WEATHER FORECAST.

For Wichita Falls and vicinity: Tonight and Saturday, partly cloudy weather.

CLEAN-UP DAY PROCLAMATION.

Wichita Falls, Tex., Mar. 17, 1909. I, T. B. Noble, Mayor of the City of Wichita Falls, at the request of many of the good citizens of the City of Wichita Falls, Texas, do hereby designate and set apart Tuesday, the 6th day of April, 1909, as cleaning up day, and hereby request all the citizens of the city to cease from their usual occupations and close their places of business and devote the entire day to cleansing and beautifying our city. And I do hereby declare the said day a legal holiday.

A DESERVED REBUKE.

In response to a letter given the press of the State and sent to all commercial bodies by the President of the Commercial Secretaries' Association in which the president of that organization urged that petitions be circulated for signatures and then forwarded to the members of the Legislature at Austin, asking that body to pass the appropriations bill and adjourn, I elicited the following reply from the secretary and president of Abilene's 25,000 Club:

J. A. Arnold, Austin, Tex.: Referring to your letter of the 22nd inst. and copy of circular letter enclosed, while believing in conservative legislation which gives to every dollar invested, whether corporate or otherwise, that degree of protection to which it is entitled, we are also fully imbued with confidence in the wisdom, patriotism and fidelity of the Thirty-first Legislature and the present administration, and believe them to be competent, more than any one else, to know when it will be best for them to adjourn. Hence we are unable to consistently comply with your request.

The Dallas Times-Herald is very strongly opposed to ex-Senator Thomas being returned from the Second district; thinks the Senate did the right and proper thing in his expulsion. But it doesn't think very much of Mr. Doak, who is making the race against Thomas, for speaking of him it says: "The Hon. N. P. Doak of Clarksville may be a good man. He doubtless is, but as a politician he has much to learn. Mr. Doak is a candidate for the seat in the seat recently vacated by Hon. H. Bascom Thomas, who was expelled from that body. In his first speech to the voters Mr. Doak solemnly proclaimed that the senate should not have expelled Mr. Thomas and that if he (Doak) had been a member of that body he would have voted against the expulsion resolution. Mr. Doak seems to have mounted the Thomas band wagon before it had proceeded half a block. Mr. Doak's candidacy is a disappointment."

The Dallas paper must admit, though, that Mr. Doak is learning. Mr. Doak now sees his error in saying he would have voted against Thomas' expulsion. He now says he wouldn't have voted to expel Thomas, but had he been Thomas he would have resigned. A bit involved in this tardy explanation, perhaps, but it will suffice for all who intended voting against Thomas anyway. The Record and Chronicle believes Mr. Thomas' actions were absurd, if not foolish, in that he made his charges without having the evidence to back them up. But the majority of people in and out of his district believe that he had better grounds for his belief than have come to light up to now; that the next time Senator Thomas makes any charges, he'll have "the goods," and that he ought to be returned to give him the chance to profit by his first mistake.—Denton Record and Chronicle.

Representative Otto James of Kentucky is anxious to learn President Taft's present attitude in regard to an income tax. To this end he introduced a resolution in the house. The Associated Press says: "The resolution quotes President Taft as saying in a speech at Columbus, O., on August 16, 1907, that 'in times of great national need, however, an income tax will be of great assistance in furnishing means to carry on the government.' Mr. James refers to President Taft's tariff message, wherein it is estimated that there would be a deficit in the treasury by July 1 of $100,000,000. The resolution asks the president if, in his opinion, the 'times of great national need' have not come, when an income tax would be of great assistance in furnishing means to carry on the government." The president is asked, if he does so believe, to submit to congress recommendations relative to imposing a tax upon incomes "to the end that the rich may bear their proportion of the burdens of the government."

Alfred Heny Lewis, Washington correspondent for the Denver Post, is responsible for the statement that Col. Roosevelt, just before he pulled out for Africa upon the trail of lions, made use of the following language: "Mr. Taft became upon the understanding that he would carry out my policies, and I have had every assurance that he would do so. Should he fail, I will find a candidate against him in 1912 and, here the ex-president is reported to have tapped his shirt bosom as identifying the man—"I will be the candidate." It was one of Mr. Roosevelt's policies to distribute Federal... in the Southern States without consulting democratic congressmen and senators in regard to those appointments. This would indicate that Mr. Taft, if he ever made any promise to carry out Roosevelt's policies, has determined to adopt a policy of his own, which means that he is to be opposed by Mr. Roosevelt in 1912, should he offer for a second term.

The city's fire fighting apparatus is now located under one roof—in the splendid new city hall building, and the fine team of horses are also there under charge of their driver, ready to be hooked up in response to an alarm of fire on short notice. The fire of Tuesday night and the conditions of things at that time seem to have awakened the powers that be to the fact that while the city is reaching out for larger things, she must not neglect the smaller ones.

Negligees and Kimonos. Attractive little negligees and kimonos are among the charming things shown in the shops for the spring and summer, and any amateur can make them at home at small expense.

Of course, the fluffy negligee of silk has reached the acme of perfection, with its Greek draperies and picturesque scarfs, and in no previous season have we had so varied and beautiful an exhibit in this line.

One teagown is made of cranberry red-crepe, with shortened waist line, from which the slightly full skirt falls in straight clinging folds, with several deep tucks at the bottom to give it the needed weight. The bodice is attached to the skirt in a band of crepe embroidered in self color. The gumpie is of net to match, run through with a silver thread.

Linen Stock. A linen stock with tab ends was made of white linen, the narrow hem turned and held in place with blue French knots, the knots being about one-eighth of an inch apart. The overlapping tab was decorated with the initial worked in blue eyelids.

NOT A PLUMBER BORN.

The Beginner Who Was Sent to Find a Leak and Failed.

Pipes & Fassitt ran a busy shop. They had men out working the eight hour day in the Washington heights district. They had helpers out, too, at the regular rates.

Monday morning had opened up with a rush. Joints were bursting, and bathtubs were flowing over.

Fassitt generally followed up the jobs, seeing that they were covered. Pipes held the desk down and made out the bills.

Presently the door pushed open, and a hardy looking young fellow came in. He handed a note to Mr. Pipes. Pipes read it.

"Please, sir," said the young fellow. "Don't please anybody here," said Pipes. "Riley says you're a good man and willing to work. Sid down."

The hardy looking young fellow sat for five minutes; then the telephone rang.

"Get that off the wire," said Pipes. The young man got it.

"It's Mr. Silverberg that owns the big apartment house on St. Nicholas avenue. His star tenant complains of a leak in the ceiling from the floor overhead."

"You take that wrench and go over," said Pipes. "Locate the floor. Get around to Congdon's, where we've got a contract, and lift a helper. Go back and find the leak. Then report to me. Don't hurry too much."

The young man departed, returning in a couple of hours.

"Nothing doing, Mr. Pipes," he said. "The tenant overhead spilled some water in a corner of the kitchen. It ran under the sink and followed the pipe line to the floor below. That was all."

Pipes kept on making out bills. A ninety cent clock got along to 12 just as the noon whistle blew outside.

Then Pipes rose up sadly. "Here's sitting time," he said. "Take the money. You'll need it. A tenant imagines a leak. The owner wants to pay for repairing the leak. You were sent to find it. You failed. Some day you may be an angel, but you will never be a plumber. Goodby!"—New York Sun.

MIXED METAPHOR. The Wonderful Feat That Was Performed by a Bottle. An amateur historian is responsible for this: "All along the ever flowing stream of history you can discern the silent footprints of the crowned heads of Europe."

The village reporter on the death of the village poet: "That dauntless pen shall write no more, for its eyes are closed forever."

From the speech of a rising young politician: "The fierce light of public opinion shall dog their footsteps until it strangles them. Then shall they swallow the bitter pill and drink its very dregs."

Advice and warning from a successful man of business to a gathering of young people: "Every rung in the ladder of success is paved with slippery stones, on which only the clear head and the steady hand can retain their footing."

The fearless suffragette was addressing a meeting of mere men. She had graphically related to them the fascinating story of the strenuous struggle the ladies had made for that most priceless of possessions, a vote; how every obstacle had been conquered and victory was at last in sight. "We have now," she shrieked, "almost crossed the trackless desert, and the harbor lights are stretching out their arms to greet us!"

The temperance advocate was giving a striking but a true picture of the vast amount of evil wrought by the demon of drink, and the fact that he occasionally got somewhat mixed in his metaphors did not derogate from the truth that underlay his remarks. "What is the greatest devastating agent of our time?" he asked. "It is the bottle, which smiles genially before your face while at the same time it is stabbing you in the back."—T. P.'s London Weekly.

Was Dr. Johnson Bashful? On the eve of leaving London for Canada Mrs. Brooke, who wrote "The History of Emily Montague," the first novel written in Canada, gave a farewell party. Hannah More, Johnson and Boswell being of the company. Dr. Johnson was obliged to leave early and apparently departed after wishing his hostess health and happiness. Shortly after a servant whispered to Mrs. Brooke that a gentleman was waiting below to speak to her. Running downstairs, the fair novelist found the venerable lexicographer. "Madam," said he ponderously, "I sent for you downstairs that I might kiss you, which I did not choose to do before so much company."

Birds In Winter. Though birds have a much higher temperature than a man's—man's is 98, while theirs is 107—they suffer cruelly from the winter cold. In a mutton country it is not uncommon to find sheep with dead birds fastened on their backs. The little, cold creatures snuggle in the sheep's wool to get warm, their feet become entangled in the fleece, and they starve to death.

Overlooked. Visitor—And so you're leaving Paris. Of course you've been to the Louvre? Fair American—Yes; I bought this colaret there. Visitor—Ah, no! I mean the pictures, y' know. Fair American—There, mommer! I said there was a gallery by that name!—Punch.

We have committed the Golden Rule to memory. Now let us commit it to life.—Markham.

IT'S THE BEST FLOUR ON THE MARKET

How to Have Perfect Cake Always

Good cake is the result of two or three quite important features.

- 1st. The recipe.
- 2nd. The materials.
- 3rd. The oven or the heat of the oven.

We said recipe altho it is not the most important, for no matter how good a recipe you have and no matter how perfect an oven you have; unless the materials you use are of the best you can't expect to have the best cake.

One of the most important materials is flour, and until SWANS DOWN PREPARED CAKE FLOUR was devised, the selection of a cake flour was not easy.

Igleheart Brothers solved the problem with their Swan's Down Flour, which has all of the elements in it to produce the very best cake even under conditions that would ordinarily mean failure.

Light, fluffy cake which stays moist and delicious for days is always the result when using Swan's Down.

STYLISH SPRING

SUITS

WORSTEDS AND LINENS

The new shades of light weight worsteds in Spring suits are extremely delicate and very pleasing to even the most critical.

They are especially well suited to the prevailing styles of tailoring and makes it possible for even the lighter and darker complexions and slight and plump figures to secure not only a highly attractive and becoming shade but also a design that is most becoming.

The linens will be fully as popular too and the new weaves are going to induce many women who have never used linens before to use them this Spring and Summer.

We want you to call and see our Spring suit display for we have by all odds the largest most complete and better than that—the most attractive line of suits at moderate prices while we also have the more expensive weaves also.

Better call soon for the extremely attractive display is producing rapid sales even now, and before long the selection will be broken.

Flower Lesson

Now the Myosotis Come to Be Called Forget-me-not.
Dr. A. P. Thomson communicated to Mills' "History of Chivalry" the following romantic account of the origin of the popular name, forget-me-not, of the favorite little flower myosotis: "Two lovers were loitering on the margin of a lake on a fine summer's evening when the maiden espied some of the flowers of myosotis growing on the water close to the bank of an island at some distance from the shore. She expressed a desire to possess them, when the knight, in the true spirit of chivalry, plunged into the water and, swimming to the spot, cropped the wished for plant, but his strength was unable to fulfill the object of his achievement, and, feeling that he could not regain the shore, although very near it, he threw the flowers upon the bank, and, casting a last affectionate look upon his ladylove, he cried 'Forget me not!' and was buried in the waters. As the world insists upon a reason, this story is as good as another, but the worthy knight must have been sadly out of his element not to have been able to return from a bank on which his mistress could discern so minute a blossom, unless, indeed, we suppose him to have been clad in armor, which was a habitment ill adapted for a lover by land or water."

THE RHINOCEROS.

This Malicious Brute is the Assassin of the Jungle.
If the genius of hell used up all his mental energy making a devil for the animal kingdom, he could not have created a more uncertain, malicious and ugly brute than the rhinoceros. This animal has buried more hunters than all other big game combined. It seems to be the hired assassin of the jungle. Its success as a homicide is not due to the fact that it seeks its victim, but because its victim falls over it. If the rhino knows that there is an enemy about, it will try to get away without being seen. If, on the other hand, it thinks that by keeping still it will be passed unnoticed, it stays as silent and motionless as Gibraltar, its little bog eyes watching the direction of the noise and its nose sniffing the air. Should an enemy show up suddenly in the jungle the rhino charges like a flash, nose down and horns leveled like swords for the thrust, its huge bulk crushing through the brush like an express train. It is always a fight to the death, for a rhinoceros, once in a fight, wins or dies, and it mostly wins. If it is not confronted with an express rifle in the hands of a cool, good shot—Hampton's Magazine.

The Old Time Album.
"The terrors of the autograph album" must have been more general in the middle of the last century than they are now. The volume had embossed pages of various colors and showed alternate literature and art—original verses and drawings of ruins and bridges heightened with white chalk. Girls presented it for contributions so universally that Charles Dickens was on one occasion much astonished to find none forthcoming. He had actually brought with him some verses addressed to a beautiful maiden, on whose parents he was calling, and he carried them away again. Sending them to her by post, he wrote, "I had meant to put these lines into your album, but you, who do nothing like anybody else, did not produce one."—London Standard.

In Morocco.
In Morocco the prevailing tone is grayish white, men's clothes and houses, towns, bushes, tall umbelliferae, nodding like ghosts in autumn—all are white; white sands upon the shore and in the Sahara, and over all a white and saddening light, as if the sun was tired of shining down forever on the unchanging life. In no part of Morocco I have visited does the phrase "gorgeous east" have the least meaning, and this is always noted by the wandering easterners, who find the country dull and lacking in color compared with Asia, or, as the Arabs call it, "Blad Es Scharq."—"A Journey to Morocco."

Russian Vengeance.
The Russian revolutionaries have absolutely no mercy on those who betray them. It is well known that in the year 1903 a traitor caught at Odessa was bricked up alive in a cellar. Regnier, a French spy in the pay of the Russian police, for a long time eluded the vengeance of the revolutionaries. But they caught him at last, and that just at the moment when he fancied himself safe. His body was found in his cabin on a ship which reached Antwerp. He had been suffocated by fumes of sulphureted hydrogen. How this was done was never discovered.

The Considerate Clock.
"One kiss!" pleaded a departing lover.
"Nonsense!" exclaimed his fiancee in a teasing mood. "Some one might see us."
"Who?"
"Why, the clock; it has a face."
"Yes, but it keeps its hands in front of it!"

When He Missed It.
The baldheaded man was asked if he missed his hair much.
"Only when some fool question makes me so mad I want to pull it," he replied pleasantly.—Philadelphia Ledger.

The rain falls on the just and unjust, but the latter nearly always have the former's umbrellas.—Town Topics.

Car Shows Eight Miles.

The depot at Tolbert, Texas, was partially unroofed, a box car on the Denver with the brakes set was blown eight miles into Vernon and all trains in the Panhandle were delayed by the wind Wednesday.
The runaway box car had been sitting on a siding at Tolbert. When the wind reached the velocity of a gale late in the afternoon the car crept slowly out upon the main line and started toward Vernon at great speed. Messages were sent ahead to Vernon to watch for the runaway and it was safely hauled in there without any damage. The damage to the depot at Tolbert was also slight.
Because of the high wind, the freight trains on the Denver were all more or less delayed. At times the engines almost had to stop and wait for the gale to subside.—Fort Worth Star.

The Town that Secures the West Texas Baptist Sanitarium

By A. B. Ingram in Western Evangelist
It is said when the celebrated James Watt opened his little shop on Salt Market for the construction of the steam engine he hung out a sign, "Power to Sell." Some months ago a committee, consisting of several of our leading preachers and laymen, were officially appointed for the purpose of canvassing several of our West Texas towns with a view of locating the West Texas Baptist Sanitarium in the town that would offer a $25,000 bonus, including a suitable building site. This committee, like Mr. Watt, has something to let. That is, it offers an incomparable opportunity to any town that will put up the required bonus, to secure an enterprise of incalculable commercial value to itself.

The committee states that the minimum cost of the sanitarium will be $75,000 and it is believed that they will want to make it $100,000. The question is, "What commercial value would such an institution be to the town securing it?" It seems to me the question is easily answered. Here it is: If a town puts up a $25,000 bonus, then the Baptists, who are behind this enterprise, will duplicate that $25,000, plus $50,000, which they propose to invest in attractive and permanent property in said town. In other words, the town giving the bonus, will have given back to it its $25,000; plus $50,000. The whole investment will stand for the growth, commercial development and prosperity of the town; that is, if such a building is understood to add to and enhance the commercial value of property in towns. Such a question, with the facts before us, is not even debatable. For is it not a fact, that such costly, attractive public buildings always attract the attention of visitors? Is it not a fact that such character of buildings give evidence of material progress and prosperity in the town where they are located? Do not the adobe and shacks of former days in West Texas bear testimony to us of the non-progressive and thriftless spirit that obtained in this section during the days of the frontier civilization? Is not the tearing down of these old buildings and the replacing of them with splendid stone and brick buildings looked upon as evidence of prosperity and development in these magic towns of the West? If these things are true, then may we not reasonably conclude that a $75,000 sanitarium building would be an attractive and valuable commercial asset to the town securing it?

There is another way of looking at the commercial value of this sanitarium to the town where it is located. It is conceded by those who are an authority, that such a sanitarium as the one contemplated, will during a year receive into its wards 800 or 1,000 patients who would pay into this institution an average of $200 each. This would mean $160,000 left by these patients in the institution and, therefore, a commercial asset to the town. Suppose, however, that it only brought in one-half of that amount, $80,000, would that not make it an enterprise of great commercial value to any town? Surely, the cold-blooded commercial man, who always asks the question, "Will it pay?" may by this process of figuring see the value of such an asset.

Again, there is still another consideration for the town securing this sanitarium. Be it understood that this institution is to be founded by the Baptists of West Texas. They represent a constituency of 1,000,000, who are by no means a feeble folk. They stand for the broadest, surest and most progressive policies and plans of co-operation in their denominational work. They represent, in a large way, the wealth, culture and religious prestige of this great and growing empire of the West. It means something for such an enterprise to have the wealth and influence of such a denomination behind it. For around this institution will crystallize its influence and power. It would naturally make of the town where it was located a denominational mecca. Of course, the institution would be open to the patronage of all denominations, and others of no religious faith as well, but especially would it attract to the town Baptists, that they might have convenient the advantages offered by such an institution.

Again, it is understood that such an institution would necessarily create a demand for the best medical and surgical skill the country could afford. This feature alone would be regarded as a valuable commercial asset to any town. Is it not a fact that certain towns and cities have been made famous because of the great professional men who lived in them? Such as lawyers, doctors, preachers and statesmen? Many a town would never have been known had it not been for some noted doctor who lived there. Sanitariums always attract the best. Truly, our Baptist people would have only the best.

Then, last of all, there is still another valuable asset to be considered. It is the caring for the needy who are sick. There is no way of computing the value in dollars and cents of such an institution in its work of charity for the suffering poor of a town. Money is not the equivalent of such charity service to God's suffering poor. It must look to that day of all other days for its reward, for Jesus will say, "Inasmuch as ye have done unto one of the least of these my brethren, ye have done it unto me."

Now, aside from any denominational pride or ambition, I am candid in my convictions that the town that is so fortunate as to secure the West Texas Baptist Sanitarium, will add in no small way to its real growth and commercial prosperity. That the town that is too dead to make an effort to secure it, is in every sense a commercial sepulcher, filled with the bones of dead pessimists. If there is ever a resurrection of such a town it will be when the mossbacks and pessimists have all perished from the earth and real live men come in to build on the wreckage of these sepulchers, a real West Texas town.

AUTUMN LEAVES.

The Change of Color From Green to Red or Yellow or Brown.

Despite the commonness of autumn colorings, we do not yet know the full meaning of autumn colors of leaves. We do know that late in the summer the tree is preparing for the leaf fall by drawing the valuable substances of the leaf into the stem. It also ceases to make chlorophyll (the green substance of the leaf which aids in the making of the plant's food), and this gradually fades away in the bright light. By fading it exposes to view any other colors in the leaf, and all leaves contain yellow coloring matters called xanthophyll, whose function is not known, and it is these which give the yellow color to autumn leaves.

The red is formed differently. In bright light and cool temperature a new substance, called erythrophyl, is made from sugar and tannin in the leaf cells, and that has a red color. A brown substance is also sometimes formed, and, besides, the skeleton of the leaf itself turns brown as the leaf dies. It is the various combinations of these substances that give the many shades of autumn colors. Some students think these colors are a useful protection to the living protoplasm (life material) of the leaf after the green disappears, protecting it against the full blaze of light, which is injurious, but others think the colors have no use at all, but are simply the incidental chemical result of the processes in the ripening and dying leaf.

As yet the weight of evidence seems to favor the latter view, but the matter is still unsettled. It is generally thought that frost has something to do with it, but it has not, except to hasten it. Anything which affects the vitality of the leaf tends to hasten it, for which reason an injured branch of a maple will often show red autumn color even in summer.

The colors are brightest where the leaves receive the most brilliant sunshine.—Professor W. F. Ganong in St. Nicholas.

A Slow Horse.

One time when he was quite a young man Lincoln hired a livery stable horse to attend a convention where he expected to be nominated for some office. The horse went so slow that when he reached there the convention was over and the other fellow nominated. On his return he bravely asked the stable keeper if the horse was good for anything at all. "Yes, for drawing the hearse to funerals," was the reply. Lincoln advised him earnestly never to send that horse to a funeral, for if he did judgment day would arrive before the corpse reached the grave.

Geese.

A Georgia editor wants to know in what part of the country the most geese are to be found. That is hard to say. Some would suggest California, some Georgia, some Tennessee, some Massachusetts, some New York, and, maybe, some especially mean ones the District of Columbia.—Washington Herald.

Representative Hamilton's Views.

Last week Representative G. E. Hamilton improved the opportunity of the legislature's visit to Fort Worth to make a visit home. He spent several days at Matador attending to legal matters, returning to Childress to spend Sunday.

Seen by a Post reporter, Mr. Hamilton expressed himself freely on the doings of the legislature, past, present and prospective. He thinks Kennedy's enforced resignation and Thomas' expulsion were public necessities and considers the Commercial Secretaries' Association a mercenary band hired by corporations to work out sinister motives.

Mr. Hamilton is a staunch supporter of Governor Campbell and said he (the governor) would undoubtedly be able to manage things much as he desires through the special sessions, of which he thinks there will be two before final adjournment. He says the bank guaranty bill will provoke the hottest fight of the session, as the bankers are opposing it almost solidly.—Childress Post.

Form Company to Raise Hogs.

There is a genuine innovation in process of formation in the city of Fort Worth, in the shape of a company that has for its object the growing of hogs for the Fort Worth market. The Fort Worth Star-Telegram says: A Fort Worth company composed of prominent local capitalists is now being organized for the purpose of raising hogs on a large scale for the Fort Worth market. Those interested in the undertaking are meeting with the greatest success. They have secured options on land southeast of the city that is admirably suited for the purpose and expect to make a full announcement of organization and plans within a few days.

Among the prominent men who will be in the new company is O. W. Matthews, secretary of the Fort Worth stock yards.

The Star-Telegram representative found Mr. Matthews in his office engaged with several stock farmers discussing the hog question.

"Hog supply is the 'eternal question' with us," said Mr. Matthews, "and more money with less outlay can be made in hogs than anything else the farmer can raise. We are using every effort to educate the farmers of Texas to this fact, which figures will easily prove. If the farmers would sit down and figure that the average litter of hogs on a conservative basis of six pigs to the litter, they would find that the result from one sow at the end of three years work would be astonishing."

As an illustration, Mr. Matthews mentioned the record of a farmer who bought a sow that was already bred and due to litter in thirty days after the time he purchased her. "At the end of three years' time the offspring from that one sow and progeny amounted to over 350 head, so that for an original outlay of $15, which was the cost of the sow, in three years' time this farmer had marketed two car of hogs and had left on hand 190 pigs, and all the additional expense he had been to was the cost of the milo maize used in finishing, as these hogs all ran on pasture that would have otherwise been unoccupied.

"I was never better pleased to see any step taken than the one now under way to organize a company out of Fort Worth capitalists for the purpose of going into the business of hog raising on a large scale. This, I believe, is the first company formed in the state of Texas, whose sole object from the start will be the raising of hogs for the Fort Worth market. The undertaking appeared good enough to me to subscribe to twenty-five shares of the stock and to secure an agreement for twenty-five more to be held in reserve in this industry alone. If properly conducted (and it is the intention of the organizers to place it under the best practical management that can be obtained), can be made, in the course of a few years, to produce enough hogs to keep an ordinary size packing house busy itself.

"This company has secured the option on a very valuable piece of land not many miles distant southeast from Fort Worth, and my prediction is, within the next year or two the results which will have been accomplished will make the average Texas farmer think he has been sleeping on his rights."

In talking with some of stock raisers of Oklahoma the extent of the increase in the hog industry in that state was made apparent. In fact some of them made the open boast that if the supply of hogs from Oklahoma now coming to Fort Worth should suddenly cease, the Fort Worth packing houses would have to close up. When one takes into consideration the fact that 75 per cent of the hogs received in Fort Worth in 1908 came from Oklahoma. It is readily seen that there is more truth than poetry in the statement.

The Trade Cigar and Napoleon

If Napoleon had been a cigar maker he would have missed Waterloo and exile, but he would also have missed a greatness and glory that will live as long as English, French or any other tongue is a living or dead language. This is no historical essay, but a reminder that we are wont to claim the "TRADE CIGAR" the Napoleon among cigars.

The "Trade Cigar" Made by JOHN ROBERTSON

cigar maker, who for more than nine years has been in continuous business on one street, in fact the second oldest firm on Ohio Avenue, goes to prove, if naught else, that we are "stayers" and "doers" too. Our friends have told us we were too partial to the great Corsican, have in conversation and in advertisement alluded to him too much. But, if you can't be great yourself, the next best thing is to be the associate of great men. To be mediocre is the privilege of all men, to be great the ability of few. It is easy to grow five feet, difficult to grow seven. Miss reading of Waterloo, miss smoking the "TRADE CIGAR" and you've lost the best, and who is so great a loser as he who misses the best.
