On May 16th, at 11:10AM, dye was injected into a John Boerschig well approximately 5 miles northwest of town off highway 674. 10 gallons of Optical Brightner, followed by approximately 2400 gallons of water was used. The area where the well is located is related to the Las Moras draw.

Our journey through life starts with our first breath and it ends with our last one. Since our birth we have packed many bags for our trip. We are born naked but then we have to put clothes on our bodies.

These clothes tell our history; from the baby shoes we took our first steps, to the dress we wore to the prom, our wedding dress and then to the pregnant clothes we wore when we gave birth. I'll wager that your closet recounts many of the chapters of your life.

Our closets are filled to over flowing. Each time we open our closet door we have a conversation with those clothes.

If the truth be known we actually wear only a few items in our closet. The rest are there to beat us up and pretend to rescue us. Our clothes have a way of making us feel bad.

Just think about your wedding dress that no longer fits your body. What are your first Here they are, in no particu- ings in your portfolio if you thoughts? How could I let this want to protect your long-term happen to me? I looked so good that day.

Our closets are no longer going to stand in our way able to leave something behind. of traveling light and enjoying

Most of us only wear about 10% of the clothes we have stashed in there anyway. Let's lighten our load and get rid of those nasty voices once and for So, there you have them - five all; Out of sight, out of mind! We can do this.

> First we need to look at the clothes we truly love because we feel good in them. This goes for your shoes too. Pull those out of your closet one at a time and think about the words you hear in your head when you have them on.

Now put them back in your closet and pull out something that does not give you the same feeling. If the item of clothing makes you feel bad, evokes feelings of guilt in you or you just don't like it; then put it in the give-away box.

If you have changed careers and no longer have to get dressed into suits then donate them so others can start their new jobs and look nice. Let me warn you. Going through your closet is difficult because of all the stories that you clothes dredge up. This is why I only want you to spend 15 minutes at a time doing this. Do not spend hours; this will make you feel sick . Bless yourself by being kind to you.

Two Year Anniversary

I would like to say "Thank You!", to all my loyal customers that have given me their support within these tow years.

My business started in June, two years ago when Mr. Ken Barnett gave me an opportunity to set up my business inside his KB Dollar Store. Mr. Barnett gave me a small space to begin with, soon afterwards he saw my business was growing.

He came and told me, I could have as much space as I needed. When I asked Mr. Ken Barnett for space, I didn't even know him. Since he helped me to get my business started, I in turn helped him with his store. Who says that in this world, there is NO good people. But Mr. Ken Barnett is one of a kind. I will never be able to say thank you enough to him for all the support he gave me.

Thank You to Mr. Ken Barnett and all my loyal customers. I have celebrated two years of business in Brackettville.

I pledge to continue serving the people of Brackettville, Fort Clark and all my out of town customers. Thank you, for your loyal support, I appreciate all of you.

Thank you Carmen Gallegos Anniversary Special

HOW DO THEY MAKE

Believe It or Not, It All Starts With SAND

By Ivan the Scientist

Here's a fact: Glass is made from sand!

Can you believe it? Of course, sand is not the only substance used to make glass. You also need soda (no, not that kind of soda! It's a salt-like substance!), ime and a lot of heat.

Legend tells us that a Roman seaman, preparing to cook an evening meal on a beach, set cooking pots on top of stones that contained a special salty mineral called "natron" (soda). As the fire heated the stones and sand below, a strange liquid began to flow. It then hardened as it cooled. This is the origin of manmade glass.

While many experts believe a primitive form of glass was made more than 4,500 years ago, potters heated sand and minerals to make glass bowls and drinking cups around 1,900 years ago. About a thou-sand years later, one clever artisan (there's that word again!) managed to form a glass tube through which he blew a bubble. He invented the first "blowpipe," which gave rise to a whole new industry: glassblowing. Today, most glass is pressed into shape by machines, but there are still old-fashioned glassblowers in all parts of the country. They make beautiful glass pieces using nothing more than sand, some minerals, fire, their imagination ... and lungs

By Bubbles ce cream is often called "The Great American Dessert." While many people think it's an American invention, Europeans actually introduced it to the world. Ice cream evolved from the iced beverages and fruit ices that were popular in early medieval times, some of which probably contained milk or cream. People back then used to cool drinks in ice and snow that contained salt. It's possible that inexperienced cooks overcooled some of these punches, and flavored ice was discovered. Frozen fruit-flavored ices are described in European history books, and frozen ices remain more popular in continental Europe than in the United States and Canada. The United States, however, is the undisputed leader in ice cream production. The industry grew pretty slowly until about 1900, when manufacturers made only about 25 to 30 million gallons per year. Annual production of both soft and hard ice cream has increased continuously since then, and America now produces more than 1 billion gallons. If you do the math, you'll see that each person in the U.S. eats about 19 pounds of ice cream each year!

Kids with Disabilities Win in Lots of Sports

By Christi A imost one in seven people has some kind of physical or mental disability. But a handicap doesn't mean that you cannot accomplish great things. Franklin D. Roosevelt, for example, was a polio victim and became president of the United States.

But sports is one field in which the handicapped were shut out for many years. This changed in 1968, with the advent of the Special Olympics. A national meet for 1,000 athletes was held. From those small beginnings, the Special Olympics now attracts more than a million handicapped children and adults from around the world, who participate in a year-round program of recreation and sports. In the Special Olympics, the emphasis is on competing and completing a task - not on winning. In the Special Olympics, there truly are no losers.

I compete in both summer and winter events, training very hard to be the best I can be. One sport in which I excel is downhill skiing. This is a fast, breathtaking event that meets my need-for-speed person-ality. I wrecked a lot in the beginning, but now I can ski with confidence and I even beat a lot of other skiers who are not physically disabled. My dad, Crash, always wants me to reach for any goal I choose. But he also says I don't have to be so competitive. He knows excelling at things, when others think I can't, is what's fun for me. I don't like to lose at anything.

Best of all, by competing - win or lose - I know I am a winner in life.
