MANIA FOR CRIME

RICHARDSON DECLARES THAT ORCHARD WAS OBSESSED.

SPECTACULAR METHOD

Have Been Easy to Have Killed Steunenberg With a Rifle Shot But Orchard Wished to Attract Attention.

July 22.—Resuming his argument this morning Attorney Richardson reverted to the Bradley explosion to call the attention to the story of the witness who said Orchard declared "that Bradley was coming to him and there was a chap named Steinberg who is to be killed."

Richardson declared that he made a second attempt upon the life of Peabody, Richardson declared that there was absolutely no corroborating evidence offered to Orchard's story of the bomb under the sidewalk and its failure to explode. The jury also declared no sufficient evidence was offered as to why Orchard abandoned from time to time attempts on the lives of Governor Peabody and Judges Godard and Gabe Sherman Bell and Hearn. He said if these crimes were inspired by the murderers inner circles they would not not have been committed without apparent cause.

When you consider all the testimony in this case I think you will reach the conclusion that this man Orchard was possessed of a mania to kill. Sometimes his lust was greater than at others and so it was that some times he was strong in his purpose and some times wavering. He said that Orchard's story was the most absurd story on the face of the earth.

Richardson ridiculed Orchard's story as to being ordered to get David Moffatt, president of the First National bank of Denver. He declared that Haywood deposited all the funds of the Federation in the bank and was a constant visitor there. He said that Haywood was on terms of almost intimacy with Moffatt. He also pointed out how easily Orchard could have killed Sherman Bell had he desired. He declared that if the Federation felt resentment against anyone it would be reasonable to feel it against Bell who commanded the militia and against General Blakeley Wells who was prominent in the militia and the Owen's association. But Orchard did not even claim that an attempt was made against Bell. He said that every state was expected to take care of the crimes committed within its borders, Colorado had sent her dirty linen here for you gentlemen to wash. Coming again in the course of his argument to the death of Steunenberg, Richardson said the defense was willing to admit that Orchard committed the deed exactly as he described. He said that Steunenberg's manner of going around the state and taking drives each week to his ranch made him an easy mark for the rifle. "It would have been an easy matter to have shot him if one wished to kill him in any but a spectacular manner. I say to you Orchard had a mania for crime and for committing crime in a way that would attract attention." Richardson then took up the connection of Jack Simpkins with Orchard as to the disappearance of Simpkins after the death of Steunenberg. Richardson said that he would have fled to hiding under similar circumstances although there was not an iota of evidence to connect Simpkins with the crime. Simpkins had had one experience in the Idaho bullpen and felt his only safety was in flight. "Orchard," said Richardson, "was the man who had a motive against Steunenberg." It mattered not whether he had deeded away his property prior to leaving Couer d'Alene or not. The thought was always going through his brain that he would have been a rich man if it had not been for Steunenberg. This thought was expressed to many, and Richardson denied that they were lying. He reviewed Orchard's movements just prior to killing and said that he was in a straightened financial condition when he was reduced to robbing the cash register, of burglarizing the railroad station and borrowing money from friends. He gave the lie to the theory that the Federation was paying for crime and that he could get money whenever he desired it. The court took a recess at 11:30 until six o'clock. Richardson announced that he positively would conclude tonight.

EXCITEMENT FOLLOWING MAN'S CONVICTION.

Former Washington Lawyer Is Condemned to Death.

By Associated Press.
Karlsruhe, Germany, July 23.—The excitement following the conviction of Karl Hak and his condemnation to death this morning is subsiding. The rioting subsided as soon as the crowd had been driven from the vicinity of the court house. An appeal to the Supreme court will be lodged in a few days. The crime for which Hak was convicted was the murder of his wife's mother, Frau Mollter, of Baden Baden.

YOUNG LADY KILLED

SHOT BY HER FORMER EMPLOYER ON THE STREETS OF NEW YORK.

THE MAN WAS INSANE

After Killing Girl Shot Two Men and Was Finally Felled While Trying to Kill Truckman.

New York July 23.—Miss Esther Nortling, 23 years old, was shot and killed today it is alleged by Chas. Warner, her former employer, as she was entering a hairdressing on West 42nd street where she was employed. Warner it is alleged fired several shots at Arthur Spicer, manager of the store, while escaping. Warner fled and has not been found. The police believe that he was unbalanced by business reverses or other troubles.

Later—Warner later appeared at the store of John C. Wilson whom he knew and asked for a loan of ten dollars. While Wilson was turned to get the money he shot him in the arm and back inflicting wounds thought to be fatal. Warner then fled but was interrupted by a truckman. Warner shot at him but missed. The truckman to save his life felled Warner with a cotton hook inflicting a fatal injury. Warner was hurried to the hospital.

WILL BEGIN WORK

CHAMBER OF COMMERCE ELECTS PERMANENT SECRETARY AND WILL BEGIN AGGRESSIVE CAMPAIGN

TO ADVERTISE WICHITA

And the Splendid Country Surrounding and to Exert Intelligent Persistent Effort for Town's Advancement.

A movement was inaugurated yesterday having for its purpose the growth and continued prosperity and pre-eminence of Wichita Falls as a commercial center.

The movement is to be undertaken by the Wichita Falls Chamber of Commerce which is to be revived and re-organized, its membership increased and the organization placed upon an effective working basis.

In response to a call issued by the president, Charles W. Bean, some thirty members of the Chamber of Commerce met in the organization's new headquarters over Robertson's drug store on Indiana avenue and perfected a permanent organization. In the absence of President Bean, R. E. Huff acted as chairman of the meeting.

After a liberal discussion, it was decided to increase the membership, to employ a permanent secretary, have permanent headquarters and to raise a fund for advertising the advantages and resources of Wichita Falls and the surrounding territory.

Upon a vote, Mr. Miles was selected secretary at a salary of $100 per month and the place of the meeting was selected as the permanent headquarters. T. R. T. Orth was elected a new member of the executive committee of the organization and it was decided to get to work at once and secure new members and to raise a fund to advertise the town and country.

The minimum membership subscription was placed at one dollar a month and every man having at heart the welfare of the town will be asked to join the organization.

Some advertising matter has already been ordered and the advertisement of the town will begin in an intelligent, systematic and persistent manner.

The next meeting is to be held on August 1st and in the meantime Secretary Miles and the members of the executive board hope to secure a membership of fully two hundred and fifty business and professional men.

The Times believes that right now is a mighty good time for every man in town to take hold of this proposition and help in the good work.

CLASH IS FEARED

BETWEEN AMERICAN AND JAPANESE SAILORS AT BREST.

COMMANDERS CAUTIOUS

American Admiral Will Not Grant Shore Leave to His Men.

By Associated Press.
Brest, July 23.—The Japanese squadron is expected to reach this port tonight. The delay in arriving is generally attributed to the desire of the commander to make as short as possible the time that the American and Japanese ships will be together in the harbor, in order to reduce the chances of any untoward incident between the sailors. The sailors from the American cruisers the Washington and the Tennessee now here seem to hold a grudge against the Japanese on account of the fancied grievances at Jamestown. There has been threatening talk in the cafes frequently by the American blue jackets. Rear Admiral Charles E. Stockton in command of the American vessels, has decided to grant no shore leave after the Japanese arrive.

DEATH LIST SMALLER

MANY OF THE COLUMBIA'S PASSENGERS WERE RESCUED.

TEACHERS AMONG DEAD

Many on Board the Steamer Had Been Attending Convention at Los Angeles.

San Francisco, July 23.—The arrival of the steamship Pomona from the north is anxiously awaited today as she is known to have a number of the survivors of the steamer Columbia on board. It is hoped that the loss of life will not be as large as was first reported. It is known that of the 188 passengers on the Columbia, 97 were saved by the Geo. W. Elder, which towed the San Pedro to Eureka. There were sixty in the crew of the Columbia and of these 38 were on the Elder. Reports from Shelton Cove announce the arrival of one boat with 16 passengers and the crew leaving the total death toll at 98. So far only one boat has arrived at Shelter Cove. It is said that before the steamer sank, one boat and three life rafts were launched. These are yet to be accounted for and it is expected that steamers passing up and down the coast will succeed in picking up many who escaped. Not a few passengers on the Columbia were teachers and friends who had been attending the National Educational Association at Los Angeles.

Wealthy Stockman's Family Lost.

By Associated Press.
Decatur, Ill., July 23.—Mrs. George E. Keller and three daughters whose names are included in the list of dead in the Columbia disaster were the wife and children of George E. Keller, Secretary of the Decatur racing association, one of the wealthiest stock men in Central Illinois.

Two Colorado Teachers Were Victims.

Denver, July 23.—Miss Mary Parsons, who is believed to have perished in the Columbia disaster was a Denver school teacher. Miss Katrina Hayden, another victim, was a teacher at Colorado Springs. Both had been in attendance at the National Educational Convention.

San Francisco, July 23.—Pacific coast steamer, Pomona, arrived in San Francisco from Eureka this morning bringing from the latter place one survivor of the wrecked passenger steamer Columbia, Miss A. Leide, of this city, and thirty-two members of the crew of the Columbia who were saved from a total of fifty-nine. She brought no bodies. An erroneous report had been spread that the Pomona had brought a number of the Columbia's passengers and a throng of eager men and women assembled on the dock. When the gang plank was hoisted on the Pomona's deck the people were restrained with difficulty from clambering aboard. Miss Leide was too much overcome by her experiences to talk to the reporters, and the officers of the Columbia refused to talk until they had delivered their statements to the company's officials.

That Anti-Trust Statute.

Wichita Falls, Texas, July 23.

To the Times:—

The remarks of a local merchant, quoted in your issue of yesterday and the numerous questions as to the matter which I, in common with other lawyers, am requested to answer, suggests to me that it would perhaps not be amiss for me to say a few words in regard to the new anti-trust statute so bitterly complained of. I was astonished to see such papers as the Dallas News and others give publication to the matter in "scare-head" style as an act threatening an innocent merchant who happened to handle trust made articles, with imprisonment in the penitentiary for from two to ten years. An inspection of the act as published in Saturday's News, did not bear out such a construction from Attorney General R. V. Davidson, the chief law officer of the state, which thoroughly explodes the "scare" and explains the true and legitimate purposes of the act. He says:

"There is not, in this entire act, one single section, paragraph, clause, line or word which in any manner affects the purchase or sale by anyone, upon his own account and not under an exclusive contract, of goods which have been manufactured, handled or sold by a trust or a monopoly, or by those engaged in a conspiracy in restraint of trade."

Can language be made plainer than this? It follows that this whole discussion is but a bug-bear, a ghost to frighten the people and perchance it was originated for the sole purpose of bringing the law into contempt. Mr. Davidson remarks that the first publication of the "scare-head" was in a St. Louis paper and in that city is located the principal offices of a great trust which has been twice declared an outlaw in Texas.

So long as the Wichita merchant steers clear of the exclusive contract, makes no agreement with any man as to prices of his goods, joins no unholy alliance with others to "freeze out" competition, takes no agency to exploit the business of declared outlaws, but goes ahead as he is now doing, with a free, open market and honest competition, he need have no fear of the criminal statutes of Texas. Criminal laws, jails and penitentiaries were not made for the honest, the good and the upright. But the men who, through unlawful combine and conspiracy use their wealth to ruin others and further enrich themselves at the expense of the public—these are the men for whom this statute was enacted, and, after all, it is but another attempt to put the big thief upon an equal footing with the little thief and associate them together in stripes and behind the bars for the protection of society.

P. A. MARTIN,
District Attorney.

Automatic Compensation for Accidents The Inter-Nation.

The question of paying in damages for accidents, by an automatic process, regardless of the fault of the injured party and without opportunity to investigate the facts in court regarding the extent of the injury or the amount of compensation properly payable, will interest seriously a large number of people. Few farmers of any consequence but are employers of labor, and the very existence of cities is founded upon the relations of employer and workman in trade and manufacturing pursuits.

Common sense and common judgment recognize a clear moral and economic distinction between accidents caused by negligence and those which are unavoidable. If a farmer or planter sends his employe to the field behind a fractious team or with a defective reaper, and the employe is thereby injured, the farmer is ordinarily liable. Such injury was seemingly the result of the employer's negligence, but, nevertheless, no farmer will willingly pay damages "automatically," nor surrender his rights to have investigated in court the question of how serious was the actual harm, what is a fair compensation for the injury, and whether the employe did not intentionally assume the risks of the defective machine with full knowledge, or use it in direct disobedience of orders from the employer.

Accidents occur in multitudes of such cases where it would be against sound morals to require the payment of any damages whatever, and the proposition to pay all damages automatically and without right of investigation is unworkable.

It is strange to contemplate how many kinds of a fool some men can make of themselves when they hide a few drinks under their belts. They go prancing around like a horse with the blind staggers, giving a free exhibition of their assinine qualities.

They generally start out to hunt trouble and most always find it.

That reminds me of a neighborhood convention that was once called in one of the old feud counties of Old Kentucky.

So many people had been killed during a number of years that the leading citizens concluded that it was time to put an end to the strife. Consequently a truce was declared between factions during the convention.

After a whole day's deliberations by the delegates without any satisfactory results, a venerable old mountaineer arose and, steadying himself by the aid of his cane, in a high-pitched voice said: "Neighbors, I am nigh onto 80 years—was with General Jackson at New Orleans, have been postmaster and justice of the peace since the county has been organized, used to hold up my end of a log at a house raisin', killed deer and fought wild cats, split rails and peeled tanbark, but I'll be durned if I ever struck as knotty a question as this one.

"But, howsomever, I've been thinking while you all talked and I have come to the conclusion that the whole trouble is from drinking this mean whiskey made from sorghum juice.

"Why, neighbors, if a rabbit was to drink sich stuff he would walk right up and spit in a bull dog's face."

The Case of Joe Levan.

We are obliged to our esteemed contemporary, the Charleston News and Courier, for the simple story of Joe Levan, a negro barber of Sumter, South Carolina.

It is the rule of the Post never to permit an episode like this to pass without calling attention to it and we hope every reader will look elsewhere in today's Post and carefully peruse the story. It is especially desirable that the negroes of the younger generation read and ponder it. The lesson is too good to be lost.

Joe Levan died in Sumter the other day at the advanced age of 75 years. From emancipation to the day of his death he conducted an humble barber shop in Sumter and was patronized by the best people of the town. No rival could alienate his customers from him. When he died the white people attended his funeral by the hundreds and after the mound of clay had been raised above his dust the same white people, without solicitation, raised money and erected a monument to his memory, setting forth this eloquent tribute: "He was faithful as a slave and respected as a freeman. This stone is erected by his white friends as a tribute to his worth."

It was said of him: "He never performed a single spectacular service, but was simply faithful, courteous, honest and industrious throughout his life. He asked no favors from any man and was content to earn an honest living at his trade. In manner, he was polite and respectful, without a trace of severity; reserved and dignified in deportment and his word was better than many a white man's bond."

It is a great deal to so live as to exact that kind of tribute from one's neighbors, and the man of whom such words may be truthfully spoken, be he white or black, has not lived in vain. They show, however, that the way of life for the American negro lies in fidelity, courtesy, honesty and industry. No negro will ever lack for friends who lives as Joe Levan lived. It is a regrettable fact that few negroes of the younger generation ever regard the examples of these splendid negro characters to which the white people are always eager to render homage and respect.

There is nothing in vulgar self-assertion, indolence, immorality and impudence. There are millions of young negroes who are proving that every day. There is everything in honor, honesty, truth, courtesy, industry and self-respect. And our Northern friends, who are eternally concerned about the negro question, might well pause and ponder such cases as Levan's and many others like it which come to the surface nowadays whenever these courteous and industrious old negro gentlemen fall by the wayside to embrace death's eternal slumber.—Houston Post.

The new certificates were issued under authority of the Aldrich act in order to supply the demand for more currency of small denominations. These will be accepted at the Index Office for subscriptions, no matter how far delinquent.—Mineral Wells Index.

LAST OF "LORD BARRINGTON."

With this week the career of the most remarkable and versatile criminal of recent years will come to an end, unless Governor Folk interferes. Next Thursday is the day set for the execution of Frederick Seymour Barrington at St. Louis. He is an Englishman, the son of a coachman, but he has always posed as a man of noble birth. When only 7 years of age he was sent to prison for five years for arson. Since that time he has served terms in prisons in Germany, France, Spain, India and the United States. His crimes ranging from petty larceny to murder. He first made his appearance in the United States in 1888, when about 30 years of age and masqueraded as "Lord Barrington of England." Within a year he had married Celestine Miller, the daughter of a wealthy Brooklyn family and after squandering her fortune, left her penniless in London. Soon after he married a wealthy Canadian girl, whom he deserted after spending her money. In 1902 a Philadelphia heiress became his bride, only to be deserted soon after she had settled a large part of her fortune on her worthless husband. Nothing more was heard of Barrington until he appeared in St. Louis. In June, 1903, he was arrested, charged with the murder of James P. McCann, a St. Louis horseman, who had befriended him. He was convicted, but fought the case at every turn. In the end, however, his sentence was affirmed by the Supreme Court of the United States. His only hope now is that Gov. Folk may interfere at the last moment in his behalf.

Before inviting more people to make their homes in Wichita Falls let's try and make comfortable those who are already here. Rents are too high, and this is caused by the scarcity of tenant houses. It is almost impossible now for an ordinary wage earner to secure comfortable quarters for himself and family at a reasonable figure, and for that reason many who come here with intentions to make this city their home, after looking around find that prices, which to them, at least, seem extortionate, are being asked, and received for ordinary cottages that, at the rent they are bringing their owners are paying all the way from 15 to 30 per cent on the investment. If there were more houses, there would be more people here to occupy them and less complaint.

LAST OF "LORD BARRINGTON."

With this week the career of the most remarkable and versatile criminal of recent years will come to an end, unless Governor Folk interferes. Next Thursday is the day set for the execution of Frederick Seymour Barrington at St. Louis. He is an Englishman, the son of a coachman, but he has always posed as a man of noble birth. When only 7 years of age he was sent to prison for five years for arson. Since that time he has served terms in prisons in Germany, France, Spain, India and the United States. His crimes ranging from petty larceny to murder. He first made his appearance in the United States in 1888, when about 30 years of age and masqueraded as "Lord Barrington of England." Within a year he had married Celestine Miller, the daughter of a wealthy Brooklyn family and after squandering her fortune, left her penniless in London. Soon after he married a wealthy Canadian girl, whom he deserted after spending her money. In 1902 a Philadelphia heiress became his bride, only to be deserted soon after she had settled a large part of her fortune on her worthless husband. Nothing more was heard of Barrington until he appeared in St. Louis. In June, 1903, he was arrested, charged with the murder of James P. McCann, a St. Louis horseman, who had befriended him. He was convicted, but fought the case at every turn. In the end, however, his sentence was affirmed by the Supreme Court of the United States. His only hope now is that Gov. Folk may interfere at the last moment in his behalf.

Before inviting more people to make their homes in Wichita Falls let's try and make comfortable those who are already here. Rents are too high, and this is caused by the scarcity of tenant houses. It is almost impossible now for an ordinary wage earner to secure comfortable quarters for himself and family at a reasonable figure, and for that reason many who come here with intentions to make this city their home, after looking around find that prices, which to them, at least, seem extortionate, are being asked and received for ordinary cottages that, at the rent they are bringing their owners are paying all the way from 15 to 30 per cent on the investment. If there were more houses, there would be more people here to occupy them and less complaint.

Specific Instruction for Auto Owners as Provided by the New Law.

Wichita Falls is acquiring a goodly number of automobiles and as there has been some speculation as to just what the new law as passed by the last legislature provides concerning the owners and users of these vehicles, the Times publishes the bill relating to them in full.

An act to regulate the running of automobiles and motor vehicles, and the requiring of the owner of such machine to register his name and the number of his machine with the county clerk of the county in which he resides, for the violation of which a penalty is provided.

Section 1. Be it enacted by the legislature of the state of Texas: All owners of automobiles or motor vehicles shall before using such vehicles or machines upon the public roads, streets or driveways, register with the county clerk of the county in which he resides, his name which name shall be registered by the county clerk in consecutive order in a book to be kept for that purpose, and shall be numbered in the order in of their registration; and it shall be the duty of such owner or owners to display in a conspicuous place on said machine the number so registered, which number shall be in figures not less than six inches in height. The county clerk shall be paid by such owner or owners a fee of 50 cents for each machine registered.

Section 2. No automobile or motor vehicle shall be driven or operated upon any public road, street or driveway at a greater rate of speed than eighteen miles an hour, or upon any public road, street or driveway within the built up portion of any city town or village, the limits of which shall be fixed by the municipal officers thereof, at a greater rate of speed than eight miles an hour, except where such city or town may by ordinance or by-law allow a greater speed, provided the speed limit shall not apply to race courses or speedways.

Section 4. All drivers or operators of automobiles or motor vehicles are prohibited from racing upon public road, street or driveway.

Section 5. Any person driving or operating an automobile or motor vehicle shall at the request, or signal by putting up the hand, or by other visible signal from a person riding a horse or horses or other domestic animal, cause such vehicle or machine to come to a standstill as quickly as possible and to remain stationary long enough to allow such animal to pass.

them, joined heads with them. "You may well say he is in," he exclaimed, "and if you want to know where, why, in yonder card room. I saw him through the half open door."

"What's to be done?" asked the beau.

"Send the bailiffs."

"Fie, fie! A file of bailiffs! The scandal!"

"Then listen to me," said the duke. "I'll select half a dozen gentlemen, explain the matter and we'll put him in the center of us and take him out to the bailiffs. 'Twill appear nothing. Do you remain here and keep the attention of Beaujolais and de Mirepoix. Come, Bantison, fetch Townbrake and Harry Rakell yonder. I'll bring the others."

Three minutes later his grace of Winterset flung wide the card room door and, after his friends had entered, closed it.

"Ah!" remarked M. Beaucaire quietly. "Six more large men."

The duke, seeing Lady Mary, started, but the angry signs of her interview had not left her face and reassured him. He offered his hand to conduct her to the door. "May I have the honor?"

"If this is to be known, 'twill be better if I leave after. I should be observed if I went now."

"As you will, madam," he answered, not displeased. "And now you impudent villain," he began, turning to M. Beaucaire, but to fall back, astounded. "O'd's blood, the dog hath murdered and robbed some royal prince!" He forgot Lady Mary's presence in his excitement. "Lay hands on him!" he shouted. "Tear those orders from him!"

Molyneux threw himself between. "One word!" he cried. "One word before you offer an outrage you will repent all your lives!"

"Or let M. de Winterset come alone!" laughed M. Beaucaire.

"Do you expect me to fight a cutthroat barber, and with bare hands?"

"I think one does not expect monsieur to fight anybody. Would I fight you, you think? That was why I had my servants that evening we play. I would gladly fight almost any one in the world, but I did not wish to soil my hand with a—"

"Stuff his lying mouth with his orders!" shouted the duke.

But Molyneux still held the gentlemen back. "One moment," he cried.

"M. de Winterset," said Beaucaire, "of what are you afraid? You calculate well. Beaucaire might have been belief—an impostor that you yourself expose? Never! But I was not going to reveal that secret. You have not absolve me of my promise."

"Tell what you like," answered the duke. "Tell all the wild lies you have time for. You have five minutes to make up your mind to go quietly."

"Now you absolve me, then? Ha, ha! Oh, yes! Mademoiselle," he bowed to Lady Mary, "I have the honor to request you leave the room. You shall miss no details if these friends of yours kill me, on the honor of a French gentleman."

"A French what?" laughed Bantison.

"Do you dare keep up the pretense?" cried Lord Townbrake.

"Know, your villain barber, that your master, the Marquis de Mirepoix, is in the next room."

Molyneux heaved a great sigh of relief. "Shall I"— He turned to M. Beaucaire.

The young man laughed and said, "Tell him come here at once."

"Impudent to the last!" cried Bantison as Molyneux hurried from the room.

"Now you goin' to see M. Beaucaire's master," said Beaucaire to Lady Mary. "Tis true what I say, the other night. I cross from France in his suit; my passport say as his barber. Then to pass the ennui of exile I come to Bath and play for what one will. It kill the time. But when the people hear I have been a servant they come only secretly, and there is one of them—he has absolve me of a promise not to speak—of him I learn something he cannot wish to be tol'. I make some trouble to learn this thing. Why I should do this? Well—that is my own rizzon. So I make this man help me in a masque, the unmasking it was, for, as there is no one to know me, I throw off my black wig and become myself—and so I am 'Chateaurien,' Castle Nowhere. Then this man I use, this Winterset, he—"

"I have great need to deny these accusations?" said the duke.

"Nay," said Lady Mary wearily. "Shall I tell you why I mus' be 'Victor' and 'Beaucaire' and 'Chateaurien' and not myself?"

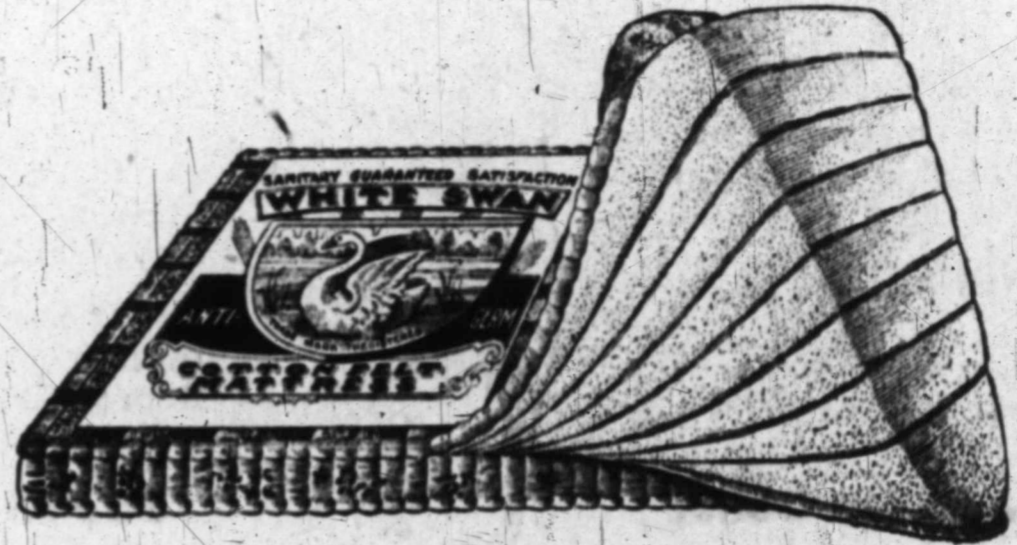

"To escape from the bailiffs for debts for razors and soap," giped Lord Townbrake.

"No, monsieur. In France I have got a cousin who is a man with a very bad temper at some time, and he will never enjoy his relatives to do what he does not wish—"

He was interrupted by a loud commotion from without. The door was flung open, and the young Count of Beaujolais bounded in and threw his arms about the neck of M. Beaucaire.

"Philippe!" he cried. "My brother, I have come to take you back with me."

EXHIBITION GAME

TEAMS COMPOSED OF LOCAL TALENT AND PROFESSIONAL PLAYERS TO CONTEST.

MORE FUNDS ARE NEEDED

Big Monthly Expenditure For Salaries Necessary to Support Team.

Two Wichita Falls teams, comprised of both professional and amateur talent will give an exhibition contest at the ball park tomorrow afternoon at 4:20 p. m. The proceeds of the game will go into the baseball fund. The Wichita Falls team requires an expenditure of nearly one thousand dollars a month for salaries alone and the lovers of the great national game must patronize the games liberally if the team is to be kept up to its present high standard.

Two new men have joined the team. One is Egan, the crack shortstop who played with Houston earlier in the season and the other is Wakefield, an outfielder who is said to be as good a man as Lucker.

Netherly, formerly of the Stamford team, whose base running and all round playing was one of the features of the series with Stamford, will arrive this afternoon.

Four prominent business men will do the batting work tomorrow afternoon and the game promises some rare sport.

M. de Mirepoix followed him, bowing as a courtier in deference, but M. Beaucaire took both his hands heartily. Molyneux came after, with Mr. Nash, and closed the door.

"My warmest felicitations," said the marquis. "There is no longer need for your incognito."

"Thou best of masters!" said Beaucaire, touching him fondly on the shoulder. "I know. Your courier came safely. And so I am forgiven! But I forget." He turned to the lady. She had begun to tremble exceedingly. "Faires' of all the English fair," he said, as the gentlemen bowed low to her deep courtesy, "I beg the honor to present to Lady Mary Carlisle, M. le Comte de Beaujolais. M. de Mirepoix has already the honor. Lady Mary has been very kind to me, my friend's. You must help me make my acknowledgment. Mademoiselle and gentlemen, will you give me that favor to detain you one instant?"

"Henri," he turned to the young Beaujolais, "I wish you had shared my mask—I have been so gay!" The surface of his tone was merry, but there was an undercurrent, weary-sad, to speak of what was the mood, not the manner. He made the effect of addressing every one present, but he looked steadily at Lady Mary. Her eyes were fixed upon him, with a silent and frightened fascination, and she trembled more and more. "I am a great actor, Henri. These gentlemen are yet scarce convinced I am not a lackey! And I must tell you that I was just now to be expelled for having been a barber!"

"PHILIPPE!" HE CRIED. "MY BROTHER, I HAVE COME TO TAKE YOU BACK WITH ME."

"Oh, no!" the ambassador cried out. "He would not be content with me. He would wander over a strange country."

"Ha, ha, my Mirepoix! And what is better, one evening I am obliged to fight some friends of M. de Winterset there, and some ladies and cavaliers look on, and they still think me a servant. Oh, I am a great actor! 'Tis true there is not a peasant in France who would not have then known one 'born'; but they are wonderful, this English people, holding by an idea once it is in their heads—a most worthy quality. But my good Molyneux here, he had speak to me with courtesy, just because I am a man and just because he is always kind. (I have learn' that his great-grandfather was a Frenchman.) So I sent to him and tell him ev'rything, and he gain admittance for me here tonight to await my friend's."

"I was speaking to messieurs about my cousin, who will meddle in the affair of his relative. Well, that gentleman, he make a marriage for me with a good and accomplish' lady, very noble and very beautiful—and amiable." (The young count at his elbow started slightly at this, but immediately appeared to wrap himself in a mantle of solemn thought.) "Unfortunately, when my cousin arrange' so I was a dolt, a little blockhead. I swear to marry for myself and when I please or never if I like. That lady is all things charming and gentle, and, in truth, she is—very much attach' to me—why should I not say it? I am so proud of it. She is very faithful and forgiving and sweet. She would be the same, I think, if I—were even—a lackey. But I? I was a dolt, a little unsensible brute. I did not value such thing' then. I was too yo'ng, las' June. So I say to my cousin, 'No, I make my own choosing!' 'Little fool,' he answer, 'she is the one for you. Am I not wiser than you?' And he was very angry, and, as he has influence in France, word come' that he will get me put in Vincennes, so I must run away quick till his anger is gone. My good friend Mirepoix is just leaving for London. He take' many risk' for my sake. His hairdresser die before he start', so I travel as that poor barber. But my cousin is a man to be afraid of when he is angry, even in England, and I must not get my Mirepoix in trouble. I must not be discover' till my cousin is ready to laugh about it all and make it a joke. And there may be spies. So I change my name again and come to Bath to amuse my retreat with a little gaming. I am always fond of that. But three day' ago M. le Marquis send me a courier to say that my (To Be Continued.)

Here is Something We Never Mentioned!
Although we have handled it for 15 years

Its Hudson Table Syrup—a blend of Pure Vermont Maple and Cane Syrup—not a drop of glucose or any other foreign substance. Maple and Cane Syrup only—one as pure as the other—complies with all pure food laws, State and National. Our sale on this syrup has been so large and satisfactory we have not deemed it necessary to advertise it, but have concluded it is to our best interest to let everybody know about a good thing. If you were not told you would not know but what it was a strictly pure maple syrup and in fact if you will take the trouble to read the labels you will find that most of the high-priced, so-called "pure" Maple Syrups are pleading to a mixture of cane. So, why pay from $1.50 to $1.75 for an article you can buy for $1.00. That's the price of Hudson. Your money cheerfully refunded if not satisfied.
