FARM DAY:

Vital Goals Tuesday, January 12, has been proclaimed by President Roosevelt as Farm Mobilization day. On this day meetings are to be held throughout the nation to determine ways and means "of ensuring for the year 1943 the maximum production of vital foods."

Farmers are being asked on that day to gather with department of agriculture officials, extension service agents, vocational teachers, farm organizations and others concerned to discuss plans for meeting the high food production goals for the 1943 crop year. President Roosevelt praised the farmers for their production of record maximum harvests in the past three years and declared that every pound of food finds use in wartime.

"Food," he said, "is no less a weapon than tanks, guns and planes. As the power of our enemies decreases, the importance of the food resources of the United Nations increases. With this thought in mind, we must further mobilize our resources for the production of food."

In a sudden flanking movement advanced forces of the British army reached Wadi Matratin, 55 miles west of El Agheila on the Gulf of Sirte. From there, units of the Montgomery army sliced off to the south, cutting Remmel's army in two, one force continuing its westward flight, the other caught between the British main army and the British advanced

Included in the enemy troops cut off were armored forces which, in desperate maneuvers to escape, suffered heavy casualties and "continued to be severely mauled," the Middle Eastern command communique stated. The main eighth army was shoving ahead, forcing its way through mine fields laid by the retreating Germans, eager to get at the trapped troops.

MEAT QUOTA:

Cut to 35 Ounces

Upon orders from government food authorities, the per capita supply of meat for civilians has been reduced from the present limit of 40 ounces to 35 ounces a week during the first three months of 1943.

The orders were issued by Price Administrator Leon Henderson on the recommendation of Secretary of Agriculture Claude Wickard, the new food chief.

Civilian supplies of pork, veal, lamb and mutton were ordered cut approximately 13 per cent. Beef supplies will continue to be restricted at the present level. Restrictions are voluntary at present and consumers are being asked to limit themselves to 40 ounces a week until the first of the year, when the voluntary ration will be reduced by five ounces Slaughterers who kill more than 500,000 pounds a quarter have been limited to 70 per cent of the 1941 level for beef, pork and veal, and to 75 per cent for lamb and mutton.

In the see-saw battle of Russia the course of warfare appeared to favor once more the Red army as an official communique announced the capture of five additional strong points in the Rzhev sector on the central front. It told, too, of the repulse of a heavy Nazi counterattack in the area southwest of Saalin-

In their counterdrive at Kotelnikovski, 90 miles southwest of Stalingrad, the Axis armies attempted to throw back the flank of the Russian forces south of the Don river and break through the Russian trap. The attacks were led by tanks, dive bombers and motorized infantry. Red Star, Soviet army newspaper, said many Axis troops were slaugh-tered and the attacks were hurled back decisively.

To the west of Stalingrad the Red army was said to be widening the broad barrier they had made between the Nazis on the banks of the Don and those Capped near Stalingrad. During the Russian drive on the central front, which took seven more villages, two battalions of German infantry were reported wiped out. A communique reported that near Vilikie Luki, Russian troops beat off a German attempt to break through the lines to help a surrounded Nazi garrison and destroyed Nazi equipment.

SCHOOL BELLS:

In Wartime

America's system of higher education is headed for some profound and sweeping changes under plans now released by the army and navy to train youths between 17 and 22 for specialized military duties.

Scheduled to begin in February the new setup for high school and college youths would be put into operation in several hundred colleges and universities throughout the nation. Students now in high school and college would fit into the program at the time they were called up for military training and virtually every youth over 17 in school would be affected.

As outlined in joint army-navy statement made in Chicago the plan calls for these major developments: Mobilization of a selected number of colleges and universities for training soldiers in military-directed

2. Enlisted soldiers now having completed their basic training (or about to complete) will be selected, if qualified, for specialized training when the plan is first set in motion. 3. A cadet system will be organized for the selected colleges and military training will thus be giv-en but it will be subordinated to academic instruction.

4. When soldiers complete any phase of the specialized training at these schools they will do one of four things: (a) be given further training in officer's candidate school (b) returned to the troops; (c) recommended for technical noncom-

for advanced technical training. Meanwhile the navy will be selecting high-school graduates or those with equivalent qualifications for induction as apprentice seamen or ma-rine privates. Placed on active duty with pay these youths will attend designated schools.

U. S. GOAL: Double Axis Output

The War Production board's goal for 1943 calls for a production rate by the end of the year estimated to be twice as great as that of the Axis nations. More than $90,000,-000,000 worth of American weapons will be manufactured in 1943. U.S.

war production in 1942 equals that of all the Axis countries, the WPB reported. The United Nations are out-producing the Axis almost two to one at present.

A SERIES OF SPECIAL ARTICLES BY THE LEADING WAR CORRESPONDENTS

Red Tape ... Enemy

By Lieut.-Gen. Brehon Somervell

(WNU Feature-Through special arrangement with American Magazine) Red Tape is slowing down our war effort, and if we don't cut and burn every shred of it, we may yet lose this war. Men and women sit smugly at home and are shocked by newspaper reports that red tape is delaying deliveries of vital war material. But in their own homes, and in millions of similar homes, red tape is getting in its dastardly work.

The housewife's red tape may be in her housekeeping methods. She finds it "impossible" to alter her menus to fit food shortages, so she becomes a hoarder. She must dust the guest room every Wednesday, so if the Red Cross meets on Wednesday, she can't possibly go. Habit binds her husband to golf or poker dates, so he continues to buy luxuries he thinks are necessities and can't spare money for war

In nearly every store and office old methods of procedure are wasting man hours. Many a business could release men and women for war work, if unnecessary forms, reports, letters and conferences were

There is too much paper work in government, but government isn't the only horrible example.

No matter where you live, you would hotly resent it if you were told that your state, and perhaps your city, was holding up the war effort. Yet dozens of states and hundreds of cities, are tangled in reo tape that prevents them from changing peacetime laws to fit wartime

State Laws Hamper. State taxes on war contracts definitely cramp our war effort. Different sets of state laws on truck loads, length of trucks, drivers licenses, weight and gasoline taxes, delay truck shipments. Truck drivers have been sent to jail for technical violations, and munitions of war have been held up because local authorities weren't big enough to cut red tape. There are state and local regulations on building, excellent in normal times, but hindrances in war. missioned officers or (d) detailed Building codes force extravagant use of strategic materials. State laws require long-drawn hearings by public utility commissions before new bus lines can start hauling workers to plants. Most states boast food public health laws applying to milk, but they were written before hundreds of thousands of soldiers moved into these states. In some of them, all the milk legally obtainable is not enough for the army.

Few persons who are tangled in red tape realize their dilemma even when their best friends tell them. They protest: "You've got to do it this way. We've got a system. We have to use it."

To such persons, I like to relate an old story about a man who sold an elaborate system of forms and files to a manufacturer. After a few months the salesman returned and asked: "How's the system

"Wonderful," said the manufacturer.
"How's business?" asked the "Business?" the manufacturer repeated. "Oh, there isn't any. We've all been too busy running the system to bother with business."

Red tape generally is defined as customs, rules, and procedures that cause unnecessary delay. It is everywhere-for it is a state of mind as well as a method of procedure. Red tape is the act of postponing decisions, taking your time, playing safe, following routine, stifling initiative, quitting when the whistle blows, business as usual, politics, picnics and golf as usual.

This war is total war. That means that every ounce of muscle and brain in every able-bodied man and woman must be used. It means that we must discard everything that doesn't help win the war.

We have only one objective, and we must evade, ignore, erase and knock out all rules, restrictions and habits that get in our way.

The army's Service of Supply this year will spend approximately 32 billion dollars.

Sometimes we have bungled details, sometimes we've been too slow to make up our minds, sometimes red tape has bound us so tight that we've found ourselves running as though we were in a three-legged race. But we're doing a job. We're delivering machinery, food and weapons in ever-mounting quantities.

The other government departments are doing a job, too. So are labor, management and industry. But all of us have more red tape to cut. When it no longer binds America's hands, the speed of our war production will be increased.

WHAT'S been happening to that feminine lead in Metro's version of the stage success, "Best Foot Forward," is like the old game of "Button, Button." Lana Turner was announced for the role, then she was out and Lucille Ball was assigned to it. Then Miss Turner got it, and Miss Ball was out. After which there was another shuffle, and now-this seems final-it's Lucille's.

The role of "Smitty" in "Cry Havoc," that story of the nurses on Bataan, is another one that's been in doubt. Merle Oberon, Greer Garson-one top notcher after another was suggested for it. The beautiful Greer couldn't do it and really didn't care. She's to be co-starred with Walter Pidgeon again, which makes the third time, in "Madame Curie," based on the lives of the famous scientists. Merle Oberon and Joan Crawford head the cast of "Cry Havoc," with Mervyn Leroy directing.

Samuel Goldwyn's had to borrow "Gone With the Wind" flag. A Confederate banner was needed for "They Got Me Covered," the Bob Hope-Dorothy Lamour picture, but the flag-makers said that all bunting and material were going into modern emblems and nothing could be done about making one.

Melvyn Douglas has got what he wanted-he's a private in the army now. Which means that a new leading man had to be rounded up for "Gaslight," starring Irene Dunne. And Columbia's "Port Said," it's said, has had to be put on the shelf, unless someone else can be found to take the Douglas role. Gone are the days when leading men were a dime a dozen in Hollywood!

It's a long jump from tent shows to the role of "St. Bernadette" in "The Song of Bernadette," but Jennifer Jones, a newcomer to the screen, has made it. She's been in Hollywood just since last February; David O. Selznick is responsible for her discovery.

It's announced that Orson Welles is going to do a spot of acting again, this time in 20th Century-Fox's "Jane Eyre," as "Rochester"—and it's to be hoped that audiences won't giggle in remembrance of Jack Benny's valet whenever the name is spoken. Joan Fontaine has the title role. That picture Welles worked on in Brazil, "It's All True," is still unfinished.

"Der Fuehrer's Face," the song hit that has made so many of us laugh, was written specially for Walt Disney's picture of that name in just one hour and a half-the composer, Oliver Wallace, says so. Disney had outlined his idea for a picture, and Wallace remembered a few arrogant phrases from Hit-ler, Goebbels and Goering, sat himself down and dashed off the song.

Sammy Kaye recently relebrated the first year's anniversary of his song, "Remember Pearl Harbor," by donating another $1,000 royalty check to the Navy Relief society. That makes the tidy little sum of $4,000 that the song has brought them.

Joan Davis' first song, written with Dick Mack, producer of the Rudy Vallee program on which she is featured, has been recorded by Donald Dickson and a full orchestra, and may soon be spotted in a motion picture; it's titled "A Day Closer to Victory."

Soup . . . Serve It Hot and Savory! (See Recipes Below)

Savory Soups

Soup makes the meal! It used to mean that soup set tone to what was to come during the meal, but I'm willing to wager that soup will be the meal on many of these wintry days. It can be quick and easy to fix, yet nourishing and full-bodied in flavor. Serve substantial soup as a main course for a luncheon or dinner with a salad crammed with vitamins and minerals, and a dessert.

Green split peas have long been a favorite ingredient of soup. Here they are combined with salami. Other kinds of substitutes of meats or left-over ham may be effectively substituted if you so desire. *Split Pea and Salami Soup.

(Serves 6) 11/2 cups green split peas 41/2 cups cold water 1 oup sliced onions 1 cup diced celery 11/2 téaspoons salt ½ pound salami 3 eups milk Salt to suit taste

Dash black pepper Soak peas in cold water for 2 hours, in large kettle; add onions, celery, and 11/2 teaspoons of salt. Bring to boiling point, cover, and ally. Remove outer covering from salami and cut in small cubes or strips; add to soup (saving a few pieces for garnish). Simmer 30 minutes longer. Add milk and pepper and additional salt to suit taste. Bring to boiling point. Serve with melba toast or crisp crackers.

It's a nice custom to serve just an old-fashioned Brown Onion Soup with its garnish of toasted rye bread and cheese. Onion Soup. (Serves 8) 6 (1 pound) onions tablespoons butter quart soup stock slices bread

3 tablespoons grated cheese Cut onions into 1/8-inch slices. Cook slowly in butter until tender and slightly browned, stirring constantly. Add soup stock, heat to boiling point, boil 2 or 3 minutes. Toast bread, put toasted cubes in each soup plate, cover with 2 tablespoons cheese. Pour the hot soup over all and serve with additional cheese if

Lynn Says:

Spots and Stains: Holidays bring with them the inevitable stains on your linens. Since you can't avoid stains, be prepared to know what to do about them. The American Institute of Laundering releases the information that the best way to take care of cranberry stains is to spread the cloth over a bowl and pour hot water on the stain from a height sufficient to allow the water to strike the cloth forcefuly. It may interest you to know that raw cranberries weaken the strength of the cloth 25 per cent, whereas cooked cranberries only weaken it 21.1 per cent to 22.4 per cent.

Coffee stains, cocoa, and fruit juice stains wash out if the cloth is allowed to stand in a solution of cold dilute potassium permanganate for a minute or two. If the stain remains, reduce it further with an application of warm solution of scdium hydrosulfite. Milk, cream and ice cream stains are best treated by being soaked in cool suds before washing in hot water. For candle grease stains, use a solvent such as carbon tetrachloride, sponging it on with a small pad of cotton on the cloth under which a blotter has been placed. Pat lightly but do not rub solvent.

FARM DAY: Vital Goals

Tuesday, January 12, has been proclaimed by President Roosevelt as Farm Mobilization day. On this day meetings are to be held throughout the nation to determine ways and means "of ensuring for the year 1943 the maximum production of vital foods."

Farmers are being asked on that day to gather with department of agriculture officials, extension service agents, vocational teachers, farm organizations and others concerned to discuss plans for meeting

the high food production goals for the 1943 crop year. President Roosevelt praised the farmers for their production of record maximum harvests in the past three years and declared that every pound of food finds use in wartime. "Food," he said, "is no less a weapon than tanks, guns and planes. As the power of our enemies decreases, the importance of the food resources of the United Nations increases. With this thought in mind, we must further mobilize our resources for the production of food."

RUSSIA:

See-Saw Battle

In the see-saw battle of Russia the course of warfare appeared to favor once mome the Red army as an official communique announced the capture of five additional strong points in the Rzhev sector on the central front. It told, too, of the re-pulse of a heavy Nazi counterattack in the area southwest of Saalingrad.

In their counterdrive at Kotelnikovski, 90 miles southwest of Stalingrad, the Axis armies attempted to throw back the flank of the Russian forces south of the Don river and break through the Russian trap. The attacks were led by tanks, dive bombers and motorized infantry. Red Star, Soviet army newspaper, said many Axis troops were slaughtered and the attacks were hurled back decisively.

To the west of Stalingrad the Red army was said to be widening the broad barrier they had made between the Nazis on the banks of the Don and those Capped near Stalingrad. During the Russian drive on the central front, which took seven more villages, two battalions of German infantry were reported wiped out. A communique reported that near Vilikie Luki, Russian troops beat off a German attempt to break through the lines to help a surrounded Nazi garrison and destroyed Nazi equipment.

SCHOOL BELLS:

In Wartime

America's system of higher edu-cation is headed for some profound and sweeping changes under plans now released by the army and navy to train youths between 17 and 22 for specialized military duties.

Scheduled to begin in February the new setup for high school and college youths would be put into operation in several hundred coleges and universities throughout the nation. Students now in high school and college would fit into the program at the time they were called up for military training and virtually every youth over 17 in school would be affected.

As outlined in joint army-navy statement made in Chicago the plan calls for these major developments: 1. Mobilization of a selected number of colleges and universities for training soldiers in military-directed

2. Enlisted soldiers now having completed their basic training (or about to complete) will be selected, if qualified, for specialized training when the plan is first set in motion.

3. A cadet system will be organized for the selected colleges and military training will thus be given but it will be subordinated to academic instruction.

4. When soldiers complete any phase of the specialized training at these schools they will do one of four things: (a) be given further (b) returned to the troops; (c) recommended for technical noncommissioned officers or (d) detailed for advanced technical training. Meanwhile the navy will be selecting high-school graduates or those with equivalent qualifications for induction as apprentice seamen or marine privates. Placed on active duty with pay these youths will attend designated schools.

U. S. GOAL:

Double Axis Output

The War Production board's goal for 1943 calls for a production rate by the end of the year estimated to be twice as great as that of the Axis nations. More than $90,000,-000,000 worth of American weapons will be manufactured in 1943. U.S. war production in 1942 equals that of all the Axis countries, the WPB reported. The United Nations are out-producing the Axis almost two to one at present.

'VICTORY':

"Victory," a picture magazine designed for free distribution in foreign countries, will be published by the government, the Office of War Information has announced.

The propaganda magazine will be published every two months in several languages, but will not be distributed within the United States. Advertising revenue will go to defray the cost of publication, officials said.

Red Tape ... Enemy

By Lieut.-Gen. Brehon Somervell (WNU Feature—Through special arrangement with American Magazine)

Red Tape is slowing down our war effort, and if we don't cut and burn every shred of it, we may yet lose

Men and women sit smugly at home and are shocked by newspaper reports that red tape is delaying deliveries of vital war material. But in their own homes, and in millions of similar homes, red tape is getting in its dastardly work.

The housewife's red tape may be in her housekeeping methods. She finds it "impossible" to alter her menus to fit food shortages, so she becomes a hoarder. She must dust the guest room every Wednesday, so if the Red Cross meets on Wednesday, she can't possibly go. Habit binds her husband to golf of poker dates, so he continues to buy luxuries he thinks are necessities and can't spare money for war bonds.

In nearly every store and office old methods of procedure are wasting man hours. Many a business could release men and women for war work, if unnecessary forms, reports, letters and conferences were eliminated.

There is too much paper work in government, but government isn't the only horrible example. No matter where you live, you would hotly resent it if you were told that your state, and perhaps your city, was holding up the war effort. Yet dozens of states and hundreds of cities, are tangled in reo tape that prevents them from changing peacetime laws to fit wartime

State Laws Hamper.

State taxes on war contracts definitely cramp our war effort. Different sets of state laws on truck loads, length of trucks, drivers licenses, weight and gasoline taxes, delay truck shipments. Truck drivers have been sent to jail for technical violations, and munitions of war have been held up because local authorities weren't big enough to cut red tape.

There are state and local regulations on building, excellent in normal times, but hindrances in war. Building codes force extravagant use of strategic materials. State laws require long-drawn hearings by public utility commissions before new bus lines can start hauling workers to plants.

Most states boast food public health laws applying to milk, but they were written before hundreds of thousands of soldiers moved into these states. In some of them, all the milk legally obtainable is not enough for the army. Few persons who are tangled in red tape realize their dilemma even when their best friends tell them. They protest: "You've got to do it this way. We've got a system. We have to use it." To such persons, I like to relate an old story about a man who sold an elaborate system of forms and files to a manufacturer. After a few months the salesman returned "How's the system and asked:

working?" "Wonderful," said the manufac-

"How's business?" asked the salesman. "Business?" the manufacturer repeated. "Oh, there isn't any. We've all been too busy running the sys-tem to bother with business." Red tape generally is defined as customs, rules, and procedures that cause unnecessary delay. It is everywhere-for it is a state of mind as well as a method of procedure. Red tape is the act of postponing decisions, taking your time, playing safe, following routine, stifling initiative, quitting when the whistle business as usual, politics, picnics and golf as usual. This war is total war. That means that every ounce of muscle and brain in every able-bodied man and woman must be used. It means that we must discard everything that doesn't help win the war.

We have only one objective, and we must evade, ignore, erase and knock out all rules, restrictions and habits that get in our way. The army's Service of Supply this year will spend approximately 32 billion dollars. Sometimes we have bungled details, sometimes we've been too slow to make up our minds, sometimes red tape has bound us so tight that we've found ourselves running as though we were in a three-legged race. But we're doing a job. We're delivering machinery, food and weapons in ever-mounting quantities. The other government departments are doing a job, too. So are labor, management and industry. But all of us have more red tape to cut. When it no longer binds America's hands, the speed of our war production will be increased.

WHAT'S been happening to that feminine lead in Metro's version of the stage success, "Best Foot Forward," is like the old game of "Button, Button." Lana Turner was announced for the role, then she was out and Lucille Ball was assigned to it. Then Miss Turner got it, and Miss Ball was out. After which there was another shuffle, and now-this seems final—it's Lucille's.

The role of "Smitty" in "Cry Havoc," that story of the nurses on Bataan, is another one that's been in doubt. Merle Oberon, Greer Garson-one top notcher after another was suggested for it. The beautiful Greer couldn't do it and really didn't care. She's to be co-starred with Walter Pidgeon again, which makes the third time, in "Madame Curie," based on the lives of the famous scientists. Merle Oberon and Joan Crawford head the cast of "Cry Havoc," with Mervyn Leroy directing.

Samuel Goldwyn's had to borrow a "Gone With the Wind" flag. A Confederate banner was needed for "They Got Me Covered," the Bob Hope-Dorothy Lamour picture, but the flag-makers said that all bunting and material were going into modern emblems and nothing could be done about making one.

Melvyn Douglas has got what he wanted-he's a private in the army now. Which means that a new leading man had to be rounded up for "Gaslight," starring Irene Dunne. And Columbia's "Port Said," it's said, has had to be put on the shelf, unless someone else can be found to take the Douglas role. Gone are the days when leading men were a dime a dozen in Hollywood!

It's a long jump from tent shows to the role of "St. Bernadette" in "The Song of Bernadette," but Jennifer Jones, a newcomer to the screen, has made it. She's been in Hollywood just since last February; David O. Selznick is responsible for her discovery.

It's announced that Orson Welles is going to do a spot of acting again, this time in 20th Century-Fox's "Jane Eyre," as "Rochester"—and it's to be hoped that audiences won't giggle in remembrance of Jack Benny's valet whenever the name is spoken. Joan Fontaine has the title role. That picture Welles worked on in Brazil, "It's All True," is still unfinished.

"Der Fuehrer's Face," the song hit that has made so many of us laugh, was written specially for Walt Disney's picture of that name in just one hour and a half—the composer, Oliver Wallace, says so. Disney had outlined his idea for a picture, and Wallace remembered a few arrogant phrases from Hit-ler, Goebbels and Goering, sat himself down and dashed off the song.

Sammy Kaye recently celebrated the first year's anniversary of his song, "Remember Pearl Harbor," by donating another $1,000 royalty check to the Navy Relief society. That makes the tidy little sum of $4,000 that the song has brought

Joan Davis' first song, written with Dick Mack, producer of the Rudy Vallee program on which she is featured, has been recorded by Donald Dickson and & full orchestra, and may soon be spotted in a motion picture; it's titled "A Day Closer to Victory."

Cleo Manning, younger sister of Lucille Ball, starts her picture career in "The More the Merrier," which stars Jean Arthur and Joel McCrea... Jerry Hauser, who a few months ago was the voice of Lum and Abner's foundling baby on the air, is now an aerial photographer in the army . . Soup . . . Serve It Hot and Savory! (See Recipes Below)

Savory Soups

Soup makes the meal! It used to mean that soup set tone to what was to come during the meal, but I'm willing to wager that soup will be the meal on many of these wintry days. It can be quick and easy to fix, yet nourishing and full-bodied in flavor. Serve substantial soup as a main course for a luncheon or dinner with a salad crammed with vitamins and minerals, and a dessert. Green split peas have long been favorite ingredient of soup. Here they are combined with salami. Other kinds of substitutes of meats or left-over ham may be effectively substituted if you so desire. *Split Pea and Salami Soup. (Serves 6) 11/2 cups green split peas 41/2 cups cold water 1 oup sliced onions 1 cup diced celery 11/2 teaspoons salt

½ pound salami 3 cups milk Salt to suit taste Dash black pepper Soak peas in cold water for 2 hours, in large kettle; add onions, celery, and 11/2 teaspoons of salt. Bring to boiling point, cover, and ally. Remove outer covering from salami and cut in small cubes or strips; add to soup (saving a few and cheese. Onion Soup. (Serves 8) 6 (1 pound) onions tablespoons butter quart soup stock slices bread 3 tablespoons grated cheese

Cut onions into 1/4-inch slices. Cook slowly in butter until tender and slightly browned, stirring constantly. Add soup stock, heat to boiling point, boil 2 or 3 minutes. Toast bread, put toasted cubes in each soup plate, cover with 2 tablespoons cheese. Pour the hot soup over all and serve with additional cheese if

Lynn Says:

Spots and Stains: Holidays bring with them the inevitable stains on your linens. Since you can't avoid stains, be prepared to know what to do about them. American Institute of Laundering releases the information that the best way to take care of cranberry stains is to spread the cloth over a bowl and pour hot water on the stain from a height sufficient to allow the water to strike the cloth forcefully. It may interest you to know that raw cranberries weaken the strength of the cloth 25 per cent, whereas cooked cranberries only weaken it 21.1 per cent to 22.4 per cent.

Coffee stains, cocoa, and fruit juice stains wash out if the cloth is allowed to stand in a solution of cold dilute potassium permanganate for a minute or two. If the stain remains, reduce it further with an application of warm solution of sedium hydrosulfite. Milk, cream and ice cream stains are best treated by being soaked in cool suds before washing in hot water. For candle grease stains, use a solvent such as carbon tetrachloride, sponging it on with a small pad of cotton on the cloth under which a blotter has been placed. Pat lightly but do not rub solvent.

A piquant and colorful salad to serve with a soup combines winter vegetables with a sharp french dressing and goes well with soup.

*Celery Slaw. (Serves 4) 1 cup celery, diced 1 cup cooked beets, diced 11/2 cups cabbage, shredded 2 tablespoons onion, minced 14 cup french dressing

Salt and pepper to taste Combine celery, beets, cabbage, onion, french dressing, salt and pepper. Chill. Serve in lettuce cups. Garnish with hard-cooked egg. If you're too busy to make meat stock out of a meat bone and vege-tables, called for in some of the soups, make a bouillon, by dissolving one of the concentrated cubes in boiling water. For quicky soups combine some of your favorite canned soups like tomato and green pea, mushroom and chicken, bean and tomato, roushroom and celery, etc. Try topping soups with a dash of paprika, chopped parsley, popcorn, grated cheese, toasted bread cubes, and swirls of whipped cream.

Wrong Nose

George Bernard Shaw once attended a sold-out performance of "Caesar and Cleopatra," and was obliged to watch the performance while standing at the back. A stranger who was standing just behind the world-famous playwright persisted in poking his head over Shaw's shoulder. Taking out his handkerchief, Shaw applied it to the man's nose. The man, with an angry exclamation, jerked back his head. "I beg your pardon," said Gather Your Scrap; Shaw, with mock concern, "I thought it was mine, you know."
