GENERAL WAVELL

A very busy man . . . organized and supplied, but by the unrest of India, as evidenced by the fact that the house of lords was considering giving the Hindus all they had been asking for, and what, in many instances, they had been jailed for demanding.

Burma, for instance, where one of these vital struggles was taking place, was a hotbed of anti-British sentiment among the higherups, this attitude making the defense of the shores of the Irawaddy river between Rangoon and Manadalay doubly difficult.

Yet China's m lies were hard at labor creating two, perhaps three new "Burma roads" which would have outlets at points other than Rangoon, besides the fact that China was sending strong military forces southward to protect the present road.

Many realized, however, that between the Hindus, the British and the Chinese were many gaps in understanding, the latter tending to wonder whether the British understood the important nature of the Far East war, and whether the Hindus were anxious to take any part in it other than to surrender. Chief benefit to United Nations unity, however, was the fact that the Japanese, instead of fighting with propaganda, were coming in as the hated military invader. This, it was hoped, might finally result in their downfall. Certain it was that America, perhaps as overconfident on the Pacific situation as the British, were rapidly waking up to the serious-ness of the conditions in the battlefield, and joined by the Australians were making ready to do something drastic about it.

Two things stood out-Wavell's calm promise that Singapore must hold out for "great reinforcements" were on the way; and second, that General Percival, in charge of Singa-pore's defenders, said "of course"

Singapore would be held. Evacuation of at least a part of Britain's naval forces from the naval base had been deemed a military expediency, a sort of "clearing the decks" for the siege, and it was obvious that the British were not going to be cleared from the Pacific stronghold without a bitterest kind of

Shortly after the siege had begun, Japanese troops, crossing at low-tide the narrow channel between the mainland and the island, began their attack. Slowly they pushed back the beleaguered British troops who contested each foot of ground that they were forced to relinquish.

The Japanese showed the same brand of fight here as they displayed against MacArthur's men. By Edward C. Wayne

LUZON:

Epic of Defense

Eyewitness stories of MacArthur's men in action began to filter in from west Pacific stretched themselves the Luzon front, and though they across the map, it was evident that were delayed, the spirit they showed the "culture offensive" of the Nipbore out the feeling of the "man in the street" that the Battle of Bagrandiose scheme that might yet cause the United Nations all their taan was a heroic struggle in the

These stories pictured the Japa-nese as fanatical fighters, bottling Observers found it obvious that Japan was playing on the anti-Christian tendencies of the entire to the death, trembling and moaning, perhaps, when cornered, trapped and about to die, but hurl-Moslem world in the hope that some day all these millions might be bowing themselves into the fray, and ing to the Mikado, from the brown forcing the American-Filipino troops races of eastern Asia all the way to to shoot them down rather than sur-

The vital battles of this war found One correspondent told of seeing Britain menaced not only by the an American captain, waving a necessity of keeping far-flung forces bloody-bandaged arm, shouting "surrender, you -s, we have you surrounded"-and getting the reply from the trapped Japs, in perfect English, "Nerts to you, Joe!"

The American tank crews were forced to run down and trample into their foxholes smail bands of a Jap "suicide battalion" that had tried to land behind MacArthur's lines.

Yet, outside of these repelling skirmishes between bands of 100 to 300 of the enemy, and of frontal attacks in greater force, it was evident that MacArthur's position was ever-narrowing, ever-shrinking.

The Japanese land batteries had Forts Drum and Hughes and Mills under fire, and the duels between the huge guns of the forts and the more numerous field guns of the in-vaders continued with indecisive re-

Meantime, the average American, glowing with pride over the achievement of the men on Luzon, worried because no reinforcements had arrived, and prayed that help might come before the gallant defenders were hurled back on Corregidor and to ultimate surrender or perhaps evacuation in another "Dunkirk."

ATLANTIC:

Sinkings Grow

The torpedoing of the Swedish steamship Amerikaland, 15,355 tons, sent to the bottom, only 200 miles off New York harbor, one of the biggest freighters plying the seven seas, and raised the total of tonnage lost in the Atlantic to a high figure.

Yet the navy department assured Americans that many German subs were making it a "one-way" trip in their fight in the Atlantic, and that the Nazi navy was finding it an expensive war on the eastern ocean. Tragic was the loss of the submarine S-26 off the coast of Panama. The captain and three companions were on deck when the accident happened, and, helpless to aid the men trapped inside the submersible, had to watch their craft take a dive under the water, leaving them to swim. Three were picked up-one drowned. The rest of the crew died below at their stations, in 301 feet of water.

It did not seem that the American plan of keeping the sealanes open was like the British, to run ships in heavy convoys, for most of the sinkings reported were of "single birds" rather than groups of ships, as had been the record of British losses,

But they were, nevertheless, severe, and seemed to show that the Nazis were sending large numbers of submarines, some of them of the largest type, far across the ocean to attack coastwise vessels. They also seemed to be aiming particularly at tankers, and so many had been sunk that Petroleum Ad-ministrator Ickes began preparing the eastern states again for a likely shortage of gasoline and fuel oil.

An extra $8,000 a year . . . As the congress made ready the first $100,000,000 for civilian defense, the spotlight of publicity was turned on various appointees who would serve on Mrs. Roosevelt's section of the nation-wide OCD.

As a matter of fact, congressmen themselves were leaders in the criticism of the appointees at the very same time that they, themselves, were being lampooned and laughed at from coast to coast for taking action on a bill to put congressmen who had been defeated into the pension plan for civil service workers.

One group on the Pacific coast started a "bundles for congressmen" movement in an effort to laugh the bill into defeat.

But the OCD row not only involved the representatives themselves, but caused a mountain of mail to fall on Washington.

Mayris Chaney, a vaudeville dancer and protege and friend of Mrs. Roosevelt, named to a $4,600 job as children's activities director for physical fitness; and Melvyn Douglas, film-star named to an $8,000 job (while working) to direct the arts division of the setup, were the central figures of most of the criticism.

But some newspapers, leading the fight against Mrs. Roosevelt's group, began publishing lists and backgrounds, and one paper ran a cartoon which said, quoting Representative Faddis, "When the Dies committee exposes someone, that in-dividual immediately is given a

The word "boondoggling," which had not been bandled about on editorial pages for some years, made its appearance again, and congress-men leaders of the opposition de-clared their desks flooded with congratulatory mail.

ANZACS: Grim, Hustling

Australia and New Zealand, anxious over the trend of events as Japanese tentacles reached ever southward toward the great continent "down under," were grimly and the most determined war effort in their history. Another evidence that first-class and large American support was arriving in the area was seen in the announcement that an American, Vice Admiral H. F. Leary, had been appointed head of the naval forces operating in the Australia-New Zealand area. A new American naval command, officially titled "United States Naval Forces, Southwest Pacific." also was created. Vice Admiral William A. Glassford, it had been announced. had been placed in command of this force.

Both are in their fifties, Glassford a native of San Francisco and Leary of Washington. Both will serve under the general command of Admiral Hart, head of the naval portion of the Batavia headquarters, who in turn is under Admiral Nimitz, at least technically.

JAP SPIES:

Caught in Net

That the FBI had not been sleeping on its guns since December 7 has become evident in the announcement of a series of widespread raids on the Pacific coast.

One hundred agents of the FBI swooped down on a Japanese colony overlooking the upper army reservation of Fort MacArthur, near Los Angeles and took into custody a number of Japanese.

They also seized quantities of Axis propaganda, firearms, cameras, radios and other contraband. They found a revolver, 50 rounds of ammunition, Axis propaganda and other material hidden away in a secret place on one farm.

At the same time a group of four Japs was arrested near Portland, Ore., in the Bonneville dam area, and a considerable quantity of dynamite was found in their possession.

Six more Japanese were arrested at Portuguese Bend in southern California, and revolvers, rifles, motion picture cameras, radio equipment, flashlights and a large camera were seized.

RETIRE?

Short, Kimmel

Just when the nation was wondering whether or not a court-martial would be held to try General Short and Admiral Kimmel for their dereliction to duty in Hawaii, both officers simultaneously asked the army and navy for retirement.

Whether this would be the outcome of "Pearl Harbor" as far as the two men blamed for the disaster would be concerned remained prob

The biggest industrial job in history is being done because America has the electric POWER for the job!

The electric industry was ready when the crisis came. The business men who manage the nation's electric companies had built up power reserves in advance--and interconnected company systems so that power could be delivered almost anywhere overnight.

They were ready, too, to meet new demands with new construction. They added enough power in 1941 to light one-fourth of all the homes in the U.S. A.

We're glad that the electric industry has been able to help make Uncle Sam so powerful. We're determined to stick to the job until the blood-red sun has set and a new day follows darkness!

The Truth of It Is . . . This Cherry Torten Is Good! (See Recipes Below)

Washington Day Ideas

It took Washington to make the cherry famous by telling the truth about cutting down that famous tree, but it takes only a sampling to make us appreciate the excellence of this luscious red-ripe berry.

If you're sensitive to color, and most of you are, I am sure, then you can make the most of the possibilities which the cherry offers for pepping up winter mealtime. With appetites riding high, but opportunities for decoration fairly low in these coldmonths, the Washington birthday and its synonym the cherry, come to the rescue. All of today's recipes have "Umum" tacked onto them, so make your bids for fame by starting off with:

*Cherry Torten. (Serves 6 to 8) Torten Layer: 1 cup sifted flour 1/4 teaspoon salt

1 tablespoon sugar 1/4 cup butter 1 egg yolk, slightly beaten Combine flour, salt and sugar. Cut in butter with knives or pastry blender. Add beaten egg yolk and mix thoroughly. Press this mixture into baking dish or pie tin. Cover with cherry topping and bake in a hot (425-degree) oven for 15 min utes. Reduce heat to moderate (350 degree) for about 20 minutes. Serve hot or cold, with whipped or plain cream if desired.

Cherry Topping 1 No. 2 can red, tart, pitted cherries 1/2 cup sugar

4 tablespoons cornstarch 1 tablespoon butter

Drain juice from cherries. Heat to boiling point. Combine sugar and cornstarch. Add enough cold water to make a smooth paste. Pour this gradually into the boiling cherry juice and cook 5 minutes, stirring constantly. Remove from fire, add cherries and butter.

This upside down cake is as good as it looks because the cherries are interlaced with the delicious caramel mixture. You'll be extra clever for varying the dessert course with this upside down cake family for it's bound to carry off first honors: Cherry Upside Down Cake. 2 eggs

newcomer to the

34 cup sugar ¼ cup boiling water 34 cup cake flour 1/4 teaspoon salt 1/2 teaspoon baking powder

1 teaspoon lemon or orange extract 11/2 cups red, pitted cherries

1/4 cup butter 1/2 cup brown sugar Beat yolks until thick; add sugar gradually. Continue beating and add water. Mix well and add sifted

Lynn Says:

The cherry family is one with many branches. In addition to the red, tart pitted cherries which are abundant in the summer and which can easily be put up well in cans, there are two other types of cherries worthy of mention.

The first of these is a white type cherry commonly called Queen Anne. This lends itself well to salads and adds distine tive flavor especially when used in combination with other fruits such as pineapple, oranges, grapefruit and bananas, A little bit of the Queen Anne cheery goes a long way. The other type, called Bing cherries, are deep, dark red, and quite sweet. For that reason they are at home in desserts. They can be made into sauces and served over ice creams and puddry ingredients. Beat in thoroughly and fold in flavoring and stiffly beat-en egg whites. Melt butter in heavy skillet and add brown sugar. Over this spread cherries, then pour over cake batter. Bake 30 to 40 minutes in a moderate (350-degree) oven.

If you ever have cherries left over, you may thicken the juice with cornstarch mixed in water and heated to the boiling point. This is especially good on rice or cottage pudding or as a sauce over ice cream. Cherries and peaches are an inspired combination, especially in pie. You'll be enthusiastic over this one:

Peach Cherry Pie. 1 recipe plain pastry

¾ cup sugar 1/4 cup flour

11/2 cups canned tart red cherries 11/2 cups sliced peaches (canned) ¼ teaspoon almond extract ¼ cup juice from canned cherries

3 tablespoons butter Drain fruit. Mix flour and sugar and sprinkle 1/3 of the mixture in a ined pastry tin. Add fruit and cherry juice to which has been added the almond extract. Sprinkle fruit with remaining flour-sugar mixture. Dot with butter. Make lattice top for pie and flute edges. Bake in a hot (425-degree) oven 10 minutes, then in a moderate (350-degree) oven 25 minutes. Meat balls slim the budget and still remain a good main dish for dinners this season. They're nutritious and flavorful made with egg, milk and bread, and colorful with green peas riding in the rich brownish red gravy:

*Meat Balls. (Serves 6)

2 slices bread 34 cup milk 1 beaten egg % pound ground beef 1/4 cup ground pork Salt and pepper 2 tablespoons chili sauce 1 small onion, grated

2 cups strained tomatoes 1 teaspoon worcestershire sauce 1 cup peas, cooked

Soften bread in milk, add egg. Mix meats and add seasonings, salt, pepper, chili sauce and onion. Form into balls, roll in flour and brown in hot fat. Add tomato and worcestershire sauce and simmer for 35 minutes. Add peas and cook until they heat through,

Banana Muffins. (Makes 10 muffins) 2 tablespoons shortening ¼ cup sugar

1 cup flour

1/2 cup chopped banana l egg cup vitamin-enriched wheat flakes % cup milk

1/2 teaspoon salt 21/2 teaspoons baking powder Blend shortening and sugar, add chopped banana and egg and beat thoroughly. Stir in wheat flakes and milk. Sift dry ingredients and add to first mixture. Stir only until flour disappears. Fill greased muffin tins until % full and bake in a moderately hot (400-degree) over about 30 minutes. *Creamed Spinach.

Wash spinach leaves carefully under running water, being careful to remove all dirt. Boil without water 5 to 7 minutes or until tender. Drain and chop fine. Make a medium thick cream sauce, and blend into the chopped spinach until it becomes part of the leaves. Season to taste with salt, pepper and a little dash of nutmeg. As a garnish serve wedges or slices of hard-boiled egg around the spinach platter.

TOLLYWOOD may not see Tatharine Hepburn working before its cameras again for some time; she left when she finished "Woman of the Year" with no plans for making more pictures, but with plenty for doing that new play; if it runs as long as "Philadelphia Story" did she won't be ready for pictures again for more than two years.

Incidentally, Spencer Tracy-who also wants to do a play, if he can find the right one-had his hair cut for that new Hepburn picture, the first time he's done that since 1935, when he had a haircut for "Murder Man," which he made with Myrna Loy, think back and you'll remember that ie's been doing "unshaven and unshorn" roles, a long string of them.

Case investigators on the air's 'Are You a Missing Heir" program 'ravel thousands of miles and spend hundreds of dollars in search of those heirs - so imagine their surprise when a legatee turned up practically under their noses; she's Agatha Friederick, and is a script-writer for the agency handling the Heirs pro-

We know only that "the studio has made some concessions" in that difference of opinion between Deanna Durbin and Universal that's kept her off the screen all this time. Last Oqtober it was reported that she was demanding the right to choose her vehicles and approve her leading men and directors-when a star takes things into her own hands that way she's usually on the skids that lead to oblivion. Now she's set to make pictures again. Her husband, mind about his resignation as a Universal producer.

John Payne replaces Victor Mature in 20th Century Fox's "White Collar Girl," in which he plays opposite Betty Grable. The picture is scheduled to get under way soor with John Brahm directing.

It seems to be children's day at the Columbia studios. Baby Davy James, the infant Marlene Dietrich didn't drop in "The Lady Is Willing," has a new contract with options that cover a total of 21 years, now a year old, he's known professionally as "Wonder Baby Corey," his name in that picture. And 15-day-old Norma Jean Wayne is working in "Blondie's Blessed Event."

That bartender whom you'll see with Richard Arlen and Arline Judge in "Wildeat" once had his day as a famous man. He is Tom Kennedy, and once upon a time he fought Jack Johnson for the world's heavyweight championship.

Speaking of war pictures-Paramount bought a story called "Channel Port" way back last April, and now is going to do something about it. It will be filmed in England, and executives are hoping to get Laurence Olivier or David Niven for the lead. It's a Commando story; the hero's a long-distance swimmer, who swims the channel from France to England with important information.

Columbia grabbed the title, "The Commandos," first, however, their story deals with an American boy who becomes one of that daring band, and a girl in Norway who heads an underground movement against the invaders—one more "boy meets girl' plot, in a new setting.

"Bedtime Story" has a parallel in real life, Helen Hayes' announcement that she would retire for two years was contradicted by her husband, Charles MacArthur who has a new play for her. Same plot as the picture

ODDS AND ENDS-Band bookers are optimistic, despite the war-Sammy Kaye, for example, has been booked through January, 1943 A pre-view audience liked Donna Reed so much in "The Courtship of Andy Hardy" that the picture was given a new ending, a happy one for her . .
