Earl Hill has completed the installation of his bakery equipment and is now turning out fresh Mity-Good bread daily. The Hill Bakery, located in the building with the Charm Beauty Shop is fully equipped with modern machinery, and assures the people of this community of a complete stock of fresh breads and pastries at all times.

Mr. Hill states that he is glad to be back in Hedley, and invites all his friends to pay him a visit. He sincerely appreciates the cooperation and help given him in opening the bakery here.

He asks that all those wishing pies leave orders at their favorite grocery a day ahead, as pies will be baked only to order for the present.

Womack Burial Insurance Sends Policy Holders Dividend Checks

The Womack Burial Insurance Co. sent dividend checks to all the policy holders this week. The strong support and good will shown this firm attributed the taking of one step further to give their many policy holders a still greater saving through funeral services. The Womack Burial Insurance has an exceedingly large membership, due to this making a substantial gain in revenue, we are merely passing it on to the benefit of our policy holders. Yet keep our sincere pledge, to offer a Perfect Memorial to every detail and also be of service to the sick and suffering. On about December 1, we will serve our friends and policy holders with a new 1940 La Salle Funeral Coach, beautiful to every detail.

The success of this insurance company was made possible by the several thousand that are now members. Therefore, we feel that all benefits that this company can offer should be passed on to each individual policy holder. The Secretary Treasurer has taken into consideration the total amount of revenue and the number of members and paid each individual member on the basis of amount of insurance that they are carrying with this firm. Just one step further to better serve our many policy holders and friends.

claim that the 30-odd constituents of tobacco offer a wide field for investigation.

The government feels that these research plants are just the beginning in a long-range plan to help the farmer through scientific investigation. It is pointed out that one major U. S. corporation spends each year for research more than the total sum allotted the four regional laboratories.

EDITH BARBER SAYS

Utensils Are Cook's 'Tools'

Efficient workmen demand good tools. While a good cook seems to be able to manage to turn out a good meal when necessary with makeshift equipment, the best is none too good for daily use. Time and nerve strain are saved when a drawer can be opened and sharp knives suitable for every purpose, measuring spoons and wooden mixing spoons are at hand for a choice.

The recent housewares show which I visited, as I do annually, offered a number of new items as well as the proved and improved utensils which have become classic. Among these I was interested in a tea kettle of heat-proof glass. There were aluminum saucepans upon the sides of which are measuring marks for one, two, three and four cups. These are not absolutely new, but this year there were covers to fit them and this in my opinion is important. In the same metal was a steamer with holes only around the rim. This allows a vegetable dinner, for instance, to be cooked in it in such a way that the steam condenses and flows back into the lower part. Every vegetable for a boiled dinner will keep its own flavor. Another item of interest was a mincer of the type that is so convenient for pureeing vegetables, but which is designed for grating nuts.

There were doubtless innumerable other items on display which would have appealed to me just as much, but I did not have time enough to visit every exhibit.

FOREIGN COUNTRIES have been very active in the science of chemistry as is evidenced by this evening dress made entirely from an Italian product—Snia rayon—produced from bamboo. For some time now Italy has been turning out 33 tons daily of synthetic wools, silks and cottons made from almost everything ranging from cow's milk and bamboo to hemp and plain wood.

Juvenile Crime Continues as Major U. S. Problem

WASHINGTON.—Juvenile crime continues to be one of the greatest single crime problems in America, according to an announcement by the federal bureau of investigation, based upon records received in its identification division.

Of all fingerprint arrest records studied for the past nine months 19.2 per cent were those of youths under 21, which represents an increase from 19 per cent for the same period in 1936.

One out of every three persons arrested for robbery was under 21 years of age, while one out of every two persons who committed burglary was not old enough to vote.

One-Half Auto Thefts. More than one-half of the auto thefts were also committed by juveniles.

More persons 19 years of age were arrested than for any other single age group, a condition also prevailing from 1932 until the middle of 1935. From 1935 until 1939 ages 21, 22 and 23 were most frequently represented.

With age 19 becoming more predominant, ages 18 and 22 rank next in order.

The seriousness of the juvenile crime problem is emphasized by the statistics released by the federal bureau of investigation. They indicate that during the first nine months of 1939 607 persons less than 21 years of age were charged with murder or manslaughter, 2,953 with robbery, 2,808 with assault, 12,855 with burglary, and 17,622 with larceny and related crimes.

In addition to those under 21 who became involved in crime, 16.3 per cent of all violations were committed by those between the ages of 21 and 24, making a total of 35.5 per cent of all arrests representing those less than 25 years old.

'Crop' of Manganese Is Boon to Alabama

ANNISTON, ALA.—Farmers in this section of Alabama soon will have a new "money crop" in manganese, with establishment of a company here to buy the ore.

Numerous deposits of manganese ore are found within a 100-mile radius of Anniston and the new company estimated farmers would average $7 a ton for manganese delivered at the plant.

The ore ranges in value from $2.50 to $22.50 a ton.

The company plans to blend the ore to use in making steel, dry-cell batteries, paints and glass. Manganese sulphate, extensively used as a fertilizer in the Carolinas and Florida, will be a by-product.

The company announced any farmer who has manganese on his land can dig it in off seasons, haul it to the plant and get cash for it.

In Western Etowah county a manganese pocket has yielded 194 tons of ore in the last 50 years and the new plant will employ 35 to 50 persons, it was announced.

Tuesday, Nov 14 the Owlets met the Carey Cardinals on the home court for their second game of the season. The conflict was a very exciting one, the final score being 12 to 35 in their favor. The boys held their own in the first half with a close score of 7 to 11.
 Ralph Alewine was high point man with 9 points. The boys put up a good but losing fight and we are looking forward to a good game Tuesday night on their court.

The Owlets also played the Outsiders and won a very de-cative game.

The Owlets journeyed to Lella Lake Thursday night, Nov. 16 with victory in mind. The boys won with an accumulated score of 40 to their opponents 4. Raph Alewine was again high point man with 14 points. Dickson and Hansards were runners up with 11 and 10 points respectively.

The Owlets were defeated for their first time (and the last we hope) with a score of 10 to 13 by the Lella Lake girls. The girls did fine under the circumstances since several substitutes had to be used.

On November 10 the Home Ec

We all enjoyed the lunch very

 First, we cooked it, and second,

Let's Be Thankful for Electric Service, too!

"I am thankful for my electric range. It's so much easier to prepare Thanksgiving Dinner"

ELECTRIC SERVICE is something we've all come to accept without much thought. That's because it's so very, very good and dependable. We simply needn't worry about it at all. So it's fitting and proper that we pause at Thanksgiving time to give a moment's thought to the marvelous value—nay, bargain—we get in return for the few pennies a day that we pay for Electric Service. Light is only one of the many items of service included in the monthly statement. Refrigeration, Cookery, Radio, Sweeper, Coffee-maker, Washer, Iron—all these and more cost less today than our grandparents paid for light alone! To use this Service, we need only turn a switch. And behind the switch are a thousand men and women whose constant labor and research make Electric Service both dependable and economical.
 Jobs thus are created—a $1,300,000 payroll in this West Texas area. Taxes are paid—almost a half million dollars annually for the support of local, county, state and federal governments. We can well be thankful for modern Electric Service.

Solution to Puzzle

Chemist Develops New Steel With 'Gem-Like' Glint

NEW YORK.—Discovery that the chemical which produces war smoke, titanium tetrachloride, will produce a stainless steel so lustrous that it can be used to make jewelry.

Titanium tetrachloride, made from the dark gray metal titanium, is used for the military smoke screens and smoke bombs of all nations.

Patent Is Issued. A discovery which the foundation says is amazing was made when scientists at the Massachusetts Institute of Technology mixed this stuff with an acid bath in which stainless steel was placed during experiments to make the steel completely impervious to ordinary corrosion.

with a "singular luster and corrosion equivalent to that which characterizes precious metals." These are the words of the United States patent which was issued to Herbert Henry Uhlig, of Massachusetts Tech.

The surface of the steel scintillates, as if studded with microscopic gems.

The acid bath removes a thin layer of the steel, 44 hundred-thousandths of an inch thick, or about a dozen long wave lengths of light. In so doing, the acid gives the steel a surface smoothness that is almost mathematically perfect.

Even Fathers Can Guess Wrong

By VIC YARDMAN

LEN JUMEL was sensible. More sensible than Ursula Newbury. Though you never would have guessed it by looking at them. Len was tall and angular and homely.

Ursula was the opposite. She was small, gorgeous and delicate. She came from Westchester, N. Y., had attended private schools and traveled abroad: was perfectly at ease in a drawing room, or anywhere with people.

She started in by teasing Len, which was a certain indication that she was fond of him. Presently, however, she stopped teasing him, stopped being merry and gay, and began brooding.

Her parents couldn't understand it. They became worried and anxious. They questioned her without success, talked the matter over in fretful tones, suggested returning home, but changed their minds when Ursula emphatically refused to budge from the ranch.

And then gradually the truth became known, became definitely established when Ursula confirmed their incredulous suspicions herself.

"But, dear child!" Mrs. Newbury exclaimed. "The man—this Len Jumel—is impossible! He's nothing but a common cowboy!"

"Which doesn't make a particle of difference," Ursula tossed her pretty blonde head defiantly. "I love him. He's the first man I've ever loved. And I'm going to marry him."

"Oh, dear, dear!" Mrs. Newbury wrung her hands miserably, and looked about for Mr. Newbury.

Mr. Newbury took the news more calmly. He was a business man, used to crises and quick decisions. He patted his wife's hand and spoke to her reassuringly. "Now, there, mother, don't worry about it. I'll attend to everything."

Newbury found Len Jumel out by the horse corral and came to the point at once. "Len," he said in the faintly familiar and patronizing tone he used for just such moments, "my daughter has been telling me about her—er—interest in you. Now, Len you're an intelligent man. Above the average."

Mr. Newbury hesitated long enough to let this bit of subtle flattery sink in. "I don't have to tell you that a match would be quite impossible. Ursula's young and she's headstrong. She's never met your type before. You interest her and she's become infatuated. But, Len my boy, you two are as far apart as the Poles. You could never adjust yourself to her sort of life, nor she to yours. Oh, it would work for a while, but after the romance wore off—well, I must warn you that Ursula's demands are great. She's been used to having whatever money can buy: friends, excitement, parties, travel, clothes and everything else that a daughter of a rich man brought up in society is accustomed to. She wouldn't be happy without them."

Len spat and rolled a cigarette. "Mister, you're taking a lot for granted."

"I beg your pardon?"

"I say, you're taking a lot for granted. And I'm beginning to think you're a little tetchy in the head. This here's the first I've known of your daughter's infatuation and I'm danged if it don't strike me plumb

ent. He had ridden away for a very definite purpose that morning. High on a rocky ridge above the ranch he sat his horse and watched the car that carried the Newburys to the station drive out of the yard. His eyes were grave and sober, and in their depths there glowed a look that would probably have brought Ursula into his arms, had she seen it. Presently, sitting there, he reached into a pocket and produced a small wisp of handkerchief.

The letter "U" was traced in one corner. Besides the handkerchief there was a tiny photograph from which Ursula's berry blue eyes stared out at him. He looked at them tenderly, reverently before restoring them to his pocket. It would be hard, he thought, riding along on the range trying to forget.

(Associated Newspapers—WNU Service.)

Len spat. "Mister, you're taking a lot for granted."

funny. Mister, when I marry it won't be to no little blonde-haired hussy like your offspring. It'll be to somebody who can earn her salt."

"You—mean you don't love my daughter?"

"Love her. The little hussy? Well, hardly! And don't flatter yourself that a half interest in your hull fortune would induce me to marry her. It wouldn't be worth the price!"

Mr. Newbury reddened and choked a little. He was amazed. He didn't know what to make of it. In the first place, he couldn't understand any man not loving his daughter or any man not interested in the Newbury fortune. He had given Len credit for a lot of intelligence, and discovered his estimate had been wrong. He had an uncomfortable and very annoying feeling that if Len did happen to love his daughter that pretty speech he had made would have been wasted.

It was however a relief to know things were going to turn out as he wanted them to even though he wasn't responsible.

Len demonstrated during the remainder of the time the Newburys stayed at the ranch that his devotion for Ursula was nil. Even Ursula, though it nearly broke her heart, was forced to admit there was no soap as far as Len was concerned.

And so, within the week, the Newburys departed. Len was not pres-

Last Laugh for Dobbin

Weather Has Important Effects On Human Health and Comfort

CLEVELAND, OHIO.—Why weather has such far-reaching effects on the health and comfort of human beings is explained in a paper by Dr. W. A. Sommerfield, M. D.

The term weather needs further definition if its effects are to be understood, the author says. What we call weather, he observes, is dependent on certain physical variations of the many elements or gases which make up the atmosphere.

The most widely discussed factor, of course, is temperature. "The optimum temperature for physical comfort is about 72 F. and for mental activity is 68 F.," Dr. Sommerfield states. "Man is able to withstand

Photographs Are Taken With Syrup Can Camera

EL RENO, OKLA.—A "syrup can camera" was demonstrated successfully here by the El Reno mayor's sons.

Herman Dittmer's two boys punched a pinhole in one end of the can and built a wooden frame inside to hold a piece of glass. Then, in a darkened room, they placed a piece of film against the glass and sealed the opening with black adhesive tape.

The makeshift camera was aimed at an object by sighting it like a rifle, and the film was exposed by removal of the tape. Then the can was resealed for unloading in the darkened room.

And Eight Years Changes Many Things

By RICHARD HILL WILKINSON

"I'm sorry," said Geoffrey. "I don't believe I remember you. Though I know I should. There's something vaguely familiar."

"I'm Francine Ackroyd. We must have met at Sonia's wedding."

Geoffrey frowned. The name, too, had a disturbingly familiar sound. "You're Geoffrey Leddy." Her eyes twinkled. "You see, I haven't forgotten."

Geoffrey gestured, half apologetically, half helplessly.

"You've been away for eight years—abroad. They say you went directly after the wedding, because you were in love with Sonia and wanted to forget. When Sonia decided to have this party, this reunion of those who participated in the wedding, she was afraid she wouldn't be able to reach you."

"Francine Ackroyd," Geoffrey said unexpectedly, "I haven't seen Sonia yet and don't want to—until later. Will you take a walk with me in the garden?"

"Of course." She started along the path at the foot of the terrace.

"Sonia was too young to marry anyhow," Francine said suddenly.

"Too young? What do you mean?"

"Do you mean you haven't heard?"

"Heard what? My boat got in only last night."

"Of course. I should have known. Sonia and Frank were divorced two years after their marriage."

Geoffrey stopped dead still. Sonia divorced! Free?

Presently she spoke again.

"It was all such a mistake. Sonia was so young. How could she know that she didn't love him? It wouldn't be fair to condemn her."

"Of course not." Geoffrey looked at her quickly. Her tone was faintly defensive. "What—happened to her?"

"She went back to her old job—on the stage. Assumed her old name, and became quite famous. She's changed."

"I've got to go back," he said apologetically. "I—I want to see Sonia. All this that you've told me doesn't seem quite real."

"Of course." There was understanding in the girl's tone, and a faint note of pity.

There was a footman in the hall, and Geoffrey decided to send word by him up to Sonia. He started toward the door, and turned at a touch on his arm. It was Francine Ackroyd. Something about the way she looked at him compelled his attention.

"Hello, Geoffrey." Francine's voice was strange, different. There was a wistful something in her expression. The manner in which she cocked her head on one side and smiled struck a familiar chord.

Then abruptly he knew. She was Sonia! Francine Ackroyd was Sonia! It all came with a rush. Francine was her stage name. He had heard it once or twice, long ago, before he knew her very well. That was what made it familiar. That was why she was familiar.

He groped for words, and failed to find them.

She laughed up into his face and came close to him. "Not very flattering, Geoffrey. But I have

Alabama Would Be Key State In U. S. Military Preparations

MONTGOMERY, ALA.—Alabama will be one of the nation's key military and economic areas in event of any war.

A survey of the state's vast wartime potentialities disclosed that there is an abundance of everything calculated to strengthen the sinews of war—iron, coal, electricity, food, cattle, minerals, navigable rivers.

In addition, the U. S. army has its aerial tactical school here, an infantry fort in the northern part of the state and is projecting an $8,000,000 air depot at the port of Mobile.

Also, Alabama has a splendid National Guard of 4,000-odd men, extensive officer training in high schools and one of the grandest military traditions in America as "the Cradle of the Confederacy."

Active in World War.

Alabama's war potency was realized 20 years ago—when the United States entered the World war—with establishment of a huge military training camp, Fort Sheridan, at Montgomery.

The survey listed the following sinews of war:

A great supply of iron and coal in the Birmingham and Gadsden areas. Some state military observers believe if war comes an army arsenal would be set up there.

Unlimited store of electricity in Tennessee Valley section of state, for use in munitions manufacture.

Muscle Shoals has a World War nitrate plant—now in use as a Tennessee Valley authority fertilizer laboratory.

Maxwell Field, at Montgomery—the army's tactical school. It probably would be greatly expanded to prepare for the latest in air maneuvers, tactics and experiments.

Stuck for an Alibi? Expert Sells Them

NEW YORK.—Donald Peterson has his shingle out—the strangest shingle in a city of bizarre professions. He is an alibi expert.

Perched behind a mahogany desk which bears the proud placard, "Silence, Genius at Work," Peterson thinks up new ways of circumventing the suspicious wife or husband, or of easing out of unpleasant appointments.

He doesn't expect to make a living from this avocation. So far, in fact, his cases have cost more than they produced but he is willing to take a loss, he says in return for the intellectual satisfaction he gets out of it.

Peterson calls attention to his new activity in small personal ads reading:

"Alibi Bureau: Excuses, alibis dramatically presented by experts. Fees reasonable. Confidential, personal attention. Originality of thought. Legitimate purposes only. Paste this in your hat for emergency."

Peterson said he got into the alibi field by chance when he noted how adept he was at getting friends out of tight spots. For his bureau he uses trained actors and actresses.
