NO MORE LEAGUES BEFORE LABOR BOARD

Chicago, March 29.—The United States Railroad Labor Board today declined to admit additional industrial leagues to the rules in the case before the board, saying, "Hearing the petitioner would not be helpful and is not in the public interest." The decision also argued that to admit this organization as a party contestant would result in opening the gates to dozens of similar bodies and perhaps prolong the hearing for a year.

NACOGDOCHES TRADITIONS

Tales of old times in Nacogdoches are voluminous, if all told. For instance, referring to how things were lined up here in various respects, we might say that, back about the decade of 1850, very little was ever thought of the names of the streets. Main street was then simply the Old San Antonio Road. It did not exactly run where it does now. And North street was then the Henderson Road. As usually traveled, it started out from the northwest corner of the public square running along where Pecan street now runs and crossed the road now called Hospital street, passing over the ground where the big Methodist church now stands, and over an open field space leading on in front of the present residence of L. S. Taylor, which was known as the old White place, and was the first house on the Henderson road. This space which is now covered with valuable buildings, was for sale, and stood unsold and vacant to about the year 1870. The price it brought was then $500. It extends from the Methodist parsonage on the east to L. S. Taylor's line on the north, bounded by the present North street and Hospital street. The only houses that had ever been on this lot were some peculiar shacks, with no floors and low roofs of big split boards, placed on without nails and held down by heavier logs of wood placed on them. The walls were low and built of small logs cut with axes to fit. The cracks between these logs were closed with mortar made of convenient dirt, mixed with Spanish moss. The doors were low and of the simplest construction. No nails, glass windows or back rooms were used. These houses looked like camps, and they appeared to be a century old. They were of the kind called in Spanish Tejas, spelled Texas, meaning roofs, shelters, boards, sheds, shanties or camps in our frontier dialect. Hence the name Texas, as a locality.

On the west side of this old Henderson road, now North street going north of Hospital street, the first dwelling was that of Judge Wm. Hart, located a few feet north of Captain I. L. Sturdevant's present dwelling. It was a spacious framed building, a story and a half high. It had the customary dormer windows, and was quite a fine dwelling for that date. It was surrounded by a grove of tall cedars planted in lines. In front of it about twenty feet across the road or street was a public well, unsheltered and unenclosed, where the proverbial old oaken bucket hung in the well, from an old windlass. It should have been called a wind-more, because it would move with its rattling old handle properly called a crank and the old bucket leaked, and to draw water required breath-wind and arm-wind.

The next house on the west side of North street going north, was not exactly on North street. It was the old Muller homestead, standing out in the field about a hundred yards from the road where Guy Blount lives. Next came the Barrett home in a cedar grove just north of the W. U. Perkins place. Next a double log house, the George M. Adams home, now S. B. Hayter's.

The General Rusk homestead was next, a hundred yards from the road further north, out in the dense woods, a few yards beyond the one mile point. And the race tracks began there, in General Rusk's old field. There was scarcely no outside ground called commons, cattle with bells on and other live stock had free range and good grazing.

There are a number of old timers here yet who are living witnesses of three score years and ten. Nay, they are octogenarians. Uncle Jim Haltom, Uncle Holloway Powers, Uncle Sam Reid, Uncle Jim Stevens and others. There are some younger native born who have seen crops cultivated on these grounds, where big houses, new stand, and where big trees had been felled. Bygones are succeeded by coming modern progress. J.E.M.

THE BOY CALLED BAD

Mr. Amunson, prominent in Boy Scout work, is probably right in a general way when he says there is no such thing as a naturally bad boy. Heredity must be accorded its influence and doubtless there are some degenerate and criminal boy minds whose unhappy proclivities can not be corrected but in the main badness as the scout worker says, is merely high spirits and mischievousness. If the so-called bad boy's abounding energies could be turned into proper channels, their full measure in itself would perhaps make a useful citizen of him.

Perhaps the most pitiful thing in the world is the so frequent lack of intelligent guidance for lively boys and girls which permits them to grow up into trifling and wicked men and women and citizens. They might have been saved so easily. A wise, kind word at a critical moment from someone he likes and respects often changes the whole current of a child's life and ultimately makes a good man of him when the lack of it would have caused him to drift into worthlessness. What an increasing demand for devotion and wisdom on the part of parents! And in the teacher's case how infinitely more important are sympathy and personality than mere learning!—Ohio State Journal.

Mr. Claud Linthicum of San Angelo is here for a visit with the family of his sister, Mrs. R. L. Holmes, who has been critically ill for several days.

RECEIVER APPOINTED FOR STREET RAILWAY

Austin, Texas, March 30.—Duval West, United States District Judge, entered an order yesterday granting a receivership for the properties and business of the Austin Street Railway Company on application of the Rochester Trust Company of Rochester, N. Y. William J. Jones, president and general manager of the company, was made receiver. The application for the appointment of a receiver alleges in substance that the company is indebted $786,000 due and unpaid on its first mortgage bonds. Among other details it holds that the company is unable to pay its debts now due and those soon to be due, and that its financial operations are greatly embarrassed.

FIFTY ARE KILLED IN GERMAN RIOTS

London, March 30.—Fifty persons were killed in Tuesday's fighting at Bevelsburg, Westphalia, while the police were dealing with communist rioting there, according to German messages today. The town was recaptured by the authorities. Communists attacked the police at Mannheim, when three communists were killed and five injured. A serious riot at Dresden has been suppressed and 52 communists were arrested, including 14 women. Reports from Dusseldorf declare that communist activity in the Rhine region is increasing. Some of the mines have been seized by workmen.

SOME GOVERNOR

An Associated Press dispatch from Austin today quoted Governor Neff as saying there is too much money wasted on the district courts of this state if the governor was correctly quoted, and it sounds just like he was, he never told a greater truth in his whole life. Every juror, litigant, witness or what not, who ever had to attend a district court in Texas will back the governor up in his statement. The way the district courts are run in Texas is one of the most prolific sources by which the people's money is squandered. The governor advocates abolishing a large number of the district courts, and making the remaining ones do the work, which is an estimable suggestion. If Governor Neff does not accomplish something for the people of Texas it will be the fault of the present legislature, which will be retired to private citizenship next year, and a legislature elected that will stand by the governor in the many great things he wants to accomplish for the people.—Jacksonville Progress.

Albuquerque, N. M., March 30.—Two men were crucified at the Penitentes village of Abiquiu, in Northern New Mexico, on Good Friday in observance of Holy Week in rites performed by members of the Hermanos de Luz Brothers of Light, a religious order, according to P. J. Nordfiet, an artist of Santa Fe, who arrived here Tuesday. He was a member of a party of two dozen tourists who witnessed the crucifixion and the flagellation ceremonies connected with it. He said the two human sacrifices were tied to a huge wooden cross longer than two hours and when taken down were bleeding and exhausted. The condition of the men was said to be serious and their recovery doubtful. The Penitentes, as members of the order are known are Indians with Mexican admixture. The order has many followers in the remote villages of the state, it is understood.

Mrs. Elmo Bright, who was painfully injured Sunday in a car wreck four miles the other side of Aiken, sustained gashes and bruises on the face caused by being thrown against the windshield, is now doing nicely, according to Mr. Bright. He says the accident was caused by running into a stump which was laying in the road. His car was not damaged by the collision, neither was Mr. Bright injured.

The Western Union office in this city is being overhauled, the position of the counter and desks changed, the cables placed underneath the floor and the equipment generally located more conveniently and attractively. Manager Avey has for quite a while been asking for this improvement.

FRUIT DAMAGED BY LAST NIGHT'S FREEZE

Dallas, March 29.—The Dallas weather bureau reports considerable damage to fruits and vegetables in North and West Texas by frost last night. The extent of the damage will not be ascertained for several days. There was a general freeze in North and West Texas as far South as Taylor and Palestine. The bureau announced that the frost extended to the fruit belt of Arkansas and Northern Louisiana.

CRIMINALS WILL BE EXECUTED WITH GAS

Carson City, Nev., March 30.—A bill providing for the use of lethal gas in executing the death penalty in Nevada was signed here today by Governor Boyles.

The bill abolishes other forms of capital punishment in the state. Hitherto, condemned men had the choice between hanging and shooting. Nevada is believed to be the first state to include gas as a means of capital punishment.

It was planned that, when the condemned man should be asleep, the air valves would be closed and the others, admitting the gas, be opened, life will be taken without the prisoner's awakening.

WOMAN MUST SERVE FOR HUSBAND'S MURDER

Austin, March 30.—The Court of Criminal Appeals today affirmed the ten-year sentence of Myrtle Stiles, convicted in Fisher county of the murder of her husband on September 1, 1918, when the husband called at the former wife's home to get their two children. The court had ruled that the children would stay with him during the school term and with their mother during the vacation.

MAE MIDDLETON COLLEY AT QUEEN MONDAY NIGHT

Following the screen exhibition at the Queen Monday night our people were the recipients of a rare treat when Mae Middleton Colley, the widely known coloratura soprano, delighted a capacity house with her superb singing. Richly gowned and at her best Mrs. Colley had her audience with her from the first golden note that thrilled from her lips. For those of classical taste she gave a synopsis of "Madame Butterfly," with the beautiful aria, "One Fine Day." For those who preferred a swinging ballad she gave "Deep in the Heart of a Rose," and those partial to the popular rollicking hits of the day there was "My Sahara Rose." Then came "Annie Laurie," the world-wide favorite, sung as an encore, and we are sure no one in the large audience had ever heard it more melodiously rendered.

Mrs. Colley is gifted with a voice of unusual timbre and it had been cultivated until she is a perfect mistress of song.

It affords us much pleasure to announce that she will play a return engagement in Nacogdoches at some as yet undetermined time, and it goes without saying that she will be warmly welcomed by the music lovers of the city.

F. M. Thompson brought in a well Sunday on the Burnaman tract near Etowah which he feels will prove a 5 or 7-barrel producer. At present the workmen are bailing out the well, and the exact amount of the flow cannot be ascertained till after this is completed.

Luther Prince is winding up his affairs in the county preparatory to going to Houston, where he plans to engage in the real estate business. Mr. Prince says he thinks the possibilities there are very much better than here, and he plans to make good.

Mrs. L. L. Munsell, who recently underwent an operation in New Orleans, had so far progressed toward recovery that she left the sanitarium a few days ago and is now visiting with her daughter, Mrs. J. E. Ray, at Beaumont, Texas.

It is said that the business men of Nacogdoches are beginning to do their own shaving. This is interesting. It means that the barbers must come down, too.

COTTON BELT ROAD VIOLATED AWARD

Chicago, March 29.—The Railroad Labor Board today held that the St. Louis Southwestern railroad probably had violated certain sections of last July's wage award on complaint brought by the United Brotherhood of Maintenance and Way Employees and Railway Shop Laborers. The board set March 31 for the hearing and requested the union and the railway to have representatives present. One allegation of the complaint was that the road had established a 10-hour day for unskilled labor and was paying a prorata scale for overtime instead of time and a half.

FARMERS JOIN BUREAU

St. Paul, Minn., March 30.—More than 58,000 farmers of Minnesota have joined the State Farm Bureau Federation, according to the announcement of the state headquarters here. Community units have been established in 459 townships in 31 counties. In 24 counties, every township has an organization.

The Leclède Petroleum Company brought in last Saturday a five barrel well on the Melsenheimer tract near Woden, according to Joe Van. The 12-barrel well is still holding up fine, so reports say. This is the biggest well ever brought in in the fields. It was brought in by Olmstead and Scribner.

SAYS IDLE COURTS WASTE MUCH MONEY

Austin, Texas, March 29.—Governor Neff today declared that a considerable number of district courts should be abolished. He said more money was wasted by idle courts than by any other department of government.

The governor vetoed the McNealus senate bill appropriating $200,000 for a state school for the blind. He pointed out that the state possessed a "splendidly equipped" school for the blind, saying if additional facilities were needed the plant would be enlarged.

RIOTING GERMANS KILLED BY POLICE

Essen, Germany, March 29.—Fifteen rioters were killed and 40 others were wounded in a clash with security police here today. The attempt to cause a general strike in this region has so far failed.

TELEGRAPHER'S MURDER SOLVED BY POLICE

Fort Worth, Texas, March 30.—The police said today that they had a solution of the murder of Scott Nichols, chief operator for the Western Union here, whose body was found on the river bank Tuesday. Nichols had been missing since February 7. The suspects are two men and a woman. The police claim they have a statement from one of them telling how the man was shot to death and his body loaded into an automobile and thrown off a bridge into the river. One of the men arrested, who is alleged to have fired the shot, denies it.

WHAT THE BUREAU DID

Dallas, Texas, March 30.—Dallas county farmers saved 50 percent on their cane seed and Sudan grass seed through their county farm bureau, and did so without going outside of Dallas with their business, according to the report of W. P. Craddock, manager of the organization. The bureau bought 43,000 pounds of seed through a Dallas firm for $738 and thus was enabled to sell the cane seed for $1.50 a hundred pounds and the Sudan grass seed for $2.75. According to farmers who bought this seed through their bureau, the price paid was half, or less than half, the prevailing prices over the county for small lots. The seed was re-cleaned and in new, even-weighted, 100-pound bags. The cane seed tested 91 percent germination and the Sudan 90.21 percent.

UNIFORM RAILROADING

Chicago, March 30.—The general uniformity and character of railroad operation in the United States, uniform time, train rules, signals, roadbeds, traffic classifications and other practically identical systems were cited before the Railroad Labor Board today in the employees' statement in favor of a national agreement. W. J. Lusk, consulting economist for the unions, presented a detailed study of "The unity of American railway systems."

THE POPE'S TRIBUTE

Washington, March 30.—Pope Benedict sent a tribute to the late Cardinal Gibbons to the Catholic Welfare Council, which reached here today. It follows in part: "The death of our dearest brother, the cardinal and archbishop of Baltimore, is a great grief not only for his diocese and country, but for the whole church. Cardinal Gibbons was a living testimony of the magnificent development and powerful organization which the Catholic church has attained in his country."

THE HAMON CASE

Covetousness killed Jake Hamon. Until ten years ago he was a luckless adventurer. At that time he acquired "an affinity" in the person of Clara Barton Smith. He then built a railway opened townsites, struck oil along the right-of-way and forthwith became a multimillionaire overnight.

Hamon had tasted riches—tasted wealth suddenly acquired. He wanted more. Literally, he was covetous. To covet means not to want much. It means to want more, more, more, no matter how much the possessor may have. Hamon "wanted more". He was a slave of covetousness, and neither the first nor the last victim of that passion.

In 1916 Hamon made up his mind that he wanted the richest oil prize in America—the Osage Nation. He wanted to lease it. He went to Washington and tried to induce Franklin K. Lane, then secretary of the interior, to let him lease it. Lane turned Hamon down. So long as Lane was on that job, the Osage would be leased to no one individual and no one corporation.

"That man won't do," said Hamon after the interview. "I must get him out of there and put some one in who will do what I want. I want the Osage and I'm going to have it—the Osage."

To get Lane out, to get into that office a man who would do what Hamon wanted, required the defeat of the Democratic party.

Hamon got into national politics. He had been a "scrub" politician in Oklahoma for years. With his newly made millions and his covetous eye on the Osage, Mexico and Alaska, Hamon jumped into the big game. He ran for Republican National Committeeman; spent $150,000 and beat Jas. J. McGraw, his opponent, by dastardly methods. He started for Wood, but Wood ditched him. Then Hamon went to Lowden, though really he was for Harding. He wrote his check for Harding for $46,000 at Chicago. He made deals whereby Harding was nominated. He sat at the Blackstone Hotel conference, which "picked" Harding. He was one of the first to congratulate Harding.

Then he went back to Oklahoma, spent $250,000 in that state and at much more in other states to land Harding in the White House. Harding won. Hamon was recognized as one of the really influential ten men in the oncoming Harding regime. The Osage was soon to be his. Alaska would drop big things into the Hamon maw. Mexico would furnish nice things for the Hamon crowd.

Harding went to Point Isabel. Hamon was "barred". His enemies got to Harding with the woman and other stories. Hamon "woke up. He tried to do so. He made "reform" speeches. He called in the woman and tried to get her to leave. He would become reconciled with the wife, whom he had abandoned.

The Osage, Alaska and Mexico were all at stake. Hamon knew they were at stake.

He must save this rich prize. To do so he must discard the Smith woman, whom he really loved—in his way. Covetousness strove with love in Hamon's heart, and covetousness won.

It was a Pyrrhic victory, a short-lived triumph. Within less than three weeks after Harding was elected Hamon was mortally wounded. The bullet that laid the republican national committeeman low came from a pistol held in the woman's hand. But behind her were forces that had made her the mere instrument of their designs and their work. These forces—these associates of Hamon in the financial and political world—were the great and powerful apostles of American covetousness. Like Hamon, they wanted more.

God Almighty, in the form of Nemesis, strode fast upon the heels of Hamon. "The wages of sin is death."

Who knows but that this same Nemesis is treading fast and relentlessly upon the heels of those associates and beneficiaries of Hamon who pocketed with complacency his corrupt and corrupting gold and used it to accomplish their masterly malicious plans for the exploitation of the Osage, Alaska and Mexico? "He who lives shall see."

$25,000 FIRE AT RANGER

Ranger, Texas, March 25.—Fire after midnight Thursday morning destroyed a number of wooden buildings on Pine street, entailing a loss of approximately $25,000. The destroyed structures, relics of Ranger's oil boom, include an unused opera house, a soda fountain and barber shop.

MAKES THE SAPPHIRE BLUSH

Radium Treatment Turns the Cheaper Stones to Rubies Which Command the Highest Prices.

Modern science has not brought us very much nearer the magic stone of the old philosophers, but it has enabled later experts to play some surprising tricks with the existing materials of the jeweler and lapidary. The old alchemists set out to discover the philosopher's stone, and achieved gunpowder and other adjuncts to civilization as the accidental by-product of their original inquiry. Their less credulous descendants reverse the process; the invention is made first and its application to magic is discovered afterward. The existence of the electric furnace makes it possible to create diamonds that are the veritable stone, and to fuse chippings and fragments of ruby into one complete jewel. New arrives a report that with the aid of radium successful transformations have been made in the appearance, if not in the nature, of certain precious stones. A sapphire, it is said, has been turned into a glorious ruby by long exposure to the effect of radium. Chemically considered, this is not very surprising, for the two stones are both examples of corundum, and the mysterious accident of color is the principal difference between them. If a sapphire can be made to blush hard enough for its mistake in not being a ruby, presumably it could blush itself into a most accomplished example of the more valuable stone.

TAKE IT EASY IN THEATER

Japanese Customs That Seem Odd to Those Accustomed to the Formalities of the West.

Japan must be a happy land for theatergoers, because in that land seats are not paid for—in fact there are no seats. The Japanese much prefer to squat, feeling, no doubt, much more at home in this comfortable attitude. Seats, however, are usually brought for the use of any foreigners who may be present. There are no hard and fast laws of convention. The Japanese playgoer may do as he pleases; he may eat, drink, smoke and criticize to his heart's content. Conversations are carried on, and if they merit it, the actors are met by a storm of criticism and chaff. When a man enters the auditorium he removes his boots, and if the weather is hot, any clothing that appears to him to be superfluous. The naive frankness of the actors' prompter is rather delightful, for if an actor forgets his lines the prompter comes on the stage and, quite openly, points out to the actor where he is wrong. A boy is kept for the express purpose of walking on the stage and wiping the perspiration off the actors' faces; this duty he carries out without disturbing the even tenor of the play.

Beetle Cultivator.

Ants are not the only insects that practice the cultivation of mushrooms, although for a long time it was thought that they were the only creatures of a lower order than man that possessed the intelligence to follow such an agricultural pursuit. Bouverie, the entomologist, had found that a certain wood-boring beetle, known as the bostrychide, is as familiar with mushroom cultivation as is the species of ant of which so much has been written. Professor Bouverie discovered that the beetles in question bore holes in wood and half fill them with a prepared fungus which makes an ideal mushroom bed. The garden is carefully spawned and in course of time the mushrooms appear. In this way the beetle provides itself with a food sufficiently tender for its feeble jaws.

Shall We Discard Hypheas?

In the struggle for the conservation of energy and material we are urged to cut out the hypheas from our books and writings, says the Chicago Journal. Their use causes us to waste an enormous amount of time, ink and physical force. Some nations build up compound words without any hypheas to break them, but the English find one necessary for a simple word of five letters, like "to-day." It may be roughly estimated that each of the 2,000,000,000 people who write English write "today," "tomorrow" or "tonight" three times a day. Half an ounce of force is required to make a hypheas with a pen or a pencil, so this superfluous symbol entails a total waste of 18,500,000 pounds daily, or enough to draw a passenger train round the world.

Humming Bird's Nest.

Burroughs, in his charming little book, "Wake Robin," says it is an event in one's life to find a humming bird's nest. The event happened to me without any effort on my part. Looking up from a seat in the grove, I saw the ruby-throated drop down on its nest, like a shining emerald from the clouds; it did not pause upon the edge of the nest, but dropped immediately upon it. The nest was situated upon an oak twig, and was about the size of a black-walnut, and from where I sat it looked more like an excrescence than a nest. It was situated in the fork of two twigs, and firmly glued at the base to the lower, but was not fastened to the upper twig.—Mary Treat in "Home Studies in Nature."

When a fellow is trying to mobilize enough courage to kiss a girl he isn't able to think of germs.—Toledo Blade.

YIELDS TO MARCH OF TIME

Old Hotel in Quincy, Mass., Associated With Famous Men, Is to Become Business Block.

The old Hancock house, situated in City square, Quincy, has ceased to be a hotel. The present owner of the property, Henry M. Faxon, is to have the upper part removed and the first floor converted into a large business block. The hotel has only provided sleeping quarters for a number of years.

In the days of the old stage coach the Hancock house was one of the leading hotels of southeastern Massachusetts and the first place to which travelers resorted for refreshments. Among the distinguished men who have been entertained there was Daniel Webster, going to and from his home on the old Plymouth coach. On account of Mr. Webster's liberality in dispensing good cheer it was frequently a long time before the coach was able to proceed on its trip. Mr. Webster was always generous in his tips to the stable boys and bell hops of those ancient days and history says that he often threw $5 goldpieces to the scrambling boys in the hotel yard.

The present structure was built in 1887, but several years ago the ground floor was remodeled into stores and only the upper part was used as the hotel proper. When Adams academy was in its prime the place was used as a boarding house for students who came to Quincy from other cities and states and were obliged to make their abode in the city of presidents.

TURNING TO HOME GARDENS

Indications Are That People Are Beginning to Realize the Danger of a Food Famine.

A local seed store was crowded with customers. "What does this mean?" the proprietor was asked. "I guess it means that other people are thinking what I do," he said, "that unless food production is speeded up there'll be famine conditions in this country in 1921. Farmers say they can't get help in order to produce our food as usual, and it's up to every man to help himself. We run as high as 1,200 customers a day here. This is in addition to a big mail-order business. It's going to keep up like this all through the month, too. It did last year."

The seed men said that sales indicated that persons who decided to retire from the home-garden business, now that the war is over, have changed their ideas, and that the number of home gardens is increasing instead of diminishing.

He added that it is strange that while there was much crop shortage last year seeds of all kinds, with the probable exception of peas, are in ample supply.—Indianapolis News.

Stenographer Extraordinary.

Two members of the bar were trying a replevin suit in the superior court recently and in the course of the trial got into a sharp wrangle—as lawyers sometimes do—over the admission of a certain piece of evidence. The wrangle resolved itself into an oral battle in which both lawyers tried to talk at once. They spoke in loud tones and at a rapid-fire gait. When the smoke had cleared away and the case was over they were quite surprised to learn that the court stenographer had been able to get down in his book every word they had said, despite the fact they were both talking at the same time. The clerk of courts commented on the feat.

"Oh," remarked one of the lawyers, "that little chap could take down a halibut and never miss a stone!"—Portland Express.

Fading Shrines of Oriental Splendor.

To me, after revisiting the East after an absence of ten years, it seems as if all its splendid past and all its present discontent were recorded and symbolized in the imperial palaces of Peking, Seoul and Tokyo. Ten years ago all three were the habitations of emperors, sacred spots from whose mysterious depths issued the edicts whereat men trembled and obeyed. Today the Son of Heaven and the Lord of the Morning Calm have gone their ways, to join the mournful company of kings in exile. Only his majesty of Tokyo remains, a dim, mysterious figure in the medieval seclusion of Chiyoda, a picturesque survival of old Japan, like an idol in a shrine, a sort of living Buddha in the great new city throbbing with machinery.—J. O. P. Bland in Asia.

Unconscious Cerebration.

Apropos of the popular interest in the ouija board, a correspondent says: "An experiment in unconscious cerebration may be made in this way. Take a 6-cent piece and to it attach a fine silk thread with a bit of sealing wax. Then take an empty tumbler and suspend the nickel in the center of the glass, holding the thread tightly between the thumb and finger and resting the elbow on the 'funny bone.' Then, without conscious volition of the muscles, think of its movement east, west, north or south, or returning to the center. You will find that the coin will obey the thought, although you give consciously no direction for the movement."—From the Outlook.

Short-Sighted Mortals.

The golden moments in the stream of life rush past us, and we see nothing but sand; the angel came to visit us, and we only know them when they are gone.—George Elliot.

MUST HAVE SURPRISED CZAR

John Randolph Had His Own Ideas of What to Do When Presented at Russian Court.

When John Randolph, erratic American statesman from Virginia, was in Russia he was about to be presented to the czar. Someone undertook to teach him the presentation etiquette of the Russian court. As minister he was to enter the room and bow; at the center of the room he was to pause and bow a second time, after which the czar would meet him and engage him in conversation. But Randolph was indignant at the thought that anyone could presume to teach him anything, and declared that he knew all about it without being shown.

The day of presentation arrived and Randolph entered the door of the audience chamber and bowed very low; he advanced to the center of the room and bowed again very deeply. Then he approached nearer to the czar, took off one gauntlet and threw it to the right of the czar, removed his other gauntlet and cast it to the left of the czar. Next he pitched off his hat in front, threw off his mantle, unbuckled his sword and discarded it upon the floor and then fell upon his knees at the feet of the czar. The court was speechless and the czar astonished. However, the czar was equal to the occasion, so he approached the prostrate Randolph, required him to rise and engaged him in conversation. But the reception did not meet Randolph's expectations, and within a month he left Russia in considerable of a huff at what he deemed mistreatment at the hands of the czar.

HAS FOUND CRADLE OF EEL

Scientist Tells the World All About the Habits of That Migratory Aquatic Creature.

The eel has been tracked to his cradle.

It has taken us 2,000 years to learn that eels, living in ponds and rivers climb out when full grown, crawl over the land, find a river running to the ocean, go out to sea, and lay eggs which produce offspring that come back in billions upon the rivers from which their parents descended, says London Tit-Bits.

A scientist has now tracked down these elusive marvels to the spawning grounds. It is the Sargasso sea, that enormous sea garden through which Columbus first sailed to the terror of his crews, from September to October, 1492. Of course, that is not the only nursery.

Upon hatching, the eel larvae drift with the current, undergo a marvelous transformation, reach Europe, swarm up the river, climb the banks, cross dusty fields and parched meadows to inland ponds and ditches, and then settle there for the next seven or eight years, when they swim back to the Sargasso to lay their eggs and die.

Is not that a crowning marvel of the migratory instinct? Across the Atlantic in infancy, to fatten in a seaside English pond, and back again, grown up, across the wide ocean.

Names.

Most men of high destinies have high sounding names. Pym and Hahakuk may be pretty well, but they must not think to cope with the Cromwells and Isaiahs. And you could not find a better case in point than that of the English admirals, Drake and Rooke and Hawke are picked names for men of execution. Frohisher, Rodney, Boscawen, Foul-Wather, Jack Byron are all good to catch the eye in a page of a naval history. Cloudestley Shovel is a mouthful of quaint and sounding syllables. Benbow has a bulldog quality that suits the man's character, and it takes us back to those English archers who were his true comrades. plattness, tenacity and pluck. Raleigh is spirited and martial, and signifies an act of bold conduct in the field. —"Virginibus Puerisque," by Louis Stevenson.

How Spiders Travel.

Spinning webs is second nature with spiders. After they are hatched from the eggs in a cocoon, they cling together for about a week. Then they separate, but their legs do not carry them very far. Facing the wind, and standing on the tips of their legs, the baby spiders raise their abdomens and emit a silken thread. The faintest current wafts the gossamer in the air, and when enough is let out to permit of aerial flight the insect drifts away. When it wishes to land it hauls in the thread. Wherever it lands it can spin webs without the slightest instructions from older spiders. Older male spiders seem to lose this gift. There are about 550 species of spiders in America, but only two, the house and garden spiders, are well known.

A Craven Suitor.

"I am convinced that I could never make you happy," wrote an abject lover to the lady who had won his heart. "You are of a different world from mine. You are to me as white marble to dull red clay. The devotion of my life would not recompense you for the sacrifice you would make in marrying me. I know I can never hope to make you happy, but if you think otherwise let me know by return." The woman who could accept so craven a lover as this can scarcely hope to be complimented on her judgment or on her capture.

"KNOCKS FOR KNOCKADOCHES"

Nacogdoches, Texas, March 28, Editor of the Sentinel:

Please publish the following facts for the benefit of your town. They are facts; you know them to be. A good heart-to-heart talk does not hurt once in a while and should do a great deal of good. The truth always hurts, though, and I suppose should; so if the following hurts you, remember it is hitting you in the bullseye. If you are one of the money-bags, moss-backs that are continually watching your moneybag for fear of spending a nickel for the good of your town, you will be one of the guys to raise a big howl, so watch out.

If you will turn back to your Texas history you will see that Nacogdoches is one of the first towns mentioned in it. What have you got to show for this ancient heritage? You should be a city far outstripping Tyler and Marshall. As it is you are letting a comparatively new city (Lufkin) far outstrip you. I am not taking up for Lufkin; in fact, I really do not like it. I am just giving justice to the truth. I have been a traveling man and I know. Any traveling man will tell you the same. I have seen and talked to them in Galveston, Beaumont, Houston, Dallas and Shreveport. I know what they think and say. If you were not so enraptured in holding a dollar or two, you would know the same. There's a reason. What is it? You know.

To an outsider coming to Nacogdoches for either social pleasure or business purposes, what delightful sight first stares them in the face? Main street, leading from the depot to town, half paved with brick, half paved with mud. This is a disgrace to you—to everyone. To you people who are accustomed to it, I dare say it does not appear out of the ordinary, but to an outsider visiting your town for the first time it appears as a new house without a roof. The paving in town is little better. You should by all means have Mound and North as well as the main thoroughfares paved with some good, lasting pavement. You say you haven't the money. No excuse. Other towns are doing it, why not you? What have you done with it? What have you got to show for it? You must indeed have a spendthrift bunch of city officials. I would pave the rest of Main street, at any rate, even though I had to secure the money by popular subscription. It wouldn't hurt some of you money mossbacks with hogwash bankrolls to pay for this yourselves.

To people on the night trains passing through Nacogdoches it shows up about as well as Appleby, Texas. It reminds me of the proverbial "Deserted Village." Hundreds of times have I heard the comments on the trains at night. Why haven't they street lights in Nacogdoches? In other small places they burn all night—places many times smaller than Nacogdoches. Even in small towns over in France they are burning their lights all night. Are you afraid of an airplane attack? Say, the war is over. You say, well they burn in the business district—everything is paved there. That is where we really need them least of all. Cut them out there if you have to, but please give them to us in the residence district. I am quoting the hundreds of voices of taxpayers in all the items. We want to know. Heed, oh heed! If you had a decent sidewalk in your town it would be different. You haven't any. Did you know that there are hundreds of towns in Texas, with one third the population that you claim to have with three times as many cement sidewalks as you have? If you don't know it is high time you were learning. You get off a night train, or come home from the show or social gathering and go home in utter darkness, walking on treacherous mud-holes, termed sidewalks, at the risk of life and limb. Isn't it the truth? Everyone says so. Try it and see. Say, other places burn their lights at night when people need them; other places have decent sidewalks, don't say you haven't the money. The taxes here are as high as any other town in Texas. They have these things. What have you done with the money? If this was ancient times when people were supposed to be in bed by 9 o'clock it would be all right to turn the lights off by 10 o'clock, but awake, you sleeping people; this is the Twentieth century.

They tell me that some of the city officials refused to let a carnival company show here for fear that some of the good citizens might spend a dime, at some of the chance concessions that might accidentally get away from Nacogdoches. Better let some of the money get away. What good is it doing here? It's your money; you worked for it. Why not spend it as you wish. This same carnival company showed at Ennis, Taylor, Waxahachie, Lufkin and other modern Texas towns without any molestation whatsoever. Lufkin is putting in a new light plant, going to have arc lights all ov-

Colds & Headache

"For years we have used Black-Draught in our family, and I have never found any medicine that could take its place," writes Mr. H. A. Stacy, of Bradyville, Tenn. Mr. Stacy, who is a Rutherford County farmer, recommends Black-Draught as a medicine that should be kept in every household for use in the prompt treatment of many little ills to prevent them from developing into serious troubles.

THEDFORD'S BLACK-DRAUGHT

"It touches the liver and does the work," Mr. Stacy declared. "It is one of the best medicines I ever saw for a cold and headache. I don't know what we would do in our family if it wasn't for Black-Draught. It has saved us many dollars. . . . I don't see how any family can hardly go without it. I know it is a reliable and splendid medicine to keep in the house. I recommend Black-Draught highly and am never without it."

A DELIGHTFUL PARTY

Mrs. T. D. Hill was the very charming hostess to a number of her friends Friday afternoon at her pleasant home on North street. The rooms were prettily decorated in Easter colors. In the reception room were baskets of yellow roses tied with lavender tulle. The living room was decorated in pink and white. There were small cutglass baskets of red gorgeous pink and white roses and the handles were tied with pink ribbon bows on the table and the lights were dimmed with pink shades. The dining room table was laid with a fillet lace luncheon cloth over red. In the center of the table was an Easter nest of colored eggs and little yellow chicks. There was an Easter nest of colored eggs and little chicks. There were small cut glass baskets of red roses with red and green tulle tied on the handles on the table also.

The game of the occasion was "42". On each of the four tables were cut-glass baskets of mints and Jordan almonds, and these were tied with tulle to correspond with the color-scheme of the room.

After a number of lively games luncheon covers were laid and a plate luncheon of pressed chicken on lettuce, pimento sandwiches, stuffed olives in a nest of grated cheese, salted nuts in tiny hand-painted baskets and iced tea was served. The favors were Easter baskets of candied eggs, and these were drawn in a small decorated wagon and given to the guests by little Martha Jane Atkins.

As the evening shades were falling the guests reluctantly departed charmed with the delightful time they had enjoyed.

A DEPARTED PRINCE

A great many years ago the little town of Elk Ridge, Maryland, was scourged by an epidemic of small-pox. Among others, an old negro fell victim to the disease and was utterly deserted by his plague-frightened family, who left him without food or attention of any kind. Of those who knew of his plight, none dared go near him save the village priest. He went at once to the cabin where the sick man lay, and found him at the point of death, remaining with him to the end. Obtaining a coffin the priest laid the old negro's body in it, and, since he had no other way to carry it to its final resting place, dragged it himself to the grave which he had dug with his own hands. Over the black man's form he held the burial rites with none to see or care, lowered the coffin into the grave and covered it over. And then the incident was forgotten.

Recently a prince of the Roman Catholic church departed to make in person his report to the Master of Cardinals and common folk alike. His death called forth many tributes to his loyalty to the great institution whose leader and servant he was. Many have remembered his fearlessness and his modesty. But nothing has been said of him that surpasses the Elk Ridge priest. He was simply Father Gibbons then, though we speak of him as Cardinal Gibbons now, but the greatness of the padre outshines the splendor of the prelate, and doubtless will outshine it in the last day.—Dallas News.

BIG BANQUET GIVEN BY SUNDAY-SCHOOL CLASS

Wednesday night one of the biggest things that has been pulled off in Nacogdoches was staged by the Methodist Sunday-school class, fully 85 young men of Nacogdoches attending. The affair was enjoyable throughout. Everyone there expressed himself as having spent a very pleasant evening.

The young men marched to the basement of the church promptly at 8:30 o'clock, and after thanks had been returned by Rev. J. L. Massey, all "fell to". The feast had been prepared by several good Nacogdoches women who excelled themselves with the quality of food they set before the "young blood of Nacogdoches" as one of the speakers of the evening expressed it. The viands consisted of baked chicken, peas, creamed potatoes, sauce, salads, tea and a variety of fruits, ice cream and cake. After 30 minutes lunch, the table was cleared and the body arose giving thanks to the "good women who were so kind to prepare such a feast." These ladies were requested, which they did, to stand before the class while the class voted them their appreciation.

Cates Burrows was toastmaster of the occasion, and right here it must be stated that he filled his position in a befitting manner. The toastmaster, after a few preliminaries, called upon Roy Dent as the first speaker, who responded with a few remarks, spicy and to the point, stating that while he was no talker, he nevertheless was able to state his appreciation of the wonderful food he had just tasted. Roy showed, in addition to this, some qualities of a humorist, and before he sat down he had the house roaring with laughter.

Superintendent of the Nacogdoches High School R. F. Davis was the next talker, and while at first he proceeded rather slowly due to a "certain fullness," he said, he in a few minutes collected himself and delivered a most interesting and was as instructive address to the young men. He pointed out to them the importance of knowing the Bible, stating that some of the greatest lawyers in the world were great Bible scholars, and had won some of their most difficult cases by knowing when to quote the right kind of scriptures at the right time. Mr. Davis mixed some characteristic humor with his talk, and he kept the attention of the young men without break, most of them being pupils of his and having for him the greatest admiration and respect.

Mr. Davis concluding, Mr. R. C. Monk, a distinguished visitor from the Baptist Sunday-school class, was called upon for a talk. Mr. Monk said that while he was a great Baptist, he was not too much Baptist to get genuine pleasure out of the meeting. He made a talk which was not excelled for interest. He told of some of the things which the Baptist Sunday-school class was planning to do, stating that while that class has somewhere about 73 members, they were not all regular members, a thing he "greatly deplored." He talked at length, concluding by congratulating Mr. Hunt, the teacher of the class, for the great success he is having in his work.

Following this, Jess Parmley, a young man probably more responsible than any of the rest for the most wonderful attendance of the class, rose by invitation and proceeded to make, in a well-directed, sensible manner, a talk that went home to the hearts of his young men Sunday-school mates. He told them of the way he had been working with the co-operation of the class to build up the attendance from only a handful of "13 boys to the now total of over 80." Jess said that he was not satisfied with the present attendance, but was going to try to build up the new attending body. He praised Mr. Hunt for the excellent manner in which he was teaching the class, and also handed some compliments to the officers of the class who also have worked untiringly for its betterment. Jess made a talk of considerable length, every word of which was listened to with the greatest interest by the Sunday-school body.

Rev. J. L. Massey then came forward with a talk full of humor, thought and logic. Mr. Massey is a man who commands the respect of every young man who knows him, and all of the boys had their ears strained to catch every word that he said. He had the boys alternately amused and serious, and there was a feeling of regret when he concluded his talk that he did not have more to say. All during the affair, Mr. Massey contributed abundantly to the conversation and talks with his rich of humor, which never fails to bring a smile.

Then came the man who is responsible perhaps more than anyone for the meeting, T. H. Hunt. Mr. Hunt said that "Sunday-school had always been a hobby to him." In the course of his remarks, he said "all my life I have attended Sunday-school. True, when I was a small child I perhaps did not have as great a liking for the organization as I should have had, but I had to go, nevertheless. After I grew up and began to realize the importance of the organization, I grew to like Sunday-school. And I have been ever since trying to contribute my part to some good Sunday-school class." Mr. Hunt talked at length on several things, among which was a baseball team. He said that Nacogdoches should have one, and that they proposed that night to select some of the officers for the team. Mr. Hunt's talk was interesting throughout, and he was loudly cheered at the conclusion of his talk.

Following this, the toastmaster said that the manager and captain of the team were to be selected that night. A vote was taken and Eugene Recor was elected manager and Cecil Gaston was elected captain. Both of these young men made short talks and expressed their appreciation of the honor bestowed upon them by the members of the class. It was decided to meet next Friday on the baseball grounds and do some tryout work. The boys plan to do some real ball-playing this year.

The meeting was then dismissed with everyone expressing himself as having passed a happy time. It was intimated that the occasion would be repeated soon. And while Mr. R. C. Monk did not specifically say so, he left the impression that the young men of the Baptist class had something in store for the city soon. Every effort is to be made to make Nacogdoches a real Sunday-school town if plans come out right.

Cave Has Natural Heat

A naturally heated cave has been discovered at Horse Butte, near Bend, Ore., which apparently draws its warmth from a subterranean volcanic source. The discovery was made by C. A. Yarnell and H. D. Elide, local fuel dealers. The cave is located near the top of the butte and first attracted attention when a wave of heat was felt issuing from the mouth. The cinder bottom and rock walls of the tunnel are unbearably hot to the touch, the heat increasing as far back as could be explored. That the phenomenon is a recent manifestation was indicated by the smoldering of grass and twigs near the opening. To test the natural oven Mr. Yarnell cooked a light breakfast by introducing raw articles of food into the aperture and closing the orifice for a few moments.

FAMOUS DOORS OF HISTORY

Marvel of Workmanship Seen on Many of Those of Churches of the Old World.

Among the famous doors of history are the carved wooden doors of the church of Santa Sabina, Rome, depicting in relief scenes from the Old and New Testaments. These are one of the most remarkable examples of early Christian sculpture extant.

In the earliest times, as in Babylon, doors swung on sockets instead of hinges.

In Roman days wooden doors were decorated with bronze and inlaid, and throughout the Middle Ages richly carved doors of wood adorned the churches.

In the Gothic period, wooden doors were decorated with wrought-iron hinges which were often elaborated into intricate ornamentation covering a large part of the door.

The doors of the cathedral of Notre Dame in Paris of the Thirteenth century are the finest examples of this class.

During the Renaissance in Germany and France, elaborately carved doors were among the most beautiful products of wood sculpture.

Some of the old English doors were formed of narrow planks placed side by side and in dwelling houses generally, in the Middle Ages the doors were small and fairly simple, meant for strictly practical purposes and often provided with some means of defense.

The doors of the Norman period were round headed, while with the Thirteenth century, came the doorway with the pointed arch and later the flattened arch. In the case of interior doors, splendid old polished mahogany doors were important features in some old English homes and there were old oak doors of wonderful beauty, especially when found in oak-paneled rooms.—From the National Lumber Manufacturers' Association.

SAMPLE OF DUTCH THRIFT?

Hollanders Said to Be Greatest People in the World to Abbreviate Written Words.

The Dutch are the greatest people in the world for abbreviations, says the Detroit News. It seems to be a national trait of the Hollander, and not only are the missives between New-rou and her daughter and Mynheer and his son liberally sprinkled with the shortening of Dutch as she spoke, but the advertisements in the Dutch newspapers are also thrifflily abbreviated so as to permit of the maximum amount of expression with the minimum of type.

Private correspondence as well as business correspondence in Holland is a network of abbreviation, so much so that a Hollander who has not been in his native land for a good many years, but still retains a knowledge of his mother tongue, is likely to fall by the wayside in reading a letter from an old friend from whom he has not heard in a long time.

The Dutch lover is quite accustomed to be told in a letter by his sweetheart how much she loves him in abbreviations that suggest more a Russian stock ticker news item than the love-laden words of a romantic maid.

Which Way Do You Sleep?

Do you sleep with your body lying from east to west or are your toes pointing southeast while your head lies northwest? If you are lying in this position, you are under the pressure of the magnetic meridian. In other words, you are sleeping under a tension and there is a bad effect on the blood pressure and the pulse rate. "Change your bed with the head north or south and you'll sleep better."

These are some of the theories propounded by Dr. W. W. Bailey of Davenport, Ia., secretary of the Central Society of Physical Therapies, which held its convention in Chicago a short time ago. The convention was made up of licensed doctors of the Middle West who rely more on physical methods of curing diseases than on medical methods.

Caught Frank Fish

A worried marine monster blundered into the net of a San Diego, Cal., fisherman not long ago. On being pulled into the fisher's snare by the astonished captain, it was found to measure a little more than 15 feet long, and in general configuration to resemble a shark, reports Popular Mechanics Magazine. Its upper jaw was unmounted, however, by a clumsy-looking horn of solid bone. A month after its destruction in a fertilizer plant, a prominent scientist notified the fishing captain that he had caught a female of the species basking shark, of which only six are known to have been taken during the history of the world's fishing industry.

Real Beer for Bavaria

The Bavarian breweries are to resume the production of beer with an alcoholic content of eight per cent, according to a statement made on August 5 by the Bavarian minister of agriculture, following his return from a meeting in Berlin, where the general food situation of the nation had been discussed and certain plans for the future agreed on between the national and state authorities. He also said that the daily bread ration was to be raised from 200 grams to 300 grams per capita and that the state control of the egg market was to be dropped in October.

DEATHS AMONG MIDDLE-AGED

Austin, March 25.—There were 4,046 deaths among people between the ages of 45 and 55 reported to the Bureau of Vital Statistics for the year 1920, according to Manton M. Carrick, state health officer. For the month of January, 1921, alone, the report shows 366 deaths among people between these ages.

"The increasing of mortality at these ages," said Dr. Carrick, "indicates either some undue and increasing strain in our modern mode of existence or a lessening resistance among our people. Men and women, as mid-life approaches, tend to decrease their physical exertion and increase their nervous activity. This is a critical period, and certain principles of living should be followed. Plenty of exercise without over-exercising, proper bathing, the observance of dietary precautions such as less consumption of meat and greater consumption of vegetables, the avoidance of nervous worry over trifles—all these will do much to decrease the high death rate among middle-aged people in our state."

Going Some

It was the final examination, and a budding philosopher concluded his essay on "Mother Earth" with this startling statement: "The earth revolves on its own axis 335 times in twenty-four hours. This rapid motion through space causes its sides to perspire; this is called dew."

DEBS STILL UNREPENTANT

From what little has leaked out from the conference between Convict Debs and Attorney General Daugherty during the former's visit to Washington the other day, it appears that Mr. Debs made it plain that he had nothing to retract from the speeches against the war, for which he was convicted. If the president issues a pardon, Mr. Debs desires it understood that it is to an unrepentant and law-defying prisoner.

If Debs is pardoned under these circumstances, it will be an acknowledgment on the part of the government that the war-time laws for the suppression of sedition were unjust, if not unconstitutional, and will convict the government of the charge of political persecution. This will vindicate the stand the rabid socialists have taken all along.

As the war period vanishes further into the past and the differences are smoothed out sentiment for the release of those who ran afoul of the government's war-time laws naturally increases. There is manifestly a desire to forgive the obstreperousness of many misguided people. But unless there is reciprocal feeling among those whom it became necessary to restrain, it is difficult to see how the government can pardon them without stultifying itself.

The head of the American Legion in Georgia, protesting against the liberties allowed Debs at the prison, scores a point when he says the distinction is clear between holding opinions contrary to government policy, and the overt acts of Debs in striving to obstruct the war activities of the nation.

If Debs is released then every other prisoner serving for obstructing the war plans of the government should be released, and the government should apologize for interfering with them.

When it does that, however, it will have proven false and ungrateful to every man who shouldered arms in defense of the country in time of crisis, and will have dishonored the memory of every soldier who made the supreme sacrifice for his homeland.—Houston Post.

THE HYPHENATES

We suppose Lord Robert Cecil is right about the irritating influence of the everlasting Irish question. There are a good many Irish in America and they don't like England. But why will Englishmen persist in thinking the voice of the Irish here is the voice of America? It isn't. From all we can hear the Irish in Ireland are making a good deal of disturbance too. It is something that seems to go with the Irish temperament. Why should Englishmen expect the Irish in America to be more lamb-like than they are at home? We frequently hear of the Irish doing most of the talking in the house of commons, but we don't take their utterances to be those of the British parliament. Englishmen ought to remember that everybody in America is free to say anything he chooses, everybody, that is, except Americans, who rarely get a chance to be heard.

America is an asylum for all the races of the earth. People who at home couldn't stick their heads out of the window without being shot, come over here and complain bitterly about the restrictions on their liberties. The very least that they expect of us is that we should declare war on their European enemies. When we don't do that they gather in mass meetings, under the protection of our police, insult whatever country they happen to dislike the most and send word of the proceedings to their friends abroad as the united action of the American people. We're rather used to it, ourselves, and England ought to be by this time.—Kansas City Star.

PURSUED BY GHOSTLY SHIP

Tradition of Modern Flying Dutchman That Massachusetts Fishermen Firmly Believe In.

The burial of John Winters, recalled to old-time fishermen a tradition of a modern Flying Dutchman with its ghostly crew that was believed to roam the seas in pursuit of a ship that had sent them to the bottom, relates a correspondent from Gloucester. Winters was the last survivor of the crew of the Gloucester schooner, Charles Haskell, which in a storm in March, 1889, ran down and sank a Salem schooner and its entire crew on Georges fishing banks. He died at the Fishermen's Snug Harbor in his eighty-second year, repeating almost to the last the tale of the ghost ship supposed to have pursued the Haskell throughout its career as a fisherman.

Once off Eastern point, at the entrance of Gloucester harbor, Winters said, a schooner ran down the wind, hove alongside the Haskell, and its phantom crew attacked the ship, declaring themselves the ghosts of the Salem fishermen.

Winters and others of the Haskell's crew refused to fish in the ship again and a new crew was taken on. Some returned with a similar story of ghostly visitations at sea; took their druggs bags and quit. Another and still a fourth crew were shipped, but each came to port with a renewed story of a ship shrouded in white, a specter crew, and the legend grew and grew. It is said that the Haskell was not heard of again.

URUGUAY RICH IN AMETHYSTS

Gems Found in "Goodies," Which is Nature's Way of Storing Precious Stones for Posterity.

The northwestern part of Uruguay is a newly discovered field for the production of amethysts, which occur in "goodies." The goodies, so plentiful that they are picked up in the fields, are oriented on north-south or in some to the nearest railway station and shipped in barrels to Salto, whence they are transported by river boat to Montevideo.

Naturally, it will be asked, what is a goodie? Originally, it was a hole in rock. Water percolating through the rock deposited silica, making a lining for the cavity. The lining grew thicker and thicker, and after a long time, if the rock were broken or "weathered" to pieces, a hard nodule would drop out. The nodule is a goodie; and if, as sometimes happens, the silica has formed crystals inside of it, colored by metallic salts, the goodie is a little jewel box containing amethysts.

A beautiful statuette, eight inches high of a woman dancing, has recently been placed in the Morgan Gem hall of the American Museum of Natural History, in New York city. It is carved out of a perfect block of translucent sapphire (blue quartz) from Uruguay.

Climate and Agriculture.

The surprising idea that an arid climate is the most favorable for agriculture is explained by a report on the Columbia Basin Irrigation Project in the state of Washington. In such a climate plant growth is stimulated by almost continuous sunshine, there is no night chilling of the soil following cloudy days, and crops are harvested promptly without spoilage by rain, the products being greatly improved and the harvesting cost lessened. The chief advantage of all, however, is control of the water, which by artificial irrigation can be supplied at the best time and in the quantities needed by the crops. The scant rainfall of the Columbia basin area has been a preparation for the new method, for the moisture has not been sufficient to leach away the stored plant food, but there has been drainage enough to prevent the accumulation of alkali salts, the most soluble of the earth's constituents.

A Mastered Fear.

Government officers in India compile queer statistics. For example, they have recently reported that in 1919 the persons who came to their death by snake bite numbered 20,273, and that, in the same 12 months, 55,416 snakes were killed. Further, there is the record of 1,162 deaths by tigers, 469 by leopards, 294 by wolves, 201 by wild boars, 185 by crocodiles, 115 by bears, 69 by elephants and 33 by hyenas. Whatever may be the fear of wild animals among human beings it does not seem ever to have deterred settlement in new lands or persuaded people against living, as they have in India for centuries, as the neighbors of poisonous serpents and ravishing animals.—Toledo Blade.

Good Reason.

Grandmother had been talking to four-year-old Mary Ellen about becoming angry so easily. After the little girl had listened a few minutes she thought it time to tell of some of her good qualities, so she said: "Yesterday my dolly got stepped on and broken and I didn't cry a bit or scold anybody."

"That was fine," approved grandmother very much pleased.

A little later she happened to remember the incident and turned to Mary Ellen: "Who stepped on your dolly yesterday?" she asked.

And back came the enlightening answer: "Why, I did, grandma."—The change.

HIS TIME ALL TOO SHORT

Dying Profiteer Could Not Make Complete Confession of Iniquity in One Brief Day.

Armin W. Riley, head of the "flying squadron" that hunts down profiteers for the department of justice, told a profiteer story at a Washington reception.

"A sick profiteer," he said, "was told by his physician that he had only a short time to live. Accordingly, he expressed a desire to confess his sins and a divine was sent for."

"The divine entered the dying profiteer's chamber and the door was closed. An hour, two hours, three hours passed. Nothing was to be heard by the attendant nurses and physicians outside in the corridor save the steady, monotonous flow of the profiteer's confession, punctuated at brief intervals by exclamations of horror and indignation on the part of the divine."

"Lunch was sent into the sickroom, and the confession went on. The afternoon waned. The sun set. Night fell. The divine's dinner was carried to him. And still the profiteer continued to confess."

"Exhausted and unstrung, the divine at last tottered forth at daybreak. 'Our unfortunate friend,' he said, 'is no more. He worked very, very hard; but at the time he passed away he had only carried his confession through the first year of the war.'"

COQUETTE SET NEW FASHION

Favorite of French Monarchs Responsible for Coiffure Which Became a Universal Style.

Styles have had queer origins, and none more unique than the fontange, a style of hair dressing popular in the early part of the eighteenth century. The dressing consisted largely of doing the hair high and binding it in place with a jeweled fillet or ribbon. At one time it was worn by every lady in the court of Louis XIV, and from there it spread to all parts of the civilized world where fashion reigned. The manner of its origin is this:

The king went for a ride one morning with Mile. de Fontange, a lovely girl with whom the king was madly in love, and who was not cold to his advances. In fact she shortly took her place as his favorite. As they rode, her hair came tumbling down, and there is reason to believe the little comedy that followed had been staged in advance, even to the loosening of the pins that allowed her beautiful tresses to escape. At any rate, the lady slipped from her horse, and with a laugh lifted her skirts and took off a jeweled garter which she bound around her hastily repiled hair. The king was delighted with the by-play, and upon arriving at the palace announced the mode the most becoming in the world. Within 24 hours every coquette and matron in the court had adopted the fashion.

Learn From Lazy Man.

At last some use has been found for a lazy man. The secret was revealed by F. B. Gilbreth, an efficiency expert. In a recent lecture before the polytechnic section of the American Institute:

"When we go to investigate a factory," he said, "and wish to find the swiftest worker, we naturally ask to see the men or girls who have the fattest pay envelopes."

"But when we want to see the man who accomplishes a task with the least amount of lost motion, we hunt out the laziest man in the factory. By instinct, he learns to do things without loss of motion, otherwise he could not hold his job."

"We study that man's movements and take motion pictures of him in action. Then we show these pictures to the rapid, energetic worker, and by studying them he learns shorter methods and becomes much more efficient at his own work.—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

Playing at Soldiering.

Some Australian Wellington will probably trace a modern Waterloo to the playing fields of Melbourne or Sydney. Australia has recognized as the result of her war lessons that intelligence, not monotony, is an invaluable test of the soldier. The old wearisome drill-ground system of training cadets is fast giving way to the new plan which makes a play of work. While the boys are taught discipline and drill they are mainly shown how to play basket ball and to compete in jumping, tug of war and swimming. Those entrusted with the making of a new Australian army are confident that the best soldier will be the happy, well-trained sportsman, who has learned to play for his side, to keep his temper and to think intelligently. There can be little doubt that the change is keenly appreciated by young Australians.—Christian Science Monitor.

Hunt in Autos in Alaska.

Times have changed in Alaska from the days when trappers munched over the snow fields to hunt for game. Citizens of Fairbanks are hunting caribou by automobile, so say recent arrivals at Seattle. Automobiles are coming into their own in the territory and the bureau is advised that "the days of real sport" around the northern Alaska town are featured by motoring out to the herd where thousands of caribou are leisurely grazing, bagging a few animals, dumping the carcasses into the tonneau of the car and driving back with the winter's meat supply.

Intelligent Dog Well Earned the Grat-itude of His Master—Action Saved Child's Life.

Teddy, age twenty-two, is, his owner declares, the oldest dog in Ohio. He is now resting on his laurels, for he recently saved the life of one of the children of his master, Orlas O. Swander, a farmer, near Toledo, Ohio.

It has been Teddy's duty and joy to accompany the Swander children to school, a mile distant, and bring them home again, daily. He has never been late on the job. On the way home from school recently, one of the little Swanders became ill suddenly and fell by the roadside. Teddy immediately started at his fastest pace for home and made such a fuss that members of the family accompanied him back along the road.

They found the child, unconscious, and extremely cold. He was hurried home and restored to health. The Swanders believe that Teddy's prompt action saved the child's life.

Mr. Swander immediately bought a dog license for his faithful dog. "I'll have no dog catcher chasing him. If anything should happen to that dog, my family would grieve as much as if he were one of them," declared Mr. Swander.

Teddy is half coyote and half Indian dog. He was bought from a band of Comanche Indians in Oklahoma 16 years ago.—Charles A. Henderson, in Our Dumb Animals.

Hotels in Japan.

Plans are under consideration for providing the larger cities of Japan—Tokyo, Yokohama, Kobe and Osaka—with more hotels, it was announced recently in Tokyo by D. Shono, general manager of the Japan tourist bureau. He said, however, that it would be some time before these hotels are erected. "Efforts are being made to relieve the congestion in the city hotels by inducing guests to travel in the country, where hotels have room to spare." It is proposed to supply wireless information to incoming boats concerning the number of unoccupied rooms in the various hotels. The matter is under negotiation with the companies.

The Usual Thing.

"It says in the paper, here," remarked Mrs. Fields, in the midst of her reading, "that in a debate in congress Hon. Benjamin Blawhaw rose and shouted—"

"Don't bother to read the rest of it, Debby," interrupted Farmer Fields. "The honorable didn't say any more when he shouted than he does when he keeps still."—Kansas City Star.

PERSEVERING CO-OPERATION

Dear Friends of Nacogdoches:

I do not know the Mr. Larkin, who composed the letter published in the Sentinel of Monday; but as a citizen of Nacogdoches, let me persuade you to read it again, and then make some effort to make Nacogdoches like he tells is should be.

Those of us who read the Houston Chronicle of Sunday, March 20, will recall the great story it carried concerning this town and county. It was a very pleasing story to most admirers of Nacogdoches. Let us try to make this little town very much like this story claims it is. It must be said that we greatly appreciate the laudation given us by the Chronicle; yet we have to face the facts set forth in Mr. Larkin's letter.

You may first ask how this town may be improved, as it seems to some of you, that everything is being done for its betterment. The best answer to that is my employing "persevering co-operation." It's true that every little while there is a movement begun in which there is some co-operation; but as soon as the novelty of it wears away so does the co-operation. Take, for example, the C. of C. When it was first organized, there was a great deal of enthusiasm and it seemed that it would accomplish wonders. I will say that it has done some great things; but not nearly so much as it seems should have been done. The Civic League started the same way; and if you will notice this paper just before each meeting there is a plea for every member to be present at the meeting. Of course if the regular members won't attend, what can an organization accomplish, and how can it hope to prosper? Just a short time ago a rotary club was organized here and great results were promised. To be sure there is time yet for it to produce results; but it is not even making a noise so that the people may know that it really is existing. There are and have been other such organizations that have flourished and died on account of lack of nourishment. That needed nourishment was "persevering co-operation."

We people are so enraptured over the possibility of the normal that it seems nothing else can be thought of that might benefit the town. Friends, it takes more than one thing to change a town to a city. If we won't co-operate with each other, and help build the town, let's keep on talking as we have done heretofore, and, maybe, some day, somebody, like our friend, Mr. Larkin, will come and do it for us. It certainly seems that most of us expect something like that to happen, as there is hardly any appreciable "persevering co-operation" shown here in the many worthy movements begun.

I am quite sure that most of us thoroughly enjoyed the comparison in the aforementioned letter, between Lufkin and Nacogdoches. If you do not agree with the comparison, do as Mr. Larkin suggested—visit some modern town and see for yourself the backwardness of our own Nacogdoches. Those of us who know something about Lufkin will have to admit that it is pretty modern, so it won't hurt you to go there.

We talk about getting the normal, but if you would just think about it soberly you will see that Nacogdoches is really not worthy of it, for there is at present no accommodations for such, except plenty of unimproved land and town lots and there are very few plans being made for such accommodations. Those few plans are not co-operative ones, and it would not be at all surprising should they be dropped. Too, the town as a whole has not made any effort to get this normal, as most of the work was really done by persons who were not directly interested in the welfare of the town. You who happen to read this think how much you did to get the normal here and then say to yourself:

"If all the people in this town were just like me

What kind of a town would it be?" Another example of lack of co-operation in a local movement for our own benefit was given by the attendance of the people of the town at a lecture given by Mr. Will Farley under auspices of the C. of C. only one month ago. There were hardly one hundred grown people there when there should have been three hundred. How can we people expect to prosper if we do not at least make an effort to learn how the other people prosper.

Now, friends, if you want to participate in the early fever of other movements, I will give you a list:

Friday night there is going to be an effort made to provide for a baseball park. How many of you are going to be there?

Other things needed are, the used-to-be-much-talked city park, a Y.M.C.A., a Y.W.C.A. building, a public library and many other things needed to make the town grow.

All of these things can be accomplished by "persevering co-operation." After all, what is life unless there is some accomplishment? And as "persevering co-operation" leads to accomplishments, let us, as hopeful citizens of this town, adopt the following as our motto:

"Persevering Co-operation."
 Respectfully
 A Friend of Nacogdoches.

BAPTIST WORKERS CONFERENCE

Because of the fact that Dr. Arch C. Cree, mission secretary of Georgia, is to speak in Nacogdoches on April 15, the Workers Conference has been changed from April 5 to 15th, in order that we might get the largest possible number from all parts of the county to hear Dr. Cree. He is one of the greatest preachers and most interesting speakers among Southern Baptists, and the members of our church, both men and women, are urged to attend this conference and hear Dr. Cree. It is a rare opportunity.

The program for the day is as follows:
 10 a. m.—Devotional, led by J. C. Hand.
 10:30—Reports from the churches.
 11—The place and importance of prayer in our present campaign, and in all of our work, E. M. Gentry.
 11:30—The importance of loyalty in the present campaign. Pastor J. R. Nutt of Lufkin.

12—Adjourn for lunch.
 1:30 p. m.—Devotional, C. A. Ray.
 1:45—The layman's opportunity in this campaign. F. P. Marshall.

2:20—How can the W.M.U. help to make the campaign a success? Mrs. Charles Perkins.
 3—Address, Dr. Arch Cree.
 A noon lunch will be served at the church by the ladies, and everyone will be welcome. Give this one day to the Lord's Cause, and let us have a good time together.

Committee.

EXPRESS MESSENGER SUCCUMBS TO WOUNDS

L. H. Jones, express messenger for the American Railway Express Company, died Saturday afternoon at Whiteside sanitarium in this city. Mr. Jones was shot and wounded Wednesday night on a Houston bound H. E. & W. T. train. The wounds that caused his death were received as the train was nearing the town of Logansport, La., and the wounded man was put off at Timpsen for treatment at the Whiteside sanitarium.

According to the statement of the wounded man before his death, he was wounded by E. E. Ransom, special agent for the express company, during an altercation which arose over the ownership of a ham. It is reported that Ransom, the alleged assailant of Jones, passed through Timpsen Friday night in charge of an officer en route to Louisiana.

The funeral services of the dead messenger were held at the sanitarium Sunday morning at 10:30 o'clock and a large number of Timpsen people were in attendance. Rev. J. S. Sanders, pastor of the South Side Baptist church conducted the service. The remains were laid to rest in Wood Lawn cemetery and the beautiful floral offerings attested the fact that the wounded man died among friends although he was a stranger to our people.

Deceased is survived by his wife, who was with him at the time of his death, and by two daughters, one three years old and one two months old. His mother, from Louisiana, was also here with her son during his last hours.

The heart-broken widow and two fatherless children returned to their home in Houston this morning.—Timpsen Times, Monday.

KILLING NEAR MANNING

Earl Dixon, a white man, surrendered to officers this morning, and is now in the Angelina county jail, after making the statement that he had killed one Jim Havard, the affair taking place near Manning, in the eastern portion of the county, where both parties resided. It is said that a shot gun was used, but none of the particulars could be learned from anyone near the courthouse concerning the affair.—Lufkin News, 28th.

WRITES A BOOK FOR CANCER PATIENTS

A book which should be read by every person suffering from cancer has been published by Dr. O. A. Johnson, eminent cancer specialist. This remarkable book tells the truth about cancer and its treatment without cutting.

Dr. Johnson today is one of the foremost in the study of cancer. He conducts in Kansas City, Mo., a large, fully equipped, research laboratory, and has treated many sufferers in the past twenty years. This treatment is entirely non-surgical, as the knife is not used at any stage. Purely medicinal measures only are employed; that is, external applications to destroy the cancer and internal medication to purify the blood. Hundreds of patients testify to the success of the Johnson Laboratory.

"Cancer Truths," Dr. Johnson's book, will be sent free to any sufferer or friend. Delay should be avoided. Address Dr. O. A. Johnson, Suite 563, 1324 Main St., Kansas City, Mo.

SPECIAL AGENT SHOOTS EXPRESS MESSENGER

Developing, according to the wounded man's statement, from a quarrel concerning a ham, L. S. Jones, express messenger on the H. & S. train leaving Shreveport for Houston Wednesday night, was probably fatally wounded by E. E. Ransom, a special agent of the express company. Jones was put off the train at Timponson and carried to the White-side sanitarium there while Ransom continued on to Houston, where both have homes.

According to G. A. Booth, town marshal at Timponson and Dr. Whiteside, of the sanitarium, Jones' statement of the affair that shortly after leaving Shreveport Ransom came into the express car and seeing a ham with no shipping tag or other means of identification on it began questioning the messenger. Jones told him he had bought it in Shreveport, but Ransom accused him of stealing it, at which Jones knocked him down and was getting the best of it when Ransom said he would drop the matter if he would let him up.

As Jones ordered him out of the car, he turned back to his work, he said, and as he did so Ransom shot him in the left elbow. Wounded, Jones disarmed the special agent and was in the act of throwing the gun out of the door when Ransom took it away from him and shot him in the abdomen.

Jones' condition was reported by Dr. Whiteside, who gave the above account of Jones' statement which was confirmed by Town Marshal Booth, of Timponson, to be very serious. Mrs. Jones is attending him at the sanitarium, leaving their two children with relatives in Houston. Shreveport Times.

DEBS BACK IN PRISON AFTER WASHINGTON VISIT

Atlanta, Ga., March 25.—Eugene Debs reached Atlanta and returned to the penitentiary today after a visit to Washington for a conference with Attorney General Daugherty. He declined to discuss his trip.

PETTISH ACTION COST THIS MAN FIVE THOUSAND

Budapest, March 26.—Stephen Nemeth, a clerk, wasting away on the little food his salary would buy, appealed to his almost forgotten brother George, who went to America years ago and is now in Chicago.

When months later, there came from George simply a large photograph, Stephen Nemeth, disappointed and angry, threw his brother's picture in the fire. The next day there came a letter. It read:

"My Dear Stephen: If you will carefully divide in two the photo I sent you yesterday you will find a $5,000 bill concealed between the two sheets. Enjoy it in good health and don't forget your loving brother, George."

NO TRACE FOUND OF MISSING BALLOON

Pensacola, Fla., March 26.—Naval officers today are discouraged over the failure of a two-days' search for the missing balloon and its five occupants, but have not lost hope of finding the craft. Airplanes, dirigibles, eagle boats and subchasers continue to scout the air and sea in the vicinity of the place where the balloon was last reported.

COMMUNIST FORCES IN FULL RETREAT

Oberroeblingen, Prussian Saxony, March 26.—Reports that the communist forces which have been fighting in Eisleben against the security of police for three days had been driven from the city were brought here last night by men breathless from running the twelve miles between the two places. He said the communists were retreating across the fields, mostly in good order. Some threw away their guns and others were captured.

AIDING EX-SERVICE MEN

St. Louis, Mo., March 26.—Assistance was given 11,119 former service men by the Southwestern Division of the Red Cross last February, breaking all previous records in this character of work in a single month, according to Edward B. Orr, division director of civilian relief. The division takes in Arkansas, Oklahoma, Texas, Missouri and Kansas.

The increase in eight months has approximated 75 percent. Unemployment and the financial stringency are principal causes for it, Mr. Orr said. When employment was plentiful and wages high, Mr. Orr said, many of these ex-service men failed to seek assistance for obtaining hospitalization, compensation and disability allowances.

RIOTERS AND POLICE WARRING IN GERMANY

Eisleben, Germany, March 25 (delayed).—Street fighting, the result of a communist outbreak which has been in progress for the last 48 hours, is continuing desperately tonight, with hand-to-hand combats at the railroad station and in the streets in the center of the city. The rattle of machine-gun fire, the crash of hand grenades and the popping of rifles has been going on for the last three hours. Two thousand police are in possession of the east half of the town while 2,500 workmen have possession of the western section. The workers are heavily armed and well disciplined.

SEVERAL ARE KILLED IN GERMAN RIOTS

Hamburg, March 24.—Fifteen civilians and one police officer were killed and six persons were wounded in riots here late Wednesday. A mob attempted to break the police cordon about the Vulcan shipyards and to disarm the police, but the order was ignored and the officers opened fire, throwing hand grenades into the mob. The Blohm and Voss shipyards, where there was considerable fighting Wednesday, are closed.

FLOATING SAFES

The Hague, March 24.—The Dutch Indian mail steamers have just been equipped with floating safes large enough to hold all the ship's valuables and registered mail. They look like something between a floating buoy and a submarine, and are equipped to ring bells, shoot off skyrockets, flash lights and blow horns.

The safe, the invention of a Dutchman, is claimed to be absolutely unsinkable, and, if cast overboard in event its ship went down, would go floating about the seas attracting attention to itself until its clockwork machinery ran down. It would carry a number of rockets, to be set off at regular intervals and its machinery, it is claimed, will operate for more than a month.

COMMUNICANTS MUST BE CLAD DECENTLY

Buenos Aires, March 26.—Bare arms and low-necked dresses have been outlawed by the ecclesiastic governor of Argentina. A notice has been posted in the doorways of all the Catholic churches reading:

"After Sunday, March 27, no priest for any reason will be permitted to administer holy communion to any married woman, girl or child who approaches the altar without having completely covered the breast, shoulders and arms with material that is not transparent."

"FROZEN NORTH" A MYTH

Cleveland, Ohio, March 25.—The school geography is the most widely read bit of fiction in the United States, Vilhjalmur Stefansson, Arctic explorer declared in an address here Wednesday in which he referred to the "frozen north" as largely a myth. "The geography informs you that there is practically no life north of the Arctic circle, and there is nothing but a barren state of snow and ice," Mr. Stefansson said.

He said that the north possessed untold economic possibilities. Reindeer could be raised at very little expense, he asserted, and predicted 25 years hence reindeer meat would be selling throughout the United States on a par with beef and in 50 years it would have supplanted beef entirely.

Mr. Stefansson said that 250 specimens of vegetation have been counted on Bank's Island, 400 miles north of the Arctic circle and 750 specimens have been counted on the north coast of Alaska.

He admitted that the southern part of Greenland is ice coated but declared that due to the mountainous topography. In the north of Greenland, he said, Peary had found grassy meadows, teeming with all sorts of animal life and great herds of grazing animals.

The coldest temperature 200 miles north of the Arctic circle is 54 degrees below zero, he added, while the coldest ever reported in the United States was 69 degrees below zero at Havre, Mont.

MARK THE LINE WHERE GERMANS WERE HALTED

Paris, March 25.—To mark the line where the German advance in the spring of 1918 was stopped it is proposed to erect pyramids along the entire front bearing the inscription: "Here was arrested the rush of the Barbarians."

The number of pyramids and the places where they are to be erected will shortly be determined by Marshal Petain.

TENNESSEE VISITED BY TERRIFIC STORM

Nashville, Tenn., March 25.—Three persons are reported dead, several seriously injured and much property destroyed as a result of a cyclone which started about ten miles west of Lewisburg, Tenn., yesterday afternoon between 4 and 5 o'clock and swept northeastward toward Marshall county.

At South Berlin station on the L. & N. railroad several cars are said to have been blown off the tracks. Telephone lines in Marshall county are down. The Nashville, Chattanooga and St. Louis railroad has dispatched a special train from here to the scene.

NAVAL AIR STATION IS ADRIFT AT SEA

Pensacola, Fla., March 25.—Scores of naval air and surface craft today began anew the search for the balloon naval air station here, which was reported adrift at sea Thursday with 5 men on board. The balloon was off St. Andrews Bay drifting toward the open sea a hundred feet above the water when last heard of. Two messages by carrier pigeons told of the plight of the balloonists.

Commander a Houston Man

Washington, March 25.—George K. Wilkenson of Houston, Texas, is commander of the navy balloon which has been missing from the air station at Pensacola since Tuesday.

THESE GERMANS EVADE HOUSING SHORTAGE PROBLEM

Coblenz, March 26.—Three Germans of this city solved their housing problem in a queer way until the city authorities caught them at it a few days ago. They had installed themselves inside the giant figure of a horse bearing the statue of William I which stands at the confluence of the Rhine and Moselle rivers.

They gained entrance to the inside of the horse by discovering a loose copper plate on one of its sides. Within they had installed a bed and laid in a supply of a number of cases of wine and were making themselves very much at home until the authorities discovered them.

BATHTUB CENSUS

Austin, Texas, March 25.—Bathtub census returns came to light today. In 1883 information shows there were 58.3 persons for each bathtub in the state. Latest figures, announced by Dr. Manton M. Carrick, the state health officer, show that tubs have increased until the average is 6.7 persons for each. "This increase in the number of bathtubs is a good indication of the advances that have been made in matters of personal hygiene," said Dr. Carrick. "Bathing used to be a weekly chore, something to be endured. Within the memory of many people still living is the recollection of what happened when the bathtub was first introduced. It was lambasted as a menace to democratic simplicity, and a danger to health. An ordinance was introduced in Philadelphia—and almost passed—to prohibit bathing between November and March. Boston made bathing unlawful except on medical advice. Virginia imposed a tax on bathtub owners of $30 a year. All because the bathtub was new, and the public resents a novelty."

"But today we realize that not only is cleanliness next to godliness, but it is essential to health as well. Not only does it contribute to our good looks and remove the dirt and perspiration from our bodies, but it does much to eliminate the danger of contracting diseases. For dust carries and harbors germs, and these germs, if allowed to remain on our persons, will oftentimes lead to serious illness."

DISCOURAGING ANARCHY

Rio De Janeiro, March 24.—As a result of a number of bomb explosions in various parts of the city during the last few months, the government is taking stern measures to curb the activities of alleged foreign anarchists and bolsheviks.

President Pessoa has just signed a decree providing for heavy punishment for persons propagating subversive doctrines as well as those connected with or inciting bomb outrages.

Meetings held under false pretenses may be dissolved and those responsible are imprisoned. The government is empowered to close up societies whose action is opposed to the public good and dissolution of such bodies may be ordered by the courts.

Representative W. E. Thomason has succeeded in getting state aid for the Martinsville school. This is good news, and will be greatly appreciated by the Martinsville people.

TO CROSS CONTINENT IN 24 HOUR FLIGHT

San Diego, March 25.—Preparations were being made today at Rockwell Aviation Field to receive Lieutenant William Coney, who left Jacksonville, Fla., early today in an attempt to complete a transcontinental flight in 24 hours. If darkness falls before he arrives, the field will be flooded with an illumination from high-powered arc lights to assist him in landing. He plans to make a stop in Dallas in the early forenoon. Military airmen today expressed a doubt that the daring aviator would arrive in time to establish a new transcontinental record, saying that no matter how high an altitude he took he was almost certain to strike adverse trade winds. The present record was established in 1919 by Major Theodore MacCauley, who made the flight in 19 hours and 10 minutes.

Has Probably Fatal Fall

Monroe, La., March 25.—Lieutenant Coney attempted to land because of engine trouble near Crowville, a small town in a swampy wilderness in Louisiana, struck a tree and fell 75 feet to earth. His back is believed to be broken. He was still unconscious at noon. He is on a farm near the premises where he fell.

WAR CONTINUES IN UNHAPPY IRELAND

Dublin, March 25.—An official announcement here yesterday stated that a police inspector and eight men were ambushed near Dingle Tuesday and a fight ensued lasting three hours which ended disastrously to the attacking party, eight of whom were killed and twenty wounded. Three of the police were slightly wounded, it was stated.

Six Civilians Killed

Cork, March 24.—Six civilians were killed in the Blarney district of Cork county yesterday and a battle ensued when the crown forces were fired upon from a farm house. The military were conducting a search for wanted men when they were attacked.

FANTASTICAL ROBBERS

Riga, March 24.—A new style of costumed robbery has been invented in Russia, according to a report from Moscow.

In Petrograd and Moscow strange companies have been established consisting of "ghosts" or devils and angels who rob belated passers-by in the streets, plunder apartments and murder the people.

The inventive genius of these diabolical companies went so far as to invent a special jumping board for "flying" over high fences.

One of the "ghosts" who was recently caught confessed that his company consisting of seven persons, murdered hundreds of people and kept the stolen property from them in coffins at the cemeteries.

The inhabitants are helpless against these murderers and no help can be expected from the authorities because it is said that in many cities the authorities themselves are involved in these enterprises.

MEETING TO PROVIDE FOR BASEBALL PARK

A meeting of the residents of the city has been called for 8 o'clock Friday night at the courthouse to discuss the ways and means of providing a baseball park in Nacogdoches, and it is hoped every advocate of good clean, manly sport in town will be on hand to lend his assistance to the movement. The club has already been organized, but the boys have no ball grounds and of course can do very little in the way of meeting contestants or catering to the enjoyment of lovers of the game.

A grand stand should be erected and a diamond should be laid off and in condition. It would be unreasonable to expect the members of the team to do this at their own expense, even if they were able to meet the cost. The enterprise would be for the public's amusement, and it is the public's business to bear the expense of the preliminary arrangements. Many towns of lesser wealth and population than Nacogdoches are backing their home teams to the limit in the way of providing grounds and erecting necessary buildings, and there is no excuse for failure upon the part of our people to do likewise. We all enjoy witnessing a snappy game of ball, so let's help the boys to secure permanent facilities.

All who are interested in such an enterprise should be at the courthouse Friday night and assist the boys in their laudable aspirations for an adequate ball park.

The ladies are asked to come and encourage by their presence the accomplishment of this work.

HENRY B. TERRELL, EX-COMPTROLLER, DEAD

San Antonio, Texas, March 24.—Henry B. Terrell, former comptroller of Texas and prominent in state politics, died here today after a prolonged illness. Mr. Terrell served several terms in the legislature, two terms as state senator. He was mentioned as a gubernatorial candidate in the last campaign, but failing health prohibited him from entering the contest. The body will be sent to Austin.

ENFORCEMENT OFFICERS WAR ON BOOTLEGGERS

Fort Worth, Texas, March 24.—E. A. Turner, district prohibition enforcement officer has received orders to immediately mobilize his forces, indicating a drive against all bootleggers and whiskey runners in this territory following the killing of three enforcement officers within the last two weeks. Mr. Turner said he thought the whiskey runners in the El Paso territory have had agents in Fort Worth and Dallas, and a new plan has been devised to break up the traffic.

INJURED AVIATOR IS FIGHTING FOR LIFE

Natchez, Miss., March 26.—Lieutenant Coney, the transcontinental flyer, whose airplane crashed near Crowville, La., yesterday while he was attempting to break the record flight from Jacksonville, Fla., to San Diego, Cal., today is battling for his life in a local sanitarium.

HONOR DEAD SOLDIERS

Prais, March 25.—Flowers are brought in an unceasing pilgrimage of mourners and placed on the slab that marks the grave of the unidentified French soldier under the great Arch of Triumph that dominates the western part of the city.

The pile of flowers and wreaths is fed with fresh contributions from early morning until late at night. There seems no end to the little ceremonies of organizations held at the grave to honor the war dead. Little shop girls bring small bunches of violets that cost 50 centimes; statesmen passing through the Paris place there great wreaths as tributes from their countries.

Since November 11, 1920, when the unknown soldier was placed under the arch, there has always been a group or crowd of mourners at the shrine of the dead. There has always been a huge pile of flowers. On Sundays, thousands stream there from the 12 avenues that converge at the Etoile, as the circular open space surrounding the arch is called and there is a procession of people with bared heads passing by the mound of flowers.

Many teachers bring their classes and there is a movement afoot to arrange that in each of the public schools of Paris a small contribution shall be collected on a separate day in each school to buy flowers to be placed on the slab by a delegation of honor pupils, so that there may be such a tribute of the children of France to the war dead every day of the year.

CIRCUMVENTING BURGLARS

Berlin, March 25.—German burglars face a new obstacle in a strong-box which a Berlin inventor has just placed on the market. The portable steel box is equipped with an alarm which can be set before the lid is closed.

When the box is lifted or moved ever so lightly the alarm is sounded and can be stopped only by unlocking the box and adjusting the mechanism which controls the buzzer.

Hotel guests are buying the boxes and placing it against their doors at night, or setting it on luggage which they wish to protect. The boxes are produced in various sizes and with alarms varying in strength from an ordinary buzzer to a fire alarm gong.

LEPROSY TREATMENT FREE

Honolulu, T. H., March 26.—Free dispensaries throughout Hawaii for administering refined chaulmoogra oil to lepers would be established under two bills which have been introduced in the territorial house of representatives by Norman K. Lyman, representative from Hilo, Hawaii.

The bill provides for opening chaulmoogra oil dispensaries on the islands of Hawaii, Maui and Kauai, in addition to those already operating successfully in Honolulu, and at the Kalaupapa leper colony on the island of Motokai.

A LUCKY SAILOR

Scarborough, England, March 24.—During his 54 years in the mercantile marine, Captain John Myrill, who has just died here at the age of 84, sailed around the world 36 times. He was never shipwrecked.

A GREAT CHURCHMAN PASSED AWAY TODAY

Baltimore, Md., March 24.—James Cardinal Gibbons, archbishop of Baltimore and primate of the American Catholic church, died at the archiepiscopal residence here today after a prolonged illness mainly affecting the heart. He was 87 years of age. The end came peacefully at 11:33 o'clock.

TRADE RELATIONS MAY BE RESUMED

Washington, March 24.—The State Department yesterday indicated that early consideration would be given the relations between Soviet Russia and the United States. A formal announcement of any change in the relations of the two countries or in the rulings of the Wilson administration may not be made for some time, but it was made clear that already certain modifications of these rulings were either under consideration or had been made. Decisions were reached under consideration or had been made. Decisions were reached at the on the independent appeal from the soviet government to President Harding and the American government for resumption of trade relations. That appeal reached the State Department yesterday from the White House.

In the event of an agreement between the United States and Soviet Russia, it was indicated, no technical bars would be placed against the entry into the United States of the delegation which a Moscow wireless to London said the soviets proposed to send here to negotiate a trade agreement.

SACRIFICE PENSIONS

London, March 24.—British war widows are re-marrying so rapidly that the Chancellor, Austen Chamberlain, expects to be able to reduce pensions appropriations in this year's budget by £10,000,000 sterling. This, however, is only one of the factors contributing to the anticipated reduction but it is stated that thousands of women made widows by the war have again become wives and thus automatically taken their names off the pension list. The pensions granted to widows of soldiers who died in active service are withdrawn when the widows remarry.

TAX ON SCANT CLOTHES

Geneva, March 25.—Swiss women who wear short skirts and low-necked gowns will have to pay higher rates of life insurance than those who do not. The Swiss insurance companies have announced that fixing the premiums on policies of women's lives, they will take into consideration the women's wearing apparel. The shorter the skirt or lower the décolleté, the higher the insurance rate will be.

The Swiss companies justify this action on the ground of a great increase of illness and disease among their women clients which they claim is due to the wearing of short skirts and low-necked dresses.

ROAD WILL BE BUILT

The News understands that at a meeting of the commissioners of this precinct with a number of the largest tax payers on the bond issue voted something over three years ago for the construction of the Lufkin-Nacogdoches road an agreement was reached with the commissioner whereby he promised his active support in getting the court together and re-considering the bids that the contract may be let and work commenced in time to secure the state aid of $40,000. This will be the most welcome bit of news that the News has been able to regale its readers with for many moons, for possibly no where in the state is a piece of good road more badly needed than between Lufkin and Nacogdoches, not only the two counties being vitally interested in its construction, but the entire state as well, its completion being the connecting link between a good highway to Shreveport on the north and to Houston on the south. It will be remembered that several bids made heretofore for the construction of this road have been turned down by the commissioners' court at different times, the reasons for which no doubt were satisfactory to the court, but with the urgent need for this highway and the necessity of beginning work on its construction before the first of June to secure the state aid of $40,000 the commissioner has decided to use his influence in securing the cooperation of the other members of the court, and in conformity with the wishes of the delegation of citizens who have promised the united support of the Lufkin citizenship see that the contract is let and the building of this road begun at the very earliest possible moment.—Lufkin News.

DEATH OF A BABE

Hollis Holman, Jr., infant son of Mr. and Mrs. H. H. Hall of this city, died at 3 o'clock Tuesday morning and was laid to rest in Oak Grove cemetery at 3 o'clock that afternoon. He was born February 27th, 1919, and died March 22, 1921.

During his short stay on this earth this little one had suffered much, and all that devoted parents could do for him was done to relieve his distress. They took him to St. Louis on March 5 for an operation, hoping that would benefit his health, but he grew worse on their return home, and lingered only a few days, until his spirit returned to the God who gave it.

The funeral services were conducted at the home of the parents by Rev. J. L. Massey, and the words of comfort and cheer spoken by him should serve to lighten the burden of grief that must come to the sorrowing parents and loved ones.

Hosts of friends came with floral offerings to express their love and sympathy to these parents who had so long labored and taught in the school here.

A Friend.

STORM SUNDAY NIGHT INFLECTS MUCH DAMAGE

A storm of unusual severity visited this section Sunday night, inflicting much damage to streets, bridges and roads. Shortly after 10 o'clock a heavy rain began falling, accompanied by a stiff gale, and the down-pour continued almost without intermission throughout the night. Banita Creek overflowed its banks, flooding the lowlands and sweeping away fences. At the Main street depot the water rose within 20 feet of the station platform and the nearby restaurants were marooned, though, luckily, the tide did not quite reach the floors of the buildings. Here and there the bodies of dead chickens were observed, and it is said that a large number of fowls were drowned. The bridge on South North street withstood the stress of the flood, as did the railroad trestle of the Nacogdoches & Southeastern road just below, though the water rose to the top of the sleepers supporting the stringers, and a mass of tree trunks, boards and trash was lodged against the piling. The footbridge at Pecan street was wrecked and part of it carried away. The concrete viaduct at South Fredonia street escaped damage, though several dwellings in the neighborhood and a number in the lowlands along South Church street were flooded and their occupants forced to vacate. It is said the waters in Banita and Lanana creeks were higher than at any time since the disastrous flood of June, 1903.

The street department has a job on its hands, as much damage is reported to the city's thoroughfares. From the surrounding country come reports of damage to fences and low-lying farm lands.

Small washouts occurred on the railroads which served to delay the trains for a few hours. Telegraph and telephone wires were put out of commission and the service suffered considerably. Most of the breaks in the latter were repaired Monday, however.

WAS RESTING WELL

A report from Timpson this morning stated that the messenger, Jones, on the H. E. & W. T. railroad, who was shot by Special Agent E. E. Ransom, of the express company, yesterday, was resting well, the injured party being in a sanitarium at Timpson. Jones was a very popular young man along the line and his many friends will rejoice to learn of his early recovery. As detailed to a News reporter, he was shot in the stomach, also in one arm, and sustained other injuries during the altercation. The shooting took place in Louisiana, it is said, but the man charged with the shooting was carried to Houston. Just why this was done, it is not clear to those who have heard of the circumstance.

There was further comment on the streets of Lufkin this morning concerning the episode, in that no Houston paper carried the item, it being said by close observers that the Lufkin Daily News was the only paper to make mention of the affair. Possibly the Houston papers will dwell on the circumstance today.

The fact that the shooting took place in one state and that the alleged party of the first part was carried to another state, is a matter that is not easily understood. —Lufkin News, 25th.

It was learned Saturday that the condition of the wounded messenger, who was still in the Timpson sanitarium, was not at all encouraging. The report in a Houston paper that he had been removed to his home in that city was erroneous.

Ransom, the alleged assailant of Messenger Jones, passed through Nacogdoches Friday night in charge of an officer en route to Shreveport.

Why Colds are Dangerous

It is the serious disease that colds lead to that makes them dangerous. They prepare the system for the reception and development of the germs of influenza, pneumonia, tuberculosis, diphtheria, scarlet fever, whooping cough and measles. You are much more likely to contract these diseases when you have a cold. For that reason you should get rid of every cold as quickly as possible. Chamberlain's Cough Remedy will help you. It is widely known as a cure for bad colds. Stripling, Haselwood & Co.

Max Golub, who was operated upon the first of the week at the local sanitarium, is doing nicely, according to his father, N. Golub.

Albert Henry says the coal mines of Garrison in which he is interested are still turning out a fine grade of coal, and that a market for same is being found without any difficulty. The mines were opened during the hardest times, financially, and have been kept running ever since.

An Ideal Remedy for Constipation
It would be hard to find a better remedy for constipation than Chamberlain's Tablets. For the best effect they should be taken after supper. They are easy to take and mild and gentle in effect. Stripling, Haselwood & Co.

Master Vestle Spencer, who was found badly injured on the T. & N. O tracks three miles south of town one day last week, has been removed from the sanitarium to the home of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. E. Spencer, and is getting along nicely.

Mrs. J. M. Craig of Los Angeles, Calif., who says no one can feel more grateful for what Tanlac has done for them than she does. Has gained twelve pounds and health better than in years.

"Of all the people who have taken Tanlac I do not believe there are any who feel more grateful to it than I do," said Mrs. J. M. Craig, of 674 1/2 E. 40th st., Los Angeles, Calif.

"I suffered from nervous prostration and was so weak that I could not even sweep the floor and during the day I would have to lie down four or five times. I tried to walk, but found out that half a block was all that I could stand before I would give out. Nervous spells came on me often. Finally my husband urged me to try Tanlac and I am indeed glad he did, for it proved to be just what I needed.

"The first two bottles did not seem to help me. I guess it was because I was so bad off, but on the third bottle I could tell I was improving and that gave me more hope than ever of getting well. My improvement from then on was rapid and by the time I had taken five bottles I was better and stronger than I had been in years.

"It enabled me to sleep soundly at night and I have gained twelve pounds. That was several months ago and from then until now I have been in as good health as I ever was in my life. I have told all of my friends and relatives what a wonderful medicine Tanlac is."

Tanlac is sold in Nacogdoches by Stripling, Haselwood & Company and Swift Bros. & Smith and in Garrison by the Dale Drug Company and all leading druggists.

WOULD HAVE WOMEN PROPOSE

Writer Assails Old Idea That She Must Wait Until She is Sought in Marriage.

More and more it becomes evident that a great and solemn referendum is needed to settle the question: Shall women propose? This matter—it is a leap year—has been agitating men and women for more than six months. When 1920 opened, this newspaper called attention to the fact that it was a leap year and suggested and even advised women to tackle men who were hanging back, and see that they did their duty and assumed the burden of marriage. We told women to boldly propose to men and see that they gave the right answer—an affirmative. There is no person quite so much of a slacker as a smug bachelor, and if he possesses not the nerve to ask a woman to marry him, then it is the right of the woman to demand that he marry her and see that he does. Weak arguments have been offered against women proposing; folk say it is unwomanly, that it belittles the girl, and a lot of nonsense like that. If persons will look at the matter reasonably and realize that it is the duty of every healthy person to have a mate through life, they will understand that it is as much a woman's right to request a man to marry her as it is the man's right to put the question to her. Wherefore we repeat what we have said before, that women should do the proposing in cases where men show an inclination to hang back or are bashful. If left to a referendum we feel sure the woman's right to propose will be sanctioned.—Chicago Evening Post.

PROLIFIC BREEDER IS BEETLE

Enemy of Pine Timber Only Kept in Check by Strenuous Natural and Artificial Control.

Special study has been made of the number of all stages of the western pine beetle in 330 square feet of infested bark selected from 67 trees, which represented an average infestation within an area of approximately 80 square miles, says the American Forestry Magazine. It is shown there is a large percentage of mortality between the young and matured stages in the developing broods, but that normally an average of about 150 beetles to the square foot of bark developed to the adult, or reproductive, stage; which would be 50,000 beetles to the average infested tree, or, say 30,000 beetles to 1,000 board feet of timber. Since it requires an average of about ten beetles to the square foot to attack and kill a vigorous, healthy tree, it will be seen, says the American Forestry association, which is campaigning for a national forest policy, that all the pine timber of the western forests would soon be destroyed were it not for natural and artificial control.

Comment "Sarkastic"

Now the vacuum subway express has been invented. Working somewhat after the fashion of the pneumatic cash carriers that have long been in use in department stores, the trains proceed from one tunnel station to another, according to prospectus, at the rate of 150 miles an hour. This speed is attained with slight expenditure of power, because the vacuum system removes all air resistance from the front of the train and applies expanding air to the rear. The inventor presumably got his idea for the vacuum subway while traveling by tube, and noting what a small quantity of air the cars could get along with.—Christian Science Monitor.

Tuberculosis Ends and Flows

The decline of tuberculosis is illustrated by that of leprosy by Dr. Louis G. Reed, lecturer in pathology at the University of California. Leprosy was formerly one of the world's great scourges, but has become practically extinct in western countries. Tuberculosis seems to be following, as it is declining at an increasing rate, its death having fallen of nearly 99 per cent since 1865. Apparent causes of the change are lessened overcrowding, otherwise improved social conditions, more and better food, and the adoption of methods of real ventilation. The war has given tuberculosis a new lease of life in European nations, especially in half-starved Austria, where it runs riot.

"Polite" Motor Horn

The magazine Motor announces the arrival of the courteous motor horn. Up to now the motor horn has been decidedly cacophonous. It squawks unpleasantly; it bellows alarmingly; it utters noises disagreeably suggestive of nauses.

But the new horn, which is appearing on the market, has a tone that is at once polite and powerful. It warns, yet does not offend the sensitive ear. The tone-adjusting mechanism is so contrived and arranged that the horn is easily regulated for any degree of vociferousness, but it yet carries a warning to the pedestrian.

DEFECT IN EXISTING MAPS

That They Are Not Drawn to Uniform Scale is Felt to Be an Educational Handicap.

It has long been the dream of geographers to make a series of maps of the world on a uniform scale. Indeed, it is considered unfortunate for school children that the geographies do not show all countries by maps on a single, uniform scale, for unless a student observes very carefully the figures showing the scale of each map or the figures showing the area of the country mapped he is likely to get the impression that certain distant lands, which are generally mapped on a small scale, are smaller than those with which he is most familiar. Take Australia, for example: The maps in the geographies now used in most of our schools show it on a small scale—about one-third as large as that used for the map of the United States; yet Australia is, in fact, nearly as large as the United States—only about one-fortieth (2 1/4 per cent) smaller. China is generally shown smaller in area than the United States, yet it is about one-third larger.

The work of preparing maps of the entire world on a uniform scale of one to one million—that is, maps on which one unit (any unit—inch, centimeter, millimeter, etc.) represents one million like units on the ground—has been under way for several years, and the United States geological survey, Department of the Interior, has made considerable progress in its work on the parts of this map that were assigned to the United States. The principle used in preparing these maps, if adopted by the publishers of school books, will give the children accurate impressions of the relative sizes of the countries of the world.

TEMPTED BY BRIGHT LIGHTS

Adventurous Bossie Attempted to Make Her Way into Vaudeville in City of Dallas.

Gentle Bossie, tired of the humdrum life of giving milk and butter for the hungry mouths of some family, and bored with the pastoral quiet of the farm, determined the other night to have a taste of the gay life of the big city at least once before she crossed the River Styx. Accordingly she sought out the brightest lights of the city, a vaudeville house.

But first her bovine majesty sauntered gayly up Elm street from Lamar, gazing in the show windows as she roved. While in this vicinity she even attempted to enter a street car. Then, pursuing her praiseworthy course, she plodded on toward the center of the
