HONEST BUSINESS NEED NOT FEAR

PRESIDENT ELECT TAFT PROM-ISES BUSINESS ADMINISTRA-TION OF NATION'S AFFAIRS

RENEWAL OF BUSINESS

And a Scattering of Clouds of Depression is Phosphated By the Victorious Candidate.

By Associated Press.
Cincinnati, Ohio, Nov. 6.—Judge Taft said today that there was hardly the slightest possibility of his going to Texas to hunt at any time this winter.
He added that no arrangements of any kind had been made looking toward such a trip and that none were contemplated. Judge Taft wished to correct the statement that he owned land in Texas, adding that the ranch in question belonged to his brother's wife, Mrs. C. P. Taft. "I don't own an acre of land in Texas, nor have I any interest in any ranch," he said.

In a speech to the Business Men's League in Cincinnati last night, Judge Taft said:

"I have been the subject of a coterie of bosses," he declared with the greatest good humor, "which the demands of duty left me nothing to do but to respond to the calls from 6 o'clock in the morning to midnight, to the calls of the populace—and if I did not respond, the crowd after one minute made a mighty shout—'Hurrah for Bryan.'"

In the beginning Mr. Taft admitted that it might not have been so easy to smile tonight if the telegrams of congratulations which passed between Lincoln and Cincinnati today had been originated in this city instead of the home of the great Commoner.

"Seriously," he declared, "the indications are already apparent, and the principles which I entertain, that the great communities and the investors of both foreign nations and among our people will take heart in carrying out the great enterprises.

"Business men are to be shown the lines of legality, which lines have been emphasized during the last four years.
Business men shall know that they are to conform to the laws upon the statute books and that no favors are to be expected for those who break the laws.

"This shall be so that the men who conduct a legitimate business may understand that the government is back of them and does not intend to do anything to interfere with their legitimate advancement."

After the cheering had subsided he said:

"It is a question of definite knowledge of the statutes and their clear understanding which shall make the honest progress of our business possible.
And that is, in my belief, all that is necessary to make that progress substantial and enduring."

Judge Taft apologized for directing his words into such a serious discussion.

"I know the difficulties that will arise in my new career," Judge Taft added. "I know that there will be questions which will arise that I do not know of now, and that times will come when many of my friends here will shake their heads and say 'Poor Bill,' but I ask is for suspension of judgment until the situation may be understood. Its decision will rest upon the principles of sound and honest business policies which I have outlined. These details will, I am sure, explain whatever may appear to be errors of judgment and mistakes."

THOUSAND YARDS DAILY.

Alvord Quarries are Now Getting Out Great Scads of Fine Ballast.

Capt. John May of the Denver road quarries, near Alvord, is in the city Thursday and he is feeling chipper.
He says that with his present force he is sending out 1,000 yards of crushed rock daily for the ballasting work being done by the Denver. This means that this quarry is now supplying material to ballast 4.4 miles daily, it requiring about 225 yards of rock to the mile. At this rate the Denver will be able to complete 26.4 miles each week, if help could be secured to surface the ballast as quickly as it can be gotten from the quarry.

Up to date the Denver has its gravel ballast laid from the Canadian river to Childress, about 140 miles, and it has crushed rock ballast laid from Fort Worth to Alvord, a distance of fifty-two miles. The total mileage to be ballasted is 261 miles more than has yet been done.—Fort Worth Telegram.

CROWELL IN JAIL AT HENRIETTA

M. J. Crowell, who was taken into custody at his home Wednesday afternoon by the Clay county officers in connection with the death of his wife several days ago, is held at the Clay county jail in Henrietta and has so far not been permitted to give bail.

An investigation is being conducted by the grand jury and a large number of witnesses from the community in which the Crowells live have been summoned to appear before that body.

It is said that the body of the dead woman bore evidences of foul play and that other circumstances tend to throw suspicion upon the husband of the dead woman.

By Associated Press.

tence on Curtis was suspended.

IDENT MAY SUCCEED SEN-

Believed That He Would Feel
No Hesitancy.

By Associated Press.
Washington, D. C., Nov. 6.—That President Roosevelt may be the successor of Senator Platt in the senate is considered by many in Washington as not at all improbable. So far as is known, the president has not made any recent expression on the subject, but it is said that with Taft as president he will not feel the same hesitancy about entering the senate as he would if some one else were in the White House.

FARMERS' UNION CAN- NOT LEAVE THE STATE.

Charter of the Organization Requires Headquarters in Texas—Change Needed to Go to New Orleans.

With reference to the probability of the removal of the national headquarters of the Farmers' Union to the city of New Orleans, as outlined by President Barrett, in an interview at New Orleans, President Neill of the State Farmers' Union of Texas said:

"Personally and officially I know nothing at all about this matter. President Barrett never having informed us of his intentions. He may attempt to carry out this plan and he may succeed, but there is one way only that this can be done and that is to have the national charter amended.

"The charter was given by this State and our State law requires an organization to select its headquarters when the charter is granted, and it remains the headquarters until the necessary measures have been taken to annul it.
The headquarters of the national union under the charter at present are at Point, Texas, where an office has to be kept and what taxes are due the State are paid. The executive committee of the national union have the authority to take the necessary action in the premises, so it remains with them to say what shall or shall not be done, even if New Orleans takes the action indicated by President Barrett."

INJUNCTIONS AT AMARILLO.

Local Option Situation Takes a New Turn.

A rather sensational turn of affairs has presented itself in connection with the local option law in Potter county in the form of the service of mandatory injunctions restraining those alleged to have in contemplation of the sale of intoxicants in this city. It is further alleged in the application for injunction that the parties named therein are now dispensing intoxicants, that they are provided with bars, fixtures, bottles, glasses, tools and other appliances used in the dispensation of said intoxicants, all in violation of the aforesaid local option law now prevailing in Potter county. The injunctions are based in each case upon a similar petition from Hugh L. Humphrey, county attorney, and the action prayed for at the hands of Judge J. N. Browning was granted.—Amarillo Panhandle.

WERE MARRIED AT STOCK PENS

Quannah Observer.

An amusing incident occurred last week when two young people of North Groesbeck came to town to get married.
The contracting parties were C. H.
Davis and Miss Donie Hall. Arriving in town on Sunday they phoned the county clerk to come down and issue the license, then to Bro. Bone to meet them at the court house and perform the ceremony. Passers-by began to take notice and began crowding into the clerk's office to see that the knot was securely tied. But the young lady who was waiting in a buggy didn't like the idea of having a bunch of loafers see her get married and absolutely refused to get out of the vehicle. Then the groom proposed to furnish the preacher conveyance if he would take them out of town and marry them, so away they went to the stock pens, where they were at last out of the way of curious people.

BRYAN IN DEFEAT STILL HAS FAITH

HOPES THAT REFORMS HE ADVOC-GATED WILL ULTIMATELY COME.

BELIEVES IN THE PEOPLE

Commoner Declares That He Made Good Fight and Willingly Abides Result—Expresses Gratitude.

Lincoln, Neb., Nov. 6.—William J.
Bryan yesterday issued the following statement:

"The election has gone against us by a decisive majority. The returns are not all in, and it is impossible at the present time to analyze them or to say what causes contributed most to the republican victory. We made our fight on a platform which embodied what we believed to be good for the American people, but if is for the people themselves to decide what laws they desire and what methods of government they prefer. I have faith that the publicity which we asked for will yet commend itself to the American people; that the election of senators by the people will be secured; that the iniquities of trusts will arouse an opposition that will result in the elimination of the principle of private monopoly.

"I am confident that the people will see the necessity for labor legislation and the tariff reduction which our platform demanded. I am confident, too, that the educational work done in this campaign will result in securing greater protection to bank depositors. The above are the most prominent reforms for which we labored, and I believe that these reforms will yet come, together with more effective regulation of railroads and independence for the Philippines.

"I desire to commend the work of our national committee. I am entirely satisfied with Mr. Mack as the chairman and with the members of the committee. I don't see what they could have done more than they did, and as for myself, I put forth every effort in my power to secure victory for our cause. The nomination came from the hands of the voters; I have obeyed their command and led as best I could.
Words will not express my gratitude for the devotion which has been shown by millions of democrats for the past twelve years. Neither am I able to adequately express my appreciation for the kind words which have been spoken since the election. If I could regard the defeat as purely a personal one I would consider it a blessing rather than a misfortune, for I am relieved of the burdens and responsibilities of an office that is attractive only in proportion as it gives an opportunity to render a larger public service. But I shall serve as willingly in a private capacity as in a public one. God does not require great things of us; He only requires that we improve the opportunities that are presented, and I shall be glad to improve the opportunities for service presented by private life.

"In this hour of national defeat I find some consolation in the cordial support given me by my neighbors, by the citizens of Lincoln and by the State of Nebraska. With a democratic governor and a democratic legislature, we shall be able to put into practice so much of the democratic platform as relates to State legislation, and I trust our State will set an example that will be an influence for good in the nation."

KILLS YOUNG BRIDE IN JEALOUS FRENZY

DAVID LAUGHLIN'S DEED STIRS HASKELL PEOPLE TO ANGER.

UNDER SPECIAL GUARD

Laughlin Claims That He Thought His Wife Intended to Injure.

Haskell, Tex., Nov. 4.—Charged with killing his 28-year-old wife to whom he had been married but two weeks, David Laughlin, 22 years of age, living near Sagertown, sixteen miles west of Haskell, was brought here last night and placed in jail.

From the details of the killing that have been received here, it appears that Laughlin killed his wife with an ax and later attempted self-destruction. He says he killed his wife because he thought she intended to poison him, but the authorities are of the opinion that jealousy prompted the deed.

Only meager details of the killing have been received and they are to the effect that Laughlin came upon his wife at the woodpile near their home and picking up an ax, struck her with it, killing her almost instantly.

Constable Frank arrested Laughlin and brought him here, where he was lodged in jail.

It is reported that the citizens in the vicinity of Sagertown are very much wrought up over the deed and might attempt to lynch Laughlin, and in order to prevent mob violence a special guard was placed on duty at the jail.

Mrs. Laughlin was before her marriage two weeks ago Miss Ophelia Gibson.

A complaint charging Laughlin with the murder of his wife has been filed and he will be given an examining trial next Monday.

Miss Ruth Durant Evans of South Carolina will receive her degree from the Chattanooga University of Law early in June, and a few days later her license to practice at the Chattanooga bar. She is reported to stand at the head of a class of 154 although the only girl in the class.

real purpose is to protect some interest.
 "Take your own paper, the World, for instance. Before Mr. Pulitzer purchased it it was owned by Jay Gould. He conducted it to help along his Wall street schemes and protect his interests. It failed utterly of that purpose, and as a newspaper it amounted to nothing in circulation or influence. It was the same with the Mail and Express when Cyrus W. Field owned it and tried to use it for his own business purposes.
 "I suppose they thought the Associated Press could be bought. If they did they made a very big blunder. Such an idea shows also how little they knew about the workings of the Associated Press. I would be as powerless as anybody to disseminate doctored news. They forget that everything the Associated Press sends out is scrutinized by hundreds of telegraph and news editors all over the country and if news that is not true or a faithful report of what has happened were sent out it would at once be discovered by scores of newspapers.
 "I have never met John D. Rockefeller or William Rockefeller or John D. Jr. I have met John D. Archbold, I think, three times. Once he came to our office. We have been given matter by the Standard Oil company and sometimes we have sent it out and sometimes we refused to do so. It depended solely upon its news value.
 "There is no organization in the country, exactly like the Associated Press. It has got to wear its heart on its sleeve all the time, and all of its product comes under the most minute inspection daily and nightly in hundreds of newspaper offices.
 "It was an ambitious thought on the part of Mr. Sibley for the Standard Oil to get control of the Associated Press, but that is as far as it went. As far as I know, the Standard Oil never did more than to hire a press agent."

DETECTING A DETECTIVE.

[Copyright, 1907, by J. G. Reed.]
 Detective Quirk of police headquarters was a good man. With outsiders that meant that he was honest and faithful and would not betray his trust. With his chief it meant that he did not have to watch him quite so closely as he did the others of his staff. Mr. Quirk had never read the stories by Gaboriau, De Boisgobey or Vidocq. Romance had nothing to do with his taking up detective work. He was not down on crime and criminals and hunting had men into prison from any feeling of duty toward the law.
 Mr. Quirk realized that as a detective he had a good thing in his grasp. There was a field open to him that is open to no other man outside the profession. It was for him to work that field. Detectives have sold themselves out for a few hundred or a few thousand dollars. In Mr. Quirk's opinion such men were asses and had mistaken their vocation. He sighed to be rich, but he didn't propose to blunder about it. He must first get a standing with his superiors and the public. He worked for five years to accomplish this. A dozen traps were set for him, but he escaped them all by being incorruptible. He worked a case for all it was worth, and he never let up or compromised. If he caught a broker in a gambling house he had no more mercy on him than the thief he caught stealing lead pipe. The burglar who offered him $1,000 to look the other way for a moment fared as did the politician who offered him a like sum to "let up" in court. His fellow detectives pocketed their "divvies" and called him a fool, and his chief looked over his reports and almost believed that he had found a subordinate deserving of a medal.
 The day came when Mr. Quirk realized that he had established his reputation and that he could pull off his scheme with safety. He had it in view for a year. He had several times been called in by the president of the National bank to straighten out crooked things and had thus become well acquainted with the bank messenger, old Folsom. Folsom was sixty years old. He walked with a hobble. He had rheumatism, and old age had weakened him. Yet the bank kept him, and seemingly by some act of Providence he had never been attacked by the class always looking for a good thing in making his rounds he sometimes carried $500,000 in checks. In returning to the bank he sometimes brought $200,000 in cash with him. Mr. Quirk fully realized what an easy thing it was, but he uttered no word of warning. He was waiting to establish his reputation.

 After calling at the last bank on his route old Folsom always took a short cut through an alley to reach his own institution. It wasn't an alley so much as it was a passageway. It was only six feet in width and used by pedestrians only. At any moment from 10 o'clock in the morning till 3 in the afternoon you could look up or down the alley and count at least twenty pedestrians coming or going. There were doors opening into the rear of office buildings, and there was one door opening into an empty building that had formerly been a rag shop. One afternoon Folsom failed to return to the bank at his usual hour. When half an hour had passed, an alarm was given. Men were found who had seen him in the alley, but an alarm of fire was on at the time, and there were much excitement and confusion. At 10 o'clock that night Folsom was found in the old rag shop. He had received a severe blow on the head and was tied and gagged. Something like $100,000 in cash had been taken from his satchel. It was Mr. Quirk who was given the case, and it was Mr. Quirk who found the old man after a long hunt.
 It was four days before Folsom regained consciousness and told his story. There was very little to tell. He had backed up against the door to stand for a moment and look for the fire, and the door had been opened, he had been drawn in, and then followed the blow on the head and darkness. He had not even seen his assailant. He was very grateful to Mr. Quirk, and he felt the fullest confidence in him, and yet there was a clew that he suppressed. Why he did he could not have told himself. As he felt he must have grasped the man's coat and torn off a button, for there was the button clutched tightly in his hand. They took it from him at the hospital and, a fortnight later when he was discharged, he brought it with him. He had seen buttons like that on a business suit, and it came to him after that the suit belonged to Mr. Quirk. The tailor corroborated him.
 Mr. Folsom was old, but he did not lack wit and nerve. He set himself to work, and inside of a fortnight he found men who had noticed the detective in the alley on the day he was assaulted. In the dust on the floor he found tracks and measured them. He had been found with new rope. He discovered who had purchased it and where. As a matter of fact, he worked up a good case against Mr. Quirk and had him arrested, and ten hours later the missing money was found under the floor of the latter's room. He would not confess, but the jury found him guilty, and he got a sentence of twelve years and died after serving half of it. He had planned for years only to be caught by a man from whom he thought he had nothing whatever to fear.

 New York World.
 Melville E. Stone, general manager of the Associated Press, was deeply interested yesterday in that portion of Congressman Joseph C. Sibley's letter of March 7, 1905, written to John D. Archbold of the Standard Oil company, made public by W. R. Hearst Saturday night, which said:
 "An efficient literary bureau is needed, not for a day of a crisis, but a permanent and healthy control of the Associated Press, and kindred avenues. It will cost money, but will be the cheapest in the end and can be made self-supporting.
 "This calm proposition to break into the news columns of every newspaper of importance in the country and fool the public with doctored news favorable to the Standard Oil Company never amounted to anything, according to Mr. Stone.
 "If the Standard Oil ever attempted to get control of the Associated Press," he said to a World reporter, "I never heard of it, and I certainly would know of it were such an attempt made.
 "Neither do I believe that they ever tried to form a new association of their own. If they had, such an association would have lasted about two minutes.
 "Experience has shown that it is utterly impossible to run a successful newspaper or news service where the

CHEER UP.
Don't grieve o'er low the election went,
Or figure on the how or why,
We still have yellow yams to eat,
We still have loads of punkin pie.

Don't feel bad if your candidate Did not get quite what he did seek,
The Carnival is due to hit
The first day of next week.

Don't worry over hard times, but Bend to the work and give a boost,
The world is full of good things yet,
And there are turkeys on the roost.

However an election goes, Whichever side is to be bad,
The world swings 'rounds to a sweet tune.

Texas Thanksgiving all are glad!
—Houston Post.

The blow would not have been so great had not the related election news placed only Missouri's electoral vote in the republican column.

Maryland divides her vote by giving Bryan seven and Taft one.

The Indiana legislature is slightly democratic on joint ballot, and there is talk of sending John W. Kern to the United States senate.

The congressional election returns received up to date indicate that the next house will be composed of 175 democrats and 216 republicans, giving the republicans a majority of 41. This is a gain of nine members to the democrats.

Out of the wreck in Missouri the democrats saved the legislature, having a majority of eight on joint ballot, and as Senator Stone, known as "Gum Shoe Bill," has defeated Governor Folk for the nomination, he will succeed himself as Senator from that State.

The amendment to increase the salary of the governor of Texas was lost by an overwhelming majority. Judging from this it would seem the people of Texas are not willing to pay more than a $4,000 salary for a job that costs at least four times that amount to secure in the way of campaign expenses.

THE NIMROD AND THE FARMER.

There are many who consider that the action of land owners excluding hunters and others from their inclos-ures is unnecessary, selfish and arbitrary. But the owners have been forced to this measure by unpleasant and costly experience, by a degree of carelessness and stupidity that are inconceivable by the right-thinking. The leaving open of gates and injury to stock are common, and lately James Henry had a registered Jersey bull killed by a hunter.—Henrietta Review.

Some nimrods are either so careless or so easily destructive that they have brought down upon all sportsmen the disrepute of the farmer. Every nimrod should consider it a special favor when he is permitted on another man's land.

DUE NOTICE GIVEN.

Wiley Blair of Wichita Falls Drops Into Drawing and Gives Warning.
Every official of the Denver road has received an artistic drawing, done with a fence picket on mimeograph paper and executed supposedly by Wiley Blair, a money baron of Wichita Falls, which gives due notice that Denver officials must do precious little hunting this year. This pictorial pronoun-cement contains an excellent likeness of George F. Cotter, general superintendent, and W. F. Sterley, general freight agent of the line, while the drawing of J. H. Barwise Jr., one of the several general attorneys, is labeled so as to make it readable.

While it is not known definitely that Mr. Blair sent out this warning, several of the officials of the road believe it was him, for the reason he no longer lends his dogs to the general officers of the line for hunting purposes, claiming that experiences of the dogs injure their fine pointing powers.—

When the Sun Grows Cold.
Dr. Fridtjof Nansen predicts the fate of the earth in the far distant future, when the sun grows cold. The simple, low organisms, he says, will probably live longest, until even they disappear. Finally, he says, all water on the earth's surface will freeze and the oceans will be transformed into ice to the bottom. Some time later the carbonic acid of the atmosphere will begin to fall on the surface of the earth in the form of snow. Some time after that the temperature on the surface will have reached about 330 degrees below zero F. New oceans will then be formed by the atmosphere being curved into liquid, and the atmosphere of that future earth will be only hydrogen and helium. The sun will go through the same process. It will continue in its way as a dark star through space, accompanied by the planets.

Priority.
The wagons of "the greatest show on earth" passed up the avenue at daybreak. Their incessant rattle soon awakened ten-year-old Billie and his five-year-old brother Robert. Their mother feigned sleep as the two white robed figures crept past her bed into the hall on the way to investigate. Robert struggled manfully with the unaccustomed task of putting on his clothes.
"Wait for me, Billie," his mother heard him beg. "You'll get ahead of me."
"Get mother to help you," counseled Billie, who was having troubles of his own.

Mother started to the rescue and then paused as she heard the voice of her younger, guarded, but anxious and insistent:
"You ask her, Billie. You've known her longer than I have."—Everybody's.

Her Luck.
By a strange coincidence a much married woman lost three husbands in succession through fatal accidents in the mine. Naturally her case excited much interest, and she had many sympathetic callers, to all of whom she made the same reply.

"Ah, yes, it's very hard," she said,
"but in the midst of my sorrow I've always had something to be thankful for. None of my husbands lived long after I'd insured 'em, as some poor souls' husbands do."—London Graphic.

Deceitful.
"I admire patience an' self control," said Uncle Eben, "but when I see a man dat kin keep on smilin' after he done bruise his thumb with a hammer I can't help bein' spiteous of his capacity for deceit."—Washington Star.

Few things are impossible in themselves. It is not so much means as perseverance that is wanting to bring them to a successful issue.—Rochefou-cauld.

Apt Pupil.
Captain Jones (giving a short lecture to the recruits of his company on their demeanor in public)—If a civilian should make offensive remarks in a public house and try to induce a quarrel the well conducted soldier should drink up his beer and go quietly away.

After his address Captain Jones questioned his audience to ascertain if they had comprehended his remarks.

"Now, Private Jenkins, what should you do if you were at an inn and a civilian wanted to quarrel with you?"
"I should drink up his beer, sir, and seek it."—London Pick-Me-Up.

The Sailor's Prayer Book.
"This is what you call the sailor's prayer book," a seaman said bitterly as he kicked a holystone out of the way. "Why is it called that? Well, in the first place, it is called that because in using it, in holystoning the deck, the sailor has to kneel down, and, in the second place, because all holystoning is done on Sunday. Don't you know the chantey—
"Six days shalt thou work and do all that thou art able And on the seventh holystone the decks and scrape the cable.
"The stone is called holystone because the first holystones were bits of tobits stolen from cemeteries. It's got a pious, religious sound—holystone and Sunday and all that—but it is when he is using this stone that the seaman is most profane."
New Orleans Times-Democrat.

Exclusive to the Last.
An instance of exclusiveness maintained under difficulties is reported from the ladies' cabin of an Atlantic liner. All were sick except one lady and a cat, which wandered uneasily about. The lady ventured to stroke the cat, remarking, "Poor pussy." The cat was inclined to respond and elevated its tail in token of good will, when from a neighboring berth came in choking tones the words, "Excuse me, that is a private cat!"—Argonaut.

What Think You?

One of our citizens met a couple of pretty, bright-eyed little girls Saturday and incidentally inquired if they were going to school Monday. They informed him that they were not. He asked them why and with sad, down-cast expression they replied that mamma was not able to buy their books. The gentleman went to see their mother and learned that the children's statement was true and that she seemed to be much grieved over the situation. One child was in the fourth and the other was in the fifth reader, both bright and ambitious to get an education. The gentleman asked the mother if the children should be provided with books if they could go to school. She replied that with books, she thought probably she could manage to send them and keep them there through the term. The gentleman ascertained their respective grades, secured a school catalogue, went to a book store, purchased the books and delivered them with his compliments. The children, informed of what had happened, were very happy.
The mother—we are not going to describe her gratitude. It is indescribable, because a good, pure, noble, devotional, loving mother's heart throbs up on occasions of this kind can never be seen, known or appreciated—much less described.

This morning the little girls are in school, hopeful, cheerful and happy.
We wish we could tell the reader who the gentleman is, but he would not appreciate the act, and we respect his wishes. He is not, however, a man of wealth, but he is going about doing good and such as he has, he gives it to those in need. We hear of it often.
Not long ago he was asked to go with the camp here to the Confederate reunion at Willis Point. He wanted to go and meet, mix and mingle for a few days with his old comrades in gray;

BEWARE OF THESE CASTLES IN SPAIN

GO SLOW WHEN YOU HEAR FROM CASTILIAN NOBLEMAN ABOUT ESTATE.

THEN THE SENORITA

A Clever Scheme to Swindle Romantic and Sympathetic Americans.

Beware of visions of an old Spanish nobleman who knows where treasure lies waiting, warns the postoffice authorities here. Also beware the words of the lovely and confiding senorita, who is the daughter of the nobleman.

First comes a letter to some everyday American from an obscure point in Spain. In the letter the writer states that he is a Spanish nobleman who is in prison for some political offense and who writes to secure information concerning his heirs to an immense estate in Spain. He states that he understands that the man to whom his writing is related to some of the heirs or that he can assist him in finding some of the others and in getting the money from the estate.

He asks, for fear the cruel Spanish secret spies will learn his plan and get the estate, that the American keep the secret wholly to himself, and to write only to a certain address in Spain.

Enter the Senorita.

After a few weeks, while the American is still properly interested, comes a second letter, daintily feminine in its form, from some other place in Spain, in which the writer explains herself to be the daughter of the Spanish nobleman who wrote the former letter and that her mother is dead. She further tells that the heartless prison authorities have shut her poor father off from all communication with the world, also that papers which will secure them possession of the estate are in a trunk which has been seized by the customs authorities at Cartagena. If the kind American would advance enough to pay the trunk out of the customs office, she will secure some of the funds, come at once to America and the two will proceed to get the rest of the estate and to free her father. For his services the American is to have half or all of the estate, or almost anything else which he chooses to ask of the lonely lady in Spain.

Perhaps the American sends the money—and that is all.

There are many variations to this scheme, but they all start from Spain and it would seem that there is a regular organized concern of swindlers which is working the United States. Peculiarities of the Spanish laws prevent the postoffice department from following up the swindlers in Spain, so the best that the postoffice authorities can say is to say "Beware."

Little Fashions.

Cedar red or cedar brown will be a popular color for fall hats, and the copper tones likewise retain their favor.

New broadcloth evening capes are striking in their suggestion of the military capes of the directorate period.

Soft, clinging, lustrous satins are great favorites of the hour. Undoubtedly it is to be a satin season.

Soft satin is the favorite fabric of the season, closely followed by cashmere and crepe de chine effects and by broadcloth.

In spite of the rage for big hats, there are still many small ones. These are generally draped three-corner or oval turbans.

Dainty metal designs are applied to shell bandeaux, and the newest have a little attachment to hold them close to the puffed hair.

Paris offers as stylish a short walking skirt that falls straight and skimpily and which probably will not find favor on this side of the water.

The straight front panel has reappeared in the newest of the plaid tweed suits. It is about four inches wide and the sides are slightly lapped over it.

There is a diversity in footwear. New walking boots are of suede in tan, smoke, blue or green, and there are combinations of suede with patent leather or tan Russia calf.

One of the beautiful novelties in furs is the new Pierrot ruff or choker cravat. It has a ribbon frill all around the top and hooks at the back with a big bow of ribbon.

Origin of the Word "Bogus."

The word "bogus" is said by Dr. Ogilvie to be derived from Boghese, the name of a notorious American swindler who about the year 1835 flooded the western and southwestern states with counterfeit bills, sham mortgages, etc. Others connect the word with "bogy," a scarecrow or goblin, and so applied to anything fictitious or chimerical.

Lowell in the "Biglow Papers" says: "I more than suspect the word to be a corruption of the French bogasse." This bogasse was the sugar cane as delivered in its dry, crushed state from the mill, also called can trash and fit only for burning, being synonymous with useless rubbish.

Again, according to Brewer, there is in French argot or thieves' slang a word "bogue," which signifies the rind of a green chestnut or the case of a watch, and this also brings us to the idea of an outward seeming without any solid or reputable foundation.—Kansas City Journal.

The Queerest Salad.

A gourmet as he mixed a salad of chicory said: "The world's queerest salad, and possibly its most delicious one, is eaten by the Inuits of northwest Greenland. It is a salad of undigested moss from the stomach of a fresh killed reindeer, a bitter, sharp, stimulating salad, as good for the digestion as an electrical massage. The Inuits live almost exclusively on fish; hence salads are a favorite dish with them. But, no salad in their minds compares with that which they wrest from the slaughtered reindeer. They say this salad is crisper, tenderer and more appetizing than any other, and they say it wards off indigestion. They fight for it, they spend their last penny for it, quite as the Indians do with greewater."—Exchange.

Too Much For Him.

Smithson used to labor under the impression that he was a born humorist but he has given up trying to be funny now.

He called one day on an old school friend and was shown into a room where his chum's sister was busy arranging a quantity of dried grass which she had collected.

"What a quantity of dried grass you have collected, Miss Ritchie," he said. Then his humor burst forth. "Nice room for a donkey to get into." "Make yourself at home, Mr. Smithson," said the girl pleasantly.

When he arrived home all the humor was crushed out of him forever.—London Scraps.

The Poor Milkman Again.

The milkman was boiling over with indignation.

"And you mean to say my milk don't look right?" he snapped. "Why, lady, this can of milk is a picture!"

"Ah, yes," laughed the keen housewife; "a fine water color."—Exchange.

DOINGS OF THE BOOSTERS

Support of Non-Residents.

The non-resident property owners of Wichita Falls were mailed a letter and pamphlet on the 31st ult., requesting their support to the Chamber of Commerce. Mr. H. M. Trueheart of Galveston returned in the first mail a draft for $10 to the fund. Mr. H. Kemper of Galveston wrote the following, which is an encouraging sentiment and the secretary has hopes from the first indications that a hearty response will be forthcoming from the majority of non-resident property owners:

Galveston, Tex., Nov. 2, 1908.—Mr. F. H. Gohlke, Wichita Falls, Texas: Dear Sir—I am in receipt of yours of the 31st. The proposition of course is one that must necessarily appeal to property owners in your section, but my sole interest in property in your town is as a stockholder in corporations which, I like it, are already contributing to this worthy cause. With best wishes for success, I remain, Very truly yours, H. KEMPER.

Inquiries From Many States.

For the ten days ending Nov. 3rd, inquiries for literature and information on farm lands were received by Secretary Gohlke from the following States amounting to fifty-one in number: Oklahoma 6, Kansas 3, Colorado 2, Missouri 9, Nebraska 6, Louisiana 3, Alabama 1, New York, Ohio, Oregon, Washington and Maine, 1 each. These inquiries are beginning to result from general advertising more than from paid space, as paid space has been gradually cut down from the middle of September and news items substituted. The latter is the best possible advertising and the longer the work is continued the greater are results from an equal amount of labor. In addition to the above inquiries a goodly number of requests for literature and information on business and other lines are received. A bulletin of the farm inquiries is sent to the real estate firms who are members of the Chamber of Commerce.

Today an inquiry was received from Alberta, Canada, and another from Sonora, Mexico.

A mimeograph letter has been prepared by the secretary and is being given to farmers calling at the office for cotton prize coupons requesting that letters be prepared to their local newspapers in the town from which our settlers emigrated from. The letter is as follows:

Wichita Falls Chamber of Commerce, Wichita Falls, Tex., Nov. 4, 1908.

Dear Sir—Will you co-operate with the Wichita Falls Chamber of Commerce by writing a statement of your experience along farming lines in this section, giving particulars about the products you raise, how you like the climate and country and general conditions in the Wichita Falls country?

We want this letter for the purpose of making a typewritten copy to send to the local newspaper in the town you formerly lived in, so as to secure more publicity for this section. I will add to each letter to the effect that the Wichita Falls Chamber of Commerce is taking an active interest in the upbuilding of the surrounding country and stands ready to send literature and information to parties wishing same.

It is a self-evident fact that every land owner is benefitted by the influx of new settlers and that it is within their power to assist very materially in our advertising campaign. The postoffice address of the writer is requested, so that the inquirers can write direct if they wish to, or the recipient can turn the inquiries over to the secretary for answer and literature.

The following are a few things which should be covered in the letter: Name of town emigrated from. Name of local newspaper there. How long been farming here, crops grown and how you like the climate and country.

What you think of present opportunities for new-comers along farming lines and anything else you wish to say.

Note: Sign name and postoffice address and bring to Chamber of Commerce for forwarding copy. Yours truly, F. H. GOHLKE, Sec'y.

Commends the Wichita Falls Pamphlet.

The following letters from T. L. Peeler, industrial agent of the M. K. and T. railway and Chief of Police Ren H. Rice of Spokane, the latter being formerly a newspaper editor and secretary of the Spokane 150,000 club, express commendation on the Wichita Falls pamphlet issued by the Chamber of Commerce. It is desired that our citizens and settlers mail a few of these pamphlets to friends or acquaintances in their former place of residence, whom they think might be interested in the opportunities of this section:

Dallas, Tex., Oct. 31, 1908.—Mr. F. H. Gohlke, Wichita Falls, Texas: Dear Sir:—The booklet entitled "Progress of the Progressive City" are all right. It is gotten up in a very neat and concise form and will in all probability give you considerable advertisement and will no doubt be the means of attracting homeseekers, as well as those interested in manufacturing enterprises, and I believe that it will be well worth the money spent in distribution. I will try to place these in good hands and as soon as my supply is exhausted will advise you with a hope of securing more. It is my intention to visit Wichita Falls next week, at which time I hope to see you personally. Yours truly, T. L. PEELER.

Office of Chief of Police, Spokane, Wash., Oct. 29, 1908.—F. H. Gohlke, Wichita Falls, Texas: My dear Frank:—I wish to thank you for your kindness in mailing me a copy of your booklet, which I have read with much interest. It is a creditable production and I wish particularly to compliment you on the attractive way in which you have set forth the advantages of Wichita and the surrounding country. I know how difficult it is to condense material of this kind and make it interesting matter. I shall keep the booklet for reference, as it is the first comprehensive statement of the facts concerning that section that I have had the opportunity to examine. With kindest regards to yourself and family, I am, Yours very truly, REN H. RICE, Chief of Police.

A Letter From Mr. McConkey.

The Texas Farm and Ranch will in one of their issues this month reproduce a letter written by J. L. McConkey outlining his experience in the Wichita Falls country and showing up its opportunities. The Trade League Journal of Dallas requested the secretary to write about an 800-word article with illustrations for printing in their publication, all of which is good publicity without cost.

A photograph was taken Wednesday of the cotton drawing crowd, which will make a striking picture for newspaper advertising purposes. It will show the Wichita Falls spirit in drawing and fostering its trade and the interest which is manifested.

A photograph was taken from the top of the opera house by Mr. Haddix with a panorama machine, which will condense to a half tone about 4x16 inches and will be used later for an envelope insert with brief data on the back. Another will be taken of the new brick plant, showing the twenty-two cottages for employees, and the immense kilns and other appliances on the ground. Few people in Wichita Falls realize the magnitude of this plant and its value to the city. Due publicity will be given this view when all the proposed improvements are complete, although the plant has started to turn out brick for its own use.

Next Tuesday evening, at 7:30 the regular monthly membership meeting of the Chamber of Commerce will be held. A smoker and perhaps a Dutch luncheon will be arranged to make it informal and interesting. Fully forty new members were secured since last meeting night.

The following is a good sample of the nature of some of the inquiries being received:

Lawson, Ray Co., Missouri, Oct. 29.—Secretary Chamber of Commerce, Wichita Falls, Texas: Dear Sir—Circulars received and I have read them carefully. One thing I wish to ask is about the terms on unimproved land. Can one purchase same on easy terms?

What are the easiest terms you can purchase 160 or 320 acres at, providing one begins improving, such as building houses, fences, breaking land, etc.? Please favor me with a reply soon, as I am intending to make a trip down soon, probably next excursion or the following one. I think I shall like your country very much, or its surroundings. Hope I shall have the pleasure of visiting your city in the near future. Yours very respectfully, J. W. FINNELL.

Educated.

Mrs. S. was in a Richmond hospital, and she was lonely, so welcomed the advent of a very black and very languid maid who came in one morning, to wipe up the floor. Some one new to talk to, so no time was lost.

"I have not seen you working around here before. Aren't you a new girl?" Edmonia willingly let the cloth slip back into the bucket and sat flat upon the floor before answering. "Yas'm, I's new. I's jest washin' up de floor. But I don't work. I's educated."

"And where were you educated?" was the next question.

"In a seminary." Then, with a burst of confidence: "There was me an' another girl workin' in a house. She was cook, an' I was chambermaid, an' we had great times about who would git de prize, but I beat." Then, after a pause, "She was easy to beat, 'cause she got smothered to death with gas de night before de examinations come off."—Cleveland Leader.

A Pair of Poets.

Hearing a noise in the street before his house one morning, Robert Browning, the poet, went to his window and saw a great crowd gazing at some Chinamen in gorgeous costumes who were just leaving their carriages to mount his steps. Presently they were announced as the Chinese minister at the court of St. James and his suit. A solemn presentation having taken place, Browning said to the interpreter, "May I ask to what I am indebted for the honor of his excellency's visit?" The interpreter replied, "His excellency is a poet in his own country." Thereupon the two poets shook hands heartily. Browning then said, "May I ask to what branch of poetry his excellency devotes himself?" To which the interpreter answered, "His excellency devotes himself to poetical enigmas." At this Browning, recognizing fully the comic element in the situation, extended his hand most cordially, saying: "His excellency is thrice welcome. He is a brother indeed!"

The Hunters

(Original.)

Marcus Hunter was left an orphan when he was seven years old. He had no brothers or sisters, no home, no money, no anything. An uncle who was well to do took him to his house against his wife's wishes, and the boy's life there was one of misery. When he was seventeen the uncle died, and the aunt turned the boy out of the house. He found a position as clerk in a business house. In ten years he set up for himself.

His relatives who during this period had ignored him now began to nod pleasantly to him when they met him and invited him to their houses. The aunt, who had made life a burden to him, resented him of the pleasant days that he had spent under her roof and how happy it had made her to be a mother to him.

Just as Mark was getting on his feet in a business way a commercial panic came on. He needed a little assistance to tide him over the crisis and applied to those of his relatives who were able to help him. He began by telling them that he would like to talk over his affairs with them with a view to getting their advice. He got no further than this, for each and every one of them pronounced himself incompetent to advise him. This shut the poor fellow off, as they intended. He failed. Then his relatives dropped him again.

When the commercial storm was over Mark went to work for a man who was a business genius. He took a great fancy to his clerk and promoted him rapidly, finally making him second only to himself. Then the employer died childless and left about all there was of the business to his protégé.

Marcus died a multimillionaire. Just before his death he made a will, in which he directed that the house in which he had passed his lonely life—his never married—should be closed by his executor from the day of his death till one week after the funeral, when an auction should take place of everything it contained. No one was to be admitted to the sale except his relatives.

Since he left no direct heirs, most of the relatives were present at the reading of the will, each hoping for a substantial re-embursement. When they heard this singular provision and learned that the testator had left no legacy to any one of them they naturally inferred that he had concluded to remember them by leaving their legacies in different articles of furniture.

But what a singular way! Ten thousand dollars might be in a hollow cane, while but $1,000 had been placed in a rosewood desk. Yet the cane might be knocked down for a dollar, while the desk might bring $100. Was there ever such a way devised for distributing millions of money? The will further stated that the amount realized from the sale was to be expended by the executor for a monument to the deceased.

When the day of the sale came around it was astonishing how many relatives Hunter had left behind him. There were Hunters innumerable both by name and in reality. A protest was made to the executor that many of them were not related to the testator and should not be admitted. But he argued that by the terms of the will the sale must take place then and there and there was no time to examine credentials.

The crowd were kept waiting while articles were first sold that could not possibly contain anything, such as uncovered crockery. On these there were only such bids as would serve to get them out of the way. But when it came to articles in which stacks of bills could be placed the bidding became furious. As soon as an article was knocked down the buyer wished to get at it, but was informed that he could not have it till after the sale. The bidders had every variety of opinion as to what articles were most likely to contain large amounts, so that anything wooden or hollow brought excellent prices. A kitchen table with a drawer (locked and no key) brought $100, an upholstered sofa $200, a cane fishing rod $150. A steppan with a hollow handle (large enough to contain a dozen $1,000 bonds) brought $275. One of the favorites was a plaster bust of Abraham Lincoln. Such busts are usually hollow, and this would naturally attract an ingenious hide. It brought $955 and was the cause of a protracted quarrel between two different branches of Hunters.

Well, the last article was finally knocked down, and buyers were told that they might take away their purchases. A rush was made for the articles, but few were removed. Several purchasers had brought hammers and with these began to smash their articles. The signal was a crack on the head of Abraham Lincoln's bust, which dropped into a couple of dozen pieces. An exclamation of rage went up from the man who had paid the enormous price for it. From that moment the crash of furniture, the ripping of upholstery and the smashing of glass and stoneware were mingled with oaths and exclamations of disappointment. Not a single article knocked down by the auctioneer contained one cent or one cent's worth of property.

The next morning the newspapers announced that the late Marcus Hunter had a few days before his death given away his whole property, $4,000,000, to institutions for the poor.

The Hunter monument is one of the handsomest in Sleepy Hollow cemetery. FLORENCE NORTON.

Able to Hear It.
Joseph Medill of the Chicago Tribune was somewhat deaf, although his ability at times to hear what was said in an ordinary tone of voice was frequently remarked. It is related of him that he dropped into the business department of the office one day to make an inquiry about something that had occurred to him, and a young man who had been in his employ only a few months undertook in a loud tone of voice to enlighten him.

"What did you say?" asked Mr. Medill, putting his hand to his ear. The young man repeated the question in a still louder voice.

"I can't hear you," said the editor. "Oh, chase yourself around the block, you old granny!" muttered the impatient employee just above his breath.

"I am not an old granny," said Mr. Medill, turning away, "and I shall not chase myself around the block." The fresh young man made immediate arrangements to say goodby to his job, but the great editor probably thought that the lesson he had received was sufficient and did not disturb him.

A Famous London Tavern.
The Mermaid was the name of a famous London tavern frequented by noted literary men and actors during the reign of Queen Elizabeth. All the wit and talent of the time assembled there for convivial enjoyment. Authors have made it the scene of great mind combats between such men as Shakespeare, Ben Jonson, Beaumont, Fletcher, Selden, Carew, Donne and others of reverential memory. It was the gathering place of the celebrated Mermaid club, the origin of which is ascribed to Sir Walter Raleigh. The Mermaid tavern was located in Bread street and was handily reached from three thoroughfares, so that it has been often referred to in various ways. The Mermaid in Bread street, the Mermaid in Friday street and the Mermaid in Cheap street were, however, all one and the same. It was the nearest to Bread street. The Mermaid was destroyed in the great London fire. There were other Mermaid taverns, one in Cheapside and another in Cornhill, but they had no such associations as clung to that of Bread street.

In the Same Boat.
The stranger advanced toward the door. Mrs. O'Toole stood in the doorway with a rough stick in her left hand and a frown on her brow. "Good morning," said the stranger politely. "I'm looking for Mr. O'Toole."

"So'm I," said Mrs. O'Toole, shifting her club over to her other hand.—Everybody's.

REAL SERVICE TO YOU

IF, BY some persistency in giving advice, this newspaper can convince every merchant of the wisdom of telling you all of his store-news that is important—of using enough space in which to do it, and of telling as much of his store-news in every issue as you would be interested in knowing—and—

If, at the risk of over-iteration, this newspaper should convince you that this same store-news is of real, live, palpitating importance to you, as fully worthy of your attention as politics, or base ball, or Crowned Heads, or elopements, murders, riots, fashions or functions of the rich—and—

If it should follow that the merchants should prosper in exact ratio to their energy in advertising and that you should thrive in proportion to your intelligence in spending your income—then this newspaper will feel that it has accomplished so real a public service that this city will be a better place in which to live and to do business

Hereafter the Times will refuse to accept ads for its "want ad" or "classified column" which are not signed by the parties ordering same, unless such ads are paid for in advance. House, street or phone numbers will not do, as it is more trouble to keep track of and collect for unsigned ads than the price charged for such ads are worth. Advertisers will please bear this in mind when they want to use the "want or classified" columns.
