TO SELECT A SITE

W. D. WINDOM, GOVERNMENT ARCHITECT, HERE TO INSPECT PROPOSED SITES.

NO DECISION IS MADE

Effort to Establish Federal Court Here. If Successful, Will Necessitate Larger Appropriation.

W. D. Windom of the supervising architect's office, Washington, D. C., is registered at the St. James hotel, having come to this city for the purpose of selecting a building site for Wichita Falls Federal building.

A Times reporter called on Mr. Windom at his room at the St. James this afternoon in quest of a news item and found him to be a very pleasant and agreeable gentleman and willing to give out any information regarding his mission here as, in his judgment, the public is entitled to.

His first work was to look over the various sites offered the government, and after doing this he addressed the respective bidders, asking them that in the event they desired to talk with him personally to call at his hotel, where he will be until 11 o'clock tomorrow morning.

In the course of the short interview, Mr. Windom said to the reporter that the building would be constructed of either light brick or light stone and would be located on one of our most prominent streets; that it would be a one-story structure with basement; have a frontage of 70 feet and be 50 feet deep. The postoffice floor is to be three feet above the grade level; the basement to be used for heating purposes, storage rooms lavatories and rooms for mail carriers and postoffice employes.

In his opinion it will be about 30 days before it will be known who the successful bidder for the site is, and that after it is made known the United States Attorney General will pass on the title.

Owing to the fact that the government architect is considerably behind with his work, he thought it would be about two years before work on the building would begin.

An effort is now being made to have the government establish a branch of the Federal court here, and in the event this effort is successful it will call for an additional appropriation and a larger building and as a consequence a change of plans.

Mr. Windom, during his short talk with the reporter, said nothing that would give the slightest idea as to which one of the half dozen or more sites offered the government he would or had selected, only saying that the building would be located on one of our most prominent streets.

FIVE PRISONERS ESCAPED FROM THE COUNTY JAIL.

Five prisoners, three whites and two blacks, escaped from the county jail last night and up to noon today had not been recaptured.

Among the five prisoners who escaped were W. M. Roark and Lewis Hughes, who are charged with horse stealing. The other white man who got away last night is charged with highway robbery. One of the negroes is charged with robbery, and the other is charged with assault to commit murder.

The prisoners made their escape shortly after 7 o'clock, before they were locked in their cells for the night. As in other instances, the escape was made by climbing on top of the cage and raising a trap door leading to the roof. From the roof the prisoners reached the ground by means of a rope made by tying strips of bedding together.

A man passing through the court house yard saw the jail breakers on the roof and ran to the city hall, where he reported the fact. The city officers telephoned to Sheriff Davis, but in the meantime the five prisoners had made good their escape.

Among the other prisoners who were in jail, but who it appears did not join in the attempt to escape were Rotramel, the Archer county prisoner, charged with an attempt to murder his wife, a man named Randle sentenced to a term in the State penitentiary and several other prisoners awaiting trial on felony charges.

DISCREDIT REPORT

RUMOR THAT BAILEY INTENDS TO RESIGN AND LEAVE TEXAS IS NOT CREDITED.

OUSLEY KNOWS NOTHING

Report of Intended Resignation Comes From New York—Rumored That Senator Will Leave Texas.

Special to the Times. Fort Worth, Tex., Sept. 28.—Reports received here today from Galveston say that a New York special received there declares that Senator Bailey intends to resign his seat and will no longer make his home in Texas. Bailey is now in Washington. Recently the senator sold two valuable farms in Texas.

Dallas Adherents Discredit Story.

Special to the Times. Dallas, Tex., Sept. 28.—Bailey adherents here discredit the report of the intended resignation. If the senator resigns, they say it will not be until the legislature meets in January.

To Improve its Service.

E. M. Rogers, local manager of the Southwestern Telephone Co., informed a reporter of the Times this morning that E. G. Garber, construction engineer for the company, was in the city with instructions from his superiors to rush plans for a better and more efficient telephone system for this city.

This is good news to the patrons of the company in this city, who have had their patience put to the extreme test during the past few months by being forced to put up with a telephone service that lacks a whole lot of being as good as the company has been collecting tolls for.

Report Not Confirmed at Gainesville.

Special to the Times. Gainesville, Tex., Sept. 28.—The report that Senator Bailey intends to resign so far has not been confirmed here and the announcement surprised the citizens, nearly all of whom discredit the report, but admit that certain circumstances point to its truth. Senator Bailey has not sold his home here, but has disposed of much other property in this section. The fact that the senator has not taken part in the campaign or contributed to the national funds lends the color of truth to the report. It is said that Bailey expects to practice law in the East.

HEAD SPLIT OPEN.

Rockwall Farmer is Assassinated With An Axe.

Dallas, Tex., Sept. 27.—Wells Parsons, a farmer who lived six miles north from the town of Rockwall, was assassinated some time yesterday, his head being split open with an axe, just above the right ear. He was found near a clump of bushes, unconscious. He had crawled or been dragged about 100 yards as shown by a trail of blood. Sheriff Williams of Rockwall county about 1 o'clock this morning telephoned the sheriff's department at Dallas, and about 10 o'clock this forenoon Deputy Sheriff Chiesa arrested a man giving the name of Monroe E. Miles, who was in hiding in Muddy Creek bottom, across the Dallas county line.

Sheriff Williams took Miles to the Rockwall jail this afternoon. A report from Garland tonight says Parsons died this evening without regaining consciousness.

STILL DISSATISFIED.

Wrangle in John B. Hood Camp Will Make Votes for Simpson.

Special to the Times. Austin, Tex., Sept. 28.—Dissatisfaction still exists in the John B. Hood Camp of Confederate Veterans over the text book wrangle, and a number of the staunch supporters of Governor Campbell are declaring the mix-up a political trick of the republicans to secure votes. Other members of the camp, principally those living in the Confederate Home, declare they will vote the Simpson ticket because of the middle, while their opponents say if such occurs they will leave the camp.

NEAT BLOUSE DESIGNS ATTRACT ATTENTION

BLOUSE DESIGNS DRAW NOTICE.
Tailored Waists With Mesquite-Trimmed Sleeves and Simple, Button-Trimmed Nets Are in Favor.

Dallas News.

This is the year of the elimination of the belt line. "All in one frocks" have replaced the skirt and separate blouse to a great extent, but it is hard to make the average woman give up her beloved extra waist and the fashion promoters have humored her whim for the silk and net theater blouse.

It is told in New York shops that the ordinary pronounced "blouse" may be worth $8 and at another shop the same blouse sells for $10 higher in the firm is French and the article is called a "blouse"—so much for what's in a name.

There has been a notion for several seasons that the separate waist that goes so well with the dressy coat suit should be of the same color. Chiffon, lace, net, silk or mousseline have been used for this purpose. The same notion still to some extent prevails. But the invention of the new satin woven mesallines has suggested this material as prominently the practical stuff for the theater waist.

One of the most effective models of this sort shown in the shops and made to go with a tailored blue suit was of dark blue satiny mesalline made with fitted three-inch band about the yoke. This single band along with Gibson pleat over the shoulder was embroidered in conventional daisy design in the same shade of dark blue floss. A chemisette of thin tucked organdie served for face relief at the throat and cuffs of the same tucked white organdie about six inches broad were inserted in the three-quarter sleeves, so presenting the desired Bernhardt effect. The sleeves, tucked at intervals around, were buttoned up the back with tiny buttons of covered silk. It is a requirement that the stocks should be as high at the ears and made of the same material and coloring as the blouse itself, but few women can stand the severe test of such a fad, and the chemisette, of white is still pardoned.

Little satin colored buttons and rich-toned Russian embroidered bands are the only trimming employed for these simple waists. Some of the severest sorts are modified with a dainty pleating of white mousseline or swiss extending down the front fold or about the high collar and slender wrists. This may be laundered at will and replaced at pleasure by fresh ones or those of lace. Many of the attractive stocks and collars at the notion counter are designed to be the only ornament to the dark suit waist.

Satin in Severe Styles.

Plain heavy satin is seen in some instances made into severe blouses to be used with tailored suits. Bindings of a darker shade of satin are used about the tailored cuffs, on the pockets and on the low turn-down shirt collar. A high linen collar with lace jabot is inserted beneath the satin collar and adds the becoming white touch to the face. The blouse is made up double-breasted and the sleeves are tight and made to fit well down to the hand.

Copper-colored satins, mulberry shades and gun metal tints may be bought to harmonize, if not actually to match, almost any ordered suit.

Colored waists are to be sought also in nets, chiffons and laces, and if the correct shade is not to be found in stock, the dyer is to be interviewed and his art employed. Coarse net, instead of the delicate filet of last season, is to be used and made with plenty of tucks. One of the pretty models on view in a modern shop is made up entirely with tucks. The whole of the front is tucked, with the pleats at the shoulder seam measuring an inch, and decreasing in width until at the waist line, so that only a thread tuck is to be noticed. The sleeves are tucked in sections of different width tucks, decreasing in size as the wrist line is neared. Frillings of net at the collar and hand add the softening touch to the severity.

Another beauty to be noted in the shop window and very easily copied is of coarse hexagonal net made on severe lines. Narrow binding of Irish lace are curved into yoke form at the throat and a motif of the same formed at the center front. Two panels, one at either side of the front motif, are embroidered in lustrous cotton floss of the shading of the waist. A conventional design is not so pretty for this work as a graceful nature pattern. In this connection it is not bad to suggest how the embroidery may best be accomplished on stretchy net. Carefully transfer the desired pattern to the net with carbon paper and buste the work on a piece of stiff cream wrapping paper. Care must be taken not to baste the material on bias or crooked, else the work will surely be drawn. Suggestions of this design on broad bands at the head of the tight sleeves, followed by fine tucks down to the wrist hand form a very effective result.

Material for Waists.

The "bought" embroidered net is one of the easiest materials to make into good waists. The lines of embroidered dots or figures lend themselves so readily to the spacings between narrow tucks. If the dots or stripes of the embroidery happen to be of a color and to match the suit that accompanies, a distinctly stylish effect is obtained.

Coarse net, colored to suit the taste of the wearer, makes a pretty style, especially with the introduction of the white neck piece. Either silk or cotton net is a happy choice. Fine sprigged designs made over a soft contrasting shade of liberty silk and trimmed with mechin and filet laces are always in good taste at the theater, in a restaurant or calling. There was a charming little rosebud affair worn recently at an open air function with a light voile skirt. The underlining was pink cherry silk, and the trimmings on the long tucked sleeves and Gibson tucks were crocheted buttons embroidered in the center with a bebe pink rosebud.

A ruching of pink at the throat and on the wrists beneath a band and hand-done silk knots completed the French notion.

Heretofore, when one has wanted a sheer pretty blouse of chiffon, net or mousseline in color, one has been obliged to have it made to order, but this season the designers have to a considerable extent met this want. Particularly pretty chiffon models in the smoke and silver grays, the fashionable blues and green and browns are on view, and though the successful ones are by no means cheap, they are no more expensive than they would be if made by a dressmaker capable of achieving as good results, and one is spared the bother of having them made.

The white chiffon blouse of the cut is a case in point. In every detail it is attractive, it is well cut, carefully made, without a cheapening note anywhere about it. In the same shop where this blouse was seen there were numerous others deserving of note.

Smoke Gray Chiffon Models.

Two smoke gray chiffon models, especially appealing—both simple in line, but excellently handled, with tucked bodies and sleeves, a very little self-color soutache for trimming and the tiniest of gumpes showing only in front and combined with high standing collars. In one model this white collar and gumpes was of fine baby Irish lace, in the other of cream net and Alencon.

Models much like these in browns, greens and blues were displayed and there were many smart blouses in coarse black silk net, with or without relief of embroidery, in colors.

These beautiful band trimmings of embroidered net are used in combination with plain net-to-match for charming blouses, and the handsome crocheted, satin and braid buttons and passementerie ornaments in which the trimming counters abound trim effectively blouses of plain colored net.

Fine etamine, voile or marguissette embroidered in soutache is the material for some excellent blouse models in popular shades of gray, brown and blue, and such materials will, of course,

To Bottle Fruit Juices for Winter.

Many good reasons exist why it is not wise for the average housekeeper to can fruits and vegetables, but some of the finer kinds of preserving are worth while. Bottled fruit juices, for instance, are expensive to buy and there is always a suspicion or possibility that preservatives have been added. As fruit juices are often given to invalids, it is important that nothing be added except sugar. Fruit juices make healthful drinks. They take the place of "soft drinks" of doubtful nature and never invite a taste for strong beverages. Delicate sauces and sherbets are also made from them.

The preparation of fruit juices for bottling is much like jelly making; in fact a bottled juice is merely jelly sealed before it has reached the stage where it will thicken, and it may even become a soft jelly when cold, but will dissolve readily in water.

For bottled juice, as for jelly, use ripe, perfect fruit, wash and cook with just enough water to prevent burning, strain a second time to make the juice entirely clear. To each cup of juice allow one cup of sugar; heat the juice, skim, add the sugar, and when this is dissolved, skim again, pour into sterilized bottles and seal with bottle cement or paraffine.

A bag for straining fruits is best when made with a point which brings the entire weight of the fruit to press in one place and makes the juice drip easily. Fine cheesecloth is a good material; fold it to make two thicknesses, then fold the doubled material in cornucopia shape and make a hem over the top, inclosing a large embroidery hoop, cut a little place in opposite sides and the stout tape over the hoop for a ball or handle to use in hanging the bag. The hoops cost 5 cents a pair and one keeps the bag open for filling easily. There should be two bags, as it pays to pass the juice through a second one to make it perfectly clear. Always scald a jelly bag and wring it before putting in the fruit.

HISGEN CALLS BRYAN FAKIR.

Independence Party Candidate Continues Campaign of Abuse.

Kansas City, Mo., Sept. 26.—Thomas L. Hisgen, candidate of the independence party for president, addressed a large crowd in Turner Hall here today.

Mr. Hisgen spoke of the resignation of T. C. Dupont and Charles N. Haskell and declared that in these cases resignation is equivalent to confession.

He declared that Mr. Bryan had known of the charges against Haskell months ago, and he spoke of the democratic candidate as a political fakir, saying:

"If Bryan is sincere, let him get right with the people."

"In the course of his speech, Mr. Hisgen said:

"Since the beginning of the independence party campaign, Mr. Hearst, myself and other speakers have been trying to impress upon the minds of the people that there is an urgent need of a new party. We have advocated this because of the fact that the old parties have fallen into the control of the same power, the corporate wealth of the country, but the members of the old parties who were reluctant to desert the ranks of the old parties in which they had marched so long indicate that they are all from Missouri and wanted us to show them. Today the new independence party has established the truth of our assertions in a way that has startled the country and shocked the leaders of the two old parties.

"Daniel Webster once declared a suicide is a confession in his argument in connection with a murder case. If he were alive today and taking part in a national campaign he would be compelled to assert that resignation is confession.

"The independence party, through Mr. Hearst, charged Senator Forsaker with being a tool of the Standard Oil trust. Forsaker has confessed and has practically stepped down and out of the grand old party.

"The independence party charged the republican party with having put at the head of its speaking bureau T. C. Dupont, one of the owners of the powder trust, which the government is now fighting. Dupont, of course, did not attempt to deny this, and today you read his resignation in the newspapers as a conspicuous figure in the Taft campaign.

"So much for the republican party at this time. We charge that it is being run by the trusts and we claim that we have made good the charge.

"We made the same charge against the democratic party, and showed that Charles N. Haskell, treasurer of the democratic national committee, was connected with the Standard Oil company and was one of the warm friends of this powerful combination. Haskell denied it and Bryan rushed to the aid of his friend. Today you may read of Haskell's resignation and his resignation is a confession, for he hung on just as long as he could without being kicked out by good democrats."

RIDDER IS HASKELL'S SUCCESSOR

Famous New York Journalist Selected as National Treasurer.

New York, Sept. 26.—Herman Ridder, editor of the Staats Zeitung, and vice chairman of the publicity bureau of the democratic national committee, was today appointed by National Chairman Mack as treasurer of the national committee to succeed Governor Haskell, who resigned his position early today in Chicago.

The appointment of Mr. Ridder as treasurer of the committee was made a few minutes before Chairman Mack's departure for the West.

The appointment of Mr. Ridder came as a surprise to national committeemen here, who had been given to understand that a western man would be appointed. Mr. Mack said:

"I am very much pleased that Ridder has seen fit to accept the responsibility of the treasurership. He is a very high type of the American business man and one whose associations and connections will not bring him any charge of suspicion, of having to do with those corporations to which democracy is opposed."

Earlier in the day Mr. Mack announced that he would not make public his selection for treasurer until Monday, but tonight he secured Mr. Ridder's acceptance and decided to make the announcement at once.

Mr. Ridder will likely leave for Chicago in a few days to take up the work at headquarters.

HIS STERLING HONESTY.

Traveling Man From Bryan's Home Town Tells Story Illustrating Nebraskan's integrity.

"Let me tell you something about W. J. Bryan," said M. J. Waugh of Lincoln, Neb., president of the Lincoln Paint and Color company of Lincoln and Dallas, who is in this city on business and who is a guest at the Southland Hotel.

"Bryan is as honest as the day is long. He wouldn't tolerate a dishonest action for a minute. Let me tell you an incident which will show you how Bryan's honesty is above all policy and all personal aggrandizement.

"About twenty-one years ago, after my personal acquaintance with Bryan began, he was the attorney for a company in Lincoln, Neb., which was on the verge of failure. The officers and directors of the company proposed that they take some improper methods of protecting themselves at the expense of their creditors when the firm should fail, but Bryan strongly advised them not to do so, saying that the means they wished to employ were dishonest.
They persisted in their intention, and against his strongly uttered protest proceeded to carry out their plans.

"When he saw that all his persuasion was in vain, he told the officials that if they went ahead with their dishonorable work he would notify their creditors. 'Who ever heard of an attorney preaching in a thing of this kind?' said the officials among themselves, as they went ahead with their plans, fully convinced that Bryan would not carry out his threat. But Bryan was as good as his word. Not resting a minute, he proceeded to call up every one of the company's creditors, and after informing them of what was taking place, advised them to have their attorneys take steps to protect their interests. I was one of the creditors, and I will never forget the feeling of admiration that took possession of me, as Bryan, at one end of the telephone, exposed the plot to me. It was a plan which many failing companies have used to defraud their creditors and one which many attorneys would not have protested and might even have advised, but Bryan could see no side of the case but its dishonesty. At the risk of losing thousands of dollars himself in attorney's fees and of perhaps being regarded by his fellow members of the bar as being guilty of an ethical crime, he exposed the dishonesty of his clients. This phase of his character has been predominant all through his career.

"When I first met Bryan he and I were the only democrats in that particular neighborhood of Lincoln. The rear of his house faced the rear of mine, and almost every morning for several years we met at the corner and walked to the business section of the city together, he to his law office and I to my business.

"Naturally, being the only democrats in the neighborhood where we lived, our conversation on these short walks drifted to politics and I said
then that Bryan was a natural politician, and often told him so, because his views on every political subject which was brought up were clear cut and expressed with the greatest precision and understanding. I moved into the neighborhood about twenty-one years ago and have known Bryan ever since."—Dallas News.

From all appearances it seems that Standard Oil is going to be the para-

The Times has received a fresh supply of campaign buttons containing the picture of Bryan and inscribed as fol-

All loyal democrats who want to wear one of these buttons are asked to call ing buds, and before the buds open.

A talking stool or shovel is not a very good instrument to make a cow give down her milk. Gentle persuasion, good feed and kind treatment are better.

Dairymen should raise their own cows, who want to sell their best milk. If they depend on buying they must be content with culls, or cheap fancy prices.

The sheep would all give vent to their gratitude in a unanimous baa—
if they realized the benefit of their immunity from ticks by the use of the clipping machine.

Cows give more milk, horses do more work, hogs fatten faster and hens lay more eggs when they do not shiver in cold weather. Then all of them are less liable to disease.

There is a limit to all things, and hogs will only fatten on whatever whatever it may be, and they had better be made to eat the coll.

How would you feel if your cows kicked you every time they didn't get just what they wanted to eat? We think you would feel pretty much the same way as they do if you kick them for not doing what you wish.

THE DOLLAR MARK.

A Theory as to the Origin of This Monetary Symbol.

The origin of the dollar mark is one of the curios of our financial history.

In the early days of the nation there was utter confusion in the circulating medium. Several of the colonies had authorized coins of different denominations, and, besides these, there were English pence, shillings, crowns and half crowns; French coins brought from Europe and Canada; Spanish coins of half a dozen denominations, especially reals and doubloons; Mexican coins; in Pennsylvania Dutch and German pieces, and along the coast Portuguese and even Italian money was often seen, brought by seamen.

The United States mint was established in 1791, and the United States coinage became, of course, the legal tender. The mixed coinage, however, was not at once displaced, but continued in local use, so that it became necessary for merchants in keeping accounts to designate that a bill was to be paid in United States currency, or, if in miscellaneous coins, these were received at a discount. So before the sum total of the bills the merchant was accustomed to write the letters "U. S.," signifying United States money. In the hurry of writing the "S" was often written over the "U," then the connecting line at the bottom easily torn off, and to the present day inconsequently commencing the practice by making the "S" then adding

outwear the sheerer chiffons and nets. Lace dyed to match the costume is still used by the blouse makers, but more often as trimming for net of the same color than as the blouse material.

Use Tulle in Waists.

And the story comes, too, from Paris that there is to be a lot of tulle used in the waist materials this season. This doesn't mean the light, fluffy illusion that ladies used to wear for neck jabots, but a very delicate quality of wash net suited to the jenne fille and to her older sister with equal grace.

With such a variety of materials and such an assortment of styles to select from, no wonder the observer knows in his heart that the separate waist for street and afternoon wear is not doomed to a very sudden death or even to a gradual wasting away.

LABOR MASS-MEETING TONIGHT.

General Organizer of American Federation of Labor to Speak in Carpenters' Hall.

At 7:30 tonight in the Carpenters' Union Hall Henry M. Walker, general organizer of the American Federation of Labor, will speak upon the subject of "Economic and Political." It is expected that a big attendance of the members of the labor organizations and their families will be on hand. Mr. Walker will likely touch upon the aims and purposes of the Woman's International Label League which is a new organization that is doing a great work in behalf of union labor and the union label by educating and demanding the products and patronage of those displaying the union label, store and shop cards.

The labor organizations are coming in for greater attention this year than ever before which is due to the fact that the national campaign is being waged with the demands of organized labor made some of the most prominent features and is a foregone conclusion that the party that receives the united support of organized labor will go in power. Mr. Walker says:

"This year, above all others, it is a question as to whether the dollar or the people shall rule. The man who votes for a third party is throwing his vote away, either one of just two parties are going to succeed and organized labor never had a greater opportunity for recognition and results than it has for this campaign, and it behooves the laboring man to be an 'opportunist' and vote for the NOW—that which he can get during life time instead of some distant dream."

THE KINGMAKER.

Earl of Warwick, a Heroic Figure in English History.

The Earl of Warwick, commonly called the "Kingmaker," from the faculty with which he created and deposed monarchs during the contest between the house of York and Lancaster, lived in style of magnificence and hospitality of which no period perhaps furnishes an example. No less than 30,000 persons are said to have lived at his board in the different manors and castles which he possessed, and the military, adorned by his hospitality as well as his bravery, were strongly attached to his interests. This distinguished warrior fell at the battle of Barnet in 1471, when, owing to the mistake of one part of his army falling upon the other during a fog, he was defeated by Edward IV.

In former battles Warwick had always fought on horseback, that he might at once ride along the line and perceive the particulars of the action, but on this occasion he determined to fight on foot, that his soldiers might see that he was resolved to share with them the dangers of the day. After having exerted himself as an officer and a hero in fruitless attempts to turn the tide of fortune in his favor he rushed into the hottest part of the battle and fell covered with wounds. His brother, Montague, in endeavoring to save him met a similar fate.

SKIMMILK PAINT.

A Cheap, Quick Drying Coating That Will Wear Well.

The following formula for making skimmilk paint will be of interest to all who desire a cheap paint that will wear well:

Stir into a gallon of skimmilk three pounds of portland cement, adding at the same time any paint in dry form that will give the color you desire. The milk will hold the paint in suspension, but the cement, being heavy, will sink; therefore it will be necessary to keep the mixture well stirred with a paddle. Mix only enough at a time for one day's use. If the mixture is not thoroughly stirred as you use it, it will get thicker and thicker and it will be necessary to thin it by adding more milk. Six hours after applying this paint it will be dry. It is not affected by weather.

Carbolic acid or any other disinfectant can be added, thus making it very effective for use in poultry houses and the stable. It makes an excellent paint for fences when colored drab by the addition of a little lampblack or a dull green by adding ochre and a small quantity of prussian blue.—E. B. Rexford in Outing Magazine.
