Britain Debates Concessions to India As Pressure for Freedom Increases; New Jap Commander Heads Campaign Against MacArthur's Philippine Forces

(Released by Western Newspaper Union.)

BURMA: And India

With the British moving slowly but surely backward on the Burma front, and with many believing that the fall of Java might be a signal for heavier pressure against India, the puzzle of how the people of India would react to the necessity of defense was worrying Britain.

Many in England favored giving the Hindus dominion status, with Nehru as their head. Others thought the defense angle should be cleared before concessions were made. It had been conceded that General Wavell could hold India if he could get full co-operation.

SIR ARCHIBALD WAVELL
Needs full co-operation.

But reports from Burma had been disquieting. It seemed that largely the people were divided into two groups, those who were turning against the whites, and those who were going over to the Japs.

Some light on this situation had been thrown by India's agent in Washington, Sir Girja Bajpai, who though he declined to comment on Nehru's demands, or on the recent visit to Nehru and Gandhi by Chiang Kai-shek, he said this:

"I am positive the Indian army is loyal to the Crown."
How much this meant was open to much speculation. But British circles felt, apparently, that more than this would be necessary.

MAC ARTHUR: Loyal Natives

That there had been an extended period of quiet reported on Bataan did not mean that General MacArthur's men were unmindful that the fall of Java might well mean additional troops for them to face, and additional air force for them to combat.

Meanwhile the war department announced that the Japanese have assigned Lieut. Gen. Tomoyuki Yamashita to oppose MacArthur. Yamashita, conqueror of Malaya and Singapore, succeeds Lieut. Gen. Masaharu Homma, who is thought to have committed hara-kiri because of his failure to wipe out MacArthur's men.

Occasional dispatches had been filed quoting some members of the MacArthur forces as wanting to know "when the planes were coming" but the general himself was too busy thinking up ways of combating the Japs and keeping them guessing to have himself quoted as demanding anything in the way of reinforcements.

Yet he was constantly in touch, apparently, with what the enemy were doing, and this was taken in military circles as a hopeful sign, showing that the natives were remaining loyal.

One bit of information had come to Washington from Bataan that the Japs had landed men and tanks on Mindoro island, and this was taken as a sure indication that serious resistance to the invader had developed there.

As jungle fighters the Filipino was an excellent man, and his ability with the native knife, the nine-pound bolo, was such as to make him a terror to the Japs. MacArthur already had told Washington of the Japanese demand that the natives give up all such knives, further proof that even on occupied Luzon, the guerrillas were busy lopping down the numbers of the enemy.

MacArthur's great stand on Bataan caused many American newspaper writers to demand that we drop the slogan "Remember Pearl Harbor" and change it to "Remember MacArthur and Corregidor."

CHURCHILL:

Many American newspapers had been printing stories about the possibility that Churchill's tenure of office was by a relatively slender thread, and some went so far as to give him three months more, and others to state that Sir Stafford Cripps would succeed him.

To these stories London newspapers had been giving the raised eyebrow. One British writer said most British circles had been surprised to read of these reports, and that there was little or no truth in them.

TIRES: Real Shortage?

A New York rubber dealer had sharply criticized those who were taking the rubber right out from under American automobile owners, at least in prospect, and had declared, among other things, that there was a Connecticut manufacturer who, if given 2,000 tons of crude rubber, plus all the crepe rubber soles of shoes, could retread 35,000,000 tires this year.

He added that if this firm was not allowed to have the crude rubber he could do the same trick with reclaimed rubber.

He had challenged Leon Henderson's statement that the reclaiming rubber facilities of the nation could account only for 350,000 tons a year, and said:

"He overlooks that these facilities could quickly be expanded to a million tons or more by the simple re-fixing of machinery and in second-hand machinery now available."

This was hurling a bombshell into people's thinking, who had readily accepted Henderson's statement that the would would take a million cars off the roads by July, and that within a year some 12,000,000 autos might be demobilized.

Henderson had said that the government might even be forced to take tires from the cars of some owners and give them to others whose uses for their cars was "more essential."

The New Yorker, Elliott Simpson, went further. In his argument that it was not being done that should be in order to give the country a sufficient supply of rubber, he said there were "thousands of tons of wild rubber" in the upper Amazon country, and in parts of Central and South America.

As to rubber from guayule plants, which Henderson said there was "little chance" of realizing, Simpson

LEON HENDERSON
His statement challenged.

had declared that there were "millions of acres" of guayule in Mexico which could either be harvested and sent to the United States, or that rubber sheet factories could be set up in Mexico.

CONVOY: To Australia

A story from a British correspondent had electrified Americans with the news that our troops actually were being put in Australian bases, thus confirming the general belief that the Allied offensive from that direction was no pipe dream, but the basic military plan of the nation's war heads.

The censorship bureau had ordered the press not to disclose the port of entry, the size of the convoys, the number of troops, nor to identify the bases where they had been placed.

There were many who had become somewhat jittery because of the wording of the British dispatch which was the people's first information of what was transpiring. They had been thrilled to hear of the "hundreds of pilots," of the "bravny troops from the plains states," but they were fearful from the dispatch hinted that the Japanese navy was in contact with the convoys through "spearheads" and that naval battles "were in prospect."

But the information later given to the press by the censorship bureau had spoken as though the convoys already had arrived safely, and that the troops were ashore, in their bases, and with that the public performance had to be content.

Secretary Knox of the navy was considerably upset by the "news leak" that brought America word of its fleet and troop movement prior to any release from the navy department, and said that he was "investigating it with a great deal of vigor."

Oddly, the story had emanated from a British newspaper man who was riding with the convoy. Secretary Knox had been asked if he was taking up the matter with the British authorities. He replied: "We certainly are."

Back to U. S.

Upon his arrival in the United States via clipper ship, Admiral Thomas C. Hart, former commander-in-chief of the United Nations' naval forces in the Far East, said that he viewed the situation in that theater of war with "conservative optimism." Any prophesying I might do would be quite favorable," he said, "... when you lose a campaign you don't necessarily lose the war."

JAVA: Finis

The breakthrough of Japanese troops through the Bandoeng defense lines, and the coincident closing down of the radio station with a dramatic "Farewell until better times," the defense of Java had reached its apparent finish.

The review of the campaign showed "greatly superior" forces of Japanese, both from a naval and military standpoint, had crashed ashore on the east, the west and the north central portions of the island, and within 10 days had practically cut Java in two.

Early in the campaign the Dutch commanders had complained that there had not been enough naval, air or land support for their defense, and as the Japs swept inland there apparently had been a pretty hot scramble for the non-combatants to get away to Australia, and the Allies hoped that some of the United Nations' defending troops would have been able to make a getaway, also.

Hardly any observer had believed that Java could hold out long, but few had been prepared for the suddenness with which the defense had collapsed.

First intimation of the end was that the United Nations fleet had been forced to admit Japanese supremacy on the waters surrounding the islands; then it was conceded that the air forces of the island had been sniped under.

With land and sea and air defenses shattered, the end could not be long, it was then realized, and the Japs poured men into the island in sufficient numbers to drive all before them.

FARMERS: And Income Tax

Many thousands of American farmers who had never seen an income tax blank had stepped into Uncle Sam's offices this year and filled out their forms.

City folks, looking over Form 1040-F had read this note:

"The value of farm produce which is consumed by the farmer and his family need not be reported as income, but expenses incurred in raising this produce must not be claimed as deductions."

To city dwellers this seemed, perhaps, like "small potatoes" but in the aggregate it amounted to a "pretty penny" for the department of agriculture showed that farmers' families consumed in 1940 food worth $1,288,819,000.

Thus the average farm family is figured to eat $202 worth of food each year, and two-thirds of this they produce themselves.

The city dweller, however, eats an average of $314 in food each year, and has to buy it all out of income.

NELSON: And Ships

Swiftly following up the "blue" report of William Harrison, his production division head, who had said there had been disappointments in the ship production rate so far in 1942, Donald M. Nelson, WPB head, had told newsmen that the goal of 8,000,000 tons for this year will be met.

"In fact," he said, "we are trying to figure now how to beat that total. The whole nation is at stake. The ship program must not fall down. And it won't."

He had recently conferred with labor leaders about his demand that the ship industry increase its output 25 per cent by going entirely into 108-hour full weekly schedules.

Mr. Nelson said he had not recognized any lack of materials for shipbuilding industries.

MISCELLANY:

Rio de Janeiro: Brazil had placed Japanese diplomats under guard following reports from Tokyo that Brazil's envoys had been held incommunicado, and that the embassy had been occupied by the military.

Burma: American-made tanks were said to have arrived on the British fighting front near Rangoon. A second squadron of American volunteer fliers also had arrived.

HOUSEHOLD HINTS

Thickening for gravies or soups may be made quickly by beating equal amounts of flour and water into a small, deep bowl with an egg-beater until a smooth mixture is formed.

Don't run lamp cords under the rug. They wear out more quickly from being walked on, and present a fire hazard.

If you wish to serve your guests individual cakes, bake your cake in a loaf. When baked, cut it in squares, frost them on four sides and decorate the tops with walnuts.

Spiced beet slices or pickled carrots make piquant garnishes for the cold-meat platter. A few of each will do, along with a few sprigs of parsley.

Avoid handling electrical apparatus with wet hands. Always turn off the main switch before trying to repair outlets or lights. Disconnect cords before working on them.

A piece of charcoal kept on one of the shelves will remove all odor from your refrigerator.

Shabby leather upholstery may be revived by washing with a cloth wrung out in warm water, to which a little vinegar has been added. Polish can be restored after washing by rubbing with a mixture of the whites of two eggs beaten up with a dash of turpentine.

Love Notes to Grandmas

Women at Two Rivers, Wis., most of them married and some of them grandmothers, are receiving love-letters from young American soldiers.

When a local aluminum manufacturing company made army mess-tins during the 1914-18 war many girl workers slipped notes with their names and addresses into the metal containers.

Thousands of the mess-tins, unused at the time of their manufacture, are being distributed to the new United States army, and the notes are now bringing replies.

Assembly

Brother La Mond conducted our devotional period for Friday March 13. He opened his talk by reading the 28th Psalm. His subject was "What is God Like."
He said the God is like a shepherd. The color ceremony was given by the fifth grade in which the following participated: Bobby
Lee Hall, Johnny Eppers, Sidnes
Boren, Roy Stone, Paul Marshall and O. B. Bismarck.

Mrs. Watkins had charge of the main program with June Kirkpatrick acting as master of ceremonies. The program was a fine arts program and the theme was music. The entire high school group, Mrs. Moffitt, Mrs.
Oswford, Mrs. Dishman, Mrs.
Adamson, Miss Watkins, and Simmons took part. The first number was a song "Music in the Air" sung by the entire group.
The Swallow was then sung by the girls' chorus. Jane Ruth Hall played piano solo, Dallying in Diner. The boys' chorus then sang "The Walldog." The group then sang Miller's Hymn. Mrs.
Shovden played a violin solo accompanied by her son Jack on the piano. Mrs. Moffitt gave a story about the song. In the evening, after which she and
Mrs. Crawford sang this song.
The ladies' chorus sang the Rosary and the program was concluded by the group's singing
"Merry Life."

We were happy to have some visitors with us, and we invite them back again.

U. S. War Production Gains Momentum; Churchill Government Under Fire as Prime Minister Admits 'Heavy and Far-Reaching Defeat' in Singapore

(Released by Western Newspaper Union.)

Five months ahead of schedule, the twin destroyers, U.S.S. Butler (right) and the U.S.S. Gherardi, slide down the ways into the Delaware river at Philadelphia. The launching preceded by four days the completion of the 3,000-ton battleship Alabama at Portsmouth, Va. Secretary of the Navy Knox hailed the launching of the Alabama—nine months ahead of schedule—as the end of the "defense era" and the beginning of the "war era."

MATERIAL:

Rushed to Fronts

America was launching a warship every day and rushing men and material of warfare to all fronts as the determined national effort to win the war with superior military power gained momentum even as the black news from the Southwest Pacific and other areas continued to make American spirits even grimmer.

Stories from the fronts of one major setback or another vied for headline space with great stories of heroism from the same fronts of the men who were carrying the Stars and Stripes to action.

One week-end's schedule, on the home front, saw a 6,000-ton cruiser launched on Saturday, a destroyer on Sunday, and a 35,000-ton battleship on Monday.

Naval authorities pointed out that a launching day would soon be followed by the placing of a warship a day in commission.

At the same time, from half a dozen ports of embarkation, trainloads of tanks, guns and munitions of war were being sent into black-hulled merchant ships, to be conveyed to the scenes of action.

Coincidentally, President Roosevelt, in his White House office was conferring long hours with 11 military and naval experts of the world, putting teeth into the war effort.

Back of it all, from coast to coast, men in the newest registration were being called in the colors, to raise our army of 700,000 men to 3,600,000 or even more.

From the Ford plant in Detroit had come the first airplane engines produced after nearly a year of "tooling up" for this eventuality. Benson Ford and other engineers came to an eastern plane factory for the first tests.

The test planes soared aloft. In a few hours they were back. "Phenomenal" was the word they used about the performance.

The Ford engineers assured the factory heads that they would not want for engines for their ships from now on.

BLACK:

News of War

Much of the news of the war was gloomy. The fall of Singapore gave Churchill his heaviest headache since the fall of France. The prime minister admitted this "heavy and far-reaching defeat" in a broadcast to the world. Reverses in Libya and the escape of the Scharnhorst, Gneisenau and Prince Eugen from Brest heightened the gloom.

Why, screamed the British press. Why, echoed the "man in the street" throughout England. Why, re-echoed the commentators in the United States.

It was a triple-barreled question concerning the German warships. Why was not the British fleet capable of bottling up these ships? Why had 66 bombing attacks failed to damage them? Why had the British come out of the channel sea and air battle with 18 planes down against 18 for the Germans and with their carriers sailing safely off to the Heligoland light?

RUSSIANS:

Fight Out of Shoes

So fast and furiously were the Russians fighting, according to one of their own communiques, that their soldiers' "shoes were wearing out."

The Russians, however, admitted that the Nazi resistance was stiffening all along the line, and that many counter-attacks were being launched.

On the northern front, they said, German and Finnish ski troops took part in one of these attacks.

JOHORE:

And Singapore

The story of the Johore causeway, that granite pathway which connects Singapore with the mainland, was being pieced together from British admissions and Japanese claims, and was believed a major factor in the black military page in Britain's book that was the Malaya campaign.

The entire British defending army, believed clipped down to some 30,000-odd fighting men during the retreat down Malaya, was moved over the causeway to carry on the siege of Singapore.

Stories at the time related how the intrepid engineers remained until the last to blow up and destroy the causeway.

The Japs declared the British only "breached it" — making a brief break in the causeway which the little men from Nippon repaired by night, and then swarmed across to drive the British back.

A second time, nearly a week later, British artillery tore the causeway in two again.

And once more the Japs made the repairs and sent trucks and men on to the attack on the island.

The Japanese admitted "obstinate resistance," and "counter-attacks," but even the most sanguine British commentators considered the odds utterly prohibitive.

BROWN:

And Censors

Cecil Brown, radio broadcaster and war commentator from Singapore, had flown 2,900 miles from the besieged stronghold to Sydney, Australia to tell the world the reason for the blackly gloomy battle of Malaya.

Significant of the bitterness of Australia toward the British conduct of the Far Eastern preparations was the fact that Brown, barred from broadcasting at all over the Singapore radio because he wouldn't paint a rosy picture of things, was freely permitted to talk when he got on Australian territory.

His story was not pretty. It started way back in Penang, when the British, he said, evacuated only the white, leaving the natives to fend for themselves. When this information filtered through to the mainland, the British had plenty of troubles with the natives there, said Brown.

Then he took up the scorched earth policy, declaring that far from destroying everything, the retreating British had left one important air field so little damaged that the Japs were using it themselves five days after the British left it.

Singapore was being bravely defended while he had been speaking. He paid high tribute to the valor and fighting qualities of the British defenders.

But Singapore, he hinted, was Britain's Pearl Harbor—a story of complacency, of unreadiness, of not heeding warnings.

The Bombay (India) Chronicle added that Churchill's policy has been marked by indefensible complacency, unpreparedness and incompetence.

MISCELLANY:

Washington: Senator Vandenberg headed a group which demanded a probe of the Normandie disaster, calling it "second only to Pearl Harbor."

New Orleans: The famous Mardi Gras had been called off, and instead of the annual million-dollar spectacle, the populace marched to bond booths and loaned their money to Uncle Sam.

TIGERS:
U. S. Burma Pilots

Gen. Claire Chennault, leader of the American "Tiger" squadron on the Burma front, as his fliers downed 48 Jap planes in two days. Chennault became Chiang Kai-shek's air force advisor early in 1941.

Playing the game of war as college lads play football, General (Chinese Army) Clair Chennault, former Texas school teacher, and his American "Tiger" squadron flying for Chiang Kai-shek reported they had downed 185 Japanese planes during two months on the Burma front.

They were the boys assigned to keep the Burma road open and free from attacks by Jap bombers.

The Japs sent over a formation of 80. The Tigers got 48 of them in two days. Only three of their men were lost—in two planes.

All his pilots were trained in U. S. flying schools, and all held flying commissions with the U. S. army, being released before we went into the war to fight for China.

They were organized last summer. On Christmas they celebrated with a "bag" of 48 planes.

The first Jap flight of 60 planes went into flight with the Tigers pursuing them far back into Thailand, and downing nearly half of them. The Japs came back the next day with 70 planes, and again a squadron of 18 Tiger ships shot them to pieces, accounting for a two-day total of 48.

HEROES:

Of U. S. Jungles

The medal of the D.S.C. finally was awarded to one of the selectees in the first draft when General MacArthur pinned it on the chest of Sergeant Leroy C. Anderson of the tank corps, a lad from Milwaukee.

All Anderson did was to "eagerly request" permission to take his unit of small tanks and smash a nasty group of Japanese machine gun nests.

Permission was granted. Anderson didn't ask his mates to go where he would not, but made his own reconnaissance tour first. Then he moved with the other tanks to the attack.

The enemy guns and crews were wiped out. Anderson's own tank, in the forefront of the battle, was put out of action. He and his crew dismounted, continued the fight with rifles and grenades. He was slightly wounded.

Frank Hewlett, a correspondent who stayed with MacArthur's fighting heroes, wrote:

"Our boys have hurled back Japanese assaults that a few weeks before would have driven them into retreat."

"Our men are now seasoned warriors. They have been 'blooded' and have stood the test."

To the question of "where is the main Japanese naval strength?" the answer had come when Australian liars reported they had found them off the coast of New Britain island, 300 miles north of Australia.

At the same time American flying fortress planes had begun bombing attacks on Jap ships in the Macassar area, reported setting one large ship afire and having damaged another.

ECONOMIC:

Economy Demanded

Led by Senators Byrd and Tydings, a wave of criticism of non-defense spending had followed earlier attacks on OGD "boondoggling" and was meeting with considerable interest from people in general who were seeing one commodity after another taken from their reach by lack of supply.

Jesse Jones and Donald Nelson told the people that the rubber situation was indeed severe. Senator Brewster of Maine, in a statement, had promised the public that the Truman committee was conducting a rubber investigation which would "tear the lid off the situation."

Nelson's WPB ruled that all production of mechanical ice-boxes must stop April 30, the refrigerators following automobiles out of the public picture.

LaGuardia, having resigned from the OGD, proceeded to urge that most of the activities of Mrs. Roosevelt's end of the OGD be transferred to other agencies.

The WPB announced it was going into the "auto graveyards" of the country, to which hopeful owners of second-hand cars were looking for parts, in order to get scrap metal.

The petroleum situation, with many tankers sunk by U-boats on the eastern seaboard, was getting serious, and oil was starting to move by rail, 1,000 tank cars rolling over the rails daily.

A Birthday Cake With Candles—Goody!
(See Recipes Below)

Happy Returns

Birthdays the children have are the ones which they usually cherish most even though they may have bigger cakes and more candles in later years. So with this in mind, I'm including a few suggestions.

Cake 'n' ice cream are tops, and a bit of candy to sweeten the tooth dictate the party. The cake can be simple, decorated with a ten-cent pastry tube. If you don't want to take the time to spell out the letters, you can buy these for a nominal sum, and have a professional looking cake right out of your own kitchen.

Have the children send out their own invitations, even make them up if they like—this will be grand fun for them. Twirling crepe paper for decorations and getting the chairs in place will please them no end, for these, though small, will give them a wonderful sense of "doing something."

For the cake I've chosen an inexpensive but fascinatingly red

Devil's Food Cake.
(Makes 2 8-inch layers)
1½ cups sugar
¾ cup shortening
1 egg, beaten
4 tablespoons cocoa
1 teaspoon red food coloring
2 tablespoons strong, hot coffee
2 cups sifted cake flour
1 teaspoon salt
1 teaspoon soda
1 cup buttermilk
1 teaspoon vanilla

Cream shortening and sugar until light. Blend in egg which has been beaten until foamy. Mix cocoa, coloring and hot coffee into a smooth paste, stir into mixture. Sift flour, measure, then sift again with soda and salt. Add to mixture alternately with buttermilk, folding and beating after each addition. Add vanilla. Turn into two greased, waxed paper lined tins and bake in a moderate (350-degree) oven for 25 to 30 minutes. Ice with the following:

Magic Party Frosting.
2½ cups sifted powdered sugar
¾ cup sweetened, condensed milk
2¼ teaspoons vanilla
Dash of salt

Stir powdered sugar gradually into the sweetened, condensed milk. Add vanilla and salt. Beat until smooth and creamy. Spread on cold cakes. A clown's face for glamorize the cake, as shown in the picture, can be made with melted chocolate using a water-color paint brush.

Candy, not too rich, but honeyed and fruity, spell glamour for the children's party. Try substituting fruit and honey in candy to make it nutritious, but still good!

Fruit Candy.
¾ cup dried prunes
¾ cup dried apricots
¾ cup dried figs
¾ cup dates
¾ cup raisins
¾ cup honey

Let dried prunes and apricots stand in boiling water 5 minutes. Run all fruit through a food chopper, fine knife. Add honey. Butter hands and shape candy into balls. Roll in chopped nuts, coconut or coat with confectioner's chocolate.

Honeyed Orange Peel.
Remove peel in quarters from 6 oranges. Cover with water and boil

Lynn Says:

A birthday party's a real party with birthday games to play. Let the children play their favorite ones, and if they run out of ideas, try some of these:

Take the words, Greeting and Birthday, and give each of the guests paper and pencil. Ask players to fill in as many words as possible between each of the two letters. First words begin with B and end with G. Second words begin with R and end with I. Third words begin with R and end with E, and so forth. Allow 10 to 15 minutes for the game, and give prizes to those with longest lists.

Have children sit in a circle to play this game called Birthday Gifts. First player starts with letter A, and makes a sentence giving the name of the place he is going and the gift he is bringing. For example, he might say, "I am going to Appleton to get him an Anchovy, or to Bermuda to get him a Bon Bon," and so forth down the alphabet. No words should be repeated.

Guests can also make a scrapbook together, cutting out magazines and papers to make an autobiography for the guest of honor. Include place of birth, pictures of mother and dad, school, vacation trips, etc.

½ hour. Drain. Cover again with water. Boil ½ hour longer or until tender. Drain. Cut peel in strips with scissors. Cover with honey (2 to 3 cups). Simmer gently until peel is clear, about 45 minutes. Spread on waxed paper to dry for several days. Roll in granulated sugar if desired.

Dress up the party with this gay, good-to-eat pop corn balls. The children will enjoy making them, too:

Pop Corn Balls.
(Makes 24 balls)
3 cups sugar
1 cup corn syrup
1 cup water
5 quarts pop corn
1½ tablespoons butter

Cook sugar, syrup, and water until the syrup reaches 242 degrees, or makes a soft ball when tried in cold water. Add butter and stir through the syrup. Pour cooked syrup over salted pop corn which has been placed in a buttered bowl and mix well. Shape balls with hands, using only enough pressure to make them stick together.

The fresh tempting and distinctive flavor of perch makes this a nice fish for dinner. Plus that, it fries in no time at all and spares you of any disagreeable odors in the making:

Perch Filets.
Dip fish filets in slightly beaten egg, then in bread crumbs to which have been added salt and pepper. Fry in shallow hot fat until just a golden brown, and serve immediately. The whole process takes less than 15 minutes.

As new, fresh and lovely as spring itself is this cabbage dish done to a turn with its food affinities, onions and tomatoes. Be clever with cabbage this way and your table will be gay and bright in glorious red and green, and your family surely will be pleased:

Cabbage Creole.
(Serves 6)
3 pounds shredded cabbage
3 teaspoons salt
1 cup thinly sliced onions
½ minced green pepper
2 cups canned tomatoes
3 tablespoons salad oil
2 bay leaves
1 teaspoon sugar
Dash of cloves

Cook cabbage in a small amount of boiling, salted water about 7 minutes. Drain well. While cabbage is cooking, saute onions in hot fat until light brown, then add tomatoes, pepper, bay leaf, sugar and cloves. Simmer 15 minutes. Remove bay leaves, toss sauce over cabbage.

Utilities Co. Advises

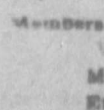

Factories that once hummed busy as a bee turning out electric appliances today are roaring like a lion following conversion to the manufacture of war materials. Hence, the West Texas Utilities foresees a time when rationing will be applied to all appliances, in addition to refrigerators; a day when floor sweepers, irons and similar items will become as hard to get as a new tire or a 100 lbs of sugar.

So the company is advising you "be good to your electric appliances and they'll be good to you." Refrigerators are vital to the conservation and protection of food and, therefore, steps should be taken to keep them in good repair and to prevent unnecessary deterioration. Most all appliances, it was said, are important in maintaining civilian morale, performing many household tasks and allowing more time for war efforts.

Special care was urged for all appliance parts and cords for lamps in which rubber or copper is used.

Hedley to Have Sweet Potato Curing Plant

We are converting the M & M store building into a curing plant and will have ample room to cure an extra several thousand bushels of sweet potatoes. With our sandy land in this county and the season we have we should make a bumper crop this year. Sweet potatoes are always a good price when properly cured and with the war on we should be able to sell every bushel at a good price. Three acres of sweet potatoes will be equal to a good cotton crop. Why not diversify as other farmers are going to do. You raise the sweet potatoes and you can count on us to cure and store them for you. If you are interested we will be glad to help you in any way we can as to where to get the seed potatoes, slips and the best kind to plant for the market. This is a real opportunity to get off of cotton alone; raise something to eat and you can't lose.
