Squalus Disaster Again Focuses Attention On Submarine's Value as Weapon of War

UNITED STATES—The submarine Squalus, sister ship of the ill-fated Scorpion. The U. S. has 106 U-boats, including 19 under construction as of November 15. Sixty-seven of these are over-age.

BRITAIN—The Sunfish pictured aground at Isle of Wight after dragging her anchors. Britain has 60 U-boats, plus 13 under construction. Only 14 of these are listed as over-age.

ITALY—Photo shows Mussolini's submarines going through a remarkable series of formations during maneuvers. The No. 1 has power, 83 of Italy's 90 boats are under age and she is building 39 more.

FRANCE—The new Ceres is launched at Rouen. Third among world submarine powers, France has 76 craft, all under age. In addition she has approximately 20 new U-boats under construction.

GERMANY—Nazi sub at rest. All of Germany's 43 craft are under age and 23 more were being built as of last November 15. Since then the naval limitations treaty with Britain has been broken.

JAPAN—The first class submarine I-55, pride of a small but efficient U-boat fleet. Of 57 craft, 41 are under age. In addition the Nipponese have three boats under construction.

Anti-Sub Devices Are Perfected But U-Boats Also Gain New Power; Italy Has Biggest Fleet.

By WALTER P. SHEPPARD

Battleships parade the might of nations. Submarines are hidden might, forgotten in peacetime as they slink through the deep waters. Which is the reason why the Squalus disaster off Portsmouth, N. H., created such interest. Between wars men forget how submarines raise havoc with shipping, how one tiny U-boat can conceivably smash a mighty fleet.

But navies do not forget, and the submarine which came very close to winning the World War for Germany will be an equally important factor in the next conflict. True, anti-sub devices have been perfected, but so have the submarines, so that the relative importance of these weapons is about the same.

True to tradition, great maritime nations like Japan, the United States and Great Britain have placed little defensive emphasis on U-boats in the years since Versailles, because sea-faring nations seldom fight each other. The submarine is primarily an offensive craft for use against powers which control the sea. That is why Germany used them so effectively last time, and why both Germany and Italy are placing such confidence in them for the new war.

Italy Leads the Way.
Last November 15 a report by the United States navy department revealed that Italy is the world's No. 1 submarine power, boasting 129 such vessels when her current building program is completed. Of these, 39 were under construction last November and 83 were under way, leaving only 7 obsolete.

Germany's submarine fleet, while one of the world's smallest, is magnificently efficient. Every one of her 43 working craft last November 15 were under age, and 19 new U-boats were under construction. Since Reichsfuehrer Hitler denounced the British-German naval pact in April, the Nazis are expected to push full steam ahead of their submarine program.

This is an entirely fitting offensive measure, because Germany knows her probable enemy in the next war would be Great Britain. Her colonies herself, self-sufficient and with no shipping to protect, the Reich can devote all her machine work to preying on boats of her enemies.

Only 20 U. S. Subs Under Age.
America ranks near the bottom of the scale as a world submarine power, though numerically she is second. As of last November 15, only 20 of her subs were under age, fewer than any of the other five great powers. When all her boats are completed, however, and all over-age craft are counted in, this nation has 106 submarines. Since the Squalus disaster was the first American U-boat mishap in 12 years, during which other nations have suffered repeated accidents, the United States fleet is apparently in pretty fair shape.

Veteran submarine fighters who recall World War experiences wonder at the possibilities of these weapons, once known as "torpedogars." One of these men, Capt.

They can—as the German U-boats did—patrol off naval bases and harbors to keep the high command informed on ship movements. Their information probably led to the sinking of commercial and war craft.

There's little chance of escaping a torpedo. This weapon, first perfected in 1865 by an English naval officer, can travel several thousand yards, carry hundreds of pounds of explosives and can be set on any course at any depth. It will go straight or along a circular path and is sure to spell disaster if it strikes a ship below the water line.

Combat them? Navies have perfected detectors which sometimes spot a submarine engine at close range, but even so the craft may be defenseless against this sausage-shaped phenomenon that can dive and zigzag at will. Patrol boats and destroyers sometimes corner them, however, and in shallow water subs can be sunk with depth bombs or cornered with nets and mines.

Sometimes, as when a phantom submarine attacked a British destroyer in the Mediterranean, these playful fellows pretend they're "dead" and confound the enemy. After a few depth bombs are dropped an oil slick and pieces of debris appear on the surface as evidence that the U-boat is no more. While the destroyer steams proudly away the U-boat captain chuckles to himself, for all he did was shoot out a lot of loose junk in a torpedo tube. (Released by Western Newspaper Union.)

Dice Thrown for Bibles At St. Ives, England

Dice were thrown for Bibles at St. Ives, England, when six children received a Testament each. The ceremony was in accordance with the will of Rev. Robert Wilde, of Oundle, made 200 years ago. He left $250 to St. Ives and stipulated that the interest be used in the purchase of Bibles, to be disposed of by the minister and church wards to the children of the parish.

U. S. Disguises Testing Device To Spy on Automobile Drivers

A black rubber tube laid across the highway and connected at either end with a simple instrument staked at the side of the road forms the basis for analysis of how the motor public behaves in its use of the highways. This special study is being made by the public roads bureau.

The tube is inconspicuous and looks much like an expansion joint—one of its good features. Most motorists will not see the tube and will not be aware of making a record. Other devices, such as checking by observers, or by motion-picture records, are less useful because they are likely to make drivers self-conscious and cause them to slow down for fear of a speed trap. A record of natural driving on a representative stretch of road is what is wanted.

The tubes are placed at 50-foot intervals on the stretch of road under study—a half mile, perhaps. When an automobile crosses a tube, a wave or puff of air is forced into the roadside instrument and moves a diaphragm which causes an electrical contact. The tubes are connected at the middle of the road so that a vehicle passing on one side of the road does not register on the instrument on the other side.

Wires run to a recording apparatus in which a strip of paper unrolls under a set of pens. Each passing car leaves a pair of pen strokes—front and rear wheels. Knowing the spacing of the tubes and the speed of the moving paper it is easy to calculate the speed of any car.

The device is particularly useful in studying the passing of slow vehicles by faster ones. On a two-lane highway the pen-marked strip reveals the faster car overtaking the slower; then swinging across the center and registering on both lanes; then running in the left lane, and finally swinging back to the right. Distances and speeds can be calculated exactly, and by tabulating many passings it is possible to compute, for example, how long a straightaway stretch should be.

A single tube with the roadside instruments connected to an electric counter makes a convenient and inexpensive device for registering the number of vehicles using a road.

President Restates All New Deal Theories and Convictions

Retail Federation Speech Seen as His Political Philosophy
For 1940 Campaign; Insists on Continued Spending;
Would Hold Down Business Profits.

By WILLIAM BRUCKART
WNU Service, National Press Bldg., Washington, D. C.

WASHINGTON.—As the days go by, it appears more and more that President Roosevelt's speech before the American Retail Federation here, May 22, amounts to a declaration of greatest political importance. It may be, indeed, that the Chief Executive's pronouncements before the retail merchants that night will eventuate as the cornerstone of his political philosophy for the campaign of 1940.

In Mr. Roosevelt's speech before the retail businessmen, that he restated virtually all of the New Deal theories and convictions. That was important. But more important was the emphasis with which he offered, in new language, the general assertion that there will be no backtracking. More important to the country, as a whole, was his determined adherence to the principle of virtually unlimited government spending, because his renewed insistence in that direction came at a time when there is considerable fear that the country faces further inflation of its currency.

There seems to be quite a general agreement that the retail speech should be examined in the light of 1940. As far as I can learn, that is the view taken by New Dealers, by old line Democrats, who are antagonistic to spending policies of the last five years, and by cautious Republican observers who are anxiously looking for signs indicating whether Mr. Roosevelt, himself, will seek a third term in the office of President. While the views of the three segments converge, their reasons differ. The New Dealers who want Mr. Roosevelt to run for a third term desire to consider the speech as a preliminary statement, a charting of the future course; the old line Democrats who desire to get the party back in Democratic hands, rather than in the hands of the radical wing, entertain fears which force consideration of 1940, and the Republicans secretly are hoping that Mr. Roosevelt will try to break the third term precedent.

Speech Sought to Court Favor With Retailers

There is another reason, apparent to some observers, why the speech that sought to court favor with the retail dealers should be thought of in terms of a year hence. It will be remembered that the annual meeting of the Chamber of Commerce of the United States was held here only two weeks in advance of the speech which is the subject of so much discussion. Now, I never have thought that the Chamber of Commerce represents very much of the country's sentiment. It is made up, of course, of business interests that are representative, but as a matter of cold fact it is dominated and managed and directed by the really big business of the nation. Thus, it speaks the big business viewpoint to the extreme, and likewise in these columns before that the Chamber of Commerce usually can kill off projected legislation by the simple expedient of supporting it.

But the recent chamber meeting took no notice of Mr. Roosevelt beyond damning his program and policies lock, stock and barrel. The President, it seems, took advantage of the opportunity to tell the retailers about his innermost thoughts as an offset to the vials of poison scattered about by the big business representatives. He reasserted his views on every point to which the chamber had taken opposition and about which there had been fighting speeches made. I suppose if one's sense of humor could be sufficiently detached from the gravity of the situation, they could describe the circumstance as similar to two small boys who were sticking out their tongues at each other as proof of their anger.

A third factor might be brought into the picture. You will recall that it was only a week or so prior to Mr. Roosevelt's speech that he spent an afternoon in conference with some of the legislative leaders. Among them was Senator Pat Harrison, the old-line Mississippi Democrat, who occupies the post of chairman of the powerful senate committee which handles tax legislation in the senate. Included in the conference also was Chairman Doughton, of the house committee on ways and means, also a tax committee.

Harrison Tells President Tax Revision Is Necessary

No further review of that conference is necessary than to relate how Mr. Harrison told the President there must be tax revision in order to lift and readjust some of the unfair taxes on business, and he said there would be tax legislation in this session of congress. Chairman Doughton appeared to join in rather timidly, but I believe it is not going to be important whether the Doughton heart is with Harrison or with Roosevelt. The fighting Pat Harrison is going to obtain some tax legislation if it is possible, and Mr. Roosevelt will have an opportunity to veto the bill if he likes.

So, in his speech, Mr. Roosevelt took a sideswipe at the proponents of tax changes. Their reasons for demanding tax revision, you see, are based upon a belief that business will not go ahead until government gives more consideration to the burden that is on business. Senator Harrison, along with many other old line Democrats, feels that business can not re-employ workers as long as taxes are unevenly distributed. That is to say, the Mississippi senator is seeking ways by which business will take on workers and the federal treasury will be free from the enormous appropriations for relief spending.

With reference to the Harrison position, however, it should be said here that congress has shown a dozen yellow streaks about cutting down in spending. It started out talking economy in a big way. It acted, however, by way of voting money out of the treasury wherever a new method for spending it was proposed. The individual representative and senator, excepting those boldly aligned with Senator Harrison, displayed the usual cowardice of a politician more interested in holding his ten-thousand dollar job than in serving his country.

Determined Business Profits Must Be Held to Minimum

When Mr. Roosevelt said in his speech, therefore, that he would demand only that the present distribution of tax levies and rates should remain the same, he was answering Senator Harrison's group. In other words, the President has budged from the position and viewpoint he long has held only to the extent that he now says he will not quibble about details; he wants corporations to bear as much tax as heretofore and he will insist upon it. He is determined that business profits must be held to the minimum and there are indications that he will carry such a fight "to the country."

Regardless of the tax question and the over regulation to which so many government agencies are addicted in dealing with business, Mr. Roosevelt expressed his whole thought in one sentence:

"You can not expect this administration to alter the principles and the objectives for which we have struggled the last six years."

That declaration encompasses in one sentence germs of great trouble for the Democratic party. Some observers here described it as stubborn statement. It is known, of course, that Mr. Roosevelt can be positively bull-headed in his determination when he wishes. Because of this trait, therefore, some of the old line Democrats again are fearful of a wide open split in the party.

The President laid the greatest stress on federal spending, and he made the rather startling statement that there can be no balanced budget either this year or next. Which can mean only that there must be more borrowing by the government which now is paying an annual interest charge of more than $1,000,000,000 on the public debt that is well over $40,000,000,000. In defense of this condition—there has been an increase of more than $20,000,000,000 since Mr. Roosevelt took office—the President asserted there should be no particular concern about the debt or the interest. What of it, he said, in effect; if there is that interest to be paid by our children, it will be paid to our children.

Smacks Much of Old Argument for Pump Priming

In pooh-poohing the public debt and the great interest charge to be met every year, Mr. Roosevelt said the government had to continue spending and creating debt because, otherwise, there would be no business for the retailers or any other type of commercial endeavor. It smacked very much of the old argument for pump priming and certainly bore out many reports that Marriner S. Eccles, head of the federal reserve banking system, has great influence with the President, who used to get his advice on financial matters from Secretary Morgenthau, of the treasury. Mr. Eccles may be regarded, I believe, as one of the most visionary of all of the inner circle of New Dealers. In any event, he has preached spending, spending and more spending by the government as the means of lifting the country out of the depression by its own bootstraps.

It is on this public debt matter that attention is likely to center more earnestly later on. The debt has been growing and growing and the general condition of the country may be said fairly to have advanced not one bit in the last several years. (Released by Western Newspaper Union.)

CHOCOLATE SILVER CAKE
See Recipe Below.

Household News
by Eleanor Howe

Of Course You Can Bake

"I didn't have good luck with my cake baking today." You and I have both heard homemakers say just that—reason enough perhaps for our getting right down to cases today and finding out just what it is that makes for good luck—or bad luck—as the case may be in this cake baking business.

Of course it really isn't a case of luck at all, for the right proportions of the right ingredients combined in the right way and baked at the right oven temperature eliminate luck entirely and assure baking success not sometimes but always.

Information Please.

Of course you own a measuring cup but have you looked at it critically to see whether or not it has a rim which extends above the accurate cup measure? If it has a rim, do you measure the ingredients just to this point accurately, or clear to the top inaccurately?

Do you always sift the flour once just before measuring? Do you use a fine granulated sugar when making cakes? There is a difference, you know.

Do you cream the shortening and mix the cake with a beating motion, not a stirring motion? Do you level off the teaspoon measures of baking powder, salt or soda with a knife so as to be sure they, too, are accurate?

Do you start the oven 10 to 15 minutes in advance so it will be uniformly hot before the cake is placed in it? Do you use a small, inexpensive oven thermometer for securing accurate oven temperatures if your range has no oven heat-control?

These are some of the chief factors, careful attention to which helps to spell success in cake baking. Try them out in the group of favorite cake recipes given below. I think you will like them and the recipes too.

Right Colors for Curtains and Slipcovers.

"DEAR MRS. SPEARS: I have your Book 1—SEWING for the Home Decorator, and the directions for slipcovers are so clear in the sketches that I have decided to cover my living room furniture which consists of a davenport, a club chair and a wing chair. I would like to have your suggestions for colors for these and for curtains."

With this letter there was a detailed description of the rug in the room. There have been a good many letters of this type lately, so I am showing you here how to analyze the colors in a figured rug and use them as a guide in planning a room.

It is not important that the rug color scheme be followed exactly, but do make a little chart of the rug colors as shown here at the left. If you do not wish to repeat the background color for your walls, use a pale tone of one of the other colors. A stronger tone of any color in the rug may become your accent color.

NOTICE: Book 1—SEWING for the Home Decorator, and No. 2, Gifts, Novelties and Embroideries, are now 15 cents each, or both books for 25 cents. Readers who have not secured their copies of these two books should send in their orders immediately, as no more copies will be available, when the present supply is exhausted. Your choice of the QUILT LEAFLET illustrating 36 authentic patchwork stitches; or the RAG RUG LEAFLET, will be included with orders for both books for the present, but the offer may be withdrawn at any time. Leaflets are six cents each when ordered separately.

Everyone should have copies of these two books containing 96 How to Sew articles by Mrs. Spears, that have not appeared in the paper. Send your order at once to Mrs. Spears, 210 S. Desplaines St., Chicago, Ill.

Hair Hint.—Lemon juice added to the rinsing water will help to preserve the color of fair hair and also make it bright and glossy.

Shellacking Chairs.—A coat of clear shellac over the seats of rush-bottom chairs will greatly prolong their lives and keep the reed from splitting.

Turnip Sauce.—Here is a splendid substitute for horseradish sauce. Scrape a white turnip very finely. Make some mustard with vinegar. Mix the two and add a little salt and pepper.

Mustard on Sandwiches.—When using mustard or any pungent sauce for sandwiches, mix it with the butter before spreading on the bread. This ensures even distribution.

Coffee Hint.—Should coffee not be freshly ground, place the required quantity in a pan and shake over a low heat for a moment before infusing. The flavor will equal that of newly bought coffee.

About Cedar Chests.—Remember cedar chests will not kill moths or their eggs. But if the garment is put into the cedar chest free of eggs and larvae, it will never become damaged from moths.

Use for Newspapers.—Put a thick layer of newspapers under your carpets. Moths will then have them a wide berth, and your carpets will have the tread of a soft pile. Moreover, the layer of paper will prevent dust working up from the floor into the floor covering.

Preparing a Chicken for Roasting.—Brush chicken over with olive oil. This makes it tender, and the flavor is improved.

Fruit Stains.—Rub powdered borax on fruit stains; then pour boiling water through the fabric before washing and boiling it.

To Clean Pewter.—Wash the articles in hot water with a paste made of soft soap and powdered pumice stone. Then polish with a cloth or chamois leather.

HOT WEATHER BILIOUSNESS

Have you noticed that in hot weather your digestion and elimination seem to become torpid or lazy? Your food sours, forms gas, causes belching, heartburn, and a feeling of restlessness and irritability. Your tongue may be coated, your complexion bilious, and your bowel action sluggish or insufficient.

These are some of the symptoms of biliousness or so-called "Tropical Liver," so prevalent in hot climates. They call for calomel, or better still, Calotabs, the nauseous calomel compound tablets that make calomel-taking a pleasure.

Calotabs give you the effects of calomel and salts combined, helping Nature to expel the sour, stagnant bile and washing it out of the system. One or two Calotabs at bedtime with a glass of water—that's all. Next morning your system feels clean and refreshed, your head is clear, your spirit bright, and you are feeling fine with a hearty appetite for breakfast. Eat what you wish and go about your work or pleasure.

Genuine Calotabs are sold only in checker-board (black and white) packages bearing the trade name "Calotabs." Refuse imitations. Trial package only ten cents; family package twenty-five cents, at your dealer's (Adv.)

Miss Ellen Pearl Davenport of Lakeview and Albert Biella of Louisville, Colo., were united in marriage on July 8 at the Catholic church in Louisville, Father Benito Benedict reading the impressive ring ceremony. During the rites a hidden choir sang "Ave Maria."

Miss Tommie Davenport, sister of the bride, was maid of honor and Arnold Biella, brother of the groom, was best man.
