RELAXED: Loan Terms

Groggy and hanging on the ropes, dollar-starved Great Britain was given a reprieve from economic doom when the U. S. agreed to suspend the controversial "free convertibility" clause of its 3.75 billion dollar loan to England.

That particular clause, a major drain on the English dollar supply, required that Britain surrender dollars on demand to any country which held English pounds. In other words, foreign countries having a supply of pounds could turn them in to Great Britain and get dollars in exchange.

As the action was taken, Britain announced that it would withdraw between 150 and 200 million dollars more of the 850 million dollars remaining of the original loan. Cancellation of the "free convertibility" clause, British leaders hope, will enable them to stretch their swiftly dwindling credit.

Actually, few persons outside of the monetary technicans handling the matter, understood the details of the transaction. It was, in the words of Robert A. Lovett, acting secretary of state, "a terribly com-plicated matter."

That, at least, is the occult prediction of a 75-year-old Japanese for-tune teller, Kakudo Tomfoka, who eulogized: "MacArthur has a glorious future in store for him.'

"There presently are two living have suc ing a peaceful revolution," "They are MacArthur and Ghandi. But, then, Ghandi's mission is over. And MacArthur has his most glorious task to accomplish for the world in the future."

It was not immediately known whether MacArthur would use Tomioka's recommendation as a plank in his platform if he runs in 1948.

Truman Acts

President Harry Truman, in a renewed effort to alleviate the "tragic plight" of Europe's displaced persons, ordered a three-way shift in the top command of the U.S. immigration and naturalization serv-

In addition, it was disclosed that administration officials in Washington have resumed their review of the problem of displaced persons.

Most important personnel shift involved the transfer of Ugo Carusi from his post as commissioner of immigration to a position in the state department where he will survey all "critical" problems relating to displaced persons, particularly their resettlement.

This is expected to result in added stress being placed on a directive Mr. Truman issued in December, 1945, calling for coordinated action by federal officials to admit as many displaced persons as possible within quota limitations.

Watson B. Miller, federal security administrator, succeeds Carusi as commissioner of immigration, and Oscar Ross Ewing, New York lawyer, replaces Miller.

President Truman's action was taken in the face of congress' refusal to act on his proposal to relax immigraton quotas.

DEFINITION:

Long Felt Want

Rep. Forest A. Harness (Rep., Ind.) suddenly became aware of a long telt want for an accurate and distinctive definition of a couple of much-used words - "propaganda" and "information." His concern stemmed from the fact that he is chairman of a house expenditures subcommittee currently investigating government publicity and propaganda; hence, he felt impelled to explain to Secretary of State Marshall that he has no intention of interfering with spreading proper information, only with "unlawful and improper" influencing of legislation for propaganda.

Thus, the need for definitions, which Harness phrased this way: "INFORMATION: The act or process of communicating knowledge; to enlighten.

"PROPAGANDA: A plan for the propagation of a doctrine or a system of principles." Just how, if at all, the subtles types of propaganda can be sharply and immediately distinguished from information, and vice versa, Harness did not say. The definitions were his brainchildren, and the accurate application of them appeared likely to become his headache.

Report on Russia

Flatly rejecting any theory that the U.S. should touch off a preventive war with Russia before that nation has full knowledge of atomic bomb secrets, a special survey by library of congress experts nevertheless warned that relations between America and the USSR have "deteriorated dangerously" since the end of World War II.

The report described Soviet foreign policy as intolerant, suspicious, distrustful and keyed to a program of world revolution, even at the risk of a third world war.

Communist leaders, charged, are ready "to play any card available" in their campaign to bring about a complete change in the world's political, social and economic structure.

This is how the report summed up Soviet foreign policy: "The summit of Communist hopes and aspirations is, in the latest analysis, today as in Lenin's time, a complete change of the world's political, economic, social and cultural setup, and at the base of Soviet foreign policy lies the desire to make the world safe for Com-munism or Sovietism."

Three-dimensional photographs giving the illusion of depth-have been developed by a New York en-gineer who claims they are practicable for commercial display and advertising purposes. Harold A. Backus, the inventor, used two transparent screens, one in the camera and the other placed over the developed negative, to produce the three-dimensional effect. Standard camera and lens were used.

Budget Pointers

There's a tendency to go along with the crowd when it comes to spending money especially on food, instead of seeing what can be done to stretch the food dollar. Getting the most out of the food dollar does not, fortunately, mean that we have to tighten our belts;

it just means a bit of maneuvering. In the midst of soaring food costs, there's plenty of help for the woman who wants it, and today's recipes are designed to give you plenty of food for thought. Give your family a change of menu, and give the budget a chance to stay within its limits at the same time.

There are several general rules to follow: Buy wisely; don't overbuy and let food go to waste; serve and cook whatever you have properly, and don't toss away good left-

Of course, there was no mystery about the time he missed his sedan. and next morning found it parked in the deep end of the pool; that could be laid to brakes that didn't hold. But when he returned to Hollywood after five months in New York, making "Portrait of Jenny" with Jennifer Jones, the swimming pool held the following items-one roller skate, one shoulder-type diving helmet, and one pogo stick. Paramount is really going to lay it on for C. B. DeMille's "Unconquered," starring Gary Cooper and Paulette Goddard. The advertising campaign, which will extend through November, will be the biggest and most extensive ever given a Paramount picture. All calculated to make the public rush to see it during the general Thanksgiving Day week release.

Bing Crosby's wife and sons thought he ought to do it, so he did; he's ordered 16-millimetre prints of his 36 motion pictures, from "The Big Broadcast of 1932" to "The Emperor Waltz" and "Road to Rio." He says it'll be fine for the boys, who never saw some of the stars who appeared with him-W. C. Fields, for instance, who was in 'Mississippi" with Crosby.

With "Duel in the Sun" grossing more than ten million dollars so far, other studies are following where David O. Selznick led, MGM likes the idea of showing "The Hucksters" simultaneously in hundreds of theaters, and 20th Century-Fox will do it with "The Captain From Castille" and "Forever Amber." Ten million dollars is a cice mark to shoot at!

When Abigail Adams was under contract to MGM she spent her training period correcting her Southern accent-she hails from Greenville, S. C. She made a screen test with Lee Bowman the other day, and as a result signed a contract with Columbia. She has had excellent experience-you've been hearing her on the air in radio dramas with Orson Welles.

On the eve of releasing "Song of Love," MGM asked the Motion Picture Research Bureau to poll a cross-section of the public on the ten greatest love stories. "Gone with the Wind" led, with "Romeo and Juliet" second.

When Gary Moore decided to go it alone, after five seasons with Jimmy Durante, nobody knew what he would do. He landed the Phil Baker spot on "Take It or Leave It" because his audition records were exceptionally good.

Because New Orleans jazz says musically what the makers of RKO's "Crossfire" wanted to say visually. Kid Ory's Creole Jazz Band was engaged to record two numbers; they aren't seen in the picture, just heard.
