

ABOUT HOKE SMITH'S DEFEAT BY BROWN

Relative to the defeat of Governor Hoke Smith in the Georgia primaries Thursday, an Associated Press dispatch says:

For the first time since Georgia emerged from reconstruction an effort was made to defeat a governor for the customary endorsement of a second term. This unprecedented reversal of a political custom follows the overwhelmingly successful campaign of Gov. Hoke Smith two years ago, when he was swept into office on the crest of an overwhelming reform wave crushing the combined opposition of four candidates and carrying more than 110 out of the 145 counties of the State.

The regulation of railroads is the question at the bottom of the unusual situation, which has developed so suddenly that Gov. Smith, taken by surprise, was forced to make the battle of his political career.

The center of this formidable opposition was Joseph M. Brown of Marietta, formerly a member of the State railroad board, from which he was summarily dismissed by the governor. The two men held views on the regulation of common carriers entirely at variance.

Brown Summarily Ousted.

When Smith was making his whirlwind campaign two years ago, rousing the people of the State to hostility against the railroads, he told them that one of the first things he proposed to do after taking office was to summarily dismiss Mr. Brown from the railroad commission because of the charge that he had rather favored the railroads in matters which came before the commission.

The promise was not kept to the letter. Smith was inaugurated governor during the latter part of June, on the eve of a session of the general assembly. Nothing occurred during the session to indicate the purpose of the governor to carry out his threat. The general assembly adjourned in the middle of August. Brown's term as railroad commissioner would have expired in October.

received a sealed communication from Brown. Breaking the outer seal a brief note was revealed, with still another communication inside. The note stated that the second communication was a card which Brown might have written. Governor Smith returned the communication unbroken to the writer. Immediately thereafter he issued the order removing Brown from office.

This action sowed the seed of opposition that has grown into a formidable political hedge. The friends of Brown were furious at his summary dismissal. They charged the governor with cowardice in ousting Brown after the adjournment of the legislature, when no opportunity would be afforded him of making a defense.

Then the panic came and after it stagnation. Industries were idle, the railroad building stopped, shops' forces were reduced and thousands of laborers found themselves out of employment. Whether he was in any wise responsible or not, these conditions were in a large measure charged up to Gov. Smith's campaign of agitation against the railroads and other corporations. The friends of Brown felt nothing undone that would add fuel to the flame of discontent and opposition to the State administration, but up to the middle of March nobody dreamed of opposition to the return of Governor Smith for another term. Perhaps least of all had the idea occurred to Brown. The storm that had been brewing for months burst suddenly. Brown was announced for the governorship. Even then Smith supporters laughed at the announcement. The governor publicly declared that he would pay no attention to the Brown candidacy, but he had evidently failed to gauge correctly the undercurrent of "revolt" against the "reform movement." Brown became formidable almost at once.

Bowie Truck Farmers Damaged.

The passenger, mail and express service at Bowie, have been out of joint all week. The Denver, after the wash-out of last week, had gotten its service in good shape again. But Tuesday night a second break in their track, caused by a storm north of Wichita Falls, brought them to a stand still again. They sent a Denver train north Thursday noon that it is expected will get through. The Rock Island has been operating from Fort Worth to near Waurika. Bowie's fruit and truck shippers have been badly hurt, their stuff being perishable and the roads not offering them an outlet.—Bowie Cross Timbers.

Wanted His Dues.

A reservation Indian was disconsolate over the breaking of his ax handle. He told his misfortune before the "farmer" of the reservation, who, through pity, took a new handle from his private stock and adjusted it to the ax. The farmer then noticed that the ax was shockingly dull.—So, motioning the owner to turn the grindstone, he expended a half hour's time in sharpening the blade. When the rehabilitated ax was given to the Indian he was childishly grieved, but still lingered about, indicating by his actions that some feature of the transaction had not been adjusted.

The farmer was a little annoyed and called to an interpreter. "Ask the old fellow what he wants now," he directed.

After an exchange of grunts and gestures the interpreter announced, "He wants 25 cents."

"Twenty-five cents! What for?"

"For turning the grindstone."—Harper's.

The Other Way.

There was a hopeful gleam in the eyes of the young man with a slightly retreating chin as he approached the father of his ladylove.

"Will you give your daughter to me in marriage, sir?" he asked in as firm a tone as he could muster.

"I'm afraid you are not well enough acquainted with her, young man," remarked the father.

"Why, I've seen her twice a week for nearly a year," said the astonished suitor.

"That may all be," said the parent, "but if you knew much about her character you'd have said, 'Will you give me to your daughter in marriage?'"

A Post's Slip.

A correspondent of London Notes and Queries has "caught out" Mr. Kipling in an extraordinary blunder. He finds it in the "Last Chantey" in these lines: Then said the souls of the slaves that men threw overboard:

"Kenneled in the picaroon a weary band were we.

But thy arm was strong to save, And it touched us on the wave, And we drownded the long idles idle till thy trumpets tore the sea."

"Of course," says the commentator, "the word Kipling meant to use was barracoon, the technical term for a slave pen. Picaroon means a rogue."

Catching a Cobra.

A driver on the Avontuur railway, South Africa, while staying at the Gamtoos caught a large cobra de capello alive. The cool way in which he did the trick, says a local paper, sent a cold shiver through every one who saw it. He simply caught hold of the point of its tail, gave it a sudden jerk toward him and caught it by the back of the head. He then placed it in a biscuit tin. The snake was three inches in diameter and about four feet long.

Facts Versus Terms.

"I've a terrible toothache. What's good for it?"

"Nonsense! You've no toothache. It's simply imagination."

"Well, confound it, what's good for imagination?"—Boston Transcript.

Twenty-Four Years

We have passed the 24th milestone in our existence as a Bank in Wichita Falls. This Bank having been organized May 15, 1884.

Twenty-four years ago Wichita Falls was a frontier town with one railroad outlet via Ft. Worth. No farmers in the surrounding country, with practically no rural districts and surrounded by sheep and cattle ranches on all sides, and people looked upon the town as only a temporary stopping place.

The organizers of this Bank were among the first to foresee the future development of this country, and today Wichita Falls is a bustling City of 6,000 people, with railroad outlets in seven different directions, rapidly forging to the front as the commercial metropolis of this section.

During this time we have grown from a small beginning to a large and successful business.

We have endeavored to keep abreast of the times, providing for ourselves every modern appliance and up-to-date system to facilitate our office work, providing for our depositors every safe-guard known for their protection and security.

We have given freely to every deserving charity; contributed to every enterprise that would tend to improve or bring trade to our City.

We enjoy the confidence of the people of this community, and take this opportunity to thank our customers whose patronage has helped to make the last year the largest and best in our history.

WE ARE HERE TO STAY.

"Tommy," said his teacher, "the words 'circumstantial evidence' occur in the lesson. Do you know what circumstantial evidence is?"
Tommy replied that he did not.
"Well, I will explain it to you by an illustration. You know we have a rule against eating apples in school. Suppose some morning I should see you in your seat with a book held up in front of your face. I say nothing, but presently I go around to where you are sitting. You are busily studying your lesson, but I find that your face is smeared, while under the edge of your state I see the core of a freshly eaten apple.
"I should know just as well as if I had caught you at it that you have been eating an apple, although, of course, I did not see you do it. That is a case in which circumstantial evidence convicts you. Do you think you know what it is now?"
"Yes, ma'am," said Tommy. "It's eating apples in school." — Youth's Companion.

The Mormons.
The Book of Mormon appeared in 1829. Joseph Smith of Palmyra, N. Y., claimed that he had received it as a new Bible for all mankind. He began preaching Mormon doctrines, gathered followers, who migrated to Kirkland, O., and later to Missouri, whence they were driven out by their neighbors. They then went to Illinois, building the city of Nauvoo, and adopted polygamy, but they met with strong opposition there and finally settled at Salt Lake. They had hardly reached there before the foreign soil they had chosen was a part of the United States by treaty with Mexico.

The Seven Wise Men.
The names and characteristic attributes of the seven wise men of ancient Greece are as follows: Solon of Athens, "Nothing in excess"; Thales of Miletus, "Suretyship leaves ruin"; Pittacus of Mitylene, "Know thine opponent"; Cleobolus of Priene in Caria, "Few many workmen spoil the work"; Chilon of Sparta, "Know thyself"; Cleobolus of Rhodes, "Moderation is the chief good"; and Bias of Priene, "Forethought in all things."

Miss the Easy Road.
Two young exponents of the strenuous life on Broadway were sitting in a hotel lobby the other evening discussing their plans for making some "big money" in the future. One of them confessed that his salary was "only $45 a week," and he was having a hard time of it in keeping the wolf from the door. Sitting near them was an old gentleman who overheard their conversation and was evidently interested.
"You fellows are making the mistake of your lives," the old gentleman said at last. "You are chasing the will of the wisp while you have the means of wealth within your grasp. Why, I'm considered pretty well off financially, as you both know, and I never received a salary of $45 a week in my life. But I saved money when I was your age, and I found opportunities for investment that soon put me out of the salary class and made me a business man on my own account. The trouble with young fellows nowadays is that they can't see the opportunities that are given them. They have their eyes glued to the get-rich-quick idea so tightly that they pass by the only sure route to wealth." — New York Globe.

Handwriting.
As a rule, clear handwriting is more common with persons who do not write for a living than with those who do. Authors, for example, are creating something when they write; their mind is concentrated on this creative work; their thoughts are generally ahead of their hand, sometimes a whole ten or more, and they hurry to keep pace with them. The result is good handwriting. In R. R. it is not character. There is a theory that plain writing is most easily forged. This is not true. Original signatures are most easily forged and the so-called "freak" signatures, which nobody can read, are of all the best signatures and the easiest for a man who signs checks in order to pry for too involved. Just plain, everyday writing, done in the easiest way, according to his temperament. Such a signature expresses as much character as any handwriting can, but it doesn't tell us a thing about the man's moral makeup, not a thing. — Boston Globe.

When Britain Fought For an Ear.
Perhaps the most extraordinary example of Britain going to war for "no reason at all" occurred in the reign of George II. One Robert Jenkins, an English merchant-captain, trading from Jamaica, arriving in England in 1738, reported that the sloop had been boarded by the Spanish coast guards and that, though no proof of smuggling had been found, he had been tortured and his ear torn off. All England flew into an uproar. "Jenkins' ear" divided parties and shook Walpole's ministry itself. The house of commons sent for Jenkins, and he was told to bring his ear with him. The incident grew into a crisis, though Walpole did his best to persuade people to keep their heads, but the popular indignation was so great that the next year the government was compelled to declare war against Spain. — Pearson's.

Italian-Hat Straw.
Few people know where the straw for making summer hats comes from. A great part of it is grown in Italy. To make suitable straw the wheat is sown as thickly as possible in order that the growth of the plant may be impoverished as well as to produce a thin stalk having toward the end from the last knot the highest and longest straw. The wheat blooms at the beginning of June and is pulled up by the roots by hand when the grain is half-developed. It allowed to remain in the ground a longer time the straw would become brittle. About five dozen sprouts, between the size of the compass of two hands, are tied together into little sheaves and stowed away in barns. Then the straw is again spread out to catch the heavy dew which is to be left on the straw. After additional drying the straw is put into small bundles and classified. Finally it is cut close above the first joint from the top and again tied up in small bundles, containing about sixty stalks each. — London Chronicle.

Where She Drew the Lines.
Mr. King's imagination that, owing to the brightness of heaven, it will not be inevitable that we shall knock up against our acquaintances there may have been suggested by one of Dean Estlin's "New Scottish stories." It should be mentioned that at Hawick, the seat of the ancients, the people used to wear wooten caps, which made a clanking noise on the pavement. As an old woman lay dying, some friends and neighbors, seeing she was near to heaven, said to her, "You see many a woman as you should see our cap, you can tell them that we're a woot!"
"Yes," said Jenny cautiously, "I should see them if I tell them, but you must expect that I am to make clank-clanking through heaven looking for your folk." — London Chronicle.

WHO IS THE CORRESPONDENT?

WICHITA FALLS, TEX., JUNE 4.—WITH THE WICHITA RIVER FLOOD CONSTANTLY RISING, CITIZENS ARE BATTLING TO SAVE LIFE AND PROPERTY THIS AFTERNOON.

THE RIVER IS TRYING TO CHANGE ITS COURSE. DYNAMITE IS BEING USED TO PREVENT THE STREAM CUTTING INTO CRESCENT LAKE WHICH IS NEAR THE COURT HOUSE.

HUNDREDS OF HOUSES ARE NOW SUBMERGED. THERE IS A SEVEN-FOOT RISE TO COME DOWN THE RIVER.

The above appeared in the Dallas Times-Herald of the 4th under a double-deck scarp head. The people of this city know, without the Times saying to what extent, the Times-Herald correspondent drew on his imagination in order to furnish something sensational for a city paper to the detriment of his own town.

The heading of the article that took the lead on the front page of the Times-Herald was perhaps of a more sensational nature than the article itself, which read as follows: "Many Houses are Submerged." "Terrible Conditions Prevail on the Wichita." "Fight For Their Lives." "Life and Property are Threatened." "Another Seven-Foot Rise is Expected at Wichita Falls."

There is little foundation for the sending out of such a report. Nothing was overflowed in this city except that which every sane citizen knew and expected would be overflowed at any time the river got out of its banks. At no time were the lives of anyone in danger. Excepting the houses which were pulled off the lots which were washed away, not a single residence in the flooded district was moved from its foundations.

The facts are that the rise in the Wichita river lacked four feet of being as high as that of 1899, and it would have had to rise five or six feet more before the back waters would have touched the main business portion of the city, which is located on much lower ground than the main residence portion. In order to place life in danger, the Wichita river would have to rise fifteen or twenty feet higher than it was at this time.

THE LEADER VS. THE BOSS.

The leader is not a man who thinks for the people, but a man who thinks with the people. The leader is going in the same direction that the people are going—far enough ahead to be in advance, but not far enough to be out of sight. The leader is not only in sympathy with the people, but he relies upon persuasion to influence them. He presents his arguments to them, but recognizes the right of the people to reject any proposition submitted by him. The leader's title to leadership rests upon his ability to propose the best thing at the right time and, as those who follow the leader follow him voluntarily, he must appeal to their conscience and their judgment. The leader is a moulder of opinion, and a moulder of opinion does not create public opinion—he merely expresses it in effective language. As Thomas Jefferson simply put into appropriate words the aspirations of the people, so today, the leader—the moulder of public opinion—coins into current language the sentiment, like precious metal, which experience brings forth from humanity's great storehouse.

The boss, however, is an entirely different character—if the word "character" can be applied to one who is of ten without character. The boss has no sympathy with the people; he has his own interests to serve and whatever authority he can secure he turns to his private advantage. The boss is an embezzler of power and, measured by every moral standard, he is in the same criminal class with the embezzler of money. The boss has introduced bribery, corruption and intimidation into politics and he will go on when these are eliminated. "Let the people rule" is as much a terror to the boss as the commandment, "Thou shalt not steal," is to the thief. The spread of the primary is only a reaction from boss rule, and, like every other plan for the bringing of the government nearer to the people, the primary system increases the relative influence of the real leader and lessens the influence of the boss.—The Commoner.

The newsboys of Dallas have inaugurated a strike on the Dallas News and are trying to force that paper to reduce the price of papers to newsboys to 2 1/2 cents per copy instead of 3 1/3 cents, which they have been paying. The strikers paraded the streets of Dallas yesterday with a brass band at their head and among the banners carried was one which read: "We make 20c per day; the Dallas News makes $1,000."

It's an ill wind that blows nobody good. While the recent floods throughout Texas have washed away and destroyed many county bridges across rivers and creeks, with the bridges went the unsightly signs of merchants, many of whom have been dead or out of business for years, and apparently the only way to rid the bridges of the signs was to wait for a flood to come along and wash them away.

More About Shirt Waists.

Woman's National Daily. One is not wandering far out of the province of fashion to call attention just now to new summer shirt waists. To the uninitiated, the shirt-waist is a separate waist that can be made of any material or in any style, and just so it meets the requirements of a waist it is considered proper. One pays $2 in the city to have a perfectly plain shirt waist made—not a plait in sight, with the exception of the one bearing buttons, and not a fraction of an inch in trimming. Two dollars for a plain shirt waist, French seamed and as trim as a Pennsylvania Quaker. Much we hear about certain broad shoulder lines. Well, the extremely broad shoulder lines are not shown on summer waists. They are not long, neither are they short, but the usual size essential for good proportions. Breadth is noticeable at the upper portion of the waist, though shown in trimming that tapers toward the waist line. The wide bows, so popular just now, also the single, double, and triple ruffles give a broad effect that tapers at the lower points. Sleeves are practically what they were in spring fashions, though lingerie ones are showing cuffs of insertion, edged on both sides with lace ruffles. The same decoration appears on the front plait, frequently as a shoulder strap arrangement.

SLUSH FUND STORY DENIED.

Bryan Says if Contribution Was Made It Was Without His Knowledge.

Lincoln, Neb., June 4.—In a statement given out tonight to the Associated Press, William J. Bryan replies to an article appearing a week ago in the New York World, charging that Mr. Bryan was the beneficiary of a campaign contribution made by Thos. F. Ryan. Mr. Bryan declares that if Mr. Ryan made the contribution it was without his knowledge or consent and he repeats his former statement that when it is proved to him that Mr. Ryan did make the contribution, he will see that the money is returned to the donor. Mr. Bryan says: "I have just read the story charging, first, that my brother-in-law, Mr. Allen, chairman of the democratic State committee, had a conference with Mr. Sheehan in 1904 in regard to campaign funds. Second, that Mr. Sheehan, as Mr. Ryan's attorney, secured from Mr. Ryan $20,000 for the Nebraska campaign."

"3. That Mr. Ryan made the contribution to secure my open and unqualified support of Judge Parker.

"4. That to disguise the source of the contribution Mr. Ryan gave the check to Mr. Sheehan and that Mr. Sheehan gave his checks to Mr. Allen."

Chairman Allen and Mr. Dahlmán, the Nebraska member of the national democratic committee, have already denied the charges and stated that the only money received came from the national committee, but I desire to add to the statement:

"Mr. Allen says he saw neither Mr. Sheehan nor Mr. Ryan and I have no reason to doubt his word. If Mr. Ryan contributed to the Nebraska campaign fund it was not with my knowledge or consent. While I had but a remote personal interest in the Nebraska campaign, I am interested in Nebraska politics, and am also interested in national politics, but I am not willing to be in the slightest degree obligated to any favor-seeking corporations. If, therefore, those making the charges will secure from either Mr. Sheehan or Mr. Ryan a statement or prove in any other way that Mr. Ryan gave to Mr. Sheehan or to anyone else or to the national committee any sum whatever, with the understanding that the sum would be used in the Nebraska campaign, I shall see that the amount is returned to Mr. Ryan."

"As to the charge that my support of Judge Parker was purchased, I need only to say that I announced my support of Judge Parker immediately after the St. Louis convention and that support was given openly and unqualifiedly from the convention until the polls closed. I had opposed his nomination, but he had no more loyal supporter during the campaign. I was in correspondence with him and both from the stump and with my pen I rendered all the aid I could."

"SHADY BILL" KILLED.

George Freeze is Given an Examining Trial on Serious Charge.

Amarillo, Tex., June 5.—Elgin Warren, also known as "Shady Bill," died this afternoon as the result of a wound inflicted at 3 o'clock this morning by George Freeze, better known as Jack Freeze.

Freeze had been drinking and talking loudly and when rebuked by the night officer he got a new army revolver from the armory of Troop B, Texas National Guard, of which he is quartermaster sergeant. Coming back down town, he met Warren, with whom he had trouble some time ago, and after some words he shot him.

Freeze had also threatened to kill the officer with whom he had words earlier. Later he gave himself up. His examining trial on a charge of murder began today.

100 CARS OF ALFALFA WILL BE SHIPPED FROM VERNON.

In conversation with Agent Shannon of the Frisco road this week, we learn that the company has been doing a little missionary work and the result is that they are pretty sure to take at least 100 cars of Wilbarger county alfalfa from Vernon to the Delta City, New Orleans, where the demand for this popular forage is very great. If this amount should be considered with what the Frisco will handle to near-by points, together with the shipments of the Denver road, it is not difficult to understand something of the magnitude of the business now being conducted in this particular department of the farm. This product is being met by a big demand at from $12 to $15 per ton, and all the alfalfa growers are wearing the broadest kind of smiles, and their pockets jingle with the richness coming therefrom.

Among those who are looking to this county for their supply from neighboring towns is George W. Eagle, a prominent dealer of Wichita Falls, who was here this week and ordered John A. White to ship his company a car of his first cutting.

Mr. Dutton Expresses Gratitude.

Feeling that I am under great obligations to the men who rendered such timely assistance in moving my buildings and household goods during the recent overflow, I wish to express my heartfelt thanks and assure them that they have rendered me service that will be remembered with deepest gratitude as long as life shall last.

While my loss has been heavy, to the extent that it has rendered me practically penniless, I feel rich in the knowledge of the fact that I have friends in Wichita Falls who have proven by their acts of kindness that their friendship is of infinitely greater value than glittering gold. And I also wish to express my heartfelt thanks to the ladies who gave shelter to my wife and little ones in their time of need.

The Finest Tomatoes Grown

We have two brands of canned tomatoes that are especially good.

The Monarch and White House. These two brands are put up from carefully selected, solid vine-ripened tomatoes; no water is used in preparing them and the tomatoes selected are as free from juice as possible.

This makes them especially meaty, and a 3 pound can of them at 17 1/2c will go farther and give more satisfaction than any other brand known.

We will guarantee every can to be perfect or money back.

ODD HAPPENINGS IN THE NEWS OF A DAY

Mrs. Charles Crellin of Hazleton, Pa., says the whole Bible can be read in thirty-eight hours.

At a reception given by the ladies in Brooklyn for a hospital the price of admission was limited to a pair of sheets.

Mrs. Mary E. Holman and Jacob McKee were married at Springfield, Ohio, on a platform fifty feet high in a tree.

In a severe electrical storm at Ewan, N. J., in which there was no thunder, a barn was smashed and several trees were struck by lightning.

John Starr, a gill fisherman at Gloucester City, N. J., in drawing in his net pulled up two kegs of beer, one of which he sold for $2.50.

After traveling forty miles to Mount Vernon, Ill., to get a marriage license, Samuel Stone forgot his girl's name, and was compelled to go back home to get it.

When one hand of Harry Shores of Bristol, Pa., was seized by a snapping turtle it was necessary for him to nearly behead the turtle with a knife in the other hand before the jaws released their hold.

More About the Storm at Vernon.

In speaking of the damage done by Tuesday night's storm in and around Vernon, the Record, of that place, says:

The storm covered practically all of the northwest portion of the county, including Dugan and Tolbert in its wake. A passenger train northbound near Tolbert was forced to run back to a deep cut just beyond Pease river for safety. The force of the wind seemed to reach its climax at the large steel county bridge across Pease river, which was blown from the piers and twisted into a thousand shapes. This mammoth structure was completed only about a year ago at a cost of $31,000 and it was so securely constructed that no one dreamed that even a cyclone could move it from its position. From the results at this point, it was thought that the wind was cyclonic here instead of a straight tornado. Near the bridge was a three-room house on the Gilbert place, occupied by the family of Mrs. Cowan. This was completely demolished and the furniture and furnishings scattered by the four winds. At the time Mrs. Cowan and two daughters were at home and saved their lives by going to the dugout near by. Approaching the city from the northwest, several houses were moved from their foundations, and outbuildings were taken away. Just north of the found house, Joe Stanfield's house was struck and instantly converted into splinters, everything being destroyed. Here again, the cyclonic storm here extended protection and no one was injured. From here the Pease bridge house was wrecked, all the east half of the building being blown down, but no one was seriously hurt, as the men in charge took the precaution of going into the new box on the engine. The big steel bridge at the oil mill was destroyed and other bridges scattered to the winds. In the business section, the south side of the Townsend building and the building occupied by the Pease Dry Goods Company were torn down, and the south side of the upper part of the Pease house was washed away. Besides this, numerous houses were taken from their foundations and trees and outbuildings scattered.

A PRIZED RECORD.

The Original Muster Roll of Captain A. Lincoln's Company.

None of the records of the treasury department is more highly prized than the original muster roll of "Captain A. Lincoln's company". In the handwriting of that famous man himself, it was a voluntary company organized by Lincoln in 1832 to serve in the Black Hawk war. Lincoln as an army officer was the same painstaking, careful and orderly man that he was later as president. He kept the muster rolls of his company himself, and nowhere can a neater and more complete account be found. Although more than seventy-five years old now, the roll is wonderfully well preserved. The paper is of poor quality, but the handwriting is still legible and distinct, not a single error having been made in the copy. The record has been bound together along the edges, and where it has been folded constant handling has done considerable damage to it.

The muster roll is in charge of the auditor for the treasury. Quite a fright was given to that official years ago when it was announced that the roll had disappeared. A thorough search failed to reveal it, and it was given up for lost. Later, however, it was found in the desk formerly occupied by a clerk who had been dismissed. The interesting document is headed: "Muster Roll of Captain A. Lincoln's Company of the Fourth Regiment of Mounted Volunteers, Commanded by Brigadier General Samuel Whitesides. Mustered out of service of the United States at the mouth of Fox River, May the 27th, 1832."

The roll shows that Abraham Lincoln was the captain and that he was enrolled with the rest of the command on April 21 of Richland, Sangamon county, Ill. At the foot is Lincoln's certificate as to the correctness of the muster roll at the time of muster out. The only other handwriting on the document is that of Nathaniel Buckmaster, Inspector and muster officer, certifying to the accuracy of the roll of Lincoln's company.

Is German as Dad as This?
John Ruskin is enthusiastic in his utterances about the German language. In "Letters of Dr. John Brown" Ruskin is thus quoted:

"German isn't a 'linguistic' at all, but only a 'theatrical' or 'entourage'—a mode of human expression learned chiefly of wolves and bears, with half of the things it calls words stitched in the middle like wags and ants or ass spirits, and letters scratched out when people were mostly drunk, so that they didn't know the tops from the bottoms of them."

The Last Word.
"Your wife blows the last word, doesn't she?"
"I don't think so," answered Mr. Meekton. "Anyway, she's mighty reluctant about reaching it."—Washington Star.

DR. W. H. WALKER AND BRIDE ARRIVE IN WICHITA FALLS.

Dr. W. H. Walker and bride arrived in this city yesterday afternoon from Tulsa, Oklahoma, where they were married on the evening of June 3.

The bridal party comprised of the bride and groom, Miss Dot Walker, and Harley Heath left Frederick at eight o'clock yesterday morning but on account of the derailment of a coach on the train near Kell City they were delayed and did not reach this city until late yesterday afternoon.

On the same train were O. Terry, of Temple, Okla., and W. H. Hudelle, of Fort Worth, who were on their way to waiting brides.

The Tulsa Morning World of June 4, gives the following account of the wedding: "A wedding of wide social interest was solemnized last evening when Miss Esther Howard, daughter of Mrs. John Howard, was married to Dr. Wade Hampton Walker, of Wichita Falls, Texas.

Simple elegance marked the ceremony, which was at the home on Denver avenue and witnessed by a small company, including besides the relatives of the bride and groom the most intimate friends of the families in this city.

In the marriage room was an altar of palms and smilax, studded thickly with pure white flowers and suspended from the overhanging arch was a white flower wedding bell.

The bride wore a gown of messaline, made with a deep yoke of real lace, and finished with a satin girdle, pearl trimmings, pendant ornaments, and narrow soutach braid. Insets of lace finished the Japanese effect of the short sleeves, which were met at the elbows with long gloves.

The bride wore a gown of white pompadour satin, with lace trimmings and carried a shower bunch of pink roses. Following the wedding the Misses Berry gave a large reception which was attended by about fifteen hundred friends.
