IVERSITY PROFESSOR WILL

MERCURY REFLECTORS

Many Times More Powerful Than the Largest Telescopes Will Be Used.

Texas News Service Special.
Fort Worth, Tex., April 28.—A message was received here today from Robert W. Wood, professor of astronomy at Johns Hopkins university, Baltimore, practically agreeing to establish a Mars observatory at Stamford, in West Texas. Stamford agrees to put up ten thousand dollars, perhaps much more, to aid the scientist in his famous work.
Stamford was selected because of ideal conditions for the success of the experiment.
Professor Wood advises that his experiments with a twenty-inch mercury reflector are still progressing and that it is best not to undertake to build a giant mercury reflector until these are finished. It is proposed to build a reflector a hundred feet in diameter filled with mercury, rotating it with a huge motor. This brings the planet close to the earth. Wood has already been successful with his invention, but little has been published regarding his experiments. The mercury reflector magnifies many more times than the most powerful telescope.

Message to Mars Stirrs Scientists.
Baltimore, Md., April 27.—Baltimore astronomers and physicists are greatly interested in the discussion in scientific circles which was provoked by a statement of Prof. William Henry Pickering of Harvard before the body of astronomers recently gathered in Paris for the international congress to map the heavens. In his address to that body Prof. Pickering stated that the planet Mars can be communicated with by a set of mirrors when the planet approaches to within 35,000,000 miles of the earth, or 5,000,000 miles nearer than ever before.

Dr. J. A. Anderson, professor of astronomy at the Johns Hopkins university, this morning said:
"It is highly possible to construct an arch of sufficient intensity to convey a beam of light to Mars. Light as strong as that of the sun would carry to the planet, so that if we can construct a reflector strong enough to send sunlight in its original strength through the heavens the problem so far will have been solved and it would not be so hard to get a message to Mars whether or not there would be anybody or any form of life on the star to signal us back again is another question. There are certainly no evidences now of any such a fact. While the theory of the planet being inhabitable is now generally accepted, whether it is inhabited has never been solved, and at present there are no indications that it will be, at least in the near future."

"Supposing the planet is inhabited, although the consensus of opinion here is negative, it is logical to suppose that the Martians would be ready to take or notice a message just at a time corresponding to that when it was sent from the earth? As is well known, Mars is practically the only planet that shows any signs of being physically inhabitable. It has an atmosphere of its own, and, moreover, is capable of being studied, which cannot be said of Venus, which is even closer to the earth. That planet's face is never seen, being covered with dense clouds. It is not known what the temperature of Mars may be or whether or not it would support life. Prof. Everett Lowell, director of Lowell Observatory, has done much work on the study of Mars and has reached the conclusion that it is both inhabitable and inhabited."

REVIVAL AT THE CHRISTIAN CHURCH

The services last night were good. The interest is increasing and I would be pleased to see more of the business men and young people present. I believe if you would come you would be interested and profited. Come and see. Our services last only about one hour, beginning at 8 p. m. We close about 9 p. m.
The subject for tonight is, "The Remedy for Sin." In last night's sermon we brought out the fact that sin is an awful malady, which infects the whole human family, and causes all the woes and heartaches of our race. Sin came as the result of yielding to temptation. Man hears the voice of the tempter, considers his alluring offers, yields finally to him and sin and sorrow result.

In answer to the question, "Why did God permit sin in the world?" we answered that man had to be a moral agent to fill the place in God's universe God designed he should fill. The power to do good implies the power to do evil. If man had been other than a moral agent, he could not have honored his God nor risen to positions of honor in the world. So you had as well ask, "Why did not God make fire so it would not burn or water so it would not drown." These elements could not fill their places in God's world without these properties. No more can man without the power to reason, decide and act for himself. So man by his own acts has brought all the sorrows that sin brings upon himself and his posterity.

Come and hear us tonight on "The Remedy for Sin." Good music and comfortable seats free. All made welcome.
A. J. BUSH, Pastor.

LITTLE HOPE FOR BAILEY'S TAX BILL

Texas News Service Special.
Washington, D. C., April 28.—A poll of the senate today by the Texas News Service correspondent throws considerable doubt on the passage of Senator Bailey's income tax amendment. It was learned that thirty-one democratic senators will support the measure, but fourteen republican votes are needed to carry the amendment. A number of western republican senators favor an income tax, but oppose Bailey's, foreshadowing defeat.

President Taft has not committed himself to either a democratic or a republican income tax plan and it is reported will consider the measure only when the tariff falls to bring in sufficient revenue, in which event the republicans will pass a measure next session.

WARD BILL MAY YET BE ENACTED

ATTORNEY GENERAL DENIES THE MEASURE WOULD ANNULL
PIERCE PROSECUTION.

Now Probable That the Will Will Be Reconsidered and Made a Law.

Texas News Service Special.
Austin, Tex., April 28.—Attorney General Davidson today denied that if the Ward bill is enacted it would have the effect claimed on the floor of the senate yesterday, nullifying the criminal proceedings against H. Clay Pierce, or even permit his company to re-enter Texas. Lieutenant Governor Davidson today said that he was mistaken in his conception of the bill. The senators now generally believe that the senate took the wrong action yesterday and that the bill may be resurrected and passed.

The bill was defeated yesterday upon the contention that the Ward bill would have repealed Pierce's affidavit of 1899 and hence that all prosecutions for violations of the same would cease.

This bill had been brought in on a floor report recommending the adoption of an amendment to the anti-trust affidavit, that would have relieved the officers of foreign corporations from making oath, as now required to do, that they had not for the twelve months next preceding been parties to any agreements that would constitute a violation of the anti-trust law. This amendment would have relieved the officers of foreign corporations from making oath, as now required to do, that they had not for the twelve months next preceding been parties to any agreements that would constitute a violation of the anti-trust law. This amendment would have relieved the officers of foreign corporations from making oath, as now required to do, that they had not for the twelve months next preceding been parties to any agreements that would constitute a violation of the anti-trust law.

This bill was killed at the regular session no one, not even its author, seeming able to explain exactly what its purpose was.

UNIVERSITY BALL IS UP AGAIN

Texas News Service Special.
Austin, Tex., April 28.—The house made headway with the general appropriation bill this morning, adopting those sections providing for the comptroller's department, the land office, railroad commission and agricultural commission. When the State University was reached in the bill, Crockett offered the amendment proposed by Nickels and adopted by the committee, providing that no part of the University appropriation shall be available in the next two years if the University authorities permit the holding of a "final ball" or reception. Nickels championed the amendment, declaring that the issue was not on dancing, but whether the State should sacrifice its dignity by sanctioning a social function among the students, participated in by the "silk stocking" students when many other students would be unable to attend. Lockett of Bexar, Bowman and Mobley strongly defended the final ball, saying that when conducted by the students when the university was closed neither the university nor the State gave their sanction. Mobley offered a motion to table the amendment, but the motion was defeated.

FOUR ESSENTIALS FOR A REVIVAL

There was another fine meeting at the First Baptist church last night. Mr. Smith took as his text the 14th verse of the 7th chapter of 2nd Chronicles: "If my people, which are called by name, shall humble themselves and pray, and seek my face, and turn from their wicked ways; then will I hear from heaven and will forgive their sin, and will heal their land."

In discussing the text, Mr. Smith said that no genuine revival ever came that did not come through the people of God. Through them is the natural channel for the revival to come. He called attention to the four things that God's people must do in order to get the promise that God makes in the text. They must humble themselves; they must pray; they must seek my face; and they must turn away their evil deeds. God demands that men shall live the clean life. And when these conditions are fulfilled nothing can be surer than that God will hear from heaven and revive his people.

The audience was much larger than the night before and at the close of the sermon there were a number of requests for prayers.

The public is cordially invited to attend all of the services.

MURIEL WHITE WEDS GERMAN COUNT

Paris, France, April 28.—Only a few relatives and intimate friends were present today at the civil ceremony uniting in marriage Miss Muriel White, daughter of Henry White, the American ambassador, and Count Herman Scherr-Thoss, an officer of the Royal Prussian Cuirassiers. The ceremony was performed by the mayor of the Eighth Arrondissements in which Ambassador White resides.

The religious marriage will be celebrated tomorrow at St. Joseph's church in the Avenue Hoch, one of the most exclusive Catholic churches in Paris. The service will be simple, and will be attended only by the members of the immediate families. The bride's nieces, Miss Margaret Rutherford, the daughter of Mrs. W. K. Vanderbilt, and Miss Lucy Buckler, the daughter of Ambassador White's step-brother, William H. Buckler, secretary of the American legation at Madrid, will act as bridesmaids.

Few international marriages of recent years have attracted more attention than that of Miss White and Count Scherr-Thoss. The bride is a beautiful and cultured young woman of 25 and has been a great favorite in society, both in Paris and London, where her father was long attached to the American embassy. The count, whose age is given as 29, is the eldest of four sons of Count and Countess Scherr-Thoss of Dobrau, Prussia, Silesia, and he is heir to both the title and the extensive estates which the family owns in Silesia. He has an excellent record as an army officer and for a time he held the important position of military attache to the German embassy at Vienna.

With Miss White and Count Scherr-Thoss it was almost a case of love at first sight. The daughter of the American ambassador first met the count scarcely three months ago while visiting Mrs. Reynold Hitt, wife of the secretary of the American embassy at Berlin. Ambassador and Mrs. White were at the time at Nice, entertaining the officers of the American fleet. The couple saw much of each other during Miss White's short stay in Berlin, and the count followed the young woman back to Paris, where he pressed his suit with such ardor that the engagement was announced a few weeks later.

The marriage contract of Miss White and Count Scherr-Thoss contains no dowry provision. It expressly stipulates that the couple shall live under what is known in Europe as the "regime of separation of property."

The count and countess will probably spend their honeymoon in the south of France. Later they will go to Breslau, where the count is stationed at present, spending part of the time at one of the count's country places in Silesia.

Among all ages, races and creeds—men and women and children; white, yellow, red or black; free and unfree; Christian and pagan; civilized and savage; moral and vicious—every human heart responds in some degree when the chords of memory, vibrating, call up thoughts of the purest, strongest of human emotions—a mother's love. Men and nations may differ as to the fitness of many holidays now observed, but all will reverently wear a white flower on the second Sunday of May in honor of the sanctity of maternity and in loving recognition or in memory of "the best mother in the world—your own."—Joe Mitchell Chappell, May National Magazine.

WEATHER FORECAST.
For Wichita Falls and Vicinity
—Tonight and Thursday, unsettled weather. Showers tonight or Thursday. Brisk to high northerly to westerly winds.

Wichita Falls, Texas, April 28th, 1909.

With the deposing of Abdul Hamid, who is succeeded by his younger brother as Sultan of Turkey, it is to be hoped the outrages and massacres being perpetrated upon Christians in Asia Minor by those of the Mohammedan faith, will cease. The annual slaughter of thousands of Christians by fanatical Mohammedans should be stopped and notice to this effect should be served upon Turkey now. If it is not heeded, then there will be no further use of tolerating such business by the Christian nations. The world has looked upon these massacres and done nothing to stop them, it seems, quite long enough and now it is time to take steps that will count. The Mohammedans have a perfect right to their religious beliefs, but should not be allowed to force their views upon others. The civilized world will expect the new ruler to stop these outrages, and in the event he is not inclined to do this, it will not be a great while longer when there will be no country for him or any other man of his religious beliefs to rule over, and Mohammedan massacres will not be quite so numerous.

Ablene is trying to land a cotton factory and from present indications is going to succeed. Wichita Falls can do likewise. She has inducements to offer capital seeking investment in the manufacturing line that but few cities can offer. With an abundance of water, natural gas, oil and coal in abundance, and the soil to produce the article to be manufactured, there is nothing lacking to make of Wichita Falls a manufacturing center. During the past year she has added more to her population than any other town in Texas, but in order to build a city of 29,000 or 25,000 here, it will be necessary to increase the pay roll. The securing of a cotton factory—one that will afford employment the year round for three or four hundred people, will be a step in the right direction.

Cotton Manufacturers in Session.
Boston, Mass., April 28.—The eighty-sixth annual meeting of the National Association of Cotton Manufacturers opened in the Mechanics Building today for a two days' session. Governor Draper welcomed the members at the opening session.

Among the subjects to receive attention at the meeting are, transportation for mill yards, commutator grinding, cotton futures on the New York and New Orleans Cotton Exchanges, air conditions for cotton mills, finishing and bleaching, loom improvements, losses in cotton due to moisture and other causes, additional top strippers on revolving flat cards, scientific methods in warp sizing, automatic looms, cotton economy in steam generation, preparation and marketing of cotton to the factory, cotton fibre substance and its properties, advancement of variable speeds for ring spinning and later forms of spindles.

"This is My 97th Birthday."
Brigadier-General Daniel H. Rucker, the oldest retired officer of the United States army was born in Belleville, N. J., April 28, 1812. In 1837 he entered the army as a second lieutenant of dragoons, and ten years later he reached the grade of captain. In his early military career he saw much service in warfare with the Indians in the West and Southwest. He served through the Mexican war, commanding a squadron at the battle of Buena Vista. His active career likewise covered the period of the civil war he was brevetted major-general of volunteers. He continued in active service until 1882, in which year he was retired for age. Gen. Rucker was the father-in-law of Gen. Philip H. Sheridan. Since his retirement he has resided in Washington, D. C.

The Louisville Courier-Journal has joined in the campaign against the fly. It says: "It appears that one of the campaigns planned by the health department this summer is a campaign against flies. In undertaking the war on these pestiferous insects the department asks for public co-operation. It is a praiseworthy venture and it surely deserves universal assistance. Not until very recently has the fly received the recognition it ought to have had long ago as not only a nuisance but a menace. Somehow the race regarded the buzzer as a harmless affair which did not bark or bite, which did not sting and which if it got into the butter occasionally, did the butter less harm than itself. So as a mere annoyance the fly was tolerated, and in some quarters it is still tolerated. But the fly should have no such right of way. It should be overwhelmed with the loathing it so richly merits, for the insect is one of the most filthy creatures imaginable. It breeds filth; it cannot breed in a clean spot, it feeds on filth. From its foul birth place and from its foul breeding places it carries millions and millions of bacilli about its 'person,' disease makers, which it deposits wherever it alights. If it should fall into the milk, there should be no drinker of that particular milk. It is by the fly's process of distributing bacilli that typhoid fever is spread. Typhoid fever is the favorite article which the fly keeps in stock for its unwary customers. Frequently it happens that a typhoid fever patient will wonder how he ever happened to take into his stomach the inconsiderate germ which laid him low. If he had pointed to the fly which became involved in his bread or milk, or water, or whatever it was, he would probably have pointed to the guilty party. Therefore citizens should work with the health department to exterminate this sinister ubiquity, the fly. Garbage cans should be kept covered tightly, should be free from manure, alleys and streets should be made spotless, rubbish heaps should be removed. Slack lime or diluted carbolic acid on refuse piles can help to prevent the breeding of this monster."

The Right to Exist.
New York World.
The resolution adopted yesterday by the directors of the American Newspaper Publishers' Association in regard to the libel proceedings instituted by Mr. Roosevelt in the name of the Federal government present, this clear and comprehensive statement of one of the vital issues:

"Publishers do not ask for special privileges and will not accept exemption from prosecution for offenses that they may commit, but in effect to deprive them of constitutional rights would subject them to unusual and extraordinary hardships and methods of defense.

"If newspaper publishers may be tried for alleged libel in each and every community where one or more copies of their publications may have circulated, defense becomes an endless and unbearable burden, involving not only the freedom, but the existence of the press."

The issue is the same in both the Washington and New York proceedings. If the course of Mr. Roosevelt be sustained, not only is every newspaper subject to Federal as well as State prosecution for libel, but every newspaper can be prosecuted by the president in as many "distinct and independent jurisdictions" as it can be proved to have circulated in.

No more efficient instrument for placing the entire press at the mercy of any political president could be devised, for the grand jury gets its laws from the district attorney, who gets his laws from the attorney general, who gets his instructions from the president, who has the resources of the Federal government at his command, and the power to compel endless indictments may be the power to destroy.

Ever since the Sedition Law obliterated the Federalist party, the matter of punishing libel has been left to the State courts under such severely restrictive statutes as the States have enacted. There is not and never has been a question as to the complete civil and criminal responsibility of all newspapers to such State statutes. No reputable newspaper proprietor or editor objects to such laws, or seeks to evade his responsibility under them.

The vital question raised by the Federal libel proceedings instigated under Mr. Roosevelt's orders is not whether libel is to be punished—the States have fully provided for that—but whether the newspapers of the country are to be placed at the mercy of the president of the United States, to be prosecuted wherever and whenever and for whatever suits his fancy.

If he has this power, there can be no free and full discussion of any political question except as he graciously permits, and the defense of all newspapers which offend him, becomes an endless and unbearable burden, involving not only the freedom but the existence of the press."

Missouri vs. Millinery.
Houston Post.
The Missouri legislature at the instigation of the republican governor of that State has taken the bull by the horns, so to speak, and by the indirect method of legislation undertaken to regulate the character of head dress the women shall wear, a bill making it illegal for Missouri women to wear upon their hats the plumage of any birds except game birds having passed both houses of the legislature. Having been passed at the governor's special request, it is certain to become a law.

The game birds that are available for the purposes of this act are, according to the St. Louis Republic, the anafae, the rallidae, the limicalae, the gallinae and the columbae. This makes available for hat decoration, says the Republic, the pouter pigeon and the gallinule, the Pekin duck and the China goose, the coot and the jacksnipe, the curlew and the prairie chicken, the argus pheasant and the grouse, the bronze turkey and the wild variety, the game cock and the mourning dove, the Bob White and the Light Brahma, the Plymouth Rock and the sandpiper, the rose-combed golden Wyandotte and the surf-bird, the white-crested black Polish, the mudhen, the guinea hen, the sitting and other varieties too numerous to mention.

Among the protected varieties are named the emu and the dodo, the roc and the cassowary, the phoenix and the baloon, the great auk and the thunder-piper, the condor and the wren, the great bustard and the tomtit, the pterodactyl and the English sparrow, the sacred ibis and the highholder, the bald eagle and the penguin.

The Republic, knowing well that when the Missouri legislature starts out to regulate a thing it is not to be deterred from its purpose, even though a dozen supporting measures become necessary, apparently deems resistance to the statute on the part of the interested sex as useless, and hastens to make practical suggestions as to how to best conform to the new law.

"It will be observed," says the Republic, "by all lovers of birds, hot or cold, volant or sedentary, that the birds whose use is permitted, are mostly of the large varieties. This is consonant with the architecture of the hats of the period—in fact, there are many of them which lack only the skin of a forty-pound Rhode Island turkey to be complete. Most of these game birds are gregarious. This is notably true of the gallinae. There is a suggestion in this. What could be more beautiful, for example, than a flock of Plymouth Rock hens moving gracefully around the crown of a gray hat, or a group of Partridge Cochins as the crowning feature of a brown one? A single hen would look lonesome, but the use of six or eight would fill up the otherwise waste spaces of such a hat in an appropriate and cozy manner. The practicability and good sense of this suggestion will, we are sure, commend it to all."

In undertaking thus to deprive the fair sex of her inalienable, individual wardrobe rights, Missouri gives further evidence that she has gone legislation mad, and we would not be surprised if the women precipitate a campaign for political scalp, which, under certain conditions, might serve to trim hats to better advantage than mere plumage, anyway.

Manager George Smith of the Blons says that he has the best team that has represented Buffalo since the days of the civil war. George means all right, but Jim McGuire can tell more in a minute about these civil war teams than George will ever know.

When it comes to wearing the correct sort of skins "Fashion Plate Charley" Doolin of Philadelphia has all the other ball players looking like Panhandle Pete.

DOWNMAN IS TO DEVELOP.

Is Sinking a Shaft in the Llano Iron Ore Beds.

Llano, Tex., April 26.—R. H. Downman of New Orleans, owner of the mountain of iron, left yesterday after an inspection of the work now in progress at the mine.

Mr. Downman has acquired mineral leases and options in this county aggregating a cost to him of nearly a quarter of a million dollars, and is now sinking a shaft at his principal iron deposit.

He said yesterday: "I do not know definitely whether the mine can be operated successfully under present conditions or not, for lack of fuel and transportation facilities, but it is my purpose to ascertain the extent of the deposits, and if we find what we hope to find, transportation facilities will be furnished us in due time."

Mr. Downman is not trying to create any excitement over the mineral deposits on lands where he has secured options, but is systematically and conservatively exploring his holdings.

Prof. N. J. Badu, who is familiar with conditions throughout the county, is superintending the work for Mr. Downman and saying nothing about developments going on.

L'ENFANTS BODY TRANSFERRED TODAY

Washington, D. C., April 28.—With simple though impressive ceremonies, the remains of Major Charles L'Enfant were today transferred to the national cemetery at Arlington, thus being accorded the nation's greatest tribute to the memory of the distinguished French engineer who, under the authority of General Washington, laid out the plans for the Capital City of the United States.

For the transfer of the remains of the designer of the beautiful capital from an obscure and unmarked grave at Green Hill, Md., to a more sightly resting place and the erection of a memorial, congress recently appropriated $1000.

This forenoon, before being moved to Arlington, the body of L'Enfant lay in state in the rotunda of the capitol and from 10 to 11 o'clock a memorial service was held. The service, although short and simple, was most impressive. The ceremonies were conducted in the presence of a congregation which included many of the highest officials of the nation, eminent representatives of the Society of the Cincinnati, of which Major L'Enfant was a member, and also representatives of the Daughters of the American Revolution, Sons of the American Revolution, the Columbia Historical Society, and the Washington Society of Engineers, which has taken a special interest in the transfer of L'Enfant's remains.

The two chief speakers at the memorial exercises were Vice President Sherman and M. Jusserand, the ambassador from France. At the conclusion of the services the remains were taken from the capitol to Arlington cemetery under a military escort furnished by the war department.

As has been the case with innumerable celebrities in all ages and all countries, the services of Major L'Enfant were but poorly recompensed during his lifetime. The government records show that he never received all that was promised him for his services in laying out the seat for the Federal government, though the amount in question was but $3,000.

Born in France in 1755, L'Enfant came to America with Lafayette and entered the Continental army as an engineer in 1777. He was made a captain in February, 1778, and the following year he was severely wounded at the siege of Savannah. Through the remainder of the war he served under the immediate command of Washington, and in 1783 he was made a major. He was one of the founders of the Society of Cincinnati and designed the "order" or jewel of that organization.

In March, 1791, he was commissioned by the secretary of state to proceed to what is now the District of Columbia and lay out the site for the capital. Standing on a wooded hill on the Carroll farm, L'Enfant chose the site for the capitol building. He completed the contract with the Brent quarry on Aquia creek for supplying the stone of which the original part of the capitol was built. It was L'Enfant, too, who selected the site of the president's home. He also directed the clearing of the land and the laying of the foundations for the capitol and the White House.

L'Enfant did not superintend the construction of the buildings, however; for on February 27, 1793, he was dismissed from the service of the government because he refused to act under authority of the commissioners, Thomas Johnson, David Stuart and Daniel Carroll. Then arose a dispute as to the compensation L'Enfant should receive. The government paid him about $1200 and in settlement of the remainder made him an offer of an additional sum in cash and a lot on what is now Pennsylvania avenue. This offer L'Enfant declined to accept and the claim was sent to congress, which body finally threw it out. Later the matter was compromised. In 1812 L'Enfant was appointed professor or engineering at the West Point military academy, but he declined the position. His closing years were passed quietly on his estate in Prince George's country, Maryland, where he died June 14, 1825.

Have You Had Any Salmon Lately?

Its awfully easy to get into the rut of serving the same little list of foods over and over again until the family actually get sick of them.

That's one of the reasons for our advertising in this paper, to give you suggestions for your table and help you to have a variety.

So we ask now if you have had any salmon lately and by the way how many different ways can you serve it?

Very often just a new way of putting it before your family makes an otherwise common dish seem very new and attractive to them.

There are no less than a dozen excellent ways of serving salmon which ought to be in common use in every family thus making it possible to use this delicious food fish very often and still not have it become monotonous. Any good cook book will tell you.

A very important thing to remember tho is to get the best salmon that you can get for the quality of the fish has a lot to do with the way it "takes." We personally recommend and guarantee any of the following four brands in the order listed:

- Monarch 1 lb flats.....25c
- Yacht Club 1 lb talls.....20c
- Waif 1 lb talls.....12 1-2c
- Reindeer 1-2 lb flats.....12 1-2c

Old Wheel of Fortune.
In the village church of Comfort, near Pont-Croix, in western Brittany, is a very good specimen of the now rare "wheel of fortune." It is made of wood, with a row of bells on its outer rim and pivoted between a couple of rough beams, altogether very primitive workmanship. By means of a cord attached to a crank the wheels can be made to revolve and set all the bells a-jangling. I have often heard that the peasants believe that it has miraculous power of healing when rung over the head of a sufferer who has placed a sou in the box to which the rope is padlocked. I received remarkable confirmation of this belief, for while making a photograph a well to do sailor's wife and her husband came into the church and looked round. The woman asked me if I thought there could be any truth in this belief, as her child was very backward in learning to talk. Her nurse, who came from those parts, had advised her to bring the baby and ring the bells of Comfort over his head, when he would be sure to talk. As she was passing she had looked in to see if it was worth trying! —London Chronicle.

The Smooth Way.
In the last generation Tyler Cobb, Esq., was a well known citizen of North Bridgewater, now Brockton, Mass. He was famous throughout Plymouth county for his witty retorts and dry humor. Never having taken a sea trip, Mr. Cobb one day conceived the idea of making a voyage to New York. Accordingly he sailed from Boston in a small schooner. The first day out a storm was encountered and Mr. Cobb became violently sick, but after several hours he mustered up courage and strength to look out upon the troubled waters.

As he looked from the side of the little ship up the trough of the sea it seemed very smooth to him. The captain's cutting of the waves was senseless, he told himself. But as this mad steering continued the unhappy passenger finally crawled out on hands and knees to where the captain stood at the wheel and, raising his voice above the din of waves and wind, shouted:

"Man, man, keep in the ruts, keep in the ruts!"

Worked It Off.
Just what may happen to a man who isn't strictly honest was illustrated on a street car a few days ago. A man handed the conductor a dollar and asked for a strip of tickets. He received his five tickets, and then the conductor fumbled around for change and managed to make a "mistake." He handed the man two half dollars instead of 75 cents. The man put away the money without saying a word and in a couple of minutes worked his way to the front of the car and got off. "Say, conductor," said an interested observer, "did you know you didn't give that man the right change?" The conductor smiled complacently. "That's all right," he said. "If he'd been honest and returned that half dollar I'd have given him a good quarter for it. I've been trying to get rid of that piece of money for a week. I guess he deserved to get stung." —Philadelphia Record.

Deceitful Appearances.
A remarkable experience once befell Mark Twain in Australia, which, he said, determined him never again to judge by appearances. He had just landed at an Australian port, and, to his chagrin, there was no porter in sight to carry his luggage. Seeing a rough looking, badly dressed old fellow leaning idly against a post with his hands in his pockets, the author beckoned to him and said:

"See here, if you'll carry these bags up to the hotel I'll give you half a dollar."

The man scowled darkly, and, taking three or four golden sovereigns from his pocket, he deliberately threw them into the sea, scowled at Mark Twain again and walked away without a word.

Both Tainted.
"You are in the employ of that millionaire up on the hill, aren't you?" snapped the sharp faced woman who ran the butter and egg shop.

"Yes, ma'am," responded the man in the white apron, "and I want two pounds of butter for my master's table. He said he'd send to town after it, only the roads are so bad."

"He did, eh? Well, we are not particular about his trade. Did you tell him I said his money was tainted?"

"Indeed, I did."

"And what did he say?"

"Said so was your blamed old butter." —Chicago News.

A Fixed Law.
"You are positive this happened on Tuesday?" demanded counsel.

"I am," said the witness.

"Sure it was Tuesday?"

"Yes."

"Why not Thursday or Friday?"

"Because we had chicken that day. Chicken day is Tuesday where I board." —Louisville Courier-Journal.

The Cook's Declension.
The cook picked up an egg. She looked at it doubtfully.

"It's bad," she said.

She dropped it.

"It's worse!" she hastily added.—Exchange.

Not Acting.

Preserve your just relations to other men. Their misconduct does not affect your duties.—Epictetus.

Sheriff May Be Impeached.

Montgomery, Ala., April 28.—Whether Sheriff Cazalas of Mobile shall be impeached for alleged neglect of duty will be determined at a hearing set down for tomorrow before the supreme court in this city. The sheriff is charged with carelessness in allowing a negro named Robertson to be lynched by a mob on January 23 last.

A petition to Governor Comer set out that the sheriff had left the city and failed to give the jail proper guard and as a result the governor called upon the attorney general to make a motion for impeachment, which must be by the supreme court, according to the new constitution.

A very large number of leading Mobile citizens have also petitioned the governor in behalf of Sheriff Cazalas. The victim of the mob's vengeance had for years been known as a desperate negro. The crime for which he was awaiting trial was the killing of a deputy sheriff and the serious wounding of another officer.

No Time For Retreat.

In an Irish garrison town a theatrical company was giving performances, and some soldiers from the local barracks were engaged to act as superns. Their duties included the waging of a fierce fight in which, after a stirring struggle, one army was defeated on a given signal from the prompter. For a few nights all went well, but on the Friday evening a special performance of the piece was to be given under the patronage of the colonel and other officers of the garrison. The two armies met as usual at the end of the second act, when they fought and fought and kept on fighting, regardless of the agonized glare in the eye of their (actor) general, who hoarsely ordered the proper army to "Retreat, confound you." But the fight still went on, and soon the horrified manager saw the wrong army being driven slowly off the stage, still fighting desperately. Down came the curtain amid roars of laughter, and the fuming manager hastened to ask the delinquents why they had failed to retreat on hearing the signal.

"Retreat," roared a burly fusilier whose visage had been badly battered, "and is it retreat ye'd have us, wid the colonel and all the officers in the boxes?"—London Scraps.

Mind Your Own Business.

An old custom once prevailed in a remote place in England of giving a clock to any one who would truthfully swear that he had minded his own business alone for a year and a day and had not meddled with his neighbors. Many came, but few, if any, gained the prize, which was more difficult to win than the Dunmow ditch of bacon. Though they swore on the four gospels and held out their hands in certain hope, some hitch was sure to be found somewhere, and for all their asseverations the clock remained stationary on the shelf, no one being able to prove his absolute immunity from unbecoming interference in things not in any way concerning himself. At last a young man came with a perfectly clear record, and the clock seemed as if it was at last about to change owners. Then said the custodian, "Oh, a young man was here yesterday and made mighty sure he was going to have the clock, but he didn't." "And why didn't he get it?" "What's that to you?" snapped the custodian. "That's not your business, and you don't get the clock."

The Chinese Sampans.

In Canton 400,000 people spend their whole existence in boats, which are there called sampans. They are born in them, live in them from infancy to old age and finally die in them. Collectively these boats form a floating suburb to the city proper, one of the most amazing human settlements in the world. Every creek is crammed with them. Along the main banks of the river they are huddled twenty deep—so close together that the covering of mats appears continuous as far as the eye can reach. And each sampan houses a separate family, with its own big brazier lamp, which serves for heating, lighting and cooking the evening meal. The scene when a really serious conflagration once gets a proper hold in the midst of these floating wooden homes may be imagined. Escape is impossible except for those moored at the outermost edge. In one of these conflagrations over a thousand persons lost their lives.

Wanted Her.

"An old couple from the east," says the Detroit Free Press, "are visiting their son in this city. If the mother gets out of sight of the father, he is constantly asking for her and is not content till they are together again. The other evening she went to another part of the house while he was in the parlor and after he had asked for her a half dozen times the son said, rather curtly:

"It seems as though you couldn't be without mother five minutes at a time."

"You're right," said the old gentleman slowly. "That's the reason I married her."

A Suit of Ratskins.

A thrifty Welshman at one time exhibited himself publicly in England attired in a costume composed from top to bottom of ratskins, which he had spent three years and a half in collecting. The dress was made entirely by himself. It consisted of hat, neckerchief, coat, waistcoat, trousers, tippet, gaiters and shoes. The number of rats required to complete the suit was 570. Most curious of the garments was the tippet, composed entirely of rats' tails.

Worst Place For It.

Small Johnny had been ill for several weeks when one day an aunt from a distance came to visit the family. "Why, Johnny," she exclaimed, "how thin you are! Have you been sick?" "Yes'm," replied the little fellow. "I had the brain fever and right in my head, too, the very worst place I could have had it."

His Secret.

—Student—How would you advise me to go about collecting a library? Professor—Well, I'll tell you how I managed it. When I was young I bought books and loaned them. Now I borrow books and keep them.—Stray Stories.

Took Her at Her Word.

"I'll never tell another man I'd rather dance than eat."
"Why not?"
"He kept me waiting until all the restaurants were closed."—Exchange.

Wherever there is a failure there is some giddiness, some superstition about it, some step omitted, which nature never pardons.—Emerson.
