CAPTAIN BILL McDONALD WILL ACCOMPANY PRESIDENT ON AFRICAN TRIP.

TO HUNT TEXAS BEARS

Roosevelt's Last Hunting Trip While President of the United States Will Be in Texas.

Fort Worth Record.
Yielding to a pressing invitation Captain W. J. (Bill) McDonald, former Texas ranger, more recently famous for his part in the investigation of the shooting up of Brownsville by negro soldiers, which has just been brought back into the limelight by the first of a series of articles in Pearson's will accompany President Theodore Roosevelt on his great hunting expedition to Africa.

While in Fort Worth yesterday Capt. McDonald admitted that the president had urged him to go on the African trip and that he had accepted, although arrangements are yet to be perfected. These details, stated Captain McDonald, will be agreed on during a Texas bear hunt which President Roosevelt has promised to make this winter. The bear hunt will probably be in Hardin county, in Southwest Texas, but the date remains to be fixed. Captain McDonald expects to visit Washington within the next few months, and while there he and the president will make definite plans for their Texas hunt. Christmas probably will be the season selected.

Right-of-Way to Quanah, Texas.

According to letters received in the city by D. W. Burkhalter and D. G. Heffernan, the El Paso and Kansas City Short Line railroad, which is being promoted by J. L. Bell, has secured a 100-foot right-of-way from Carlsbad, N. M., to Quanah, Texas, and also has secured bonuses in cash and sites for depots close to $1,000,000.

The contracts for bonuses, it is said, are not merely talk, but are in black and white and will be exhibited here when J. L. Bell and his surveying party return from El Paso. The surveyors leave Quanah Saturday and by the time they return, it is said, they will have perfect maps of the route.

Bell already has a survey of the line between El Paso and Carlsbad. The bonuses have been secured from ten different places between Carlsbad and Quanah and are from $50,000 to $100,000, and from three to ten acres of land, it is said.

Malaga, a town near Carlsbad, has offered a bonus of $20,000 and 2,000 acres of land, it is stated, if the line is run through that place, making a detour to the south instead of going to Carlsbad, but Bell has an equal break in the Carlsbad franchise with the line being promoted by A. Courchesne and others, and Bell will work to get the $50,000 bonus from Carlsbad by getting his line built first.—El Paso Times.

$30,000 Fire at Mineral Wells.

Mineral Wells, Tex., Aug. 29.—Fire, supposed to have originated from the explosion of a gasoline tank in the Oaks hotel here last night caused a loss of more than $30,000.

The estimated losses are as follows:

Oaks hotel, building and furnishings destroyed. Loss, $15,000.

Stratton House, two-story frame structure; house and furnishings destroyed. Loss, $8,000.

Presbyterian minister's residence destroyed. Loss, $2,000.

The Avalon hotel was burning at one time, but the flames were extinguished before heavy loss occurred.

Practically all the guests at the hotels saved their belongings.

No one was injured.

INTEREST AT WHITE HEAT.

Close Race for National League Pennant—Great Crowd Sees Game.

By Associated Press.
Chicago, Ill., Aug. 29.—Interest in the race for the national league pennant was at white heat today. At 2 o'clock the crowds began gathering at the national league park, getting in line for tickets for this afternoon's game between New York and Chicago.

Only a small margin separates New York, Pittsburgh and Chicago.

Prospects Change in Knox County.

There has been a lightning change in the cotton prospects the past week. Conditions are a thousand per cent better.—Monday Times.

SIXTEEN DEAD IN GEORGIA AND THE CAROLINAS.

By Associated Press.
Atlanta, Ga., Aug. 29.—Sixteen are known to be dead as the result of the floods in Georgia and the two Carolinas. It is now said that many negroes in the low lands perished in their cabins and it is believed that the total death list will reach seventy people, mostly negroes.

The water is receding in the flooded districts.

FOR REHEARING.

In the Occupation Tax Case State Files a Motion.

Austin, Tex., Aug. 27.—Last evening Mr. Hawkins, the first assistant attorney general, mailed to the United States Supreme Court at Washington printed copies of the State's petition for a rehearing in the case of the Galveston, Harrisburg and San Antonio Railway company et al., vs. the State of Texas, in which is involved about $300,000 in taxes.

It will be remembered that the supreme court held against the State by the very close vote of five to four, and one of those dissenting was the chief justice of the court.

In petitioning for a rehearing, the State contends, in general terms, that the tax in controversy is not in any sense a property tax, but is an occupation tax which is levied upon only domestic railroad corporations for the exercise of the privilege of doing an interstate business within the State of Texas, and that the reference in the statute to their gross receipts is merely for a measure of the amount of such taxes, and, consequently, said tax is not repugnant to the commerce clause of the constitution of the United States.

And in support of the State's position, it is urged, first, the legislature of Texas has power and authority to impose occupation taxes upon domestic railroad corporations doing business within the State; second, the tax prescribed by chapter 141 of the general laws of the Twenty-ninth legislature of Texas is not violative of subdivision 3, section 8, article 1, of the constitution of the United States, which provides that the congress shall have power to regulate commerce with foreign nations, and among the several States, and with the Indian tribes.

In conclusion, the petition asks that the court allow oral argument in favor of a rehearing of this most important case. The petition is signed by R. V. Davidson, attorney general, and William E. Hawkins, assistant attorney general.

REPUBLICANS PLAN VIGOROUS FIGHT

By Associated Press.

Fort Worth, Tex., Aug. 29.—It was announced here today that the republicans will open a vigorous campaign in this city the second week in September in the hope of winning several State offices as well as seats in congress. A large sum of money is being raised to provide the sinews of the contest. W. H. Atwell, Charles Ogden and J. N. Simpson will speak. A tour of the State is also planned.

FIVE NEW LOCOMOTIVES DELIVERED TO THE DENVER.

The last of the five new engines of the Richmond type built for the Denver road was delivered at the round house in this city on Thursday. All five of the engines will be run out of this city and will add greatly to the efficiency of the motive power of the road.

The new engines are Nos. 310, 311, 312, 313 and 314.

There is considerable talk on the streets of developments at old Fort Belknap on the river west of Graham, and on the line of the road being built southwest from Wichita Falls. It is said a five-foot vein of coal has been struck, and that the Texas and Pacific coal company of Thurber are on the ground with a large outfit. Belknap is about twelve miles west of Graham and directly on the proposed extension of the Northwestern.—Mineral Wells Index.

Heavy rains are reported in the northwestern section of the Panhandle and in New Mexico within the past few days. A number of people are reported to have been drowned in New Mexico, but details cannot be learned.

FIFTEEN LOST LIVES STRIKE THREATENED

FOLSOM, NEW MEXICO IS INUNDATED BY RUSH OF MOUNTAIN TORRENT.

LOSS OF LIFE LARGE TWO MEN WERE DISMISSED

Eleven Bodies Already Recovered at Small Town in Northwestern Part of Territory.

By Associated Press.
Los Angeles, Cal., Aug. 29.—From the offices of the Santa Fe railroad here today was obtained a statement to the effect that a flood at Folsom, New Mexico, yesterday had resulted in the death of fourteen persons and also caused a big property damage.

Talimad, Colo., Aug. 28.—A flood in the Cimarron River, following a cloudburst, washed away a number of dwellings at Folsom, N. M., last night, and fifteen persons are reported to have been drowned. Eleven bodies have been recovered. Ten miles of track and twelve bridges in the Colorado and Southern railway were washed out. Trains have been laid out forty-eight hours. The known dead are:

R. B. WENGER.
MRS. R. B. WENGER.
MISS DAISY WENGER.
MISS LUCY CREIGHTON.
T. W. WHEELER.
MRS. T. W. WHEELER.
THREE WHEELER CHILDREN.
MRS. BOOKE.
T. W. Wheeler's sister-in-law, whose name could not be learned.

Meage details received here today say the entire town was swept by the flood caused by the cloudburst. Several houses were swept away completely and nearly every house in the town was damaged. The advices say searching parties have been formed and that it is expected many more bodies will be found.

Town Near Raton.
Folsom is in the northeast part of New Mexico, near Raton, on the Santa Fe railroad. Its elevation is about 7,000 feet and it is constantly in danger of floods which sweep down from the surrounding mountains whenever there is a cloudburst or heavy rain in the hills.

The property loss is estimated to exceed $100,000.

THE GASOLINE EXPLODED.

Young Man Seriously Burned While Pressing a Skirt.

Special to the Times.
Merkel, Tex., Aug. 29.—Robt. Grimes a young man, was seriously, if not fatally burned here today by a gasoline explosion. He was pressing a skirt, with a pan of oil on the floor near by, when he stepped on a match. The flame ignited the oil and an explosion followed. His neck, face and hands were burned.

Grimes formerly studied at the Fort Worth university.

TWENTY-ONE ARRESTED FOR VAGRANCY LAST NIGHT.

The city police officers last night made a round-up in the "flats" and corralled twenty-one men and women, black and white, against whom charges of vagrancy have been filed in the corporation court.

This is the second round-up of this character in the last few weeks and it is thought only a few more will be necessary to convince that class of residents that their presence here is very undesirable.

YELLOW FEVER IN FRONTERA.

Dr. Brumby Has Reports of Three Cases in Mexico.

Austin, Tex., Aug. 27.—According to a cablegram received today by the State health department, three cases of yellow fever have developed at the town of Frontera, in the State of Tabasco, Mexico.

About a month ago there was one case there, but it was thought that the disease had been stamped out. The appearance of these three new cases is considered significant by the State health department, as it shows that the scope of the disease in the Mexican republic is extending. While it would be a comparatively hard matter for the disease to reach this country from Frontera, which can only be reached by water, the health department does not intend to take any chances and has accordingly tightened the quarantine.

State Health Officer Brumby said in this connection the consolidation of the Mexican lines had made it much more easy for the disease to be communicated to persons in the United States. This he is instructing his deputies along the border to use every precaution possible to keep the pest from entering the State. This confirms the stand he has taken with regard to a rigid system of cleaning and the extermination of mosquitoes in Southwest Texas.

CARLOAD OF COAL DUE HERE TODAY

Superintendent T. R. T. Orth of the Wichita Falls and Southern, stated this morning that a carload of coal taken from Shaft No. 2, near the townsite of Newcastle, would arrive in Wichita Falls about 4 o'clock this afternoon and would be placed on exhibition near the Katy depot, where everybody was invited to inspect it and see for themselves the quality of the fuel being taken from the coal mines in Young county.

Dr. Dippy Here.

The world-renowned Dr. Dippy, horse doctor and president of the Muckrakers' college, arrived this morning from Terrell, Texas to assume editorial charge of the 'Leven O'Clock Roast,' a publication soon forthcoming, which promises to be the muckiest of the mucky journals of the day.

The celebrated doctor was met at the station by a reception committee of local Elks and escorted to John Sloan's automobile and driven rapidly to the dog pound. Dr. Dippy was apparently in a mucky frame of mind upon his arrival and it is rumored that he is already at work on some shreds of evidence which may lead to some startling disclosures.

J. W. Stone Believes Mining Town of Newcastle Will Have 5,000 People in Few Years.

Editor of the Times:—

Wichita Falls will soon have coal from the Young county coal fields. There will be a car here today or tomorrow, which will be distributed among the factories to test and from the looks of the coal it is as good or better than the McAlester coal we are now getting and can be laid down here for two or three dollars per ton less than the McAlester.

They are now mining in two different shafts. No. 1 is about 140 feet deep with a 52-inch vein. No. 2 is about 55 feet deep with a 44-inch vein and the probabilities are that there will be as many as 2,000 miners working and getting out this coal in the next twelve months.

The latest machinery has been ordered and the company will soon be getting out coal enough to supply this town and several others like it.

The new town of Newcastle has been located on the Wichita Falls and Southern railroad between Shafts Nos. 1 and 2. On a high table land is a magnificent place with a fine farming country for miles around with fine fields of corn and cotton in every direction. This town bids fair to have at least 5,000 people in the next two years and will certainly prove an excellent investment for anyone having money to invest. Lots will be sold at auction about the middle of September and there will be splendid openings for all kinds of business. They have water in abundance, with cheap coal and plenty of wood and many other natural advantages that other towns have not. There is to be found there the finest fire clay in the world, near the top of the ground and fire brick should be made there cheaper than our cheapest brick here.

The people of Young county have not begun to realize the advantages this new railroad and coal mining company will be to them, therefore the chance for outsiders to get in on the ground floor is excellent.

The altitude of Young county is about 1,000 feet and is very healthful. The writer ate three meals while there in about three hours, which is proof enough on the health line.

OF THE GREAT MAJESTIC MALLEABLE AND CHARCOAL IRON RANGE
 ONE WEEK AT OUR STORE ONE WEEK
MONDAY, AUG. 24th, to SATURDAY, AUG. 29th

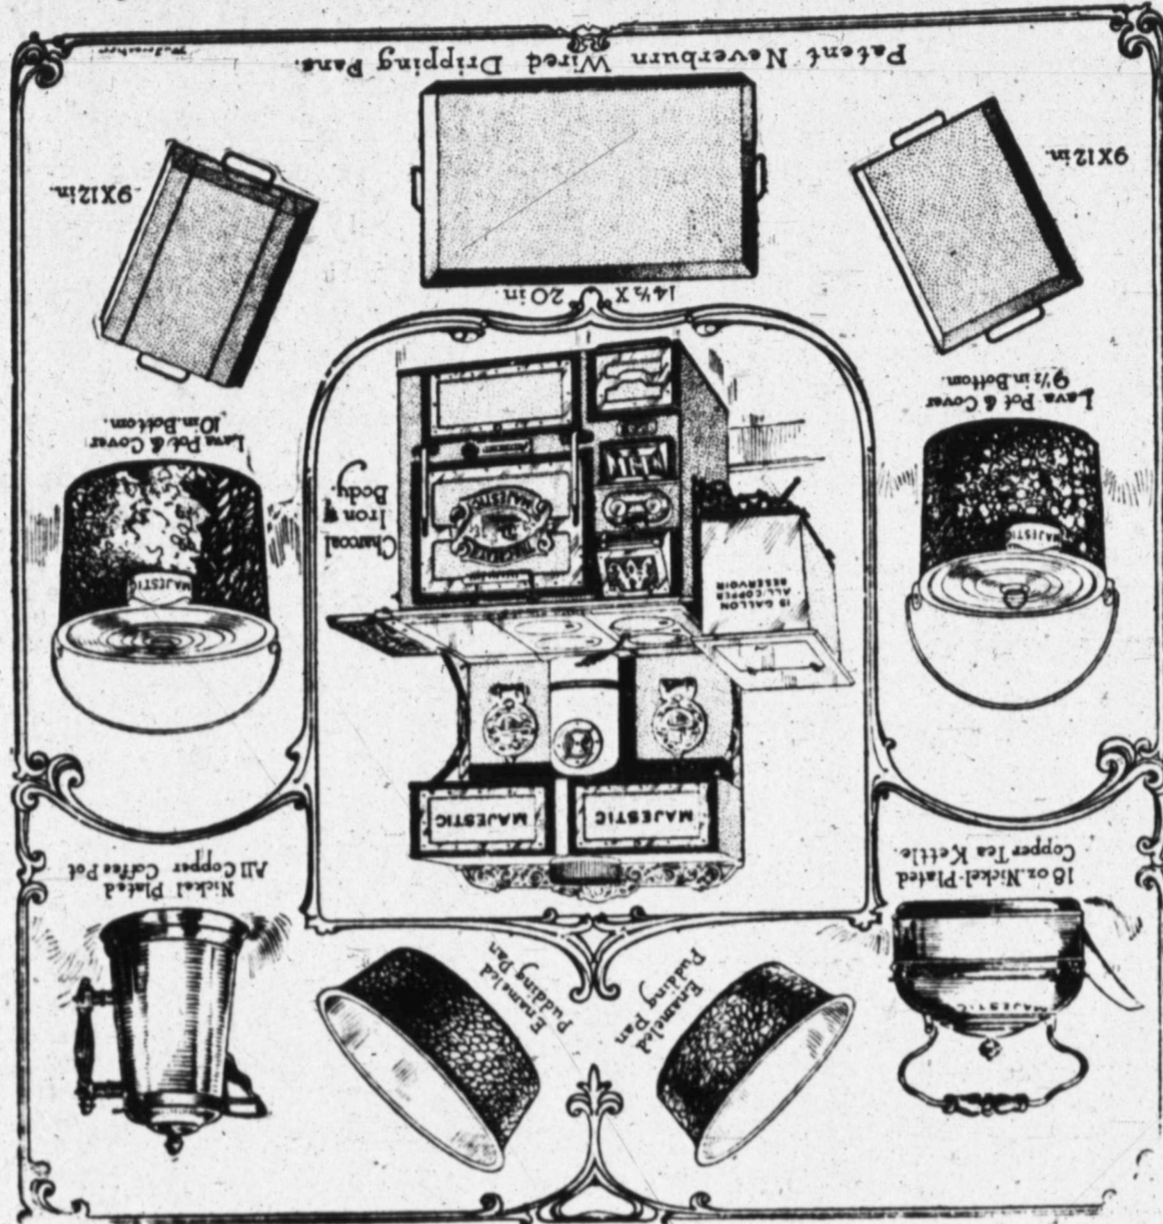

FREE!

$7.50

SET OF WARE

With every Majestic Range sold during this Cooking Exhibition, we will give absolutely FREE one handsome set of ware as shown. This ware is worth $7.50 if it is worth a cent. It is the best that can be bought. We don't add $7.50 to the price of the range and tell you you are getting the ware free, but sell all Majestic Ranges at the regular price. You get the ware free. Remember this is for exhibition week only. Ware will not be given after this week. This ware is on exhibition at our store, and must be seen to be appreciated. Come in any day during the week. Make our store your headquarters. Have coffee and biscuits with us.

Come, if you intend to buy or not; the information gained will serve you in the future.

Facts About the GREAT MAJESTIC RANGE

It is the only range in the world made of Malleable and Charcoal Iron. It has, beyond any question of a doubt, the largest and best reservoir. It uses about half the fuel used on other ranges and does better work by far.

The Majestic All Copper Nickeled Reservoir heats the water quicker and hotter than any other. It is the only reservoir with a removable frame.

The Charcoal Iron Body of the Great Majestic Range lasts three times as long as a steel body.

Being made of non-breakable material, there is practically no expense for repairing the Majestic.

As for baking, it is perfection; not only for a few months, but for all time to come.

A Great Majestic Range lasts three times as long as a cheap range, but it don't cost three times as much.

PROOF—We don't ask you to take our word for any of the above statements, but if you will call at our store, a man from the factory, where Majestic Ranges are made, will prove to your satisfaction that these are absolute facts, and will show you many more reasons why the Great Majestic Range is absolutely the best that money can buy.

Ribbons and Laces.

Ribbons dye very easily at home, and all the soiled ribbons left over from the summer season can be dipped in a dark shade and used as belts, half ribbons, etc. This is preeminently a season where one tone is being carried out in gowns, and this means that all laces which go to trim a dress must be dyed that color. Lavender dresses are trimmed with laces dyed the same shade; brown laces are seen made up in entire gimpes to be worn with the new shades of brown broadcloth suits. To carry out this idea, you must first buy the goods. Then buy the amount of lace you want in pure white or ecru. Take a sample of the goods and the lace to any reliable dyeing establishment and they will dye it the desired shade. Hats are made of this dyed lace, and much of it is used in trimming the fashionable Japanese sleeves. Let any women at home who want to try her hand at this work get a package of dye at any drug store and begin on something that is not particularly valuable. Make the dye, and test its color with a piece of old rag that is clean. Go slow at first, and with each time you will find that your success has grown, and that in this way you can keep your little accessories in a nice, fresh condition.—McCalls Magazine.

Rangers Established in Amarillo.

A party of four rangers under command of Capt. Frank Johnson, passed through this city Sunday en route to Amarillo, where they will establish headquarters. The men under Capt. Johnson are Tom P. White, E. Putman and O. J. Rountree, all veteran officers, who have arrived at that stage of discretion where they know where to act and when not to.

In a conversation with the Democrat man, who was a fellow passenger from this place to Amarillo, Capt. Johnson, who, by the way, is a cousin of our townsman, W. M. Fore, stated that he was ordered by the governor to establish his headquarters at the Panhandle metropolis for the purpose of assisting the local officers in enforcing the laws of the state, whatever they may be, as well as to give any needed protection to any property-interests necessary.

Capt. Johnson is to be commended for selecting seasoned men to carry out his orders, since in times past the Panhandle has been patrolled with rangers who let their enthusiasm get the better of their good judgment.

The numerous violations of the law in Amarillo, with which local officers seemed to be unable to cope, was the cause of the petition to the governor by the better element of Amarillo for a force of rangers to assist in bringing the offenders to justice, since the city and county could not afford to remunerate the required number of officers to successfully handle the situation.

Capt. Johnson also stated that he and his men were at the service of any others of the Panhandle citizens who needed their assistance.—Memphis Democrat.

A Fatherly Interest.

(Copyright, 1908, by T. C. McClure.)
Mr. Joseph Saunders was mayor of a certain town in England. He was also a married man with a wife and three children. He was also fifty-five years old and a man of dignity. He was also president of three or four boards, had a character for probity and was looking longly forward to the time when he should make his appearance in the house of commons. Mr. Saunders had business in London. When that business had been concluded he had business at Dover. He was waiting for his train in the London depot when he was approached by two females. One was a motherly woman of forty and the other a girl of about twenty. The former looked anxious, and the latter was weeping.
Mr. Saunders asked what was the matter.
"It's this way, sir," began the elderly woman in a businesslike way. "I am Mrs. Baxter of the Framingham School For Girls. This is Miss Ladue of Paris. She has been attending my school to secure an English education. She has news that her mother is very ill. Some one should have come for her, but has not. She goes to Dover and takes the boat. If she could go under your charge, sir?"

Of course Mr. Saunders was only too happy, and so forth. On several occasions his mother had been very ill, and he knew how it was. After the train had moved away and after Miss Ladue had wept for a quarter of an hour he got a quiver of an hour he got a surprise. The girl lifted her veil and exhibited a laughing face and called him "Uncle Jim."
It was an English face, and her words were English. The honorable stared at her for a long minute and then said:
"You are up to some sort of game and have rung me into it."
"Yes, you are my Uncle Jim until you have seen me safe aboard the boat at Dover. Now, don't be impulsive and declare that you won't and all that. We selected you because of your age and dignity, my dear uncle. You have a fatherly look. You also have an expression of innocence lurking about you. As your niece I shall pass unquestioned."
His honor leaned back in his seat and refused to answer. He was in a sweat. He had been forced into a situation that might end in his downfall, and he realized that it must be handled with care.
"I will get off at Gravesend" he said after awhile.

"I beg your pardon, uncle, but Dover is your destination," she pleasantly replied. "I hope you are not becoming accustomed as you grow old. You are to see me on the boat, you know."
"No! I will not do it!"
"You'll do it like a little lamb, sir, and I shall be very proud of my old uncle. What funny stories can you think of? I know you must have a keen sense of humor. So have I."
"Woman, do you know who I am?" thundered the honorable, springing up.
"My Uncle Jim, of course," she smilingly replied. "I can so arrange it that the papers will say that you kindly escorted me on this trip. Have aunt and my cousins asked about me lately?"
His honor realized his helplessness and leaned back and groaned in despair. He had blundered into a fatherly trap and knew that the girl had all the advantage and would keep it.
"What is the—crime?" he asked after awhile.
"Why, Uncle Jim! How dare you charge your niece with a crime? I wouldn't have believed it of you!"
"But you are fleeing out of England and fear arrest."
"Oh, but can't one flee without being a criminal? Suppose I am in love with a Frenchman and owing to my father's surveillance I must go to Paris like a fugitive to marry the man of my choice."

"Humph!" grunted the honorable. The girl removed her hat and laid her head back and seemed to sleep. At Rochester a couple of men whom he suspected to be officers of the law looked in. At Canterbury two more repeated the performance. Between Canterbury and Ashford the young lady woke up and said:
"Good Uncle Jim, the sober second thought is the best. You will see me and my luggage on the boat and then go where you will."
"Hanged if I do!" he said to himself, but up rose a vision of his family, of his mayoralty, of his political ambitions, and he groaned like a man in pain. When the train ran into Dover the girl took Uncle Jim's arm and went with him to see about the luggage. She "uncled" him in the hearing of fifty persons. He gave orders, bought her ticket and sat with her on the boat until the all ashore bell rang. She waved her handkerchief to him as he stood on the wharf, and as he saw two men watching him he waved back.
"Excuse me, sir," said one of the men as he was followed off the wharf, "but that young lady"—
"My niece, sir."
"Ah, ah, a thousand pardons!"
And three days later when Joseph Saunders read in his paper that one of the female stenographers in the war office had stolen an important paper and delivered it to the French government he thought for awhile and then mused:

"Well, the war office should employ more reliable people. What is the war office compared to Joseph Saunders' character for all around probity and the certainty of election from this borough next year? Yes, sir, let the war office take care of itself, sir."

Every Non-Progressive Merchant Becomes Your Competitor When You Cease to Advertise

WHEN a merchant "slows up" in his advertising, and concludes to "save a little money" in that direction, then the merchant who never had the courage and foresight to advertise adequately BECOMES A REAL COMPETITOR. Even the merchant who never advertises at all reaps a certain amount of profit from the "slowing up" process of the live store. Not many merchants, of course, who have at any time set the pace for progressive advertising, will be content to take a backward plunge into the company of the non-progressives, of the LITTLE MERCHANTS, the easily satisfied ones, the un-awakes! But that is just what the "live one" does when he imagines that his advertising is costing too much, and that its curtailment means saving. If business conditions ever suggest retrenchment in advertising, the wise merchant knows that this should be interpreted as a signal for "full speed ahead," for redoubled efforts to WIN the business that does not come so easily as usual.

WHAT A COMMERCIAL CLUB DOES

Fort Worth Telegram. There are still many of Texas' smaller towns that have not yet enjoyed the profitable possession of a Commercial Club. There are others in which Commercial Clubs have made an ineffectual struggle to exist and have given up the struggle.

To all such towns is respectfully commended the example of Amarillo, which has an organization known as the Chamber of Commerce. The Amarillo organization has in its short history, faced a number of conditions, any one of which might have been an excuse for its disruption. But the business men who composed it have had faith in Amarillo and faith in what a commercial club can do. When no one else could be secured they made the mayor of the city secretary of the club and the wisdom of their choice has been reflected in the following results:

During the past six months the Chamber of Commerce has answered over 1,500 personal letters about Amarillo and the Amarillo country.

It has brought to completion the right of way for the Santa Fe from Panhandle to Amarillo over forty-five sections of land and nearly 300 town lots.

It has helped to entertain a farmers' congress and a cattlemen's convention and has secured a visit from and entertained the Commercial Clubs of Wichita and Oklahoma City.

It has distributed to the farmers of the surrounding country 300 pounds of sugar beet seed and has awakened a profitable interest in that valuable crop.

It has helped to promote a packing house and raised $150,000 necessary to make it an assured fact.

It has moved the Amarillo experimental farm to a more convenient location, where it will be more accessible and where it may be seen by tourists through the Amarillo country without leaving a train.

It has landed for Amarillo a pneumatic horse collar factory and has selected a site for a sash and door factory, which will soon be built.

None of these achievements is in itself particularly startling, but combined they show a steady work on behalf of the Amarillo country which cannot be of other than lasting benefit.

No town that wants to grow can afford to be without a commercial club, and once having secured such a club, the efforts to make it the liveliest organization in town should never relax.

It is now certain that the damage wrought by the boll worm to the cotton crop in this immediate section has been largely over-estimated and reports from every section of the country since the rain of last Saturday and Sunday confirm the assertion made above. The cotton crop of 1907 in Wichita county amounted, in round numbers, according to the gin reports to a little more than 6,000 bales. The acreage this year is at least three times more than it was last year and in the event the present favorable cotton weather continues, the yield will be in proportion to that of last year, which would give Wichita county alone an 18,000 bale crop, which, if sold at an average price of 10 cents, will bring the farmers $900,000.

When the farmers begin to market the cotton crop, the chink of silver dollars in the democratic campaign fun will make a noise that will cause the republicans set up and take notice.

Only those who "ante" up with a dollar can be classed with the "Trooly Loyal."

THE WEEK'S CATCH.

What's the use o' kickin'.
When the air is soft and warm
An' the sky is blue above you
Without a hint o' storm?
When the waves are softly singin'
As they sparkle in the light
What's the use o' kickin'
'Cause the fish don't bite?

The fun of goin' afishin'
'Is to find a good excuse
To sit and watch the ripples
When the line is hangin' loose.
To feel the breezes blowin'
An' feel the calm delight
That you never think o' kickin'
'Cause the fish don't bite?

There's many an ambition
Which is but a fruitless quest,
But this world is full of sunshine
An' of beauty an' of rest.
An' we've had the fun o' livin'
Though we ain't successful quite,
An' there ain't no use o' kickin'
'Cause the fish don't bite.

THE WEEK'S CATCH

Miss Sarah Ulmer.

Picnic Party.

With Mesdames J. W. Jourdan and T. M. Smyre to chaperone a merry party of young people left town about 8 o'clock Wednesday morning for Lake Wichita. The company consisted of Miss Jennie Esther Bean, Lonie Childress, Willie Dean Jourdan, A. D. Woods, Clifford Moore, Joe Hatcher, Russell Jones, Ned Murray, Gerial Pond, Ewing Leach, Maude Skinner, Cathleen Coffield, Annette Coffield, Della Young, Marie Barnett, Harry Jourdan, Catherine Brothers, Ethel Frieze, Alphonse Boger and Rhea Howard. In a game of "Truth," Mr. Ewing Leach distinguished himself for truthfulness. This will never be forgotten by the members of the party. There was a fine lunch, with plenty of tea, cream and watermelon, and a pleasant ride home in a farm wagon, the young people arriving about 7:30. This is expected to be their last outing before the beginning of school in September.

The Jackson Party at Lake Wichita.

In honor of Miss Mary Jackson of Dallas, Mesdames J. P. and J. L. Jackson left town about 4:30 Wednesday evening for a luncheon at the lake. They were accompanied by the Misses Inez Stafford, Bessie, Mabel and Bernice Jackson, Master J. L. Jackson, Jr., and Mrs. Frank Jackson. They enjoyed a fine ride back in the moonlight, and made the way short and the party merry by their rollicking songs along the way.

Break Camp.

After a ten days outing, the Gorsline-Walsh party broke camp Thursday about 2 o'clock and returned to Wichita Falls. Their first encampment was at the head of the lake in a large tent 14x21. Miss Mary Anderson says of it: "It was a beautiful place, but the mosquitoes nearly ate us up." When the rain came up on Friday night they stored their goods in a vacant cottage. Here they remained for a week, catching "loads of fish" on their trot lines. No one in the party caught less than twenty, the cat fish weighing from five and a half to six and a half pounds. The party was comprised of Mr. and Mrs. E. P. Walsh and daughter, Annette, Mr. and Mrs. E. B. Gorsline, Miss Esther and Master Edgar Gorsline, Miss Mary Anderson, Master Allen Montgomery. They report plenty to eat, with nothing to do but rest and take kodak pictures. They slept continually in the open air and those who did not previously know how, learned to swim. Miss Anderson and Miss Esther Gorsline accompanied the gentlemen in their tramps around the lake with their guns. They did not have big hunting stories to tell and freely admit that target practice was the height of their accomplishment.

The Lawler Camp.

In honor of Miss Hattie and Master Lewis Lawler of Canton, Texas, cousins of Mr. Lawler, and Mr. W. L. Drum of Farmer, brother of Mrs. Lawler, the family of Mr. L. H. Lawler engaged in a two days camping party at Lake Wichita, lasting from Wednesday to Friday. Camp was set below the dam, under a pecan tree, on the edge of Holliday creek. Arriving late Wednesday afternoon, no fish were procured for the first supper, but an abundant supply was ready for breakfast the following morning. Nothing momentous occurred the first night, but the party experienced a terrible round with the mosquitoes the second. Lots of fun and plenty to eat was the verdict of every member. They took along fifty pounds of ice which was so well preserved that they had ice to give away when they broke camp on Friday.

Mr. Lawler has become a professional bait-cutter and hook-baiter. The ladies, who had never caught a fish before, were astonished at their own success, after he took charge of the hooks. One of the most exciting features was when little Miss Lela-Mae, aged seven, caught her first fish, and could hardly restrain her physical demonstrations for joy. Although they carried a gun, no game was caught. The Friday morning breakfast was cooked by Mr. Lawler himself and he vouches for its excellent preparation. He says it was simply "fine." Fish, watermelon, pear preserves, molasses, bread, pickles, bacon, onions, and coffee contributed to the feast when he invited the company to partake. Wild grapes grow in the vicinity in profusion and samples of these were brought back to town by the children.

Mr. Lawler regrets that he was unable to fulfill his promise to bring back a hundred pounds of fish, according to agreement, but the entire catch was consumed on the spot; while Mrs. Lawler is inconsolable over returning to her neighbors empty-handed.

Spent the Day.

In Honor of the Misses Pierce.
The party of Mr. and Mrs. E. M. Rogers, given in honor of Mrs. Rogers' cousins from Pilot Point, on Tuesday, was delighted by rides in the new sail boat lately launched by Mr. Will McAtee on Lake Wichita. In the afternoon they were entertained for an hour and a half by fancy diving from the top of the boat house. Fish bit well, there being as many as fifty persons around the boat house at one time, constantly landing excellent catches. Thirty-eight fine specimens was the reward of this one party, little Marie Schwab, aged 9, catching twelve, the most caught by any one person of this group.

Mr. and Mrs. S. E. Fisher, Messrs. Neil and Cobb and Mr. H. R. McAbee and daughter, Miss Eula, left about 5 o'clock Tuesday morning for the lake. They camped near the boat house, and went prepared for real camp life, enjoying French fried potatoes and other luxuries with their fish. Mr. and Mrs. Fisher and Miss McAbee returned Tuesday, Mr. McAbee remaining until Friday. The other gentlemen still have their camp in the open air and are sleeping under the trees.

A Camp of Families.
Early Wednesday morning the families of Messrs. Isler, A. D. Crites, and E. D. Morse left for Lake Wichita. They remained all night, tenting near the boat house and returned about sundown Thursday. The second day they secured all the fish they could eat, and returned well and happy without misfortune or accident.

WICHITA FALLS

The Stranger Girl.

(Original.)

A young girl not over seventeen years old entered a Russian village and inquired for conveyance to the nearest railway station. There was in her face none of that free from care look natural to girls of her age, but a serious, resolute expression as though she were intent upon some great purpose. She had no baggage except a leather traveling bag, which was noticeable, for she was not of the peasant class, who are often too poor to have any clothes except those on their backs, but one of an intermediate people between peasant and noble.

It happened that there had been a wedding in the village, and the groom was about to take his bride to his farm some versts away. The journey lay in the direction of the railway, and it was agreed that the stranger girl should be permitted to accompany the bridal party and be driven on beyond the groom's farm to the station. Several friends of the young couple were going to see the bridal couple to their new home. Just as they were about to start a man entered the sledge without an invitation. The groom objected, whereupon the man showed the badge of a government official, which silenced any further refusal.

It was in the springtime, but the snow had not yet melted. The air was cold and penetrating, and the travelers were all wrapped in fur robes. But they were a gay party, cracking their jokes and chaffing the newly married couple. Only two persons sat mute—the government official and the stranger girl—though their rigid demeanor had no effect in dampening the spirits of the others. But presently, on coming to a wild tract that they were obliged to cross, they suddenly ceased their merriment. From the forest came a sound muffled by distance, but none the less terrible—a sound known only too well to the occupants of the sledge as the distant baying of wolves. The horses threw up their heads in fright, then set off at a gallop. The groom reached down under the seat and, not finding what he looked for, turned pale.

"The arms!" he exclaimed. "Where are they?"

He looked at his young men friends successively. None had put in the weapons. Each had expected some one else to do so. They had been left behind.

Presently from the right and rear a dark mass came through the trees like black water pouring in before a rising tide. There it joined on the road and became a pack of wolves. There was but one weapon in the party, and that belonged to the government official. It was a revolver with six shots in its chambers. Its possession could not be considered a chance—it was hardly even a hope: its owner drew it, cocked it and when the wolves came within range fired at the leader and rolled him over. A few of the pack pounced upon the dead wolf, while the rest came on. The official fired the six shots at intervals, with each shot killing a wolf, and when he had done this he had finished his defense. The party were at the mercy of the wolves. Though the horses were tearing along at frantic speed, the wolves were drawing nearer every moment. When they had come to a distance of about fifty feet the stranger girl rose from her seat, opened her satchel, took out a steel ball the size of an orange and, pointing it in her right hand, said:

"I give my life to save yours. This man," referring to the government official, "will see that I disappear from the world. The stroke I intended for a traitor heaven wills shall go only to a pack of wolves."

She threw the ball deliberately, and it came down near the center of the pack. There was a flash, an explosion, and where the wolves had been was a vacant spot around which carcasses and bits of carcasses were spread on the snow as if buttered with a huge knife. A few lay moaning in agony, while a few more limped or dragged themselves away.

The party had been saved.

All turned to the stranger girl, the bride and her girl companions throwing their arms about her, the men seizing her hands and covering them with kisses. Then, when they had given full expression to their gratitude, they turned to the government official, who sat mute.

"What is your intention with regard to our preserver?" asked the groom.

"She is my prisoner."

"Inform on her at your peril!"

"If I don't inform on her I will be at a peril equal to any you can inflict. She was reported as being in correspondence with revolutionists at the capital. I was sent by the minister of the interior to shadow her. If I fail to report her I will be arrested; taken to St. Petersburg and executed."

"Friends," said the groom, "this girl has given us our lives by killing a pack of wolves. Is it not our duty to give her hers by killing this man whose life means her death?"

"It is," responded every voice.

It was determined to bind the man to a tree and leave him to the wolves, but the stranger girl would not consent. Then upon consultation it was decided that after leaving the others at their destination the men of the party should take the revolutionist beyond the border. They consented to spare the life of the official on his agreement to go with them, never to return. He gladly accepted the terms, and after reaching the farm and an impressive farewell to the stranger girl the sledge was whisked away on its new course. The party reached the border and passed it in safety.

HIS CONFIDENCE CAME LATE.

[Original.]

Rear Admiral Ralph Donabue, U. S. N., retired, sixty-three years old, married, bachelor, woman hater and various other titles, sat at his breakfast in the Army and Navy club. He was thinking of a large sum of money he had won the night before of young Lester Sheldon and that he would use it to run across the "big pond" and see Paris in June. As he was rinsing his fingers in a cut glass bowl, preparatory to leaving the table, a waiter stepped up to him and announced that a lady wished to see him in the reception room.

"A lady! To see me! In the reception room! Great Scott! Isn't a man safe even in his club?"

"It isn't usual, sir, but it's an hour when few members are present, and she begged so hard that the steward told the doorkeeper to admit her."

The admiral had just enough curiosity to go to the reception room and learn the reason for the call. He found a very pretty young woman in widow's cap, whose eyes were dimmed with tears.

"Oh, admiral," she gasped, "tell me, have you parted with the notes?"

"What notes?"

"That you won from my brother last night."

"Your brother?"

"Yes; Lester—my brother—Lester Sheldon."

"What's that to you, madam?"

"Oh, admiral, I've heard of your honorable nature and kind heart."

"Bosh! Speak out."

"My brother is in great distress. I have just prevented him taking his life. He is cashier at his place of business. Lately he has been gambling. The notes you won he took from his cash at the office. After leaving you he had one note left and this morning noticed that it was marked."

"For heaven's sake, this is a pretty mess for me to be mixed up in!"

"Oh, it's all right if you still have the notes."

"I have them."

"How fortunate!" And a relieved smile came over the sad face like a flood of sunlight from behind a cloud.

"I will take them and give you my check for them."

"But, my dear lady, I didn't win the money from you. I can't take your check. But I will give you the notes."

"Now, don't spoil everything. I can only handle Lester by assuring him that the notes have been taken up with my check and only you and I and he know of the transaction. It's nothing to me, I assure you. I have an income of $20,000 a year. I've helped Lester out of many a scrape. I only hope I'll live to keep something dreadful from happening to him."

Meanwhile she had gone to a table covered with writing materials, filled a blank check she took from her card-case and at the last words handed it to the admiral.

"But, my dear madam, consider my position. I, an admiral in the United States navy, to take money from a woman! Suppose it should get out?"

"My dear admiral, how is it to get out? Will Lester tell? Will I tell? Only you remain."

"And you think it best for me to—"

"Of course. Now, do let me have the bills. Lester is suspected and may have to turn over his accounts as soon as he appears at the office. He is waiting for me. Do let me go!"

This was too much for the admiral. He took the notes from his pocketbook and handed them to the lady. She dropped the check into the same receptacle, rubbing her soft hand against his as she did so and looking up with an exuberance of gratitude out of her soft eyes. Then she ran away hurriedly.

"Well, now," remarked the admiral to himself, "if I could find a woman like that I wouldn't be a woman hater. To think what she's doing for that scapegrace brother! Most women absorb money instead of spending it in that way."

He was in no hurry to deposit the check. Indeed, he was thinking of a bit of self sacrifice he might make that possibly would effect a romance in his old age—a romance that would free him from depending on a club for a home. He fancied himself tearing up the check or burning it, as the leading gentleman in a play would do, and a certain lady falling into his own arms.

The same evening he was sitting in his club looking over a paper when who should saunter in but Lester Sheldon.

"Hello, admiral," he said cheerily. "I'm going for you tonight. I'll take all you won from me last night and more too."

The admiral looked at him, astonished.

"What's the matter?" asked Sheldon, not understanding the surprise. "Don't you want to give me my revenge?"

"What's the matter? Didn't your sister this morning take up the notes I won from you with her check?"

"My sister?"

"Yes, your sister."

"I haven't any sister."

The admiral glared for a moment, then made a dive for his pocketbook, took out the check, unfolded it and handed it to Sheldon.

"Admiral," said the latter, "you've been-bunkoed."

"Bunkoed! I bunkoed by a woman! I never trusted a woman in my life—that is, before."

"You mean you never trusted a good one. Your only case of confidence was in a bad one."

Sheldon had talked in his cups of his loss in a promiscuous crowd.

A PHRENOLOGICAL CASE OF 1999.

(Original.)
 "Professor Fulcrum, I believe."
 "At your service, sir."
 "I understand that you have been for a long while a close student of the brain and have made some remarkable discoveries."
 "I have simply been building on the scant knowledge held by our grandparents. It has been reserved for us to do siecle people to point out the exact spot on the brain that directs any special condition."
 "Your modesty is wasted on me, professor. It is you who have made this last discovery. How did you do it?"
 "Vivisection. Our ancestors found difficulty in getting consent to experiment on animals. Now, with some 400,000,000 of people, life is so cheap that we can operate on human beings. I am indebted to malefactors for my discoveries. And malefactors are indebted to me as well, for I can now make an honest man of a rogue."
 "By what means?"
 "Trepanning. For instance, I know the exact spot in the brain that produces kleptomania. I cut away a bit of the skull and find an abnormal development of the brain directly under it. This I cut away, and the patient has no more desire to steal."
 "Can you turn hate to love, or vice versa?"
 "No, but I can destroy either the one or the other."
 "Now we are getting down to the object of my visit. My son is in love with a girl whom I do not wish him to marry. Can you destroy his love for her?"
 "Yes."
 "How?"
 "Recent development in microscopy has shown us that each sensation has a minute corrugation on the brain. On a certain point in your son's brain will be found a little protuberance composed of these minute corrugations. If this protuberance is removed the love is killed."
 "Forever?"
 "Not necessarily. Another operation is required to prevent its return. I must cut away a certain tiny particle in the bump of memory for that particular girl."
 "Very well, professor. I will bring my son to you at once. He is waiting without."

Professor Fulcrum consented only on the payment of an immense fee and guaranty of indemnity in case the son claimed damages. Then the young man was shown into a room, where an anaesthetic gas was turned on. When he was unconscious he was placed on a table and the operation performed. On coming to his senses he found his head bandaged and was told that a burglar had shot him, making two bullet holes in the brain. He was to be kept quiet till the wounds healed. He was removed to his home.

"Who the dickens is this Amanda Brown who is sending me flowers?" he asked one morning during convalescence.
 His father, who heard the remark and hoped that he would marry the donor, was delighted. He rushed off to Professor Fulcrum to tell him that the operation had been eminently successful.

"Now, professor," he said, "there is a girl I wish my son to marry. Can you make him love her?"
 "Certainly not."
 "Are you sure? She loves him, and she is immensely rich."
 "I am perfectly sure. I cannot create. I can only destroy."
 Jennie Carr, who had been removed from Walter Higgins' memory, insisted upon seeing him as soon as it was safe for him to undergo the excitement of the meeting. Mr. Higgins senior, curious to know if his son would remember her on seeing her, granted permission at once.

"Oh, Walter," she said plaintively, "I'm so sorry!"
 "Let me see," said Walter, looking at her scrutinizingly. "So many people have called to see me. Where have I met you?"
 "This was enough for Mr. Higgins senior. He took the girl away and told her that the shooting had affected his son's memory.

One day six months later Mr. Higgins rushed into Professor Fulcrum's workroom in a rage.
 "You have swindled me!" he cried.
 "How so?"
 "My son has married the girl, after all."
 "Well?"
 "You said that you could guard against his love for her returning by destroying his memory of her. His love has returned. He has married her."
 "It has not returned. If he loves her it is a new love, not the old one."
 "It is certainly not a new one, for my son has had nothing to do with her since you operated on him."
 "I don't believe it. My knowledge is based on long experiment and is exact. Find out what has taken place between the couple since your son's recovery and you will prove my position."

Mr. Higgins departed and in a few days sent Professor Fulcrum the following confession signed by his son's wife:
 "I always knew that the Higgins family were opposed to me and noticed that they were especially pleased when I was biotted from Walter's memory. I had won him once despite their opposition and resolved to do so again, keeping my effort a secret from them. I began at the beginning, in my own way pledging him not to let his family know of his meetings with me; then when I had won him I married him clandestinely before they could interfere."

OSCAR COX.

A Unique Vindication.

(Original.)
 When Evan Bancroft, a young Virginian, went to study at the University of Heidelberg he promised his mother that he would never fight a duel. But Bancroft did not consider it necessary to refrain from joining the fighting corps and engaging in harmless encounters. Indeed, there was plenty of fighting material in him inherited from his progenitors, and this was why his mother had exacted the promise. Her father had been killed in a duel, one of her brothers through reckless exposure in the civil war, while another had been shot attempting to defend a prisoner from a mob. These shafts of death, striking so near her, caused her to brood and induced a fear that her only son should fall through a similar cause.

Bancroft at Heidelberg proved so handy with all sorts of weapons as to distance all competitors save one, a young Englishman named Horcut. The two held the record for being the best swordsmen at the university, and there was a desire among the students that they should fight for the championship. Bancroft made no objection to a friendly encounter, the vital parts of each disputant being covered according to the corps rules. But in truth he did not relish even a friendly fight with the Englishman, who was an avowed hater of Americans.
 When the terms of the fight for the championship came to be arranged Horcut insisted on certain innovations rendering the affair dangerous. It was suspected by a few that he considered Bancroft the better swordsman and, judging him to be timid, wished to force him to decline the combat. This would give Horcut the championship without fighting for it or risking to lose it. He would then return to England to enjoy his honors.
 Whether or no this was his object, it was accomplished. Bancroft declined to fight except under the rules for friendly contests. Horcut accused him of cowardice, and there was now nothing for him to do but challenge the Britisher to an "unprotected" fight or be cut by the members of his corps. He declined to fight either for the championship or to vindicate his courage, but he wrote his mother the facts and begged her to release him. She declined to do so. Besides, friends at home assured him that she was in a critical physical condition and if anything happened to him it would kill her.

Bancroft neither cared to give his true reason for not fighting nor believed that it would be accepted. It would have been accepted and he could have satisfied the students of its truth. In no country in the world are parents more beloved and respected than in Germany. But to convince a couple of thousand of young men that he was not hiding behind his mother's skirts was out of the question.
 So Bancroft finished his university career a cut man, though he was burning to meet his adversary. When he went home to Virginia, finding that the story had preceded him and prejudiced some people against him, he went to the farther west and engaged in sheep raising. Soon after this his mother died.

Several years passed. One day Bancroft was treading his way on a path barely a foot wide around the side of a precipice. While doing so, he saw a party of tourists coming. Persons meeting on the path must pass carefully, the one taking the outside, the other the inside. Bancroft was expecting to take the outside when suddenly he recognized in the leading man in the line of tourists his old enemy at the university. He was also recognized.

"Wait there," said Horcut, pointing to a place where the path widened a little. "I pass inside." He spoke with his old domineering tone. Bancroft stepped to the spot indicated, saying as he did so:
 "I pass inside."
 "You pass outside, I say," growled Horcut, remembering that Bancroft was a coward.
 "Are you armed?" asked Bancroft quietly.
 "No."
 Bancroft took a revolver from his hip and flung it over the precipice. It struck 300 feet below.
 "What do you propose?" asked Horcut, blanching.
 "To settle a feud of long standing. We are about the same build. Let one of us throw the other over. If I am victorious I will pass inside the rest of your party."
 Horcut stood aghast. "My God, man, that would be certain death for both of us!"
 "It would prove us both brave men."
 "But—"
 "We are keeping your friends waiting."

The friends were as terrified as the principals. They begged Horcut not to accept such a fearful challenge.
 "Do—do I understand," filtered Horcut, "that you will pass inside those behind me?"
 "That is my intention."
 "And you will permit me to pass you on the outside in safety?"
 "You have only the word of a coward for that."

Horcut consented with a hanging head, and the passage was made. Some of the tourists—one had been a student at Heidelberg during Bancroft's disgrace—returned to Europe, and the story got to the university. Bancroft was invited there and when he went was enthusiastically greeted. When he told of his pledge to his mother he received an ovation.
