LOWER FLAG FOR LEE

FLAGS ON PUBLIC BUILDINGS IN MISSISSIPPI LOWERED AT HALF MAST.

TRIBUTE BY ROOSEVELT

Federal Train Conveys Body From Vicksburg to Columbus—Prominent Veterans Officiate.

Washington, D. C., May 29.—President Roosevelt today directed that the flags on all public buildings in Mississippi be displayed at half mast in honor of the memory of Gen. Stephen D. Lee, late commander of the United Confederate Veterans.

Vicksburg, Miss., May 29.—The funeral train bearing General Lee's remains to Columbus left Vicksburg this morning at 7:20 o'clock, after the body had been taken to the Queen and Crescent depot by Confederate Veterans and a number of citizens. The pall bearers to the train were among the Confederates who had been Gen. Lee's life long friends. They were Capt. J. S. McNeilly, Gen. T. C. Catheings, Col. R. V. Booth, Dr. R. O'Leary, Capt. P. W. Shearer, J. G. Cashman, J. D. Laughlin and D. N. Hebron.

The following message was received today:

Washington, D. C., May 29.—Capt. W. T. Rigby, Chairman National Park Commission, Vicksburg, Miss.: The president directs that the United States flags at Vicksburg, Jackson and Columbus be placed at half mast during the hour of the funeral of Gen. Stephen D. Lee. Please govern yourself accordingly.

ROBERT SHAW OLIVER,

"Acting Secretary of War."

The above was sent to Capt. Rigby at Columbus.

Speculation is being indulged in as to who will be made successor to Gen. Lee as chairman of the Vicksburg National Park Commission. It is an appointment which President Roosevelt will have to make.

The train conveying the remains was made up of three coaches, the private car of Superintendent Walter Harvey of the Alabama and Vicksburg railroad having been tendered to Blount Lee and members of the party from here.

The military escort composed of Col. E. N. Scudder, Col. J. J. Hays, and other officers of the U. S. Army, also included a detachment of the Volunteer Southerners of this city.

Let the Question be Submitted.

The question now before the people of Texas is that of submission of an amendment to the constitution prohibiting the manufacture and sale of intoxicants.

When we come to the question of prohibition, there are some nice distinctions as between constitutional, statutory and local suppression of the sale, but these are not involved in the consideration now before the people.

A very considerable body of men—men who affiliate with the democratic party—ask for the privilege of voting on the constitutional prohibition—ask this through the Democratic party. Should their request be granted?

Those who stand for fine-spun theories of government—and this editor is usually found in that procession—will oppose on the ground that submission is recognition of what they think is not good democracy, to-wit: Prohibition in the constitution.

But we must not lose sight of the fact that a political party is simply an agency, and when it refuses to the people the opportunity to express their will—endangers its existence.

The probabilities are that one-half the democratic strength of Texas is wedded to prohibition, and the organization cannot by any sort of legerdemain afford to deny to this one-half its right to go to the whole people with whom it considers a vital question.

And why can't the democratic party of Texas afford to do that? Because making this request. But, deeper than this, it is good democracy to recognize the right of the whole people to form their organic laws.

As to the wisdom of prohibition for the whole State, that can be debated after the question has been submitted. But the "drys," after the lapse of twenty years, are entitled to another opportunity to test public sentiment as to the advisability of their contention.

U. S. Deputy Marshal at Eschiti.

Deputy United States Attorney McKnight passed through Eschiti Thursday on his way to the railroad station to investigate the matter of violations of the injunction issued last September restraining persons from doing more building and putting in new businesses on the twenty-seven acres of land condemned for railroad purposes.

This reminds us of the man who locked the stable door after the horse was gone.

Mr. McKnight said that he thought that Judge Cottrell would call this case soon in the United States court at Oklahoma, and he believed the injunction would be made permanent.

It is now everlastingly too late to do Eschiti good and our people are not now desirous of seeing a hardship worked upon our neighbors. We now have a case where all parties concerned will be able to work out their own salvation. Let us all dwell together in harmony—having one purpose, and that to build a big town in this section of the Big Pasture.

Nothing can be accomplished by bitterness, hatred and jealousy. There is a better day coming by and by.—Eschiti Banner.

Subsiding Torrents Reveal Damage That Will Amount to More Than $5,000,000.

Special to the Times.

Dallas, Tex., May 30.—Interurban service was resumed today from Dallas to Fort Worth and to Oak Cliff, the latter place having been isolated for a week.

Reports from over this section say that the flood conditions are much easier and that traffic is being resumed, but that the damage has been underestimated. Dallas places its loss at nearly two millions, independent of the railroads, which sustained an almost equal loss in this immediate section.

The Frisco will run its first train north in over a week tonight.

The Denver, Texas, and Pacific, Santa Fe and M. K. and T. hope to resume their schedules next week. The Rock Island is still in bad shape.

The loss to crops in North Texas is placed at $1,000,000; live stock loss, $200,000; private property loss, $3,000,000; railroad loss, $3,000,000.

Fifteen Killed in Oklahoma Twister.

Oklahoma City, Ok., May 28.—Cyclones raged through Woods county and northwest Oklahoma yesterday, bringing death and destruction to Alva, Driftwood, Ingersoll, Becoma and the territory in between. The death list as reported will reach fifteen and may far exceed it. Scores are injured.

The tornado struck Alva early in the morning. Peter Ruddy, his wife and two children were killed in the falling timbers of their home. Half a dozen houses were destroyed and scores of persons were injured.

At 10 o'clock yesterday a twister dashed through the country one mile west of Ingersoll. It killed six and fatally injured one. Mrs. Hudson and her three-month-old child were killed and the body of the child has not been recovered.

Five were killed about 8 o'clock last night in a tornado south of Becoma, a small village in this same territory. Mrs. Shafter, living in the country near Cherokee, was injured, probably fatally. A harrow tooth was driven into her side.

No damage was done in the small towns in the path of the wind, the area of which was small in width. Meager reports of the storm were brought into the towns from the country through which it passed and it is difficult to learn to what extent the loss of life or injury to the inhabitants has occurred.

Those killed were found by parties who were traveling in the path of the storm to ascertain the damage. As the bodies were found a carriage returned to the nearest town for medical assistance for the injured and undertakers for the dead.

The Rice-Caspar concert company entertained a large crowd at the Air-Force last night. Mr. Rice captivated the audience with his voice, and the Misses Caspar were especially pleasing in their work. They give an entire change of program tonight. Be sure to hear them.

BINDERS WILL NOT STOP ON SUNDAY

Several Wichita Falls men who returned last night from a twenty mile trip into the country say that on every hand the binders were at work in the wheat and oat fields. In nearly every field the shocks are standing thick and the harvesters report that the heads are long and well filled.

Except where the flood waters from the streams have stood over the fields or washed away the plants, cotton and corn are showing fine stands and yesterday the fields in many places were dry enough for the plows.

Few farmers were in town today, the crops demanding their attention.

The grain in many places is dead ripe and although tomorrow is Sunday many farmers will not stop their binders.

A RACE RIOT IS ON.

Trouble 20 Miles North of Shreveport is Reported.

Shreveport, La., May 28.—A telephone report from Oil City (Annanias) in the field, twenty miles from Shreveport, states that a race riot between whites and blacks broke out there and has already resulted in serious shooting of two white men named Pope and Clarkson, with probably several negroes shot.

The trouble is thought to have been due to an attempt by Philip Carrigan, superintendent of a construction company engaged to build a natural gas pipe line to Texarkana, to employ negro laborers. At Oil City principally hardened drilling men reside, having been there only a few months on the new derrick and pipe lines, and the bringing of negroes into their midst aroused them. After frightening away one crowd, they tried to run Carrigan off. How many shots were fired cannot be ascertained. Carrigan's negroes are in a stable guarded by Mr. Carrigan, a Shreveport citizen, who is trying to prevent further trouble.

With the aid of a pewter spoon and a fine-tooth comb William Farris managed to get through the wall of the Marion county (Illinois) jail and escape.

LONGEST ON RECORD

SENATOR LaFOLLETTE CONCLUDES SPEECH WHICH LASTED 16 HOURS AND 43 MINUTES.

MADE VALIANT FIGHT

Wisconsin Solon Makes Desperate Effort to Prevent Adoption of Compromise Currency Measure.

By Associated Press.

Washington, D. C., May 30.—Whatever else has been accomplished by Senator LaFollette in his filibuster in the senate against the adoption of the conference report on the currency bill, he has gained a championship. At 7:03 today he yielded the floor to Mr. Stone of Missouri, after having spoken almost continuously for eighteen hours and forty-three minutes. His voice seemed to be almost as fresh as when he began.

By far the largest part of Mr. Stone's address consisted in reading newspaper extracts. For most part he spoke in low and monotonous tones and could not be heard ten feet from where he stood.

Later the filibuster still continued twenty-four hours after its inception, and no one in authority will predict when it will end.

Adjournment Tonight.

By Associated Press.

Washington D. C., May 30.—The end of the filibuster in the senate against the compromise currency bill is in sight. Senator Gore will talk about two hours and will be followed by Senators Clay and Bacon, who will make brief speeches. It is expected that the vote on the bill will be reached late this afternoon and it is hoped that final adjournment will take place some time tonight.

How Filibuster Started.

It was made evident soon after the opening of the session yesterday afternoon that Senator LaFollette would do all in his power to obstruct the passage of the compromise currency bill and there was good ground for the report that he had succeeded in obtaining assurance of help from Stone of Missouri. Before 2 o'clock LaFollette had made two demands for a quorum and when upon the third demand the vice president refused to recognize him because Culberson had the floor and declined to yield, he raised a point of order to the effect that the presiding officer should have a roll call when there was a demand for a quorum even in the face of declaration by the senator occupying the floor to yield for that purpose. The vice president held against the Wisconsin senator, who later announced his intention to appeal from the chair's decision. Then he entered upon an argument in support of his contention and it was evident that it was a filibuster.

Merry Widow Crooks.

It would seem that so many jokes and bona fide anecdotes have been told on merry widow millinery that the subject would have been exhausted, but an occurrence so amusing took place the other day that it is too good to keep in private circulation only. A prominent Nashville business man was visiting his sister in another large city of the State last week, and accompanied her on a tour of the shopping district. They had been in a number of stores and made several purchases when a clerk called to the lady:

"I beg your pardon, madame, but there is a linen collar on your hat."

There on top of the spreading millinery reposed a beautiful embroidered linen collar, a stranger to its unscrupulous wearer, who had been depositing it on the top of her head in its place, where no collar who keeps to its proper sphere in life ought to be. The members of the innocent thief's family were also unacquainted with the neckwear, and though she retraced her steps she could not discover at which point she had acquired it.

The most amusing part of the episode as reported by the brother of the lady in the case, who denies being an accessory in the crime, is that after all the collar was the exact number worn by the lady who possessed herself of it, and a beauty to boot.

The anecdote might be suggestive of novel methods of kleptomany, for a shoplifter desirous of original methods. The merry widow as a crook is a new departure, though like other brands of millinery, it has been liable to crooked appearances and has frequently inspired the time-honored query, "Is-my hat on straight?"

Miss Lettie Body of Rupert, Pa., climbed on a ladder eighty feet to the top of a windmill and repaired a wheel after two men had lost their nerve in trying to do the job.

TAXABLE VALUES HAVE BEEN DOUBLED

County Assessor W. J. Bullock is a busy man today in an effort to complete the assessment of real and personal property in Wichita county.

Mr. Bullock states that a number of property owners have not yet given in their renditions and that he will receive such renditions up until the time the commissioners court meets on the second Monday in June.

The total assessed valuation of property in Wichita county will be between ten and twelve million dollars this year, being fully double the total last year. At the same tax rate this sum would give double what has previously been collected, and as the county is already in good shape financially it is believed that the county commissioners will make a material reduction in the county tax rate when they fix the same for the ensuing year.

The increase in valuation is caused in large part by the operation of the full rendition law, but the natural increase in the amount and value of property has also contributed partly to the increase.

Twenty-Four Years

We have passed the 24th milestone in our existence as a Bank in Wichita Falls. This Bank having been organized May 15, 1884.

Twenty-four years ago Wichita Falls was a frontier town with one railroad outlet via Ft. Worth. No farmers in the surrounding country, with practically no rural districts and surrounded by sheep and cattle-ranches on all sides, and people looked upon the town as only a temporary stopping place.

The organizers of this Bank were among the first to foresee the future development of this country, and today Wichita Falls is a bustling City of 6,000 people, with railroad outlets in seven different directions, rapidly forging to the front as the commercial metropolis of this section.

During this time we have grown from a small beginning to a large and successful business.

We have endeavored to keep abreast of the times, providing for ourselves every modern appliance and up-to-date system to facilitate our office work, providing for our depositors every safe-guard known for their protection and security.

We have given freely to every deserving charity; contributed to every enterprise that would tend to improve or bring trade to our City.

We enjoy the confidence of the people of this community, and take this opportunity to thank our customers whose patronage has helped to make the last year the largest and best in our history.

WE ARE HERE TO STAY.

Send for us when you want a good plumber. Our work is guaranteed.

A. L. TOMPKINS, The Plumber.

Short-Sleeves are Losing Vogue.

As usual, sleeves are of prime importance in the warm weather wardrobe, says Mrs. Osborn in the June Delineator. More than any other detail of the toilet they betray the exact date of its creation. "A gown is as old as its sleeves" is an axiom of the dress-making profession.

In Paris the short-sleeve is already passe. The American woman, however, will not drop it abruptly for the long sleeve. She will be inclined to temporize on account of the heat of our long summer, but by autumn it is a certainty that the short sleeve will have been laid to rest.

One of the best examples of the typical small sleeve is used in the tailleur. It is full length, of course, close fitting and with no perceptible fullness at the armhole. An excellent phase of it is illustrated in the costume of shantung in the shade called "ashes of violet." The little coat has a square seamed position back and a deep V-shaped closing in the front that is caught to one side with a darker tone choux of silk, plaited and ruched into a clever semblance of a double violet.

The sleeve is most interesting and unusual, for it has but one seam, and that is on the outside of the arm. The sleeve buttons from the elbow to the wrist with a bias line of great button-holes bound in cloth, and small round cloth-covered buttons. The armhole of the coat is turned under and piped, so that the seam is as flat as possible.

SENATOR TAYLOR ON ROOSEVELT.

Senator Robert L. Taylor of Tennessee, delivering his maiden speech in the senate, talked on tariff and currency legislation. Senator Taylor drew a parallel between the solar system regulated by the centripetal and centrifugal forces and the government, the federal power being the centripetal and the States' power the centrifugal force. He declared that as the confederacy was an emphasis of the force seeking disintegration, the federal power representing the other extreme, now is endangering the rights of the State. Discussing the president he said:

"The system is surely out of balance today," as it was in 1861, and what is the difference to us whether we leave our orbit and go cavorting among the stars to freeze to death on the outskirts of creation or whether we are drawn the other way to be converted into fuel for the sun? What is the difference whether we go the secession route or the centralization route? They both mean destruction of the union. I do not pretend to be a great constitutional lawyer, but if that instrument means anything it is that all power not expressly conferred upon the federal government is reserved to the States. In these imperial days when concentrated wealth is entrenched under the dome of the capitol and centralized power is enthroned in the White House, what can be expected but the gradual encroachment of the federal government upon the reserved rights of the State? How can the equilibrium be preserved under the reign of the big stick and a bag of gold? Are not concentrated wealth and centralized power dictating the policies of the party in power and controlling the legislation of congress? I would not reflect upon the chief executive of the nation. On the contrary I would praise him for the noble things he has done during his incumbency, chief of which was turning on the light and revealing the enormity of the crimes his party has committed. But our peerless president reached the limit when he seized all the best reform planks of all the democratic platforms of the past and planted himself squarely upon them. Was there ever a grander spectacle of condescension than this in the history of American politics? The question for you on the other side of this chamber is: "Are you going to put his reform policies in your platform at Chicago?" If you are, then why don't you indorse Bryan and be done with it? If you are not, you will repudiate your president."

club keep a permanent fund, from which shall be taken the railroad expenses of every knocker that can be induced to leave town. If a man who thinks the town is going to the demerit bow-ows, that everybody is on the skin and that life isn't worth living anyhow, all he has got to do is to go to the club, and upon promising to never come back, get a railroad ticket to any part of the United States. There is a whole lot in the scheme for every town suffers more from the man with a chronic bellyache than it does from fire and flood and epidemic, and panic, simply because the visitation of providence occurs in spots while the work of the knocker goes on all the time. A scheme of benevolent deportation would be an excellent thing from every point of view.—Taylor County News.

There are all kinds of knockers. Some don't amount to a great deal. Every town has them, and the Times has about concluded that they are essential, though it is perfectly willing to contribute its share towards buying a ticket to unload such fellows on some other town.

The matter of finding a suitable man to fill the position of secretary of our Chamber of Commerce has not yet been attended to, for the reason, it seems, that men who are capable of filling these positions are scarce, hard to find, and always in demand. The organization, without an energetic secretary, can accomplish but little, and the Times hopes that before another month passes by Wichita Falls' Chamber of Commerce will have found a man to act in the capacity of secretary to the organization. Because the city is growing at a rapid rate, and everybody seems prosperous is no reason for a cessation of our efforts to bring more people, more capital and more manufacturing enterprises to Wichita Falls. Other enterprising towns are pushing out through their boards of trade and other organized bodies, and Wichita Falls should not, at this time, especially, stop work.

"I am for the anti-free pass law as applied to all public officers, but favor amendments of the law in some of its other features, notably, so as to leave newspapers free to contract with railroads, to exchange advertising for transportation, and to permit the issuance of passes to immigration agents (not public officers) to work in the interest of the development of Texas. The law should also be made more liberal with reference to sheriffs."

The above is the platform of R. C. Carnes of Sweetwater, who is a candidate for the State senate. It is all right, and enough of his way of thinking should be sent to Austin next year to undo some of the nonsensical and narrow-minded features of the present anti-pass law.

Wichita county values will be nearly doubled over the values of last year, according to the statement of County Tax Assessor Bullock. The full rendition law is, of course, responsible for a part of these increased taxable values, but not all. The natural increase of property values this year over that of last are on an average about twenty-five per cent. In Wichita Falls it has been greater than twenty-five per cent.

unique distinction of earning the highest commendation in each arm of the service, and so great was the value placed on his ability by the president of the Confederacy that in recommending his promotion from one arm to another, Mr. Davis expressed regret that he could not serve in both, as the position from which he was transferred would feel the great loss of his presence.

"Since the war, in addition to education of the minds of the young of the South like his namesake he, as was case with his predecessor, bent every effort toward healing the wounds left by the conflicts and there is something peculiarly touching in the fact that his death was brought about by his efforts in that direction. On Friday of last week he threw enthusiastic whole heartedness in the entertainment of the visitors who were at the park in Vicksburg, thereby rendering most proud and happy service, but he became overheated, which brought about complications which resulted in his death. He would have desired no more beautiful end to his life. As a citizen with a character as pure as snow; as a Confederate soldier with a record equal to the best; as a husband, father and brother, measuring up to all the requirements; as an officer and consistent member of the church—he lived a blameless life and has gone to his reward universally loved, leaving behind his comrades.

"In order that proper arrangements may be made for paying due honors to the illustrious dead, Major General Robert Lowry, commanding the Mississippi division of the United Confederate Veterans, is hereby detailed to take charge of the funeral program and control all details incident thereto. He will extend to all Confederate organizations, Sons of Veterans, Daughters of the Confederacy, memorial associations and veterans of the Union army an invitation to be present and take part in the burial exercises, so as to give the greatest honor to the heroic soldier, eminent citizen and courteous Christian gentleman."

CABELL ASSUMES COMMAND.

"Old Tige" Issues General Order With Tribute to Lee.

New Orleans, La., May 28.—General W. L. Cabell of Dallas today assumed command of the United Confederate Veterans and issued the following general order:

"In compliance with section 2, article 3, of the by-laws of the United Confederate Veterans' organization, I hereby assume command of the federation.

"The staff of the late commander in chief is hereby continued as the staff of the present lieutenant general commanding, and will be obeyed and respected accordingly."

"Once more, in the mysterious dispensation of our all-wise God, the survivors of the Confederate army are called on to mourn the loss of a great leader in the person of the commander in chief of this federation, General Stephen D. Lee, a lieutenant general in the Confederate army and the general commanding the United Confederate Veterans, breathed his last this morning at 6 o'clock in Vicksburg, Mississippi, after an illness of a week. He was born in the city of Charleston, S. C., on September 22, 1833, and had nearly reached his seventy-fifth birthday. He graduated from West Point military academy in the class of 1854, in which were many who took leading parts in the great war of the '60s. On the breaking out of hostilities, he was at the front and as an aide on the staff of General Beauregard he bore the notification to Colonel Anderson that fire would be commenced on Fort Sumpter on the morning of April 4, 1861, which was the first of the great conflict. His promotions were marked and rapid, passing through all grades till commissioned lieutenant general, June 23, 1864. He won the

The stopping of a projectile always results in the generation of heat. The velocity and weight of a projectile being known, the amount of heat developed by its stoppage can be calculated. In the case of large bodies moving rapidly the result of the calculation is something astounding. For example, the earth weighs 6,000,000,000,000 tons and travels in its orbits at the rate of over eighteen miles a second. Should it strike a target strong enough to stop its motion the heat developed by the shock would be sufficient not merely to fuse the earth, but also to reduce a large portion of it to vapor. It has been calculated that the amount of heat generated by a collision so colossal would equal that obtained from the burning of fourteen globes of coal each equal to the earth in size. And should the earth after its stoppage fall into the sun, as it certainly would do, the amount of heat developed by its impact on the sun would be equal to that generated by the combustion of 5,000 earths of solid carbon.

The Greatest Man.

Who is the greatest man who has ever lived? The question went round a dinner table, and controversy raged from the fish onward. There were two who plumped for Julius Caesar, two more for Napoleon; one, thinking of statues, said Shakespeare, and somebody else, who did not get a hearing at all, murmured Buddha at intervals. While most of the people present who did not know Greek said Aeschylus. But Aristotle won easily. It was not a particularly scholarly assemblage, and one wondered rather how many of Aristotle's enthusiastic devotees could have quoted accurately from him—had ever read him, indeed—since they left college. And all the while probably the greatest man of all ages is pegging away among us unnoticed, unrecognized; while we snapshot and interview all the little men or go back to some one who has been dead long enough for us to find out that we may safely praise him.—London Chronicle.

The Mighty Amazon.

The estimated length of the Amazon from its source in the Andes to where it debouches in a mouth forty miles wide into the Atlantic is 4,000 miles. The story is told of a wrecked vessel which was drifting, with her crew on board suffering intense torment for lack of fresh water, which entered the mouth of the Amazon and the sufferers could have had fresh water simply by putting a bucket over the side, but did not know where they were until they got in sight of the land. This mighty river, up which the tide goes 400 miles, is known in the upper part of its course near the Andes as the Marañon, then in the middle course from Tabatinga to the mouth of its chief affluent, the Rio Negro, as the Solimoes, while for the rest of its course its name is Amazonas or Amazon. A thousand miles from the sea it is four miles in width. Vast and often impassable forests line most of its banks.

Kadiak Island's Queer Climate.

Of the abnormal climate of Kadiak Island, Alaska, a writer says: "In spite of its situation in such high latitudes we find here what may well be described as 'the parting of the ways' between the arctic and more temperate regions. For, thanks to the moderating influence of the Japanese current which flows along its southern coasts, Kadiak is favored with climatic conditions such as are unknown even in places a few miles north or east of it on the mainland of Alaska. So pronounced is the demarcation line that even on the island itself a traveler in summer will suddenly emerge from amid forests and vegetation of almost tropical luxuriance into a barren, desolate land of silence, where lofty snow capped mountains tower aloft, brooding, as it were, over the past terrors of an arctic winter, which will soon descend once more, enveloping them in its icy grip."

The English Channel.

One of the most famous bits of water in the world is the English channel, which separates and yet unites the sister countries of England and France and has been the scene of so much of their history. It extends on the English side from Land's End to Dover and on the French side from the island of Usbant to Calais. Its entrance from the German ocean is the strait of Dover, twenty-one miles wide, while at the other extremity, where it joins the Atlantic, it is 100 miles from shore to shore. The greatest width midway is 150 miles. Owing to the strong current setting in from the westward, the high winds which frequently prevail and the configuration of the shores it has a roughness which has become proverbial and few cross it without seasickness.

Not Her Abode.

"My income is small," said a rather dilatory lover, "and perhaps it is cruel of me to take you from your father's roof."

"But I don't live on the roof," was the prompt reply.

FOIBLES OF MUSICIANS

Eccentric Moods and Manners of the Great Composers.

THE MADNESS OF GENIUS.

Beethoven's Strange Abstraction and Queer Habits—The Odd Contract That Mozart Insisted on Signing. Meyerbeer Inspired by Thunder.

When listening to the wonderful strains of Beethoven's immortal symphonies and sonatas it is difficult to imagine that they could come from the pen of such an eccentric man. Though musicians are, as a rule, men with many peculiarities, Beethoven was probably the most extraordinary of them all.

He wrote his music in all sorts of places—when dining, walking or conversing with a friend. Often in the midst of a crowded street he would stop and write furiously for a few minutes on the back of a letter or an envelope, oblivious to the bustling crowd about him. Some of his greatest themes were composed when he was walking along in the pouring rain, for in the worst weather he was a familiar figure in the streets of Vienna, and, though often the object of much ridicule and many gibes, he was profoundly inattentive to his surroundings, as his mind was wholly occupied with his music. His friends were not unaccustomed to have him break off in the midst of a conversation and begin to write rapidly some motif which had presented itself to him.

This great composer would play for hours at a stretch, and in order to cool his hands, which often became feverish, he would seize a water jug and walk about the room, pouring the water first on one hand and then on the other, utterly ignoring the fact that there was no receptacle to catch it. This was the cause of many of his hasty retreats from his lodgings, for the slightest complaint would cause him to give notice to quit, so puerile was he at times. As a result he sometimes was paying for no fewer than three different lodgings at the same time, which, after engaging for a month, he had abruptly left in a day.

Though Haydn ranks next to Beethoven on the list of eccentric musicians, still their peculiarities were very unlike. Beethoven lived in the midst of disorder and confusion, while Haydn averred that he could not compose a line unless everything in his study was in its exact place. Even every ornament must be where it belonged.

He always rose early to write, for he found his greatest inspiration when the birds were singing in the dewy morning hours. His most extraordinary characteristic, however, was to don his full court dress, with bob wig, hat and ruffles, and put on his finger a certain ring before he wrote a line, for he declared that he had not a musical idea unless so attired.

Mozart cannot be called eccentric in the same sense as the two mentioned, for they were very retiring—in fact, recluses—while he was to a great extent a man of the world. To him, however, must be credited one of the strangest documents that perhaps have ever been written.

He became engaged to a young woman, and at the request of his future mother-in-law he drew up in the presence of an attorney a contract which bound him to marry one of the woman's daughters within three years, the said daughter always having the liberty to refuse the composer if she wished to marry another. But in case Mozart was unable to carry out his intention through lack of the necessary funds or through the woman's refusal he pledged himself to support her in the condition of a stranger, no matter where or how she lived, all her life. This support was to be a fixed sum paid quarterly or half yearly.

Wagner, too, was not exempt from peculiar fancies. His mind seemed to run to the gressome, and during his lifetime he had his grave constructed. It was in the garden back of his home, and he would often go and look at it that he might not forget its existence. But the worst of it was that he constantly insisted that his friends should remember it, too, and when he was entertaining them at dinner he would suddenly break off the conversation and begin declaiming on eternity and the grave.

"My friends," he would say, "in the midst of life we are in death. Death is a lot that we all must face, even so great a man as myself. I, too, must die. I should like very much to show you my grave, if you will allow me."

And, starting from the dinner table, he would lead the way, followed by his guests, to the corner of the garden where his grave was, and there he would give his companions further dissertations on eternity.

Meyerbeer gathered his thoughts amid the rumble of thunder, the flash of lightning and downpour of rain. In order more fully to expose himself to the stimulating effects of the elements he had constructed for himself at the top of his house a room whose sides were entirely of glass, and here he would hasten at the approach of a storm and amid its fury would have a rush of musical thoughts.

There is a story about him to the effect that once when entertaining friends at dinner he heard a distant rumble of thunder just as the soup course was served, and to the astonishment of his guests he hastened from the room to his musical chamber and left them to take care of themselves for the rest of the evening.

The Italian composer Donizetti courted inspiration by a means which proved so injurious that it caused the premature decay of his faculties. He was accustomed to shut himself in a room with a quantity of music paper, pens and ink and three or four pots of strong coffee. He would then begin to write and drink, and when this supply of coffee was exhausted he would order more and continue to drink it as long as he wrote.

He asserted that the coffee was necessary for his inspiration. The result of this pernicious habit was a yellow, parchment-like complexion, with lips almost jet black and a nervous system which soon caused his breakdown and death.

Rossini was perhaps the laziest of all musicians whose names are famous. He would rarely rise until midday, and often when he woke and the weather was dull or the muse did not inspire him to write he would turn over again and after directions to his servant to be called the following day would sleep blissfully for another twenty-four hours.

He did most of his writing in bed, and before retiring for the night he would place music paper and a pencil near his bedside so that he would not have to move in order to have the means at hand for writing down the musical thoughts which came.

It is told of him that after writing part of a beautiful duet for an opera the sheet on which he was writing fell to the floor and, caught by a puff of wind, was soon beyond his reach. He was too lazy to get up and get it and thereby disturb the nicely arranged bedclothes, so he set to work and wrote another melody, as he could not remember how the first one went. Thus in the opera "Il Turco in Italia" there are two duets for one situation, and singers can choose the one which pleases them best.

Liszt was probably the vainest of great composers and also one of the most capricious. It was only when in the mood that he would play, and if pressed to do so against his will he would often become almost insulting.

It is told of him that after being entertained at dinner he was asked by his hostess to perform on the piano, and on refusing and again being asked he stalked to the piano and after dashing off a short but brilliant composition he hurried from the room, saying as he went: "There, madam! I have paid for my dinner!"

On a similar occasion, after a dinner party, he was pressed by his host to play. Not being in the mood, however, he refused; but, no doubt thinking that genius needed urging, his host insisted. The musician then walked to the piano and, turning his back to the keyboard, favored the company with one of the popular airs—Mary Hamilton Talbot in New York Tribune.

END OF SESSION IS NEAR.

Indications Now Are That Congress Will Adjourn Some Day Either Friday or Saturday.

Washington, May 28.—The anticipated strenuous opposition to the adoption of the conference report on the Alrich-Vreeland currency bill in the senate, according to the inference to be drawn from the debate today, probably will not materialize. Senator Alrich kept the report before the senate until nearly 4 o'clock this afternoon, when he assented to its being laid aside until 1 o'clock tomorrow, and the remainder of the time today was devoted to the passage of unobjectioned house bills on the calendar.

Every senator realized that the meaning of this move was that an understanding had been reached to vote on the bill tomorrow. Inquiry proved the existence of this understanding, although no positive agreement has been made. The indications are, therefore, that congress will adjourn sine die tomorrow or Saturday.

An Out-of-Door Card Party.

Woman's Home Companion. A simple but unique morning card party may be given by the hostess who has a lawn or large porch on which to entertain her guests. Cover the tables with green cheese cloth in a pretty shade. For tidy cards use leaves from the oak or maple tree, as these are good shape and do not wither easily. Gold paper stars or circles are used to keep score, and may be had at any stationer's. The prizes may be a dainty white fan with possibly a suggestion of green for first prize, and a huge palm-leaf fan with a bow of green ribbon for the booty. The refreshments are sandwiches of lettuce, olives, nasturtium or any other delicate green filling, and iced tea served with lemon and long stalks of mint. After this, ices with mini cherries served in white paper cases, with little wire handles wrapped in green paper. On each handle fasten a white butterfly cut from paper and marked with a little water color paint. Plain white and green iced cakes may be used, or a white cake with a touch of pistachio in the filling. Green and white peppermints may be served during the game or after the ices.

We will soon be in our own new two-story building, with positively the largest line of furniture and undertakers supplies north of Fort Worth and NORTH TEXAS FURNITURE & COFFIN CO.

THIRTY INDIANS WERE CONVERTED

Special to the Times. Spokane, Wash., May 30.—Thirty Indians of the Umatilla tribe were converted to the Christian faith at the Tutuilla Presbyterian mission, southwest of Spokane, where Rev. J. M. Cornelson, resident missionary, has just concluded the most remarkable religious meeting of its kind in the history of the Pacific Northwest. The scene on the reservation was picturesque and impressive, especially at night when the moonbeams flooded the tops of the tepees and the mission buildings.

Fifty members of the Nez Perce tribe met with the Umatillas during the 10 days service were in progress and sermons were given in English by M. K. Arthur, Spaulding, Ida.; Rev. Robert Parsons, Cottonwood, Ida., and Rev. William Wheeler, Siltco, Ida. Among the visitors of the Nez Perce tribe, was Kip-kup-el-kin, known as Obedian Harrison, grandson of one of the four Nez Perces who went to St. Louis in the early '30s in search of the white man's bible, the trip resulting in the Missionaries Whitman and Spaulding being sent to the Spokane country to labor with the red man. Three services, lasting several days each, were held daily, and the night meeting continued from sundown till after midnight.

The Glory song of the Nez Perce tribe was the favorite of the Indians. They have a peculiar trick of singing it through without stopping between the verses. The Glory song is much like the one used in the war dance, but slower in time and in quieter tone.

Umatilla Indians who had never been at religious meetings before were in attendance, and some of the elderly redmen, converted by Whitman and Spaulding more than 60 years ago, were also present. Many white men and women from the surrounding towns, were invited to worship with the Indians and the Umatilla Indians stood in groups talking with the white men of their love for the church.

The Indians have given up thoughts of a happy hunting ground and look to a God, as they have been taught by the white missionaries. They told of how the tribes had turned from bloodshed and sin to walk in the way of their brothers. One by one each spoke of his conversion, the swarthy face lighting up, the stern lips saying unwonted words of love.

Rev. J. M. Cornelson, who has worked among the Umatilla Indians under the direction of the Home Mission board of the Presbyterian church, entered the field eight years ago with an interpreter to speak to his flock, but he was not slow in picking up the Indian jargon, and the last five years he has been preaching to them in their own language. Rev. J. E. Conners, Indian evangelist, chosen resident minister of the Tutuilla church, has just been formally installed.

"I took upon the success of these services as a triumph for the Christian faith," said Rev. Mr. Cornelson, "and I believe that the day is near when every Indian on the reservation in the Pacific Northwest, as well as in other parts of the continent shall have been converted. During my eight years residence with the Umatillas I have found them trustworthy and loyal and with little teaching and training in modern ways they will become good citizens of the State and country."

A WOMAN'S VIEW OF PANAMA.

She Found Women's Clubs Are Prospering in Canal Zone.

Boston Post. Mrs. Harry W. Flagg of Brockton, treasurer of the Massachusetts State Federation of Women's Clubs and past president of the Brockton Woman's club has been prominently identified with club work in this State for several years, has just returned home from a trip round the Caribbean sea, in the course of which she visited the Panama canal zone, and conveyed the greetings of the Massachusetts Federation to the women's clubs there, as well as the good wishes of many other organizations, including the Daughters of Vermont and those of Saratoga of New York, the parent body of all the woman's clubs of the country.

Mrs. Flagg was accorded the most hearty greetings by the club women of the zone, who made her the guest of honor at a meeting where several other distinguished women were to be seen. She carried with her year books and working programmes from a great many clubs, these works being full of valuable suggestions. Mrs. Flagg says of her trip.

The women's clubs of which there are about a dozen in the canal zone, are made up of a fine type of American women, wives of army and navy officers, judicial and executive officials, engineers and skilled mechanics sent there by the United States government. The federation there is much interested in the work they are doing, for it is in the samelines with the work done in the States.
