FLOODS ARE RAGING

HEAVY DOWNPOUR OF RAIN OVER WHOLE OF NORTHWEST TEXAS.

TRAIN SERVICE CRIPPLED

Floods Cause Great Damage to Crops. Tanks Burst—Railroads Washed Out—River Rising.

The whole of Northwest Texas and the greater part of the Texas Panhandle country is soaking and dripping today with what is believed to have been one of the heaviest and most general rains ever known in this section. Throughout this entire section of country the bottoms are covered with sheets of water and the small streams have turned into raging torrents which are, in some instances, impassable, and are flooding the adjoining valleys, causing considerable damage to all crops.

The extent of the rain is shown in the reports received at the local railroad offices. The Fort Worth and Denver reports rains at nearly every point on its line between Fort Worth and Texline and these rains without exception have been unusually heavy.

The Wichita Valley reports rains all the way from this city to Abilene, and the rainfall over almost the entire territory is judged by the reports to have been nearly as heavy as in this city, where the precipitation up to noon today had been nearly six inches.

The Wichita Falls route, reports rainfall amounting almost to cloud-bursts on both the Frederick and Olney extensions of its line. In several instances the roads report serious washouts and at noon it was believed that traffic would be greatly delayed.

The Wichita river rose rapidly during the morning and as the rainfall appears to traverse, it is expected to get entirely out of its banks. Before the first rain fell in Wichita Falls at about 6 o'clock last night, dark ominous clouds swept and swirled across the skies and sent many scurrying into storm cellars to remain until the clouds became less threatening.

The rain fell in torrents and continued throughout the night, and today intermittent showers are falling with a frequency which amounts almost to a steady downpour.

An electrical storm added to the wildness of the night and in the early part of the night many electric light wires were blown down and on account of the danger of accidents it was finally necessary to cut off the connection at the power house and for hours the city was in darkness, made denser by the heavy clouds, the lights from oil lamps and occasional lightning flashes only serving to make the darkness still darker.

River Rises Rapidly. Since yesterday afternoon the Wichita river at this point had, up to 2 o'clock this afternoon, raised fourteen feet and nine inches, and at that hour was rising at the rate of eighteen inches per hour.

Sixteen feet will put the river out of banks, and eighteen feet will flood that part of the city in the bottoms near the bridge.

The rains above here have been quite as heavy in this city and a seven-foot rise in the North fork of the Big Wichita is reported by Cottle county. A three-foot rise is also reported in Beaver Creek and by the time these rise here the river at this point is likely to break all past records.

There are now a number of residences in the district which will be flooded if the river rises four or five feet higher, and at the present rate this is likely to occur before nightfall.

Dam Breaks at Tyson's Lake. Some time between dark and daylight this morning the dam at Dr. L. C. Tyson's Irrigation lake, about three miles north of town, was swept away by the flood of water which swept into the lake.

Nearly the whole length of the dam was swept away and a wall of water was let loose into the valley and the fields below. The water spread over the field below and almost completely ruined the crops between the lake and the river.

The lake when full covered some forty or fifty acres and was built several years ago by Dr. Tyson for irrigation purposes. It was well stocked with fish, such as croppie and catfish and was a popular fishing place for local anglers.

The family living in the valley several hundred yards below the lake were driven out of their home by the water, which rose to a height of a foot above the floor.

Practically all of the fish in the lake were washed out into the fields below and several wagon loads are lying in the water which stands over the field.

Dr. Tyson is away from home, being at Bartlettville, Oklahoma.

Washouts on Railroads. The rains and floods have caused great damage on all railroads running out of Wichita Falls and this afternoon the trains were running from five to ten hours late.

Between Wichita Falls and Fort Worth the Denver is nearly out of commission and late this afternoon it was uncertain whether any attempt would be made to run trains. North on the Denver, the water is reported to be over the tracks about Electra and Iowa Park, and bad conditions are reported all along the line.

The Wichita Valley passenger which left this city yesterday afternoon, it is reported, had not reached Abilene at noon today. There are several washouts between Hawley and Abilene and it is indefinite when service can be resumed.

A train was made up here this afternoon and was sent out as far as Seymour.

A washout on the Byers branch effectively prevented any traffic between that town and Wichita Falls today.

The Wichita Falls route has two washouts on the north end, one in the outskirts of Frederick and the other near Red river.

On the south end there are washouts near Archer City and Olney.

No trains had arrived from either of those places at 3 o'clock this afternoon and the time of their arrival could not be definitely announced. No attempt will be made to send trains out over either of these roads this afternoon.

PARKER'S SON GETS FARM

Lawton Democrat.

Herman Lehman at last, through the efforts of Senator Gore will come into his own and be awarded an Indian allotment as a member of the Comanche tribe. The senator yesterday passed a bill through the senate, which he is assured will pass the house, restoring Lehman to his tribal rights. Three prior bills in Lehman's interest have been introduced in congress and failed. Lehman is a German and has a wife and several children, living on an Indian lease near Indianola. He is generally known by the Indians and old timers as Quannah Parker's boy and is called Montechema by the Indians. His career has been a romance of border life. When 11 years old he lived with his mother in Texas. A raid of the Apache Indians in which houses were burned and a number of settlers killed, young Lehman was taken captive with his brother. The brother by some means escaped, but Herman was tied to a pony and carried off by the red skins. His body is covered with wounds, the result of cruelties and tortures practiced by the Indians and squaws in the early days of his captivity.

He was later traded by the Apaches to the Comanche tribe and was taken by Quannah Parker and brought up in his tepee. When the Comanches under Chief Quannah Parker came in to Fort Sill and gave themselves up to General McKenzie, Young-Lehman was 19 years old and later the soldiers discovering him to be a white boy made an investigation which resulted in his return to his mother in Texas under a military escort from the fort.

Lehman remained in Texas a few years in which time he married, but the longing for the old life and comradeship of the Indians brought him back to the tribe. The Comanche Indians in tribal council and the efforts of Quannah Parker, their chief, have been directed toward obtaining recognition for him on the tribal rolls by the government, and have always failed up to the present. Judge Blanding became interested in the case and brought it to the attention of Senator Gore, which resulted in passing the bill giving Lehman an allotment. It will probably be selected from some of the unsold lands in the big pasture.

Hundreds Get Pensions. Washington, D. C., May 23.—Without a roll call the house today agreed on the conference report on the omnibus pension bill, providing pensions for several hundred persons.

A King and Love. Manuel, King of Portugal, says he will marry for love or not at all. Alliances of state have no attraction for the youthful ruler who was thrown into sovereignty of a nation by the bomb which killed his father and elder brother.

This is the first statement of importance Manuel has made since he became king. Heretofore management of Portugal's affairs have been looked after by the elder statesmen of the realm and by the bereaved queen mother, who would not have made a bad ruler herself had none of her children been old enough for the succession.

But in affairs of the heart Manuel will take a back seat for no one. He is in love with the daughter of a court attendant, who is by no means of ignoble blood, but still not of sufficient rank to suit the diplomatic ministers seeking an alliance with some stronger nation.

Were Manuel a clerk in a store or a stenographer in an office, his announcement that he wished to marry for love would occasion no comment. Hearing a king gives his affair of the heart a more important phase.

Sentiment would urge that Manuel should marry as he likes. Advocates of the old maid school of philosophy will become indignant if Manuel is sent away for six months or a year until he forgets his youthful attachment.

Royal love affairs are not uncommon, but marriages resulting from them are rare. Unfortunately for the sentimentalists the few specimens that we have are not the sort which would go to prove that they are superior to the matches arranged in the good old diplomatic way.

Queen Victoria married for love and was very happy while Albert lived. Yet truth compels the admission that their son, Edward, has shown a remarkable paucity of the genius which theorists attribute to products of a union for love. The first part of Edward's life was marked by a series of unassuming incidents which never quite attained the proportions of scandals, but bordered dangerously near more than once. The latter part of his life has seen the government of his realm drift

Fayetteville, N. C., May 22.—Solicitor N. A. Sinclair returned last night from Savannah, Ga., where he went to attend the funeral of his aunt, Mrs. Mary McNeill.

On the train with Sinclair was Secretary of War William H. Taft, republican candidate for the presidential nomination and three attendants, two white men and a negro. The secretary of war and his party boarded the train at Charleston, S. C., having returned from a trip to Panama, and being then on their way to Washington. The secretary ordered four covers laid for his table for dinner. On account of the considerable bulk of the secretary, it was found necessary to extend the table, which usually comfortably accommodates four people, in order that the party might find seats about it.

Mr. Early, a member of the contracting firm of Derr & Early, who have been awarded the contract for putting in the sewer system here, stated to a representative of the Times this morning that it was not the intention of that company to import any large number of negro laborers to work on the sewers here, and that only negroes that had been brought here were five or six, when they had employed to attend the machinery and work in the bottom of the ditch, where other laborers would not generally work.

It is the intention of the contractors, Mr. Early said, to employ Wichita Falls laborers and to buy material here in Wichita Falls whenever it was possible to do so.

The contractors have already employed a number of local men, we understand, and as soon as they can get ready, will employ many more.

Indians Tanked Up on Fire Water, Amarillo Panhandle.

Near Dalhart, whiskey and three carloads of live Indians was a combination with which Denver south-bound passenger train No. 8 had to deal yesterday afternoon and on account of the combination the trainmen wired from up the line to have officers at the station here ready to meet the shipment. When the train pulled in here nearly every peace officer in Amarillo was on the spot ready to give help if it were needed, but the trouble which had started after the train left Dalhart had been quieted before the train reached here and it was a very peaceable lot of Indians that arrived here in the three cars. After the train left Dalhart, though, several of the Indians who had drunk deepest of refreshments procured during their stop in that town, started things on the cars and at Channing the sheriff of Hartley took three of the most boisterous men off the car and took them to jail. Three others of the party were in the down and out class when the train reached here, but the others of the party were thoroughly well behaved and kept better order than the average excursion of whites might have done.

There were about a hundred Indians on the three cars and the squaws and paposes apparently outnumbered the braves. At any rate the younger members of the party displayed a livelier interest in their surroundings here and from the platform and windows stared back at the bystanders who had collected to see the unusual excursion party. They were real picture Indians and although most of them wore some conventional articles of garb their clothes were perverted with brass ringed red shirts, blanket sashes and dingy bright colored shawls till the effect was distinctively Indian. The party was apparently well provided with money and while the train was stopped here a number of men bought fresh supplies and eatables and perhaps some drinkables on the Bowery.

The Indians were Kiowas and had been over from near Shawnee or El Reno and were returning from a powwow at Douglas, Ariz., where they have negotiated some land deals. In charge of the party were Major Bell and Col. McLoughlin of the regular army, besides several other army men and real-road men. The three cars left last night for their destination as a special over the Rock Island.

Twenty-Four Years

We have passed the 24th milestone in our existence as a Bank in Wichita Falls. This Bank having been organized May 15, 1884.

Twenty-four years ago Wichita Falls was a frontier town with one railroad outlet via Ft. Worth. No farmers in the surrounding country, with practically no rural districts, and surrounded by sheep and cattle ranches on all sides, and people looked upon the town as only a temporary stopping place.

The organizers of this Bank were among the first to foresee the future development of this country, and today Wichita Falls is a bustling City of 6,000 people, with railroad outlets in seven different directions, rapidly forging to the front as the commercial metropolis of this section.

During this time we have grown from a small beginning to a large and successful business.

We have endeavored to keep abreast of the times, providing for ourselves every modern appliance and up-to-date system to facilitate our office work, providing for our depositors every safe-guard known for their protection and security.

We have given freely to every deserving charity; contributed to every enterprise that would tend to improve or bring trade to our City.

We enjoy the confidence of the people of this community, and take this opportunity to thank our customers whose patronage has helped to make the last year the largest and best in our history.

WE ARE HERE TO STAY.

What It Did For the Missionaries in Madagascar.

The introduction of Christianity into heathen countries has been more or less closely connected with trade and the arts of civilization. The government has often been keenly alive to the advantage of science, but hostile to religious teaching. Such was the case in Madagascar in the middle of the last century, as is told in the pages of Rev. W. E. Cousins' book, "Madagascar of Today."

Queen Ranavalona was beginning to feel uneasy about the growing influence of foreign ideas and wished to get rid of the missionaries. She sent some officers to carry her message. The missionaries were gathered together to meet the queen's messengers and were told that they had been a long time in the country and had taught much, but that it was now time for them to think of returning to their native land.

The missionaries, alarmed at this message, answered that they had only begun to teach some of the elements of knowledge and that much remained to be imparted. They mentioned sundry branches of education, among which were the Greek and Hebrew languages, which had already been partially taught to some.

The messengers returned to the queen and soon came back with this answer: "The queen does not care much for Greek and Hebrew. Can you teach something more useful? Can you, for example, teach how to make soap?"

This was an awkward question to address to theologians, but after a moment's pause Mr. Griffiths turned to Mr. Cameron and asked him whether he could answer it.

"Give me a week," said Mr. Cameron, and the week was given. At its close the queen's messengers again met the missionaries, and Mr. Cameron was able to present to them a bar of tolerably good white soap made entirely from materials found in the country. This was an eminently satisfactory answer, and the manufacture of soap was forthwith introduced and is still continued to the present day, although no one would now venture to call the soap "white."

As a result of making this bar of soap the mission gained a respite of about five years, during which time the queen still tolerated the presence and teaching of the missionaries for the sake of the material advantages derived from the work of the artisans, and it was during these years that the first churches were formed and the Christian religion began to take deep root among the people.

STREET PAVING.

Wichita Falls, taxable values, at the rate they are now increasing, will soon warrant the issuance of bonds for street paving, and as the problem is likely to be brought up soon, the following from the Guthrie Leader, telling the kind of material used for paving the streets of that city, will be of interest:

"Guthrie paved her two principal business streets with brick seven years ago and they are practically as good now as when put down. The brick pavements are now being extended to the residence streets and there is no complaint about the noise that is usually urged against this kind of pavement. The article of brick used here is the very best, but the sand is a considerable item in the cost of paving. The residence streets are paved in the center of the street thirty feet wide, leaving a large parking on either side. There is a cement curb and gutter two feet wide, which costs eighty cents the running foot, and the brick pavement inside this curbing and gutter is put down for twenty-two cents per square foot, making $91.50 for each 25-foot front. The streets are first cut down to grade and then rolled with a heavy roller. Two inches of sand is then placed over this, and over the layer of sand a course of brick, laid flat. Another two inches of sand on top of this flat brick, and then the finish of brick laid on edge. The residence streets paved in this manner look very pretty."

A "frosty" joint keeper at Quanah was "waited on" by several hundred citizens and requested to close his joint and leave town, of else engage in some business which was not in violation of the local option law. Walker Hall of Vernon, by request, acted as spokesman for the citizens of Quanah, and when the fellow refused to close his joint he was arrested, and falling to give a $500 bond, spent the night in jail. It is the intention of the people of Quanah to have this impudent rascal pulled every time he sells a bottle of "frosty" in that town. Hardeman county, of which Quanah is the county seat, voted local option by a vote of 533 to 197 and they have determined to see that the law is enforced.

The heavy rains of yesterday, last night and today will amount to a fall of more than six inches and if the fall has been as heavy above Wichita Falls as here, the river is likely to get out of banks and overflow and drown out growing crops in the bottom lands. If this should occur the damage to crops would be very great and hard to estimate. It has been the heaviest rain that has fallen in this city for years.

The Denton Daily News, just about two weeks old, has made its retiring bow and will continue to be published only as a weekly. In its valedictory, the News says:

"There is a tide in the affairs of men which taken at the flood leads on to fortune." This is an old adage and very possibly true, but it is true, too, that there is a time to take back water, for there are times that the tide would carry the man who jumped in on to that state of being badly busted. When, a few weeks ago, the then proprietor of the News started the daily he no doubt thought that tide leading to affluence was at the flood. That may have been true, but the present navigators of this craft have failed to see any of the signs of wealth in the horizon of the sheet. In fact, after running it for one week they have found the balance sheet hanging the wrong way and the wind that leads to fortune has evidently changed, for the daily fell some several simoleons to the bad.

The meaning of all this is that the daily is not going to be like the poor—it is not going to be with you always. In fact, with this issue it turns up its little pink toes to the daisies and has gone the way of all ambitious enterprises that start too soon and get caught in the cold frosts of a wintry world. It was a great pleasure to have the plaudits of our friends, but when we tried to get the printers to take their pay in plaudits we found that there was absolutely nothing doing.

In a lengthy, yet sensible, editorial the Texas Christian Advocate condemns the giving of festivals, lectures and the like to raise money for the church. The church gets practically nothing from lecturers. The members hope to get something, and the lecturer takes advantage of their needs and uses them to canvass for him. Whatever is left over goes to the church. He wins sure. He uses the church as a cloak to prevent the officers from making him pay an honest debt—the State, county and city licenses. Lecturers come to Tyler and lady church members are put to work without pay selling tickets and he is given a church house in which to deliver an address and when that is over he carries off all, or nearly all, the gate fees. He does not pay or even thank the good women without whom he could not get an audience; he does not pay the local paper which has devoted its space to showing that he is a great character, etc. In fact, the average lecturer goes about deadbeating the church and press and pockets money that he never earns. The Courier has very little confidence in the man who is always hunting the church house to lecture in. It knows he is rent dodger and a tax dodger.—Tyler Courier.

William D. Haywood, for many years secretary-treasurer of the Western Federation of Miners and organizer of that body, has been removed from all official connection with that organization. Shortly after the Boise trial Haywood was relieved of his duties as secretary-treasurer and was succeeded by Ernest Mills. Haywood, however, continued as a member of the executive board and as an organizer. On April 25th Vice President Mahoney gave official notice in the Miners' Magazine that Haywood had been removed from the executive board and his services as organizer in the field terminated. Ever since the first of the year Haywood has been puffing in his entire time making socialistic addresses throughout the country. His removal from all official connection with the Western Federation of Miners is an indication of a change of policy in the management of that organization.

Recital.

Friday afternoon from 4 to 5 several enthusiastic mothers were the happy listeners to sweet music rendered by Miss Lucile Brooks' large class of beginners. Each little white robed form moved in graceful order to the well timed program, performing with fairy-like magic her selection.

The little ones have only been under Miss Brooks' tuition one year, but as we watched the childish fingers glide with artistic deftness over the ivory, we thought of the many hours of patient labor wrought in their training that would one day be the foundation stones of lofty characters.

Before we took our leave we were refreshed with rich viands.

Long Sentences.

Ruskin, it is said, has written more sentences of inordinate length than any other classic writer of modern English prose. Frederic Harrison some years ago counted the words in a number of typical sentences, finding that in the earlier books it was no uncommon thing for Ruskin to run beyond the page before permitting himself and his readers the relief of a full stop. But in every case the sense is clear as day.

Wordsworth's poem on the "Character of the Happy Warrior" is a notable example of sustained connections. Apart from the opening and closing couplets the poem consists of two very long compound sentences almost entirely comprised of adjectival clauses. The longer of the two sentences contains fifty-seven decasyllabic lines. This is probably a record in English verse.—Argonaut.

I'm much obliged to you for bringing the car back.—Judge.

FOUGHT UNDER WATER.

"What was it like, that battle of Manila Bay, do you ask?" The thunders of heaven would have been lost in its din. It was fierce and fast, like the rolling of all the drums in the world or like bolts of heavy sailcloth torn into shreds by the wind.

What a picture it would make—that battle, the last of the Spanish fleet, the Don Antonio de Ulloa. She fought, sinking a foot a minute! Gun after gun went under, and when the last onset was made only her bow gun remained. Its crew, waist deep in water, fought as though victory was crowning them. It was theirs to fire the last gun upon that eventful day, and we cheered them as they sank.

These are the things men will write about, but memory alone can paint a picture so terrible that the moon, that old night watch of the universe, hid behind friendly vapors that she might not see the embers of war as they glared through the portholes and splinters of half sunken ships, while ever and anon exploding magazines would tear the waters, and flames of yellow and red flaunt above all that was left of Spain's wreckage.

Surely Wellington was a Solomon when he wrote, "Nothing except a battle lost can be half so melancholy as a battle won."—St. Nicholas.

AN AFRICAN RESCUE.

Saved From a Great Army of Ravenous Driver Ants.

In her "West African Studies" Miss Kingsley tells this story about the famous "driver" ants: "I was in a little village, and out of a hut came the owner, and his family and all the household parasites pell-mell, leaving the drivers in possession, but the mother and father of the family, when they recovered from this unwonted burst of activity, showed such a lively concern and such unmistakable signs of anguish at having left something behind them in the hut that I thought it must be the baby. 'In him far corner for floor!' shrieked the distracted parents, and into that hut I charged.

"Too true! There in the corner lay the poor little thing, a mere inert black mass, with hundreds of cruel drivers already swarming upon it. To seize it and give it to the distracted mother was, as the reporter would say, 'the work of an instant.' She gave a cry of joy and dropped it instantly into a water barrel, where her husband held it down with a hoe, chuckling contentedly. Shiver not, my friend, at the callousness of the Ethiopian. That there thing wasn't an infant. It was a ham!"

Some Epigrams.

Tom Hood cast epigrams at himself in the face of death. His wife was preparing a large mustard plaster to apply to his shrunken chest. "My dear," said Hood, "that's a terrible lot of mustard for a small piece of beef."

Sir Walter Raleigh expressed himself in a similar mood after he mounted the scaffold. Feeling the edge of the ax, he said to the executioner, "This is a sharp medicine, but it is a cure for all diseases."

An Italian nobleman, probably beguiled by patent medicine advertisements, left this inscription for his gravestone: "I was well, wanted to be better, took physic and died."

A brother Scot who did not sympathize with his peccadillos in life, when asked to suggest an appropriate epitaph for Scotland's national poet, said, "His ain name's enough—Robert Burns."—Boston Post.

Wholesome Advice For Boys.

Now, you lads who want to leave school, don't be in such a hurry to be earning something. Think of the future prospect rather than the present advantage. The man who can do something really well, whether it be the making of a table, the building of a house or the writing of a book, will very seldom be unemployed. It is the boys—in a hurry who are "little millionaires" on 8 shillings a week at fourteen and "big loafers" on nothing at eighteen, with no trade in their fingers and no prospect but the life of a day laborer. Go slowly, boys—you'll go farther. Hurry is a dog that often goes off on a wrong scent. Patience and foresight are two dogs which hunt together. They are slow at "finding," but they are always "in at the death."—London Scholars' Own.

When Animals "Talk."

Silence is not absolutely necessary for the safety of wild animals, says a naturalist who recently spent some time in African forests. Wild animals are not so noisy and "talkative" as are those of domestic life; but, then, the wilder tribes of mankind are more taciturn than the civilized races. This is mainly due in both cases to the lack of social intimacy and nomadic habits. The carnivorous animals, the only natural cause of fear the other creatures have, depend mainly upon their sense of smell. They also hunt by night, seizing their prey while asleep.

The chimpanzee frequently breaks the forest's silence by answering the cries of other animals. The gorilla also will on occasion break out into a flood of speech, while other monkeys are persistent chatters and at almost any hour too.

At night the trumpeting of the elephant and the bellow of the hippopotamus are common. The antelopes also "cry" at night when the leopard hunts them.

Moonlight.

Many readers may not be aware of the fact that the full moon gives several times more than twice the light of the half moon. They may be still more surprised to learn that the ratio is approximately as nine to one. Professor Joel Stebbins and F. C. Brown, taking advantage of the extreme sensitivity to light of a selenium cell, measured the amount of light coming from the moon at different phases with the result above mentioned. The reason for the remarkable difference shown is to be found in the varying angles of reflection presented by the roughened surface of our satellite to the sun. The moon is brighter between first quarter and full than between full and last quarter. The cause of this is evident in the more highly reflective character of that part of the moon which lies west of its meridian.

One Sort of Bargain.

"I discovered a new one concerning bargains the other day," said a Harlemit of a thrifty turn. "On the elevated station I found a pawn ticket made out for a loan of $1 on an umbrella. I presented it at the pawnshop, paid $1.08, including interest, and received an umbrella which later, it appeared, could be duplicated at first hand for less than $1. I was still pondering the point when I encountered a friend who had recently had a similar experience with a similar umbrella at the same pawnshop. Had the pawnbroker been fooled into lending more than the article was worth when the rule is to lend not more than one-third? No. As I figured it out, he had collected a stock of cheap umbrellas that he felt he must get rid of, made out some bogus tickets and dropped them where he knew they would be found. Great scheme, though I fancy he's almost alone in his class."—New York Globe.

Wanted a Haunted House.

The following curious letter was recently received by a house renting agency in London:

"Have you a reputed haunted house on your books? I am not afraid of ghosts. I do not as a matter of course believe in their existence, and I am willing to live in a house for a long or short term by arrangement, of course free. Should there be no ghost, then, if you wish it, I shall be willing to testify on oath to the fact. But should I see an apparition I will keep the matter secret and only acquaint you with the circumstances. I will pledge myself not to pander to local gossip. I have a small income on which I can subsist. My sole object in thus applying to you is to be allowed to live in a place in which I do not need to pay any rent."

The inquirer was informed that the firm had no haunted houses on its list, but would inform him when it had.

No Wonder He Fled.

A tall, solemn looking young man entered the restaurant with a mild, apologetic air and seated himself at a vacant table near the middle of the room. It was evident that he dreaded to intrude. He wanted to get as far away from other people as possible. He even blushed painfully when he gave his order, and the most casual observer could have told that he was bashful. Just as his dinner was brought to him a buxom looking woman with seven small children entered the place. The head waiter swept the field with his eye, pounced down upon the table where the young man had sought solitude, motioned to the mother, who clucked to the chickens, and a moment later they were all around that one table.

That young man's face was a serial story.

Other people entered the restaurant, glanced at the group, smiled significantly and seated themselves.

"He doesn't look it, does he?" queried a pleasant faced old lady in an audible whisper.

"She looks at least ten years older than he," murmured a girl at the next table.

He flew to the hatrack, tossed a half crown to the waiter and tried to go through the door without opening it.—London Telegraph.

A Wasted Opportunity.

"Ole Bill" Foote and "Ole Bill" English were political traveling companions, and many stories were told of their joint journeying.

The two hardy Democratic campaigners were doing southern California one election-time and got into the country at the back door of Los Angeles. One night they reached a farmhouse where they had expected to find lodgings. The farmer had nothing but two arm-chairs. Foote and English pleaded for beds—cots, trundle beds, anything that looked like a bed. Nothing doing.

The campaigners, like Napoleon or Grant or like Washington at Valley Forge, slept in their chairs.

When the first advance agents of dawn scudded out of the west, the politicians laboriously got out of their chairs and went out for fresh air. They met the old farmer milking the cow with the crumpled horn.

"Do you know, gentlemen," he said blandly and without contrition, "you could have had a bed, after all? I was expecting two Democratic orators here last night and saved the beds for them, but somehow or other they never showed up, dang 'em."—San Francisco Call.

The King Had Rights.

Once, when Macready was performing at the theater at Mobile, Ala., his manner at rehearsal displeased one of the actors, a native American of pure western type. This Claudius in "Hamlet" resolved to "get even" with the star for many supposed offenses, and in this way he carried out his purpose. When in the last scene Hamlet stabbed the usurper he reeled forward and after a most spasmodic finish stretched himself out precisely in the place Hamlet required for his own death. Macready, much annoyed, whispered fiercely:

"Die farther up the stage, sir."

The monarch lay insensible, upon which in a still louder voice the Hamlet growled:

"Die farther up the stage, sir."

Hereupon the Claudius, sitting up, observed:

"I believe I'm king here, and I'll die where I please."

The tragedy concluded without more ado.

Broke Up His Speech.

Judge Norton was solemn, stern and dignified to excess. He was also egotistical and sensitive to ridicule. Judge Nelson was a wit and careless of decorum. He did not like Judge Norton. At a bar supper Judge Norton in an elaborate speech, referring to the early days of Wisconsin, described with tragic manner a thunderstorm which once overtook him in riding the circuit. The scene was awful, "and," said the judge, "I expected every moment the lightning would strike the tree under which I had taken shelter."

"Then," interrupted Nelson, "why in thunder didn't you get under another tree?"—Philadelphia Ledger.

A Snow Hurricane.

The buran, or snow hurricane of the Pamira, is a meteorological phenomenon of great interest. Even in mid-summer the temperature during a snow buran frequently falls to 14 degrees F., while in one winter it dropped to 45 degrees below zero at the end of January. The buran comes with startling suddenness, the atmosphere growing dark with whirling snowflakes where scarcely a minute before the sky was perfectly clear.

One of Life's Little Tragedies.

He seized her, drew her to him and deliberately struck her. She made no sound. Again and yet again the brute repeated the blow, and still she gave no sign of suffering, but when, with rapidly growing anger, he struck her for the fourth time she shrieked aloud, and her head flew off. She was only a match.—Bohemian Magazine.

THE ALPINE GIANTS.

Exception to Rule That Familiarity Breeds Contempt.

The Swiss Alps, known to the Caucasian race long before Hannibal and Julius Caesar led the Carthaginian and Roman legions through their passes, are an exception to the rule that familiarity breeds contempt. Although known for so many centuries, it is only within the last hundred years that the chiefest of the great family of mountain monarchs crowding the Swiss confederacy have been conquered. It was not until 1805 that the Matterhorn was first ascended. Thousands today make the humped up little republic with its hundreds of peaks more than 10,000 feet in height their summer playground. They never trifle with the summits, however, and the ascension of some of the mountains today is considered a feat almost worthy of more than local record.

There are many legends told of the neighborhood of the Matterhorn. One is about the origin of the name of the Theodule pass, which joins Piedmont, Italy, and the canton of Valais, between the Matterhorn and the Breithorn, at an elevation of 10,000 feet. It is supposed to commemorate the name of St. Theodule, who lived in the fourth century and was the first bishop of Sion, ruling for ten years, from 381 to 391. The remarkable manner of his passage, according to tradition, of this elevated gateway out of Italy on one occasion was the origin of the name. The pope had given the prelate a fine bell in recognition of his efforts in obtaining the conversion of the valley of the Rhone to Christianity. The bell was for some time a white elephant on his hands. He did not know how to get it over the Alps into his see. At this juncture Satan appeared and offered to carry the bell and the bishop on his back over to Sion if the bishop would agree to give over the dominion of his soul forever to the prince of darkness in the event of the completion of the task before cockcrow. The bargain was struck and the journey begun. Long before dawn the devil had reached the city walls and was about to bound over when the bishop, fearful of the consequences, cried, "Crow, cocks, crow, or forever hold your peace!" Immediately the roosters crowed and thus formed the habit of crowing betimes in the morning. Satan, seeing victory slipping from his clutch, became so angry that he hurled the bell with all his force, and it was buried many feet in the ground.

Unlike the Matterhorn, the Jungfrau, in the Bernese Alps, did not resist so long the efforts to reach its summit. In 1811 the Meyers of Aarau climbed to the crest of the slender, majestic white mountain. While in the course of the succeeding forty years the ascent was made only four times, today it is accomplished not infrequently. The frowning crest of the Matterhorn was not attained till 1865. This feat was performed by Whymper.

Of all the peaks that surround the picturesque valley in which Engelberg lies none is so captivating to eye and mind as the giant form of the Titlis, 10,027 feet high. In the evening when the village is clothed in a cloak of shadows cast by the mountain chain the snows of the Titlis flush in the afterglow and the peak seems no longer cold, but illuminated by a hidden fire, the flames of which threaten to burst from it at any moment. It is typical of the scenic beauties of Switzerland.—New York Tribune.

Disraeli's Only Smile.

Disraeli, it is said, laughed only once in the house of commons. Mr. Gladstone had made an impassioned speech in favor of the union of Wallachia and Moldavia. Mr. Disraeli, speaking in opposition, pointed out that the result would be the extinction of the independence of these people and the only thing left would be the remorse "which would be painted with admirable eloquence by the rhetorician of the day."

In reply Mr. Gladstone said that he would not be guilty of the affected modesty of pretending to be ignorant that that designation "the rhetorician of the day" was intended for himself. Mr. Disraeli interrupted with the remark, "I beg your pardon; I really did not mean that." Disraeli sat down with a satisfied smile that told of his enjoyment.

Mr. Gladstone's face expressed amazement and indignation. His opponent had placed him in the mortifying position of applying a remark to himself which had no such personal reference, therefore Gladstone's wrath and Disraeli's smile. The Liberal leader proceeded with his speech and condemned the "sesquipedalian words and inflated language" of the leader of the Conservatives.

Terrifying.

"Work never hurts anybody," said the industrious man.

"No," answered Plodding Pete, "but it's most as bad to be scared as hurt."—Washington Star.

His Desire to Reform.

Discussing poverty on one occasion, the Dutch poet and economist Van Eeden said, "We want reform, and we want it about as badly as a Dutch student I knew in my youth."

"This student's chum said to him: "Look here, I'm tired of the life I've been leading for the past two years. I'm going to reform. This morning I shall attend a lecture."

"My student, a confirmed idler, yawned, put down his pipe and answered:

"Yes; it would be splendid to reform, and yet the beer is very good here this morning, isn't it? I tell you what we'll do. We'll let my dog Wilhelm decide whether we reform or not."

"Wilhelm decide! How will he do it?"
"Oh, it is very simple. We'll tell the waiter to bring a piece of sausage. We'll set the sausage before Wilhelm, and if he eats it we stay where we are. If he doesn't, we reform and go to lectures."—Washington Star.

Landseer's Persistent Wooer.

Charles Landseer was a brother of Sir Edwin "and for some years," says the writer of "Leaves From a Life," "was the victim of the most extraordinary persecution that I should think any man ever met with. An eccentric woman fell desperately in love with him and used to pester him first with the most extravagant love letters and then by lying in wait for him whenever he left the house. Finally she issued invitations to the wedding, prepared breakfast and an enormous cake and called for poor Mr. Landseer in a carriage and pair, the horses decked out with white satin streamers and she herself dressed most gorgeously as a bride. But that was the end of the persecution. Her friends took her away, and Mr. Landseer remained a bachelor to the day of his death."

Do Something Yourself.

Every town has an ambition to become a trade center and a boom city, with no special natural features or geographical advantages. Under such conditions, what is most needed is some enterprise on the part of the local capitalists. They must make the first advance in the uncertain field of development. They must capitalize small factories and see that they are kept employed. When the local business is finally developed and proves to the world that they are successful, then outside enterprises will be sure to step in and enjoy your prosperity with you—just like a fellow who finds a favorite fishing hole and catches fish, and all the other fishermen who see that he is catching fish will drop their hooks by the side of the lucky fisherman. The business men of any town should stop talking and hoping for others to do something for the town. They should get together themselves and prove to the world that they have a money-making town. No outsider will want to fish in our swimming hole until we prove that we can catch fish.—Edgewood Journal.

How to Prepare a Grape Fruit:

So many people do not know just how to prepare this fruit and so think that they do not like it, that we want to tell you just how it should be prepared to be the most palatable. The fruit should be cut in halves, across the grain and the core containing the seeds removed from each half. Then scarify the surface of the fruit with a sharp knife and pass the knife around between the fruit and the skin so it can be easily removed when eating. Then fill cavity where the core was removed and sprinkle the surface with either powdered or granulated sugar and let stand over night in the refrigerator; serve as a first course at breakfast. Grape fruit is without doubt the most appetizing, delicious and healthful fruit in existence. We are offering some of superior quality at the present time and if you will serve them as we suggest we know you will be pleased.
