THE TARIFF ON WOOL.

Two Negresses in the Corporation Court as the Result of a Little Diversion.

Judge Rye's court is busy this afternoon in the trial of two negresses who engaged in a wool pulling last Saturday evening. The fight took place on the "Katy" railway track, just east of where the Katy's track crosses the Denver. City Attorney Greenwood is prosecuting and Hon. L. H. Mathis is defending. The trial seems to be attracting a great deal of attention among the colored population. The case had not gone to the jury when the Times went to press, but from the character of the testimony introduced the jury will no doubt feel warranted in returning a verdict that will have a tendency to raise the tariff on wool.

THE GREAT ITALIAN PATRIOT.

Statue of Garibaldi Unveiled in Paris Today.

Paris, France, July 13.—Italy's gift to the city of Paris was unveiled today in Lowendal square with impressing civil and military ceremonies, in the presence of President Fallieres and other distinguished officials. The Italian veteran who fought with Garibaldi in the defense of France during the Franco-German war of 1870 and 1871, fraternized with the French veterans of the Army of Vosges in the parade.

Montgomery, Ala., July 15.—The anti saloon league scored a victory before the Alabama legislature yesterday when the early closing bill passed the Senate and the bill prohibiting the shipment of liquor into prohibition counties was taken from the adverse calendar. The early closing bill provides that saloons in Montgomery, Mobile, and Birmingham must close at 9 p. m. In cities between 2,000 and 25,000 at 8 p. m. and under 2,000 at 6 p. m.

RAIN PREVENTS GAME

"JUPE PLUVE" AGAIN FROWNS AT ABILENE.

STAMFORD IS COMING

Will Play Three Games Here Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday.

A telegram to the Times this afternoon from Manager Lucid at Abilene states that Friday afternoon's game had to be postponed on account of rain. The teams are playing this afternoon, the battery for Wichita Falls being Bunch and Brockman, and for Abilene, Harris and Hunt.

Stamford is coming for a series of three games here on Monday Tuesday and Wednesday of next week. At Stamford this week each team took a game, the third game having to be cancelled on account of rain. In connection with these games Manager Lucid wishes to announce that ladies will be admitted at the gate and at the grand stand free of charge at the first game.

It is said that the Abilene management is making an effort to disrupt the Wichita Falls team through flattering offers to the best players. The players, however, are remaining loyal to Wichita Falls and will stand by the team.

FIRE INSURANCE COMPANIES

Are Defendants in a Suit Filed By the Kansas Attorney-General.

Topeka, Kan., July 13.—Injunction suits were filed today in the county and district court here by Attorney General Jackson against sixty-two foreign insurance companies, charging them with a violation of the State anti-trust laws. The suits are based on information furnished by Charles H. Barnes, superintendent of insurance, and seek to prevent the companies from using the Eldridge rating sheet in writing Kansas insurance. The suit involves every fire insurance company within the state.

FAREWELL TO LONDON.

Mark Twain Sails For Home—Great Crowd at the Station.

London, England, July 13.—Mark Twain (Samuel Clemens) bade farewell to London this morning, sailing for home upon the steamer Minnetonka. A great crowd of admirers at the station kept the American humorist busy shaking hands and gave him a rousing cheer as the train left for Tilbury.

JAPANESE WERE ENTERTAINED.

No Allusion Was Made to the American-Japanese Question.

New York, July 15.—Admiral Yamoto and staff who received so much attention during their brief stay in New York, left Philadelphia early today and will visit several big ship yards. Admiral Yamoto and Ambassador Aoki were guests at the Nippon Club last night. No allusion was made in the speeches to the American-Japanese question.

By Associated Press.

Killingly, Conn., July 13.—Congressman George L. Lilley of Waterbury was the principal speaker today on the occasion of "Old Home Day" and discussed at some length the Japanese question. He said that war between the United States and Japan was unthinkable. There was no group of financiers who would finance a war against this country and it was unthinkable that England would permit Japan to fight England's own flesh and blood.

Must Go to Washington.

The Hague, July 13.—It was officially stated today that Joseph H. Choate, in speaking to the foreign delegates yesterday, said that America had always felt good will toward the Koreans, but manifested no opinion about the present condition of that country and only expressed the belief that no action can be taken here, adding if the Koreans desire to make representations to the United States they must address themselves to the government at Washington.

THE FINAL EFFORT

WILL BE MADE TO SETTLE TELEGRAPHERS' STRIKE.

U. S. LABOR COMMISSIONER

And Union Officials Arrive in San Francisco and Result of Their Visit Will Soon Be Known.

San Francisco, Cal., July 13.—With the arrival last night of United States Labor Commissioner Neill and Koenecamp, Reidy and Sullivan of the national executive committee of the telegraphers, the results of the final effort to prevent the extension of the telegraphers' strike will probably be known tomorrow or Monday. A press meeting of the telegraphers will be held in Oakland tonight, which Commissioner Neill will attend. The officials of both telegraph companies have been invited.

Mandamus Petition Refused.

San Francisco, Cal., July 13.—The district court of appeals refused today to grant Mayor Schmitz a writ of mandamus to compel Judge Dunne to set a date for settling the habeas corpus proceedings in the case of which he is convicted of extortion and sentenced to five years in prison.

The city street cleaning department is doing some much appreciated work this afternoon in scraping out the accumulation of mud and trash from the gutters in the down town district.

SALE OF A BIG FARM

J. L. McCONKEY SELLS 800 ACRES FOR $20,000.

SELLS TO BALLINGER MAN

Who Will Take Immediate Possession of His New Purchase.

Another big deal in farming land in the Wichita country has just been closed. J. L. McConkey, one of the Wichita country's representative farmers, has sold his farm of 800 acres, situated about twelve miles southwest of Wichita Falls on Holliday creek, to Joseph Petter of Ballinger. Mr. McConkey agreed to give immediate possession and the new owner has already started to move on his purchase. The sale includes half the season's crops and Mr. McConkey will probably remain on the farm until after the crops are harvested.

He has not yet decided what he will do in the future, but the Times sincerely hopes that he will not leave this section.

This twenty thousand dollar sale recalls the fact that when Mr. McConkey arrived in Wichita Falls in 1888 his entire capital consisted of fifty cents and the increase in his wealth is another instance of what a man can do in this country through intelligent industry and thrift.

PROSPECTIVE TOWN FIGHT.

Steps are Being Taken to Enjoin the New Town of Kell.

Information reached the Times this morning to the effect that the Federal government has served a writ of injunction on the officials of the Wichita Falls and Northwestern railway to compel them to cease leasing their right of way to parties who are establishing businesses of various kinds in the new town of Kell, Oklahoma, which is located on the Wichita Falls and Northwestern railway and only about two miles from the government town of Eschiti.

To learn more about this matter, a Times reporter called on Judge R. E. Huff, general attorney of the road, for some information regarding the injunction suit reported to have been brought at Lawton against the Wichita Falls and Northwestern railway company. Mr. Huff stated that no papers had been served on the railroad company, but that a writ had been left at the residence of J. W. Field, which stated that the Wichita Falls and Northwestern railroad company, Frank Kell, J. A. Kemp, John W. Field and Mr. Huff had been sued in the United States court by the United States of America and the Comanche, Apache and Kiowa tribes of Indians and that they must answer by August 8th, 1907. Mr. Huff stated to the Times reporter that he had ordered a certified copy of the petition sent him from Lawton, but that it had not arrived and therefore he could not say what the allegations were nor what relief was asked.

He had heard by telephone that the petition stated that the defendants had platted the quarter section into lots and were offering it for sale and asked that they be enjoined.

He said if these were the allegations there was nothing in the suit, as no plot had ever been made and no lots had been sold or offered for sale.

Mr. Huff stated that in the absence of a copy of the petition he could not intelligently discuss the matter.

About Rev. Livingston.

The Baylor County Banner has the following to say concerning Rev. W. L. Livingston, well and favorably known in this city, and who recently resigned his pastorate at Seymour to go to Dalhart:

"It has been known here for some time that Rev. W. L. Livingston, pastor of the Presbyterian church, had resigned his pastorate here and had been called to the church at Dalhart. The move was made necessary by the condition of Mrs. Livingston's health. They are this week packing up their household goods and will leave Tuesday for the plains. "The removal of these good people is a matter of regret to everyone who has known them. Brother Livingston took charge of the work here when the church was in a weak condition, and has built it up to be one of power. The recent great meeting here was in a large measure the result of his consecrated efforts. The church has been put on a self sustaining basis and many of the members have adopted the tithing system. Bro. Livingston's work will be taken up by Rev. T. A. Mitchell, of Plano, who will take charge of the pastorate here next week. Rev. Mitchell is a graduate of Trinity University and the University of Lebanon, Tenn."

Mine Has Been Abandoned.

Those who were engaged in digging the copper mine have gone away and the place is filled with water. And yet it was not all a false alarm. The copper was there all right, but a vein was not found thick enough to work. It is possible that some day the right vein may be found and this will yet be developed into a mining country.—Seymour Banner.

Motor Town.

I went back to the village, Tom; The spot we cherished so; And hunted up our boyhood friends Of twenty years ago! The crowd who tilled the soil with us Are scattered, I avow! The motor craze has struck the town, And they're all chaffeurs now!

You recollect Jim Buzby, Tom, Who worked for Uncle Zeke! They say he has a dandy job; Pulls fifty plunks a week! I never thought Jim had the spunk To lay aside the plow! He owns a row of houses, Tom, For he's a chaffeur now!

Si Perkins, you remember Si; At whom we used to scoff! They sold him out at auction once To clear a mortgage off! He's liquidated all his debts, I can't just tell you how, But he's become a millionaire, For he's a chaffeur now!

I ran across old Billy Sprigg With Mary on his arm, She used to be a milkmaid, Tom, Down on her father's farm. She solemnly declared that she Had never seen a cow, Bill must be making money, Tom; For he's a chaffeur now!

While rambling through the old churchyard, A horror seized my frame! There stood a granite monument Which bore Jim Simpson's name. His motor car exploded, Tom, I learned from Davy Slough; No doubt, if Jim had been alive, He'd be a chaffeur now!

The county court house which they planned, You surely can't forget; They broke the ground when we were boys, And 'tisn't finished yet; Mechanics, Tom, are pretty scarce, As all the folks allow. They can't get men to do the work, For they're all chaffeurs now!

I learned that Aunt Matilda, Tom, Has buried little Seth; They say he took a coughing spell, And finally choked to death. The only doctor in the place Was old Emanuel Howe, But he refused to take the case, For he's a chaffeur now!

The packing house across the road, Dear Tom, has come to grief; They did a thriving business once With potted ham and beef. Those were good old days, dear Tom, When they palmed off horse for cow, Today there's no one owns a horse, For they're all chaffeurs now!

And what we knew as "Bull Frog Creek," Now goes by "Motor-Town;" And autos on the well-paved streets Go spinning 'up and down; I took a job the other day, 'Tis strange, you will allow; But Tom, I'll not be back again, For I'm a chaffeur now! —Frank G. Welsh in Vehicle Dealer.

Shipping Peaches From Bowie.

A car of peaches loaded by the Bowie Fruit and Truck Association was shipped north from Bowie last Tuesday night. There were about 900 crates in the car. This fruit brought 75c per one-third bushel crate f. o. b. Bowie. The purchaser was a Mr. Moon of Nebraska.

The Association expects to lead another car this week.—Bowie Cross Timbers.

The prospects for a good cotton crop next fall continues to grow brighter every day. No injurious insects have yet appeared in the cotton fields and the only problem which is troubling the farmers is to keep the weeds down. Labor is in great demand in the rural districts and everybody is busy. The corn still continues to grow luxuriantly and the best yield ever known here is in prospect this fall.

The Wichita Mill and Elevator Co. has resumed work after its annual lay off on account of repairs, and is now running full blast. The first of the new wheat crop is being milled. This year little or none of the small crops raised in Texas will be milled, as the crops will be saved for sowing next fall. Most of the wheat used in the mills here will be shipped from Oklahoma points.

A few days ago the Times stated that after the 15th of July the city tax collector's books would be moved to the county tax collector's office. City tax collector Lee informs us that only the new assessment rolls will be made at the county office and that the books will be found at the City Hall, as heretofore.

The people of Isadore, a new town in the Big Pasture in Oklahoma, are trying to induce the Wichita Falls and Northwestern to swing their line through that town. If they fail in this, they will try to get an extension of the Rock Island branch from Chattanooga.

Satisfactory Agreement Reached.

When the Wichita Falls and Southern railroad first started to lay off its new townsite at Olney the people of that town were fearful that their own property would depreciate in value and that they would be left in the hole. A committee was appointed to lay the matter before the builders of the new road and after a conference an agreement satisfactory to all parties concerned was reached. Under the agreement the railroad people will give lots to all persons now owning property in Olney free of cost, provided that the town is moved to the new townsite. This proposition is said to be satisfactory to the property owners of the town and it is probable that all will move to the new town site.

Browsing Bovines Excite Complaint.

To the Times: It is the custom of small boys to drive cows up Tenth street and stop them at street corners or anywhere else while they get other cows out of stables and lots. This morning a cow ate the top off of a nice young tree before anyone could drive her away. Why not drive cattle through alleys or keep them going and not stop to get others?

This is getting to be a nuisance and the people want it stopped.

THE ANTI-PASS LAW.

Complying with the State law passed by the Thirtieth Legislature, the railroads of Texas have issued orders calling in all free passes. The law includes in the list of "free-pass tofers" the newspaper men who sell advertising space in exchange for transportation, and if the railroads are carrying out the provisions of this new law in every other respect as well as they are the clause which prohibits them from exchanging transportation for advertising space, this paper is of the opinion that the Texas legislature has at least made one law which the railroads seem eager to live up to. The Times was called upon by all roads with which it had contracts for advertising to surrender them, together with all transportation which had been issued. Upon some of these roads not a mile had been used. The contracts were made for one year. The passage of the law provides that the roads shall not pay for services already rendered under their contract in transportation over their lines. This forces those newspapers which have not used their transportation to either bring suit against the roads or lose what is due them under the contract. The law is all right, with this exception, and should be strictly enforced. If it is enforced to the letter it will not be a great while until the passenger earnings will justify a reduction in passenger rates. Common carriers shall have the right to charge for transportation of passengers more than a sum reasonably sufficient to pay them for their services. If some ride free, those who pay must be charged sufficient rates to cover the legitimate cost of their transportation and also that of the fare of the free pass holder. The free pass practice began many years ago, and was practiced for a long time without harmful results. But now it is different. These are days of money-making and when railroads give anything they expect and generally receive something valuable to them in return. In fact, it has been charged that the free pass practice had grown so much of late years that it had come to be regarded as a species of bribery. One of the worst evils that Texas has suffered from in the past five years has been the bribery of officials by great corporations and special interests, who have used their money lavishly to debauch character and defeat popular rights. If, as some seem inclined to believe, the Thirtieth Legislature has gone to the extreme limit in attempting to cure this great evil, the people of the State should not be too quick to grow impatient. If the law is enforced it is bound to bring about in the course of time a two-cent passenger rate law. Many states have already enacted such a law and Texas, at the rate she is making reforms at the present time, is not going to be the last to fall in line with Missouri, Nebraska, Iowa and other States. In the adoption of such a law that will force the railroads to transport passengers over their lines for a reasonable and fair compensation.

The trouble between Uncle Sam and Japan is taking up a good deal of newspaper space nowadays, notwithstanding that each fresh report of war rumors is closely followed by strong denials from official sources of each nation. However, where there is so much smoke, there is some fire, and every scrap of news bearing on this subject is always readable and interesting. A New York correspondent of the Houston Post sizes up the situation as follows:

"In reference to your leading editorial entitled 'A Spectacle for Japan,' I would like to relate an incident which ought to dispel some of your skepticism of Japan's designs on us.

A few days ago I accidentally made the acquaintance of a Japanese gentleman in a Sixth avenue elevated train. He spoke English fluently, seemed to be well educated and impressed me as knowing a great deal about naval matters—so much that I now suspect he was a former naval officer. Our conversation turned to the possibility of war between Japan and the United States, and he took no pains to conceal his views or his knowledge. He said he believed war would come in the near future and would be begun by Japan, but only under certain unique conditions; namely, only if Japan can cripple at least half of our navy with a single blow, as she had done at Port Arthur. The Japanese naval staff was greatly disappointed when our government recently ordered home the battleships Ohio, Oregon and Wisconsin from the far east. They had hoped that our fleet there would be augmented by the addition of the five new battleships of the Virginia class and perhaps the two of the Louisiana class, making ten in all, which they believed they could destroy in a single night attack with about 200 torpedo boats. However, the Japanese naval officers, he said, were somewhat reassured when we replaced the battleships with the four cruisers, Pennsylvania, Colorado, Maryland and West Virginia. He even went so far as to declare that plans are ready for the capture of these cruisers, the destruction of the dry dock Dewey, and the conquest of the Philippines. Further, in Japanese newspapers our Admirals Dewey and Evans are likened to Russian officers and characterized as stupid and incompetent. The Russians are styled 'tea admirals,' while Evans and Dewey are called 'cabin admirals.'

A Few Pertinent Facts.

There are about 500 piano factories in the United States, the average output of which is 2,000 pianos a year. Among these there now stands at the top the Starr piano, made in Richmond, Indiana. This factory is now turning out 10,000 pianos a year, each one a finished artist's product. The building of a fine piano is not the work of a few years, but of a great many years and ever increasing improvement. Beginning thirty-five years ago, we are now offering in the Starr Piano a product which represents the best in scientific piano construction. Unlimited capital, a modern, up-to-date factory, with every new device, the finest of material the best action produced in America and skilled labor throughout, our factory has enabled us to produce a piano that is recognized by all unprejudiced pianists as a work of art in tone, quality durability and finish. Not one dollar has been paid to artists to advertise our pianos, yet we have the endorsement of the best. These pianos are used by leading colleges of the country including Trinity University, Waxahachie; Polytechnic college, Ft. Worth; Kidd-Key college, Sherman, and many others. The undersigned will be in Wichita Falls a few days longer, and during this time to further introduce these pianos will offer special inducements. Have two samples of our latest output, which is far ahead of anything produced by us before. Call me up at produced by us before. Call me up at me.

tirement the furious king had consigned him. The story was the staple gossip of all polite Europe, and Captain Rohrer, having in his mind a purpose to make use of it in leading up to a statement that should be general to the damage of all Frenchwomen and which a Frenchman might not pass over as he might a jog of the elbow, repeated it with garbled truths to make a scandal of a story which bore none on a plain relation.

He did not reach his deduction. M. de Chateaurien, breaking into his narrative, addressed him very quietly. "Monsieur," he said, "none but swine deny the nobleness of that good and gentle lady, Mlle. la Princesse de Bourbon-Conti. Every Frenchman know' that her cousin is a bad rebel and ingrate, who had only honor and respect for her, but was so willful he could not let even the king say, 'You shall marry here, you shall marry there.' My friend's," the young man turned to the others, "may I ask you to close round' in a circle for one moment? It is clearly shown that the Duke of Orleans is a scurvy fellow, but not"—he wheeled about and touched Captain Rohrer on the brow with the back of his gloved hand—"but not so scurvy as thou, thou swine of the gutter!"

Two hours later, with perfect ease, he ran Captain Rohrer through the left shoulder, after which he sent a basket of red roses to the Duke of Winterset. In a few days he had another captain to fight. This was a ruffling buck who had the astounding indiscretion to proclaim M. de Chateaurien an imposter. There was no Chateaurien, he swore. The Frenchman laughed in his face and, at twilight of the same day, pinked him carefully through the right shoulder. It was not that he could not put aside the insult to himself, he declared to Mr. Molyneux, his second, and the few witnesses, as he handed his wet sword to his lackey—one of his station could not be insulted by a doubt of that station—but he fought in the quarrel of his friend Winterset. This rascal had asserted that M. le Duc had introduced an imposter. Could he overlook the insult to a friend, one to whom he owed his kind reception in Bath? Then, bending over his fallen adversary, he whispered, "Naughty man, tell your master find some better quarrel for the nex' he sen' agains' me."

The conduct of M. de Chateaurien was pronounced admirable.

There was no surprise when the young foreigner fell naturally into the long train of followers of the beautiful Lady Mary. Carlisle nor was there great astonishment that he should obtain marked favor in her eyes, shown so plainly that my Lord Townbrake, Sir Hugh Guilford and the rich Squire Bantison, all of whom had followed her through three seasons, swore with rage, and his grace of Winterset stalked from her aunt's house with black brows.

Meeting the duke there on the evening after his second encounter, de Chateaurien smiled upon him brilliantly. "It was badly done, oh, so badly!" he whispered. "Can you afford to have me strip' of my mask by any but yourself? You, who introduce' me? They will say there is some bad scandal that I could force you to be my godfather. You mus' get the courage yourself."

"I told you a rose had a short life," was the answer.

"Oh, those roses! 'Tis the very greatest rizzon to gather each day a fresh one." He took a red bud from his breast for an instant and touched it to his lips.

"M. de Chateaurien!" It was Lady Mary's voice. She stood at a table where a vacant place had been left beside her. "M. de Chateaurien, we have been waiting very long for you."

The duke saw the look she did not know she gave the Frenchman, and he lost countenance for a moment.

"We approach a climax, eh, monsieur?" said M. de Chateaurien.

CHAPTER IV.

THERE fell a clear September night, when the moon was radiant over town and country, over cobbled streets and winding roads. From the fields the mists rose slowly, and the air was mild and fragrant, while distances were white and full of mystery. All of Bath that pretended to fashion or condition was present that evening at a fete at the house of a country gentleman of the neighborhood. When the stately junket was concluded it was the pleasure of M. de Chateaurien to form one of the escort of Lady Mary's carriage for the return. As they took the road Sir Hugh Guilford and Mr. Bantison, engaging in indistinct but vigorous remonstrance with Mr. Molyneux over some matter, fell fifty or more paces behind, where they continued to ride, keeping up their argument. Half a dozen other gallants rode in advance, muttering among themselves, or attended laxly upon Lady Mary's aunt on the other side of the coach, while the happy Frenchman was permitted to ride close to that adorable window which framed the fairest face in England.

He sang for her a little French song, a song of the voyageur who dreamed of home. The lady, listening, looking up at the bright moon, felt a warm drop upon her cheek, and he saw the tears sparkling upon her lashes.

"Mademoiselle," he whispered then, "I, too, have been a wanderer, but my dreams were not of France; no, I do not dream of that home, of that dear country. It is of a dearer country, a dream country—a country of gold and snow," he cried softly, looking at her white brow and the fair, lightly powdered hair above it. "Gold and snow and the blue sky of a lady's eyes!"

"I had thought the ladies of France were dark, sir."

"Cruel! It is that she will not understand! Have I speak of the ladies of France? No, no, no! It is of the faïres' country—yes, 'tis a province of heaven, mademoiselle. Do I not renounce my allegiance to France? Oh, yes! I am subject—no, content to be slave—in the land of the blue sky, the gold and the snow."

"A very pretty figure," answered Lady Mary, her eyes downcast. "But does it not hint a notable experience in the making of such speeches?"

"Tormentress! No. It prove only the inspiration it is to know you."

"We English ladies hear plenty of the like, sir, and we even grow brilliant enough to detect the assurance that lies beneath the courtesies of our own gallants."

"Merci! I should believe so!" ejaculated M. de Chateaurion, but he smothered the words upon his lips.

Her eyes were not lifted. She went on: "We come, in time, to believe that true feeling comes faltering forth, not glibly; that smoothness betokens the adept in the art, sir, rather than your true—your true"—She was herself faltering; more, blushing deeply and halting to a full stop in terror of a word. There was a silence.

"Your—true—lover," he said huskily. When he had said that word both trembled. She turned half away into the darkness of the coach.

"I know what make you to doubt me," he said, faltering himself, though it was not his art that prompted him. "They have told you the French do nothing always but make love, is it not so? Yes, you think I am like that. You think I am like that now!"

She made no sign.

"I suppose," he sighed, "I am unrecognizable. I would have the snow not so cold—for just me."

She did not answer.

"Turn to me," he said.

The fragrance of the fields came to them, and from the distance the faint, clear note of a hunting horn.

"Turn to me."

The lovely head was bent very low. Her little gloved hand lay upon the narrow window ledge. He laid his own gently upon it. The two hands were shaking like twin leaves in the breeze. Hers was not drawn away. After a pause, neither knew how long, he felt the warm fingers turn and clasp themselves tremulously about his own. At last she looked up bravely and met his eyes. The horn was wound again—nearer.

"All the cold was gone from the snows—long ago," she said.

"My beautiful!" he whispered. It was all he could say. "My beautiful!" But she clutched his arm, startled.

"Ware the road!" A wild halloo sounded ahead. The horn wound loudly. "Ware the road!" There sprang up out of the night a flying thunder of hoof beats. The gentlemen riding idly in front of the coach scattered to the hedge sides, and, with drawn swords flashing in the moon, a party of horsemen charged down the highway, their cries blasting the night.

"Barber! Kill the barber!" they screamed. "Barber! Kill the barber!"

Beaucaire had but time to draw his sword when they were upon him.

"A moi!" his voice rang out clearly as he rose in his stirrups.

"A moi, Francois, Louis, Berquin! A moi, Francois!"

The cavaliers came straight at him. He parried the thrust of the first, but the shock of collision hurled his horse against the side of the coach.

"Sacred swine!" he cried bitterly. "To endanger a lady, to make this brawl in a lady's presence! Drive on!" he shouted.

"No!" cried Lady Mary.

The Frenchman's assailants were masked, but they were not highwaymen. "Barber! Barber!" they shouted hoarsely and closed in on him in a circle.

"See how he uses his steel!" laughed M. Beaucaire, as his point passed through a tawdry waistcoat. For a moment he cut through the ring and cleared a space about him, and Lady Mary saw his face shining in the moonlight. "Canaille!" he hissed as his horse sank beneath him, and, though guarding his head from the rain of blows from above, he managed to drag headlong from his saddle the man who had hamstringed the poor brute. The fellow came suddenly to the ground and lay there.

"Is it not a compliment," said a heavy voice, "to bring six large men to subdue monsieur?"

"Oh, you are there, my friend! In the rear—a little in the rear, I think. Ha, ha!"

The Frenchman's play with his weapon was a revelation of skill, the more extraordinary as he held in his hand only a light dress sword. But the ring closed about him, and his keen defense could not avail him for more than a few moments. Lady Mary's outriders, the gallants of her escort, rode up close to the coach and encircled it, not interfering.

"Sir Hugh Guilford!" cried Lady Mary wildly, "if you will not help him, give me your sword!" She would have leaped to the ground, but Sir Hugh held the door.

"Sit quiet, madam," he said to her. Then, to the man on the box, "Drive on."
