A Familiar Domestic Dialogue. That's only brand 10's my second little's too. "And that?" "Jus' where I slud of the barn." "And this?" "Dirt." He is 4 years old. His mother was getting him ready for bed. He had blue and black and brown bruises all over him. She bathed him and put on his night gown. He said his prayers. Then he clambered into the chair opposite her. His expression was one of angelic positiveness. "Mamma." "Yes." "Will you give me a pencil and paper?" "What do you want them for?" This was the leading question. He evaded it. "How?" he asked. "do you spell Omah?" She told him. "How do you spell policeman?" She told him that, too. "How do you spell Ora Green and Dabu Green?"

He was answered. "Can you spell Tommy Benjamin?" She could, and did. He was silent. He propped his pink chin in his pink palm and thought the matter over. Finally he drew a long breath and straightened up. "I thought if I had a piece of paper an' a pencil and I knowed how to spell every word I would write to Omah for a policeman to come and 'rest Ora Green, an' E. and Green an' Tommy Benjamin for 'trawin' stores at me an' sayin' 'Go whizz! Suggery bat. 'Cris-cros, caraway roll'."

The patient mother insisted on an adjournment. When he was in bed and his small sister in her cot on the other side of the room, he said: "Mamma, are we all made of dirt?" "Adah!" she said. "O! I married the wrong girl, excitedly, Jay says. God m'le 'tude dirt, an' den he 'pt on dem. Did he?" "righteous vrah." "pt on dem, in man?" Evidently the latter possible fact was more alluring than that of going to school. "God makes anything."

"Can he see in here?" queried Jim. "Yes." "If 'twas an iron house, could he?" "Yes." "If 'twas an iron house wifouth any windows, could he?" "Yes. Now go to sleep." Piped the little maid: "Does God make cows?" "Yes. Now hush!" "How does he make cows, mamma?"

This the mother was deliberating when Jim spoke. "Cows!" scornfully, "cows! God don't make cows, God makes calves and they grow into cows! Don't they, mamma?" "Yes. Do shut your eyes, both of you, and go to sleep!" Fifteen minutes passed. Sursly she was safe. Surely she might steal down stairs. She rose noiselessly and snuffed to the door. "Mamma!" murmured a drowsy voice. "Well?" "How—does—he—make—the—calves?"—Chicago Tribune.

Reportorial Economy. Baltimore Herald. As he turned over in bed and mumbled an unintelligible reply to her repeated calls and shakes, she exclaimed: "James! James! That man in the top flat is in the cellar agsin!" "Can't help it," he returned sleepily. "But he's getting the best of it ever since the occupants of the three flats decided to use the same cellar and make a pool on the coal, kindling and all that sort of thing."

"I know it," he mumbled as he pulled the beds over his head. She pulled them down again, shook him and went on. "He takes all the kindling that you and the man in the second flat split up and the best coal meat in the refrigerator."

"Will you make the arrangement," he said. She shook him so hard that his joints cracked, and said: "Yes, I can, but I thought I had a husband who would get up as early as any one to look out for his interests. It seems I was mistaken. The man in the top flat gets down there first and we have to take what's left. Why don't you get ahead of him a me day?" "Mama," he said, as he finally sat up in bed, "it's no use trying. He has what a sporting man might call a lead pipe cunch on us all. I tried to get ahead of him on three distinct occasions. I got up one mornin' before 4 o'clock to get the best of him, and then, Maria, I discovered for the first time—"

"What, James, what?" she asked, anxiously. "He's a newspaper man and stays up all night. We have no chance, Maria. Let me sleep."

The Local Paper. The city papers are right if you want them, but it is the local paper that advertizes your business, your schools, your churches, and your numerous societies, and sympathizes with your afflictions and rejoices in your prosperity. In short it is your local paper that mentions the thousand and one items in which you are interested during the year, and which you do not find in the city papers. It is the home paper that records your birth, publishes your marriage and chronicles your death. To the great journals—the forty page compendiums of the happenings of the world—you are not even a cipher. To get the least notice from them you must send $100,000, contain in a minute's notice or have to furnish a bribe. But your local paper stands over you with loving solicitude all the time. If you are sick it is sorry and hopes you will soon be well. It tells you when you come and when you go; when your house burns down, and when you build a new one; when your Johnnie has theumps and when your Mary has the measles; and how much you little Pete weighs on arrival. And when you require the whole street and sidewalk to get home, and the hedge in front of your house, and "mum's the word." "Yes, take the big paper if you are interested in what is going on in Africa, but if you want to keep up with your own biography, ask your home paper—The Devil's Standard."

WEDDING BELLS. At the residence of Bishop Neraz San Antonio, on Wednesday, Nov. 18, at 9 a.m., William B. Sanderson and Miss Maggie E. Adams were married, Rev. Father Smith officiating. The ceremony was very private, only Mrs. Adams and Mrs. Sarah Adams, mother and sister of the bride, and Messrs Robert Sanderson and W. A. Guhrig being present. The bride looked exceedingly handsome in a navy blue travelling dress, and the bridegroom with his magnificent physique, resplendant in full dress, made a picture of manliness and strength that is not often seen. The ceremony over, the newly wedded pair took the Mexican National for a honeymoon trip to the City of Mexico, and a tour through our neighboring Republic. On their return in a few weeks Mr. and Mrs. Sanderson expect to build on their ranch on Devil's River, where the Standard hopes happiness, peace and contentment will always hover round their roof-tree.

HOW ABOUT THE WHEAT?
A GREAT QUESTION IN WHICH THE WORLD IS NOW INTERESTED.

America Has Produced an Enormous Crop and There Is a Shortage in Europe
- The Situation Carefully Reviewed.

Copyright, 1891, by American Press Association.

THE year 1891 is noted in history for a combination of accidents and incidents in the grain markets which probably never occurred before and is not likely to ever occur again. There have been very large crops in one country at the same time with failure in other countries, but never a year when so large an area in America yielded so great a general average, and very few years of such general failure in Europe.

Nevertheless, the evidences multiply daily that the results so confidently predicted cannot all be realized, and that within the last ten or fifteen years new factors have come in to render all old time calculations of no effect.

Let us note briefly the extent of failure in Europe and the amount of the American surplus, and then go on to consider the new elements in the calculation. And first let it be noted that the extension of wheat culture has been so rapid since 1870 that the fluctuations in price common before that time can never again be expected. Only once in the century ending with 1870 did flour reach $16 per barrel (gold) in New York, and that was in 1797, when a limited yield in the New World was coincident with blight, unusual cold and almost universal war in Europe.

It is worth noting that in the next year came the first financial panic of note in the United States, and that foreign war has ever since been closely succeeded by panic at tolerably regular periods, the seasons being as follows: Waterloo, campaign 1815-panic of 1819-23; Crimean war, 1854-6-panic of 1857; Austria-Prussian war, 1866-panic of "depression" of 1867; Franco-German war, 1870-great panic of 1873.
In 1874 flour reached $14 per barrel, and in 1847 it once reached $10 in London and $8.75 in New York. It is the popular error to attribute this to the Irish famine, but as Ireland's total population was but 8,000,000 the mistake is evident.

In the "greenback era" flour in New York rose to $11.75 and in London was again at $11.70. In 1877 it was once $8, and in 1882 $8.75, and in 1891 it is at $11.75.

So far the Financial Times, but in the face of the figures wheat declined. It is not here presumed that any one can tell what the real demand will be, or how far other articles of food can be substituted for wheat and rye; the point aimed at is to show why fluctuations in the price of wheat are steadily growing less, why they must continue to grow less, and how it may come to pass in a few years that the yield of wheat, taking all the zones and divisions of zones together, may be almost exactly the same year by year, increasing only as population increases, and so wheat may be as stable in value as gold.

United States as low as 150,000,000 bushels, a great "bull" operator is positive it will reach 300,000,000 bushels. Both include all kinds of grain. Others contend themselves with declaring in general terms that Europe wants all the corn and wheat we can spare at good prices. The last year of general foreign deficit was 1881, when wheat in New York ranged from $1.14 to $1.56. In 1873 it ranged from $1.55 to $2.25, and in 1867 from $2.20 to $3.40. Note the decrease in the range of fluctuations. Now, the European deficit being far greater this year than in either of those years, it would at first view seem that the price should rise accordingly; but has any new factor come in to prevent it? There has.
As late as 1870 the grain operator knew just what he had to depend on—a defined belt in the north temperate zone, the chief surplus countries being the United States, Russia and Hungary.
The harvest was completed in September, and the world knew to a bushel just how much wheat it must make last till the next July. That condition has passed forever. England chafed at her dependence on the United States and exploited the world for new grain fields.
The result is that the south temperate zone and even the tropics yield an enormous surplus. The harvest month in one country is the sowing month in another, and vice versa. Grain is pouring

THE MEN WHO SELL WHEAT.

into England every month of the year, wheat is being harvested somewhere almost continuously from February to November, and corn, rice, rye, oats barley and millet from August till June, so that the "world's visible supply" in September is no longer a proof of what it will be in March.

Some of the figures are quite surprising. The first and merely experimental export from India was some 800,000 bushels. It ran up rapidly to 30,000,000, and some claim it will this year reach 45,000,000. The traveler may there start in the south while the February harvest is in progress and watch the harvesting week after week as it goes leaping northward till it ends on the great northern plateau in September, by which time the harvest of another grain has begun in some sections of the south. In Australia the wheat range is from 35 to 37 degs. south latitude, the sowing and harvesting varying in like degree, and the Argentine Republic reproduces in inverse order (January for July, etc.) the best conditions of the middle belt of the United States.

And what can the effect be for the year ending Dec. 31, 1891? The Financial Times, of London, which has made the best September estimates for two years, says: "The European wheat yield for this year is 233,000,000 bushels, less than that of 1890, and that of South America 12,000,000 less than that of Asia (including) 23,000,000 more than in 1890, and that of North America 63,000,000 bushels more. Net deficit for the world, 78,000,000 bushels. The net requirements for the importing countries are 498,000,000 bushels and the net surpluses of the exporting countries are 330,000,000 bushels. Add the greater deficit of rye and deduct the possible but as yet unknown increase for corn and the final net deficit is well, the bulls and bears differ again, but it is considerable."

face of the figures wheat declined. It is

BELIEVES IN HEREDITY.
GENERAL BUTLER THINKS TRYING TIMES PRODUCE STRONG MEN.

The Children of Those Who Fought the French and Indians Were the Heroes of the Revolution—The General's Early Training.

B. F. Butler is now a wrinkled old man of seventy-three, and few who have looked upon him or seen his picture—and who has not?—can imagine him ever a slender youth of eighteen, weighing less than 100 pounds. Yet this was Butler when he graduated from Waterville college, a Baptist institution, whether he had been sent by his widowed mother in order that he might be educated for the ministry. His hair was a reddish brown and his complexion fair to pallid-ness. An old daguer-type taken soon after that time shows how much he has changed since then. Yet in these youthful features the student of physiognomy will at once see signs of the characteristics that have since marked the lawyer

BUTLER AT THE AGE OF TWENTY-ONE, AND SOLDIER. Over his eyes is prominent that immense development of the perceptive powers, which give him the breadth of comprehension and facility for mastering detail that have always distinguished him. His combativeness, just back of the crown of his head, is also remarkably developed. He was a youth of keen vision, fiery, insensitive to pain, with an ardent curiosity to know and perfect memory to retain.
Even in childhood he mastered the whole of the four Gospels, "not even excepting," says he, "the first eighteen verses of the first chapter of Matthew, where everybody beat everybody else."

General Butler himself is a strong believer in heredity, and contends that a strong and wide ancestry is necessary to produce a man of ability. He further believes that ability depends largely upon the conditions under which one's parents and forefathers lived. It was the struggle of the Puritans amid internal new conditions of life that developed the iron resistance and splendid character of their Revolutionary descendants.
Those whose fathers had fought in the French and Indian wars were born to fight the nation's enemy. Then, too, he argues, the intermingling of the blood of temperamentally different people is highly productive of ability. Scotch, Irish, English and French all combined together in the colonial days and the progeny of their children were much abler than the immigrants themselves.

"There is another story," says General Butler, "which it is believed is well established, that the first born inherits the highest qualities of the capabilities of the father and mother. The colonists of New Hampshire (his birthplace) possessed very largely these qualities which I have ascribed to the intermingling of distinct races. They were surrounded in their everyday life with conditions of the strongest excitement, because of the incursion of savage foes. Every faculty of mind was on the alert, and every function and sinew of the body was called into constant and intense endeavor to support life and defend themselves.
Their wives and their children. Thus they lived in that state of mental and physical excitement which I have claimed causes the transmission of the best faculties of the parents in the wildest development of their offspring. They dwelt in an atmosphere of continual warfare for almost 200 years, no generation escaping either an incursion of savages at their doors or a general war.
Does not history show that such conditions have in all times made braver, stronger and more capable founders of states?"

His grandfather, Zephaniah Butler, fought with Wolfe on the plains of Quebec and in the Revolution, and his old powder horn, bearing date of 1758, now hangs in Butler's library. General Butler's father, Captain John Butler, was a captain of dragoons in the war of 1812.
Captain Butler's wife was Charlotte Ellison, descended on her father's side from those sturdy Scotch Presbyterians who early colonized New Hampshire, while her mother was a Cilley, a noble example of a family of natural aristocrats. General Butler strongly resembled his mother. She was left a widow when Benjamin, her youngest, was a little child, and she fought the battle of life with the same persistency and vigor that has since marked her distinguished son. A few years later young Butler was adopted by his grandmother Ellison, a stern and invincible old lady, of whom Butler draws an interesting picture. She was then between eighty and ninety.

"No one was allowed to sit down at the table with her," says Butler, "except myself, and I usually perched on the arm of her chair." The youthful Benjamin became her special favorite, and she used to instruct him in her doctrines and beliefs. It was from her that he received his first and only really valuable lessons in political economy, and what she taught him may be summed up in the phrases of "political democracy" and "personal aristocracy." She was very proud of her own family, the Cilleys, and never wearied in talking of it.

Sheepmen's Meeting.
Last Saturday, in accordance with the call for a meeting of sheepmen to act upon the drifter question, quite a number of our flock masters gathered in Sonora.
John W. Cusenbary was called to the chair and Doc Fowler was elected secretary.

The published call was read by the chairman and the secretary briefly stated the reasons for the issuance of the call, and a very lengthy and spirited discussion followed in which the "chronic drifter" received a most thorough berating. The very best was hard done upon the drifters, but who the drifters were and where to draw the line, was the "bone of contention" and nevévas a bone more thoroughly cracked.

Finally the secretary moved that a committee of three be appointed by the pair to settle who were drifters and what should be done with them. The motion was carried after considerable discussion, and E. R. Cusenbary, W. O.
Edwards and G. P. Adams, were appointed, and after a considerable absence, returned with the following agreement, which after some argument pro. and con. was finally adopted and signed by all present.

We, the committee, agree that all sheepmen coming from beyond the north line of Ston, Crockett, and Kimble counties shall be classed as drifters, an shall not be allowed water either for stock or camp use.

Signd,
D. J. CUSENBARY,
W. O. EDWARDS,
G. P. ADAMS.

It was explained that only men living north of this line and drifting for the winter were meant, and not those who might live in Sutton county and desired to move sheep from above this line to their ranch. The action was simply against the drifter and not meant to hurt those following the legiti-mate business.

The meeting broke up soon after this but will be called together again this month to further perfect this scheme of self protection and to discuss other measures, such as systematically fighting fire, etc.
The agreement is in the hands of the secretary and duplicates of it may be received from him by anyone wishing to sign it or circulate it among his neighbors for signature.

Now that the bad has been so in motion it should not be allowed to rest. Join hands with your neighbors and all work for the mutual interest. Attend the meetings, sign the agreement, and help others while you do a good thing for yourselves.

Come out of your shell and rub some of the rust off your soul. Get acquainted with your fellow sheepmen and pull together, for unity is strength and cooperation is power.

The proprietors of the Cooper Sheep Dip desire, at this season of the year, to remind sheepmen that their dip does no injury whatever to the fibre of the wool, but on the other hand positively benefits the fleece, in which respect it differs from other preparations.
All who have not used it and require a trial, with a good growth of wool should give it a trial. The improved condition and increased market value of the clip will be plainly visible at next shearing.

N. W. Huntington, one of the most pleasant and popular young men who have ever visited the Stockman's Paradise, died in San Angelo at the residence of Mr. J.
H. Mearns, on Monday, the 30th ultimo, in the 26th year of his age.
Mr. Huntington was a guest at Dr.
J. B. Taylor's ranch in this county for a number of months, and his gentlemanly bearing and kind nature, made him popular with all he met. His mother was with him in his last moments. The body was shipped to New York for interment in Greenwood.

A Mexican Killed.
Thursday night about 12 o'clock Asa Robinson came in town for the officers with the information that a Mexican had been killed at the Lost Lake, or Birtrong ranch.
Jas. Spears and Tom Birtrong immediately got ready and went out. They returned Friday afternoon and verified the report. The particulars, as near as we can learn, are about as follows.

About a week ago a Mexican named Francisco Yopasa came to the ranch accompanied by a woman he claimed as his wife. He was in search of work and was told that Edgar Saunders wanted a man with a wife. He went to see Mr. Saunders but failed to find him as he was away from home.
The Mexican then returned to Birtrong's ranch and got permission to wait there until Mr. Saunders returned. A few days since he wanted to get a horse from the foreman to ride to town, but as there were no horses except some of Mr. Birtrong's the foreman refused to let him have one. This seemed to anger the Mexican. The foreman was a very intelligent, well behaved young Mexican named Frank—, who had a wife and two children, the oldest a boy about 6 years of age, the other a mere baby. On Thursday the Mexican hitched a pony and a little mule, which it appears were his own property, to his wagon and came to town. He loaded himself liberally with whiskey, and late in the evening returned to the ranch, getting there about night. Frank, the foreman, helped him out of the wagon and tried to lead him into the house but the Mexican pulled out his pistol and fired it off in the air a time or two.
Frank remonstrated with him for this, telling him he was liable to hurt someone. Thereupon the Mexican turned his pistol on Frank and shot him in the right side the bullet entering the body behind and a little above the nipple killing him instantly. The bullet lodged behind left shoulder blade.
Francisco then turned his pistol on Frank's wife, who was quite near and fired at her, but the bullet only went through her clothes, the flame setting her dress on fire.
She grabbed her baby and fled into the bush smothering the flames as she ran. The murderer then began to call and hunt for Musica, another Mexican working on the ranch, presumably desiring to kill him also. In the meantime the murdered man's little boy fled up the road and met Musica coming.
He said his pa and ma were both killed, so he and Musica went together to the camp of Peter Robinson's cow outfit, about a mile distant. There they told their tale and the boys immediately went to the house where they found the dead man but could get no trace of the murderer or the murdered man's wife. She however was found later hid in a thicket.
The corpse was brought to town and is to be buried at 11 o'clock today. The murderer made his escape, riding a little brown pony and it is supposed he took his woman with him, as no trace can be found of her. Every effort will be made by our efficient officers to bring the dastardly perpetrator of this uncalled for crime to justice. The dead man seem's to have been well thought of by all who knew him.

WEDDING BELLS.
On Wednesday morning at 8:45 at the residence of the bride's parents, east of the city, Wm. I.
Grinnell to Miss Lucy Macnabb, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Alexander Macnabb; Rev. R. C. Anderson officiating. It was a very quiet wedding, only immediate relatives and a few friends being present.
The bride was exquisite in purple velvet trimmed with point lace.

Stockman's Paradise.
Subscription $2 A YEAR IN ADVANCE.
Entered at the Postoffice at Sonora, as second-class matter.

MIKE MURPHY, Proprietor.

SONORA, TEXAS. - December 3, 1891.

Mr. and Mrs. A. B. Prior of Schleicher county, were in town Sunday. Mr. Prior reports some of his horses missing, see his ad. in this issue.

E. E. Harris & Bro., San Angelo, is the place to buy Christmas goods.

Tom Lyles, of Ozona, came over and spent Monday among his old friends here. Tom says his town is destined to be a great place in the near future.

Go to R. F. Harris & Bro., for Christmas goods, San Angelo.

We hear some complaints of late from subscribers who fail to receive their papers. All papers go to the Post Office, so if you fail to get your paper, call on it if you don't get it then come over and we will give you an extra one.

Who cut your hair, Charlie?

The banks have been sending cards all over the country notifying their customers that in future no overdrafts will be allowed. It strikes us that this is a two sided question and that we do not have to overdraw on these gentlemen unless we feel so inclined. There is plenty of capital in this section to do its own banking and this movement on the part of the banks is almost certain to result in the organization of a bank in Sonora. This is not mere wind.

Cheap Christmas goods at R. E. Harris & Bro. San Angelo.

The Citizens water works company was laying pipe this week.

M. B. Palmer, buys furniture in car loads from Eastern factories for cash, and gives his customers the benefit of all discounts.

R. W. Callahan returned from a business trip to Galveston, last Monday.

A W Mills of Wall's well, was in town Monday, and contracted with W. J. Rountree to have a well drilled on his ranch.

Mrs. Ogden, wife of our enterprising grocer, returned from a visit to friends, Tuesday.

Our young friend Raymond Callahan is with us once more.

The Rev. Oliver Wilson, will hold Episcopal services in the school house on Tuesday, Dec. 15. All are welcome.

Crockett county's sheep inspector rode the masonic goat Saturday night and stuck him like a little man to boot.

People are kicking about the hard times, but just the same we'll bet our newest pair of pants against a years subscription that times are better in the stockman's paradise than in any other portion of the state. How does that strike you?

Notice to Tax Payers.

Notice is hereby given that the State and county taxes for 1891 are due the first of October and delinquent the first of January. After the first of January costs will be added.
J. P. McCONNELL,
Tax-collector,
Sonora, Tex., Nov. 27th 1891.

Davidson & Silliman, the land agents, will attend to the taxes of non-residents.

He Will Come to Sonora.

The Standard has it on good authority that Col. D. P. Gay, the leading spirit of Ballinger, is now making preparations to eventually move from that enterprising town.

Highly Appreciated.

The DEVIL'S RIVER NEWS as a stockman's paper is one of the best in the state.—San Angelo Standard.

N. G. King is building a nice residence on his sheep ranch on Devil's River and will move his family down there shortly.—Standard Brd & Mertz bought from Oiney & Lantz 1200 head of wethers at $2.10 a head.

Chas. W. Hobbs, the wool commission merchant of San Angelo, has a buyer for 10,000 yearling wethers and 5,000 young ewes. Write him for particulars.

Judge Ball shipped 2 car loads of $50 beeves to Chicago this week. They were in the wreck on the Santa Fe near Limpasas Monday, but were not injured.

H. M. Garrett the sheepman late of Johnson's Run, is putting down a new ranch 25 miles west of the Pecos.

I. N. Brooks, informs the DEVIL'S RIVER NEWS that D. C. Sims the well driller, got out the 7 foot drill dropped in the Carraway & Brooks well about two years ago. The drill was 230 feet from the top and Mr. Sims deserves much credit for his skill in taking this piece of iron out of the well. The well will be drilled deeper.

H. Knusenberger was in for supplies Saturday. He was in too much of a hurry to wait for the meeting and, of course, missed a good thing.

G. Huber was in town for supplies Tuesday, and the wind blew Sol Sellers was on the streets an hour or two Wednesday.

P. Hurst received the lumber for finishing up the "Try Us" shop Wednesday.

Geo. Allison received a load of lumber Wednesday. Wonder what Geo is going to do with it.

R. J. Bean, was in Saturday and Sunday. Bub made a hard fight for the local drifters.

F. M. Drake of Ozona, was in Sonora last Saturday on masonic business.

Jeff Rountree, the expert driller came in Wednesday night, and says he is punching holes in the oil region now. He had the misfortune to drop his tools down the hole and was in for grabs to fish them out again.

C. T. Covington, of Wentworth, was in town Wednesday.

J. H. Rountree took in the town a day or two this week. He is just getting over a very severe case of the mumps.

On Saturday, John Denson gave bail in the sum of $1000 with nine names to the bond, and once more breathes the free air.

Ben McDougal and wife, from the south line passed through town Tuesday on their way back to the ranch from Angelo. Ben reports his sheep in fine condition.

Pay your taxes now and avoid costs.

De Swift, the horse man was with us a couple of days this week.

J. B. Hudspeth, of Swift & Hudspeth, sheepmen, took in the meeting Saturday and spent a few days in town.

Wm. Guest, the sheep and cattle man from below town took in the meeting Saturday and signed the agreement for the whole firm. There is no half-way business in Bill.

Mr. Talafairo, proprietor of an extensive hog ranch on Llano, accompanied by two of his sons, was in the trading center several days this week. He brought up a nice little bunch of porkers and had little trouble disposing of them at a good price.

The only and original D. B. Cusenbary came in from the ranch Saturday and returned Monday. Ben made quite a speech in the sheepman's meeting.

Frank Allen, of Gwin, Allen & Co., hardware merchants of San Angelo, spent Tuesday in town on business for his firm. Frank says Sonora is all right, but the getting here is the worst of it, the road is so rocky. What is the matter with the road overseers Fred Koenig, spent a couple of days in town this week.

The sheepman's meeting was a great success.

O. Ruffini, the courthouse architect came in Wednesday.

Martha E. Turner, the thirteen year old daughter of R. J. Turner, who was reported lost last week, came before Judge Dunagan and six jurors on Wednesday and after a careful trial was adjudged insane.

Dr. Ramsey, the popular dentist is with us and says that as soon as he can arrange his business he means to make Sonora his headquarters.

This has been a red letter week with the court house boys. They have had whole heaps of fun.

F. C. Whipple, the sheepman from the main draw was in the trading center Wednesday.

Chris Meinecke in company with Herman Albertal, will start a blacksmith shop in the rival city of Ozon. Success to you boys.

Geo Allison bought a nice bunch of hogs from Talafairo & Sons this week. Geo. is a trader and don't you forget to remember it.

Mr. T. P. Eastland of the firm of M. Eastland & Son, Jewelers, San Angelo, has contracted with J. W. Webb, for the erection of a handsome residence in East San Angelo. The indications are that Tom has been as successful in love as he is in the jewelry business.

W. J. Fields, the young cattleman was in Sonora Tuesday. He says that P. H. Wentworth, will give the cattlemen, who are watering at the water holes on North Llano, notice to remove their cattle before he puts up the fences.

See W. J. Fields lost horse ad. in another column.

The agent for the railroad lands in Tom Green county, has been in that county lately and has compelled the ranchmen to lease the railroad lands.

J. B. TAYLOR & CO. The Holidays.

The leading grocers of San Angelo, occupy two large stores on Chadbourn street, under Hotel San Angelo, which are filled with family groceries and ranch supplies.

In the retail department are kept the finest grades of coffee, tea, sugar, flour, meal, hams, bacon and an endless variety of canned and bottled fruits, jellies, jams, preserves, pickles, vegetables, meats, fish, soups, etc. Fresh oysters and fish, Bismark (equal to Kalamaoz) celery, cucumbers, tomatoes, turnips and cabbages. Oranges, lemons, bananas, apples, grapes, coconuts, pine apples, raisins, citron, figs, dates, fresh nuts, candies, etc.

They handle flour, meal, sugar, coffee, lard, bacon, potatoes, salt, tobaccos, canned goods, rope, etc., in car load lots, which are sold at a low price for cash.

Since the first of October, J. B. Taylor & Co., have done only a cash trade and their business has increased so steadily that they are now compelled to run an extra delivery wagon and increase their staff of clerks to accommodate the wants of their customers.

Their leading brand of flour is the Magnolia, high patent, which together with Fleischmann's yeast and the Royal baking powder, make it impossible for a failure to occur in bread and pastry cooking.

A firm that has such an enviable reputation in a city of first-class stores like San Angelo, needs no further recommendation to the people of the Devil's River Country.

Go to SAM RUNKLES' Moss Rose saloon, under Hotel San Angelo, for fine Imported Brandy, Imported Claret, California Orange wine, fine liquors and cigars.

George Allison sold the hogs he purchased from Talafairo & Sons, to parties in town, one and two in a place and made a big day's work of it.

C. H. Hammond, the well-known stockman, was in the trading center Friday.

Dr. J. F. Riggs, over the postoffice, San Angelo, is a fine surgeon, dentist of 20 years experience, and guarantees to be first-class. When in need of a dentist call and see him.

Mrs J. T. Wilson moved to San Angelo this week.

The cheapest place.—The Pioneer Drug Store, San Angelo.

Thos. Bond, the well-known and successful sheepman, from the south line of Sutton county, was in Sonora this week. He says his sheep and those belonging to his neighbors, are in better condition this year than last and are almost entirely free from scab.

Sam Runkles, under Hotel San Angelo, is sole agent for "Old Forester" case whisky.
