RESIDENT IS SILENT

ROOSEVELT WILL MAKE NO REPLY TO HASKELL'S CHARGES MADE PUBLIC LAST NIGHT.

FEARED BY SUBSCRIPTION

Used By Haskell for Money to Fight Roosevelt and Hearst is Not Viewed With Favor.

The Times, Oklahoma City, Oct. 1.—Gov. Haskell's appeal for popular funds to fight Hearst and Roosevelt received with mixed opinions. Many condemning the plan and others wanting to drop the matter. So far Haskell has not suits against the president or does not intimate when he Will Not Answer Haskell.

The Times, Oklahoma City, Oct. 1.—Ottor, correspondent of the Texas, was advised by Secretary Haskell's secretary that he will not reply to any of charges.

Will Want Funds to Fight Roosevelt and Hearst.

Special to the Times, Oklahoma City, Oct. 1.—Governor Haskell, recently signed treasurer of a democratic national committee, made an appeal to the people of Oklahoma for financial assistance to help him to make a fight against Roosevelt, William Randolph Hearst and Oklahoma interests whom he asserts are attempting to blacken his character. A novel procedure is included in a signed statement published in the paper today. After reciting the facts leading up to his resignation, the governor states that he "begs for honest people" and asks "will I have their support?"

The Oklahoma interests, whom he lists as governor, has opposed on the ground that he is not a candidate, and Roosevelt should have made their fight on me when I am not a candidate," he asks, "save only at the instigation of the machine existing in Oklahoma."

Believes in Bryan. "I was from the beginning and am now a firm believer in W. J. Bryan. I believe in the principles of government that will lead the American people out of the wilderness of trust and monopolistic oppression."

The Governor says that the Oklahoma interests have large funds, that the president has at his command the organization of the federal government and that Mr. Hearst has unlimited money and a string of newspapers.

As for me, I am not possessed of wealth, the statement concludes, and receive a salary but barely enough for the expense of my family and myself. I am giving my entire time to the welfare of Oklahoma. I can make the fight against all of those interests and I do so with the support of the people.

Frank With Honest Men.

I want to be frank with every man in Oklahoma, and in that frankness, it is proper for me to say that I not only want your moral support, but some small financial assistance to pay the expense of this great fight. Postage, paper, labor and other items of expense can only be incurred when I have the means to meet them, and I do not consider that I am going beyond the bound of propriety when I say that the very fact that I am being fought within our State by an element I have mentioned should be conclusive proof to the common people that I am standing firmly for honest government and against graft, greed and corporate oppression. This being the case, I ask for your assistance, not in large amounts, because a few thousand dollars will be ample for the fight, but I do ask that the multitude weigh this matter, realize the great odds against me and render such financial assistance as they deem proper.

C., Oct. 1.—With only two more days for section work in the minute study of every phase of the tuberculosis problem, seven sections of the International Tuberculosis Congress convened this morning in the National Museum and addresses were made by scientists from all parts of the world. Business Men TO GO TO STAMFORD

An invitation from the Stamford Commercial Club was received by the Wichita Falls Chamber of Commerce to assist in the welcome to Messrs. Youkum, Trumbull and others at Stamford October 6th. At a directors' meeting this morning the invitation was favorably acted upon and a business men's excursion will be run on that date. It was decided also that an excursion be run to Byers and Petrolia on the 8th inst. to cultivate closer relations with the outlying territory.

A proposition from Pell City, Ala., from a firm of shovel manufacturers, was received, but as the plant would be in the nature of an experiment, owing to the manufacture of a new patent it is doubtful if serious consideration will be given it.

Messrs. Kell, Bean and Huff were appointed a committee to further investigate the telephone situation with reference to improved service pending the installation of a new equipment.

$84,994 IS RAISED

HEADQUARTERS SHOWS AMOUNT CONTRIBUTED THROUGH THE NEWSPAPERS.

TIMES FUND IS GROWING

Common People are With Bryan on Question of Publicity of Campaign Contributions.

By Associated Press, Chicago, Ill., Oct. 1.—The democratic national headquarters today made public an itemized statement showing that the campaign contributions from newspapers to date had reached a total of $84,994.

If no other result has been accomplished by the recent disclosures concerning men prominent in the councils of both the republican and democratic parties, much attention has been directed to the campaign funds of the two parties and in his last letter, Mr. Bryan has driven President Roosevelt into silence.

The republicans are in a hole on the publicity subject, Roosevelt says the reason why they don't want publicity before the election is that the democrats would seek to misrepresent the motives of some of the corporations contributing to the republican fund, and would seek to cast unjust suspicion upon the republican candidates if the names and amounts were made known before the election.

In answering Mr. Roosevelt, the commoner says: "Your argument, if sound, would prevent publication after the election, for why should an unjust suspicion be cast upon officials after the election any more than before?"

Does not the secrecy before election increase this suspicion? We are going to give you an opportunity to misrepresent the motives of those who give to our campaign fund and to arouse all the suspicions you can, we are going to prove to the people that we are making a fight for the whole people and not for those who have been enjoying privileges and favors at the hands of the government and we expect that the honest sentiment of the country will rebuke the party whose convention refused to endorse any kind of publicity and whose candidates are not willing that the people should know until after the polls are closed what legislative interests have been active in the support of the republican party.

Taft at Omaha Tonight.

By Associated Press, Beatrice, Neb., Oct. 1.—Judge Taft began his second day's speech making in Nebraska today with a speech at Beatrice. Taft spoke about the failure of democratic remedies to produce good markets. His trip will be concluded at Omaha tonight, where a big demonstration will occur.

Visiting Masons to Be Entertained at Lake Wichita.

A special train will be run to the lake about 1:30 o'clock and as the visiting Masons and their families are expected to number about 200, the excursion will be taxed to its capacity.

AGAINST GUARANTEE

AMERICAN BANKERS' ASSOCIATION OPPOSES DEPOSITORS' GUARANTEE PLANK.

RESOLUTIONS ADOPTED

Condemning Guaranty Law—Will Pass By Overwhelming Majority. Meeting Closes Today.

By Associated Press, Denver, Colo., Oct. 1.—In an address before the American Bankers' association this morning, William C. Connwell of New York spoke against the proposed depositors guaranty law as outlined in the Democratic National platform. The following is a condensed statement of his argument:

The adoption of a plan for government guarantee of deposits, based upon a fund contributed through a tax upon all banks, would introduce into a great business of trust a principal fundamentally unsound and sure to be productive of disastrous effects in the future.

The method of building up deposits is by conservative and capable management of the bank's affairs. A government guarantee of deposits would induce unwise, if not reckless liberality in loans, rates of interest and other indulgences in order to win deposits. The conservatism, which characterizes present bank management, would no longer obtain.

A tax guaranteeing deposits would eventually be paid by the borrowers. The number of banks in which loans to depositors ensues, amounts to a very small percentage. The very large percentage of people who are not responsible, would have to pay the tax. It is a tax levied upon ability to compensate inefficiency.

Discrimination by depositors as to character of banks now deters inefficient and dishonest people from engaging in the banking business. Under universal guarantee this restriction would be removed.

Because of the high character and ability of the bankers at the present time, losses are kept to a minimum figure. A great increase in speculative loans and resulting losses would necessarily follow the operations of incapable and untrained people under the proposed guarantee of deposits.

The result of a bank should be and is the result of long continued, assiduous application of conservative methods, ability, skill and earnest effort. Under government guarantee an attempt is made to create such credit instantaneously, which cannot be successfully accomplished, since it is violating all the natural rules of conservative procedure.

Bank failures would not be prevented by ultimate guarantee of deposits, such failures are the result of unwise investment and management. A guarantee plan would tend to increase, rather than to diminish them. Ruins would not be prevented, as depositors would elect to take their deposits at one from threatened institutions, rather than to await ultimate payment by means of a guarantee fund.

In view of the prominence given to this question at the present time, we deem it important that the American Bankers' association place itself on record in opposition.

THEREFORE BE IT RESOLVED, That the American Bankers' Association is unalterably opposed to a system of government guarantee of deposits, believing that it is sophistical and fallacious from an economic standpoint, superficially pleasing, but full of evil consequences and that its tendency will be to lower the standard of banking ability and conservatism that has been maintained for nearly half a century, and which has resulted in a fractional minimum of loss in handling the enormous sums entrusted to the care of banking institutions in the United States during that period.

By Associated Press.

Denver, Colo., Oct. 3.—At the closing session of the American Bankers Association today officers will be elected and resolutions that may have a far-reaching effect will be considered. The report of the federal executive committee will bring up the resolution against the bank deposit guarantee proposition. From the present outlook it seems that the resolution will be overwhelmingly carried.

Things We Forget

A FEW INSTANCES OF "I FORGOT" AS PRESENTED BY "SIR JIM" IN BONHAM NEWS

The porch had been freshly painted. The instructions had gone forth in the household to keep off the porch until the paint had dried. A few hours later a little foot print was seen in the center and it told the story. The owner of the little foot that left the imprint on being questioned, said:

"Papa, I forgot it. I am sorry."

The phone rang and a voice said "Is that you, John?" "Yes," came the answer, and the party at the other end said: "Where have you been all morning? You remember that you promised to meet me at 8 o'clock. You know that I was depending upon you, for there was much at stake for me. I fully expected you to keep your promise." John said, "Is it too late now?" The other one said, "Yes, it's too late. Your failure to keep your promise has cost me considerable. Why didn't you meet me?" John said:

"I forgot it. I am sorry."

The doctor came into his office and with a look of anguish on his face fell into more than seated himself in a chair. His bookkeeper saw that there was something wrong and coming to his side, said, "Doctor, what is the trouble?" The doctor said, "Young man, did you receive a message this morning from the home of Mrs. Brown, asking me to come immediately, that her child was dying? Young man, for two hours I sat by your side and calmly read the morning paper. As I did this the life of the only child of Mrs. Brown took its flight. Had I been present I think I could have brought back to health this precious child. Why did you not tell me of the call that came?" The young man said:

"I forgot it. I am sorry."

There was a whistle, the ringing of bells, a great crash, an explosion, the screams of the wounded and dying. A passenger train with nine coaches had run through an open switch and off a high embankment. Messengers were sent in every direction for surgeons, for help. Somebody failed to remember instructions. Over on the side of the embankment lay a torn and bleeding man; it was the engineer. He said: "My instructions were to stop at the little town three miles back, but—"

"I forgot it. I am sorry."

Yes, we forget and we are sorry, but that does not remedy the wrong; it does not remove the footprints on the paint; it does not restore the lost fortune; it does not bring back the child; it does not heal the awful wounds of the bleeding passengers. This excuse is found in every life, in all kinds of business:

"I forgot it. I am sorry."

The sentinel has gone to sleep, the guard is off duty. There is a lesson here for us—there is a strong lesson in it for every young man and every young woman coming into the control of a life. The business world wants men who do not forget; they want men who do not forget their teachings; they want men who do not forget their responsibilities, given into their hands to make the best of at all times; men who do not forget instructions. The social world wants those who do not forget; who do not forget that upon morals is built the true society; who do not forget that truth and virtue are the supreme corner stones of character.

Husbands want wives and wives want husbands who do not forget the marriage vows; who do not forget the home; who do not forget the promise of love.

Christ, the savior of the world, wants followers who do not forget His teachings.

There is no word so terrible as "Forgotten." Forgotten! O what does it mean? "Lord, be with us yet lest we forget, lest we forget."

RAISING CHICKENS.

Her Theory Was Right, but a Faw Marred Her Practice.

"Yes, farming is all very easy," the farmer said. "Any city person could make a success of it at the first go-off. Mrs. Jack Frost took the farm next to mine one year. Being from the city, she thought she would show us country people a thing or two about real farming. She began on a chicken yard.

"It was a fine yard. Pretty soon a hundred eggs hatched out. There were half hens and half roosters. Mrs. Jack Frost, before sailing for Europe, separated the two sexes, and, killing all the roosters, she sent them to her friends. A fine lot of spring brilers they made. They were no bigger than squabs.

"But when Mrs. Jack Frost got back from Europe a strange sight her chicken yard presented. It was nothing but young roosters—young roosters, crowing, young roosters swaggering about, while here, with flying feathers and squawks and blood, a terrible fight went on, and there, disregarded by all, lay the corpses of brave birds slain in single combat. At sunrise you could hear the crowing of those roosters all over the county.

"Poor Mrs. Jack Frost understood the theory of chicken raising all right, only in separating the young birds she mistook the males for the females, and vice versa."—New Orleans Times-Democrat.

WHEELBARROW TRAVEL.

A Common Method of Transportation in China.

"Probably more freight and more passengers are transported in China by the wheelbarrow than by any other land method," said a Hongkong man who is interested in the shipping trade in the far east.

"The wheelbarrow used in China differs from that used in America in the fact that the wheel is set in the center and thus supports practically the entire load, while the handles are supported in part by a strap or rope over the shoulders of the man who operates it.

"As a result the cooly in China will transport nearly half a ton on his wheel. Wheelbarrows are much used in the country, where the roads are but little developed, and I have heard that passengers sometimes make the entire trip from Shanghai to Peking, a distance of 600 miles, by barrow.

"A two passenger barrow will make about twenty miles a day, and the cooly is content with a pay of about 20 cents a day or an average of about half a cent a mile for each passenger. On the level, well kept streets of the foreign quarters of such cities as Hongkong, Shanghai and Peking the wheelbarrow cooly will struggle along with a load of six or even eight people."—Washington Herald.

THE TRAPPED THIEF.

A Midnight Adventure With South American Desperadoes.

In describing certain experiences among the outlaws and desperadoes of South America an English traveler tells the following grisly story:

"One night a farmer was roused from sleep by hearing unusual and stealthy noises about the place. He got quietly out of bed and, after listening attentively, discovered that some people outside were cutting a hole through the door close to the bolt by which it was held.

"It did not require any great amount of detective talent to guess the object of the operation, and the best way to foil it was suggested by a thought of rawhide with a loop on it which hung from a hook of the inside of the door. Noiselessly removing the thing, he slipped the end of it through the loop, and there he stood armed with an iron prompter, ready for action.

"It was an anxious time while the farmer stood watching the hole in the door grow larger and larger until at last it was of sufficient size to effect the purpose for which it was made.

"The supreme moment arrived, and a hand was stealthily inserted not only through the hole, but also through the loop of the life lasso which hung skillfully around it. With a sudden jerk the loop was tightened around the wrist and the hand dragged in as far as the aperture would allow, while the thing was securely fastened to the hook on the back of the door.

"The robber was perfectly helpless. His companions came to his aid, and, having ineffectually dragged at the imprisoned arm till they were tired, gave up the struggle and prepared to depart. But they were prudent men, and it occurred to them to save himself their companions might betray them. Dead men, they thought, tell no tales, so they killed him."—New York Mail.

A Maharajah's Revenge.

A maharajah of Nepal committed suicide in honor of the disfigurement which an attack of smallpox had caused in his features. The maharajah, who was passionately attached to his first wife, had long been ill with the disease, and had attended her in her illness. Then he flew at higher game. One of the great temple he brought the body, placed it on a bier before the door and had gunners fire in terror of the proposed blasphemy, they refused. Thereupon the maharajah hanged several of them. The survivors then submitted, and the guns were fired and the idols blown to pieces. —London, Missionist.

PRICE OF A THRONE.

Luxury Expenditures at the Court of Napoleon.

One of the most famous firms for gold and silk embroideries, a house which had already served Louis XVI, and his court with highly artistic needlework, is still in possession of its accounts of former centuries. An inspection of these books reveals a good summary of the luxury expenditures of the French court, the Bonapartistic as well as the legitimistic. Napoleon I, who for his own wants was, in contrast to the splendor of Josephine, very economical, went, though, to a large expense when it was for representative gain dresses. The 10,000 francs which he had to pay for the embroidery on his coronation robe he did not consider too high a price. But his embroidered frock coat that had cost him 3,500 francs and which became too tight for him not long after his first year he ordered to be widened by pieces of cloth and the new seams to be covered with embroideries. The bill for his throne, however, runs up to a pretty considerable amount. The outer drapery of purple velvet, trimmed with gold lace, was 10,200 francs. The red velvet panels were strewn with laced golden bees at 5 francs apiece, and above the fountain the emperor's coat-of-arms was seen in raised embroidery; total cost, 16,200 francs. The inner drapery consisted of blue satin with gold lace at 9,900 francs. Gold embroidered stripes for the inner trimming cost 8,500 francs. Embroidery on the blue velvet fabric amounted to 3,420 francs, the foot cushion to 1,200. In addition there were 1,050 bees on the unembroidered panels of the balladon at the price of 5,250 francs. Altogether the price of Napoleon's throne was 53,970 francs.—Harper's.

HEARST HAS FAILED

To Cast a Smirch Upon any Democrat.

Louisville Courier-Journal.

Washington, D. C., Sept. 25.—If the brigadier general and commander in chief of the yellow press association is not able to produce any more letters than he has yet to the discredit of democrats in high or low positions; he is going to make a complete failure. The stolen goods that he has offered to the public, so far as the democrats are concerned, amounts to little, if anything. There is not an intelligent man in the country that does not know that ex-Senator (not senator, as the Associated Press has it today) John L. McLaurin, was eliminated from public life six years ago by the democratic party. Tillman stamped him to death in the senate, metaphorically speaking, and later would have physically exterminated him if it had not been for the United States senate who McKinley, to gain a vote in the senate for one of his projects, I do not remember just now what it was, but I think it was something connected with the Philippine policy, desired the friendship of McLaurin, and it was said at the time that he would take care of him after the expiration of his senatorial term. Tillman and other leading democrats in the senate, who were always on to McLaurin and his ways, served notice upon the amiable president that so far as the democratic side of the senate was concerned, it would be united against confirmation of McLaurin. In my remembrance there has never been in Washington a member of the United States senate who did less and dropped out of public life as ingloriously as this man McLaurin of South Carolina.

The belief among democrats here is that the receiver of stolen goods will not be able to smirch the character of democrats of prominence and respectability, and who have the confidence of the people. It is not believed that he can do so, for in my remembrance there has never been a leading democrat in public life that has in any way, manner or shape disgraced his party by graft or corruption, or by being connected with any unsavory transactions. This is especially true of the South. Though its representatives in congress have been poor men, nine-tenths of them living upon their salaries, I do not recall a single instance since the war where one of them was even as much suspected of going wrong.

O. O. STEALEY.

"THE CIRCUS BEAUTIFUL"

Prof. Andrews, Zoologist and Lecturer, Tells of Many Animal Characteristics.

"Most animals are afraid of water and will fly from it in terror," says Prof. John H. Andrews, the famous zoologist and lecturer in the Sells-Floto Shows' wonderful menagerie. "To others there is a fascination about a flame and they will walk into it, even though tortured by the heat. Some of the men were talking the other day about the conduct of animals during a fire. A horse in a burning stable, they agreed, was wild with fear, but a dog was as cool in a fire as at any other time. A dog keeps his nose down to the floor where the air is purest, and sets himself to calmly finding his way out. Cats in fire howl piteously. They hide their faces from the light and crouch in corners. When their rescuer lifts them they are, as a rule, quite docile and subdued, never biting or scratching. Birds seem to be hypnotized by fire and keep perfectly still; even the loquacious parrot in a fire has nothing to say. Cows, like dogs, do not show alarm and often find their way out themselves. Rodents seem never to have any difficulty in escaping from fires. The performing seals will juggle rods with a fire ball on each end without fear.

"There can be no longer any substantial reason for doubting that the five senses man imperfectly exercises are by no means all that are possible to sentient creatures. One such sense not possessed by human beings, but to a greater or less extent almost universally present in the polar bear is what perhaps may be called the sense of localization. It enables its possessor, apparently by its use, to find a desired spot. It is evidently closely connected with an instinctive and perfect memory of distance and direction."

The immense bears from the Arctic region are one the features of the Sells-Floto menagerie this season and will be on an exhibition here when the big show arrives October 15th.

A MIND READER.

His Analysis of the Character of the New Boarder.

"I can tell you all about yourself," said the boarding house Sherlock Holmes to the new boarder after the landlady had introduced them across the roast mutton.

The boarding house sleuth prided himself on his keen observation of human nature and his ability to make deductions therefrom.

"You're a mind reader, are you?" asked the new boarder.

"To a great extent," replied the sleuth. "For instance, I never met you before, but I know you are from the east."

"Good guess," said the new boarder. "You come from a family of extraordinary ability and good antecedents, although none of your family possesses great wealth."

The new boarder smiled his approval. "A peculiar thing about you is that your beard is of remarkable toughness. Your face, on the contrary, is very tender, so that you experience great difficulty in shaving. Few razors are made of fine enough steel to overcome the texture of your beard."

"True again," said the new boarder, "although I don't know how you guessed it, but my beard is the toughest I have ever encountered."

"Also you are a rough and ready humorist, able to snap out a funny remark in almost any situation that can arise."

"So," said the new boarder, "you make me feel uneasy. How do you do this stunt of character reading?"

The boarding house Sherlock smiled broadly and speared a "French fried."

"It's this way," he calculated. "Simple enough when explained, like all really great detective work. I knew you were from the east by the way you worked the salt shaker. Westerners pick up the salt shaker with the right hand and plunge it at the food. Easterners seize the shaker with the left hand, invert it and tap it briskly on the bottom with the right hand."

The boarders gasped in admiration of the sleuth's genius. "I knew you came from a remarkable family because that's the kind we all come from. I concluded your relatives were not overburdened with wealth or you wouldn't be living in this hushery. I knew your whiskers were remarkably tough, for every man living thinks he has the toughest whiskers going. The barber tells him so. Somehow or other a man takes it as a high compliment to be told his whiskers are the toughest the barber ever tackled. Then it helps to recall the victim to having his face torn off."

"Lastly, I knew you were a humorist on the same broad and general principle. Every American thinks he is a second Bill Nye, with additions and improvements. The small boy at the ball game yells 'Get a basket' when a ball is fumbled. When the street car conductor says, 'Plenty of room up in front,' but a dozen whips reply, 'Plenty of room, but it's all taken.' When you find a chaff of this great republic who doesn't think he's a jolly wag, you're discovered something."

The new boarder was silent in mental cogitation.—Kansas City Star.

Crocodile Worship.

It was in the very ferocity and ferribleness of the crocodile that the Egyptians found the inspiration for the cult they devoted to him. They were nightly afraid of the monster and therefore instituted in his honor the supposedly appeasing worship as though they had said, "Be good enough, not to eat us and we will build temples to you and bow down to you as to a god." The students of early history have clearly proved that the earliest worship of every sort took the shape of offerings intended to appease the elementary forces of nature, or the real or imaginary beings of whom men were afraid.—New York American.

Unavoidable.

"Do you think a man ought to be greater than his party?"

"Well," answered Senator Borghum, "it isn't desirable. But sometimes you can't prevent a man's party from shrinking."—Washington Star.

POWDER ON PEANUTS

Used to Make the Goobers Look Clean and Pretty.

LONG AND CAREFUL TOILET.

Besides Being Powdered, the Nuts Are Brushed and Polished and Sized Before They Are Roasted—Cooked at the Mill by Experts.

There is not much to a peanut, to look at it. It grows on a farm and is ready to eat after it has been roasted. A careless deduction would link up the farmer, the commission merchant, then the grocer or Michelangelo. That would be a mighty careless deduction, though. The first time a lot of unroasted peanuts are encountered rub one on a piece of dark cloth and observe the white mark it leaves. That is talcum powder. They powder peanuts to make them look pretty, which is just why sister powderers her face, and in that particular peanuts and girls are both alike.

Any farmer can grow peanuts, but no farmer can sell them to the consumer. The peanut he grows is not fit to put on a stand, at least not until it has been touched up. Look at the peanuts on the next push cart and see how even they run as to size. They have all been sorted. Observe how clean they are and how white this lot is, how gray that lot is and how uniform all the different lots are. They have been sorted.

When the peanut is grown it is gathered and carried to a miller, who puts it in a great bin and later carries it over to his mill, where he has a contrivance just clobber full of brushes. These brushes get almost every fleck of sand and dirt out of the peanuts, which is more than the farmer could have done if he had spent the summer trying. Then the brushed peanuts go on to another sort of mill, and by being tossed about they get their hulls polished, and while that is being done they are peppered with talcum powder, so that by the time they come out of this machine they are as white as they are to appear in public.

But the peanut is not ready for market yet. It is alongside a lot of larger or smaller ones, hurting the appearance of the larger ones, while it does not enhance the value of the smaller ones. To even up matters the output of the talcum powder polishing machine is run out on to a great canvas belt, which travels for fifty feet or more slowly. On either side of this belt are boys and girls. These sort the peanuts as they pass; this squad picking out the biggest, that squad taking the next largest, and so on down till the smallest are left. Shells that have dinged the powder tag are thrown back into the mill, and broken hulls are thrown away.

That is about all for the peanut now, excepting the roasting. It has to be roasted. There is a popular superstition that the Italian vender roasts the peanuts in his little push cart. All he does is keep them hot. They are roasted at the mill, tous at a time, cooked by a fiery by experienced men, who have thermometers and all sorts of appliances to show them when a peanut is "done." This roasted product is the one that the Italian buys, and when he gets it he pops it into his little fake roaster and warms it over. It takes a long time and a lot of work and hosts of boys and girls to get the nickel's worth of hot roasted peanuts in the red and blue striped bag, but there is a reason for it all, and the reason is that a sack of even run small peanuts will find a buyer quicker than a sack of big and little ones all mixed up together. The stomach likes the eye to make a good report, and the peanut commission merchant understands that a shining shell, with indentations filled with talcum, pleases the eye, and he has no compunctions about the powder tag, because he has found out that in roasting the heat drives off the surplus talcum, so that is why if one wants to find out for true about this trick of the trade it will be necessary to get hold of an unroasted and not a roasted peanut.

By way of good measure it might be added that the shelled peanuts, generally sold salted, have been run through a thrashing machine, which breaks the hull and blows it out of the way. Only "Spanish shell" nuts can be so treated. The tougher hulls have to go to Signor Italiano.—Kansas City Journal.

The Long Lived Pear.

The pear is really more hardy than the apple and needs less cossetting. There are trees still standing near Monroe, in the state of Michigan, which were planted by the French settlers before Penn founded Philadelphia. Pear trees can be kept in good bearing condition for 300 years—and apples for at least 150 years. I have an apple tree 115 years old and its annual fruitage is as perfect as it was sixty years ago.—E. F. Powell in Outing Magazine.

The Comparison.

Towne—Yes, my wife is able to dress on comparatively little money. Brown—Oh, come now! Comparatively little? Towne—I mean a little compared with what she thinks she ought to have.—Exchange.

On a Big Liar.

"Let's go forward to the main deck." "All right, Steward, call us a taxi-cab."—Washington Herald.

MAILING LETTERS.

One Trick That Doesn't Go With the Postal Officials.

There are times when, for one reason or another, you may wish to post a letter to some one, indicating in the postmark on the envelope that it came from some other than your own home town. But accordingly, as you value the scheme which you are trying to work, don't make the mistake of trying to work the postmaster of that particular town into this particular scheme of posting the letter for you. In anything from a harmless practical joke up to a penitentiary offense which you may be planning, the postal service will recognize in you only a soundly intent to deceive and defraud, and it has schooled every postmaster in the country into that fixed belief which he must act.

For example, you have written your letter, which you desire to appear as having been mailed at a particular postoffice somewhere in the United States. You seal it, stamp the envelope and address it to the person. This letter you inclose in a larger envelope to the postmaster of that particular town with the written request, "Please post the inclosed letter at your office." The postmaster will do this. "Oh, yes."

The postmaster, taking up the directed, stamped and sealed envelope, writes across a corner of the envelope a full explanation of the matter, reciting that it was received from Mr. So-and-so at a certain place, asking that the postmaster drop it into the mail as originating at that particular office over which he has jurisdiction. "Now little situation, isn't it?" Chicago Tribune.

ROBERT FULTON AS A LAD.

Incidents Illustrating the Young Man's Interest in Mechanics.

There are several anecdotes which relate to Robert Fulton's early interest in mechanics—the first steps of progress toward his later skill. In 1773, when he was eight years old, his mother, having previously taught him to read and write, sent him to a school kept by Mr. Caleb Johnson, a Quaker gentleman of pronounced Tory principles—so pronounced, in fact, that he narrowly escaped with his life during the Revolution. But Robert Fulton did not care for books, and he began at a very early age to search for problems never man-tered and bound in print. This greatly distressed the Quaker teacher, who spared not the rod, and it is said that in administering such discipline on the hand of Robert Fulton he one day testily exclaimed, "There, that will make you do something!" to which Robert, with folded arms, replied, "Sir, I came to have something beaten into my brains and not into my knuckles." Without doubt he was a trial to his teacher.

He entered school one day very late, and when the master inquired the reason Robert, with frank interest, replied that he had been at Nicholas Miller's shop pounding out lead for a pencil. "It is the very best I ever had, sir," he affirmed as he displayed his product. The master, after an examination of the pencil, pronounced it excellent. When Robert's mother, who had been distressed by his lack of application to his studies, expressed to his teacher her pleasure at signs of improvement the latter confided to her that Robert had said to him, "My head is so full of original notions that there is no vacant chamber to stow away the contents of dusty books."

These incidents to the contrary, it is nevertheless true that Robert Fulton did absorb a good knowledge of the rudiments of education.—Century Magazine.

The Coveted Hand.

The young man had gone to the hairdresser's father—always a ticklish job—but he took his courage with an iron grip. "Sir," he blurted out, "I want to ask you for your daughter's hand."

The old man, not in the least disconcerted, said: "Which hand? The one she signs checks with, I suppose?"

Hit Him Hard.

"I presume," said the lodger jolly at the conclusion of the little dispute with his landlady—"I presume that you will allow me to take my belongings away with me?"

"I am sorry," was the icy reply, "but your other collar has not yet come home from the laundry."—Kansas City Independent.

SHALL THE PEOPLE RULE?

Bryan Answers President's Argument Against Publicity of Campaign Contributions.

In a reply to Roosevelt's charge that he (Bryan) was favored by the trusts and that the republican campaign fund was being collected by cleaner methods than the democratic fund, Mr. Bryan in an open letter to the president again directs attention to one of the vital issues of the campaign. Mr. Bryan's letter a part is as follows:

You are the first conspicuous member of your party to attempt an explanation of your party's objection to publicity before election and the admission which you make will embarrass your party this year.

Your position is that the publication before election of contributions made to your campaign fund would furnish your political opponents an opportunity to give a "false impression" as to the fitness of your candidates. You cite as illustrations the contributions made to Governor Hughes' campaign fund, the contributions collected by Mr. Harriman and the contributions which are now being collected for Mr. Taft's campaign fund. You charge in effect that the people are so lacking in intelligence that they might condemn an improper contribution when you declare it to be proper. If the voters differ from you on this question are they necessarily wrong or ignorant? Increase this suspicion? We are going to act as self-appointed guardians of the people and conceal from them what is going on, lest the people be misled as to the purposes and effect of large contributions? Is this your explanation of the action of the republican leaders in the national convention voting down a publicity plank? If you will pardon the suggestion, I believe that a better explanation can be found in holy writ, for do we not read of men loving darkness rather than light, because their deeds are evil? You attempt to make a personal question of it, and ask whether any one will accuse such persons as you, Governor Hughes and Judge Taft of being influenced by contributions. This is not the question. If it is found that a party to a suit has given a sum of money to one of the jurors, the court does not stop to inquire whether or not the man is an incorruptible man for accepting the money, for it was explicitly stated that the money was accepted with the understanding that he was under no obligation to consider it in making up his verdict. The court would hold that the giving of money by an interested party to the receiving of money was a contempt of court and an interference with the administration of justice. Public officials occupy much the same position as jurors. They are constantly called upon to decide questions between the favor-seeking corporations on the one hand and the people on the other, and there is a very general impression that officials of these favor-seeking corporations do not put up large sums of money for purely patriotic motives. Mr. Havemeyer testified before a senate committee some years ago that the sugar trust made it a business to contribute to campaign funds and that it was its custom to give to the party in power in the state. I do not mean to say that Mr. Hughes was influenced by the contributions made to him by the trust magnates whose names were given in the after-election report; I do not mean to say that you were influenced by the contributions collected by Mr. Harriman; neither do I mean to say that Mr. Taft will be influenced by the contributions that are being made to his fund by the trusts, but I do mean to say that the American people have a right to know what contributions are being made that they may judge for themselves the motives of the givers and the obligations imposed upon those who receive them.

Reflection on the People.

The reflection upon the people involved in your charge that they would use the information which publicity would give, is unworthy of one who has been elevated to so high an office by the votes of the people, and I venture the assertion that you cannot procure from Mr. Taft an indorsement of your defense. He is now before the people; he is offering himself as a candidate for the presidency; he dare not ask the people to whom he appeals that they have not sense enough to form a just and correct opinion as to the purpose which leads parties interested in special legislation to make big contributions. You fear that we would misrepresent the motives of those who are contributing to the republican campaign fund and cast an unjust suspicion upon republican candidates if the names and amounts were made known before election. Your argument, if sound, would prevent publication after the election, for why should an unjust suspicion be cast upon officials after the election any more than before? Does not the secrecy before election increase this suspicion? We are going to give you an opportunity to misrepresent the motives of those who give to our campaign fund and to arouse all the suspicion you can; we are going to prove to the people that we are making a fight for the whole people and not for those who have been enjoying privileges and favors at the hands of the government, and we expect that the honest sentiment of the country will rebuke the party whose convention refused to indorse any kind of publicity and whose candidates are not willing that the people should know until after the polls are closed what predatory interests have been active in support of the republican party. With great respect, etc., yours truly,

W. J. BRYAN.

DIVISIONS OF TIME.

The Planet Venus Has Neither Days, Months Nor Years.

Though the fundamental division of time, the day, appears intuitive to most persons, it is well to remember that in the arctic regions the marking of this division is by no means easy. During several successive months the sun is either always below or always above the horizon, and the only method—a very uncertain one—of distinguishing between day and night is to observe the times of high and low tide. Division of time into months comes from the motions of the moon. Malays, Polynesians and Australian aborigines reckon time exclusively by months and days.

That greater unit of time, the year, characterized by the regular succession of the seasons, has presented the greatest difficulties to exact determination, partly because the seasons are not sharply distinguished in some regions, partly because of the universal desire to establish among the year, month and day simple relations which find no support in the facts of astronomy.

Inhabitants of Venus, if there are any, must find it extremely difficult to establish units of time. Venus always turns the same face toward the sun, so the planet has no day, and the lack of a moon deprives it of a month. Finally, it has no year, for its axis of rotation is perpendicular to the plane of its orbit and the latter is almost circular. (Chicago News.)

Dear Little Times Readers: We have decided to give our little folks an interesting contest, one that you are all familiar with, that is, the Gentry Bros' Dog and Pony Shows that visits Wichita Tuesday, Oct. 6th.

Near the center of the page today is a picture of some very important members of the show, which you will see next week. Well, we want you to write a story about this picture or about a circus and we will give a family ticket to the shows as a premium. The contest opens at once and will close Saturday, Oct. 3rd, 6:30 p. m.

You can write on one of the following subjects or else you can pick out something in the picture which adorns the Times today.

- "A Day at the Gentry Shows."
- "The Parade."
- "The Elephants."
- "What I Enjoy Most at the Gentry Show."

"The Most Interesting Animals." Just think; you are in a position to take every member of your family, father, mother, sisters and brothers, to these pretty shows as your guests if you win. Won't that be fine and dandy? Sit down right now and write the best story you possibly can.

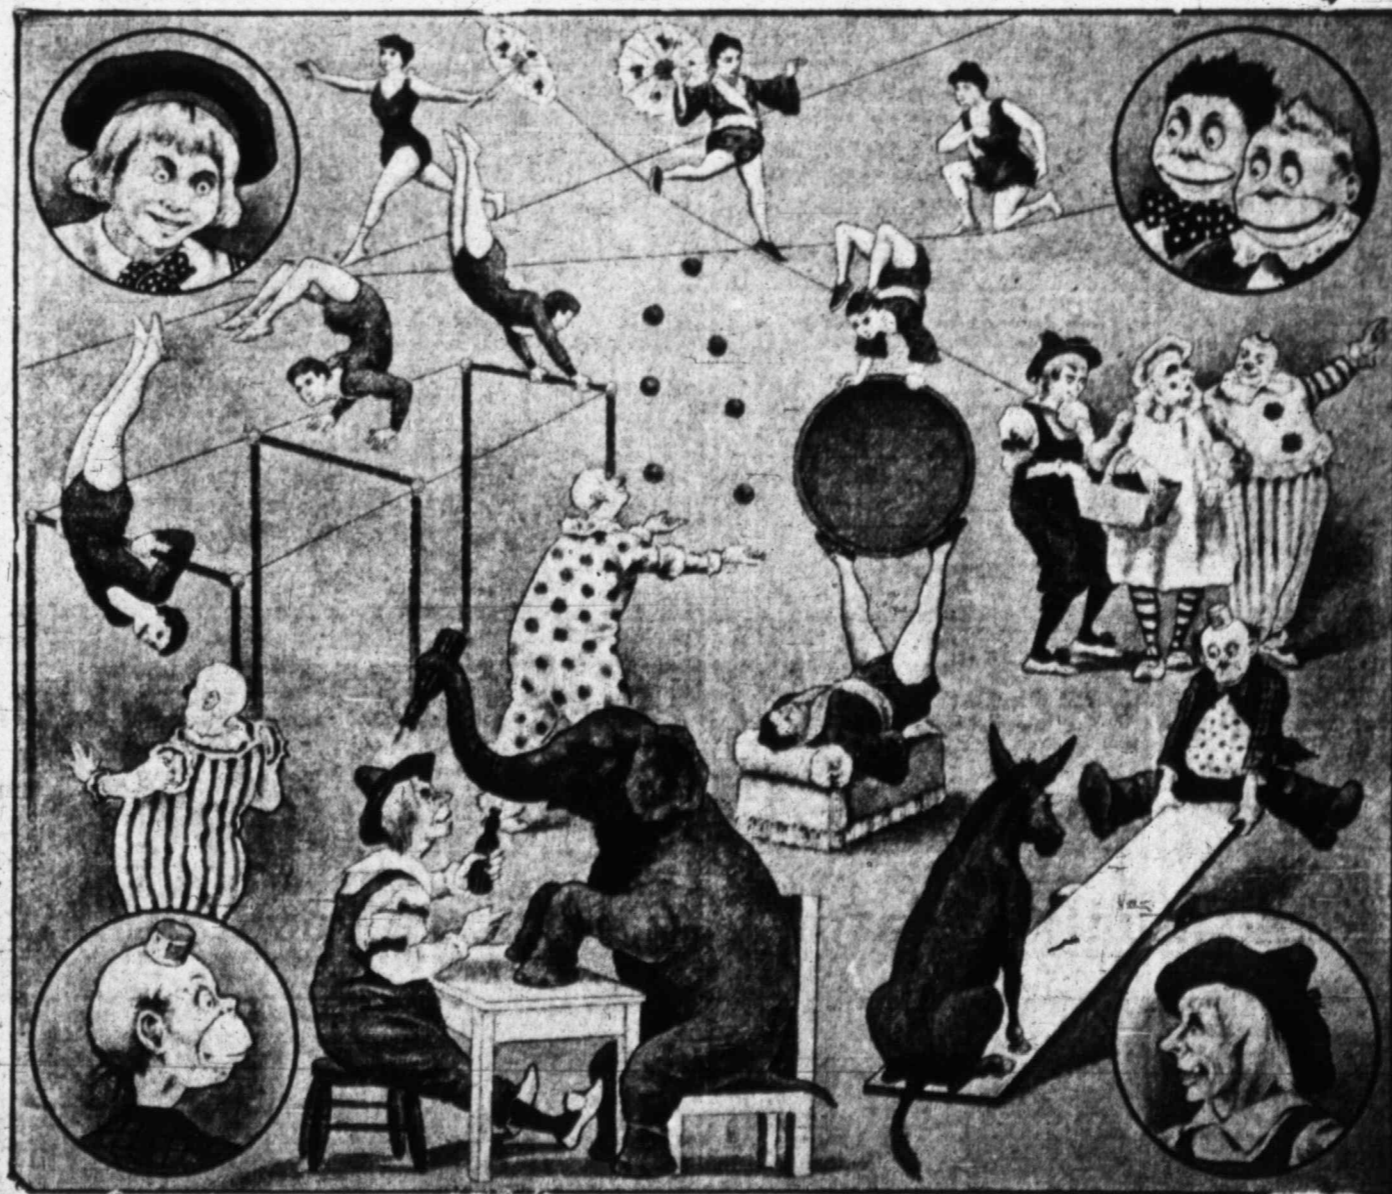

Each contestant in writing must observe the following seven rules:

Some Wichita Falls or Vicinity Boy or Girl to name the Baby Pony with Gentry Show under Auspices of the Daily Times.

Under the auspices of the Times a new baby pony with the Gentry shows will be named by some little boy or girl when the show visits Wichita Falls, Tuesday, Oct. 6th. In each of the Gentry advertisements a coupon will be run daily. Fill out this coupon, bring or mail it to Pony Editor, Times, before Saturday night 6:30, Oct. 3rd, as the contest closes at that time. The judges selected by the Times will decide which name they deem the prettiest, and to the lucky sender of the name the Times will send a family ticket and also a permit to ride in the parade at 10 o'clock Tuesday morning. It's delightfully good to know you have named one of these prettily arched necked and spotted ponies. That little pony will travel all over the United States and Canada and all the little boys and girls in every town will hear the story of how the beautiful little pet got its name in Wichita Falls, and when and by whom. The coupon appears today and will continue daily until and including Saturday, eve, Oct. 3rd. Look for all the coupons in the Gentry ads you can find and send as many names as you want to, but all must be on the coupons clipped from the advertisements.
