If you have any doubts about the shortage of new passen-ger car tires, a recent statement by a government agency that knows the situation should clear your mind. It points out that less than one new tire for each car on the road will be produced in 1944, even if the industry is able to achieve the goal of 22 million passenger car tires.

Tire care is imperative now, par-ticularly with users of truck and bus casings. Stocks are low, and it is estimated that during the latter part of the year there will be a shertage of 25,000 tires a month to meet reement requirements on vehicles using tires of the 8.25 size and over.

"Our Services Are Not Measured By Gold-But By The Golden Rule"

There's a Shortage of Copies of The Dallas Morning News-But NOT of Our Desire to Serve!

The crucial shortage of newsprint paper has forced a curtailment of the supply of copies of The Dallas Morning News to our dealers in this county. Only a small part of regular shipments is possible until we are permitted by Government Authority to increase our consumption of newsprint.

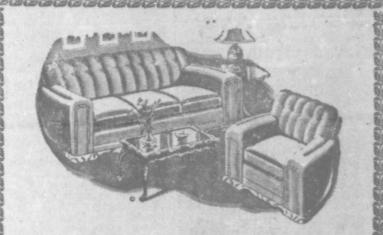

Distribution for the present will be made from drug stores and newsstands, unless your agent can arrange otherwise.

We realize, with deep regret, that some of our old-time readers are not able to get copies of The News. We trust they will understand and bear with us while we're making every effort to restore service.

In the meantime, although many patrons will not have The News delivered to them temporarily, their names are still on The Dallas News' Big Ecck and we look forward to serving them again.

Thank you.

Allied Invasion Poses Another Threat to Reich; Plan for Small Standing Army

Entering Chambois, France, the Allies found abandoned, wrecked and burned German equipment, common sights along the enemy's battered retreat route to the Reich.

EUROPE: New Front

For the little man with the clipped mustache, there seemed to be no end of trouble. Although his broken armies in the west were reorganizing for a stiffer stand against the U. S. and British onslaught, and although his bat-tered armies in the east were slow-ing the Russians from the Black sea to the Carpathians, the Allies posed still another threat to his narrowing defensive circle by an invasion of Yugoslavia. As Russian troops tore across Romania onto the eastern Yugoslav border near the capital of Belgrade, U. S. and British forces landed on the western coast for a drive in-As the two Allied armies worked forward for a junction, Marshal Josip Tito's Partisans were ac tive in harassing German troops and sabotaging communication lines. The twin offensive in Yugoslavia doubly imperilled the harried le-gions of Adolf Hitler. First, the U. S., British and Russian drives promised to link the Allied armies for a concerted attack against southern Austria and Hungary, and, also to outflank the Nazis manning the Gothic line in Italy to the west; and, second, an Allied junction would cut off an estimated 260,000 enemy troops remaining in lower Yugoslavia, Greece and the Aegean islands.

Stiffen at Border

Bleated the German radio to fanatical Nazi rearguards resisting the U.S. and British drives to the Reich's western frontier:

"Every day gained now amounts to a reinforcement of our national strength for the defense of the Reich

Partly because of such resistance, partly because the fast-moving Allied armies had outrun their lengthening supply lines, the U. S. and British thrusts in the Lowlands and France temporarily lost their whirling momentum. Fighting was particularly heavy in northeastern Belgium before the fortress city of Liege and in the rugged Ardennes forest, and directly to the east of Paris, where American troops drew up along the Moselle river for an assault on Nazi defenses guarding the rich industrial Saar basin. Mounted thickly in the precipitous, cooded heights east of the Moselle the German artillery maintained a steady drumfire against doughty U. S. troops seeking to establish firm bridgeheads across the river.

Farther to the south, Lieut. Gen. Alexander Patch's Seventh army, driving up from the Mediterranean for a juncture with Lieut. Gen. George Patton's Third army along the Moselle, drove on the Belfort gap, the low-lying plane between Vosges mountains of France and Swiss border leading into Germany.

Costly Fighting

Reflecting the strong pressure the Russians were exerting to the northeast of Warsaw, the Germans acknowledged their withdrawal across the Narew river, ". . . to avoid the danger of a Russian breakthrough on the southern border of East Prus-

In withdrawing across the Narew, the Nazis continued their policy of economizing their forces by giving ground when the superior weight of their opponent promised to grind down their manpower.

Because of the proximity of the Russians to German soil, however, the Nazis no longer were free to wholesale withdrawals, but now faced bloody front-line fighting.

CIVILIAN GOODS: Postwar Formula

Manufacture of civilian goods will begin in earnest with the fall of Germany, with war output due to drop about 40 per cent, and 4,000,000 work-ers freed for other jobs, the War Production board revealed.

In allowing those manufacturers not engaged in war work to start turning out civilian lines after the Nazis' downfall, the WPB will maintain priorities for military production alone and will relax most of its controls over materials. Furthermore, it will provide assistance for manufacturers in switching over to civilian work.

Under the army's plans for re ing surplus men, each of the first four mentioned factors will be worth a certain number of points, with release going to doughboys with the highest ratings. However, it was pointed out, men with qualifications needed for the war in the Pacific will be transferred to the Far East regardless of their status.

Because the war in the Pacific will receive first call on shipping, it may take many months for men eligible for demobilization to return to this country, the army said. Since men in camps here are expected to have the lowest priority ratings, they will atitute the principal pool for

By advocating a small, efficient force with a large pool of reservists, General Marshall said that there was more opportunity for advancement in such an organization than there was in a big standing army, where the size made it necessary to maintain a large, professional officers' cast at all times.

With U. In speaking of the enemy's air force, Forrestal said: "The Japs have obviously been saving their planes for the engagement to come. Except for the battle of the eastern Philippines, they have not risked a big aerial battle for months."

In addition to concentrating numbers, the Japs have also been improving the quality of their planes, Forrestal revealed. Said he: "Jap planes of every type . . . now have greater fire power, armament, speed, range and load capacity. United States navy planes have been improved, too, but we don't now have as big technical advan-tages . . . as a year ago."

CANNED FOODS:

Remove Rationing

Because War Food Administrator Marvin Jones advised that available and prospective supplies justified the step, the government removed from rationing all canned and processed jams, jellies, fruit butters, aspara-gus, lima beans, corn, peas, pump-kins, squash, mixed vegetables, baked beans, tomato sauce and puree and all varieties of soups and baby foods.

At the same time, a WFA spokesman declared that heavy runs of cattle may permit the removal of commercial grade beefsteaks and roasts from rationing in October or November. At present, sizable mar-

Charts Quake

Using a cross-sectional model of the globe, Rev. Joseph Lynch, director of the observatory of Fordham university, charts northeast corner of U.S. and extended as far southwest as Wisconsin. According to Reverend Lynch, disturbance centered near eastern end of Lake Ontario.

War Prices

As the war entered its sixth year this month, price levels of meat animals were from 45 to 105 per cent higher than they were in September,

On the Chicago market, cattle that brought $12 per hundredweight six years ago sold at $18.35. Steers that averaged $10.30 then drew $15.85.

The rise was equally marked in hogs, with head under 240 pounds, which brought $8 per hundredweight six years ago, selling for the $14.75 ceiling. As a whole, the average of $7 of 1939 was far below the 1944 figure of $14.35.

Against the top of $10 in 1939, lambs drew $14.65 per hundredweight, with the $9.50 average of six years ago below this month's mark of $14.25.

FURLOUGHS:

Shipping Factor

As a demand was made in congress for an investigation of the war department's handling of furloughs, especially in the Pacific, a letter from Gen. Douglas MacArthur stated that the scarcity of shipping hindered a more liberalized policy.

Citing the shipping shortage, General MacArthur said: "The return to the United States without replacement of all men who have served a specified length of time would, of course, halt our offensive against Japan and might indefinitely pro-long the war."

While the demand was made for the investigation, Rep. Carl Hinshaw (Calif.) urged that soldiers stationed Alaska be rotated by units to other posts.

War Lacks Drama to the Real Front Line GI Heroes

Without Exception They Want to Finish the Job and Return Home

By Ernie Pyle

Ed. Note.—Pyle has arrived at Albuquerque, New Mexico, for a rest and to receive the degree of Doctor of Letters from New Mexico university. This column was written while he was still in Europe.

WRITTEN ON THE TUNISIAN FRONT.-The other night I was sitting in the room of Lieut. Col. Sam Gormly, a Flying Fortress commander from Los Angeles. We were looking over a six-weeks-old copy of an American picture magazine, the latest

It was full of photos and sto-ries of the war; dramatic tales from the Solomons, from Russia, and right from our own African front. The magazine fascinated me and, when I had finished, I felt an animation about the war I hadn't felt in weeks. For in the magazine the war seemed romantic and exciting, full of heroics and vitality. I know it really is, and yet I don't seem capable of feeling it. Only in the magazine from America can I catch the real spirit of the war over One of the pictures was the long concrete quay where we landed in Africa. It gave me a little tingle to look at it. For some perverse reason it was more thrilling to look at the picture than it was to march along the dock itself that first day. "I don't know what the hell's the matter with me," I said. "Here we are right at the front, and yet the war isn't dramatie to me at all."

When I said that, Maj. Quint Quick of Bellingham, Wash., rose up from his bed onto his elbow. Quick is a bomber squadron leader, and has been in as many fights as any bomber pilot over here. He is admired and respected for what he's been through. He said:

"It isn't to me either. I know it should be, but it isn't. It's just hard work, and all I want is to finish it and get back home.

So I don't know. Is war dramatic, or isn't it? Certainly there are great tragedies, unbelievable heroics, even a constant undertone of comedy. It is the job of us writers to transfer all that drama back to you folks at home. Most of the other correspondents have the abili-

And speaking of drama, I've just passed up my only opportunity of being dramatic in this war. It was a tough decision either way.

As you've seen, correspondents at last are allowed to go along on bombing missions. I am with a bomber group that I'd known both in England and elsewhere in Africa, and many of them are personal friends by now. They asked if I cared to go along on a mission over the hot spot of Bizerte.

I knew the day of that invitation would come, and I dreaded it. Not to go, brands you as a coward. To go might make you a slight hero, or a dead duck. Actually I never knew what I'd say until the moment came. When it did come, I said this:

"No, I don't see any sense in my going. Other correspondents have already gone, so I couldn't be the first anyhow. I'd be in the way, and if I got killed my death would have contributed nothing. I'm running chances just being here without sticking my neck out and asking for it. No, I think I won't go. I'm too old to be a hero."

The reaction of the fliers astounded me. I expected them to be politely contemptuous of anyone who declined to do just once what they do every day. But their attitude was exactly the opposite, and you could tell they were sincere and not just

"Anybody who goes, when he doesn't have to, is a plain damn fool," one of them said.

"If I were in your shoes I'd never go on another mission," another pilot said.

A bombardier with his arm in a sling from flak said: "You're right. A correspondent went with us. It wasn't any good. He shouldn't have done it."

A lieutenant-colonel, who had just got back from a mission, said: but neither American nor British "There are only two reasons on commanders are worried about that, earth why anybody should go. Either for there was no lack of bravery. because he has to, or to show other | There was only lack of experience.

people he isn't afraid. Some of us have to show we're not afraid. You don't have to. You decided right."

I put this all down with such blunt immodesty because some of you may have wondered when I'm going along to describe a bombing mission for you, and if not, why not. I'm not going, and the reason is that I've rationalized myself into believing that for one in my position, my sole purpose in going would be to perpetuate my vanity. And I've decided to hell with vanity.

I was away from the front lines for a while this spring, living with other troops, and considerable fighting took place while I was gone. When I got ready to return to my old friends at the front I wondered if I would sense any change in them. The most vivid change is the casual and workshop manner in which they now talk about killing They have made the psych transition from the norr that taking human life over to a new profession where killing is a craft.

now there is nothing morally about killing. In fact it is an mirable thing.

I think I am so impressed by this new attitude because it hasn't been necessary for me to make this change along with them. As a noncombatant, my own life is in danger only by occasional chance or circum-stance. Consequently I need not think of killing in personal terms, and killing to me is still murder. Even after a winter of living with wholesale death and vile destruc-tion, it is only spasmodically that I seem capable of realizing how real and how awful this war is. My emotions seem dead and crusty when presented with the tangibles of war. I find I can look on rows of fresh graves without a lump in my throat. Somehow I can look on mutilated bodies without flinching or feeling deeply. It is only when I sit alone away from it all, or lie at night in my bedroom recreating with closed eyes what I have seen thinking and thinking and thinking, that at last the enormity of all these newly dead strikes like a living nightmare. And there are times when I feel that I can't stand it and will have to leave.

But to the fighting soldier that phase of the war is behind. It was left behind after his first battle. His blood is up. He is fighting for his life, and killing now for him is as much a profession as writing is for

He wants to kill individually or in vast numbers. He wants to see the Germans overrun, mangled, butchered in the Tunisian trap. He speaks excitedly of seeing great heaps of dead, of our bombers sinking whole shiploads of fleeing men, of Germans by the thousands dying mis-erably in a final Tunisian holocaust of his own creation.

In this one respect the frontline soldier differs from all the rest of us. All the rest of usyou and me and even the thousands of soldiers behind the lines of Africa - we want terribly yet only academically for the war to get over. The front-line soldier wants it to be got over by the physical process of his destroying enough Germans to end it. He is truly at war. The rest of us, no matter how hard we work, are not.

Say what you will, nothing can make a complete soldier except battle experience.

In the semifinals of this campaign — the cleaning out of Central Tunisia—we had large units in battle for the first time. Frankly, they didn't all excel. Their own commanders admit it, and admirably they don't try to alibi. The British had to help us out a few times,
