call was made. This of course, is not to be blamed on any one, and I am now employing this method of reaching every one and earnestly soliciting your vote.

In view of the fact that I have been favored in the past by your vote, I approach this election with a "Thank You" spirit and hope that the manner in which I have managed the affairs of the office will justify you in returning me to the same line of duties.

Time and conditions have brought many changes as regards the many items of business with which the county judge has to deal. Many of our governmental "set ups" unheard of just a few years ago, consume a considerable portion of time and thought. These things I have met with as much judgment and patience as was at my command. I do not mean to say that my election to the office again will mean that the county will have no more problems to solve, I am merely offering my services in assisting to solve them.

Your vote will be highly appreciated, and I solicit it upon the basis of fairness and efficiency as I see it.

Yours very respectfully,
S. W. Lowe

Entertains

The home of Mrs. G. E. Kinslew was the scene of a very enjoyable party, when she entertained with a breakfast on June 30. She was assisted by Miss Myrtle Reeves.

The house was very attractive with summer flowers. Tables were laid with Madeira cloths centered with vases of roses.

After a lovely two course breakfast, games of bridge were enjoyed.

Prizes were given to Mesdames Louise Thompson, Trimble, Gee Thompson and Miss Myrtle Reeves.

The guest list included Mesdames Strickland of Dallas, Herd Ed Dishman, Thompson and Boston of Clarendon, Trimble, Dishman, Simmons, Mereman Dudley, Adameson Mitchell Moffitt Thompson, Johnson and Spaulding and Misses Reeves, Watkins and Poole.

In the afternoon Mrs. Kinslew entertained with three tables of 42. Mrs. Fred Watt won high score. A salad course was served to Mesdames Watt, Whitfield Masterson, Horschler, Trimble, Mann, Mitchell, Spaulding, Strickland, Moffitt and Bowlin, Misses Myrtle Reeves and Ila Poole and the hostess.

Effective July 1, hail insurance on growing cotton may be written in our companies at 40 per cent discount. For example a $500 policy may be written on the note plan for $40.95.

BASEBALL

The Hedley nine played errorless baseball Sunday to defeat the Childress team 3 to 0 on the local diamond. This is the second time this season Hedley has shellacked the opposing team, the first victim being Memphis, 6 to 0. These two are the only whitewashes in the league to date.

Hedley opened the scoring in the first inning with two runs and added another in the 4th. Both teams unsuccessfully threatened several times in the later innings.

Only four games remain on the regular schedule, and the fans are urged to back their home team to get into the playoff.
