Mr. and Mrs. Bridges Celebrate Anniversary

One of the most delightful affairs of the season was given Sunday afternoon when Mr. and Mrs. W. B. Bridges celebrated their silver wedding anniversary at their beautiful farm home west of town.

At 2 o'clock the guests began to gather and were greeted at the door by Mrs. Charles Rains. After viewing the many lovely and appropriate gifts, each was asked to register in the guest book presided over by Mrs. G. E. Kinlow. As the guests registered they were served delicious fruit cream and angel food cake by Mesdames Lula B. Owen, Ray Foreman Sam Robertson of Amarillo, and Misses Martha Sue Noel and Pauline Bolivar.

The beautiful pink wedding cake, decorated with silver hearts, centered a lace-covered table bearing pink candles in silver candlesticks. The entertaining rooms were decorated with pink roses in silver vases which had been in the family over one hundred years. The refreshments carried out the pink and silver motif.

In the receiving line were Mr. and Mrs. Bridges, their daughter, Miss Mary Rains, and their son, Billy.

After congratulating Mr. and Mrs. Bridges upon reaching this happy milestone in their wedded life, the guests were ushered to seats in the living room by Miss Virginia Watt.

Piano music, softly played by Mrs. Robert Watkins, opened the program.

Mesdames M. E. Wells, Hobart Moffitt, Rosa Adamson and Alva Simmons sang "The Bells of St. Mary's."

Little Miss Sarah Ann Rains gave a reading.

Mrs. Lula B. Owen read "The Abandoned Engagement."

Miss Von Biggs rendered a piano solo, "Indian Love Call."

Miss Pauline Bolivar read James Whitcomb Riley's "An Old Sweetheart of Mine."

Mesdames Wells and Adamson then sang "Absent" and "Moonlight and Roses."

Miss Myrtle Reeves read "Clyde and Mabel," a biographical sketch of Mr. and Mrs. Bridges.

Mesdames Moffitt and Simmons sang "Sweet Mystery of Life."

After extending to Mr. and Mrs. Bridges their best wishes and their hopes for another such happy occasion, the guests departed.

A second group of friends arrived at 5 o'clock, making a total of 115 guests who registered in the guest book during the day. A number were unable to attend because of the rainy weather.

Out of town guests present included Mr. and Mrs. E. H. Watt of Giles, Mr. and Mrs. J. E. Adamson of Turkey, Mr. and Mrs. Loyd Shelton of Axtola, Mr. and Mrs. Sam Robertson and daughter Jo Ellen of Amarillo, Messrs. and Mesdames W. D. Shelton, F. A. White, Dr. W. D. Bromley, G. C. Heath, Homer Malkey, L. E. Thompson, U. J. Boston, C. E. Bairfield, Nolle Simmons, Guy Derant, Joe Ritter, Guy Pierce and Guy Wright, Mesdames E. W. Bromley and J. W. Adamson, Miss Vera Nolan and Harold Leach, all of Glendon.

Ewell Whitfield of Phillips was a week end visitor here.

Chenault-Grimsley

Miss Jewel Grimsley and Merl J. Chenault, both of Glendon, were united in marriage at 8 p. m. Friday, Oct. 6. The simple but impressive ceremony took place at the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. W. E. Grimsley near Hedley. Rev. M. E. Wells officiated.

The bride wore a blue sheer crepe dress with black accessories.

Those present were Ward Grimsley and Loyd Olson of Berger, Mr. and Mrs. Weidon Lovelady of Lella Lake, Miss Christine Smith of Vernon, Mr. and Mrs. W. E. Grimsley, Robert and Lavonia Grimsley, Rev. and Mrs. M. E. Wells, Mrs. Martha J. Hogue and Mrs. Olon Anderson.

Mr. Chenault graduated from Lella Lake high school in 1936 and for the past two years has been employed in J. T. Patman's office in Glendon.

Mrs. Chenault graduated from Hedley high school in 1934 and attended T. W. C. at Ft. Worth and Fleming's Business College at Amarillo. For the past two months she has been employed as society editor of the Glendon News.

The former joins their many friends in extending best wishes to the happy couple.

Rural School Children Ride in Safety With Youthful Bus Drivers

New System Is Effective Solution to Transportation Problem.

RALEIGH, N. C.—At a bit past three o'clock, C. C. Brown looks at his watch.

"I'm on the highway this minute," he said. "Every one of them is on the highway."

"A visitor might be a bit apprehensive at that zero hour which comes to Brown on a school day. In a state where a bad highway accident is one of the worst things happening, 4,179 miles away from 1,226 miles of roads, along the edges of the mountains, are crowded with almost 3,000 children—the biggest peak in any transportation of any kind in the state. But the surprising part was the fact that 3,600 buses were being driven by high school students.

The zero hour doesn't bother Brown. He is head of this vast system because those 3,600 children are loaded and confidently every day of every year are giving the lie to those who said they didn't have the stuff in them to do this job. Carefully selected, exhaustively examined and trained, the 3,600 rural school bus drivers have improved, and not lowered, the safety record in North Carolina.

So far as available records show, there is no highway safety record equal to the one in North Carolina's tight-lipped young drivers.

Economy Important. North Carolina's vast system of maintained consolidated school buses with its record-setting transportation system—based heavily upon the economy of this operation. The cost this year was less than $6 per pupil per year, Ohio, ranking next to North Carolina in number of children transported, hauls 277,860 pupils at a cost of $19.97 per child per year. Texas carries 275,000 children 100 miles at a cost of $11.62; New York transports 123,480 children at a cost of $42.19.

The use of high school boys—and

THIS MEANS YOU. Here's a sign that means what it says. This semaphore STOP sign attached to every school bus in the state is the most widely respected traffic signal in North Carolina. Motorists are compelled to stop, waiting until the bus is cleared of children.

A few girls—as bus drivers did not start with the state's taking over control of schools in 1933. Counties already had found that in most instances, students made better drivers—were more cautious, more dependable, took greater interest in the children—than most adult drivers. County school boards still have authority to employ adult drivers if they are willing to supplement state pay to make up the difference in schoolboy wages.

Posts Are Eagerly Sought. The $9.50 a month which the state pays school bus drivers is only a minor reason the posts are eagerly sought. The drivers are selected with the greatest care. Each must be at least 16 years of age. They must be of the highest character and must maintain a good record in studies and deportment, as well as have an excellent intelligence rating. Principals nominate eligible drivers, and each of these is given a strict examination by the state highway patrol, including actual operation of buses on the regular routes. A written examination is given, covering state laws on driving laws and bus operation. Those who make the best grades are given special certificates by the highway safety division, and no award possible in a rural school is coveted with more eagerness. This exhaustive preliminary not only reveals the students with desirable qualities, but it acts as a powerful psychological preparation for the driver's duties. The young bus drivers are earnest and alert, keenly aware of their responsibility, heavily impressed by their distinction. And few have ever let youthful exuberance lead them into any frolicsome recklessness. For swift upon this follow dismissal, revocation of certificate and the keenest of disgraces.

A LITTLE HELP goes a long way toward safety. Under the new safety program older children are assigned to help getting the younger ones off the highway onto the lane leading homeward. Here a youthful monitor does his duty.

Drivers Must Aid Unloading. Actual driving, however, does not tell the whole story back of the state's safety record. The young drivers are required to see that their buses are loaded and unloaded with a minimum of risk. Accordingly, many drivers, with the approval of their superintendents, name one or two older students on each bus to act as monitors. They help smaller children on and off buses, and, when it is necessary for youngsters to cross the highway, the monitors see they are entirely off the highway and safely on the lane before the bus starts again. Some principals require the monitor on each bus to get out and walk ahead of the bus at the crossing of a railway or an important highway.

For other reasons, too, North Carolina sees the "zero hour" of three o'clock come and go without undue anxiety. In the mornings and afternoons, when the buses are on the highways, the state laws throw every possible blanket of protection around them. All school buses are required by law to stop before crossing railroads and before entering highway intersections. All motorists, whether meeting a school bus or approaching it from behind, must come to a complete stop whenever the bus halts to load or unload. The buses are equipped with STOP semaphores which a driver raises when he begins to slow down for a stop, and no traffic signal commands such respect and authority as this.

For two hours every school day, citizens all over the state help see the children to school and back.

TAKING NO CHANCES. This monitor, acutely aware of his responsibility, walks ahead of a bus about to cross a dangerous main highway, and has signalled the driver to wait. Law requires full stops for the buses at points like this but in some schools, as an added safety measure, youths are appointed to get out and guide the driver past bad spots on the route.

OVER 4,000 BUSES like these are required to get North Carolina's rural school children to and from school. The state requires about 600 new buses every year for replacement and to keep the equipment up-to-date.

Physical Fitness Differs From Athletic Efficiency

ATLANTA.—Physical fitness and athletic efficiency are by no means the same thing according to Adolphe Abrahams writing in the American Medical Journal.

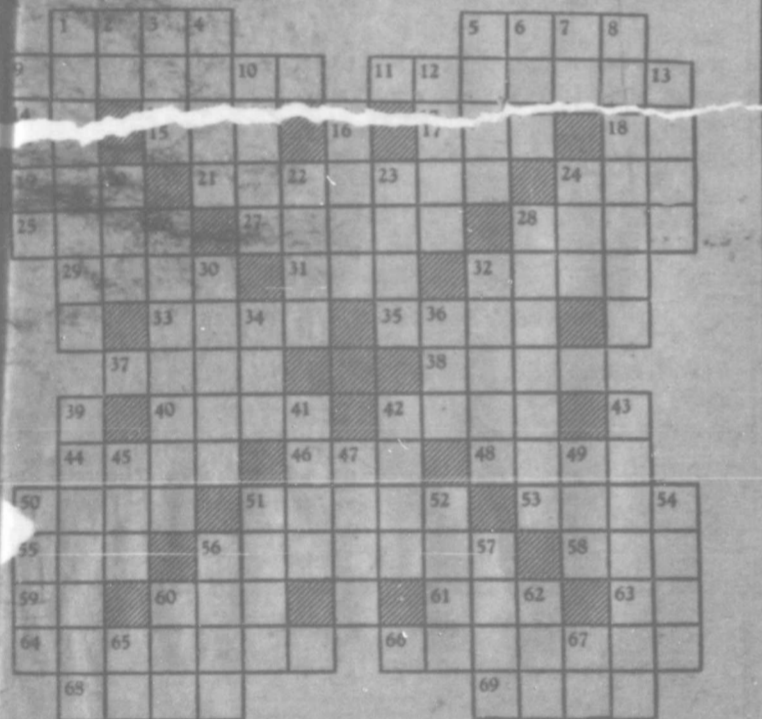

Fitness is satisfactory adjustment to one's environment in the widest sense. Thus, for example, a man may be fit to climb a mountain and yet unfit for the strain of city life.

For practical purposes the comparatively simple methods in common use to estimate the physical efficiency of the healthy athlete are probably as satisfactory as the more elaborate investigations, which are after all only extensions of fundamental principles. Abrahams presents some interesting observations in the same individuals on the rate of deceleration of the pulse after running varying distances, indicating that delayed deceleration is related to duration of exercise which in some way probably leads to a block of vagus inhibition.

Athletic efficiency is usually tested by the response of the circulation to effort or to other factors influencing cardiac acceleration or blood pressure. Every test, Abrahams concludes, involving blood pressure is fallacious because of the emotional factor. The rate of cardiac deceleration, however, after a short intense effort, is a valuable index of athletic fitness. Ordinary tests for the effect of prolonged effort are, however, unpractical and he suggests that running various distances by the same individual and observing the rate of cardiac deceleration furnish a more satisfactory method.

Specialist Advises Treating Cotton-Seed For Disease Control in Fall or Winter

RALEIGH, N. C.—Chemical treatment of cotton seed is generally recognized as a profitable disease-control practice, demonstrations having resulted in an increase of from $9 to $13 per acre in the value of cotton. However, says Howard Garriss, plant specialist of North Carolina State college, many farmers have found it convenient to treat their seed in the fall, immediately after the harvest, rather than in the spring.

Diamond Floor Marker

Has Value Set at $16,000
HAVANA, CUBA.—The Capitolio in Havana possesses one of the world's greatest diamonds which is set in the floor under the immense dome. The diamond weighs 24 carats and has the 32 facets or cuts which are given to a diamond to make it perfect. These 32 cuts coincide exactly with the 32 nautical points of the compass.

The actual value of this diamond in its setting is about $16,000. It was donated to the building by the contractors who considered that the magnificence of the Capitolio they had erected called for such a gesture.

The stone is set on an onyx base and occupies the exact center of the hall. It marks the starting point, known as "Zero Kilometer" of the Central highway which runs from Havana to Santiago de Cuba—600 miles; also to Pinar del Rio at the island's western end, 113 miles. This totals 713 miles of concrete and asphalt through the heart of Cuba.

Treating cotton seed in the fall, or winter, has these advantages: It allows the work to be done during a slack period in farm work; and, also, the chemicals on the seed tend to keep the rats and mice from bothering it.

"Incidentally," advises Garriss, "don't treat more seed than you expect to plant. The treated seed is poisonous and can not be fed or sold to an oil mill."

The most effective treatment so far found for cotton seed is an organic mercury dust, sold under the trade name of "ceresin." Garriss also commented on the custom of many farmers to hold cotton seed in storage at least a year before planting. For instance, they would hold seed harvested this year for planting in the spring of 1941.

"It is true that longer storage allows some disease pores to die, but the year in storage should not be substituted for the chemical treatment of seed," he said.

Constipation Relief

When constipation brings on acid indigestion, bloating, dizzy spells, gas, coated tongue, sour taste, and bad breath, your stomach is probably loaded up with certain undigested food and your bowels don't move. Extremes!

This is a mean old world! Last week we plunged to head first in to six weeks examinations and as usual, some of us sunk like lead. This week we are in a period of heat and turmoil, broken backs, and feverish noses; school has turned out for cotton picking for 2 weeks.

Some enjoyments of picking this cotton are you can step just a little faster when the dough rolls in, for a while at least, and the seniors have the satisfaction of knowing that their rings will be there when they come back to school. It is certainly true that nothing is worthwhile unless you work for it, and I'm sure that the Seniors will have a deeper appreciation for their rings if they have to pull bolts for them, don't you think?

U. S. Hunters Enjoy Long Season For Shooting Migratory Waterfowl

Duck Population Still on Increase, According To Survey.

WASHINGTON.—American duck hunters of 1939 are able to enjoy a 45-day hunting season for the second consecutive year under the current amended regulations of the department of interior. The policy was adopted last year because the duck population was found to be on the increase and the government felt it would be possible to extend this privilege to the U. S. sportsman. Prior to 1938 season had been but 30 days for a number of years. The 1939 regulations were adopted in accordance with the federal migratory bird treaty act. This act, making effective treaties with Canada and Mexico, requires that hunting regulations be adopted after determining the abundance of the birds and "when, to what extent, if at all, and by what means it is compatible with the terms of the conventions to allow hunting."

Such regulations are now issued by the department of interior as the bureau of biological survey has been transferred to that department under the government reorganization plan.

Based on investigations by the biological survey, the new waterfowl-hunting rules include two rather important changes. For one, the daily bag limit on geese has been reduced from five to four. The second major regulation change was opening the season in the "intermediate zone" on October 22 instead of October 15.

Geese did not appear to be in quite as satisfactory condition last winter as they were the preceding season and the bag-limit reduction is calculated to insure a margin of safety for the species. The extensive survey made by the government indicated that other waterfowl are continuing to increase, however.

Waterfowl improvement was attributed by the biological survey to the close hunting restrictions of recent years supplemented by an extensive refuge program, both of which have made it possible for the birds to take advantage of improved climatic conditions. The annual waterfowl inventory early in 1939 showed a duck increase for the fourth consecutive year, and investigations this summer indicated that conditions on the breeding grounds were again favorable.

Waterfowl population is still below what it was a decade ago and further improvement depends upon sportsman-government co-operation in the restoration program. This fact led to a decision that little change should be made in the slightly liberalized regulations that proved effective last year.

Medical Report Shows Decrease In Cases of Sleeping Sickness

NEW YORK.—The number of cases of sleeping sickness throughout the world has declined in recent years, according to a report by the Matheson commission of which Dean Willard C. Rappleye of the Columbia university school of medicine is chairman. The decrease suggests either a fall in the strength of the disease, which made its appearance during the 1914-18 World war, or else a higher degree of immunity among the inhabitants of the countries affected, says the commission. Cobra venom, calcium, and benzedrine sulphate are some of the drugs which have been introduced as treatments, points out the report. After more than 10 years of study the commission declares that it is impossible to draw any definite conclusions in regard to the value of the great majority of remedies for sleeping sickness. There is no other disease, asserts the report, in which it is more difficult to evaluate treatment.

Cobra Venom Treatment. Cobra venom as a treatment for sleeping sickness has been tried. The action of the venom, injected into the muscles of the patients in very small doses, was declared favorable. The commission feels however, that the improvement is not great enough to warrant use of the venom until further studies have been made.

Another new remedy, the "Bulgarian treatment," is described by the commission. "It consists in administering a decoction made from the root of the belladonna plant in white wine," the report explains. "In the original work, pills of calamus, an Asiatic plant, powders consisting largely of charcoal, and pills of belladonna root were recommended. Later, most physicians discarded all but the decoction of the belladonna root. In the earlier preparations, and indeed in most of the later ones, the root of the plant grown in Bulgaria has been most extensively used."

Like infantile paralysis, the number of cases of St. Louis encephalitis, a definite type of sleeping sickness, is inversely proportional to the density of the population, the report continues. Crowded cities are not the most likely places to find the disease. The rate in the town of Paris, Ill., in 1932, was notably high. Most of the cases in the state of Illinois in the summer of 1933 were reported from small cities and rural districts, with a very few in Chicago.

Although the spread of the disease by contagion, a case-to-case contact, is seldom traced, the belief is general that the spread of epidemic encephalitis is similar to that of other epidemic diseases of the central nervous system.

Corn growers in Southern states have been notified that they can expect no referendum this year on marketing quotas. This information comes from the department of agriculture and applies to the other sections of the country as well as the South. Best estimate on the year's crop is 2½ billion bushels. Roughly speaking there is a 600,000,000-bushel carryover, giving a total corn supply for 1939 of something like 3,000,000,000 bushels.

Many Southern farmers are using lime to aid in building up their soils. A word of warning: Lime is fine but be sure of your soil before you use it. Have your soil analyzed to determine whether or not it actually needs lime. Using lime when not needed may be harmful by bringing about too much change upward in the reaction of the soil, thus robbing some plants of needed manganese.

IN SHORT: Oil from pecan kernels said to equal olive oil in every respect is being produced in Georgia. This fall and winter don't let your sire run with the cone, a separate pen with plenty of room for exercise is essential. Latest word from the U. S. Bureau of Agriculture Economics is that the world will have a slightly smaller supply of cotton this season than last.

Serve Ham This Tasty Way

Ham is a meat whose food value we respect if we stop to think about it, but whose flavor particularly appeals to us. The business woman housekeeper makes good use of this fact whether she fries or broils a slice of ham to use as the main item for the quick meal, whether she frizzles a few slices of boiled ham, or uses a little left over from the previous meal to give flavor to some bland dish.

Spaghetti, macaroni, noodles or potatoes dressed with a cream sauce highly seasoned with mustard, a dash of cayenne pepper and minced ham, make dishes to be talked about. Ham also gives an accent to an omelet or scrambled eggs and to bread or rice stuffings for tomatoes, green peppers or eggplant. And then there is the fat which remains after cooking the meat itself. It is just what you want for those hashed brown potatoes, or for shortening for corn muffins. It may also be used for frying bread, when French toast is to be used as the basis for canapes or for creamed meats, vegetables or eggs. Any leftover fat of ham or bacon should be strained into a container, covered and put away for some good future use.

Canning specialists say that rubber jar rings should be bought new each year. Each ring should pass this test: when stretched out twice its length, it should be elastic enough to return to its original size and shape. And when doubled over and the fold is pressed with the fingers, it should not crack.

If someone in your family is trying to lose weight, you don't have to stop cooking the white potato, as so many people believe. It's really no more fattening than a large apple or a large orange. What's more it's a low-cost way of providing the diet with valuable vitamins and minerals.

Southern Rice Develop Three New Varieties of Rice

MONROE, LA.—Consumer preference for a long, thin-grained rice that cooks quickly into a flaky dish has increased the demand for three new rice varieties developed and distributed by the United States Bureau of plant industry in co-operation with the Louisiana state experiment station. They are Rexoro, Nixoro and Fortuna.

Benkin W. Jones, in charge of rice investigations for the bureau, reports that acreage planted to the new varieties last year was almost double that of the year before. In 1937 about 100,000 acres were planted. Last year about 185,000 acres were planted—approximately 20 per cent of the entire southern crop. Demand for the new varieties has been reflected in the higher price obtained on the milled rice, which in some instances has been almost double for the new varieties. This has resulted in higher prices to growers. As the yield of the new varieties compares favorably with established varieties, further increased plantings are expected.

19-Year-Old Youth Top Criminal

WASHINGTON.—Of 440 persons arrested in the U. S. during the first six months of the year, 19-year-old youths list the Uniform Crime Index, the Federal Bureau of Investigation, revealed in the second quarterly bulletin recently released. The bulletin discloses that from 1932 until the middle of 1935 there were more arrests for age 19 for any other single age. From the middle of 1935, 1938, ages 21, 22 and 23 were frequently represented, but the first half of 1939, age 19 dominated again.

It must be borne in mind in connection with the data gleaned from the fingerprint cards at the B. I. that the number of arrest records is incomplete in the lower age groups because in some jurisdictions the practice is not to fingerprint youthful individuals.

Other facts revealed indicate that youths under 25 years of age committed more than 35 per cent of crime against property. It was pointed out that youths numbered more than 35, charged with but of auto thefts, the more than 74.

To Our Pastor and Family

We are sorry to ever think of Brother Patterson as this fatherly serving our little town and how we will miss them. Our hearts are sad broken. We learned to love him and his wife. We have certainly enjoyed every message we have heard him preach, and we know he has helped everyone of us. We have had the sweet songs they have sung feel deep down in my heart and he has done me good. I wish if there ever was a good man in Hedley, Brother Patterson is one of them. He has a heart for every one. He is the one that all times you need him. I wish him all the good luck coming as he has. He is the one that all times you need him. Vacancies in Marine Corps

The U. S. Marine Corps is now making a methodical canvass of inland towns—particularly rural communities with the view of finding the very best young men possible for enlistment in the Marines. Postmaster Mabel E. Jones stated today

Only 6,000 young men out of the slightly more than 108,000 in areas in complements of all the armed forces of the national defense are authorized by President Roosevelt for the Marine Corps. Thus, only one man out of each 18 of applicants will be accepted for service with the 'Leathernecks'. Requirements for enlistment remain the same—between 18 and 30 years of age, white, unmarried and without dependents, not less than 54 nor more than 74 inches tall, of good moral character, and of excellent physical condition.

Postmaster Mabel E. Jones also stated that she is being kept advised by the Marine Corps Recruiting District Headquarters of Dallas, of the requirements for enlistment, for the information of young men of this locality. Preliminary physical examinations may now be made by a local physician, after which the Dallas office will advise applicants whether or not to proceed to that city for final examination.
