PHILIPPINES:

Full Scale

While the United States anxiously scanned bulletins from Manila, and frowned at the increasing seriousness of the situation, there were rea-sons for a general belief that the army and navy high commands were not blind to the situation, but had agreed on counter measures of some sort.

Obviously these had not been made public, as to do so would be to 'tip our hand' to Japan. But the meeting of Churchill and Roosevelt in Washington, and the presence in the United States of the now-famous party of 80, which included all the British military and naval, as well as economic leaders, was assurance enough that something was in the wind.

A message from President Roosevelt to the people of the Philippines pledged the aid of "the resources of the United States, of the British empire, of the Netherlands East Indies, and of the Chinese Republic have been dedicated to the . utter and complete defeat of the Japanese war lords . . . We are engaged in a great common cause . I count on every Philippine man, woman and child to do his duty. We will do ours." The navy at the same time an-nounced that the fleet was already in action "following an intensive and well-planned campaign against the Japanese forces which will result in litive assistance to the defense of the Philippine islands.' Another reason for increased American confidence as to the outcome of the war with Japan was a message from Secretary of War Stimson to President Manuel Quezon of the Philippines in which he assured him that as soon as American forces were organized, the Japanese invader would be driven from the islands.

That sounded like reinforcements by sea, land and air, reinforcements much needed by the little army of Americans plus a fair-sized army of Filipinos who were giving a good account of themselves against considerable odds.

Further Plans

A further bit of news which contributed to the feeling in many quarters that some definite plan was in progress was the statement by the Australian premier that he was now intending to go to Washington. He said he had been assured by the United States of complete co-operation in the war effort.

There were signs, however, that the West coast feared that Churchill might have persuaded the United States to regard the Pacific war as a minor affair and to concentrate on the battle of the Atlantic.

Churchill indeed did say the latter, but the former he did not say, nor did he hint at any but an allout effort on the part of the British to save Singapore, keep the Burma road open, and do all in their power to defeat the Japs.

Those whose homes, families and properties rested on the Pacific slope were becoming nervous over the smashing attack on Pearl Harbor, the loss of Pacific island strongholds, the nearness of Jap submarines, and the unchecked landings of Japanese on the Philippines.

And the Churchill statements about the battle of the Atlantic being the most vital of the whole war, together with his prediction of reverses in prospect for 1942, and the turning of the tide in 1943, did not allay the Pacific coast nerves at all.

VICHY:

And Washington

The Vichy-Washington talks concerning the St. Pierre-Miquelon episode showed that there was much confusion about the whole situation, and while the "man in the street" wanted De Gaulle's forces to have the islands with American co-operation, and while Canada seemed much in this frame of mind also, there was much in the situation which the same man in the street did not know anything about.

ALIENS: Biddle Cracks Down

ATTORNEY GENERAL BIDDLE Came an official crack-down

Attorney General Biddle had ordered that all aliens on the Pacific coast surrender at once their shortwave radios and their cameras, in an official "crack-down" following important news concerning Japanese and other nationals' fifth-column

It also coincided with the report of Mrs. Gail Beach, an evacuee from Hawaii, that many of the Japanese fliers who attacked Pearl Harbor December 7 had been schooled in the islands.

She said that several who were shot down wore rings indicating that they had attended either the University of Hawaii or McKinley high school. She said:

"They certainly knew their land-They must have lived in Honolulu.'

She said that newspapers and radio constantly urged the Hawaiian public against any demonstrations against Japanese on the islands, and that she saw no disturbances, al-though "there was some feeling against them."

RUSSIANS: Drive Hard

Despite the obvious stiffening of of the bomb horror as though from Nazi resistance on the Russian front almost immediately following the one of the frequent earthquakes that have visited the city, and of ousting of the German high generals and the taking over of the reins by Hitler himself, the Russians had them to die to the last man rather seemed to keep their drive going, weather or no weather, and to be reporting continued successes.

In fact, the drive to relieve the siege of Leningrad was said to be "picking up speed" all the time. A 20-mile gain was reported on the Volkhov front, and there were in-dications that the Russians were seeking to re-enter the Crimean front on the extreme south.

German broadcasts had been heard telling of sinking two Russian transports in the Kerch vicinity, "The tri-partite Powers approach which was taken as a Red attempt to get back into that peninsula. Sevastopol was still holding out, and the German pressure there was admitted by the Soviet to be strong, despite enormous losses.

But on the central and northern fronts the Germans were "catching the devil," losing an average of more than 20 villages daily.

Increased German resistance in the north was evidenced by Russian sappers finding 600 land mines in one kilometer of road.

Highway, telephonic and telegraph communication between Moscow and Leningrad had been resumed, but the Red immediate objective was to shove the Germans back far enough so that uninterrupted rail communication might be restored, thus losing for Hitler what had taken hundreds of thousands of German and Finnish troops six months to accomplish.

That the Christmas week drive of the Reds had carried them through positions the Nazis had intended to hold all winter was seen from the 'act that in many German-occupied houses they found Christmas trees still decorated and the candles burning.

LIBYA: Nazi Rush

Reports had come in that the Nazis, desperate over the conditions confronting General Rommel's divisions in Libya, had landed reinforcements in Tripoli and were rushing them eastward to try to make contact with Rommel's men before they were hopelessly trapped.

Heavy rains, however, which had slowed the British operations, also were hampering these rescue divisions and were giving Rommel little chance to gather together the German-Italian forces, which remained to him for a last stand.

The latest reports were that the British, by rapid movement, had again made contact with the enemy's main force at Agedabia, a district south of Bengasi, formerly the main Axis stronghold, which fell to the imperial forces on Christmas

MISCELLANY:

London: Jugoslav guerillas, members of the Chetniks, had dislodged Germans from points held for six months and were playing havoc with communications lines to Greek duction officials, military and naval cities,

> Manila: An escaped Filipino soldier said that Japs whack their prisoners on the feet with their gun butts, making their feet so sore that they will not try to escape.

Like many other women the coun try over, Rosalind Russell wanted to do something useful in the present emergency; she'd taken a Red Cross course, but felt that she could do more than roll bandages and make splints. So she's Private Rosalind Brisson now (the new husband's name being Brisson, remem-ber), of the Beverly Hills Women's Emergency Corps, and is spending two evenings a week learning to take an ambulance apart and put it together again. When she finishes "Take a Letter, Darling," she'll enroll in the radio course.

When the Armistice was signed, 23 years ago, Wesley Barry was a boy actor, and Al Green was an assistant director. They were working together in a Mary Pickford film called "Daddy Long Legs." On the day when America entered the present war they were again working together—this time at the RKO Radio studio, in "The Mayor of 44th Street," the film musical starring Anne Shirley and George Murphy. This time Barry's assistant director, Green's director.

It'll be a new version of "Down to the Sea in Ships" for Jean Gabin, the talented French actor, if 20th Century-Fox sticks to present plans. Gabin is now working in "Moontide." The other story was prepared two years ago for Tyrone Power, but never went into production. The studio's lucky; sea stuff, for background, was shot last summer off the Mexican coast; couldn't be done

Just for the record: "Two-Faced Woman," the new Garbo picture, has been revised, and the Legion of Decency has rated it "B," instead of "C," which stands for "conof "C," which stands for "con-demned."

Joan Davis, the film comedienne, has become a permanent member of Rudy Vallee's Thursday evening radio show. She'd been in vaude-ville before she struck gold in Hollywood; Vallee saw her radio possibilities, gave her a single guest appearance, and now she's headed for the top, if she follows in the footsteps of other Vallee discoveries.

Francia White, the soprano star of the Monday evening telephone hour concerts, is an air raid warden. Her instructions are, in case of an alarm, to warn people not to use the telephone!

For five years Ted Straeter has been vocal director of the Kate Smith program. Three years ago he organized a band, and he's been making a reputation for himself through his engagements at one of New York's smartest night clubs. Today's popularity of Doon's Pills, after many years of world-wide use, surely must be accepted as evidence of satisfactory use. And favorable public opinion supports that of the able physicians who test the value of Doan's under exacting laboratory conditions. These physicians, two, approve every word of advertising you read, the objective of which is only to recommend Doan's Pills as a good diurctic treatment for disorder of the kidney function and for relief of the pain and worry it causes.

If more people were aware of how the kidneys must constantly remove waste that cannot stay in the blood without interpy to health, there would be better understanding of why the whole body suffers when kidneys lag, and diurctic medication would be more often employed.

Serve One-Dish Meals as Smart Budget-Stretchers (See Recipes Below)

Appetite Appeal Plus

Dents in the budget? Appetites wilted after the rich foods as a result of the double holidays? Well, you can smooth out those dents and at the same time perk up the jaded appetites by smart, simple, easy - to - manage one - dish meals. Here's a parade of palate-thrilling recipes with which you can sprint right along even with the slimmest of budgets. To stretch that food dollar, you can use leftover meats and vegetables that are called for in these casseroles. Yes, and what's especially nice about them is that they're tops in vitamins and minerals because they're fortified with those perfect foods, milk and butter. As you're pouring out the milk from the bottle, remember it's just brimming and bursting with health-giving qualities.

Here's a meal-in-a-dish which has a luscious butter and bread crumb topping to recommend it:

*One-Dish-Meal. (Serves 6) 2 cups diced carrots (6 medium carrots)

1½ cups diced celery 6 medium potatoes, pared and sliced tablespoons butter

2 tablespoons flour 2 cups milk 1 cup meat stock or 1 bouillon

cube in

1 cup hot water 1 teaspoon salt 3 to 6 tablespoons grated onion cup peas (canned or fresh)

cups diced leftover meat

½ cup sifted bread crumbs

3 tablespoons melted butter Cook carrots, celery and potatoes separately in boiling salted water until tender. Melt butter, blend in flour, add milk and meat stock. Cook over direct heat, stirring constantly until sauce boils and thickens. Add salt. Combine sauce with remaining ingredients, except crumbs and melted butter, and turn into a buttered casserole or baking dish. Combine crumbs and melted butter, sprinkle over surface. Bake in a moderate (350 degrees) oven

35 to 40 minutes. Cabbage, one of winter's best vegetables, is featured in this casserole of tuna or salmon:

Scalloped Tuna and Cabbage. (Serves 8) 2 cups boiling water

LYNN SAYS:

Can you name the one food that does most for your body's health, most cheaply? Milk, of course! Why? Because milk does all of the following:

1. Promotes growth and maintains the body's resistance to infection through vitamin A.

2. Stimulates appetites and keeps the nerves in top-notch condition through vitamin B1; promotes growth and keeps the skin healthy through vitamin B2(G). 3. Helps calcium and vitamin C to develop teeth and bones properly if fortified with vitamin D.

4. As an excellent source of phospherus, it also works to keep the teeth and bones in class A. 5. Milk's proteins come to the fore in repairing worn-down tissues and muscles and boosting growth.

add egg, milk and seasonings. Scoop over meat and bake in a moderate Baked potatoes and salmon are a favorite cold weather combination, but have you ever thought of blending the two together as one dish? No? Then you have a real treat coming if you try:

Salmon Stuffed Potatoes. (Serves 6) 6 potatoes, baked % cup hot milk beaten egg

Salt and pepper tablespoon lemon juice cups flaked salmon 4 cup minced onion, sauteed 2 tablespoons butter Buttered crumbs

Split baked potatoes and scoop out. Mash the potatoes, add milk, egg, salt. Fold in salmon, lemon juice and onions. Refill shells and sprinkle with buttered crumbs, Bake in a moderate oven 20 minutes.

Whisk away your problems with leftover chicken or turkey by serving the meat creamed with vegetables in the center of a rice ring, adding mushrooms, sauteed, if desired. Serve it also cut up in croquettes, in chicken tamale pie, curried with rice, scalloped with noodles, in chop suey, or as a pie like this one here:

Chicken Pie. (Serves 6 to 8)

3 cups diced, cooked chicken 1 cup diced, cooked carrots 6 cooked, small white onions 1 tablespoon chopped parsley cup milk

cup chicken stock 2 tablespoons flour Salt and pepper

Arrange chicken and vegetables in layers in casserole. Combine milk and chicken stock, add flour, blending in slowly. Cook until thick, stirring constantly, then season. Pour over chicken and vegetables. Cover with a sweet potato crust and bake in a moderate oven 4J minutes. Sweet Potato Crust.

This crust is the distinctive part of the chicken pie and a wonderful way to use up those few potatoes that are left over from the holiday dinner along with the chicken. It's a crust de luxe, a crisp, golden brown topping well worthy of chicken pie:

cup sifted flour teaspoon baking powder 1/2 teaspoon salt 1 cup cold mashed sweet potato ½ cup fat, melted 1 beaten egg

Sift dry ingredients. Work in mashed potato, milk and egg. Roll 1/4 inch thick, cover pie and flute (Released by Western Newspaper Union.)
