Price Speaks Here

Local government must reassert itself if the flow of power to Washington is to be halted, Congressman Bob Price said Saturday in Hedley.

"County and city government must be revitalized because a lot of people in Washington would just as soon run all of your local business for you, and will be if new ideas are not forthcoming. I am supporting Jim Hayes for county judge of Donley County because I believe he can and will provide the kind of leadership that is needed if local government is to survive," Price said.

The Congressman, who is unopposed for a third term, also noted that most Panhandle counties are losing population and pointed out that new leadership is needed to reverse this trend.

School Holiday

Friday will be a school holiday because of the Cotton Festival.
