DEPUTY CONSTABLE KILLED BY NEGRO

CONSTABLE DRAPER AT PARIS IS KILLED BY A NEGRO IN A PITCHED BATTLE.

BLACK MADE HIS ESCAPE

Posses are Pursuing Him and Plans for a Lynching are Being Openly Discussed.

Texas News Service Special.
Paris, Tex., Feb. 5.—Posses are still scouring the country for the negro, McIntosh, who murdered Deputy Constable Draper last night. Crowds are gathered in different parts of the city and plans for a lynching are openly discussed.

Story of the Shooting.

Paris, Tex., Feb. 5.—Fatally wounded by a bullet fired from a weapon in the hands of a negro whom he, with the constable, was trying to place under arrest about 8 o'clock tonight, Deputy Constable R. C. Draper was removed, immediately following the affray, to a hospital, where he died almost at once. John McIntosh, a negro for whom the two officers held a warrant, escaped, and was still at large at a late hour tonight, while county officers and posses are scouring the country for him. The shooting occurred near the Texas and Pacific depot.

Deputy Constable Draper was 38 years of age, married, but had no children. He came to Paris from Erath county, Texas, about fifteen years ago. Draper and Constable G. H. Matthews had a warrant for the arrest of the negro, McIntosh, who was charged with having made threats against a negroess. Going into the negro quarter of the town the two officers saw McIntosh in the yard of the house occupied by a negroess.

When commanded to surrender the negro opened fire on the officers. Several shots were exchanged, one bullet taking effect in Draper's abdomen. Another bullet pierced the trousers of Constable Matthews.

Matthews continued firing until his revolver was empty. He secured his deputy's pistol and used it so long as bullets remained.

MAN SHOT BY NEGRO MAY RECOVER

Joe Brannan, the white man, shot at the brick plant yesterday afternoon, in a quarrel with two negroes, is still alive and it was thought today that he had a fair chance for recovery.

The bullet, which was from a 4-caliber revolver, entered his body in the back at his right side and penetrated the lower part of his right lung. The bullet did not pass through his body, but has not been located.

After being shot Brannan was taken to the Wichita Falls Sanitarium, where he is now resting as easily as could be expected.

From eyewitnesses of the shooting, the following details have been learned: Brannan, earlier in the day, had accidentally run into Joe Owens, a negro, with a wheelbarrow. The latter is said to have cursed Brannan and to have chased him out of the kiln, where they were at work. Brannan then went to a house at the plant where he kept his clothing and, getting his revolver, returned to the kiln and after a few words had passed, began shooting at the negro Owens. As Brannan re-entered the kiln he was followed by Paul Bogan, another negro laborer, and while Brannan was shooting at Owens, Bogan drew a revolver from the inside of his blouse and at a distance of only a few feet fired into Brannan's back.

Brannan fell when shot, but while lying on the floor of the kiln shot twice.

Well Put Down on J. D. Avis' Tract Proves to Be a Big Producer.

Yesterday afternoon at 3:30 o'clock another big gas gusher, a well that is believed to be as large a producer as the big well brought in some months ago, was brought in at Petrolia by the Navarro Refining Company.

The well was drilled on a tract owned by J. D. Avis, and was put down with a view of finding gas to supply the city of Wichita Falls.

It is reported that the big flow of gas was struck by the drillers at a depth of fifteen hundred feet.

Mr. Avis is highly elated over his good fortune and the citizens of Wichita Falls are well pleased, as the new well assures the city of an ample gas supply.

at Bogan, one of the shots taking effect in the negro's left arm above the elbow. Bogan ran from the kiln, but was stopped on the outside and made to deliver up his revolver by James Marlow, who happened to be at the plant on business.

Owens, the other negro, had been shot through the foot and neither of the negroes made any attempt to escape.

Constable Randolph was the first officer to arrive on the scene and took charge of the negroes, and brought them to town and placed them in jail. Later, Brannan was brought to the Wichita Falls Sanitarium.

Last night a crowd of two hundred or more men congregated on the streets down town and there was some talk of lynching Bogan in the event of Brannan's death. The mob, however, dispersed without making any attempt to take Bogan from the jail.

Bogan is a well known negro character and he has served a term in the penitentiary for the theft of cows. It is said that he has always carried a revolver while at work at the brick plant.

GEORGE BARNET IS FREED AT ABILENE

BRIEF PRELIMINARY HEARING IS GIVEN MAN, WHO IS THEN FREED.

T. BARNET HAS ATTORNEY

Engaged Judge W. J. Cunningham. Judge Wagstaff Retained to Aid the County Attorney.

Abilene, Tex., Feb. 5.—George Barnett was given a brief preliminary hearing today and at its conclusion was released from custody.

Tom Barnett will be given a preliminary hearing Monday. Hon. W. J. Cunningham has been retained by Barnett. So far Barnett has made no statement to the newspapers.

It is stated that the officers are now trying to locate a man who, it is said, dined with Sears at a cafe on the night that Sears was killed.

Judge J. M. Wagstaff has been retained by a brother of Sears to assist in the case. The body of Alex Sears was buried at Merkel this afternoon in the presence of a large crowd of relatives and citizens of this section.

We are proud of our domestic science demonstrations and we want above all things to let you know about them, and as our communication for January 27th was lost, we feel that we owe to those chiefly interested a brief mention of their efforts. We were with Mrs. Frank Jackson in her brand new cozy kitchen and as most of our demonstrators were elderly in experience, the club felt expecting of a treat.

Solomon wisely said, "Let her works praise her in the gates," but if our modern Solomon could have had one whiff from that kitchen they would have sued for honorary membership in this to the New Century Club.

On demonstration days we answer roll call with some tried recipe that we each copy into our little cook book that we shall value at the end of this club year as "the true and tried."

Wednesday, Feb. 3rd, we indulged in an old time spelling match. Mrs. T. M. Smyre and Miss Dora Coons divided the club. Mrs. W. F. Jourdan pronounced the words from Webster's old blue-back spelling book. The simplest words were given and many words of only one syllable were misspelled. As we went down one by one the fun increased until everyone was screaming with laughter.

Mrs. Ashmore was left standing and received a beautiful sterling silver spoon as a souvenir with N. C. C. on it.

Long we lingered with the well filled plates of rich salad, cake and coffee, and when adjournment was in order we felt as we bade adieu to our hostess, Mrs. W. Y. McCune, that we had had an hour that would linger long on the page of memory.

The New Century's auxiliary is the chief interest now in clubdom. Mesdames S. H. Burnside and W. F. Jourdan of the N. C. C. were the appointees to organize this arm of strength for the club proper, and their report of a great success was glowing in the extreme, the special emphasis being the amount of intelligence that they had so fortunately procured as a basis, encouraged us, for we must "found upon the rock" of brainy talent. The new club is open to membership.

We meet next Tuesday at the home of Mrs. Mary Boyd Robinson.

RETURNS BILL UNAPPROVED

APPOINTMENTS TO PUBLIC SERVICE NOT A PERSONAL PERQUISITE.

FAVORS CIVIL SERVICE

President Says That Competency of Applicant Alone Should Govern.

Washington, D. C., Feb. 5.—The evil effects of the spoils system and of the custom of treating appointments to the public service as personal perquisites of professional politicians are peculiarly evident in the case of a great public work like the taking of the census, a work which should emphatically be done for the whole people and with an eye single to their interest.

In these words President Roosevelt summed up a message to the house of representatives returning without his approval the bill providing for the taking of the next census because of the provision prescribing that appointments shall be made on the basis of non-competitive examinations. Instead of through the civil service commission.

As passed by congress the bill permitted members of the congress to appoint employes after they had undergone a simple examination.

Incidentally the president referred to the section authorizing the printing of census reports by private concerns and had stress upon the point that the work was so allotted that the eight-hour law should be applied in effective fashion.

Outside of those matters the president said that, on the whole, the bill was satisfactory to him. The house adjourned without action on the message.

A year before his death Ella Clark, a professional singer in St. Louis, said that he had received a wireless message from another sphere saying that he would die before he reached 30. He was then in perfect health. On January 26 he died, aged 29 years and 8 months. He had made all the arrangements for his funeral, and had told his wife of the strange message. While laughing and playing with his children, he suddenly became rigid, leaped back in his chair and was dead in ten minutes.

May Build Railroad to Quanah.

Messrs. Kell, Donoghly and Superintendent Orth of the Wichita Falls and Northwestern were in town Tuesday night, ostensibly on a land deal. Their inquiries led some of our people to suppose that they were contemplating building a railroad to Quanah, which is not impossible, though for the present we believe they are more anxious to extend their line from Frederick to Altus and on to the wheat fields near Ashland, Kansas. ABOUT DRY FARMING

Prof. H. W. Campbell Tells of Success of His Methods.

"Ignorance on the part of the farmer or failure to properly handle the soil are the only things which may be expected to cause crop failures in the farming land of West Texas, or any other part of the West," according to Prof. H. W. Campbell, the soil culture expert of Lincoln, Neb., who stopped yesterday at the Metropolitan on his way from his model farm at Plainview to his farm at Midland.

"Dry farming according to what is known as my system," said Professor Campbell yesterday, "simply means the observance of the best methods for using the moisture stored up in the ground from the regular rainfall, together with the elements in the soil and air which cause plant growth. We have proved time and again that land in the semi-arid West always yields rich returns when properly handled."

"Up on our farm near Plainview, which I have just visited, a party of prospectors the other day wanted to find out how deep the moisture extended under one of the fields which has been cultivated for a little over a year according to Campbell methods. They dug down four feet and the ground was still moist, so they gave it up. There has been comparatively little rain in that section during the winter and fall, but wheat on that field is up in good even stand and will make a yield without any more rain. Wheat in other fields in that vicinity shows the need of rain and will not yield at all without rain. Of course, the yield on our fields will be considerably increased by rain at the proper time."

"At our Midland farm, where I go tomorrow, the work has been more thoroughly performed and I am expecting especially good results."

"People are slow to take up proper methods of farming in the West, because they have so long been accustomed to haphazard methods which may or may not make yields. But where they have begun farming right the results amply justify the trouble taken. Around Hereford, in Deaf Smith county, there are a number of farms which are following the Campbell system pretty carefully. On one of these Judge L. Gough of that city raised over thirty bushels of wheat per acre last summer, when adjoining fields returned only one-third to two-thirds that amount. Near Guymon, Oklahoma, last summer in a particularly dry season, a farmer who followed my system got forty-eight bushels per acre which sold for $47.70 per acre, when a large per cent of his neighbors made total failures and none of them made good yields. I could quote many more instances like that, and I can prove that there has not been a single failure when the system has been carefully followed."

"I couldn't tell all about the system under varying conditions in 500 book pages, but the essential thing is to give the plants a firm, moist root-bed, covered with a loose surface of soil. We do that by plowing deep and by packing the surface down firm at once, so that the subsoil will not dry out. Then with the surface loose, the ground is in condition to accumulate all the moisture that falls and it is also in condition to get the elements from the air that the soil needs to become fertile. We keep that surface loose by harrowing after every rain. Then when seed is finally planted on that firm seed bed with the soil over it, it can get the moisture from below and the elements in the air and soil which make for plant growth. The surface of the ground must be cultivated after every rain so as to break up the crust which would form and hurt the crop by choking the moisture from below and by choking off the air from supplying the plant roots with the elements they need."

Prof. Campbell does not regard with entire satisfaction all the experimental work directed by the United States department of agriculture and he declares that experimental farms directed from Washington will never solve the problem of farming in the semi-arid West.

He also discommenates the unfavorable reports given out by the parties connected with the country life commission on "dry farming." He received a message here yesterday from a leading railroad official of a big western road, asking him if he could appear in Washington at some date soon to present the case of the dry farmers fairly before the country life commission, and it is possible that he will fill such an appointment.—Vernon Record.

He Finds Money in Hogs.

Tom Roberts, one of several Wichita county farmers who are establishing reputations for themselves as hog raisers and feeders, was on the Fort Worth market last week with a shipment of a carload of his own raising that averaged 290 pounds and sold at $6.25, topping the market and being the only load to make that price. The hogs were of high quality and finish and conceded to be among the toppest loads here for many weeks.

Mr. Roberts' farm comprises about 500 acres of good corn land on the Red river. It is all in cultivation and most of it given over to the production of corn and hog pasture.

Mr. Roberts has been raising and shipping hogs to the Fort Worth market for about six years, having been a shipper to this market before the present big packing houses were constructed. During this period he has found the industry a profitable one and has been gradually increasing his hog production until he now fattens about three carloads of his raising annually. As he has increased his hog output, he has also been putting his farm in shape to handle the stock to the best possible advantage and he now has 185 acres hog proofed and divided into six pastures. During the last two years he has been experimenting with alfalfa, and while he states that his efforts in the growing of that legume have not been entirely successful, he has every reason to expect a fair crop the coming season.

He finds rape among the best grazing feeds for hogs and he grows it in several pastures which he uses alternately. He raises all his feed-stuffs and finds he secures a much better price for his corn when he markets it as pork. For the last several years he has made an average of thirty bushels of corn to the acre on his Red river farm, but he states that there is much tight land country about that section that will not produce as well. On account of the low price of cotton, he believes there will be a vast increase this year in the acreage given over to corn and subsequently an increased production of hogs. Farm lands are still advancing in value in that section, the sorriest raw lands selling around $15 an acre, and improved farm land averaging about $40, with the best bringing $65 or more. GOOD RESOLUTIONS.

Though it is in the second month of the new year it is not too late to make good resolutions, for instance, as those being sent out by the director of the American tuberculosis exhibit in New York. The resolutions follow:

Resolved:

That I will take better care of my body.

That I will seek to know more about my body and be better able to give it proper care.

That I will try to aid others that they may take better care of their bodies.

That I will plan to learn more about the conditions which affect the physical well-being of others.

That I will give particular attention, as occasion makes possible, to conditions affecting the health of the poor, the ignorant and the neglected.

That in school, church, club, lodge, union or society I will encourage the discussion of health topics and the suggestion of plans towards better health conditions in the community.

That I will endeavor, every day of the year, to

"Sleep in the Fresh Air."

"Work in the Fresh Air."

"Play in the Fresh Air."

"Live in the Fresh Air."

That I will present these resolutions if possible, to every class and society to which I belong.

Even a chronic pessimist must admit the world is getting better when any considerable number of its citizens will spend time and effort in trying to get the whole people to preserve the blessing of good health.

Half of good health is believing that one is well, and resolutions of a positive sort are a real help.

For too many years all our instruction about keeping away from illness has been of the negative sort. "Don't sleep in a draft. Don't eat this or that. Don't drink unboiled water," and a whole series of other "don'ts" devised by some one who always looked at good health from the wrong side of the fence.

It is time to change around and look at health as something which we have normally, naturally, as an inalienable right of birth in this advanced age; to reflect that when we are sick we are being cheated out of something that belongs to us, and if we have been defrauded through our own negligence we ourselves are to blame.

Without going into the realm of psychic healing, mental physics or any other unbacked doctrines of their sort, it is quite enough, to look upon good health from a positive viewpoint and to make such good resolutions as those suggested in the foregoing paragraphs. And then, having made, to keep them.—Fort Worth Star and Telegram.

A Retrospect.

By Joe Sappington.

Going along the street the other day I saw a couple of little boys playing "marbles." How the sight of that game brought back a flood of boyhood memories—memories of the dead years that are past gone. My mind went back to a little log school house and to a tall, prim old maid, with a high pitched voice and a Roman nose, who taught me my alphabet and thumped my head and pulled my ears if I smiled or missed three words. Oh, the memories of youth! How sweet, yet how sad! How the fleeting years have left their scars and seams and gray hairs and heart aches since I played my last game of marbles at the old log school house! Where is Tom Edwards, the boy who knocked the middler nine times hand running one day at recess? Dead. Where is Bob Larkin, the boy that could crack every finger he had? Dead. Where is Bill Mathis, who had so many sweethearts on his finger nails that you couldn't count them? Dead. Where is Bill Jenkins, the boy I once had a fight with because he tried to keep the two marbles he had plumped out with his jaw, when I had distinctly said "vench dubbs"? He, too, has long since crossed over that dark and silent river. Where is Lucy Moore, the girl that Ace Jones, Jud Hall, Frank Smith, myself and every other boy under ten that went to school, claimed for a sweetheart? Not dead, but, ye gods! A mother-in-law.

It seems but yesterday that I was playing marbles at the old log school house and I can almost hear the boys say "vench roundance," "vench dubbs," "knux," "you fudged," "you are fat," "you are dead," "finer," and "long jaw."

The sight of that game called vividly to my mind the old time dinner bucket we used to bring our dinners to school in. Don't you of the early '70s remember the old tin school bucket, the kind that made our biscuits sweat? Oh, Time, thou despoiler of youth; thou sculptor that chisels deep furrows on the brow of man; thou that dullest the eye; that sendeth the heartache and the hoary locks, wilt thou not turn back in thy ceaseless flight, and let me off, I pray thee, at the old log school house just for one sweet day, that I may press the hands of the boys I used to play marbles, antney over, stink back, and hull pen with? I want to tell Jud Hall that I was wrong the time he and I had a fight out behind the school house about which was the larger, the sun or the moon—I want to take Andy Peters away off to one side and acknowledge to him that his dog could whelp mine and ask his forgiveness for my striking him some thirty odd years ago concerning the fighting qualities of our dogs—I want to take Ace Jones by both of his hands and look him right in the eye and tell him that I have at last come to the conclusion that he was right and Lwas wrong in that fight we had over that game of marbles one day at recess, 37 years ago last summer. Of course, I know I said "vench roundance," before he said "roundance," but I want to take the blame on myself just to ease my conscience.

Oh, Time, grant me the boon of one day of innocent boyhood back at the old log school house with the boys and girls as in the days of yore and then you may proceed to chisel your wrinkles on my classic brow and take the few straggling hair that you may find on my shapely head that have been left by the many hair restorers that I have been using for the last twenty years.

One of the Taft Stories.

Taft stories are now the order of the day. A writer in the Chicago Intel Ocean makes this contribution: "Some time ago a Chicago man went down to Cincinnati to attend a Yale alumni dinner. Arriving at the hotel just in time to dress, he found that he had brought everything except a white shirt. 'Here, George,' he said, catching a bellboy, 'go through the hall and ask some of those gentlemen dressing for the dinner if they can lend me a shirt. Now, remember, that I'm a great big man.' In a little while the dandy came back and said the only gentleman he could find who had a shirt big enough was Secretary Taft, who was dressing for the dinner, too, and would be glad to oblige. In the middle of the dinner the Chicagoan received a telegram that made it necessary for him to be back home in the morning. So, catching up his grip, he hurried to the train in evening clothes. It was early when he entered his own home, but his wife heard him come in and called: 'Is that you, Henry?' 'Did you attend the banquet?' 'Yes, and I had a perfectly stunning time. Just guess what I brought back.' 'What is it?' 'Why, my dear, I've got on the secretary of war's shirt.' For a moment there was silence, and then his wife said caustically: 'Henry, I think if you will lie down on the couch out there you'll feel better after a little while.'

ADVERTISING

Regular and Irregular Appearance

THE SUCCESSFUL ADVERTISER WHO MAKES the announcement of his goods regularly will tell you that in his early day he paid out many a hard earned dollar foolishly by placing his advertising in the mediums "just when he felt like it."

IT IS A MISTAKE FOR THE ADVERTISER TO ASSUME that he is going to get rich, get a basket full of returns, from his first advertisement, especially if he is just a beginner. This does not apply to the established concerns where publicity has already been attained. The vital thing is: A broad acquaintance through publicity.

THE REGULAR APPEARANCE OF YOUR ADVERTISEMENT is important if you are placing before the public a new article. It is not the "try once, try then later" kind that catches the eye of the bright and prosperous buyer; for the searching up-to-date buyer reads his paper every day, every week, every month, seeking new equipment and new material.

ANOTHER THING TO BE CONSIDERED—Do not kill your proposition by the use of stinted space. A small space implies a small business. If you know that you have a good article, feel that there should be a demand for it, back your judgment by advertising—advertising it in a dignified way. Is it not wise to follow a proved method.

IT IS FAR LESS EXPENSIVE TO THE BEGINNER to plan his campaign of publicity in such a way as to command the attention of the reader—then the results are bound to follow.—THE INLAND PRINTER COMPANY.

The above from an undisputed authority is submitted for the careful consideration of the merchants of Wichita Falls.

CORN AS A MONEY CROP.

There must come time when lands planted to cotton will not produce crops and when they will become "cotton sick." This will be the result of the one-crop system—or rather the want of system. Men engaged in cotton farming must find other occupation. New lands will be planted to cotton, and the area will grow for half a century. Beyond, no man can forecast.

Other crops must be planted upon lands now used for cotton. Cotton lands are difficult to renew. The crop occupies the ground for many months. Legumes may follow grains, but not cotton. Cotton crops have no place in the cotton system. Cotton is an exclusive crop.

Good land can be made to produce 50 bushels of corn. This is not only practicable, but easy. The land may be made to produce a crop of pumpkins or squashes, or beans, or cowpeas, the same year. Thus the crop will be double.

When 50 bushels are produced corn can be raised at a profit at 50 cents. The price is usually higher. Let us calculate.

For breaking land, $1.50; for harrowing, 50; seed, 25; for planting, 50; for cultivating twice, $1, and we have corn at a cost of $3.75. In localities where it is as high as $5. Add rent at $1, and we have a cost of $9. For gathering, add $2.50, and the total cost in the crib will be $11.50. Unless the yield be good, the result will barely pay expense, but yield being good, profit is fair.

At 50 bushels, the price at 60 cents, will be $30, which leaves a profit of $18.50 per acre. This can be made greater by judicious use of corn. Then if there has been a crop of cowpeas or other legume which will pay cost of cultivation, profit is greater. But even at $10 per acre, the net profit on corn is greater than the usual profit from cotton.

When there are conditions for feeding stock, results will be better than with cotton. Where hogs can be grown on grasses and ground crops, and topped with corn, results are usually satisfactory.

A limitation of the power of soils to produce cotton may not prove altogether a misfortune.

That corn growing will prove more profitable there is reason to believe. This is proven. Newer methods of preparing soils, better seeds, adapted to soils and localities, better cultural methods, all will come with greater knowledge.

For those who believe they can learn nothing, there is no hope. They must go in old ways and learn over lessons their fathers learned. Hope is for farmers who are alive to the advances in the science, and who keeps pace with them.

Cotton is good enough for those who will learn nothing better. Yet it is, and must remain, a slave crop, which must consign children to the cotton patch, when they should be in school. One of the effects is the lowering of standards of citizenship. Schools, churches, social organizations, all cry against cotton as a one-crop system. We cannot hope for the best growth in citizenship while children are deprived of education to produce more and more cotton, which brings apparent wealth, but real poverty.

It is not to be hoped that corn growing will show best results at once. When a majority shall plant the best seed, in the best manner, and methods long we lingered with the well filled shall have applied the lessons of years and good will come.

Meanwhile, let study go on, and let each intelligent farmer help his neighbor with information he acquires.

With corn it is practicable to use labor of horses to greater extent, and to cultivate greater areas, with no more expenditure of human labor. It is more intelligent to use labor of beasts, to use machinery, and to save the man. Prosperity in farming is in ratio with the use of horses and machinery. The machine to pick cotton has been promised, but so far, we have only the promise.—Texas Farm and Ranch.

Tuesday Night—"The Lion and the Mouse."
Friday Night—Black Patti
Saturday Night—"The Gingerbread Man."

When "The Lion and the Mouse" is seen at the Wichita Theater on Tuesday night it is expected to bear traces of renewed activity and business acumen on the part of its producer, Henry B. Harris, as he is said to have given the Charles Klein drama the benefit of his experience in knowing what it means to maintain the high standard of his attractions presented to the play-going public. Mr. Harris promises a company that is said exceeds any yet seen in this popular and pleasing drama, and an equipment of scenic accessories that has had the attention of his corps of builders throughout the summer. Those who have seen "The Lion and the Mouse" will understand that the latter is but a small factor in the giving of a pleasing performance, as the drama of finance is, itself, of sufficient value and weight to deserve their most worthy attention, but Mr. Harris has shown in the past that he desires each minute detail carried to the point of satisfaction to the most sanguine. His success in the show world tends to prove that he has not judged amiss in this regard.

There is an added zest to the play, for the very things with which the dramatist deals in his story, have been driven home to the American public by the scandals which have been ventilated in the courts of outraged justice. The devious ways of the masters of high finance are no longer unknown paths, and the cry of "sensationalism" does not apply to Mr. Klein.

Briefly, the story of the play is this: John Burket Ryder, the principal money factor of the world, finds that his giant schemes, conceived without the slightest thought of the rights of others and the law, are thwarted by the rulings of Justice Rossmore of the supreme court of the land. Finding that the jurist cannot be bribed, Ryder proceeds to accomplish his financial ruin, and sets about to have him impeached.

The money king has a son, and the judge a daughter. These two young people meet while abroad; fall in love and return home engaged. When the girl learns of the impending dishonor of her old sire, she takes up the weapons in his defense and swears to save his fair name. The country is amazed at the appearance of a book by Sarah Green, "The Octopus," in which Ryder, thinly veiled, is flayed alive. This plagues the pride of the financier, and after repeated efforts to meet her, Sarah Green consents to call at the Ryder house. At the meeting of the two there is a duel of wits, in which the financier is a sorry second. This excites his admiration and he asks Miss Green to become a member of his family and to write his autobiography. Miss Green, which is Shirley's nom de plume, accepts, as it will enable her to learn the secrets of her father's enemy. When discovery comes, in a tremendous scene, the girl denounces Ryder and his kind, says they are undermining the very foundations of the government, and ruining the best of the nation. She is ordered from the house, and Jefferson, the only scion of the Ryder wealth, suddenly throws off his father's yoke and goes with the girl.

Edna Archer Crawford will be a new Shirley Rossmore to the theater-goers of this city, but the fact should cause little or no alarm among them, as critics have been loud in their appreciative acclaim of her captivating interpretation of the young authoress. Paul Everton is yet appearing as John Burket Ryder, a part which he aptly fills, and will be remembered here for his sincere rendition.

Abe Mulkey on Restitution

Abe Mulkey is holding a revival in the city of Abilene, and has given those good people his famous sermon again on Restitution. The Abilene Reporter says:

"My friends, this sermon, when I get through, you will say it is worth ten thousand dollars to your town. It cost me seven thousand dollars before I could preach it, and that spot cash." Then the evangelist went on to tell of his early life and final conversion after he was nearly forty years old. He told of how he made full restitution for all the shortcomings of his early life and paid all his old debts in full. The evangelist then went on to tell of many other people who had been converted and made full restitution. He told of the right way to be a Christian and live a Christian life. This sermon has resulted in much good over the country wherever it has been preached. Thirty-seven thousand of Mr. Mulkey's converts have been made directly by this sermon. Below are a few of the most noteworthy instances of the good it has done:

In Cleburne: A grocer was overpaid $80 by a bank cashier. He kept it for two years, then after having heard this sermon toted it back.

Hubbard City: A man restored $14.50 to a liveryman.

Palo Pinto: A little boy steals bottles from a druggist then comes around to the front and sells them to the same man.

Dublin: A lady returns a basket of eggs, acknowledging to her neighbor that her hen had been laying on her side of the cross fence and she had been hypotheating the eggs.

Hearne: A colored woman who had been making lye hominy on shares returns a bucket of hominy, saying, "Missus, I kept back part ob de price; take it, quick."

Colmiers: Negro boy restores a gold medal to a young lady.

Waelder: A man restores $2.70—the difference on a barrel of lime which was charged only 20 cents, should have been $2.00.

Hutto: A man stole twelve plugs of tobacco in Tennessee from a merchant came to Texas and years afterwards restored sixteen plugs.

San Marcos: A grubbing hoe was restored by a fellow who had borrowed and kept it so long that he was ashamed to take it home, then realizing it, toted it back.

Uvalde: An infidel old man went out early one morning on his porch, and to his surprise found his old easy rocker had been brought back which had been stolen from the same place a year before. His wife said, "I'm not astonished since Mr. Mulkey's sermon on Restitution." "Well," said he, "I'll go to hear that kind of gospel."

Paris: An Indian who had embezzled a barrel of sugar of Scott's Grocery Co., returned its value.

Lampasas: School boy returns 40 cents to a confectioner at Waco for ice cream—an error in change.

McGregor: Woman returns price of a pair of silk mits to a merchant for which she had played cleydra.

Moulton: Ranchman restores a beef which he mavericked a year before.

Colorado City: A clerk takes back a number of dollars which he had taken from the cash drawer at a time.

Palmer: A sinner just converted rose from his knees, pulled his freight to a physician and said, "Here's that for that I stood security for and refused to pay; 'tis burning my hand."

Comanche: Citizen restores $25 medical bill to a physician.

Tyler: A lawyer sells his law books to restore a widow his board bill.

Dublin: A marriage fee of two years' standing to a local Baptist preacher.

Corsicana: A lumberman had a customer whose open account had gone out of date several years; was convicted under this sermon and paid the same with interest.

Sulphur Springs: A man in Tennessee borrowed a buggy from a preacher, the horse ran away and broke it to pieces, he dragged it up to the parson's house and took the next train for Texas. After the sermon was over he walked across the church to the man, who had also moved to that place, and said, "What did it cost to repair that buggy?" He answered, "$35." "Well, you are fencing in a farm; I will bore post holes for you until that debt is paid."

Nacogdoches: To the Texas Siftings a citizen restored $10 brogloed 10 years before.

Temple: A lady united with the church by letter; after the sermon on Restitution she came back and said, "Give me that letter back, tis of no value. Later she comes back and hands it in, saying, "Tis all right now. I had to go and restore $5 quarterage to my former pastor in a distant town."

Plano: Local preacher had escheated a man for whom he had formerly worked; was convicted, went and sold part of his library and returned the $9.00.

A poor boy stole a hat to go to the Mulkey meeting, heard the sermon and went and carried the hat back; he was forgiven and presented with the hat.

A druggist gave up his homestead to pay back to the proprietor the money he had escheated from the cash drawer from one to five dollars at a time.

San Marcos: Lawyer cleared a man and kept him out of the penitentiary; having great confidence in the client he failed to have him put up the usual fee in advance; during the trial the client was busy embroiling his substance in his relatives' names. Years afterward he heard this sermon and restored 27 head of horses and several head of cattle for said amount.

A reformed tramp pays $16 for 1600 miles travel.

Kaufman: A merchant failed to charge a cross-cut saw to a customer. After the man heard Restitution—he came around and coughed it up.

Bowie County: A sawmill man wronged a creditor out of 45,000 feet of lumber. He returned it—Eye Witness.

Would Require Spartan Bravery.

You women who "rat" and puff and tangle your poor hair until you've lost most of it would be very startled if such a fall as told of in the following article should suddenly be introduced. Imagine what a poor showing some of you would make if called upon to go forth with only the hair that grows upon your much abused head was demanded by Dame Fashion. They say that women will sacrifice anything to "style," yet I am thinking many a sister would balk at the suggestion of allowing adorable masculinity to seep her with her yards of store-bought hair laid away in the dressing table drawer.

Over in Paris some women who are always striving after innovations in toilet have taken to appearing at the opera in evening costume with their hair unbound and flowing loosely down their backs.

The hair is brushed straight back from the forehead and no ribbon or ornaments of any kind are used. The effect is, of course, striking, but extremely trying to any but a young and handsome face.

There's no probability that the fad will become popular, because so on women out of every ten would look unattractive with their tresses unbound and in their natural quantity.

That women would so suddenly throw away their pounds of curls, chignons and puffs is unbelievable. Nothing but a national crisis could call forth such Spartan bravery.—Harriet Russell in the Houston Post.

In the stomach of a whale killed the other day near Messina, was found the leg of an Italian sailor, who it is supposed, was trying to escape by swimming from the wrecked city when he was seized by the whale.

The Dangers of Centralization.

Is Governor Mitchell Campbell seeking to imitate and make himself a prototype of Teddy, the Terrible? That is a question that is being considered by thinking men all over the state, and the governor is coming in for some very severe criticism for his un-Democratic procedure. Commenting on this feature of the situation, the Waco Times-Herald says:

We have been taking the measure of the present governor of Texas, the Hon. Thomas Mitchell Campbell, impelled thereto by what we consider extraordinary performances on his part. We have a fresh illustration of the man's undemocratic methods in his 2-cent fare recommendation to the legislature.

Now a 2-cent fare may be the very thing that Texas needs; let us have dispute as to that, but let us proceed to measure the man Campbell from this new viewpoint.

We had a campaign in the State last spring and summer which involved the office of governor. Mr. Campbell was a candidate for re-election, and he made active canvass. This paper and others, if our recollection has not tricked us, challenged him on this very question of 2-cent fares, but never a word from Mr. Campbell on this subject. The state convention met, and it was largely under the domination of Mr. Campbell and his friends but never a word in regard to the 2-cent fare proposition. Now Mr. Good Citizen, here is presented to you the very question we have been trying to press on your consideration for some time. Whose government is this? You will answer, and quite properly, that it belongs to the sovereign people. But here we find your governor pressing an important matter about which you have never been consulted. There are thousands of men who believe that the time has not arrived for the 2-cent fares in Texas. They argue that the

The fellow who accepts pay without performing the labor assigned him is a swindler and a deadbeat. He deserves to be shunned by decent people. His example is demoralizing and he should not be permitted to associate with honorable men. We despise such men and, while inclined to be charitable, we would not hesitate to expose such if inquiry was made. "A laborer is worthy of his hire." IT'S ONLY A QUESTION OF TIME when your watch or clock will need overhauling. Perhaps yours needs it now. If so, bring it in here and let us put it in order again.

WATCHES AND CLOCKS
need an expert doctor to look after their ailments. We are graduated watch and clock physicians. And our prescriptions never fail to benefit. Fees are very small, too.

SPRING DAYS are COMING

Along about this season of the year the appetite is apt to become jaded and things don't taste as good as they ought to. At such times a good condiment helps matters considerably. We have just received a shipment of fancy bulk Olives, Dill Pickles, and bulk Sour and Sweet Pickles. Have Dodson and Brauns Blue Point Oyster Catsup, Dodson & Brauns choicest sweet Catsup and their celebrated Oyster Cocktail, Snyders Pure Tomato Catsup and Snyders Oyster Cocktail Sauce. It's all the best of its kind and you can suit your taste and have a change.

ALL KINDS OF PICKLES, OLIVES, RELISHES IN BOTTLES, JARS AND JUGS.

We can furnish you with Orange Marmalade, preserved Oranges and Grape Fruit to tempt your morning appetite. In fact, the reason it's hard for us to advertise is the fact that we have so many good things we don't know where to begin and when to leave off. If there is anything you want to eat ask us—probably we have it.
