

OF INTEREST TO WOMEN

Dictates of Fashion.

Straw colorings, pongee shades and other light yellow tones are much sought in cotton stuffs.

One of the long sleeves made of embroidery shows a row of notches from the hand to the elbow.

The thin printed muslin scarfs of India print style which are provided for hats and necks for the coming summer are very practical accessories, since they wash and iron like handkerchiefs. Little ruches finish some of the scarfs.

The figured foulard is combined with pongee, voile and plain cloths of various weights. Another peculiarity of the season's gowns is the use of cloth for the trimming of silk costumes.

When used the cloth is usually braided handsomely.

The bird of wisdom is still persona grata in the halls of fashion and owls' heads, cleverly fashioned with straw or worked out in jet beads with gleaming ruby eyes, are playing their part in the scheme of attire, the latest example being carried out in brown with white-speckled straw.

On the delicately tinted linens and lawns, such as pink, blue, lavender and yellow, white braid is much used, but in white frocks the best effects are secured by the use of white braiding only. The colored braids are very apt to "run," even in the hands of the most conscientious laundress.

Straw is playing so many different roles in the scheme of new headgear as to render not a few of the models independent of any extra adornment. Immense straw resettes taking the place of the feather and marabou pompons and being designed in two or three different tones of the color with signal success.

A neat princess suit of white net was made over a foundation of very soft pink silk. The princess style was used for this gown which called for a simple trimming, supplied with four scant ruffles of pink silk ribbon on the bottom of the net skirt. A pink silk girdle was further decorated with ribbon outlined with four silk ruffles; the sleeves were of dress material and bagged over narrow bands at the elbow.

Truly, there is no end to the variety of sleeve models. One of the very newest that can be fashioned from any sheer material is in mousquetaire effect, but tucked instead of shirred. The sleeve is in the average coat shape, but fits the arm closely from elbow to wrist. It is quite long and almost reaches the knuckles. Fine tucks are set in for three inches on either side of the inner seam, when it suddenly stops. This is a very effective sleeve worn with a bib jumper.

Ill Fitting Underwear Will Spoil Your Figure.

The Delineator.
Next in importance to exercise and correct corseting in improving an ungainly figure comes the lingerie worn. A perfect combination has been evolved, the pattern for which may be had for a few cents, which adds practically nothing to either the hip or waist measurement. The combination most in favor is the one which provides corset covers and drawers. The garment is fashioned in several pieces set together with a seam binding.

The difference achieved by wearing a combination garment instead of the ordinary arrangement of the separate pieces can readily be appreciated; so many women with large hips stubbornly cling to the old-fashioned garments which cannot fail to make them look lumpy and ungainly.

To have at least three thicknesses at their waist line, while puckers and gathers make ridges where everything should be smooth and trim. A chemise increases the hip circumference at least an inch, while a corset cover ending just above or just below the curve of the hips will add even more. If one can gain two or three inches, or possibly more, by the careful adjustment of the undergarments is it not worth while?

They Turned About to See.

Woman's National Daily.
Walking down a fashionable boulevard was a miss of some 18 or 20 years, and her modest attire was enough to make all turn and gaze upon her. I even saw masculine eyes turned in that direction and light up with pleasure that is often detected when a well-gowned woman is passing by. This young woman wore merely a plain tailored suit of tan linen, but one could tell at a glance that the linen was the best, for it had that unmistakable appearance of good quality as well as luster, and the coat was without a wrinkle. The skirt was a plain plaited one, the coat a semi-fitted one with roll collar and stitched cuffs to long coat sleeves. The waist was of white linen, the collar plain and the tie a plain white linen embroidered on each end. The tan hat, gloves and shoes were almost of the same color, and even the flowers and ribbons matched the millan braid hat. Everything being of the best quality and make and the girl possessing an exceptionally good form, combined to present what might be called a genuinely realistic living picture.

AUNT HETTY QUITS HOTEL.

Reported that Wealthy Beauty Patient Has Gone to Foreign Lands. —Leaves No Address.

New York, June 19.—Mrs. Hetty Green and daughter, Sylvia, have left the hotel Plaza, and suite No. 244—three rooms and bath, rate $30 per day —is vacant.

Mrs. Green and her daughter departed from the hotel with scant notice, their flitting causing quite as much surprise as did their arrival only a few weeks ago when they exchanged a $15-a-month Hoboken flat for the luxury of the Fifth Avenue hoistery.

When Mrs. Green went down to the office for her account she announced that she would give up her suite at once. Frederick Sterry, chief of all things at the Plaza, was amazed and somewhat perturbed. He didn't want anybody to go away from a sense of dissatisfaction, so he sought Mrs. Green to ask the reason for her going.

There has been no dissatisfaction. Everything had been most satisfactory, but the departing guest said she could not tell why she was leaving—could not give a "good reason." No more could Mr. Sterry learn.

Three dress suit cases and two kit bags were ready in Mrs. Green's suite to be carried down to a cab. This was all the luggage the richest woman in the world and her daughter had. All their belongings at the hotel were in five pieces. They were stowed on and in the cab, which the two women entered and departed in, carefully withholding their future address.

One report at the hotel was that Mrs. Green and her daughter had left because they were going to Europe next week with friends and were to visit for a few days before sailing.

"Trouble in Vashti Precinct."

"Bill" Edwards, editor of the Henrietta Review, who is probably the most gifted writer in Texas, thus informs the readers of the Review of "trouble in Vashti precinct."

"Sheriff George was advised by telephone early Wednesday morning of trouble in Vashti precinct, and he and Attorney Moss promptly departed for the scene. It seems that in the recent past, Teague Lawler shot at something in such a way as to lead one of the Lawlers to believe he was it. Tuesday, it is alleged that the same sort of incident occurred between the two men, with the difference that the holder of the gun and entertainer of the suspicion had reversed situations. After that, Tuesday night or Wednesday morning, Lawler and a few friends were thought to have in contemplation some sort of 'bee' at Laster's expense. Hence the advice by telephone to the sheriff."

AGED CITIZEN IS SEVERELY INJURED

W. H. Vanderslice, an old and respected citizen of this city, was painfully and seriously injured at his home on Austin avenue yesterday afternoon while unhitching his horse. The accident occurred in the alley at the rear of his residence, but exactly how it happened is not known.

A negro who was cutting grass in the yard saw a horse running down the alley and ran out to find Mr. Vanderslice lying bruised and bleeding on the ground.

He was picked up and carried into the house and a physician summoned at once. His injuries were found to consist of a fractured jaw bone, an ugly gash across the back of his head, and bad bruises over his body. Mr. Vanderslice himself has no recollection of the accident beyond that he was unhitching his horse when it occurred. His clothing and scratches and bruises indicated that he had been dragged several yards.

He was resting as comfortably as could be expected today and, it is believed, will recover.

Dr. Riley is known as a cultured gentleman and is a speaker of eloquent power.

Mr. Isaac Jalonek was one of the pioneer citizens of Wichita Falls. He owned a large amount of property in this city, none of which has been on the market. ### Beymour Ships First Car of Wheat.

Fort Worth Telegram.

The first car of wheat of the 1908 crop has been received in Fort Worth.

In a great cotton growing State such as Texas, the marketing of the first bale of cotton of the season is regarded as the event of the year. Second in importance to the cotton crop, the yield of wheat from the broad acres of Texas is of foremost interest. While not so regarded in this State, the marketing of the first car is made the occasion of celebrations in grain centers such as Chicago, St. Louis and Kansas City, and the first car is auctioned off much as the first cotton bale of the new crop is sold in the cotton belt.

Seymour in Baylor county in northwest Texas has the distinction of sending the first car of 1908 wheat to Fort Worth. It is, in all likelihood, the first car of the entire Texas crop marketed, but there is no available record on the subject.

The wheat arriving Thursday is officially classified as No. 2 hard wheat of excellent quality and is regarded among grain and milling circles as a favorable augury for a good crop to follow.

"The marketing of the first car of wheat" has an especial significance this year. The Texas wheat crop of 1907 was almost an entire failure due to the ravages of the green bug. This season, the dreaded pest has not put in an appearance and a good yield is assured. This, in connection with the favorable prospects for other crops, spells prosperity for Texas.

Much wheat has been damaged and even ruined from the overflows. But on the other hand, the copious rains which caused the disastrous floods so improved the growing grain in the highlands that a magnificent yield will be recorded.

Those well posted on crop conditions anticipate a larger yield to the acre than in any recent year in the State. This will make the present season's yield more than the average in spite of flood losses. Coming on the heels of a total failure such as experienced last year, the glowing promises of the coming season should prove the most cheerful kind of information for the people of the State.

HOME RULE DOESN'T PREVAIL IN TEXAS.

Waco Times-Herald.
The Houston Post insists that it is perfectly consistent in approving the action of the Fort Worth convention in the rejection of home rule and in disapproving the action of the State committee in submitting the "submission" question.

We are free to say that the practice has been for the State convention to name the delegates to the national convention. But the custom has been to permit the several congressional districts to make the nominations, and that custom has never been violated until this year. In violating the custom the convention distinctly repudiated the doctrine of home rule.

The Post seeks to sustain its contention by saying that "democratic usage in this State has never departed from the principle that the democratic party may vote this State as a unit in national conventions." Does the Post uphold that principle? If so, then it is estopped from making the plea of home rule in another consideration. With all of their centralizing tendencies, the republicans do not make the State the unit in their national convention. But the Fort Worth convention went the full length for the State unit principle, first in denying to the districts the naming of delegates and second in enforcing the unit rule.

"Party usage," says the Post, "recognizes the right of a legislative district to instruct its representatives or senator." If that be true, why did the Post insist on obedience to the Bailey instructions of the Dallas convention? Where did that convention get its authority to nominate a man for United States senator? Manifestly, such authority was given by the general primary—a usurpation of power, we grant you—and, therefore, a recognition of the State as the unit in political concerns.

We are willing and anxious to get back to the home rule principle. We believe in its application from Dan to Beersheba—from hades to breakfast. Each congressional district should choose its own delegates to the national convention. The unit rule should be abolished. The several legislative districts should control their representatives in the matter of voting for United States senator. The home rule principle should govern in all things, absolutely and without question.

As the matter stands, home rule is a football for the agile politicians. If it contributes to their success to have the State the unit, then the State the unit goes. But if the State unit proposition cuts across their purposes, then they get on the housetops and shout for home rule as the bedrock principle of democracy.

Fundamentally, following pure, undefiled democracy—the State committee had no more to do with the submission question than it had to do with made. But a democratic legislature saw proper to violate the home rule principle by telling political organizations what they should do, and hence the anomalous spectacle of the democratic party performing outside its legitimate sphere. The committee was placed where it had to come across for submission, regardless of the views of its individual members; both party practice and statutory enactment made submission obligatory.

As constituted today the democratic party in Texas is not a home rule party; in practice and in law—law made by the party—it rejects the home rule principle.

The esteemed Post may not care to engage in hair-splitting argument, but it will learn from experience that if State unit sauce is good for the goose it is also good for the gander. It must quit making a football of home rule if it expects to invoke that principle in the day of tribulation.

the material out of which the moon is made. The Times has not heard anything outside of Texas of the boom for John Mitchell for the democratic vice presidential nomination, nor in fact does it know for a certainty the politics of the great labor leader, but considering that he is a man of great ability, and who has succeeded better than all other labor leaders in securing for them their demands for shorter hours and more pay in a peaceful and legal way, in which good generalship he has received the approval and endorsement of leaders in both the great parties, including Roosevelt and Bryan, it strikes the Times that John Mitchell at the head or tail of either the democratic or republican parties would bring to that ticket the undivided support of every laboring man who is possessed of a sufficient amount of brain matter to cast his ballot in a way that would be most beneficial to him. With such a man on the democratic ticket with Bryan, that party should win the greatest victory in the history of presidential contests. The democratic party, however, is not likely to take kindly to the Mitchell boom for vice president, and will more than likely place some man on the ticket who has not strength enough to carry a single one of the doubtful States.

TESTIMONIALS

In my judgment, this company is managed by some of the most wide-awake, progressive business men in our State; not only men of high character, but of strong financial ability. I am personally acquainted with several of the officers, and I believe The American National Life Insurance Company has a great future and deserves the patronage of all citizens of Texas. J. A. KEMP, President City National Bank, Wichita Falls, Texas.

I am much pleased to have investigated your company and I consider it a favor to be able to become a policyholder in your company.

In view of the upheaval in insurance matters in New York City recently, it has demonstrated to me that the time has now come for a great insurance company in Texas, so the people of Texas can retain their premiums at home, instead of sending them outside the borders of our State. Your company, assisted by such men as you have associated with you in this company, is sufficient guarantee to any one seeking a policy, that the money will be paid to his family after he is dead and gone.

Yours very truly,
FRANK KELL, President.

American National Insurance Co., Galveston, Texas.

Gentlemen—I had the pleasure of meeting your representative, whom I found to be a most thorough gentleman, and also a thorough insurance man. I had explained to me the policy now being written by the American National Insurance Company, and I candidly say it is one of the best, and so strongly do I think so, that I took a policy for $5,000. I consider it the best of all I have, and I carry several. I am glad to see the strong men of Texas taking stock and pushing this company, as there is nothing like keeping Texas money at home. Be sure to keep your agent at work in this part of the State, where he will not only help your company, but my friends also. Yours truly, OTIS T. BACON.

As stated to you personally a few weeks ago, I believe that your Texas company is a better proposition for one to insure in than any of the old line Eastern companies, for several reasons.

The first of many reasons is that the gentlemen who are officers and directors of the American National Insurance Company are thoroughly known to the people of Texas to be clear, clean-cut, honest business men.

Another reason is that the premiums paid to the Texas company will be invested in Texas.

It is a pleasure for me to take out a policy with your company today.
WILEY BLAIR.

TO EAT MACARONI.

First Swallow a Reel and Then Take Chances With the Strings.

Didst ever eat macaroni Italian style? Say, it is great! They serve it on a platter that would be two feet square if it wasn't round. It greatly resembles Medusa's head on a platter. It looks like snakes, but it isn't. You eat it with fork, spoon, knife, fingers, face, chopsticks or scissors, as you prefer.

In the real Italian style it comes in strings. Macaroni originally was invented to be fed through a keyhole. The strings are of indeterminate length. Any good Italian could start masticating a piece the other end of which was on top of the Masonic temple and finish within seventy-three seconds. A boa constrictor could eat a string of macaroni—if he were long enough.

It's an art. That's all there is to it. But that isn't all there is to it. Some people say it is an acquired art. Others insist that you must be to the manner born. Some say the Italians have reels inside, and there may be something in this, for they eat as though feeding a machine by machinery.

No one has ever dared to measure the length of a single strip of macaroni. Like the population and circumference of the world, it has to be estimated. Estimates differ, but all admit that it is long enough, except the dyed in the wool Italians.

A dish of macaroni, Italian style, consists of one of these strings fastened in imitation of the Gordian knot. Some cut the Gordian knot; others absorb it. The absorption process may not be the most elegant, but it surely is the most general.

Gentle reader, if you are ever led up to a platter of macaroni, Italian style, and find all the exits closed, grit your teeth and go at the thing with firm determination and a timber fork. Gently decoy the left end of the string on your fork and begin to wind. Rotate the fork vigorously for some four minutes in the right hand and then transfer to the left. Then when the wad has assumed the size of a ten cent spool of darning cotton open your mouth with your fingers and punch it in.

A convenient way for the amateur to consume the dish is to get some kind friend to find the end of the string. Once having discovered this, distinguish it with a bit of red silk ribbon. Then look for the other end. If not found within fifteen minutes ask the waiter's assistance.

When the end is reached your pace of engulfing the string will have increased, so that probably the end will slip into you unnoticed. But do not let this worry you. You have found the end even if you have lost it. Look at your plate! It is empty! Ah! At last you have accomplished the gentle art of absorbing macaroni. — Chicago Record-Herald.

A NOISY CONVENTION.

One In Which Comanches and Panthers Were Outshrieked.

The noisiest, the jolliest, the most exciting and perhaps least logical campaign was that of 1840. William Henry Harrison, hero of an Indian victory at Tippecanoe, a plain old man who had lived, his opponents sneeringly said, in a log cabin decorated with coonskins and had drunk hard cider, was selected by Thurlow Weed as a better candidate than Henry Clay. The issues between Van Buren, the Democratic candidate, and Harrison were not clearly drawn, but the adventitious circumstances of Harrison's early life were skillfully utilized for theatrical effects. Processions miles long with log cabins, cider barrels and coonskin caps on poles stretched from state to state. Glee clubs were a feature of the campaign, and the Indian fighter was fairly sung into office.

In the convention of 1860 began the modern custom of cheering and counter cheering. The Seward contingent gave a parade the day of the convention. While they were marching Lincoln supporters filed the Wigwag. With the naming of the candidates began the cheering. Murat Halstead said that when Seward was nominated and seconded "the shouting was absolutely frantic, shrill and wild. Comanches or panthers never struck a higher note or gave screams with more infernal intensity. Looking from the stage over the vast amphitheater, nothing was to be seen below but thousands of hats—a black, mighty swarm of hats flying with the velocity of hornets over a mass of human heads, most of the mouths of which were open."

But when Lincoln's nomination was seconded the west was heard from. "I thought the Seward yell could not be surpassed," said Halstead, "but the Lincoln boys were clearly ahead and, feeling their victory as there was a lull in the storm, took deep breaths all around and gave a scream that was positively awful and accompanied it with stamping that made every plank and pillar in the building quiver."

On the third ballot Lincoln was nominated. The shouting was so deafening that the cannon which was discharged on the roof of the building could not be heard inside. — Chicago Record-Herald.

THE LUNCH BASKET MAKES OR MARS THE PICNIC

We remember last summer overhearing some boys tell their experience at a picnic. They had a fine time playing ball, swimming and fishing up to lunch time and then the whole thing was spoiled, for as the boys expressed it, "the grub was punk."

A picnic is supposed to be a jolly good time with an extra good lunch, and mind you a poor lunch spoils the whole thing. You don't go to a picnic more than a half dozen times a year and honestly you can't afford to take any chances on spoiling those half dozen outings by having a poor lunch.

We are going to suggest a few things that you may not think of otherwise.

Apple Butter for sandwiches.
Sweet Pickles, sour pickles, or mixed pickles.
Pork and beans.
Veal loaf.
Peanut Butter, Salmon, all kinds of jelly and jam.
Oranges, Bananas, Lemons, besides cold ham and sliced beef.

There are a lot of other items that we haven't mentioned and if you will get in touch with us thru our telephone call list we know we can help you get up the best lunch ever.

PASTOR URGES WEEK-END REST.
Wants Stores to Let Clerks Off at Noon on Saturday.
Fort Worth Telegram.

On the theory that a Saturday half-holiday for all business house employees during the summer will give clerks and other employes needful recreation and rest prior to Sunday and thus stimulate attendance at church services, Rev. O. P. Kiker, pastor of the Missouri Avenue Methodist church, is working for a general Saturday noon closing movement in Fort Worth.

Mr. Kiker said Wednesday: "I note considerable agitation in our city concerning the early closing of business houses Saturday afternoon. Having given this matter considerable thought and desiring to get at the matter in the easiest and most practical form, I entered into correspondence with prominent leaders in the north and east. The idea occurred to me that if early Saturday closing was practicable in the east in the great cities that it might as helpfully and successfully prevail in our own city.

"We cannot see how that early closing on Saturday during the summer months would materially be detrimental to any one of the three parties involved—the employer, the employee and the trade. I am quite sure no merchant or business firm would have less average sales per week on account of the early closing. As it is now, late closing Saturday means not only unseemly hours working Saturday night, but many stores require their help to return on Sunday in order to close up the week's work, and to put matters in order for the incoming days.

"The fact is, late closing Saturday night invariably means extra work on Sunday. This of course works a hardship upon the employes. It deprives him of a happy domestic relation and takes from him the privilege of social and religious fellowship. Hundreds of men in our city are deprived of such privileges because of the excessive working hours.

"The custom of early closing is not considered an inconvenience to the trade. The opinion is gathered from such men as have tried this question in its practical way. Therefore, it is evident that it would greatly benefit the employes; that it will not inconvenience the trade, and that the public adjusting itself promptly and cheerfully to these conditions there will be no loss in the volume of business."

Among the letters Mr. Kiker has received in his search for information in other cities, is the following one from John Wanamaker:

"Rev. Orville P. Kiker, 522 Missouri Avenue, Fort Worth, Texas: Dear Sir—Answering your letter, received this morning, we have no stores anywhere excepting in Philadelphia and New York. The closing on Saturday at 1 o'clock is only during the summer months, from the first Saturday after the Fourth of July until the second or third Saturday in September, the latter being governed by weather conditions. On other days the store closes at 5 o'clock, except in the winter, when the longest hours are nowadays to 5:30. This custom is not inconvenient to the trade, because the people are glad to see the labors of the employes lessened and their hours shortened, and the public adjusts itself promptly and cheerfully to these conditions. I think that the custom would apply as well to a smaller city as to a larger one. I believe that in Philadelphia our business led the way in the shortening of the hours of labor in stores. Very truly, JOHN WANAMAKER."

The above was handed to the Times with the request to reproduce in its columns and make comment on the same.

It hardly knows what to say, except that merchants know, or ought to know, at least, what time it suits them to open and close their doors. Wichita Falls is putting on city airs rapidly, but whether she has reached that point when her business houses can close doors on Saturday afternoons for a part of the year, the Times is not prepared to say. At present they close at 7 o'clock in the evening for five days in the week, on Saturdays remaining open until 9 p. m.

The well of exceptionally fine oil at Petrolia, of which mention was made last week—the finest ever struck on the continent—was found to produce about 25 barrels a day. The casing has been slipped down and the work of deepening proceeds. This oil would be worth about $5 per barrel, but the expense of keeping it separate would have been too great to be a paying proposition on this quantity.—Henrietta Review.

Treasury Department, Office of the Secretary, Washington, D. C., June 10, 1908.

Proposals will be received, to be opened at 2 o'clock p. m., July 21, 1908, for the sale or donation to the United States of a suitable site, centrally and conveniently located for the Federal building, to be erected in Wichita Falls, Texas. A corner lot of (approximately) 120x130 feet is required. Each proposal must give the price, the character of the foundations obtainable, the proximity to street cars, sewer gas and water mains, etc., and must be accompanied by a diagram indicating the principal street, the north point, the dimensions and grades of the land, the widths and paving of adjacent streets and alleys, whether the alleys are public or private, and whether or not the city owns land occupied by sidewalks. The vendor must pay all expenses connected with furnishing evidences of title and deeds of conveyance. Improvements on the property must be reserved by the vendor; but pending the commencement of the Federal building they may remain on the land upon payment of a reasonable ground rent. The grantor must, however, remove all improvements on premises on thirty days' notice to do so. The right to reject any proposal is reserved. Each proposal must be sealed, marked "Proposal for Federal Building Site at Wichita Falls, Texas," and mailed to the SECRETARY OF THE TREASURY (Supervising Architect), Washington, D. C. No special form of proposal is required or provided.

Fire Loss at Randlett.
Randlett was visited by a disastrous fire in the early hours of Sunday morning. About 3 o'clock, when all was quiet, fire was discovered in the second story of the Avenue hotel, a two-story frame building, and the flames being under such headway the fire ladders could not stop the blaze until considerable damage was done. The hotel was completely destroyed, causing a loss of about $5,000, partly covered by insurance.

Scott's real estate office was burned, causing a loss estimated at $400. This building was insured.

Jack's barber shop went up in smoke, entailing a loss of $600 to the tonsorial artist, which amount was partially covered by insurance.

By faithful work the fire was controlled and the flames, though threatening a general conflagration, were checked.

The buildings destroyed by fire were all frame structures and will be replaced by larger and more substantial buildings that will rise phoenix-like from the ruins of Sunday morning's blaze.—Lawton Democrat.

Red Bathing Suit Dyes Girl Wearer.
Atlantic City, N. J., June 18.—A girl in a bright red bathing suit caught the eyes of a crowd at South Carolina avenue today.

It was a fetching suit, all right, but when the wearer plunged into the surf the "fast" color faded. The dye transferred itself from the cloth to the girl. When she noticed her plight and ran to the bathhouse she was as red as a lobster.

Another beach str came with the appearance of the first lounging, suit seen on the Atlantic City strand. The new rig was worn by an attractive young matron. Notice was first attracted to what appeared to be a rather short walking skirt. The real use of the garment was made known later to feminine friends of the wearer, to whom she confided the fact that the bloomers were a part of the costume. The purpose of the costume is to allow its wearer to loiter on the sand with the same freedom enjoyed by the bathing girl.

On Some Occasions You Could Afford to Pay

One Dollar a Word for Want Advertising

WANT ADVERTISING SPACE is about the lowest priced thing of value you can buy in this city.

But think it over. Suppose that the rate for want advertising in The Times were one dollar a word!

But if you were compelled to sell real estate, a dollar a word for an ad. would still be a profit-returning rate for you if it found the best market for your property.

In fact, perhaps half of the want ads. would pay the advertisers at a dollar a word—and a great many of them would be paid for at that rate if this newspaper charged that rate.

The purpose of this comparison is not to announce any advance in the want advertising rates—but to bring to your mind the fact that want adv. space, as now sold, is a genuine bargain

WARNED BY SPECTERS

One Person's Three Experiences With Ghosts.

THE SPIRIT OF HIS SISTER.

How an Apparition From the Unseen World Aided the Brother in Deciding an Important Legal Question—The Phantom on the Grave.

Three times in my life, each instance separated by an interval of years, have the experiences here told been mine.

I come of a family to different members of which have become visible at times those appearances which for want of a better name are known as "ghosts."

The first instance was so early in my life that I do not recall it, but my mother relates the circumstances.

Our home was in Brooklyn, and we had gone for the summer to Greenfield-Hill, Conn. I was so young that I still wore dresses and was in charge of a nursemaid who was in the habit of receiving visits from Annie, a girl of her own class, so that I was well acquainted with Annie.

She died suddenly and was buried in the country churchyard, but I was not told of her death, being considered too young to understand.

As I walked with my nurse past the cemetery one evening in the edge of dusk her superstitious horror can be imagined when I cried, pointing directly to Annie's grave: "Oh, Maggie, there is Annie! She is waving her hand for us to come over to her!"

The only idea in my mind was that of a familiar friend whom I had not seen for some time.

The second instance was at the most unromantic age possible to a boy—about thirteen. I was attending boarding school in Dedham, Mass.

A school friend, a boy of about my age, had left the school some days before for his home in the west, leaving in perfect health.

At about 9 in the evening I sat on the edge of the bed removing my shoes when the wall of the room seemed to part and open, showing the night outside, with the dim forms of the trees gently waving in the wind.

I said to my roommate, who had seen nothing: "Charlie is dead. I have just seen him." The next morning a telegram to the school said that he had died the night preceding.

In the third instance I had grown to manhood—a normal, healthy man, over six feet tall and weighing nearly 200 pounds.

It was on one occasion necessary for me to consult a lawyer, and one evening I met the lawyer in his Boston office to talk over a matter of business.

Her eyes were fixed on mine, her fingers on her lips. I instantly absorbed the idea conveyed by her suggestive pose and did not give the lawyer the information he asked. As it afterward proved, it was greatly to my interest not to do so.

The lawyer shivered slightly as the visitant stood behind his chair and said that there was a draft through the room.

He never knew that the sensation of cold conveyed to his nervous system was a breath from an unseen world.

Science has proved that light, sound and color are all the results of vibration of greater or less rapidity. Some of these vibrations affect our senses and we see, hear or feel their effects.

Our evaporated figs are extra good. Only 10c a pound. KING & WHITE. 14-11

PROGRESS OF DEATH.

Sensations of One Overtaken by the "Sleep of Snow."

Pastor Bertrand was climbing a mountain with a party of students. Feeling tired, he lay down to rest while the others proceeded and was overtaken by the "sleep of snow."

"A kind of prayer was sent up, and then I resolved to study quietly the progress of death. The sensation was not painful, but at last my head became unbearably cold, and it seemed to me that concave pinchers squeezed my heart so as to extract my life."

"Well, thought I, 'I am what they call a dead man, and here I am, a captive balloon attached to the earth by a kind of elastic spring and going up and always up!'"

In other words, the exertions of his friends were successful in resuscitating him.—Leon Landsberg in Boston Post.

AN ISLAND OF MASSACRES.

Over Five Million People Have Been Assassinated in Haiti.

Haiti has been the scene of more massacres than any other place on earth.

They began with the coming of Columbus and the rabble rout that followed him. In a few years its 3,000,000 gentle, brown skinned inhabitants had perished utterly, exterminated by fire and sword and by forced labor in the mines, to which they were utterly unskilled.

Next the buccaners seized the unhappy island and wreaked vengeance on the Spaniards in such a manner that even the old chroniclers tell of the worst of the atrocities only in the Latin tongue.

Presently came the French, and for a brief space there was some semblance of peace. But in 1793 the negroes revolted and murdered practically all the whites, the scenes enacted resembling those that took place at Capwarp and elsewhere during the Indian mutiny, but magnified a thousandfold.

On account of these atrocities frightful reprisals took place when France in due course reconquered the island. But the negroes bided their time and presently rose again under a ruffian named Dessalines.

This time they did the thing thoroughly. Not only were all the Europeans put to death, but all having any admixture of white blood in their veins suffered a like fate.

In all it is computed that over 5,000,000 men, women and children have met with violent deaths on this island of massacres since the intruding white man first set foot on its palm fringed strand.—Pearson's Weekly.

Sleep Talkers.

It is a curious fact that people when talking in their sleep are always truthful and never evasive, but if their feelings are played upon by their questioner they will betray great anger. Their eyes are always tightly closed, and the intonation of the voice is very different from the tones used when the person is fully awake.

The Lancer Snake.

There is a snake called the lancer, which lives in South America and is very ready with its fangs. It is a small, brown, insignificant beast, but its bite induces a sort of imaginary swelling all over the victim's body.

Her Objection.

Mrs. Binks—Would you like to come to church with me this morning? You may sit in my pew if you like.

Something Gained.

Mrs. Gramercy—I hear the customs authorities seized all the snory you brought over from Paris. Will it be a total loss? Mrs. Park—Why, no, dear; I got my name in the papers.—Puck.

Silence and blushing are the eloquence of women.—Chinese.

SOUVENIR FANATICS.

Nothing is Safe From Those Afflicted With the Craze.

In these enlightened days anything from the limb of a tree to a table napkin is liable to be carried away as a souvenir.

A western girl with a well defined case of the souvenir habit, sojourning in New York, was dining at a fashionable cafe and, being prepossessed in favor of the cunning pewter cream pots with which the tables were supplied, calmly carried one away in her muff. Can you imagine her self valuation when upon examining her prize later on she discovered carved across the bottom: "Stolen from M.'s?"

A Pittsburg bachelor, wandering into a restaurant, came upon a friend just seating himself with two ladies. The bachelor was invited to join the party, did so, and at the end of the luncheon insisted upon paying the costs. The bill being wrong, he went to the cashier's desk to personally adjust the discrepancy, where he was informed that the extra charges were for spoons which the ladies had put in their hand bags. And that was the first time he had ever met them!

Upon the occasion of the presentation of a handsome silver service by one of the United States to a battleship which was being christened in her honor an elaborate banquet was served aboard ship, at which the service was used. Society came en masse from the town near which they were anchored, and after the function was over there were not enough forks and spoons with which to lay the tables. And yet these souvenir fanatics would draw their moral skirts aside for fear of contamination with a real thief.—Bertha Reynolds MacDonald in Bohemian Magazine.

A Rabbit and a Whistle.
Did you know that a short, sharp whistle from the mouth would stop a rabbit? It surely does. Next time you see little Molly Cottontail leap from her burrow and make off don't shoot; just whistle. Whether from fear or curiosity I cannot tell, but she will stop still in her tracks. An antelope has been known to do likewise. An African hunter once said that the elephant is the most timid of all animals and can be frightened into a cold sweat by a mysterious noise.—New York Press.

The Payment For Stuart's Portrait of George Washington.

The Columbian Historical society recently has come into possession of the papers relating to the negotiations between one of the Carroll family and the government of the United States for the payment of the money due for the famous portrait of Washington by Gilbert Stuart. This was the portrait which in the war of 1812 was rescued from the burning White House by the intrepid Dolly Madison. Stuart painted this portrait in Philadelphia in 1795, when in the height of his glory. He but recently had returned from London, where he had counted among his subjects King George IV., the Prince of Wales, Mrs. Siddons and many other celebrities, and he had the temerity to ask congress for $800 for his painting of the first patriot.

The solons were aghast at such a price, promptly refused to pay it and intimated that any one so unpatriotic might as well go back and paint patriots, for he was not suited to paint patriots. But Daniel Carroll of Duddington, threw himself in the breach, urged the claim of the artist and put before the congress what a figure they would cut before the eyes of the world if they failed to meet an obligation incurred. Carroll offered to pay the money himself if the government gave him promise of remuneration. After much quibbling a promissory note was given at 8 per cent, and it was twenty years before the Carroll heirs received the whole of the $800 which Stuart received for the finest portrait ever painted of the Father of His Country. During the hasty cutting of the picture from its frame when the victorious British were marching on the capital the signature of Stuart was destroyed. The picture lay in obscurity for a dozen years, and there was some doubt thrown on its authenticity when it was relung in the White House. It now adorns the blue room with Martha Washington by the same artist, and the two form the sole decoration of the throne room, as the dainty blue room is dubbed by those who like court phrases. For over seventy-five years it hung in the east room.—New York Press.

THE CREATIVE POWER.

"Science," said Lord Kelvin, "Affirms the Existence of a God."

I cannot at all accept the view of those who assert that ether is atomic, since all my own investigations have clearly demonstrated to me that its structure is totally nonatomic. In fact, it has no structure in the accepted meaning of the term. Neither can I accept the view of those who assert that science neither affirms nor denies the existence of a Creator. On the contrary, science most positively asserts the existence of a creative power. We cannot escape from this conclusion when we study the physique and the dynamic of living beings and "dead" nature which we see around us.

Modern physiologists again firmly declare that there is something else outside gravitation and the physical and chemical forces. This something is a vital principle. Science places before us an unknown. In thinking of this unknown we all become agnostics. We only know God in his works, but we are forced by science to believe with perfect confidence in other than physical, dynamic or electrical forces. There is no middle term between absolute scientific belief in a creative power and the acceptance of the theory of a haphazard coming together of atoms. Here scientific thought is forced to accept the notion of a creative power. Forty years ago I asked the great Liebig during a walk in the country if he believed that grass and flowers grew solely as the result of chemical force.

He replied, "Not any more than I believe that chemical force can translate a book upon botany describing the phenomena of vegetation." Every act of the will is a stupendous miracle for chemical, physical and mathematical science. If your intellect is strong enough you will be forced to believe in God, the foundation of all religion, and you will see that science is not at all hostile to religion. Far from that, it must be looked upon as its auxiliary.—Lord Kelvin.

Bees Do Not Make Honey

Did you ever stop to think that the bee does not change the flavor or chemical composition of honey? He simply gathers what he finds, and if he finds nothing but sorghum molasses that is what he stores in his comb. But he always stores the best to be had, as he is the finest judge of sweets in the world.

Uvalde County, Texas, is world-famed for the excellent flavor of its Cat-Claw Honey and the first crop this season is of that famous variety. We were fortunate in securing a big shipment of this crop, as it is doubtful if there will be another as good this season. The color and flavor leave nothing to be desired and the comb is solid packed to the bottom of the can. We have both comb and extracted in 6, 12 and 60 lb. cans. Let us have your orders early while this shipment lasts.
