Parent-Teacher Assn.

The local unit of Parent and Teachers met in their regular meeting Thursday evening Nov. 8 at 4. During the business session, the organization accepted the recommendations of the executive committee read by Mrs. W. C. Bridges. Among these were to sponsor Stuttering Sam program on Dec. 15 and to pay for the material used to prepare the Christmas program. This program will be an operetta presented by the children of the elementary grades on the evening of Dec. 22. There will be no admission charge.

The third grade earned the one dollar for October.

The program led by Miss Mary Lou Hawkins was a discussion of the vital topic, safety. She explained the need for adults and children's being safety conscious, and the efforts in our present curriculum to meet these needs. Then the leader called the roll, to which each member responded with a favorite safety slogan.

Mr. Sweet discussed the safety measures used in our schools to protect lives.

Mrs. W. H. Burden explained various safety precautions that should be carefully observed and brought to our attention that not too many of our homes are safe, as the highest percent of casualties is not on the highways but within our domiciles.

The public is cordially invited to attend the free program on the evening of Dec. 22.

The Publishing Committee

The carnival sponsored by the local unit of P. T. A. on last Friday night was a top notch enterprise in money raising since the depression hit us. The gross proceeds from the carnival were $238. The exact expense has not been totaled yet, however there still will be more profit than the gross figures of the last few years.

The members of the association wish to thank every lady who contributed pies and milk; the merchants for all their donations; the men who supervised the booths; Mr. Wilson for his pop corn popper and the donation of his time; and all people who gave time, aid and money to make this carnival a record breaker.

Hooker's still have prints 4 yds for 50c and 5 yds for 89c.

I am in the market for your cotton. See me before you sell.
J. W. Reese

Clarendon Coll. Reunion

The first reunion for Clarendon College ex students, commemorating the founding of the institution in 1898, will officially open Friday morning, November 11, when registrations open at the administration building at 9:30.

The program committee has endeavored to leave sufficient time for former classmates to visit and no further entertainment is listed until the football game between Clarendon High School and Vega High School at 2:30 Friday afternoon.

Friday night at 7:30, a buffet supper and open house will be held at the girls' old dormitory. All exes and their husbands and wives, and the present students of Clarendon Junior College are invited to attend.

Cotton Ginned

The three Hedley gins had ginned 1300 bales of cotton during the current season up to Wednesday noon.

Eastern Star

The Hedley O. E. S. celebrated their 34th anniversary at the home of Mrs. Masterson. The program included a list of the charter members and past worthy matrons given by the hostess Mrs. Watt spoke about the Eastern Star and what it should mean to each of the members. Mrs. Carter presented an honorary gift to Mrs. Masterson who was the only charter member present. 42 was played, and delicious refreshments of hot coffee and pie were served to Messrs. and Mesdames Watt, Chas. Everett, Eb Hooker, Carter, Rosco Land, J. B. Masterson, Mesdames Ruby Glass, Duncan, Mendenhall Fred Watt and Miss Betty Jo Carter.

25c towels for 18c at Hooker's.

Hallowe'en Party

A few ghosts and goblins gathered at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Richard Vallance and enjoyed themselves very much.

The house was beautifully decorated with black and orange. Punch was served as the guests arrived. Fortunes were told and the body of a dead man viewed by everyone. Several other games were played. The high light of the evening was the treasure hunt, with everyone joining in. The treasure was finally found after several dashes over town by the side of the M. System and it turned out to be a large sack full of candy and chewing gum.

Coffee and pumpkin pie were served to Mr. and Mrs. Osborn and daughter, Mrs. Sims. Mr. and Mrs. Crooks and son, and Benny and W. C. Dennis of Memphis, Messrs. and Mesdames Quisenberry, Jos. Thomas, Hooker, Tollett, Mrs. Masterson, Miss Ione Wall, Bill Edwards, Corky and Mary Alice Hunsucker and the host and hostess and daughter.

Baptist Homecoming

The First Baptist Church is to observe its annual Home Coming on Sunday, Nov. 27. All members are urged to be present, and all former members are invited.

Mrs. W. D. Franklin who recently underwent a tonsil operation at St. Anthony's Hospital in Amarillo, was able to return to her home Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. Jesse Beach announce the arrival on Friday Nov. 4 of a fine 9-1-4 lb baby boy. He has been named Robert Edgar.

Mr. and Mrs. Clois Vandergrift of Amarillo announce the arrival on Oct. 29 of a fine 10-1-4 lb baby boy named William Leon.

Mrs. Vandergrift was formerly Miss Laveta Watkins of Hedley.

How Women in Their 40's Can Attract Men

Here's good advice for a woman during her change (usually from 35 to 40), who fears she'll lose her appeal to men, who worries about hot flashes, loss of pep, dizzy spells, upset nerves and moody spells.
Get more fresh air, 8 hrs. sleep and if you need a good general system tonic take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, made especially for women. It helps Nature build up physical resistance, thus helps give more vitality, enjoy life and assist calming jittery nerves and disturbing symptoms that often accompany change of life. WELL WORTH TRYING!

Junior Class Springs a "Dark Horse" in Queen Contest

Last Friday night when the sponsor of the junior class turned in a wallet of $18.98, practically all of which was secured within the last hour of the voting, did the pendulum of the queen contest undergo a radical change, and the anticipated queens became lower ranks when the figure for the junior queen leaped to 3667. Princess Betty Hooker was a very close second with a vote of 3664.

This contest through the endeavors of workers in the class organizations and the general contributions of the school patrons and interested citizens reached a total of $143.99. 25% of this amount is to be kept by the class which participated in raising this amount.

It is the wish of the campaign manager, Mrs. Owen, to express her appreciation to every person who contributed in this effort to raise funds for the P. T. A. and to all parents who aided in making the coronation tableau a fitting climax to this record breaking enterprise.

High Point Salesmen in the Student Body

Today much is said about the importance of one's ability to sell his wares or ideas to another if he is successful in the endeavor of life work. Accepting this as true, in later life much will be heard from the present owls as we have some high point salesmen in our midst. Those collecting $5 or more during the queen contest were Mary Rains Bridges, Virginia Watt, Seretha Gunn,
Wanda Cavender, Doris Melvie
Everett, Juanita Harrison, Inez
Proctor, Faye Leach, Jane Ruth
Hall and Chaney Ruth Key.

Those deserving honorable mention are Jerry Hunt, Bruce Edwards and Bobbie Lamberson.
So many students collected over 100 votes that space does not permit naming them all.

Much credit is due to the students in the ward school. The writer is sorry that she does not have the names of their good salesman.

Neoma Thomas Crowned Queen

Neoma Thomas, nominee from the junior class as its candidate for the annual carnival queen was crowned by the king, Glenn Richerson, also a member of the junior class in a beautiful tableau coronation Friday at the close of the school carnival sponsored by the local P. T. A.

Preceding the entrance of the queen and train were the honorees from the other classes;
Duchess Geraldine Tollett escorted by Duke Herman Smith of the Sophomore class. Duchess Geraldine Riley escorted by Duke Bruce Edwards from the senior class. Duchess June Kirk patrick escorted by Duke Billy Bridges from the freshman class.
Princess Betty Hooker escorted by Prince Clifton Selby from the seventh grade.

Two little flower girls led the queen's train. The king escorted the queen to the throne and was followed by two little pages and the crown bearer. Before the throne the queen knelt while the king placed the crown upon her head. Afterward he led her to the throne. Then they began the recessional. Miss Cheek played softly during the entire tableau.

The queen wore a beautiful satin gown under her train of white trimmed in silver. The little pages, Peggy Jean Long and Wanda Lee Shaw were dressed in dainty white net. The crown bearer, Cecy Hunsacker, wore a military suit of red and blue satin, and carried the crown on a white satin pillow.
The little flower girls, Mary Sue Seales and Hilda Ruth Burban, wore floor length dresses of pink and blue net and carried flower baskets of the same colors. Duchess Geraldine Riley wore a fine pink crepe gown, Duchess Geraldine Tollett, yellow satin; Duchess June Kirkpatrick, aqua blue satin. The heralds, C. L. Hannicut and Hayden Baker wore red and white suits. The escorts wore handsomely groomed and wore dark suits.

Glee Club

The Hedley high school has within its student body a glee club. It has been several years since a glee club was formed in high school, but we thought we had enough organized boys and girls to form such an organization. We had about forty members at first, but as fall began to approach and old king cotton became white enough to gather, we lost a few of our members. We hope to gain them back in a few days. Mrs. Watkins and Mrs.
Owen are putting forth their efforts in the club to make it a success. The club meets only once a week on Friday from 8 to 4.

The members are Geraldine
Riley, Virginia Watt, Eddie Mae Land, Seretha Gunn, Eutha Davis, Loyce Mae Lowrey, Mar-

Star Dust

- ★ Consolation Prize

By Virginia Vale

IT LOOKS as if the skids had been put beneath another foreign star. Columbia has had Dolly Haas on the payroll for a year—at $1,250 a week, which maybe is a tidy little sum and nothing more to Columbia, but is a lot of money to a lot of us—and she was scheduled to play the lead in Lubitsch's "The Shop Around the Corner." She didn't make any other pictures; just waited for that one.

So—Lubitsch recently moved into the Selznick-International studio, ready to begin work on the picture, his first as head of his new unit in association with Myron Selznick. But he wanted, not Dolly Haas, but Janet Gaynor, for the lead. A disappointment for the lovely Viennese, no doubt. Incidentally, the demure Janet goes right on increasing in feminine charm all the time.

Janet Gaynor

Ronald Colman's marriage to Benita Hume rather startled a lot of people, who felt sure that he'd never marry again. It wasn't exactly the sort of ceremony that might have been expected, but Colman's knowledge of the publicity that attends any star's wedding no doubt prompted him in keeping his application for a license secret, and having a police judge perform the ceremony.

Ever since 1920, when he and his first wife separated, there have been rumors to the effect that the dashing hero of "If I Were King" was going to marry someone or other, although he has never been one of those young men about Hollywood who used rumored romances as a sure-fire way of garnering publicity. The beautiful Benita is just the wife one would select for him—best wishes to them both!

The fates seem to be agin' Ralph Bellamy, so far as owning a home is concerned. Last winter the California floods washed away his $50,000 home in North Hollywood. This summer the Connecticut hurricane washed away the house and much of the land on his farm in that state. Looks as if he'd have to buy him a trailer and settle down in that.

I like Kate Smith; I like her new radio program Thursday nights, which keeps her right up there with the topnotchers. But I do not like her when I am waked up at the crack of dawn to receive a pale blue turtle with "Greetings From Kate Smith" across its painted back, accompanied by a box of fish food.

Any time the movies need a young and handsome man to conduct an orchestra—and really conduct it, too—they can't do better than to raid the field of radio and take Macklin Marrow. He has been guest conductor of practically all the big symphony orchestras but the Boston and he is undeniably both young and handsome. What's more, it was accidentally discovered, the other day, that he screens well.

A friend of his got involved in making a commercial movie. She took a look at the young man sent by one of the model agencies, and they wouldn't do at all. Then she remembered him. Unlike many radio big-timers, he was delighted to do it, just for fun and to oblige a friend. With that picture serving as a screen test he should be able to sign his name to a Hollywood contract if he ever wants to.

Dorothy Thompson, our most famous woman news commentator, has also discovered something about herself as the camera sees her. She's on the air now on a program that includes Phil Spitalny's orchestra, and the other day a picture was taken of him leading the orchestra, with her at the microphone. It couldn't be sent out to the papers; the dignified Miss Thompson—or Mrs. Sinclair Lewis, just as you like—looked exactly like a pretty blues singer, instead of an important commentator on world affairs!

Harry Duncan of the "Radio Rubes" declares that he can tell which parts of the country are having bad weather by the amount of fan mail he gets from those sections. During New England's hurricane week the "Rubes" averaged two hundred letters a day, and he knew that the storm was really terrific when the postman brought four layer cakes. Thinks all New England must have been moored to their radios.

PULLETS DO BEST IF HOUSED EARLY

Ample Space, Cleanliness, Good Ration Necessary.

By H. H. Alp, Poultry Extension Specialist, University of Illinois.—WNU Service.

With higher egg prices in prospect, poultry producers will find it doubly important to see that pullets are in their winter quarters a week or 10 days before laying begins.

Failure to observe this fundamental rule has many times resulted in lowered egg production when pullets are confined to winter quarters.

If the poultry house is in good shape, if the pullets have ample space, at least four square feet a bird, if the house is kept clean, if there are ample feeders and if a good ration is provided, well-matured pullets can be confined to houses all the time and maintain good production.

In the event that the poultry house is not particularly satisfactory and where a good clean range with plenty of young tender green feed adjoins the house, pullets might well be allowed outside at least the latter part of each afternoon until snowy weather arrives. However, confinement following range privileges and during good egg production is likely to cause a drop in production. Once pullets become accustomed to being kept in they can be expected to lay well if properly fed.

All things considered, pullets will usually do best when they are kept separate from older hens. Many poultry houses can easily be divided into two rooms by using poultry netting as a partition.

Off-Flavor of the Milk

Not From Well-Fed Cows

If the milk from cows becomes off-flavor because they eat weeds, the remedy lies in providing feed other than that in the pasture, advises W. B. Combs, member of the St. Paul university farm dairy staff.

Experiments at University farm indicate that cows may not eat enough weeds to favor milk of other palatable feed is available. In working with well-fed cows, it was necessary to starve them to the weeds, says Combs. When pepper grass flavor occurs in milk or cream, the cow has likely consumed as much as 80 pounds of the weed daily, University dairymen believe, for it was difficult to obtain more than a mild off-flavor in milk or cream by feeding 60 pounds of pepper grass. This would indicate that when pepper grass flavor occurs in milk, the animals are receiving little more feed than the weed itself.

When cows eat such weeds as French weeds, wild onion and pepper grass, the milk they produce becomes almost worthless. This not only leads to a loss for the individual dairymen, but to the industry as a whole, since in products from weed-flavored milk and cream, the off-flavors are intensified.

Combs reports that if pasture is supplemented by a grain ration, and some hay or silage, cows are less likely to eat enough weeds to favor the milk.

Group Pullets by Ages

When pullets in the same stage of maturity are placed in the one pen they are much easier to handle, and produce better results than when birds of various stages of maturity are mixed. Because pullets all of the same age can be fed to better advantage, production will often climb to 70 or 80 per cent, because they are all laying at the same time. When production begins to drop the whole pen may be given the same change in management at the same time to bring the pullets back into laying. Thus a change to artificial lights, wet mash or any other phase of management may be made to better advantage.

Sore Shoulders on Horses

Clean cold water is very effective in washing sore shoulders on horses. When animals are troubled with tender skin, advises the Indiana Farmer's Guide, it is possible to bathe the troubled areas noon and evening with a mild astringent wash as follows: Lead acetate 4 ounces and zinc sulphate 3 ounces in 1 gallon of water. This solution should be shaken well before using. At first an attempt should be made not to work the horse too hard for a time. Frequent currying and brushing, clean collars, well-fitting collars and constant attention will do much to keep shoulders in working condition.

Laying House

One has a considerable investment in the pullets raised this year. And a little bug or two can upset the profit cart so easily, says Hoard's Dairymen. The laying house should be given a pretty thorough going-over inside. Use a lye solution or other good disinfectants. And don't neglect the feed hoppers and water utensils. They need a real cleaning up. Repair nests and put in new shavings or other nesting material. Shavings usually keep eggs cleaner than straw.

WHAT to EAT and WHY

C. Houston Goudiss Discusses Vitamins And Vision; Explains How and Why You Should Feed Your Eyes

By C. HOUSTON GOUDISS

FOR a number of years, scientists have stressed the importance of a well-balanced diet as a means of maintaining health, promoting growth and preventing disease. Recently, an even more significant development has occurred. It has been determined that a carefully chosen diet is absolutely necessary to preserve the general health and efficiency of every bodily function and that there is a close relationship between a good diet and good eyesight.

Your Food and Your Eyes

Many people regard their eyesight as one of the five senses which operate in some mysterious manner of their own! If they suffer from indigestion, they recognize that it is quite apt to be due to something they ate. If they are troubled with stomach, liver or kidney complaints, they quickly appreciate that prolonged dietary indiscretions may be at the root of the trouble. But it never occurs to them that what they eat may affect the eyes just as profoundly as it affects the internal organs.

It is not uncommon, during an attack of biliousness, to suffer a disturbance of the vision. But that disturbance usually disappears with the disorder that caused it. On the other hand, a deficient diet may produce eye troubles that have a far reaching effect upon health, efficiency, and even personal safety.

Night Blindness Explained

For example, it has been established that there is a definite relation between your vision and the vitamins in your diet; between your ability to drive a car safely at night, and the amount of vitamin A-containing foods that you consume.

To understand this astonishing fact, it is necessary to know that vision under faint illumination is accomplished by means of chemical changes in the pigment at the back of the eye. This is known as the "visual purple" of the retina and one of its important components is carotene, which is the active form of vitamin A.

The visual purple might be compared to the film in a camera. When you are in a dim light and the eyes are suddenly exposed to bright light, the visual purple is greatly reduced or bleached. This change results in a stimulation of the optic nerve and enables you to see clearly.

When an adequate supply of vitamin A is present in the body, the visual purple is rapidly regenerated. But when the supply is inadequate, a much longer period elapses before the corrective chemical change takes place. During the intervening time, many people find it difficult to see.

That is the condition known as "night blindness." And it accounts for the fact that a large proportion of serious motor accidents occur at night. Victims of this deficiency disease are first blinded by approaching headlights, then cannot quickly readjust themselves after the oncoming car has passed. Their ability to drive safely is subsequently impaired for they cannot clearly see the road ahead, and they may miss dangerous curves, pedestrians or other vehicles.

A Common Complaint

Unfortunately, the prevalence of night blindness is not generally recognized, though it is held that urban dwellers are more conscious of it than those living in the rural areas. This is borne out by the fact that ocular disorders from vitamin deficiency are less common in urban than in rural areas.

Children Often Victims

Since the discovery of the close connection between vitamin A and the ability to see in dim light, scientists have tested large numbers of school children to determine whether vitamin A was present in their diet in adequate amounts. It was revealed that from 26 to 79 per cent of the children examined had incipient night blindness.

The same deplorable conditions were found among adults. Mild to moderate degrees of vitamin A deficiency were present in from 10 to over 50 per cent of each group tested.

Yet here is the remarkable thing—in nearly every case, a diet rich in vitamin A for a few weeks restored the vision to normal.

A Significant Experiment

An even more striking example of the power of food to affect the eyesight is to be found in the report of an experiment in which breeding sows were given food in abundance but lacking vitamin A for 160 days before and for 30 days after breeding. In three litters of 35 pigs, all were blind. In another litter of 14 pigs, all were sightless. But under normal feeding, the same animals produced litters of pigs with normal eyes and vision. This experiment justifies the conclusion of one of our most noted food scientists, that the deficiency of essential food elements may so alter vital processes that even pre-natal changes may occur.

Cause of Other Eye Disorders

Night blindness is not the only eye disease caused by an improper diet. Xerophthalmia or conjunctivitis, characterized by excessive dryness of the eyeball, has long been known to be caused by a vitamin A deficiency. It is also well known that a liberal amount of this vitamin will prevent that serious disease and will even effect a cure where destruction of the cornea has not progressed too far.

This suggests the tremendous importance of including in the diet foods rich in vitamin A—cod and other fish-liver oils; milk and other dairy products; green leafy and yellow vegetables; and egg yolk.

Experiments with rats, whose dietary requirements are similar to those of man, show a close connection between cataract and a deficiency of another vitamin—vitamin G. This is found most abundantly in meat, milk, eggs, fruit and vegetables.

Were she concerned about protecting the blessing of good eyesight alone, that would be sufficient reason why every homemaker should plan meals that are rich in vitamins. But it is not only the eyes which are dependent upon vitamins, for they have many other functions to perform.

An improper diet may cause people to drive automobiles blindly at night so that they are dangerous not only to themselves and their passengers, but to everyone on the streets and roads. A deficient diet will also send them through life with half-efficient bodies, half-efficient brains, half-efficient senses.

That is why I urge you to learn everything you can about food, so that in planning meals you will not only feed your eyes, your husband's eyes and your children's eyes, but will take advantage of the wonderful discoveries of nutritional science to make every member of the family so efficient that they will enjoy the best of health each day of their lives.

Questions Answered

Mrs. G. C. L.—Yes, indeed, nutritionists do approve of a mid-afternoon snack for most school children. A glass of milk and a slice of buttered bread with jam or preserves; fruit juice and oatmeal cookies; or a chocolate milk shake and graham crackers will provide fresh energy for late afternoon play. Without the between-meal lunch, some children become so fatigued that nerve strain results. Take care, however, that the snack does not destroy the appetite for the evening meal.

HOW to SEW

By RUTH WYETH SPEARS

"DEAR Mrs. Spears:—I want to thank you for the clear diagram of how to hang draw curtains in your Book 1—SEWING for the Home Decorator. This was just what I have been needing as we have casement windows and different from those of your neighbors and lend no end of style to your rooms. Double curtain rods are needed to give the crossed effect and a valance board is added to the top of the window as shown. Here the valance is the sort that comes with ready made curtains and the top is folded back to make it double. In thumbtacking it to the valance board, do not stretch it—just "ease it on" so that it hangs well. If you feel that the windows need color, the valance and tie backs may be of plain glazed chintz that repeats the strongest color in your room color scheme. A contrasting valance may be either plain or gathered.

Buried City in Kentucky

An ancient buried city was discovered at Wickliffe, Ky. There are nine mounds, some of which have been excavated under the supervision of Col. Fain W. King and his wife. The burial mound contains 153 burials of three distinct types. The bodies were buried with pottery, tools, implements and jewelry.

In one mound the remains of 63 children were found with their dolls and other playthings.

SYNOPSIS

Barbara Sentry, seeking to sober up her escort, Johnnie Boyd, on the way home from a party, slaps him, and attracts the attention of a policeman, whom she knocks down. As he arrests him, Professor Brace of Harvard comes to the rescue and drives Barbara home. On the way they see Barbara's father driving from the direction of his office at 12:45, but when he gets home he tells his wife it is 12:15 and that he's been playing bridge at the club. Next day Sentry reports his office has been robbed and a Miss Wines, former temporary employee, killed. The evening papers luridly confirm the story, and Sentry takes it hard. Mary, elder daughter, in love with Neil Ray, young interne at the hospital where she works, goes off to dinner at Gus Loran's, Sentry's partner, with Mrs. Loran's brother, Jimmy Endle. Mr. and Mrs. Sentry call on old Mrs. Sentry, and Barbara, alone, receives Dan Fisher, reporter, who advises her not to talk. Phil Sentry, son at Yale, is disturbed at the possible implications and suspicion of Miss Wines' absence from her rooms for three days during August. He goes home to help Sentry in arrested and booked for murder. Dan Fisher explains the evidence against him—that the robbery was a fake, the safe opened by one who knew the combination, changed since Miss Wines' employment there—that a back door key, a duplicate of Sentry's, was found in the girl's purse, and that Sentry, too, had been away those three days in August. Brace calls, and backs up Barbara in her denial that Sentry could have done it, because of the discrepancy of time between the slaying and their seeing Sentry on the road. Phil, showing the police over the house, finds his strong box open and his gun, which only his father knew of, gone. Meanwhile, the police find the stolen money burned in the furnace. Mrs. Sentry sees her husband, who swears his innocence, and tells her he had known of the robbery and murder the night before, but failed to call the police, and came home at 12:30. Mary quarrels with Neil Ray.

CHAPTER V—Continued

"So we might as well make friends with the other kind. Marry them!" Mary repeated defiantly. "Yes, marry them!" Mrs. Sentry stood up quickly; but Mary cried: "Don't! Don't say anything! I thought you might wish me luck, but you only stare!"

Linda urged, "But Mary, your real friends—"

Mary laughed, almost tolerantly. "You're so young, Linda. Maybe you love Phil. And maybe you don't feel as Neil did. Oh, I don't blame him! He couldn't marry a murderer's daughter—"

Mrs. Sentry whispered something, but Mary said in reckless cruelty: "Oh, he did it, mother! You'll know, sooner or later. Coming back from Southampton last August, I met Isabel Hedges in New York. You don't know her, but she knew father by sight, and she told me she had seen you and him at a hotel in New Jersey; kept exclaiming about how young you looked! Trying to get a rise out of me, but I—"

Mrs. Sentry's ears were ringing as though from a physical blow, so that for a moment she heard nothing. Then Mary's words penetrated her consciousness again.

"Maybe he'll wriggle out of it! The police may not find out about that. But I won't be made to testify about it. I'm going away!"

Mrs. Sentry did not protest. She only murmured, "Where?"

"Yachting in the Caribbean!"

Mary added contemptuously, "They can't serve a summons on me there!"

"Yachting?"

"Jimmy Endle's taking me."

"Mr. Endle?"

Mary laughed. "Don't be a parrot! And don't sound so shocked, mother. It's perfectly respectable. We're sailing at midnight. Jimmy's waiting for me outside; and his captain will marry us as soon as we're at sea."

No one spoke. She added, in shaken tones suddenly pitiful, "But—I wanted you to know where I'd go."

Mrs. Sentry, at last, spoke steadily enough. "You're a grown woman, Mary," she said. "You must do as you decide." She rose. "Try to be happy, dear," she said, and kissed her daughter. "Now may I help you pack?" she asked.

"I'm not taking anything, just going as I am," the girl said. She added, almost appealingly, "Jimmy's outside, mother."

"I'm sorry, Mary. I—can't see him."

Mary nodded in curt defiance. "All right. Then that's all Good-bye!" She went out into the hall. They heard the front door close. Tires rolled away.

When Mary was gone, Mrs. Sentry looked at Phil with bleak eyes, and at Linda; she turned then, without speaking, to face the hearth where logs were blazing. Phil started toward her, but Linda touched his arm, caught his eye, shook her head. Then they heard someone come softly down the stairs; Barbara, a woolly bathrobe warm and soft over her night garments. She stood in the doorway, her eyes clouded as though she had been asleep; and after a moment she asked:

"Who was that? I thought it was Mary? Where is she?"

Phil saw his mother's shoulders move in a long shudder, as a cold dog shivers to keep warm; she hesitated, spoke then to her son.

"Good night, Phil," she said. "Linda—Good night!" She turned to her daughter. "Barbara, come upstairs. I'll tell you."

Barbara's eyes were wide with shapeless fears; but she did not speak. Only she put her arm around her mother's waist, half-supported her as they moved away.

Phil and Linda were left alone. After a moment he asked hoarsely, "Want to go home?"

She shook her head, her eyes deep. "Not yet. Come, Phil, sit down."

He obeyed her, sat leaning forward, his elbows on his knees, staring at the fire. After a while he said bitterly, "Well, Mary's gone off the deep end! Linda did not speak. "Maybe she's the sensible one," he reflected, half despairing. "Maybe she's right. But—I didn't think she was a quitter!"

"You mustn't blame her," Linda urged. "Mary has always—taken things hard, Phil. She loved Neil, had a right to count on him; so when he failed her—"

"He—had to, Linda. What else could he do? He couldn't afford to be mixed up in a mess like this. It would have followed him everywhere."

"The things we're afraid of are

I broke it open myself. You know how you do lie, when you're scared."

"Of course."

He went on: "Then they found some ashes in the furnace, where some money had been burned. They could tell it was money. They think father brought it home that night, to make the thing at the office look like burglars, and burned it." He looked at her miserably. "And now—this thing Mary hinted. That was August, and Miss Wines was away in August! He did it, Linda!"

"Phil, you're giving up too easily!"

"Gosh," he protested miserably, "how can I help it? He took her to New Jersey; and he had a key to the office made and gave it to this girl. Probably he used to meet her there—"

She urged: "But Phil, Mary may be wrong! Or the girl who told her may be wrong! And as for the rest of it? Well, suppose someone else planned to kill her and wanted to make it look as though your father did it. They could have stolen the gun, and burned some money in the job on your hands. Your mother has always been so proud. This is terrible for her, even when she's sure that he's innocent! If she ever thought he wasn't—well, you can see, you have to take care of her. And of Barbara too, Phil. Barbara's an awfully sweet girl. You mustn't ever let her believe he did it. Phil, it would just kill her."

"I see what you mean. I guess it's up to me, all right."

"You'll have to be awfully good to your mother, Phil." And she said: "The thing you'll all have to do is not think about yourselves very much. Think about each other. You see, Mary just thought about herself, and how unhappy she was, and how her life was wrecked; and she didn't stop to think about the rest of you, and that you needed her."

He nodded soberly, and Linda went on: "At least, that's the way it looks to me, Phil. You've all got to have something to hold on to, and the best thing for you to do is to just set your teeth into the job of taking care of your mother and Barbara." She suggested: "Maybe you can make your mother think you

HOWARD HUGHES must get awfully tired of hearing that he's going to marry first one limelighted young woman and then another. Unless he's grown so accustomed to it that he just doesn't pay any attention any more.

The gossip linking his name to Katharine Hepburn's had barely died down before the rumor-mongers were insisting that Bette Davis would become his wife as soon as she had divorced her husband. He made no comment. Bette died that she and "Phil" were going to get a divorce, as long as she could; she insisted that she was merely spending a vacation in Nevada, instead of establishing a residence for legal reasons.

The odds have been against marriage for a long time, ever since she began her speedy climb up the ladder to fame. She has done everything that she possibly could to make it a success; it's not her fault that it failed. But Hollywood has a way of being awfully hard on marriages in which one person is far more successful than the other.

"Nobody outside this town knows how tough such a marriage can be, here," a star once told me. "Stars associate with stars, big people with other big ones. You have to do it! I was a star and my husband was a not very successful leading man, and in spite of everything we could do, we almost had to separate before he got a lucky break and was on top too."

It's going to seem awfully funny to have Buck Jones turning into a straight dramatic star. But that's what he is going to do. He has finished "Law of the Texan," which he says is his final western, and after a short vacation he will begin working in Paramount's "Vice Squad." We take this opportunity of showing Buck in a ten-gallon top-piece for perhaps the last time.

If you believe—along with a lot of other people—that the movies are still in their infancy, pause and consider the fact that recently, in New York, a plaque was unveiled on the wall of the building now standing on the site where the first theatrical motion picture was screened. The machine that made that amazing possible was Thomas Edison's Vitascope, and his daughter, Miss Joan E. Sloan, unveiled the plaque.

Another fact that brings home the realization that the movies have been in existence for quite some time is the presence, in the cast of RKO's "Gunga Din," of a young woman named Fay McKenzie. She has had experience in stock—with her parents' troupe—and has appeared with various Los Angeles theatrical companies, but has yet to make her name in pictures. But she made her screen debut when she was ten months old—in the role of Gloria Swanson's daughter!

If you are interested in writing for the radio you'd better make a list of the things that just must be done in the script of the average serial. Only the older men can smoke—preferably a pipe or a cigar; no women can smoke. No one, not even the villain, can touch liquor.

As a radio veteran Lanny Ross is true to the air waves, but his summer as a theatrical star almost made him wish that he'd gone to the stage long ago instead of becoming a singer. He appeared at a number of summer theaters, and at the one in Orono, Maine, a farmer was so pleased with Lanny's work in "Petticoat Fever" that he came backstage afterward and promised Lanny a free milk for year.

Have you heard the new singing with Horace Heidt's band, Jean Finney? When the band was playing Cedar Rapids, Iowa, she walked into town from the farm where she worked and asked for an audition. Heidt was skeptical, but let her sing. And so she got the job.

ODDS AND ENDS . . . After his prompt appearance on "Vex Fox" when he revealed the fact that he has a delightful singing voice, Governor Chandler of Kentucky could easily have become a radio star if he'd wanted to. . . "Drums" is a swell picture—it justifies that claim that "Motion pictures are your best entertainment" . . . M. Rice Costello, father of Dolores Costello, Barrymore and screen star in the past days of the movies, is working now before the camera, as a bit player. Tommy Lane, who's just eleven, is out over all competition for that singing spot on Joe Penner's program.

never so bad when they really happen," she said. "He's dodging shadows."

"He was sensible!"

"I don't call it that." Phil said gently: "I know. A woman wouldn't look at it the way a man does. Women lose their heads."

"And their hearts, Phil."

"You can't argue about it, I suppose."

She smiled a little. "Women can always find reasons to justify doing what they really want to do. But I don't think reasons matter so much as wanting."

Phil looked at her, curiously. "You're pretty grown up in some ways, Linda. Lots older than I am, in the way you look at things."

"Women are always older than men."

He pouted fist into palm with a slow vehemence, curiously eloquent; he muttered, "Gosh, Linda, what are we going to do?"

"Just—live. Just go on living." He whispered pitifully: "Poor Mary. Marrying Jimmy Endle. He's rotten, isn't he? And he must be forty. Gosh, why did she do it?"

Linda did not answer. He said miserably: "I thought father was pretty grand, Linda. Of course he and I never saw very much of each other." He grinned ruefully. "But I've grown up thinking of us, of our family, of myself, as settled and secure. I felt as though I could play around for a while all right, because when I was ready I could always step into a place that was waiting for me." He looked at Linda, hopelessly.

She shivered, folded her arms across her bosom as though she were cold. "It just tears me in two, Phil, to see you so hurt!"

He said: "It doesn't really hurt, somehow. I don't realize it yet, I suppose. I wonder if I ever will. It sort of seems as though we were all dreaming or something."

And he said, as though to speak were somehow comforting: "Mary's right. Father—did it, you know. I've known that since the day they were known to search the house. Inspector Irons went up to my room, and he found this lock box under my couch. A fellow out West gave me an old revolver once, a sort of relic. It hadn't any cartridges in it, but I kept it hidden in that box, locked away, because mother hates guns. But someone had broken the box open and the gun was gone; and father was the only one who knew where it was. That scared me, so I told the Inspector that I kept reels and things in the box, told him furnace, and thrown the gun in the river back of the garage—"

He echoed, startled: "In the river? Was the gun in the river? I saw them dragging for something!"

"Yes," she admitted. "The papers say they found it there!" He shivered, and she insisted again, "But Phil, someone else might have done all those things."

"Who?"

"Why—anyone! Oscar, or Eli, or some man that knew the girl, or even Mr. Loran."

"Shucks, Linda, you're joking!"

"No, I'm not!"

He looked at her squarely. "Honest, cross your heart, don't you think father did it?"

She tried to speak, said then honestly: "I suppose I do, Phil. I suppose I was just trying to find some way to—comfort you. But Phil, it isn't for us to decide, anyway." And she urged: "And we can't give up. You see, Phil, we're pretty young. You know the way babies are. The least little thing just looks awfully black to them, and they scream as if they were heart-broken. We're sort of like that, probably. Things will straighten out somehow."

"Gosh, I don't see how!"

"And besides, Phil, you've got a need her terribly, and make her see that Barbara does too. That will help her."

Phil said, "Barbara's been great, all along, making jokes and being funny and trying to make us laugh, sort of like a puppy putting on an act, trying to get his master to play." He asked: "But what's going to happen now, Linda? What can we do to help father?"

"I don't exactly know," Linda confessed. "Except of course you'll get a lawyer for him, and do whatever the lawyer says."

His eyes widened with sudden panic. "Linda, can they make me a witness against him, about the gun, things like that?"

"I suppose they can."

"I won't do it!" he cried passionately. "None of us will."

"I feel so darned ignorant," she said helplessly. "I wish I knew more about it. Mr. Loran and Mr. Hare will help you, though."

He nodded. "I don't know how much the police know," he reflected. His eyes clouded. "They didn't know about the money in the furnace till after they arrested him, nor about the gun. But they must have known something!"

South Is Treasury for U. S. Chemists; Raw Material Wealth Cited in Survey

Physical frontiers are gone, but chemical frontiers remain to challenge the United States, Dr. Frank C. Whitmore, dean of the school of Chemistry and physics at the Pennsylvania State college, believes, writes a State College (Pa.) United Press correspondent.

"The South will be the chemical frontier of the country for the next quarter century, at least," he said after a tour through the southern states to visit sections of the American Chemical Society.

Its chemical raw materials, especially the new ones such as cellulose, starch and vegetable oils, have hardly been touched. They are ready for the chemical pioneers who are going south and the additional ones trained in southern institutions.

Physical frontiers are gone, but chemical frontiers remain to challenge the United States.

"Starch also exists in limitless quantities from fast-growing crops such as sweet potatoes," Dr. Whitmore continued. "The Department of Agriculture has already placed this preparation of starch on a semi-commercial basis."

"Great varieties of vegetable oils, such as cottonseed oil, peanut oil and tung oil, exist in limitless supplies. The tung groves are reaching the bearing stage in many parts of the South. A nation which is growing must constantly have new frontiers. Physical frontiers are gone, but chemical frontiers remain to challenge the United States."

Strength of Hair
Dark hair is much stronger than light hair. Experiments show that a single dark hair could suspend a weight of four ounces. Fair hair will give way at weights varying according to the tint. Golden hair will support nothing more than two ounces, brown hair will hold up three, and dark brown hair an extra half-ounce.

Armistice Day

Just twenty years ago today the greatest war in the history of the world came to a close. Today our community joins the entire nation in paying tribute to the boys who fought and suffered and died for an ideal.

With the Old World trembling at the commands of dictators, all eyes are turned toward Free America, a land founded upon the blood of her sons who gave their lives for democracy. May we never forget their sacrifice.

A Telephone

Is no longer a luxury - - - it is a necessity. For calling your grocer, butcher or doctor it is indispensable. And remember one minute's emergency might pay a year's telephone bill.

Hallowe'en Party

A group of seniors and juniors gathered in the home of Mr. and Mrs. Chas. Rains last Monday evening Oct. 31, with Mary Rains Bridges as honoree. The guests dressed as ghosts, witches, gypsies, negroes, mexicans, clowns, etc., to join in the fun of the season.

The house was decorated with grinning jack o lanterns, apples black cats, and autumn leaves. On the dining room table was a large centerpiece of fruits and nuts, but did it stay large seniors.

Games of different kinds were played and the hostess had every one present to go through the "Hall of Horror". In this hall we felt the dead man's heart eye balls, brains and bones. While we were so interested in the dead man an electric needle showed us where to go next. When this needle punched us, we thought the dead man as good as had us.

The hostess served a plate which was decorated with an orange cut as a jack o lantern, chicken salad, wafers, olives and hot chocolate.

Those reporting a gay time were Virginia Watt, Mary Rains Bridges, Lamar Adamsen, Geraldine Riley, Bruce Edwards, Jonmerie Pickett, Glenn Richer Eutha Davis, Doyle Hunnicutt, Mrs. Owen, Mr. Gregg, Mr. and Mrs. Harmon, Sarah Ann Rains and the host and hostess.

The 42 Club

The 42 club met with Mr. and Mrs. Bill Jones Nov. 3. Those present were Messrs. and Mesdames Masterson, Vallance Tollett, Whitfield, Mann, Hooker and Jones. Guests were Mrs. J. W. Webb of Arlington and Hugh Brown of Clarendon.

The next meeting will be at the home of Mr. and Mrs. R. E. Mann Thursday Nov. 7.

Mr. and Mrs. M. G. Whitfield spent last Sunday in Clarendon.

Dr. and Mrs. J. C. Coffey visited friends in Benjamin Friday.

Mrs. Leo Holland and children spent the week end in Clarendon.

Jack Battle of N M M I at Roswell visited in the J. E. Masterson home last week end.

Mrs. Richmond Bowlin attended the meeting of the Birthday Club at Naylor Thursday.

Mrs. Elvia Davenport and daughter Miss Margaret of Childress spent the past week end in Hedley.

Mrs. J. T. Mace was surprised by a group of friends with a dinner in her honor Tuesday, the occasion being her 61st birthday.

Those taking part in the surprise were Mesdames Newman, J. A. Moreman, Everett, Luttrell, Sanders Hickey, Mendenhall, J. L. Holland and Coffey.
