Hall-Gilliam

Harrison Hall and Miss Verda Gilliam, both of this city, were united in marriage last Saturday morning at 10 o'clock at the Baptist parsonage. Rev. M. E. Wells performed the impressive ring ceremony, in the presence of the Wells family and the bride's father, J. S. Gilliam.

The bride wore a dress of white chiffon with blue accents.

The couple left immediately after the ceremony for a short visit to Amarillo.

Both bride and groom have lived in Hedley many years, the former being a graduate of the local high school in 1929. The groom is owner and manager of the Hall Service Station.

A host of friends will join us in extending best wishes to Mr. and Mrs. Hall.

Gunn-England

Elma Gunn and Miss Ruby England, both of Spearman, were united in marriage Friday, July 22, at the Christian Church at Greenville, Texas. The ring ceremony was read by the pastor there.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. England of Greenville and is a teacher in the Spearman schools.

The groom is the son of Mrs. J. T. Gunn of Spearman. He grew up in Hedley and was a graduate of the local high school in 1926. He attended Clarendon College and received his degree from West Texas State at Canyon. He has been a teacher in the Spearman schools about 8 years.

The Informer joins a wide circle of friends in extending congratulations and best wishes.

Hear the lady preacher, Rev. Leona Forbes at the Church of the Nazarene, Friday, July 29, to Aug 7. Sister Forbes is a graduate of Bethany Penial College of Bethany, Okla., and is now the pastor of our church at Ropesville, Texas. She is an able preacher of the gospel and believes in a religion that really saves people from sin and helps them to quit the sin business. Miss Loveta Ludlam of Amarillo will be the pianist and W. Hickman song leader. If you play an instrument come and play in our orchestra. We are planning for an outdoor meeting just back of the Nazarene Church. A special invitation is given to singers and musicians. Remember the date July 29 to Aug. 7. Every body is invited to attend.

Primary Election Results

The primary election held Saturday drew one of the largest votes in recent years here, over 400 votes being cast. Only one county race requires a runoff—the tax assessor and collector. Joe Bowns is the incumbent and J. W. Adamson is his opponent. Guy Pierce for sheriff, R. Y. King for county judge, W. G. Word for county clerk, all had majorities in the first primary. Mrs. Margaret Thompson, county treasurer, and Walker Lane, district clerk, had no opponents in the precinct 8 races. J. C. Doherty was elected justice of peace and Claud Nash was re-elected commissioner.

John Deaver was victorious in his race for reelection as district attorney. State representative Eugene Worley was unopposed.

In the 18th congressional district, U. S. representative Marvin Jones was re-elected. His opponent was James O. Cade.

New Grocery Opens

GOOD WILL

Hundreds of years ago the common law of England defined good will as "the likelihood that an old customer will return to an old place."

We needn't go back that far for an example. Since 1913 thinking men and women have returned to us for banking service performed efficiently, honestly and quietly. That's good will—convincing evidence people like the way we do business.

Nature designed the kidneys to do a marvelous job. Their task is to keep the flowing blood stream free of an excess of toxic impurities. The act of living—life itself—is constantly producing waste matter the kidneys must remove from the blood if good health is to endure. When the kidneys fail to function as Nature intended, there is retention of waste that may cause body-wide distress. One may suffer nagging backache, persistent headache, attacks of dizziness, getting up nights, swelling, puffiness under the eyes—feet tired, nervous, all worn out.
Frequent, scanty or burning passages may be further evidence of kidney or bladder disturbances.
The recognized and proper treatment is a diuretic medicine to help the kidneys get rid of excess poisonous body waste. Doan's Pills. They have had more than forty years of public approval. Are endorsed the country over. Look on Doan's. Sold at all drug stores.

Breath and Its Causes

By DR. JAMES W. BARTON
© Bell Syndicate—WNU Service.

ADVERTISING copy writers tell us that one of the biggest, if not the biggest, of advertising appeals is that of fear—fear of heart disease, cancer or other diseases, endangering health and life. Another fear is that of being disliked by other people. It is this fear that causes so many to buy throat gargles, tooth washes and laxatives because their breath may be offensive without their knowledge.

Now there is nothing wrong with taking any or all of these precautions against bad breath because they do give some temporary relief. In fact, until the cause of bad breath is found, the taking of these precautions is justified. However, while some of the causes of bad breath are of a simple nature and not likely to do much, if any, harm to the system, there are some causes that damage the body, yet the individual, because he is using mouth washes, gargles and other methods of "keeping down" any odor, neglects to have these conditions corrected.

Look to the Teeth.
Physicians and dentists tell us that the most frequent cause of bad breath has to do with the teeth. There may be cavities or there may be little portions of food left on the teeth that should be removed by brushing the teeth or rinsing out the mouth after every meal. Sometimes the despised toothpick and the more efficient dental floss become necessary to remove the tiny pieces of food that get lodged between the teeth. "All cavities should be filled and tartar deposits should be regularly removed, not only because of their tendency to cause disagreeable odor but because organisms may develop and be swallowed." If any beginning pyorrhea is present alkaline mouth washes should be used.

Good Reducing Diet.
It is very gratifying to see the interest with which physicians now tackle the problem of reducing weight. This is due to the knowledge that overweight is responsible for many derangements of the workings of the heart, blood vessels, kidneys and other organs.

In the Journal of the Iowa State Medical Society Dr. M. C. Wheelock states:

"If the patient will keep strictly on a 1,000 calorie diet, medicine is unnecessary for reducing weight. If weight loss is too rapid it may be that a little more liquid—water or other fluids—is necessary to maintain a better circulation."

Dr. Wheelock outlines a 1,000 calorie diet for those who are greatly overweight after examination shows that reducing may be safely done.

Breakfast: One medium serving of oranges, peaches, pineapple, or grapefruit; one-half teaspoonful of butter; one glass skim milk; one thin slice of bread; one egg; and one one-half rounded tablespoonful of cottage cheese.

Dinner: Two medium servings of lettuce or asparagus or celery or tomatoes or string beans or cabbage; one medium serving of lean meat; one thin slice of whole-wheat bread; one medium serving of apples or apricots or pears or raspberries; one glass skim milk; coffee or tea (without sugar or cream) or clear broth.

Supper: One medium serving of any of above vegetables; two eggs; one thin slice of bread; one glass skim milk.

The Venus Flytrap

Charles Darwin called the Venus flytrap the "most wonderful plant in the world." It is an oddity of nature found only in our Carolina swamps. The Venus flytrap is a member of the sundew family with white flowers on 12-inch stems and rosettes of leaves consisting of two hinged blades set with sensitive hairs. When an insect alights on one of these leaves, the halves snap together like the jaws of a trap and are held firm by interlocking menial bristles. The trapped insect dies. It is then dissolved and absorbed, and the plant opens and resets its leafy trap for further prey. Related to the Venus flytrap are the pitcher plants, of which the darlingtonias, or California pitcher plants, are well-known members. These also can absorb the insects which are attracted to the tubular leaves and then drowned in a digestive fluid secreted in the bottom.

Babies Prefer Bright Colors
Babies can distinguish between colors and almost invariably reach for red as their first choice. A survey to determine color preference among babies rates bright red as the first choice with bright blue, white, and bright green following in the order named. This accounts for the brilliancy of the colors used in painting toys.

New Fabrics

By CHERIE NICHOLAS

A FAVORITE theme this summer is the sheer loveliness of diaphanous, airy-fairy transparent fabrics, either cotton or silk. The new sheers are simply enchanting and they are the sought-for kind to make up into gowns for picturesque garden party wear or for dancing under star-spangled skies or when dining at fashionable roof-garden gatherings where beauty and romance keep rendezvous.

Gowns designed to grace summertime scenes are fashioned of wispy chiffons either printed or monotone, or of organdies crisp, sheer and intriguing, or of dainty silk marquise which is an especial favorite. Then there are the soft fine cotton voiles in pretty colors and as for lace every summer wardrobe is expected to include at least one party frock made of it. As a matter of fact lace is playing a stellar role this summer. The lace that captures the heart of enthusiasts is a delicate-as-cobweb type the patterning of which is a mere tracery.

Gowns of this fetching lace have all-around pleated skirts, since it yields beautifully to this treatment. To dine and dance in ingenious frocks of simple cottons made up formally is considered quite the swank thing to do. The thrilling note in regard to this season's organdies is that so many new types have been added to the list.

The crinkled organdies either plain or printed sell at eight. They make up charmingly and are easily tubbed, require little or no pressing to keep their crisp and sprightly as new. For week-end trips they are ideal as they do not crush in packing.

You will be delighted with the new lace-printed Swiss chiffon organdies. The entrancing frock centered with outspread skirt in the foreground gives an idea of how effectively the lace-stripe organdie makes up. The charming and picturesque Winterhalter vogue is reflected in the styling of this very tiny-waisted and full-skirted dinner-and-dancing gown (a winsome garden party frock, too) in one of the fashionable printed Swiss chiffon organdies. A very fine lace patterning in white stands out clearly against a deep navy blue background. There is a full-cut underskirt of white organdie to make the frock stand out almost on ballet skirt lines. The diminutive bolero jacket worn over the drop-shoulder bodice is finished with little ruffles of val lace laid on over the lace print.

The material that fashions the frock to the left is peach silk mousseline. It is prettily styled with vertical ruche-ruffling of self-fabric outlining the skirt gores, the puffed sleeves and there are ruffles about the neck.

Hyacinth blue lace with touches of cerise lace is used for the graceful gown centered in the picture. It was introduced at the Miami fashion show and is one of those pleasing types that carry on into new triumphs for summer party wear. One of its charms is that the lace indicates stripes and striped effects lead in the mode.

The printed chiffon frock to the left gives a delightful interpretation of the slim silhouette for summer. The patterning is spaced tulips in blue, red, green and black on a sheer white background. The gathered bodice suggests the Directoire. Contrasting shades of green and blue silk make the girdle and sash which forms a train. Flower bracelets are worn with it and an enormous poppy on the head instead of a hat, which goes to show the intriguing and unique ways in which flowers now play their important role in costume ensembling.

HANDSOME SUIT

By CHERIE NICHOLAS

One handsome suit like the model pictured, in your wardrobe and your problem is solved as to looking smartly attired for any occasion. Contrast stitching is a swank accent to the interesting detail of this well-tailored town and country suit in fine lightweight wool shetland. Note the scalloped pockets that repeat the decorative stitching that enhances the seams in the skirt.

TWISTED DRAPES ARE NEW STYLE FEATURE

By CHERIE NICHOLAS
Designers are performing all sorts of interesting tricks with twisted drapes and as time goes on the idea is taking on added interest.

When you see a dress or blouse the drapes of which tie themselves into fanciful knots or twist into clever intricacies be assured that the garment is a "last word" fashion. Be on the lookout for these inter-twisted, inter-coiled effects and choose your new frocks accordingly. This type of styling invites the use of color contrasts. For instance, the bodice top of a navy dress may have drapes coming from the shoulder, say in the new fuchsia shade, the same coiled, twisted and perhaps knotted across the bustline with infinite grace. Or the dress may be in monotone, the artful, twisted designfulness being the only trimming feature. White crepe frocks, with twists done in crepes of vivid contrast or carried out in pastel tones are top-notch fashion this summer.

A new feature in styling is the all-over shirred bodice with skirt of the material simply tailored. The all-over shirred jacket is likewise a fashion highlight. Chiffon and sheer marquisette yield to this treatment most charmingly.

Paquin Favorite
A favorite Paquin model for evening is the long skirt of bias cut topped by a marquisette blouse—the entire thing in white, black or pale rose.

Tailored Dinner Dress
The tailored dinner or evening dress remains a heavy favorite.

CORRECT NUTRITION

Describes How to Construct a Balanced Diet, So Essential to Maintain Optimal Health

By C. HOUSTON GOUDISS

TO SOME families, a summons to the dinner table means nothing more than a chance to satisfy hunger. To others, it represents an opportunity to gratify the palate, sometimes to the extent of overtaxing the digestive system.

Neither of these extremes fulfills the true function of food, which is to provide adequately but not to excess, for growth, maintenance and repair of the body.

Food May Fail to Feed
You can satisfy hunger without providing correct nutrition. You can partake of delicious-tasting foods to the point of over-indulgence—without meeting bodily requirements.

The mere spending of money will not insure good nutrition, for extremely poor diets can be found in households where the income is large and the food budget is ample. What counts is learning to provide the right foods in the correct proportions. The return in health will be more than worth the investment of effort in acquiring this knowledge.

A Balanced Diet

Science has discovered what foods are necessary to help build top health and keep us 100 per cent fit. The amount of food required by a man for a day's work can be accurately determined. We know that a specific disease may be produced by one diet and cured by another; that growth can be influenced through changes in the quality of the dietary; that old age may be deferred by choosing the food with care.

We know that the body is a working machine which never stops but may slow down or get out of order unless the daily diet includes every element, every mineral, every vitamin needed to maintain health and avoid the deficiency diseases.

Seven Essentials

There are seven factors to be considered in planning a balanced diet. Protein for building body tissue and repairing the millions of cells that are worn out daily. Carbohydrates to produce quick heat and energy. Fats—a more compact form of fuel, which are also essential in a satisfactory diet. Minerals which serve both as builders and regulators of body processes. The six vitamins, A, B, C, D, E and G, that also act as regulators and prevent a number of deficiency diseases. Water—which serves as a vehicle by which food is carried to the tissues. And cellulose or bulk—required for the normal functioning of the intestinal tract.

Danger in Omitting One Food Substance

The homemaker who fails to take every one of these factors into consideration is depriving her husband of the opportunity to develop his greatest efficiency. Moreover, she may be robbing her children of their birthright. During every day of childhood, the body is being built, and defects in body structure are likely to arise if the child is improperly nourished. It is then that disease and disability make their appearance as a result of faulty nutrition. How fragile to deprive the young body of substances so necessary to its well being.

How to Check the Diet for Balance

Perhaps you are like the homemakers who tell me that they do not know a protein from a carbohydrate. Or it may be that while you understand the difference, you do not know what quantities should be included in the diet each day.

To simplify your task of serving balanced menus at every meal, I have prepared a Homemaker's Chart for Checking Nutritional Balance. In convenient chart form, it shows what foods should be included in the diet every day and gives the standard amount for each food. There are also skeleton menus outlined by food classifications, which enable you to plan balanced menus for every meal by making a choice from each group of required foods.

I urge every homemaker to write for this chart, and use it daily. Then you won't make such common mistakes as serving a dried legume as a vegetable at a meal in which meat is used, which tends to concentrate too much protein in one meal; or choosing a too-heavy dessert following a main course that is overly rich in carbohydrates.

60 Per Cent Carbohydrates

Carbohydrates should form at least 60 per cent of the supply of food fuel. Rarely are menus deficient in carbohydrates, because PLANNING a balanced diet will cease to be a puzzle if you send for the Homemaker's Chart for Checking Nutritional Balance, offered free, by C. Houston Goudiss. It lists the foods and the standard amounts that should be included in the daily diet, and includes skeleton menus for breakfast, dinner and lunch or supper, to guide you in selecting the proper foods in each classification. they are so widely distributed in such common foods as cereals, bread, potatoes, macaroni products, sweets, and sweet fruits and vegetables, such as oranges, grapes, apples and pears.

Fats should supply about 20 per cent of the caloric content of the diet. They are obtained from butter, margarine, cream, egg yolk, salad dressings, vegetable oils and the fat of meats.

A protein food should be provided at each meal. Meat, poultry, fish, eggs, cheese, milk and most nuts supply complete protein. Cereals and legumes furnish incomplete protein which may be supplemented by the complete protein of milk.

The Protective Foods

It is essential that the diet should contain an abundance of minerals and vitamins which are furnished by the protective foods—milk, eggs, fruits and vegetables. Cellulose or bulk is obtained from fruits, vegetables and whole grain cereals. Water comes from juicy fruits, succulent vegetables, milk and other beverages, as well as the water that is consumed as a beverage.

To provide adequate amounts of the seven food essentials at every meal—to avoid the mistake of serving too much of one type of food and too little of another—should be the worthy aim of every homemaker. You will find the task considerably easier if you send for the Homemaker's Chart. Tack it up in your kitchen or in the room where you plan your menus, and use it to check the nutritional balance of every meal you prepare.

If you faithfully follow the food program outlined in the chart, you will help to assure your family of correct nutrition. This is the most priceless gift you could bestow upon them. For nutrition is the architect that draws the plans of human destiny. In providing the right foods, you lay a firm foundation for health on which to rear a life of happiness and success.

CHAPTER XII—Continued

Lou Howard lay on a bunk staring at the ceiling. Buck Conrad, his guard, had turned in for the night. He was sullen and despondent. Why was his father not doing something to get him out of this trouble? He knew Sherm had sent a messenger to Chiswick threatening reprisals if any harm happened to his son. But why didn't he do something instead of just talk?

The prisoner could not get to sleep. He was worried. The best he could hope for was a term in the penitentiary, unless his father could work out some slick scheme for getting him off. The only escape from this was to turn state's evidence. If he did this, his name would be a hissing by-word. He would have to get out of the country.

A faint tapping on the window reached him. He sat up, as well as he could for his bonds, his stomach muscles tightening. A pricking of the skin ran over him.

A voice murmured, "That-you, Lou?"

"Yes. Who is it?" he whispered. The saw ripped through a resinous knot, died down for a moment, and attacked another.

"Morg Norris. Listen. Where does this Gray sleep?"

"He's gone to town. Get me out of here, Morg—please."

A second voice asked hoarsely, "Only one fellow in the dog-house with you?"

"Yes. Buck Conrad. All right. I'll tell him."

Conrad awakened at the sound of young Howard's urgent voice.

"What's eatin' you?" he asked sleepily.

"Someone has been calling you. Sounds like Chiswick."

Buck sat up and listened. Someone outside shouted his name. He went to the door, not waiting to light a lamp, and threw it open.

"Who wants me?" he asked.

They were his last words. Two guns roared. The cowpuncher caught at the jamb, and slid down, his knees buckling under him. Morg Norris ran forward and flung another bullet into the prone body. The face of the outlaw was distorted with rage. He had nothing personal against Buck, but the fury of the kill was on him. He spat out a venomous epithet.

"Get out your knife and cut me free," implored Howard.

The second man came into the room. With a jackknife he severed the rope that bound the prisoner. Lou Howard was surprised to note that the sinister face bent over him was unfamiliar.

"Hurry!" urged the young man. "They'll hear the shots and be on us in a minute. We got to get out sudden."

"Let 'em come," boasted Norris, with an impatience. "We're ready to swap lead with them."

"Anyone else with you?" Lou asked, rising from the bunk.

"No more. We came to get Gray. Lucky for him he's not here. Don't need an army, do we?" the killer wanted to know. He added, cruel laughter in his voice: "Wish it had been the spy Gray we had croaked instead of this dumbskull here."

The three men passed swiftly out of the cabin. Already they could hear voices and the sound of men running. It was time to be gone. Someone came out on the porch of the big house and wanted to know who was there.

Norris was in the saddle. He galloped up to the porch and fired at the man standing there. Out of the foreman's cottage came Dan Brand, sketchedly dressed. He blazed away at the young outlaw with a rifle. The bandit wheeled his horse and cantered back to his companions.

"Hit the grit, boys," he ordered. "Gonna be hot here if we stick around."

The stranger gave Lou a foot for a rest and Howard swung to his saddle behind him. As the horses pounded down the road, the roar of guns followed them. Howard looked back anxiously, his heart thumping with fear. Framed in a window, he saw the face of Ruth Chiswick.

The fugitives headed for Tail Holt. They kept to the road. Pursuit would probably be useless, since the outlaws could turn into the brush whenever they heard the sound of riders back of them.

The lights were still blazing in the Golden Nugget when they drew up at the hitchrack. Norris walked into the gambling-house, the other two at his heels.

Mile High and some others were at the bar drinking. A man who started to lift his glass put it down instantly.

"Morg Norris!" he exclaimed. The card game was suspended. The wheel ceased to turn. All eyes turned upon the three who had just entered the place.

"Don't get on the prod, boys," warned Norris. "I'm here peaceable. Listen to what I've got to spill before you start foggin'. I'll be out to the L C ranch for a l'il call on Lee Chiswick. I bumped off one of his warriors and brought back with me Lou Howard. I got to apologize for not getting that spy Gray. He wasn't there."

"Didn't I have something to do with all this?" sneered Clint Duke. "Sure. You went along with me. But I thought of it. I ran the show." The killer swaggered to the bar.

Mile High said, not lifting his eyes from Norris: "You got quite some explaining to do, fellow. Kansas?"

"He was aimin' to give me up to Chiswick's warriors. I had to get him before he got me. Same with Curly. He was firing at me when I wounded him. I could of killed him, but I didn't."

"And I reckon you ran away with the young lady for a joke?"

"No, sir. I made a mistake there, but I was taking her back home when Gray's posse bumped into me. She'll tell you I didn't hurt her any. Send for Sherm. We'll have a powwow and fix things up."

"You run hog-wild, then come back and say, 'Forget it, boys.' I got a better memory than that," Mile High flung back.

Morg slid an ugly look at him. But he spoke with unusual restraint. This was not the time to indulge a bad temper.

"I went out to the L C with Duke here and rescued Lou, didn't I,

"Where's he at?" asked Norris.

while you lads were talking about what a heluva hole he was in?"

"That's what he did," young Howard said. "Someone go get Father. We got trouble enough on our hands without fussing among ourselves. Shove that bottle this way, Pete."

The tension relaxed. A Mexican boy was sent to bring Sherm Howard. To an admiring but not altogether friendly audience Norris narrated his adventures. They lost nothing in the telling.

Howard, senior, arrived ten minutes later. With him came a leather-faced man known as York. The fat man looked at his son, then at Norris, no expression in his wooden face.

"So you're back," he said to the latter.

"Y'betcha! All set for the fatted calf, Sherm."

Howard ignored the attempted blitheness. "I'll listen to you, Morg," he said.

The killer swept a hand in the direction of the rescued man. "Lou, he'll do my talkin' for me," he boasted. "While you were sleeping comfortable, me and Clint risked our hides to get yore boy for you. We had to bump off an L C rider and fight a battle with Chiswick's gang, but we brought Lou back with us."

"Fine. We would have had Lou, anyhow, in a day or two." The fathomless eyes of Howard rested in those of Norris. "Did you bring Kansas back with you too?"

Norris began to bristle. "Kansas was a double-crossing son-of-a-gun."

"You told me the other day a posse killed him. That right?"

The killer hesitated. There was no use holding to that story, since everybody knew that Ruth Chiswick had refuted it. "A fellow has to go through," he said sulkily. "Kansas was fixing to throw me down. It was him or me. I had to beat him to it."

Pete, the bartender, threw in a low-voiced suggestion. "That's right, Sherm. The young lady says Kansas told her he meant to line up with her dad."

"Like to have a little talk with Lou," that young man's father said.

"Afterward I want to see you and Mile High, Morg."

Lou followed Sherm into the little room Curt Dubbs used as an office. The big man closed the door. He sat down ponderously in a chair.

"What you want to see me about?" his son asked nervously.

The older man spread plump white hands. His expressionless eyes were fixed on the other.

"Come clean, Lou," he ordered. "What does this Gray know? What did you tell him?"

Tiny beads of perspiration began to stand out on the forehead of the younger man. "You didn't do a thing for me," he protested, with the violence of weakness. "Left me there to be hanged. If they hadn't got Ruth home safe, that's what would have happened to me, too. You look after your own hide mighty well, but you don't want me to do the same."

"I was doing all I could for you, but never mind that. I've got to know where we stand. What did you tell Gray and Chiswick?"

"What I told under fear of death doesn't count," Lou evaded. "Maybe I said more'n I should. So would you have. So would anyone."

"I'm listening."

Lou told what he had confessed, bit by bit, his father sweating the story out of him.

After the son had finished, the older man sat staring in front of him, piecing together the things that he knew and those that he suspected. What Lou had told Chiswick did not matter so much. It had been general, and it had dealt only with the attack on the Mexicans. But what he had admitted to the United States marshal would hang or put behind bars half a dozen of the Tail Holt outlaws. The questions Gray had put showed that he had plenty of information and was only seeking confirmation.

Sherm Howard knew he must act quickly. He had to destroy Gray before the marshal closed the net on him. Tomorrow night he was to go.

"Tell Morg and Mile High I want to see them in here," he ordered. "You go home and go to bed. Keep your mouth padlocked. Don't tell anybody else what you've told me. If you do, someone is liable to fill you full of lead."

Howard waved the two outlaws to chairs when they entered the room.

"We've got to get busy, boys," he told them. "Lou is right. This fellow Gray is dangerous. While he was at the L C, Lou picked up one or two bits of information. Gray knows a lot more than we think."

"Hmp! Do you expect me to comb the brush for him?" asked Norris.

The big man slumped in the chair and an oblique look at the killer.

"If you're looking for him you can be accommodated, Morg. Gray is in town."

"In Tail Holt?" snapped Norris.

"You mean was here," corrected Mile High. "Five or six hours ago. We bumped into him, Morg, in Curly's room."

"Bumped into him and didn't knock him off," jeered Norris.

"You're a fine bunch of warriors."

"Lou was still at the L C," Mile High retorted angrily. "We dassent touch the fellow, for fear Chiswick would hang Lou's hide up to dry. Gray had the gall to tell us so."

"So you said 'Adios, amigo,' and walked out on him," the other young man snarled. "If it had been me, I would sure have sent him to hell in smoke."

"Keep feeling that way, Morg," said Howard evenly. "Lou isn't at the L C any more. Far as I'm concerned it's an open season on Mr. Jeff Gray. We'll all be safer when the dirt is patted down on him in Boot Hill. I'm an old man myself, and peaceable, but if you young bucks are snorting for battle, I can give a guess where you'll find him."

Four eyes fastened to those of Howard.

"What are you going to do with me and Nelly?" she asked.

He looked at her, startled at the problem posed. "By jinks, Ruth, I hadn't thought of that. Can't leave you here alone. Once was too often. And I can't spare any men to guard you. We're short-handed now. Only five of us."

"Unless I'm 'way off he's spending the night with his friend Hank Ransom."

"How d'you know?"

"I don't know for sure. I'm reasonably certain. Maybe a little bird told me."

Howard was secretive by nature. It was his opinion that one made no mistake to live under his hat, as he expressed it. The habit had grown on him. When mystery was not necessary, he had an irritating way of hinting at one. There was no reason for not telling that a Mexican had brought him word he had seen Ransom catch and saddle a horse in Willard's pasture, none except that he liked to convey an impression of omniscience.

Norris swaggered to the door, followed by Mile High.

CHAPTER XIII

Lee Chiswick looked down at the body lying on the cot.

"Buck would have been alive now if I hadn't given him the job of guarding that scamp," he said sorrowfully.

"He'd been alive if he had obeyed orders," Dan Brand said. "You got to look at this right, Lee. We told him not to open the door unless he was sure who was there. I reckon he was roused from sleep and didn't stop to use his head."

Ruth stood behind her father, her gaze fixed on the still figure of the cowpuncher. "Who did it?" she asked in a low voice.

"That devil Morg Norris," answered Lee, his face set and rigid. "I recognized him when he rode up to the porch to take a crack at me."

The girl shuddered. The thought stabbed her that she was responsible for the death of Buck Conrad. If she hadn't interfered with the aim of Jeff Gray, he would have put an end to the killer.

"No use trying to follow him in the dark," her brother Frank said. "If we got close he'd take to the brush."

"They'll likely head for Tail Holt to get Lou Howard home," Brand guessed.

The eyes of Ruth grew wide with horror. The paralyzing conviction had come to her that Jeff Gray would not know until too late that the prisoner at the L C had escaped. He would carry on under the impression that he had a hostage in the camp of his friend that Sherman Howard dare not move to his destruction.

She cried out her fear to her father.

For a moment he stared at her, letting her warning sink into his mind. "You're right, girl," he answered. "I don't know how he's playing his hand, but we've got to let him know there's nothing to keep Sherm from him now."

Lee gave curt orders. "Get the boys together, Dan. See they're armed. Frank, you and Tony run up mounts. We'll take off with what we have. Round up the men at the line-camps, Bob, and bring them to Tail Holt. This looks like war, and we may need all the help we can get."

Five minutes later, Ruth walked into her father's office and found him examining guns and ammunition.

"What are you going to do with me and Nelly?" she asked.

He looked at her, startled at the problem posed. "By jinks, Ruth, I hadn't thought of that. Can't leave you here alone. Once was too often. And I can't spare any men to guard you. We're short-handed now. Only five of us."

To the People of Donley Co.

I want to thank the folks of this county who supported me in the election for sheriff. I will do everything in my power to merit that confidence. I appreciate beyond words your loyal support, and to the folks who voted against me. I want you to call on me any time I can be of service to you and I will give you the best I have in me. I hope in my humble way I can repay the folks of this county in some measure for confidence in me.

Respectfully,
Guy Pierce

To the Voters of Donley Co.

Little boys had rather win a marble game than to lose it. Older boys had rather win an election than to lose it, but after all I appreciate the friendship of every one in the county as much even now as I did when I was 6 years ago. I appreciate the treatment of those running against me and hope they feel the same toward me.

For the new judge who is to take the oath of office at the beginning of 1939, I hope his administration of office will be pleasing and profitable to the county as a whole. The past 6 years have been rather difficult financially, but I hope for him that conditions will be better.

So to every one who did and to every one who did not vote for me, I thank you for the friendship of all is just the same.

Very respectfully yours,
S. W. Lewis

Card of Thanks

Friends and citizens, I want to thank you personally one and all for your generous support in last Saturday's primary. The confidence you vested in me will never be violated. My heart's desire is to be of some useful service to humanity the rest of my life.

Your friend and neighbor, and hope to be your faithful servant,
J. C. (Coyte) Deberry

Thanks

Although I was not elected to the office of County Clerk, I sincerely appreciate the support given me by my friends.

My Sincere Appreciation

I very much appreciate the support and votes given me in the Democratic Primary Saturday. For the confidence thus expressed in me in my efforts to become your next Assessor-Collector, I am grateful and glad. I earnestly solicit your continued friendship and support in the runoff Primary Aug. 27.

J. W. (Jess) Adamsen

To the Voters of Donley Co.

In return for the fine support and overwhelming vote of confidence which I received at the July primary, I wish to extend my appreciation and thanks and to promise you that I will do my best to merit the trust and faith which you by your vote reposed in me.

E. Y. King
County Attorney, Donley County, Texas

To the Voters of Donley Co.

To have served you as I have and to have your approval, is the highest honor that can come to any man. It is with utmost sincerity that I attempt to express to the people of Donley County, my deepest gratitude, and a pledge to serve you faithfully and efficiently as your County Clerk.

W. G. Werd

To the Voters of Donley Co.

I want to take this means of thanking the people of Donley County for the support you gave me in the first Primary last Saturday. As your Tax Assessor and Collector for the past three and one half years, I have tried to render a service that would meet with the approval of the public in general. Whether I have done this or not, I will let you answer.

If you feel that I have done my duty as a county official, I earnestly solicit your support in the second Primary Aug. 27, and if re-elected, the only promise I have to make is to serve as I have in the past.

Joe Bownds, Tax Assessor and Collector
