DIMAGING EVIDENCE

DISPATCH SAYS EVIDENCE HAS BEEN COLLECTED TO HANG FOUR NIGHT RIDERS.

HUNDREDS IMPLICATED

Burton's Confession Implicates Three Hundred Men—Forty Under Arrest.

Samburg, Tenn., Oct. 28.—The ringleaders of the night riders in this section is believed to be a prisoner here named Garrett Johnson. It is the general opinion here that if Johnson would talk he could tell more about the recent outrages than any other man under arrest.

Forty men are now under arrest and enough evidence has already been collected to hang four men.

The latest report is that Burton has broken down completely and in his confession implicates three hundred men from Obion county. A hundred others are believed to be guilty.

Tells Story in Confession.

Tiptonville, Tenn., Oct. 27.—"Tid" Burton, self-confessed night rider, told a remarkable story today of night ridedepreidations in the vicinity of Reelfoot Lake, confessing to the part he played in the outrages which reached a culmination in the putting to death of Capt.
Quinten Rankin, a prominent attorney of Trenton, Tenn., on the banks of the lake a week ago tonight, and implicating men prominent in this section of the State. Of the number he declares had a part in the killing of Capt. Rankin, more than half are now in custody at Camp Nemo, the military base near Samburg. The confession was made at the fall here to Sheriff Haines of this county, Judge Harris, owner of a large tract of land in the Reelfoot Lake district, who has suffered much at the hands of the riders, and Mayor Cleveland Donelson of Tiptonville.

The confession was made freely and voluntarily, with no offers of a lessened punishment or threats, and apparently without a qualm of conscience he gladly unfolded his story.

While Burton denies that he was present when Capt. Rankin was put to death, he admits that it was through information given by him that the band congregated and secured the attorney while he slept at the hotel at Walnut Log. According to Burton's confession, Tom and Garrett Johnson, under arrest and William Watson, under bond in connection with another raid, were the leaders of the lake band.

Burton declared that the first part he played as a member of the night rider band was when he aided in the burning of a fish dock at Samburg, and several weeks later was one of a party which crossed the county line from the Reelfoot Lake district into the adjoining county of Lake and whispered Justice of the Peace Winn, an aged man.

Coming to the killing of Capt. Rankin, Burton declared that on the night before the lynching he went to Walnut Log and there met James F. Carpenter, the attorney of Union City, at whose solicitation Rankin and Judge R. Z.
Taylor, his associates in the West Tennessee Land Company, the owners of the land upon which the lake is situated, came to the lake. It was stated that the visit of the two men was to arrange a timber deal with Carpenter.
After this conversation Burton states that he communicated with the night rider leaders and told them of the intended visit of the representatives of the land company. On the following night he saw the two men at supper at the hotel, but declares that he left Walnut Log early in the night and went out to the lake to fish. He states that he was fishing when he heard the shots which ended the life of Capt.
Rankin, but did not return to the shore for some time.

He submitted to arrest quietly and was at once brought to the jail here.
While en route, Burton admitted to the deputies having him in custody to being a member of the night rider band, but when asked the following day to repeat his confession, he denied that he had confessed or that he knew anything of the killing of Capt. Rankin.
After a few days in jail, however, he changed his mind and it was at his request that Sheriff Haines and others to whom he confessed came to the jail today.

Burton will not be admitted to bond, but it is probable that he will be removed from the local jail to Nashville for safe keeping.

tion is that he will be elected by a good gives no figures as to the amount

Texas Furniture and

Struggle to Throw Off an Influence.

[Copyright, 1908, by American Press Association.]

Elisha Hereford at twenty married a girl of eighteen. Elisha was rather a bright fellow, but without good judgment. His wife was exactly the opposite. She was not bright, but possessed an enormous amount of "horse sense." For twenty years she kept her husband on the track and when he showed signs of "breaking" would speak to him in no uncertain tone, pull strong on the curb and now and then give him a sharp cut with the whip. The consequence was that Hereford, being smart, by the time he was forty had wedged a competency.

Now, the thing without which success is not to be attained is often unrecognizable, especially by the achieve-er. Hereford attributed it in his case to his talents, arguing that if he were not pulled back by his wife he would be a millionaire. His most intimate friends knew that his wife had put those talents to their proper use and prevented his wasting them. Perhaps if any of them had told him this, it might have neutralized his story. Perhaps he would have received the information as false. The latter supposition is the more probable.

One day Hereford disappeared. It was found that he had taken $50,000 and left $100,000 for his wife, with no explanation whatever. This is the most practical thing he had ever done without her assistance. Almost any one would pronounce the money preferable to the explanation. But the act was just like Hereford. He was a mixture of the sublime and the ridiculous.

He hadn't been gone long before his wife received a letter from an American gentleman in Constantinople named Tarbox stating that Hereford had died there. He had left instructions with Tarbox to send what money he had left—some $10,000—and his in-cinerated remains to his wife. Her friends said that so long as he had sent the money he hadn't have troubled himself about the ashes. Mrs. Hereford deposited the former in bank and wept over the latter. When it came to sentiment she had her weaknesses, the most pronounced of which was a sincere affection for Elisha Hereford.
She was too sensible to keep her husband's dust in her own house, so she spent $100 on a marble tomb, placed it in a cemetery and locked the dust in it. Not that the $100 represented her love for her dead husband. The accompaniment Norton and his wife Grace, here. The woman went on to Corinth, Texas. The boy is still missing. It is believed that Norton was murdered. His hat was found on top of a box car.

Norton leaves a widow and three children at Quannah. He is a brother to Aaron J. Norton, a wealthy ranch owner and county commissioner of Quannah, and also of Rufus N. Norton of Hereford.

He was about 35 years of age and has been a cowpuncher all his life, working on many of the biggest ranches in the State. At the World's Fair in St. Louis he won the world's championship for broncho busting.

Norton's Son Located.

Fort Worth, Tex., Oct. 28.—Advises received this afternoon from Corinth say that Grace Norton, the son of the Quannah cattleman who was killed here, was in Dallas with his mother, who met the youth there.

TRAFFIC STILL DELAYED.

Wharves of Frisco Track at Verdigras
Not Yet Repaired.

Tulsa, Ok., Oct. 28.—A wharves of fifteen hundred feet of track at Verdigras had not been repaired today and Frisco train service was not resumed.
A delay of two more days is expected.

scribers were other than the friend of Depew, who was an individual. This amount enabled the New York State committee to continue its work, with the result that at least 50,000 votes were turned in the city of New York, making a difference of 100,000 votes in the general result.

What was done four years ago can be done again. Chairman Hitchcock has stated that money is "coming in more freely." New York is pivotal State again. Bryan cannot win without it. Taft might win without it, but it would be a sort of miracle.

Last spring every republican in the house of representatives voted for the McCall bill, which provided that all contributions be made public ten days before the election. The party is undoubtedly strongly in favor of such publicity. Mr. Roosevelt and Mr. Taft stand almost by themselves for secrecy. Mr. Roosevelt is the man who fixed with Harriman the deal by which a great sum of money was successfully used to corrupt the voters of New York. Mr. Roosevelt is still the dominant factor in the republican party.

Will he refrain from doing this year what he did four years ago? There's nothing to indicate it. There is only one way in which the republicans can set at rest the charges made by Mr.
Bryan. They must publish their campaign contributions. And they don't dare do it.

STATE EXPECTS TO WIN SUIT

Special to the Times.
Washington, D. C., Oct. 28.—That Texas will likely win the receivership case against the Waters-Pierce-Oil Co.
was shown today to a certain extent by the apathy of the trust's attorneys and the enthusiasm and confidence of the Texas lawyers.

It is firmly believed in court circles that the supreme court will throw out the suit, in which case the company must pay the huge penalty assessed.
The oil company's attorneys will make their fight against the combination of the receivership and penalty cases and the Texans expect a dismissal of the company's appeal.

Davidson, Lightfoot, Bates and Allen are representing the State.

Supreme Court Proceedings.

Special to the Times.
Austin, Tex., Oct. 28.—In the case of the G. H. and S. A. railroad vs. Matteador, from Bexar county, the supreme court today held that the railroads are not required to keep their premises safe for persons impliedly invited there, and that no recovery was allowable when no act of negligent conduct of employes was shown.

Other proceedings of the supreme court were as follows:
Guttapereha Rubber Company vs.
Cleburne, from Johnson county; judgment of the court of civil appeals reversed and the district court affirmed.

In the answer to the certified question of Burnett vs. the Fort Worth Light and Power Company, the opinion of Judge Gaines of the court holds that the deceased was clearly a trespasser upon the roof of the building where the wires were strung and that the family was not entitled to damages for his electrocution.

started the blaze. The loss of the coal has crippled the road.

along the Hudson river, the republican and half a dozen other towns and cities to Troy, where he will address a big mass meeting tonight.

Declares His Insinuations Were the Proper Inferences.
New York, Oct. 26.—Late tonight William R. Hearst issued a reply to Mr. Archbold's statement in which he says that "The Standard Oil company pays its honest debts by check, and when it has recourse to a certificate of deposit it is because there is a dishonest debt to be paid."
Mr. Hearst continues:
"Mr. Archbold says now that he sent his secret certificates of deposit to Mr. Elkins as campaign contributions," but that "with the very letters enclosing the $150,000 of secret-certificates sent to Mr. Elkins was a letter asking him to kill an amendment to a bill with no other explanation than for reasons which seem potent to us."
Mr. Hearst then challenges Mr. Archbold in these words:
"Either deny your letters or admit your letters. If you deny them I will produce fac-similes; if you admit them you are convicted by your own words."

Mr. Hearst refers to that "McKinley falsehood" and then says:
"You did contribute to the McKinley campaign, but you did not contribute through Mr. Elkins; you contributed through Mr. Hanna and I have letters to prove that."
In conclusion, Mr. Hearst says:
"Mr. Archbold finally takes refuge in the usual defense of the caught and cornered coward."
"I have not mentioned Mr. Archbold's daughter and never would have thought of dragging her name into this controversy. Why should Mr. Archbold do this despicable thing? I have no letters from his daughter."

OF INTEREST TO WOMEN

The Morning Bath.

Indianapolis News.
A daily tubbing is the mark of a well bred person. Let none think this fact is to be concealed. The woman who tubs every morning and follows it with a brisk rubbing shows it in her face as well as in her manner. There is a clearness in her complexion, a keenness in her eye and a dignity in her bearing.

The beautifying bath is a tonic, though one who cannot manage it then may take it at another hour. The trouble is, many plan to bathe at other times, but are prevented by a press of duties. Besides, the stimulating, cool bath—not too cold—is most valuable in the morning and tones the complexion beautifully. No woman, however, should take a cool plunge unless she has such immediate reaction as to feel refreshed.

A sponge bath is a possible substitute, and followed by a brisk rubbing is very healthful.

Any warm bath should be accompanied by a brisk rubbing with a bath brush. A cloth may cleanse, but it lacks the invigorating quality of a brush, which cleanses and removes dried skin.

An after rub with one's favorite toilet water, somewhat diluted, and massage of the face, shoulders and arms with a pure cream, a short rest on divan or bed, and the bather feels as beautiful as she would like to be.

Smart Neckwear.

One of the new pieces of neckwear which has just been arranged by a man milliner, who caters to the smart set in New York, is made of printed linen.

The ground work is of dull ecru and the printed flowers are very small in quaint pinks, blues, yellows and here and there a touch of green.

The tie is made in the form of a one-inch neckband, which goes around the base of the collar and is bound with an extra narrow black silk ribbon.

This hooks at the back. In front there are two loops and four ends of different lengths, all cut about an inch wide and bound with black ribbon.

The bow is securely fastened to the front of the neckband, and it is worn around shirtwaists. It will be very smart as a finish to soft stocks to put on blouse frocks of voile and striped flannel for early autumn.

Suggestions for Insomnia Sufferers.

The St. Louis Post-Dispatch offers the following suggestions to those who suffer from insomnia:

A physician who has made a specialty of insomnia advises those who are afflicted with it in its earlier stages to sleep with a pillow under the feet and nothing under the head. He also recommends this as a remedy for night mare, which is not a jest to those who suffer in this way.

When one is tired the best way to woo sleep is to place a pillow in an upright position at the foot of the bed and to press the feet against it. This will rest the entire body.

He advises against sleeping on the back with the arms thrown over the head. This, he says, invites disease of the throat, eyes and nose; the pressure of the palate against the back of the throat prevents free breathing and weakens respiration.

He also advises against sleeping with the arms folded on the chest. Of all parts of the body, the chest and lungs need to be free of any weight.

No matter how short the slumber or how warm the night, it is best to cover the body with some light covering, even if it is only a newspaper over the feet. The discarding of sheets is a bad practice.

Struggle to Throw Off an Influence.

(Copyright, 1908, by American Press Association.)

Elisha Hereford at twenty married a girl of eighteen. Elisha was rather a bright fellow, but without good judgment. His wife was exactly the opposite. She was not bright, but possessed an enormous amount of "horse sense." For twenty years she kept her husband on the track and when he showed signs of "breaking" would speak to him in no uncertain tone, pull string on the curb and now and then give him a sharp cut with the whip. The consequence was that Hereford, being smart, by the time he was forty had secured a competency.

Now, the thing without which success is not to be attained is often unrecognizable, especially by the achiever. Hereford attributed it in his case to his talents, arguing that if he were not pulled back by his wife he would be a millionaire. His most intimate friends knew that his wife had put those talents to their proper use and prevented his wasting them. Perhaps if any of them had told him this it might have neutralized this story. Perhaps he would have received the information as false. The latter supposition is the more probable.

One day Hereford disappeared. It was found that he had taken $50,000 and left $100,000 for his wife, with no explanation whatever. This is the most practical thing he had ever done without her assistance. Almost any one would pronounce the money preferable to the explanation. But the act was just like Hereford. He was a mixture of the sublime and the ridiculous.

He hadn't been gone long before his wife received a letter from an American gentleman in Constantinople named Tarbox stating that Hereford had died there. He had left instructions with Tarbox to send what money he had left—some $10,000—and his incinerated remains to his wife. Her friends said that so long as he had sent the money he needn't have troubled himself about the ashes. Mrs. Hereford deposited the former in bank and wept over the latter. When it came to sentiment she had her weaknesses, the most pronounced of which was a sincere affection for Elisha Hereford. She was too sensible to keep her husband's dust in her own house, so she spent $100 on a marble tomb, placed it in a cemetery and locked the dust in it. Not that the $100 represented her love for her dead husband. The tomb was plenty large to contain the ashes, and Mrs. Hereford's sentiment never ran away with her instinct of economy.

Before proceeding any further with this story I wish to say that there is a feature in it that won't be believed. You can invent a lot of imaginary nonsense, and it will be gulped down, but give people a real coincidence such as happens every day and they will laugh at you. I am sure, however, that any one who knows Elisha Hereford on hearing what I refer to would say, "That's just like him for all the world."

As I have said, Mrs. Hereford was prone to indulge a sentimental sorrow so long as it was not expensive. She went once a week to the cemetery, took out the urn, dusted it, probably because she had been used to periodically dust the marble clock on her mantel at home, wept over it and put it back. One day just after having done the dusting she turned the key and with lowered head was mutely offering a prayer for the repose of her husband's soul when she was aroused by a crash. It seemed she had heard some wooden structure knocked into kindling wood. Starting up, there in a lot not a hundred yards from her she saw a promiscuous mass of slender timbers jumbled with some light woven texture. From beneath it a man struggled to free himself and after doing so stood upon his feet. The widow went toward the fragments, and when the man's head appeared above the wreckage she caught at an iron rail inclosing a burial lot.

She saw him whose ashes she had been weeping over.

"Well," he exclaimed petulantly, surveying the wreck, "it's all up, and I'm glad of it."

Mrs. Hereford, who saw a medium for wasted money, breathed hard.

"Elisha," she said sternly, "what foolishness have you been guilty of this time?"

"I own up, my dear. It was this way: I heard of all these fellows trying aeroplanes, and I had a plan that I wanted to try myself. I knew you would never consent to spending the money to build it, so I concluded to take the job into my own hands, first eliminating you from the experiment. Jim Twinkler was going abroad, and I charged him to take care of you from there under an assumed name, telling him what to say and what to send. This left me $40,000 with which to—"

"Elisha!"

"My dear."

"Have you sunk $40,000 in that—that heap?"

"I've sunk $20,000."

"Where is the rest?"

"In bank."

"You come right home with me and draw me a check for it. I was a fool not to foresee something like this. Never again will you have a dollar under your own control. I've got the money, you left, and when I get that you haven't thrown away we'll be safe."

Mrs. Hereford sold the tomb and the urn at a good profit. She secured a check for what money her husband had not sunk on the aeroplane, and from that time to the present she has held the purse strings to the family capital.

The Times closed its Bryan campaign fund at noon today by sending to Chairman Ridder exchange for the sum of $42.50, making a total of $142.50 election, not even if Mr. Bryan and city and county for the Bryan fund. The latest reports from headquarters indicate that less than $500,000 has been contributed to pay the legitimate expenses of the democratic campaign, which is sufficient, but there is no money with which to purchase the election, and even if Mr. Bryan and the democratic leaders intended such a thing, therefore, if Bryan should happen to scratch through, he will go down in history as being the only man who has been elected president during the past twenty-five years whose election has not been accomplished by the wholesale purchase of votes in the close States. Four, eight and twelve years ago the republicans had an immense campaign fund, and there is no doubt but that it was used to corrupt the ballot; the same tactics will be resorted to in this campaign there is an abundance of evidence. The only hope for the election of Bryan is that there will be too many votes to be bought. The democratic leaders are still confident of winning a great victory on November 3rd, and we down here in Texas only hope they know whereof they speak. Walter Wellman, a republican and a supporter of Taft, says in yesterday's papers that had the State of Ohio voted last week, it would have gone for Bryan; now he is not so sure, and offers it as his candid opinion that it is likely to go either way. Indiana is conceded to be close, and Mr. Bryan is confident he will carry his own State. Should he carry all three of these States, with the vote of the States that are conceded to be democratic, he cannot be elected without the vote of New York. Both the candidates are now in the Empire State making from one to a dozen speeches each and every day, showing plainly that the republicans are not so confident of the thirty-six electoral votes of that State as they were six weeks ago. The democrats have always known that it would be very difficult to land New York for Bryan, but the labor vote of that State is very large and they are claiming 75 per cent of it. Their only hope is that they will be able to make good their claim on this vote, and if they do this then New York will go democratic and Bryan will be our next president.

WHERE IS DALHART?

Attorney General Must Decide Which County it is In.

Austin, Tex., Oct. 27.—The attorney general's department is now being deluged with queries on the Terrell election law from all sections of the State, due to the near approach of the election date, and one of the most interesting and perplexing questions was submitted today by Reece Tatum of Dalhart, an attorney, in which is involved the question of in what county some of the citizens of Dalhart are entitled to vote next Tuesday. A recent suit instituted at Dalhart brought out the fact that the boundary line, upon which Dalhart is situated, between the counties of Hartley and Dallam, was erroneously surveyed and a portion of Dallam county had been thought a part of Hartley, the erroneous line running through the city of Dalhart and causing its citizens to vote in different counties, according to the section of the city in which they lived.

Accordingly the court ordered a new survey of the county line, which survey, while having been made, has not been approved, and by it Dalhart lies wholly in Dallam county. Thus the question submitted, whether the citizens of Dalhart, who formerly voted in Hartley county, shall continue to vote in that county, pending the approval of the new survey or whether they shall vote in Dallam county under the new survey. Mr. Tatum is of the opinion that the voters should vote in their former counties pending the approval of the new survey by the court. Assistant Attorney General Walthall has the question under consideration.

Nutt, Stevens & Hardeman are now at home in the new Moore-Bateman building at the corner of Indiana avenue and Eighth street. The grocery and dry goods departments, formerly located in separate buildings on Ohio avenue, are now under the same roof and the store present a very attractive appearance.

HOW SHE GOT A START.

[Copyright, 1908, by American Press Association.]
"So you're from Pistorod, stranger. Well, I want t' know. I was born and brought up there, but I hain't seen the place in twenty year. Is ole Younker livin' yet?"

"No, but his darter is, and a mighty fine woman to. She's got the biggest and best stocked farm in the county and plenty o' money in the bank."

"Want t' know. Is she married?"
"No; she hain't no use fer a man except to make money out of him. Can't any of 'em git the better of her in a trade."

"Want t' know. How did she git her start? When I lived in Pistorod ole Younker's farm wasn't more'n seventy acres, fifty cleared, and the stock was one spavined horse and a cow."

"That seventy acres he's growed to a thousand now, all cleared, two big barns full o' grain and stock. Sairy Younkers turned out to be a heap good manager."

"Dew tell? How'd she do it?"

"Waal, she got her start when she was 'bout twenty years old and purty as a bran' new mowin' machine. 'Bout that time most o' the young men in the neighborhood wanted to marry her. Far back as I kin remember I hearn all the wimmis folks and most o' the men talkin' 'bout two young fellows that was both bound to git her. They said Sairy had agreed to take the best man o' the two. As the way they was to find out which was the best man Sairy set 'em a job. The ole man hed just died, and there wasn't no one to do anything except Sairy, and she didn't hev nothin' to do it with except her good looks, and good looks in a gal don't count except to git a husband that's worth suthin'. But there wasn't no sitch in Boulder county, so it was a cold time for Sairy."

"Howsomever, she said that since her ole pop had died and left her and her mother in a bad way she'd got to hev a man as could build up the farm. Ef she got a lazy galoot to set round and whittle it 'ud be mighty hard on her. It happened to be plowin' time. She tole Zeb Mower and Jake Marks that whichever could plow ten acres fust she'd marry. Just as you said, there wa'n't but fifty acres cleared, and twenty o' this needed plowin'. She divided 'em into two equal parts, one for Zeb and 'other fer Jake. Both on 'em was awful bent on gittin' her, and their pride was teched. Besides, neither was willin' to refuse on account o' 'other. Sairy had to borrow two horses fer 'em and one plow. She started 'em one fine April mornin'. I was there, with a lot o' neighbors, to see 'em start, and all the time they was 'plowin' people was comin' and goin' watchin' 'em, while Sairy was a-smilin' on both o' 'em and bringin' 'em out things to eat and drink."

"Waal, when they come to the end o' the match it was a tie. Both got through at the same time, and both fell down exhausted. Sairy give 'em both a drink and tole 'em they was the finest fellers she ever seen. She seemed awful sorry, though, that one o' 'em hadn't come out ahead, for she said it put her in a fix. She couldn't marry neither o' 'em now. So they asked her to let 'em try ag'in. She said she'd give 'em an easy job next time. She give each on 'em twenty-five acres to plant. They was glad enough to git off so easy, but when they was gittin' to the end o' the job Sairy 'er sick with neurology and wasn't there to see the finish. Both o' 'em claimed that they got through fust, and there they was ag'in."

"Sairy was put out with bein' pestered by 'em and wouldn't hev nothin' more to do with neither o' 'em. But 'bout 'bout harvest time she relented and agreed to give 'em another trial. She said whichever got half the crop into the barn fust was the man she wanted, and she kinder hinted that there was one on 'em she did want mighty bad, but it wouldn't be fair for her to tell which. So they went to work on a third trial. This time just as they was gittin' to the end o' the job they both tuk sick, and Sairy had to finish it herself. Nobody knowed how they come to stoken both at once, and some was mean enough to hint that Sairy had given 'em some rum with plizen in it. They wa'n't sick long, but when they got well the job was finished without 'em. So she didn't take neither o' 'em now."

"That's the way Sairy got her start. She growed a fine crop as didn't cost her nothin' and put the money all into the farm. They say she got the balance of her land cleared in some sitch fashion, but I don't know nothin' 'bout that. Leastways she not only put her farm in payin' condition, but begun to buy jinin' land. She's forty year old now and good lookin' yet. All the wideners and old bachelors thereabouts wants to marry her, and I believe she could git up a plowin' or a mowin' match among 'em today if she wanted to; but, law, she hain't got no use for 'em. I axed her onc't why she didn't take a husband. She looked at me surprised-like and answered: 'What would I do with him? He'd only be in my way.'"

"But, say, neighbor, what makes you look so sorrowful?"
"You was tellin' 'bout Zeb Mower and Jake Marks, wasn't you?"
"I was."

"They was both at the soft age 'bout gals, wasn't they?"
" 'Bout twenty-three or four."

"I guess they'd both o' 'em ought to been planted in the town buryin' grove."

"What makes you think that?"
"Cos I was one on 'em."

Marriage of Popular Young People Last May Just Made Public.

A secret that has been kept for several months became known yesterday when it was learned that Miss Fay Trueblood, a popular young lady employed as a clerk with the P. H. Pennington Company, and H. O. Leonard, time keeper for the Wichita Valley railway, were married last May in Fort Worth.

That they had been able to keep their secret so well surprised even the couple themselves. As they had completed plans for starting housekeeping in a home of their own, the secret was given away and now the couple are receiving the congratulations of their friends.

"All are Meteors With a Different Name."

"We wither from our youth, we gasp away— Sick, sick: Unfound the boon—unslaked the thirst; Though to the last, in verge of our decay,

Some phantom lures, such as sought at first— But all too late—so we are doubly cursed.

Love, fame, ambition, avarice—'tis the same, Each idle, and all ill—and none the worst.

For all are meteors with a different name, And death the sable smoke where vanishes the flame."

In all probability, for millions of years, the sun has risen to bless us by day and the stars have twinkled through the evening twilight. Each of us, during our short stay, have watched in our own way, the repetition of yesterday. Men have dug and delved, studied and worried, they have searched and theorized on the origin of man. They have polluted and deluted the sacred laws with their poor mortal theory of evolution; the opinions, the theories, the deductions, the figures, and the facts are varied entanglements, intricacies and perplexities, based on personal opinions. But as varying, as far apart as they may be as to the origin of humanity, they are all agreed as to our destiny.

The poet Byron understood humanity, as a study of the above extract will show. With each birth a destiny is fixed; a fate is sealed; we may be kings and queens, presidents or leaders of men, or we may be only their subjects. Whatever our station in life "All are Meteors With a Different Name." But from the first day of our existence, we are all pushed by the ceaseless, unchanging roll of time. "Though to the last," even when we begin to bend under the weight of years "some phantom lures, such as we sought at first." But, alas! Some day, somewhere, our sun of life must sink, to rise no more. Each of us, either long or short our lives, have felt the twang of a broken chord, caused by the hand of death. Each has bowed to this immutable law; our heart has been broken (as it were), by the death of loved ones. But, alas! It must be so! We can do nothing but mourn their departure, try to perpetuate them by keeping their names and deeds engraven in the hall of memory, erect at their last resting place some beautiful and lasting memorial. Out of respect, in loving remembrance of father, mother, brother or sister, 'tis the last and only duty we can perform. We would say to you, with all due respect, do your duty and place the order now. Wichita Marble Works, 818 Indiana avenue. 144-6t Associated Press. Samburg, Tenn., Oct. 29.—There are more than ninety prisoners in camp here.

The night passed absolutely quiet and peace is practically certain, as the most important night riders are now under guard and while the soldiers are expected to go home for some time, it is generally believed that a greater portion of the work here has been accomplished.

Camp Nemo, Reelfoot Lake, Tenn., Oct. 28.—Within one week from the soldiers of Tennessee, under personal direction of Governor M. Patterson, spread their tents in the "night rider" district, evidence of the most convincing and damning nature has been unearthed, and the authorities say they have the reason to believe that possibly seven men under guard in Camp Nemo will be hanged for implication in the killing of Capt. Quinten Rankin at Walnut Log a week ago.

Frank Ferrinam has confessed and is implicated ten or twelve men now in custody. He gave names and it is understood went into full details.

BOLTS THE INDEPENDENTS.

Holt of West Virginia Declares Hearst Has Trown Off Mask.

To the Editor of the New York World: Weston, W. Va., October 21.—Enclosed find for publication with this letter my letter of resignation from the National executive committee of the (Hearst's) Independence party, in view of the fact that he has virtually deserted Hagen, thrown off the mask and concentrated his efforts in behalf of Taft and against Bryan, whom he supported in two former campaigns, and only through revenge now assails him because he had the foresight, patriotism and wisdom to refuse to nominate Hearst for the presidency of 1904, which act adds laurels to the crown of Mr. Bryan, unequalled in brilliancy by any other act for the public weal.

Hearst has been driven into a hole of hiding in fleeing from the officers of law never dreamed of by Mr. Rockefeller when he fled or hid from summons served by officers who were urged on by Hearst's papers, and no account has ever been given of a man of prominence while secreted in such a place, sending his wife to answer the officers with the statement that he was not in the car, etc. Very Respectfully,

M. S. HOLT,

Mayor of Weston, W. Va.

In his letter of resignation Mayor Holt says that "it was by the often repeated assurances so glowingly pictured in the Hearst papers that I accepted a position on the National executive committee," but that at the Chicago convention he found that "in the main the delegates were not of the self-sacrificing, patriotic, intellectual class that the Hearst papers described them to be, but a majority of them were of the howling heeler variety." Later, he says, he found "that the promoters of the new party have entered into a conspiracy to delay and defeat the reforms advocated by Mr. Bryan." He has concluded, he writes, that Mr. Hearst "by his dishonest methods will sink into political oblivion."

REAL SERVICE TO YOU

IF, BY some persistency in giving advice, this newspaper can convince every merchant of the wisdom of telling you all of his store-news that is important—of using enough space in which to do it, and of telling as much of his store-news in every issue as you would be interested in knowing--and--

If, at the risk of over-iteration, this newspaper should convince you that this same store-news is of real, live, palpitating importance to you, as fully worthy of your attention as politics, or base ball, or Crowned Heads, or elopements, murders, riots, fashions or functions of the rich--and--
