Answer to Mr. Kemp's Letter. [Advertisement.]

The Prohibition Committee has read an open letter from Mr. J. A. Kemp in which he declares himself opposed to GREAT EXODUS OF FOREIGNERS varied as the people themselves. One ANOTHER INSPECTION HAS BEEN prohibition. We are broad enough to concede that here are men who are conscientious in their belief that prohibition is not best, and we hope that we are right in placing Mr. Kemp with this number.

One object of Mr. Kemp's letter, however, we believe, is to influence votes against prohibition, and we bespeak from the intelligent reader a careful consideration of Mr. Kemp's By Associated Press.

BOY SUES GOVERNOR

Fort Worth, Tex., Nov. 27.-Governor T. M. Campbell of Texas has been sued in a magistrate's court by a boy, who demands $100 for two dogs.

After the governor spoke at Meridian on October 11th he held an impromptu reception, to the great satisfaction of the throngs in attendance. On the outskirts of the crowd was a 16-year old boy who had two hound pupples tied with a rope, and he was year after year there is a growing trying to sell the dogs for any price. They were of the mangy fox hound variety and nobody wanted them. What this means to the clerks ing big prices for them.

"Whatchereckon he'd give for dogs?" asked the boy.

"Oh, any price," the man said. "The State pays the money and the governor doesn't care; go see him."

Leading the two dogs, the boy pushed his way in to where the governor was talking to a crowd of his admirers and asked him to buy the dogs. The governor saw at once that there was a joke on, and he humored it.

"All right, buddie; how much do you want for them?"

"I reckon they are worth $100 for the pair," said the boy.

"All right," said the governor, help ing along what he thought was a bit of pleasantry, "ship them to me at Austin and I will send you the money."

Happy as a June bug, the boy skipped off to make arrangements to ship the two pupples, and the governor continued to talk with his friends.

Now, one of the dogs didn't belong to the boy, but to a neighbor's boy, and the boy who sold them to the governor went to this boy and made a trade with him, giving him $5 for his dog, $45 less than the governor agreed to at Meridian.

When the governor refused to receive the dogs or pay the $100 the boy got busy, had a talk with his friends and decided to act.

"I'll just make him pay me," and without further delay he brought suit in a justice's court against Governor Campbell for $100, the agreed price of the pair of hound puppies.

XMAS SHOPPING.

Do it No wand it Will Be Appreciated By Clerk and Proprietor.

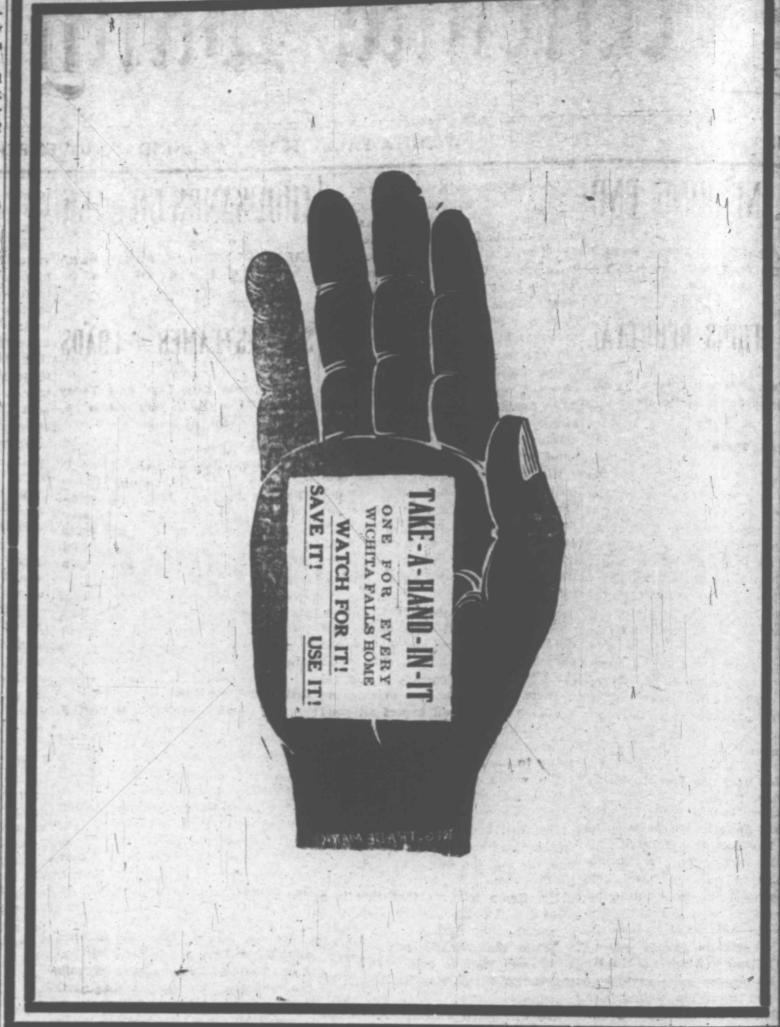

As the holiday season comes around realization that the Christmas happiness in one man's home is the Christ-Christmas shopping is quite generalbehind the counters, to the cash girls running back and forth with heavy parcels, to the drivers and "tail boys" on the delivery cars, to the packers and shippers, express messengers, and behind these to the great army of women and girls who manufacture the Christmas toys and candies and knickknacks in a factory and shop and sweat shops, is little realized by those who gather around the glittering Christmas trees.

Don't wait until the "holly days" to do your shopping unless a thin purse compels you to wait. Some shoppers are like the loafers who sit on the curb and then go to the barber shop on Saturday night to get a hair cut.

To Christmas Shoppers-Buy your presents early-early in the day and early in December. That will be your biggest gift of the holiday to the workers behind the counters and on the delivery wagons.

Wichita Falls stores are already displaying an abundance of holiday goods. Displayed in attractive designs in show windows and counters, they are commencing to attract the usual attention of the prospective buyers, and business men state that the increase in sales is commencing.

The esteemed Dallas News, in commenting on a little item clipped from the Times regarding the publishing of railroad time tables gratis, by small papers, is inclined to lay all the blame on the law and says "if you want to know when the train arrives and departs, ask the polite ticket agent, and if you get left blame the law makers who have made a law that will not permit editors to publish railroad time tables unless paid for in cash." The News is partly correct and partly not correct. The railroads had contracts with most newspapers before the law was made, but immediately canceled them at the time set for the law to be effective. They also seemingly con strued or misconstrued the law to give them the right to repudiate all honest indebtedness accrued on contracts made with newspapers for advertising up to the time the law was made effective, and in some instances, at least, the papers which ran their advertising received nothing-not even transportation. The railroads placed this construction on the law of their own motion and in the face of the ruling of the assistant attorney general who, in his construction of the law relative to newspaper advertising contracts with railroads, said it was not the intent of the law to abrogate or interfere with contracts already entered into. These are the facts, and the esteemed News, in justice both to the Texas law-makers, the editors of papers and the railroads, should state the facts as they exist. The law is bad enough without the railroads, by a false construction, making it appear really worse than it

You can see what's coming; and you don't have to guess who's going to get the best of it, either. With clothes it's different; we're getting lots of men ready for winter; the difference is that both sides of the transaction "get the best of it."

Every time we sell a man a Hart Schaffner & Marx sult or overcoat we make a profit and a friend; he gets a bigger profit, and cause for Thanksgiving that will last a good deal longer than the best dinner be'll ever have.

If you have clothes to buy, you're foolish to accept anything less when you can get Hart Schaff-ner & Marx clothes; all-wool; perfect tailoring, correct style; and fit guar-

MANY CERTIFICATES IN CIRCULATION

The success of the certificate plan for relieving the money stringency has exceeded even the most sanguine expectations of its promoters and its stimulating effects are beginning to be felt in all lines of business.

Many bales of cotton have been put on the market since the certificates are being issued and are being hold at figures above the prices previously offered. A number of the certificates are circulating in the business channels of the city and are being readily accepted at par value for all purposes.

The farmers are generally accepting the certificates without objection and are more than pelased with the advance in the price of their cotton. The Weatherford Herald is our authority for the statement that the Weatherford banks have already put into circulation $125,000 of cotton script and of this amount $85,000 has been redeemed and the remainder is being redeemed as rapidly as it falls

THANKSGIVING GREETINGS

THE approaching year's end brings with it the season for reckoning up the measure for good and ill, which Father Time has handed out to each one of us since the last harvest. To the tiller of the soil, the carpenter, the man with the dinner pail, the active toilers in life's various fields of endeavor, and every man and woman whose efforts add to the welfare of the nation, this self-balancing of life's ledger becomes a duty and a pleasure. The time honored custom of setting aside a certain day each year when the entire Christian world may unite in grateful homage to a benificent Providence for the blessings and success which have fallen to the shore of each is one of the priviledges bequeathed to us by those stern soldiers of fortune who rendered their first Thanksgiving service on Plymouth Rock, in 1620. TDuring the year Nineteen Hundred and Seven all lines of legitimate endeavors have given stupendous returns to the worker, while harmony and good-fellowship have sounded the universal key note of the nation's prosperity. The year just passing has been fraught with the most cordial relations between us and our customers and business associates, hence, we take this opportunity of offering our mead of thanks and praise, and of tendering to you our most hearty congratulations upon the achievements of the past, along with our sincere wishes for a further and greater measure of good to you in the future. We sincerely trust that our business and social relations will, with the help of an Almighty Providence, continue to be what they always have been in the year gone by, and that the ties shall be more closely cemented with the coming of each anniversary.

From the Colorado Journal.

It is characteristic of mining camps that they usualy enjoy their period of greatest activity at times when other lines of industry are most depressed There is no evidence that a general depression throughout the country is business of the country should fall off because it has not enough currency with which to carry on its operations; but nevertheless it is significant that with the least disturbance in financial conditions the camps of Colorado be gin to show signs of new life. Gelpin county, the Ohio Creek and Cripple Creek districts, have started on a period of such heavy ore production that the mill owners have found it necessary to open other reduction plants and in other ways are giving signs that these districts are ripe for a large increase in production. All that is needed is for mining to be again made fashionable. It is odd the way the waves of interest in prospecting and mine making come and go over the country. General prosperity has a tendency to divert interest from mining affairs, but just as soon as other lines of industry get the least bit in the dumps, the tide flows hillward again and the camps begin to look up. It is as though the world recognized the truth that mining is the basic industry and turned to it the moment the lesser industries ceased to be attractive.

That is a grand, grand psalm which begins: "I will lift my eyes to the hills from whence cometh my help." The strength of the business structure comes from the hills in which its foundation is laid; in times of adversity the business world turns to them. Then it is that a large part of the Colorado population which had grown cold to the mines finds itself suddenly zealous to own a producer and mining again becomes fashionable.

There is as yet lacking the new district that usually opens the fashion, but the districts mentioned are such strong old ones that time and again they have furnished the State a fresh outlet for its desire to mine, and there is no good reason why they should not be called into requisition at least once more. Anyhow, if they keep on making new strikes and increasing their production of ore at the rate they have been going in recent months, will again find themselves the center of interest once more with all the world headed their way.

Silver Dollar Again Prominent.

New York, Nov. 27.-After an enforced retirement from active participation in the business of the city for a period of nearly fifteen years, the great American silver dollar has come forth again into the highways and byways to assist, by the weight of its influence in restoring public confidence to the financial situation.

In fact, it has already accomplished much in that direction. For several weeks past, men with bulging pockets, from which came sounds like the clinking of heavy chains, have frequently been seen in the streets. The uninitiated have not recognized this clinking as the sound that money makes, but the number of the initiated has increased greatly within the last few

During the recent financial crisis fifty tons of silver dollars came out of the vaults of the subtreasury into general circulation.

Wise financiers say that in times when the people hoard their wealth it. is part of the mission of the silver dollar to remind individuals of their duty to keep their money in the banks. Since 1893 the "cart wheel" has not been in evidence in the East, nor in any other part of the country, for that matter, except in the South, where there is always a demand for it during the cotton picking season.

But the money stringency here brought the silver dollar again into use. Banks short of small bills eagerly gathered in the despised coins. The demand was so great that the subtreasury in this city was called upon to supply more than $1,500,000 in silver dollars. It met the demand without by any means exhausting its sup-
