ANOTHER DEATH OVER BROWNVILLE AFFAIR

BUSINESS MAN SHOT

BROWNVILLE OVER CIRCULAR ISSUED YESTERDAY.

STEPSON OF KELLEY

Was Bitterly Attacked, Charged With the Crime.

Associated Press.
Brownsville, Tex., June 14.—Col. S. H. Harrah, a prominent business man, was shot and killed today at Brownsville as the result of a circular he issued yesterday in which he bitterly attacked Captain William Kelley, because of Kelley's testimony before the committee, which investigated the Brownsville affair in Washington. Thorham, a stepson of Captain Kelley, is charged with the killing.

BAILEY WILL SPEAK AT VERNON

Senator Will be the Principal Attraction at 4th of July Celebration.

Senator Bailey has consented to speak in Vernon, July 4, and great preparations are to be made for his appearance on that occasion, according to G. Hawkins, vice-president of the Chamber National bank of Vernon, who spent yesterday in Fort Worth.

"Bailey has many strong friends and supporters in Vernon and they will endeavor themselves to make his visit an occasion for the entire section of the State," said Mr. Hawkins. A big picnic and barbecue is to be given, a dance program arranged and the people from far and near invited to participate. The senator has his own suite in making the speech and the people are expecting something great, characteristic of the man.

Mr. Hawkins was the first of the younger generation of local freight men on the Denver road to resign from the banking business. He is one of the well known and energetic men of Vernon and is an enthusiast of all things that speak well for the town.

The Vernon section has had too much rain for cotton, but prospects are good for corn, states Mr. Hawkins. Fort Worth Record.

DEPUTY COMMANDANT KILLED.

Because He Commanded a Reduction in the Working Force.

By Associated Press.
St. Petersburg, Russia, June 14.—Colonel Kotlaroff, deputy commandant at the fort of St. Petersburg, was murdered this morning by a workman in the admiralty section of the city. The assassin was captured. Colonel Kotlaroff was sentenced to death by the revolutionary organization because he commanded a reduction in the working force at the admiralty works.

OTHER WITNESSES

FOLLOW ORCHARD UPON THE STAND AT BOISE.

PINKERTON'S ARRANGED

Pinkerton Men Arranged for the Attendance of State's Witnesses at Trial.

Boise, Idaho, June 11.—L. B. Gulbinni, the San Francisco groceryman who introduced Harry Orchard, then known as "Barry," to the servants in the Bradley household, was the first witness in the Haywood trial today. He said Orchard hung around the store and spent considerable money. Orchard asked questions about the Bradley household, asked to be introduced to the servants, and asked Gulbinni to get him a room in the neighborhood. Gulbinni saw Orchard moving the night before the Bradley home was dynamited. Also saw the poisoned milk.

The defense renewed the tactics of yesterday by moving to strike out the testimony of Gulbinni as not connecting Haywood with the offense charged. The motion was overruled.

On cross examination the witness testified that the detectives told him he had come to Boise to testify and gave him $200 to pay the expenses of the trip.

Records are Identified.

Frank Isaacs, a registry clerk in the San Francisco postoffice, further identified the records produced in evidence. Miss Pearl Moore, a substitute clerk in the registry division of the Denver postoffice, identified an entry she wrote which showed the receipt of a letter from J. Wolff, 1725 Stout street, Denver, addressed to G. J. Dempsey, San Francisco. This Stout street number was Pettibone's store.

Pinkerton Men Arranged for Attendance of Witnesses.

The next witness was Clarence L. Harrah, who worked on the cage in the Vindicator mine in 1903, at the time Orchard said he and a companion went into a mine to set off a carload of powder when they were discovered by the cage man, but drove him back by shooting at him. Harrah told on the stand of having discovered a man in one of the tunnels and being shot at. Said he saw only one man. The cross examination was not concluded when the recess was taken. The defense did but little cross examining during the morning session and contented itself with a general objection to all testimony offered and showing it was Pinkerton men who arranged for the attendance of all the witnesses.

VIRTUAL DECLARATION OF WAR

Between Nicaragua and Salvador Has Been Announced.

By Associated Press.
Washington, D. C., June 14.—What amounts to an actual declaration of war between Nicaragua and Salvador was contained in the reply of President Seclaya to an inquiry from Washington as to his connection with the recent attack and capture of Acajutla. The answer came in the shape of the following cablegram from the American Consul-General, Olivares, at Managua:

"I am officially informed that in accordance with the Central American Union plan, President Seclaya has dispatched munitions of war and troops to the aid of General Alfra, who is the popular unionist candidate for president of Salvador. President Figueroa opposes the Union idea."

A member of the grand jury corrects our statement to the effect that they had ordered all lewd women to leave the town. What was done was that the officers were instructed to enforce the law giving notice to all such characters that beginning with tomorrow the law would be vigorously enforced.

Mrs. William James Bullock will entertain the Ladies' Aid Society of the Christian church from 4 to 6 p. m., Monday, June 17th. Every member is requested to be present.

NITROGEN FROM AIR

WILL ENABLE THE FARMER TO ENRICH HIS SOIL.

THE DIRECT GENERATION

Of Electricity From Coal Also Predicted By Electrical Wizard.

By Associated Press.
New York, June 14.—Thomas A. Edison is quoted in an interview today, as predicting that before long, science will enable the farmers to enrich his lands by means of nitrogen from air. Experiments in Norway along this line, he said are showing good results. "Another scientific discovery which I expect to see before I die," he said, "is the direct generation of electricity from coal."

I watched Bob closely: in fact, it was impossible for me to take my eyes off him; he seemed absolutely un mindful of the agonizing shrieks about him, for the frenzied brokers were no longer crying their bids or offers, but screaming them. He still continued relentlessly to hammer Sugar, offering it in thousands and tens of thousand lots. Again and again the gavel fell, and again and again an announcement of failure was followed by blood-curdling howls. When Sugar struck 80—not 180, but plain 80—it seemed that the last day of stock speculation was at hand. Announcements were being made every few minutes of the failure of this bank, the closing of the doors of that trust company. Where would it end? What power could stop this Niagara of molten dollars? Suddenly above the tumult rose Bob Brownley's voice. He must have been standing on his tiptoes. His hands were raised aloft. He seemed to tower a head above the mob. His voice was still clear and unimpaired by the terrible strain of the past two hours. To that mob it must have sounded like the trumpet of the delivering angel. "80 for any part of 25,000 Sugar." Instant-name of God, what have you been doing?" He gave me a wild, awful look of exultation. Sublime triumph shone in those blazing brown orbs, triumph such as I had never seen in the eyes of man. "Jim Randolph, I have been giving Wall street and its hell 'system' a dose of its own poison, a good full-measure dose. They planned by harvesting a fresh crop of human hearts and souls on the bull side to give Friday the 13th a new meaning. Tradition says Friday the 13th is Bear Saints' day. I believe in maintaining old traditions, so I have harvested their hearts instead. I will tell you about it some time, Jim, but now I must see Beulah Sands. Jim Randolph, I've saved her and her father. I've made them a round three millions and a strong seven millions for myself." He almost yelled it as he rushed away and left me dazed, stupefied. A moment, and I came to. Something urged me to follow him.

CHAPTER VI.

As I passed through my office a few minutes later I heard Bob's voice in Bob Brownley Hung Close to the Sugar-Pole All Day.

ly sugar was hurled at him from all sides of the crowd. He was the only buyer of the moment who had appeared since Sugar broke 125. Barry Conant and his lieutenants had disappeared like snowflakes at the opening of the door of the firebox of a locomotive speeding through the storm. In a few seconds Bob had been sold all the 25,000 he had bid for. Again his voice rang out: "80 for 25,000." The sellers momentarily halted. He got only a few thousand of his 25. "85 for 25,000." A few thousand more. "90 for 25,000." Still fewer thousands. His bidding was beginning to tell on the mob. A cry ran through the room into the crowds around the poles: "Brownley has turned!"—and taking renewed courage at the report, the bulls rallied their forces and began to bid for the different stocks, which a moment before it had seemed that no one wanted at any price. In a chip of a minute the whole scene changed; there was almost as wild a panic on the up side as there had been on the down. Bob Brownley continued buying Sugar until he had pushed it above 150. He then went about tallying up his trades. At the end of ten minutes calculation he returned to the center and bought 11,000 shares more; coming out, his eyes caught mine. "Jim, have you been here long?" "An eternity. I was here at the opening and I pray God never to put me through another two hours like the past two. It seems a hideous dream, a nightmare. Bob in the Beulah Sands' office. It was raised in passionate eloquence. "Yes, Beulah, I have done it single-handed. I have crucified Camemeyer, Standard Oil, and the 'system' that spiked me to the cross a few weeks ago. You have three millions, and I have seven. Now there is nothing more but for you to go home to your father, and then come back to me. Back to me, Beulah, back to me to be my wife!" He stopped. There was no sound. I waited; then, frightened, I stepped to the door of Beulah Sands' office. Bob was standing just inside the threshold, where he had halted to give her the glad tidings. She had risen from her desk and was looking at him with an agonized stare. He seemed to be transfixed by her look, the wild ecstasy of the outburst of love yet mirrored in his eyes. She was just saying as I reached the door: "Bob, in mercy's name tell me you got this money fairly, honorably." Bob must have realized for the first time what he had done. He did not speak. He only stared into her eyes. She was now at his side. "Bob, you are unnerved," she said; "you have been through a terrible ordeal. For an hour I have been reading in the bulletins of the banks and trust companies that have failed, of the banking houses that have been ruined. I have been reading that you did it; that you have made millions—and I knew it was for me, for father." (Continued on Page 3.)

The Style Store of Wichita Falls

Friday the 13th

By THOMAS W. LAWSON

Author of "Frenzied Finance"

but in the midst of my joy, my gratitude, my love—for, oh, Bob, I love you," she interrupted herself passionately; "it seems as though I love you beyond the capacity of a human heart to love. I think that for the right to be yours for one single moment of this life I would smugly endure all the pains and miseries of eternal torture. Yes, Bob, for the right to have you call me yours for only while I heard the words, I would do anything, Bob, anything that was honorable."

She had drawn his head down close to her face, and her great blue eyes searched his as though they would go to his very soul. She was a child in her simple appeal for him to allow her to see his heart, to see that there was nothing black there.

As she gazed her beautiful hands played through his hair as do a mother's through that of the child she is soothing in sickness.

"Bob, speak to me, speak to me," she begged, "tell me there was no dishonor in the getting of those millions. Tell me no one was made to suffer as my father and I have suffered. Tell me that the suicides and the convicts, the daughters dragged to shame and the mothers driven to the madhouse as a result of this panic, cannot be charged to anything unfair or dishonorable that you have done. Bob, oh, Bob, answer! Answer no, or my heart will break; or if, Bob, you have made a mistake, if you have done that which in your great desire to aid me and my father seemed justifiable, but which you now see was wrong, tell it to me, Bob, dear, and together we will try to undo it. We will try to find a way to atone. We will give the millions to the last, last penny to those upon whom you have brought misery. Father's loss will not matter. Together we will go to him and tell him what we have done, what we have lived through, tell him of our mistake, and in our agony he will forget his own. For such a horror has my father of anything dishonorable that he will embrace his misery as happiness when he knows that his teachings have enabled his daughter to undo this great wrong. And then, Bob, we will be married, and you and I and father and mother will be together, and be, oh, so happy, and we will begin all over again."

"Beulah, stop; in the name of God, in the name of your love for me, don't say another word. There is a limit to the capacity of a man to suffer, even if he be a great, strong brute like myself, and, Beulah, I have reached that limit. The day has been a hard one."

His voice softened and became as a tired child's.

"I must go into the hustle of the street, into the din and sound, and get down my nerves and get back my head. Then I shall be able to think clear and true, and I will come back to you, and together we will see if I have done anything that makes me unfit to touch the cheek and the hands and the lips of the best and most beautiful woman God ever put upon earth. Beulah, you know I would not deceive you to save my body from the fires of this world, and my soul from the torture of the damned, and I promise you that if I find that I have done wrong, what you call wrong, what your father would call wrong, I will do what you say to atone."

He took her hand between his hands, gently, reverently, and touching his lips to her glorious golden hair, he went away.

Beulah Sands turned to me. "Please, Mr. Randolph, go with him. He is soured. One can never tell what a heart sorely perplexed will prompt its owner to do. Often in the night when I have got myself into a fever from thinking of my father's situation, I have had awful temptations. The agents of the devil seek the wretches when none of those they love are by. I have often thought some of the blackest tragedies of the earth might have been averted if there had been a true friend to stand at the wrong one's elbow at the fatal minute of decision and point to the sun behind, just when the black ahead grew unendurable. Please follow Mr. Brownley than you may be ready, should his awakening to what he has done become unbearable. Tell him the dreaded morrows are never as terrible actually as they seem in anticipation."

I overtook Bob just outside the office. I did not speak to him, for I realized that he was in no mood for company. I dropped in behind, determined that I would not lose sight of him. It was almost one o'clock. Wall street was at its meridian of frenzy, every one on a wild rush. The day's doings had packed the always crowded money lane. The newsboys were shouting afternoon editions. "Terrible panic in Wall street. One man against millions. Robert Brownley broke the street." Made twenty millions in an hour. Bank failed. Wreck and ruin everywhere. President Snow of Asterfield National a suicide." Bob gave no sign of hearing. He strode with a slow, measured gait, his head erect, his eyes staring ahead, a man thinking, thinking, thinking for his salvation. Many hurrying men looked at him, some with an expression of unutterable hatred, as though they wanted to attack him. Then again there were those who called him by name with a laugh of joy; and some turned to watch him in curiosity. It was easy to pick the wounded from those who shrank in his victory, and from those who knew the frenzied finance buzz-saw only by its buzz. Bob saw none. Where could he be going? He came to the head of the street of coin and crime and crossed Broadway. His path was blocked by the fence surrounding old Trinity's churchyard. Grasping the pickets in either hand he stared at the crumbling headstones of those guardsmen of Mammon who once walked the earth and fought their heart battles, as he was walking and fighting, but who now knew no ten o'clock, no three, who looked upon the stock-gamblers and dollar-trailers as they looked upon the worms that honeycombed their headstones' bases. What thoughts went through Bob Brownley's mind only his Maker knew. For minutes he stood motionless, then he walked down Broadway. He went into the Battery. The benches were crowded with that jet-sam and flotsam of humanity that New York's mighty sewers throw in armfuls upon her inland beaches at every sunrise. Here a sodden brute sleeping off a prolonged debauch, there a lad whose frankness of face and homespun clothes and bewildered eyes spelt "from the farm and mother's watchful love." On another bench an Italian woman who had a half-dozen future dollar kings and social queens about her, and whose clothes told of the immigrant ship just into port. Bob Brownley apparently saw none. But suddenly he stopped. Upon a bench sat a sweet-faced mother holding a sleeping babe in her arms, while a curly-pated boy nestled his head in her lap and slept through the magic lanes and fairy woods of dreamland. The woman's face was one of those that blend the confidence of girlhood with the uncertainty of womanhood. 'Twas a pretty face, which had been plainly tagged by its Maker for a light-hearted trip through the world, but it had been seared by the iron of the city.

"Mr. Brownley—" She started to rise.

"He gently pushed her back with a "hush," unwilling to rob the sleepers of their heaven.

"What are you doing here, Mrs. —?" He halted.

"Mrs. Chase. Mr. Brownley, when I went away from Randolph & Randolph's office I married John Chase; you may remember him as a delivery clerk. I had such a happy home and my husband was good; I did not have to typewrite any longer. These are our two children."

"What are you doing here?" The tears sprang to her eyes; she dropped them, but did not answer.

"Don't mind me, woman. I, too, have hidden bells I don't want the world to see. Don't mind me; tell me your story. It may do you good; it may do me good; yes, it may do me good."

I had dropped into a seat a few feet away. Both were too much occupied with their own thoughts to notice me or any one else. I could not overhear their conversation, but long afterward, when I mentioned our old stenographer, Bessie Brown, to Bob, he told me of the incident at the Battery. Her husband, after their marriage, had become infected with the stock-gambling microbe, the microbe that gnaws into its victim's mind and heart day and night, while ever fiercer grows the "get rich, get rich" fever. He had plunged with their savings and had drawn a blank. He had lost his position in disgrace and had landed in the bucket-shop, the sub-cellar pit of the big stock exchange hell. From there a week before he had been sent to prison for theft, and that morning she had been turned into the street by her landlord. I saw Bob take from his pocket his memorandum-book, write some

Mabel Derrick Walker.

After but two days illness Mabel Derrick Walker died at her home near Petrolia, June 5, 1907.

For several months she had not been well and in April she had a severe attack of pneumonia from which she never fully recovered, yet her condition was not known to be serious, and her sudden death comes as a terrible shock to her loved ones as well as her many friends.

Deceased was born August 19, 1880, in Arlens, Neb. Her parents having died when she was quite young, she made her home with an uncle and aunt, Mr. and Mrs. T. J. Derrick, who for a number of years have lived in Jolly.

Eight years ago she was married to Mr. W. B. Walker, a well to do cattleman and farmer. To this happy union three children have been born: Frank, May and Earnest, aged respectively seven, five and two years.

Mabel's jovial disposition and beautiful Christian character won for her many friends, all of whom extend their sympathy to the faraway brothers and sisters in Northern Wisconsin; to the devoted uncle and auntie who loved her as one of their own; to the dear little children, who'll never remember a mother's love; and to the grief stricken husband, whose loss is irreplaceable.

Card of Thanks.

To the many friends who came to assist and comfort us during the sickness and burial of our loved one; to the minister, the singers and the donors of flowers, we wish to publicly acknowledge our debt of gratitude.

MR. W. B. WALKER.
MR. AND MRS. T. J. DERRICK.

ORDERS ARE ISSUED

TO COMPEL MISSOURI RAILROADS TO OBEY NEW LAW.

TWO CENT FARE RATE

And Maximum Freight Rate May Bring Courts into Conflict.

By Associated Press.
Kansas City, Mo., June 14.—Upon the application of Attorney General Hadley, Judge Parks in the circuit court this morning issued orders upon the representatives of the eighteen principal railroads in Missouri, compelling them to obey the two-cent fare which went into effect at midnight last night. This may bring the circuit court into conflict with the United States district court, before which the railroads are suing for an injunction to prevent the state officials from enforcing these laws.

VALUES RAISED—RATES LOWERED.

The county commissioners are in session this week as a board of equalization, and property values all over the county, it is estimated, will be raised about thirty per cent over what they were last year. The total assessed values in the county last year were in the neighborhood of $4,000,000. This year it is predicted that they will be nearer the $5,000,000 mark. The rate of taxation, however, will be lowered in about the same proportion as the tax values were raised, and this, it is thought, will equalize matters so that very little more taxes will be collected for this year than was collected last year.

DROVE TO THE WOODS

Where Woman Was Struck on the Head and Attempt Made to Drown Her.

By Associated Press.
San Antonio, Tex., June 14.—Charged with assaulting and robbing Mrs. Sallie Gibbons of Columbia, S. C., of $51,000, Rufus Williams last night confessed the crime in jail. He was caught yesterday on an east bound Southern Pacific train on his way to New Orleans. Mrs. Gibbons and Williams arrived in the city yesterday from the east, the former coming for the purpose of investing in lands. She had on her person $51,000. Williams obtained a vehicle from a livery and suggested a drive into the woods. Mrs. Williams was struck on the head and an attempt made to drown her.

RADICAL DEMANDS

PREMIER ASKS EXCLUSION OF MEMBERS FROM PARLIAMENT.

THE ARRESTS OF LEADERS

On Charge of a Conspiracy to Establish a Republic is Sanctioned.

By Associated Press.
St. Petersburg, June 14.—Premier Stolypin, today, demanded that the lower house of parliament exclude from the house all members of the social democratic faction, numbering 55, and sanctioned the arrest of 16 of their leaders on a charge of entering into a conspiracy to overthrow the government and establish a democratic republic. The Premier announced that unless the house immediately yielded that the parliament would be dissolved.

Demand Will Be Rejected.

St. Petersburg, Russia, June 14.—The press and public galleries were cleared by the police, who took possession of the parliament building and the house went into secret session to debate the question raised by the premier. It is considered almost certain that his demand will be rejected.

FIGHT HAS BEGUN

OPEN ATTACK IN FEDERATION AGAINST THE INDUSTRIAL WORKERS.

BASIS OF THE FIGHT

Against a Portion of the Socialist Labor Party Also Laid.

By Associated Press.
Denver, Colo., June 14.—At the morning session of the convention of the Western Federation of Miners, some of the delegates made complaint regarding the reports in the local newspapers of yesterday's meeting and a motion was made to exclude reporters. This was defeated after a spirited debate. John C. O'Neill, editor of the Miners' Magazine, the official organ of the Federation, read his report which attacked the Industrial Workers of the World and that portion of the socialist labor party of New York headed by DeLeon. This will form the basis of the fight against the alliance between the Federation and the Industrial Workers. O'Neill also defended himself against the attacks made on his conduct of the magazine. Secretary Kirwan announced that he had received a telegram from Bolse and would leave for there tomorrow night.

Delightful Summertime Breakfasts

During the hot months of the year most people prefer somewhat lighter breakfasts than in the winter. This is not only natural, but the most broad minded physicians assert that if you give your stomach what it craves you are not likely to go very far wrong. We suggest the following best breakfast foods, most of which are ready for the table with no preparation except sugar and cream:

- Elijah's Manna (extra large p'k'ges) 15c
- Quaker Wheat Berries - 10c
- Dr. Prices' Celery Flake Food - - - - - 10c
- Grape Nuts - - - - - 15c

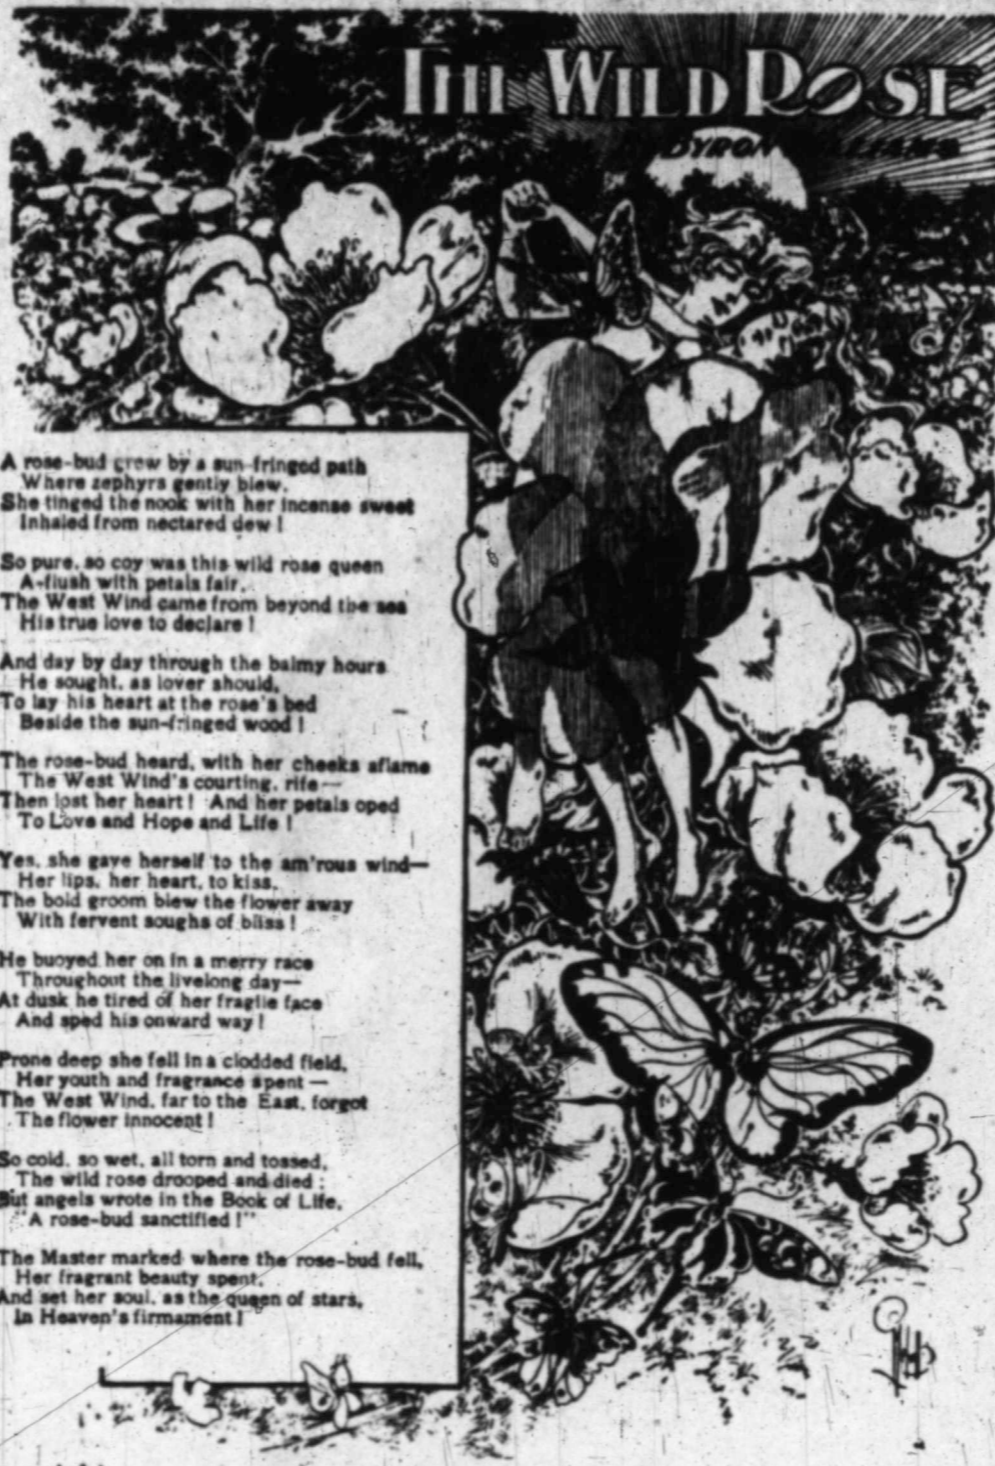

Your orders are respectfully solicited for anything in our line.

The Wild Rose

A rose-bud grew by a sun-fringed path
Where zephyrs gently blew,
She tinged the nook with her incense sweet
Inhaled from nectared dew!

So pure, so coy was this wild rose queen
A-flush with petals fair,
The West Wind came from beyond the sea
His true love to declare!

And day by day through the balmy hours
He sought, as lover should,
To lay his heart at the rose's bed
Beside the sun-fringed wood!

The rose-bud heard, with her cheeks aflame
The West Wind's courting, rife—
Then lost her heart! And her petals ope'd
To Love and Hope and Life!

Yes, she gave herself to the am'rous wind—
Her lips, her heart, to kiss,
The bold groom blew the flower away
With fervent sighs of bliss!

He buoyed her on in a merry race
Throughout the livelong day—
At dusk he tired of her fragile face
And sped his onward way!

Proud deep she fell in a clodded field,
Her youth and fragrance spent—
The West Wind, far to the East, forgot
The flower innocent!

So cold, so wet, all torn and tossed,
The wild rose drooped and died;
But angels wrote in the Book of Life,
"A rose-bud sanctified!"

The Master marked where the rose-bud fell,
Her fragrant beauty spent,
And set her soul, as the queen of stars,
In Heaven's firmament!

BALL TEAM ASSURED

IF WICHITA CITIZENS WILL RAISE SUFFICIENT FUNDS.

MONEY IS BEING RAISED

Manager C. C. Lucid in Town and Will Put Team in Field if $500 per Month is Raised.

C. C. Lucid of Corsicana, Texas arrived in the city yesterday and since his arrival baseball stock has gone above par. Mr. Lucid is one of the best known and most popular baseball men in the state. He has had a wide experience in the management of teams, having formerly managed the Temple team in the Texas League.

He proposes to put in a high class pennant winning ball team here if sufficient funds for the support of the team can be pledged. He is asking that the fans here contribute $500 per month for the season of three months.

A subscription list to secure this amount is being circulated today and it seems probable that the amount will be pledged.

A meeting of all the fans in the city has been called for eight o'clock tonight at the City Hall when Mr. Lucid will present his proposition in detail.

Already he has nearly a full quota of players in view, and at the meeting tonight will read some correspondence he has had with old time favorites of the Wichita fans.

BOTH SIDES CLAIM VICTORY.

Local Option Election at Iowa Park Next Wednesday—Outcome is in Doubt.

On next Wednesday, June 19, the voters of the Iowa Park district will hold an election to decide whether or not saloons will be continued in that district.

Much interest is being manifested in the outcome of the election. Both the pros and the antis are waging a lively campaign and both sides are claiming that they will win.

A disinterested observer, who is well acquainted throughout the district, stated this morning that he believed the election would be very close. It is said that a majority of the voters in the district signed the petition for the election and the pros believe that if they can get a full vote, that they will win out.

AMERICAN FLAG DAY.

Today 130th Anniversary of the Birth of the Stars and Stripes.

On June 14, 1777, the Continental Congress in session at Philadelphia adopted a resolution that the official flag of the new republic should be a flag with thirteen alternate red and blue stripes, with thirteen white stars. Today is therefore the 130th anniversary of the American flag and the day is appropriately observed in many parts of the country by the display of the flag. In Wichita Falls, so far as the Times has observed, only one firm made any observance of the anniversary.

Home Papers Always First.

In stirring about the wells, pavilions and parks and places of rest and amusement generally, of course one sees hundreds of persons reading the big daily papers from every State in the Union, but to appreciate how many and divers Texas people come to the Valley of Vitality, the Index reporters have discovered a brand new way.

As is well known all the wells receive great bundles of mail addressed in their care to their customers, and the Index people noted—probably naturally—the great number of county or home papers that come to the wells.

Not long since the reporters decided to notice this and compare notes. It was noticed that many bought the daily papers for some special reason, read what they were looking for, threw the paper down and that was the last of it—unless some little "newsy" found it and sold it again. Others read the papers for political and general news, and occasionally one would place a daily paper in his pocket. But since early Monday morning—the weekly home papers begin to arrive Saturday and Sunday—neither reporter has seen a person cast aside a weekly home paper. Many amusing incidents were noticed. One middle-aged couple with several children had quite a tilt over who should read one paper first. Peace was finally arranged by splitting the sheet. A great many aren't noticed reading the city papers—for the real estate sales, hotel arrivals, etc. But fully eighty per cent of the hundreds of visitors who come here receive their home papers, which they look for as keenly as they do letters.—Mineral Wells Index.

Interstate Exposition of Irrigation and Forestry.

The exposition of irrigated lands, products and forest products which will be held at Sacramento, California, in September, will no doubt be a great event. The management announces a magnificent list of handsome and valuable trophies, comprising no less than sixteen handsome gold and silver loving cups especially designed and manufactured for the occasion and offered for interstate competition by prominent men and business houses of California and other states.

Enthusiasm for this event is already being felt, especially throughout the irrigated area. Irrigation districts are preparing to send their best in order to capture some of these handsome prizes. Farmers on irrigated land are already preparing to forward prize fruits and grains and vegetables.

Interest already manifested throughout the irrigated area indicates that this will be the finest exhibition of the products of irrigated land ever made in this country, and Californians are preparing to celebrate the occasion with a magnificent allegorical irrigation parade, which if carried out along the lines now contemplated, will be the finest pageant ever witnessed in the West.

Mighty Good Story, True or Untrue.

The following has been going the rounds of the press for some time, but it was originally produced as a true story and is worthy of reproduction. The story runs in this way:

"Recently a church congregation in a little Kansas town built a new church. To pay for it they were obliged to call on the merchants of the city for donations. The merchants responded liberally and $300 was raised from this source. The last firm to subscribe was Wilson & Constantine, the jewelers. 'We will give you $20 if you will let us add something to the list,' they said. The permission was accorded them and they wrote at the foot of the list: Wilson & Constantine,20.00 Sears, Roebuck & Co.00.00 Montgomery, Ward & Co.00.00 The church people saw the point when the minister read from the pulpit the list of donors to the building fund, and since the dedication of the church there have been no mail orders sent out from that town."

The Man and the Dog.

"Ah! old staunch friend, with your deep, clear eyes and bright, quick glances that take in all one has to say before one has time to speak it, do you know that you are only an animal and have no mind? Do you know that dull-eyed gin-sodden lout leaning on the post out there is immeasurably your intellectual superior? Do you know that every little-minded, selfish scoundrel who never did a gentle deed or said a kind word, who never had a thought that was not mean or low, or a desire that was not mean and base, whose every action is a fraud and whose every utterance is a lie—do you know that these crawling skulks are as much superior to you as the sun is to a ruck light, you honorable, brave hearted, unselfish brute? They are men, you know, and men are the greatest, noblest, and wisest and best beings in the whole vast, eternal universe! Any man will tell you that."—Jerome K. Jerome, in "Three Men in a Boat."

COMES MEADOW GOLD BUTTER

Cows of high degree, sleek and aristocratic—the kind of cows an artist loves to picture browsing under the comforting shadows of the spreading oak. These are the cows that produce the pure, rich milk that makes this the most delicious butter in the world. Butter as good as the gold from which it takes its name. Butter so pure that it must be protected from contamination by an air-tight, odor-proof, dust-resisting package—THAT IS MEADOW GOLD. We are SOLE DISTRIBUTORS FOR WICHITA FALLS.
