WICHITA WILL BUILD ITS OWN SEWER SYSTEM

MEASURES TO BE MADE

SEWER SYSTEM TO BE ESTIMATED

COURSE ADOPTED

Meeting of Council and Citizens Friday Night.

City of Wichita Falls is going to build a sanitary sewerage system. The sewers will be put down and operated by the municipal government.

The course decided upon at a meeting of citizens with Mayor Noble at the City Hall Friday night.

At the opening of the meeting Mayor Noble explained the purpose for the meeting was called. He stated that the city had been asking for a franchise from the state to put in a sewer system in Wichita Falls.

He believed that even if the city would rather have the sewers owned by the city and operated by the municipal government.

The purpose of the meeting was to see if some plan could not be adopted whereby the city could do the work.

It was explained that the tax rate on property as high as was permitted by the state law.

Provision for the sewerage system was made without diverting any money needed for street work.

At this point N. Henderson came forward and when Mayor Noble asked him to explain a plan which he had suggested.

Henderson stated that he knew the city had put in its own water system when its tax rate was as high as was allowed by the state.

The plan had first been suggested by private capital and bonds. The city had then purchased the plant subject to the bonds.

When the cost of maintenance was provided an interest and dividend was made by making a charge for the use of the sewers.

A committee be appointed to investigate the probable cost and the legal phase of the question. Upon the motion of Mr. Kell, Mr. Montgomery's motion was amended and a motion that "It be the sense of this meeting that the people of Wichita Falls want a sewer system and that the City Council is hereby instructed to employ a competent engineer to make a survey for such a system and prepare an estimate of the cost, and that a bond election be ordered and that the City Council proceed in the regular manner to build the sewer, provided that the bond election is favorable to the sewer," was unanimously adopted.

After this action the meeting adjourned and the Council held an afternoon meeting to discuss plans for carrying out the order of the meeting.

A HEAVY LOG CHAIN

FOUND ACROSS RAILS AHEAD OF OVERLAND LIMITED.

ANOTHER ATTEMPT MADE

To Wreck the Train Frustrated By Timely Discovery.

By Associated Press. Los Angeles, Cal., June 8.—According to the statement of the railroad officials, an attempt was made yesterday to wreck the southbound Overland train a short distance north of this city. It is said that the track walker discovered a heavy log chain bound across the rails at a siding switch in such a way as to derail the train. The scene of the attempt was but a short distance from West Glendale, where a passenger train was recently wrecked. Officials are convinced that the efforts to wreck the trains are made by a crank or a discharged employe.

Miss Merle Man, who was a teacher in the Wichita schools last term, and Charles W. Morgan, the son of Mr. and Mrs. C. W. Morgan, completely surprised their friends by being quietly wedded last night and getting out of town before the fact became known.

The marriage ceremony took place at the First M. E. parsonage and was pronounced by the Rev. Stuckey at about 11 o'clock last night.

After the ceremony the couple took the early morning train for Fort Worth, where they will spend their honeymoon.

They will make their home at Stamford, where the groom has business interests.

By Associated Press. Washington, D. C., June 8.—H. Ralph Burton, counsel for Carl Hau, who is charged with the murder of his mother-in-law, today attributed the suicide of Hau's wife Wednesday in Lake Switzerland to mental aberration, brought about by grief over the charges against her husband. ALL RECORDS BROKEN

In Chicago in May, When Fifty-Five Suicided and Twenty-Two Were Murdered.

Chicago, Ill., June 8.—Chicago's suicide record was broken in May, when fifty-five persons in the city ended their lives. The coroner and the forecaster, Henry J. Cox, say the weather is responsible for the increase. The coroner's books show that all records in the history of Cook county were broken in May. There were 199 cases of self-destruction when the office closed last night and the effect of the weather is to be seen on an interesting scale. The effect on all sorts of crime is also manifest. In the first five months of the year there were seventy-five murders, twenty-two of which were committed in May.

CHAPTER IV.
The following week Bob returned to the office. He had not changed, and yet he had changed greatly. Rest had apparently done much for him. His color was good, his step elastic as of old, and his head was thrown back as if he were buckled up for the fray and wanted all to know it. Yet there was something in the eye, in the setness of the jaw, in the hair-trigger calm, yet fiercely savage grip in which he closed his strong hands on the arms of his chair, that told me more plainly than words that this was not the optimistic, soft-hearted Bob Brownley I had known and loved. I could not help feeling that if I had been a leader of the Russian terrorists, and this man who now sat before me had come to my ken when I was selecting bombthrowers, I should have seized upon him of all men as the one to stalk the czar or his marked minions. Surely the iron that had entered Bob's soul a week before had affected his whole being. I think Beulah Sands had some such thoughts. For I saw a shadow

Bob disappeared. Whether I could not learn. I had tried once or twice to draw him out, under pretence of insisting upon his accepting my wife's invitation to dine with us. He always had a ready excuse for me to take to Kate, but that was all. Apparently he had no idea that I took any interest in his movements after business hours.

As for Beulah Sands, there was but one change noticeable in her. Whenever a footstep stopped in front of her office she looked up from her work with an expectant, almost appealing gaze, as though she were always waiting for some one. I had not seen Bob in her office since that disastrous Sugar day, and as he went directly to the exchange every morning and left there every afternoon without returning to the office, doing all his business by messenger or over the wire, there was but little chance of his meeting her.

November 1st had come and gone, and the books showed no change in Beulah Sands' account. There was the poor little $30,000 balance; no other entries. One afternoon Beulah Sands had asked for a meeting between Bob and myself in her office. She could hardly have asked Bob to of perplexity cross her broad, low forehead after her first meeting with him, a shadow that had not been there before.

For days after Bob's return I saw little of him. I think Beulah Sands saw less. During stock exchange hours he spent most of his time on the floor, but he executed few of our orders. He merely looked them over and handed them out to his assistants. As far as I could learn, he spent much of his time there yesterday through hope's graveyards, a not uncommon pastime for active exchange members whose first through specials have been open-switched by the "System" towerman. So strong had become this habit of going about from pole to pole with bent head and a far-off gaze that his fellow members began to humor and respect it. They all knew that Bob had gone up against the Sugar panic hard. No one knew how hard, but all guessed from his changed appearance and habits that it must have been a bone-smashing blow. Nothing so quickly and so deeply stirs a stock exchange man's feelings for his brother member as to know that "They" have ditched his El Dorado flyer—that is, if he has been a good fellow. They will humor his every whim and patiently await the day when he shall be again in normal condition; for all stock gamblers whom Fate, or the old hag's hunchback twin, the "System," has dumped, either remain below the surface or eventually round to. Every day as soon as the stock exchange come without me; but I knew it was Bob she wanted to see, and I felt that the best thing I could do for them was to leave them alone. So I made some excuse for a moment's delay at my desk telling Bob to go into her office, and promising to follow shortly. He went in, leaving the door partly open. I think that from the moment he entered the room both of them utterly forgot my existence. From her desk Beulah could not see me, and Bob sat so that his back was half toward me. "I dislike to trouble you about my account," I heard her begin in a voice a trifle uneven, "but as I must go back to father Christmas week, I wanted to get your advice as to the advisability of writing him that, though there is still a chance for doing wonders, I do not think we shall be able to save him. Of course I won't put it in just that blunt way, but it seems to me I should begin to prepare him for the blow. I have not talked over any more plunging with you, Mr. Brownley, since the unlucky one in Sugar, and—"

"Miss Sands, I understand what you mean," Bob broke in, "and I should apologize for not having consulted with you about your business affairs. The fact is, I have not been quite clear as to the best thing to do. I hope you don't think I have forgotten. Never for a moment since I took charge of your affairs have I forgotten my promise to see that they were kept active. Truly I have been trying to think out

THE ONLY ONE PRICE SPOT CASH STORE IN WICHITA FALLS

OLD SETTLER.

It is not always safe to size up a stranger by his general appearance, notwithstanding, in these modern days there is not much danger of entertaining angels.

There are situations more humiliating and more difficult to explain, especially, if the stranger represents the powers that be.

That reminds me, of a ludicrous incident involving a newly appointed district attorney and district judge.

The legislature created a new district in Northwest Texas, composed of three organized and twenty unorganized counties, the latter attached for judicial purposes.

The judge was recommended and appointed on his merits, the attorney had a political pull and received his position by influence.

The judge journeyed from his home town to the little frontier town on horseback. The district attorney journeyed overland by the stage coach, and arrived at his destination first, and secured the best accommodations the only hotel could furnish.

Both space and facilities were limited and the proprietor found it necessary to double up and spread out, in various directions, to meet the demands of his customers.

Consequently when the judge arrived it became necessary to appeal to the district attorney to divide his room and bed accommodations with the judge.

Now, it so happened, that neither the hotel proprietor or the attorney had ever met his honor, and, as he registered as plain John Custerhouse, attorney from Bellville, it required a great deal of persuasion by the landlord to induce the district attorney to agree to the arrangements, but, on the plea of necessity he finally gave in.

No greater contrast in personal appearance can be imagined than was presented by the judge and attorney, when they met at supper. The judge in a plain hand-me-down suit, covered with the dust of the trail, presented more the appearance of a sand-lap farmer, than the presiding officer of a court.

Contra-distinguished, by reasons of his emaculate broadcloth suit, white shirt, standing collar, flashy necktie, cuffs and polished boots, the attorney could well be pardoned for making the mistake of classing the judge as a backwood lawyer.

During the meal the attorney monopolized all the conversation, especially criticizing recent decisions of the supreme court.

The old judge contented himself with satisfying his appetite, and, an occasional grunt of dissatisfaction when the attorney made an extravagant remark.

Bedtime came on, the two met in the little narrow room and disrobed. The attorney jumped in first and spread himself over three-fourth of the surface, leaving a narrow margin and the bedroll for the judge.

By the way, said the attorney, my name is Moore, recently appointed to represent the state in that district—what is your name, my friend?

My name is Ousterhouse, replied the judge.

The attorney eyed him a little suspiciously a few seconds, then moved grudgingly over and gave him more room. Clearing his throat, and meditating awhile, the attorney ventured the question, are you any kin to the Ousterhouse appointed by the Governor to preside in this district?

Yes, slowly replied the judge, I'm the man.

The h— you say! exclaimed the attorney, as he jumped out of bed and stood in the middle of the floor, blinking his eyes in astonishment.

The Matter With Oklahoma.
"What is the matter with Oklahoma?" asks the Baltimore News. There is everything in the world the matter with Oklahoma. In the first place Oklahoma, contains a population of something like 1,250,000 American citizens who are silly enough to think they are capable of conducting a State government to suit themselves. Then they have been foolish enough to think that under the enabling act they had the right to delegate to a convention of their own citizens the power to frame a constitution of their own liking up to the point of complying with the terms of the enabling act and the limitations of the Federal constitution.

They have been silly enough to suppose that after carrying out the demands of the United States and complying with the Federal constitution, they could proceed to formulate just such an organic law as would enable them to govern their own affairs, conserve their own welfare, protect their own interests and attend to their own business without any interference from outside sources. They proceeded to formulate just the kind of a constitution they preferred and as a preliminary to that great accomplishment elected a convention composed for the greater part, of democrats, when they might have elected two-thirds republicans or negroes and pleased that class of outsiders who only regard the number of electoral votes a State has as the supreme incident of statehood.

For thus betraying its incapacity to see things in the proper light Oklahoma is now threatened with another period of isolation, during which time it is supposed the people will ascertain how incompetent they have been in choosing a party to execute their mandates. Of course, the men who formulated the constitution have gone to Washington to interview the authorities to ascertain the trouble in order that they may be able to meet reasonable objections before the document is finally submitted to the people for ratification.

This important information can not be divulged, however, upon the ground that it would be improper to state objections before the people vote upon the constitution.

GAVEL AND TROWEL

USED BY WASHINGTON AT DEDICATION OF CAPITOL

WILL BE USED AGAIN

At the Dedication of the New Masonic Temple at Washington.

Washington, D. C., June 8.—President Roosevelt will deliver an address at the laying of the cornerstone of the new Masonic Temple in this city this afternoon. There will also be addresses by J. H. Small Jr., the president of the Masonic Temple Association, Matthew Trimble, Commissioner Henry L. West of the District of Columbia, and James D. Richardson, Sovereign Grand Commander of the Ancient and Accepted Scottish Rite Free Masonry in the Southern Jurisdiction. There will be music by the marine band and the singing of the hymn "America." An interesting feature is the fact that the gavel and trowel to be used in the ceremony is the same as those used by President Washington when the cornerstone of the United States capitol was laid on September 18, 1793. The Bible is the one used by Fredericksburg Lodge No. 4 of Virginia, when President Washington was made a Mason.

At the Court House.

J. T. Jones plead guilty in the district court today to a charge of assault with intent to rob. The jury had not assessed the punishment when we had our last information, but it will likely be two years in the penitentiary. Clarence Bailey plead guilty today to two charges of forgery and will probably be given two years in the penitentiary on each charge.

Marriage licenses were issued on the 6th to George W. Cottrell and Miss Birdie Moss, and yesterday to Charles W. Morgan and Miss Merle Man.

A man by the name of McCowan, who was arrested yesterday on a charge of drunkenness and put to work on the streets, was released today. A phone message was received from his wife, who had gone on to Stamford without him, stating that their little child was sick with measles and was not expected to live. Under the conditions the authorities did not think it expedient to hold him longer.

The grand jury adjourned at noon today to meet again July 15. They have returned three indictments for felony since our last report.

NEGRO TROOPS

Practically Removed From the United States.

By Associated Press.
Washington, D. C., June 8.—The 25th Infantry, one whose battalion figured in the Brownsville incident, today was ordered to sail for the Philippines from San Francisco on the transport Buford July 25th. Their going removes practically all the negro troops from the United States, only a few cavalymen being left at West Point.

FAILED TO RETURN INDICTMENT

No Bill Returned By the Grand Jury Against Officer Pickett.

The grand jury today completed its investigation into the shooting of Fremant Russell at the City Park several weeks ago by Deputy Marshal Pickett and as a result of their investigations no indictment was returned. It is reported that the grand jury was divided upon the question, five being in favor of returning a bill and seven standing for no bill.

COTTON GOES SKYWARD.

Poor Condition of Growing Crops Responsible for Rise.

One-Half a Crop.

By Associated Press.
Montgomery, Ala., June 8.—President Seymour of the Alabama division of the Cotton Growers' Association, gives out a statement in which it shows the condition of the cotton at this time not much above fifty per cent. The stands are poor and badly in grass. Only the best weather from now on can assure anything like a crop.

ALLOWANCE FOR POSTOFFICE

New York, June 8.—The price of cotton for delivery in July made another upward jump on the opening of the New York cotton exchange today and within half an hour advanced $1.50 a bale. This placed the price of July options at $3.75 per bale higher than the low price yesterday morning. Trading was very active and excited.

Allowance for Postoffice.

Acting Postmaster Ralph Darnell received notice this morning that the Wichita Falls postoffice had received an additional allowance of $120 per year for general expenditures. Mr. Darnell has also been officially notified of the increase in his salary of $100 per annum.

NINE OWNERS PLOT

CROSS EXAMINATION SHOWS PLAN OF DEFENSE.

HE INVOLVED OTHERS

In His Crimes In Effort to Break Up Miners' Union.

By Associated Press.
Boise, Idaho, June 8.—The Haywood trial was resumed at 9:30 today with Harry Orchard still under examination. The Haywood family group, now numbering seven, was in court when the proceedings began. Orchard testified today that he had not become acquainted with Pettibone until 1904, the same year he went with Moyer to Ouray as a bodyguard. He roomed over Pettibone's store for awhile.

Before court adjourned yesterday Orchard had been questioned by the attorneys for the defense concerning his life narrative down to the early part of the year 1904, when the witness went from Denver to Ouray, Colorado, with Charles H. Moyer, then as now president of the Western Federation of Miners. Moyer had been afraid of attack from the "thugs" of the mine owners and had taken Orchard along as a bodyguard. Orchard said today when court opened that he did not become associated with Pettibone until 1904, in the early part of the year. He roomed over Pettibone's store for awhile. Richardson wept into the attempts made upon the life of Governor Peabody of Colorado. He wanted to know why Orchard had gone to Cripple Creek to get Steve Adams to help him assassinate the governor. "Was it because he was a Federation man?" he asked.

"No," replied Orchard. "It was because I wanted a partner."

"Did you know Adams very well?"

"Not so very well."

Orchard constantly corrected Richardson as to inferences he would draw from his answers and as to the attorney's recollection of his direct testimony. Haywood was repeatedly in consultation with Mr. Richardson, suggesting questions and giving correct answers. The tack taken by defendant's attorneys asking Orchard if he wanted Adams to help him in assassinating Governor Peabody because Adams was a Federation man, was taken as another indication that the defense will contend that Orchard was in the employ of the Mine Owners' Association and that he tried to involve the Federation or a Federation man in all of his crimes. It is certain that the defense will claim there was a counter plot on the part of the mine owners to break up the miners' union by having lawless acts attributed to it.

Of the Founding of Historic Dorchester Celebrated Today.

By Associated Press.
Boston, Mass., June 8.—Dorchester, the first place in the United States to have a town meeting and the first to establish a free school supported by its population and the third oldest settlement in New England, is celebrating today the 277th anniversary of its founding. The program for the celebration of the day contained a luncheon to Gov. Guild given by Mayor Fitzgerald and the placing of the old mile stone laid in 1734 in historic Blake house. Fully 3,000 men were equipped for the parade, which was the feature of the day's celebration.

one people are missing and the little town of Gradyville, in the Southern part of the State, is almost totally destroyed as the result of a cloudburst, which sent a volume of water upon the sleeping inhabitants of the town after midnight. A partial list of the dead and missing is as follows: Mr. and Mrs. Strong, Hill and family, John Moore, Austin Wilmore, Miss Wilmore, Dr. L. C. Nell, former state senator, H. Mose and family of five.

Five Bodies Recovered.

By Associated Press.
Louisville, Ky., June 8.—A telephone message from Greensburg, Ky., reports a cloudburst at Gradyville, Ky., early this morning in which ten or fifteen persons lost their lives. Five bodies have already been recovered. Eight houses are reported to have been washed away.

Storm at Duquoin.

By Associated Press.
Duquoin, Ill., June 8.—This place was visited by the same storm that caused much destruction at York, but no lives were lost here.

Nearly Every House Washed Away.

By Associated Press.
Louisville, Ky., June 8.—The cloudburst at Gradyville turned the big creek into a raging torrent which quickly overflowed the banks and poured a great volume of water down upon Gradyville. Nearly every house in the place was washed away and those who met death were either drowned or crushed to death in the houses as they were torn from their foundations. Every stream in the vicinity is out of its banks. The cloudburst did enormous damage aside from the loss of life, all bridges in this vicinity being washed away and thousands of acres of corn ruined. Gradyville had a population of 150 and was eighteen miles distant from the railroad.

Great Loss to Lumbermen.

By Associated Press.
Lexington, Ky., June 8.—A cloudburst over central and eastern Kentucky last night did great damage, destroying fences, bridges and other property. The lowlands along the rivers and creeks are reported to be inundated. Logmen fear great loss, as they had made no precautions against floods at this time.

Friday the 13th

By THOMAS W. LAWSON
Author of "Frenzied Finance"

some successful plunge, but—but—there was a hoarseness in his voice—"I have not had my old confidence in myself since that day in Sugar when I killed your hopes and destroyed the chance of saving your father—no, I have not had that confidence a man must have in himself to win at this game."

There was a silence, and then I heard an indescribable fluttering rush that told as plainly as sight could have done that a woman had answered her heart's call. Looking up involuntarily, I saw a sight that for a long moment held my eyes as if I had been fascinated. It was Bob bowed forward with his face hidden in his hands and beside him, on her knees, Beulah Sands, her arms about his neck, his head drawn down to her bosom. "Bob, Bob," she said chokingly, "I cannot stand it any longer. My heart is breaking for you. You were so happy when I came into your life, and the happiness is changed to misery and despair, and all for me, a stranger. At first I thought of nothing but father and how to save him, but since that day when those men struck at your heart, I have been filled with such a longing to tell you, to tell you, Bob—"

"What? Beulah, what? For the love of God, don't stop; tell me, Beulah, tell me." He had not lifted his head. It was buried on her breast, his arms closed around her. She bent her head and laid her beautiful, soft cheek, down which the tears were now streaming, against his brown hair. "Bob, forgive me, but I love you, love you, Bob, as only a woman can love who has never known love before, never known anything but stern duty. Bob, night after night, when all have left I have crept into your office and sat in your chair. I have laid my head on your desk and cried and cried until it seemed as though I could not live till morning without hearing you say that you loved me, and that you did not mind the ruin I had brought into your life. I have patted the back of your chair where your dear head had rested. I have covered the arms of your chair, that your strong, brave hands had gripped, with kisses. Night after night I have knelt at your desk and prayed to God to shield you, to protect you from all harm, to brush away the black cloud I brought into your life. I have asked Him to do with me, yes, with my father and mother, anything, anything if only He would bring back to you the happiness I had stolen. Bob, I have suffered, suffered, as only a woman can suffer."

She was sobbing as though her heart would break, sobbing wildly, convulsively, like the little child who in the night comes to its mother's bed to tell of the black goblins that have been pursuing it. Long before she had finished speaking—and it took only a few heart-beats for that rush of words—I had broken the power of the fascination that held me, had turned away my eyes, and tried not to listen.

For fear of breaking the spell, I did not dare cross the room to close Beulah's door or to reach the outer door of my office, which was nearer hers than it was to my desk. I waited—through a silence, broken only by Beulah's weeping, that seemed hour-long. Then in Bob's voice came one low sob of joy:

"Beulah, Beulah, my Beulah!" I realized that he had risen. I rose, too, thinking that now I could close the door. But again I saw a picture that transfixed me. Bob had taken Beulah by both shoulders and he held her off and looked into her eyes long and beseechingly. Never before nor since have I seen upon human face that glorious joy which the old masters sought to get into the faces of their worshippers who, kneeling before Christ, tried to send to Him, through their eyes, their soul's gratitude and love. I stood as one enthralled. Slowly and as reverently as the living lover touches the brow of his dead wife, Bob bent his head and kissed her forehead. Again and again he drew her to him and implanted upon her brow and eyes and lips his kisses. I could not stand the scene any longer. I started to the corridor door, and then, as though for the first time either had known I was within hearing, they turned and stared at me. At last Bob gave a long, deep sigh, then one of those reluctant laughs of happiness yet wet with sobs.

"Well, Jim, dear old Jim, where did you come from? Like all eavesdroppers, you have heard no good of yourself. Own up, Jim, you did not hear a word good or bad about yourself, for it is just coming back to me that we have been selfish, that we have left you entirely out of our business con-

We all laughed, and Beulah Sands, with her face a bloom of burning blushes, said: "Mr. Randolph, we have not settled what it is best to do about father's affairs."

After a little we did begin to talk business, and finally agreed that Beulah should write her father, wording her letter as carefully as possible, to avoid all direct statements, but showing him that she had made but little headway on the work she had undertaken to accomplish. Bob had changed being now; so, too, was Beulah Sands. Both discussed their hopes and fears with a frankness in strange contrast to their former manner. But there was one point on which Bob showed he was holding back. I finally put it to him bluntly: "Bob, are you working out anything that looks like real relief for Miss Sands and her father?"

"I don't know how to answer you, Jim. I can only say I have some ideas, radical ones perhaps, but—well, I am thinking along certain lines."

I saw he was not yet willing to take us into his confidence. We parted, Bob going along in the cab with Miss Sands.

Two days afterward she sent for us both as soon as we got to the office.

"I have this telegram from father—it makes me uneasy: 'Mailed to-day important letter. Answer as soon as you receive.'"

The following afternoon the letter came. It showed Judge Sands in a very nervous, uneasy state. He said he had been living a life of daily terror, as some of his friends, for whose estates he was trustee, had been receiving anonymous letters, advising them to look into the judge's trust affairs; that the Reinhart crowd had been using renewed pressure to make him let go all his Seaboard stock, which they wanted to secure at the low prices to which they had depressed it, in order that they might reorganize and carry out the scheme they had been so long planning. Judge Sands went on to say that the day he was compelled to sell his Seaboard stock he would have to make public an announcement of his condition, as there could be no sale without the court's consent. His closing was:

My dear daughter, no one knows better than I the almost hopelessness of expecting any relief from your operations. But so hopeless have I become of late, so much am I relying upon you, my dear child, and eternal hope so springs in all of us when confronted with great necessities, that I have hoped and still hope that you are to be the savior of your family; that you, only a frail child, are through God's marvellous workings to be the one to save the honor of that name we both love more than life; the one to keep the wolf of poverty from that door through which so far has come nothing but the sunshine of prosperity and happiness; the one, my dear Beulah, who is to save your old father from a dishonored grave. Dear child, forgive me for placing upon your weak shoulders the additional burden of knowing I am now helpless and compelled to rely absolutely upon you. After you have read my letter, if there is no hope, I command you to tell me so at once, for although I am now financially and almost mentally helpless, I am still a Sands, and there has never yet been one of the name who shirked his duty, however stern and painful it might be.

When I handed the letter back to Miss Sands, she said:

"Mr. Randolph, let me tell you and Mr. Brownley a little about my father and our home, that you may see our situation as it is. My father is one of the noblest men that ever lived. I am not the only one who says that—if you were to ask the people of our state to name the one man who had done most for the state as a state, most for her progressive betterment, most for her people high and low, white and black, they would answer, 'Judge Lee Sands.' He has been, and is, the idol of our people. After he was graduated from Harvard, he entered the law office of my grandfather, Senator Robert Lee Sands. Before he was 30 he was in congress and was even then reputed the greatest orator of our state, where orators are so plentiful. He married my mother, his second cousin, Julia Lee, of Richmond, at 25, and from then until the attack of that ruthless money shark, led a life such as a true man would map out for himself if his Maker granted him the privilege. You would have to visit at our home to appreciate my father's character and to understand how terrible this sorrow is to him. Every morning of his life he spends an hour after breakfast with my dear mother, who is a cripple from hip disease. He takes her in his arms and brings her down from her room to the library as if she were a child. He then reads to her—and he knows good books as well as he knows his friends. After he takes mother back to her room, he gives an hour to our people."

Kell Has Not Moved.

The report that the town of Kell had capitulated is not true. A few of those who had located at Kell moved to the government town, but most of them refused to abandon Kell. At the command of the government they have moved the buildings from the highway onto the railroad right-of-way. The work of moving the buildings commenced Monday, and is now completed.

A postoffice has been established at Eschita and a mail route is in operation between Kell and Eschita and mail is received at the new town daily. The Wichita Falls & Northwestern now has a daily train service between Wichita Falls and Kell. The company's second locomotive has arrived and has been placed in use and the other rolling stock will be ready as soon as required. Even in its present incomplete condition the railroad is doing a good business.—Frederick (Okla.) Enterprise.

The sum of $17,000 was voted for the erection of a new public school system.

Indian Maidens Want Husbands.

Twelve Indian girls from the Chickasaw Nation, Indian Territory, have written President Winstone, of the State Agricultural College, North Carolina, requesting that he give his aid in getting white husbands.

The girls state that they have entered into a compact to marry no one except a white man. They have much land and think that the students of the agricultural college would make the right sort of husbands. Winstone read the letter to the student body today, which created great enthusiasm. Fifty students have written replies to the girls.

There is a good "settled territory" just outside the city limits, which if taken would run the number to 3000.—Vernon Hornet.

The Punishment is Just.

The affirmation by the United States Circuit Court of Appeals of the sentence of Benjamin D. Greene and John F. Gaynor is hard but just.

These men, intrusted with the construction of important betterments of navigation in the harbor of Savannah, defeated the will of congress and blockaded the commerce of a wide area of country by appropriating to themselves large sums of the money voted for the work by congress, leaving the work undone.

Judges may differ in their defense that they could not be lawfully tried for one offense after having been extradited from Canada for another, but there can be no difference of opinion that they are not too severely punished by the sentence of four years in the penitentiary and the fine of more than half a million dollars.

Captain Oberlin M. Carter, the United States engineer officer who conspired with Gaynor and Greene to loot the Savannah harbor appropriation, has already paid the penalty by serving a term in the Federal prison at Leavenworth.

If the expected appeal of Gaynor and Greene to the Supreme Court fails, as it will, in all probability, their punishment, added to that of Carter, will emphasize the danger of conspiring against great public interests and taking the fruits of the conspiracy to enrich themselves.—St. Louis Republic.

1858 Was Like This Year.

Meridian (Miss.) Dispatch.

Colonel Lamar Fontaine, in the Delta Register, says that in looking over some old plantation records of Yazoo county, he finds that the weather of the present year, 1907, thus far to be exactly like that of the year 1858.

The spring of 1858 was almost an exact counterpart of what we are now having. Cotton was replanted several times up to and including June. On the Fourth of July the farmers gathered their corn to feed their stock. As there was all over the Delta a general overflow of the Mississippi River, they had to gather their corn in flatpats. "July 16, as the water receded, they again planted corn and cotton, and made a full crop of each. No frost appeared that fall and they gathered from their fields and gardens watermelons and cantaloupes for their Christmas dinners. The cotton stalks of 1858, where left in the fields, were not hurt by the frosts of the spring of 1859, but continued to grow and as much as 600 pounds of lint cotton was gathered from this second growth. The largest crop ever gathered around Yazoo City was from planting made July 16, 1858. No frost appeared that fall and none until a small light one in March, 1859."

American Plan $2.00 per day

Patronizing Catalogues is a Bad Habit.

We wouldn't think for a moment of buying our stock by mail. We want to see what we are buying.
Want to examine it critically. Want to judge of its worth actually, not from a picture in a book.
We somehow think it would be more satisfactory for the public to follow that plan.
Here is a jewelry stock all ready for your examination.
