The Arab's Pride of Blood.

Of the Arab's pride a traveler writes: "He is proud of his own blood and of his mare's blood for its own sake. He will show you a broken down little crock and inform you, with perfect truth, that she is of the best blood in the Jazirah; he will also show a fine stallion of his own and tell you be is a 'gdish,' or underbred animal, and there is no doubt it is the bad thoroughbred he admires and prefers to the finest made cross breed. CULBERSON DECLINES.

A Washington special to the Houston Post under date of the 7th says:

"Senator Culberson was apprised today for the first time of the movement proposed in Texas to present his name for the vice presidency at the next National democratic convention. Senator Culberson is always averse to discussing the mention of himself in connection with new political enter-prises, but it can be set down authoritatively that he has no desire to be vice president and under no circumstances would be be a candidate for the office.

"Senator Culberson has been subjected to much pressure from various parts of the country during the last year to become a candidate for the presidential nomination, but he stead fastly refused to encourage any movement in his behalf. Had he chosen to become a candidate, it is quite certain he would have developed a formidable following in a number of Northern and Eastern States as well

"In his present position as democratic leader in the senate, he enjoys a position of vantage for distinction and oratory service far superior to any opportunity that would come to him as a mere presiding officer over the senate. Senator Culberson could have had the vice presidential nomination at the St. Louis convention in 1904 tween a west bound passenger and an had he been ambitious in that direcextra freight train. Seven persons are tion. While material for second place on the ticket was being canvassed in that convention Culberson's name was proposed and met with much favor on all sides, but the senator speedily recurve. The force of the collision caus- moved himself from consideration by saying that he would not have either the nomination or the office.

There has been a persistent effort in Texas for the past two years to have Culberson consent to the use of his name as an aspirant for the Democratic presidential nomination, but it has been a noticeable fact that his "boom" for the presidency was being pushed more energetically by those wire-pulling political tricksters who were is being held at Childress. His right known to be anxious to get rid of the name is said to be P. J. Egbert, who is senior senator in order to make room in the senate for one of their number. Culberson has more sense than the whole bunch, and knew there was no chance for the election of a Southern man to the presidency. Then they thought of the vice presidency, thinking to shelve him in that manner, but their game didn't work. Culberson. knows he can represent Texas in the United States Senate as long as he lives and offers for the office, and it is this fact that is hurting some politi-

LABOR OPPOSED TO TAFT.

New Hampshire Federation Objects to One Man's Man.

Concord, N. H., Jan. 10.—Opposition o Secretary William H. Taft as a presidential candidate was embodied in a statement issued today by the executive committee of the State branch of the American Federation of Labor. The statement says in part:

"We, the executive committe of the New Hampshire branch of the American Federation of Labor, in sentiment and in spirit with the union members of all political parties in this country, hereby declare ourselves unalterably opposed to the nomination of William H. Taft, secretary of war, for the presidency; that we recognize in him, through his public utterances and judicial decisions and opinion, the archenemy of organized labor; that he is the instrument and exponent of capitalistic power; that the writ of injunction which he upholds with other iniquitous measures never was intended. and never should be applied to deprive honest industry of its personal rights; that we object to his methods of campaigning as any one man's man; however exalted and influential may be his master or widespread his endeavor. we are determinedly opposed to his candidacy."

After smoking like a furnace for something like thirty years, Mr. Bilkins resolved, on January 1, to cult he expensive and injurious habit

"I am sure you will be better off for it," remarked Mrs. Bilkins when informed of the resolve.

"Of course I can quit," said Mr. Bilkins. "It is all a matter of will power. I just will that I quit, and it is as good as done. You just pitch that old pipe of mine into the kitchen range." "All right, dear, if you really wish it" said Mrs - Bilkins

"I do, pet. Now, goodbye." Mr. Bilkins kissed his wife and wended his way to work.

That was on Wednesday and the first day was easy.

On Thursday Mr. Bilkins consumed fifteen cents worth of candy, chewed eleven sticks of gum, masticated twenty-three toothpicks, and kicked the dog off the front steps because the animal didn't move out of the way quick enough.

Friday morning Mr. Bilkins shoved his oatmeal away from him and growled something about "never getting outmeal that wasn't scorched." At noon he growled because the meat was so tough and at supper he scolded the DR. BOGER, baby for hammering on its plate with its spoon.

Friday morning Mr. Bilkins arose from the table and poured his cup of Office in Kemp & Lasker Building, coffee into the kitchen sink, remarking that he was tired of being fed slops. He forgot to kiss his wife goodbye, and he pushed the baby's sticky face away with a shudder of disapproval. He didn't come home at noon. but at supper time he came in, slammed a lot of wraps on the floor to make room for his overcoat on the halltree, muttered because the evening paper was late and said things because the furnace was not working properly. During the evening meal he scolded the children because they bothered him with requests for more food, and spoke sharply to his wife because she reminded him that there was no flour in the chest, and severely criticised the wanton waste of coal...

SKUNK IN A BEDROOM.

Rabid Animal Bites Three Members of the Family. Weatherford, Tex., Jan. 19 .- The family of W. M. Hayes, who resides eight miles southeast of the town, had an exciting expertence with a skunk last night and grave fears, are entertained concerning the outcome of the encounter with the victors little animal. Mr. and Mrs: Haves had retired for the night and were asleep when a scream from their little son, who was sleeping in the same mem with his parents, awoke them. The another sprang from the bed in time to see a mad skunk sinking its teeth into the arm of her boy. As soon as the animal saw the mother it left the boy and rushed at the woman, sinking its teeth in her bare foot. The cries of Mrs. Hayes aroused her husband, but before he could leave the bed the skunk had leaped upon if and caught him by the foot. By this time the commotion in the room had attracted BUY or RENT a MACHINE an older son, who arrived upon the scene with a shotgun and soon made short work of the infurlated animtl.

All of the victims of the skunk were badly bitten and great anxiety is felt for their safety, as the dead skunk is pronounced to be of the hydrophobic species. Its shody was brought to Weatherford and turned over to Colonel G. M. Bowle, who expressed it to the Pasteur fostitute at Austin for scientific examination. The result o fthat examination is being anxiously awaited by the injured members of the Hayer family, If it is discovered that the skunk had hyprophobia the injured members will hurry at once to Austin for treatment.

BRYAN OPENS CAMPAIGN.

in a spech delivered at Chicago on the night of the 8th, before a Democratic organization known as the Jefferson Club, of which William Jennings Bryan was the chief guest, he formally opened his campaign for the presidency. His subject was "The Point of View," and he said in part: --

"The questions which evolve a discussion of relative sphere of the nation and State bring out the difference in the point of view of the aristocrat and the democrat. The aristocrat wants to get the government as far away from the people as possible; the democrat desires to bring the government as near the people as possible. The aristocrat would substitute national remedies for State ones, because predatory wealth can protect itself tures, plate, armor, ivory, brouze, from national legislation more easily tapestry all are most successfully landthen from State legislation. To that end it may prove likewise the hour of democratic triumph let the spirit of conciliation, of unity and of harmony be invoked upon all our counsels."

Every member of the Wichita Falls Chamber of Commerce should make it a point to be present at tonight's meeting, for it will be one of importance for Wichita Falls. Through the good work already accomplished by this organization, much has been accom-Ed Howard General Manager plished, and if it does as much for the upbuilding of Wichita Falls for the year 1908 as was done in 1907 no one can have cause to regret that his name is on the roll of membership. In order to keep Wichita Falls to the front as the leading commercial, railroad and manufacturing center of Northwest Texas her business men and promoters must work together. and there is no better way to unite their efforts than through an organized body such as the Chamber of Commerce. After the business meeting at the organization's hall on Indiana ave nue a baranet will be given at the or James troiel, to which over 200 invitations have been issued, and it is the earnest desire that every our of them be accepted.

An expert of the Smithsonian lastitution was called upon not long ago to pass upon a specimen of a mummy servant, an effigy, in a plastic material such as the Egyptians buried with their dead. Close examination proved it to be made of putty. It was a very clever forgery.

Count Tyskiewiez, a noted judge and collector of antiquities, gives some interesting details of the forgeries that have been attempted from the earliest to this work as gold. Etruscan jewelry has been largely manufactured in Italy, but Syria has carried on the most extensive forgery of gold works of art. Forgeries in silver have been less successful. A good story is told of a forged siltion in Sicily. This "ancient" cup was ornamented with a circular bas-relief representing the frieze of the Parthenon. EYE DISEASE AMONG FT. WORTH SCHOL CHILDREN REACHES ALARMING SIZE.

NATIVE BORN CHILDREN

As Well as Foreign Born Are Affected By the Insiduous Malady, Which Defies Detection.

Fort Worth Record.

How many little school children now reciting their lessons daily in Fort Worth's public schools have trachoma, the dread eye affliction? What proportion of them will entirely lose the use of their visual organs and will finally fall to accepting alms from the hands of charitably inclined passersby on the streets within the next few

While this may seem a radical view of the matter, at the same time the fact remains that the city fathers and members of the school board are inclined to accept this version of it, as indicated by their determined efforts to get at the bottom of things and to have an accurate and scientific report submitted by accepted authorities on the prevalence of the malevolent disease in the public schools.

Under orders of the school board some time ago, each teacher in the city schools was intructed to make a preliminary examination of every pu pil under his or her charge, in order that some kind of data would be available for the regular physicians who took up the matter later. Shortly afterwards the first examination was made by the city physicians and a report submitted to the board, the reservation being made, however, that the report included only visible developments in cases examined, and did not include those presumably innnumerable cases where the insiduous disease ha dnot as yet made itself felt and known. Afterward the board decided to have the work done over again, taking in all possible phases of the disease, and that work is now in prog-

Said a member of the board yester-day, in discussing the case: "The genrat leen seems to prevail that the majority of trachoma cases are confined to foreigners or those of alien birth. The fact is that so far as our examinations have gone, nine-tenths of the cases developed are of local origin and with children born right here in Fort Worth.

"The very insiduous nature of this disease makes its detection and relief all the more difficult. In hundreds of cases which have been investigated the victim is totally anaware of the approach of the assassin in the dark, so to speak, until sudden blindness relentlessly swoops down upon them. Many of the blind-men and women now roaming the streets of the country seeking alms owe their pitiable condition to the ignorance of the approach of trachoma and utter inability to combat it when the blow is struck. Owing to the fact that the United States government has recognized the deadly character of the malady and sought to stop its spread within its boundaries by barring all immigrants from foreign countries afflicted with it, the matter as een given a great deal of publicity in the press, and the public generally think that it is an entirely imported disease. That this is an error can be readily proven by records of tests made, differentiating between alienists and natives.

Subblyjocks.

Probably everybody has heard of the little boy in Scotland who was asked if his life were happy. "Aye." be replied, but doubtfully, and added that he was "sair hauden doon by you bubblyjock." If this laddle had been the only one so held down, the story would not have been so important, but it is all the world's story. We should all he good and wildly happy-many of us feel that we should be great-if it were not that we were so sair hauden doon by a bubbly jock. (Adam, of course. named the bubbly jock a turkey; Eve knew when she saw it cruising toward er with the fat, overbearing galt of a bully and before she heard its absurd voice that it was the bubbly jock and no other.) Bubbly jocks are not lions. They do not kill and devour; they tor ment. They do not attempt life, but the joy of life. They cannot prevent our doing as we please, but they can cobble at us and threaten us, so that we work in defiance and not in joy. grimly instead of whistling. Remarkable and Artistic Home of the Humming Bird.

The home of the humming bird is one of the nost remarkable and artistic creations of all bird architecture. A gentleman had told me that department of the Fort Worth and if I would call upon him he would Denver railroad, was in the city today show me an occupied nest of a humming bird in his orchard. When I came, he was out of town, but I thought I would see if I could not find the nest myseif. So I made inspection from tree to tree, and presently the female hummer began to fly about me anxiously. We played a game of hot and gold until it became evident that the nest must be in a certain low apple tree which had many dead, lichen covered branches. Some of these came down nearly to the ground, and for quite awhile I stood by the tree, running my eyes along each branch in order, trying to make out the nest, while the female kept darting frantically at my head. It must have been nearly-a quarter of an bour before I discovered that I was standing almost touching the pest with my hands, having been looking right over it all the time. It contained two fresh eggs, this being in the early part of June. The branch apon which it was built was completely overgrown with lichens, and the nest, being covered with them, too, was wonderfully disguised, though there were no leaves to hide it.-From "Experlences With Humming Birds," by H. K. Job, in Outing Magazine.
