EAST TEXAS NORMAL

Nacogdoches, East Texas, scored a big victory last week over Kingsville, South Texas, with the announcement that the first normal to be built under a recent legislative act will be located at the East Texas town. This announcement was made Thursday at Austin following a visit by members of the Board of Regents with members of the Nacogdoches Chamber of Commerce, representative business men of that city and representatives from a great number of towns in the state. John C. Rogers, member of the legislature from Shelby county, and W. M. Chandler, county superintendent of schools, attended the meeting. It is understood, however, that the money for this great institution is yet to be appropriated, but it is said there is very little doubt but that it will be done.

"This is a great victory for East Texas," said Mr. Rogers. "And as little as you think about it, it is a victory for Center and this immediate section. It means with good pikes as we are soon to have that the institution can be reached by automobile in just a short time. It gives us something to offer homeseekers in the way of education that we could not have had if the normal had not been located here.

"East Texas, and especially this part of the state," continued Mr. Rogers, "is being recognized as never before. We will soon have an institution to boast and be proud of."—Center Champion.

THE SEATED WOMAN

Comfort as an essential to health and efficiency is better understood than it was a few years ago.

The increased interest in and demand for proper seating devices to suit all types of work has led to the opening of a whole new field of industry, in the designing and supplying of such chairs, built after scientific study of the subject.

When housewives and teachers learn the wisdom of sitting at their work the health average of women will go up perceptibly, and the number of peevish wives and cross teachers diminish accordingly. Some household tasks of course demand that the worker move about, but the majority of those at which she usually stands can be done just as well sitting down, the only necessity being a little experimentation as to size and height of the chair.

As for teaching, one of the best teachers of the country, considered as either instructor or disciplinarian and nationally famous in educational circles, never left her chair except to demonstrate some point at the blackboard, or to move quietly about looking at the work on the desks, and generally the desk work was brought to her.

Wherever the woman is to be seen seated at her work it shows that she and those who are interested in her welfare and effectiveness as a worker know what they are about.

This endorsement of the chair, of course, doesn't mean that we don't also fully appreciate the value of walking as an exercise. Everybody should do some walking every day.—Ex.

WHEN CAPITAL GOES HUNGRY

"Capital never goes cold and hungry," says Vice President Easty of the Brotherhood of Railway and Steamship Clerks, Freight Handlers and Station Employees. "Capital is never out of a job unless it wants to be." The statement is good rhetoric; but not so much can be said of its economic soundness.

Capital is sometimes out of a job involuntarily when a big mill shuts down or a mine peters out. It may even go cold and hungry when an industrial company passes its dividends or a street railway goes into a receiver's hands.

Capital, of course, is less likely than labor to feel the immediate pinch of a sudden reversal. It usually has more fat to subsist on. But in a general sense both are subject to the same economical conditions. When labor is at work capital is at work, and when either suspends operations, the other suffers and it becomes a question of endurance as between the strike fund of the one and the bank account of the other. The stockholders whose dividends are cut off is in the same boat with the employee whose pay envelope is empty. How long either can keep from going cold and hungry depends on the size of the rainy day fund.

The bulk of capital is not in the form of swollen private fortunes, but in small individual investments the income from which is as necessary to the support of the investor as his wages are to the workman. Their interests are identical; it is essential to the support of both that the mills should be kept going and the trains running.—New York World.

WARS AND COTTON PRICES

From statistics on cotton prices for the last 100 years, compiled by R. L. McKellar of the Southern Railway, and published in the Birmingham Age Herald, it is noticeable that prices have averaged higher in the great war periods through which the country has passed than at any other time.

In the period from 1861 to 1870, for instance, the average price was $132.93 per bale, while in the decade just preceding it was only $48.56 per bale, and in the decade following, or from 1871 to 1880, the price was $68.46.

Again in the decade from 1911 to 1920, during which the great war was fought, the price again went up, this time to $85.48 as an average. Contrary to the belief of many, it appears that cotton prices did not break altitude records during and after the recent great war, but that the topmost records were made after the War Between the States.

Following the War Between the States, conditions were reversed from what they are now. Then cotton production had fallen low, and exports had been light for a number of years. There was a heavy demand for cotton in Europe.

Now America has an oversupply of cotton and Europe, while in perhaps greater need of the material than after the former war, is not in a position to buy. The high prices during the recent war were the result of the demand for military purposes and of the especial arrangements for credits. When they were eliminated the bottom dropped out of the cotton market.

Exports of cotton to Europe have again been extremely light and the longer the movement is held up the more demand there will be eventually. There is no reason to expect that prices will again approach those following the war in the sixties, but as rapidly as the financial depression in Europe is removed and credit arrangements are re-established, demand for cotton will increase proportionately. In the meantime the Southern farmer finds it necessary to curtail his production until the readjustment is under way.—Houston Post.

TANTALIZING AN EDITOR

It is all right for fishing parties, with long cane poles tied onto the sides of their cars, to leave town whenever they choose for some nearby stream, but the "fishing" editor of this paper draws the line on said parties driving by the News office door in getting out of town. There are plenty of other routes out of the city, without passing in front of this office to tantalize a fellow who already has acute fishing pains. If this practice is kept up, at least upon return, leave some evidence of the day's catch.—Lufkin News.

THE MOTHER OF THE GOVERNOR OF TEXAS

Aside from the distinction that came to her as the mother of the governor of Texas, Mrs. Isabella E. Neff, who passed away at the governor's mansion in Austin Wednesday, was worthy of being numbered among the first women of the state, in recognition of her own many splendid qualities, and her long and useful life as a citizen in the Southwest.

The life of the governor's venerable mother was not without its romantic touch, journeying as she did from log cabin to the governor's mansion of her adopted state. Leaving the school room of old Virginia as a bride, she took up life in a part of the new state where Indians were still accustomed to attack the homes of settlers, and began her career as one of the pioneers in Christian civilization in the Southwest.

Here she experienced many of the dangers and hardships incident to the early days in the great empire of the Southwest, beginning her married life in a home made of logs.

But in the new land she cherished the same high ideals of life that she knew back in the old home, and the culture that was known in the old South she transplanted to her new home in the West. Here she brought up a worthy family with the loving care and discrimination characteristic of the motherhood of the South, and in her quiet, unostentatious way she left a strong impress upon the life of the state, giving to the service of the people of Texas a son whom his fellow citizens honor as the highest type of Christian citizen and statesman.

Governor Neff was deeply attached to his aged mother and was proud to acknowledge that her influence had played a dominant part in his life. When he became governor he brought her to the mansion at Austin that whatever honors the citizens of Texas had bestowed upon him should be shared by her in her declining days.

The Governor has the deepest sympathy of the people of the state in his bereavement, and the assurance that they will honor the memory of her who for nearly 70 years was an exemplary citizen of Texas.—Houston Post.

TOO MUCH CLEMENCY

Everywhere there is an outcry against parole boards and boards of clemency for releasing from penitentiaries and reformatories prisoners who have subsequently committed new crimes. A surprising number of men appearing in the news during the past several months as perpetrators of hold-ups and murders have been men "out on parole" from penal institutions; not, however, in our state where court and jury verdicts have been rigidly enforced.

Such offenders may have been released in some cases through a "political pull." In most cases their liberation was due to excessive tolerance and sentiment on the part of honest but misled officials. The result is a wave of indignation against the whole parole system.

There is much danger in this indignation as there was in the easy-going spirit that preceded it. Undoubtedly there has been much sentimentality in the last few years in the public attitude toward criminals, too much mawkish sympathy for offenders and too much childlike faith that hardened and brutal young men could be transformed by kindness and love. It has come to pass, therefore, where instead of protecting "misunderstood" youths from an avenging society, a long-suffering society must be protected from murderous youths. The present swing-back is wholesome so far.

But care must be taken lest the reaction go too far. There are boys who go wrong because they are misunderstood and do not have a fair chance and there are youths who, after getting into trouble as a result of bad company or strong temptation, are still worth saving and capable of being saved by the right method. Justice comes first, but there will always be the need of tempering justice with mercy. It is merely a question of wisdom in preserving the right balance between the two. And that is mainly a question of choosing the right men for parole boards, and law-abiding citizens keeping closer tab on the process of penal administration.—Shreveport Journal.

DREW FIVE YEARS

George Trayer, alias G. W. Adams, according to reading of the indictment, was assessed five years in the penitentiary yesterday in the district court, on a charge of forgery. It is understood that after conviction the defendant insisted that his right name was Chadwick, and preferred that this latter name be employed instead of either Thayer or Adams. It is alleged that the defendant solicited and did take orders for various articles of furniture which were never delivered, although advance payments had been made on the goods. Chadwick was brought here from Nacogdoches, where it is said similar charges are against him; it also being said that such operations have extended over a number of different states in the past.—Lufkin News, 18th.

A THRIFT HINT

The sheriff of Nacogdoches county is reported to have captured some "home brew" from a negro a few days ago that would take the paint off of tables with one application. If he were resourceful, he would have it analyzed and commercialized as an insect destroyer and paint remover.—Garrison News.

Two big railroads are planning to issue $296,000,000 worth of bonds. We fancy when posterity comes on the scene in future years, after inventing the estate, it will ask: "Didn't they ever have the money to pay for anything at all, and what in the name of Julius Caesar did they do with the receipts?"

After a visit in Oklahoma City, Mr. and Mrs. Parker will be at home to their friends at Wilson, where Mr. Parker is connected with the Carter Oil Company. He is said to be a very worthy and capable young man.

Y. Donegan, since his removal to Oklahoma. His many friends here will join in wishing for Mr. Parker and his bride a long life of happiness and unbroken prosperity.

Miss Dora Davis, who has been teaching in the Cleveland school, arrived home Saturday.

OBITUARY

On Monday evening, May 16, 1921, at 3 o'clock, the death angel visited the home of Ed Mora and claimed for his own Mattie, his wife. Mattie was ill only a short time, but her death was a sweet relief.

Mattie Prado Mora was born July 2, 1898, being 22 years, two months and 14 days old at the time of her death. She was greatly loved by all who knew her. She was a kind and affectionate mother and a devoted wife. She leaves her husband and two children, the elder of the latter being 3 years old and the other a babe of 6 weeks. Her father, five sisters and five brothers also survive her, and these are joined by a host of friends in sincere sorrow for the death of this good woman.

She was laid to rest Tuesday afternoon, May 17, in the family cemetery, near Attoyac.

Treatment of Common Colds
"If all who catch cold could be persuaded to remain in bed for the first twenty-four hours of such an attack," says a well known physician, "there would be fewer cases dragging on for weeks and often ending in more serious diseases." IN MEMORIAM

Callie Bonie Jones, aged 62 years, was born in Alabama and came to Texas at the age of 12. Forty two years ago she was married to C. Blankenship of Attoyac, and to them three children were born, all of whom survive. They are Mrs. Ada McInturff of Fort Worth, Mrs. Ilic Collins of Attoyac and Amos Blankenship of San Augustine. Her husband also survives her.

Deceased was a devout member of the Baptist church, with which she connected herself 25 years ago.

A good woman, a loving wife and devoted mother has gone to her eternal reward.

NEGROES MOVING SOUTH

A newspaper man tells of being waited on in a San Antonio restaurant by a negro whom he had come to know years ago as a porter on a train running out of New York. The waiter explained that he had left the North because, although he could make more money there, his money went farther in the South, and in the South he could get more pleasure out of life. Many of his friends are doing the same thing, he said, because it was so hard for them to get proper homes to live in in northern cities, and because they found there so little of the social life which negroes enjoy among themselves in the South.

This is one little picture of a movement which is going on to a greater extent than most people realize. The problem caused by the migration of negroes to the North in such large numbers during the war are tending to settle themselves. Everywhere the causes mentioned—housing shortage, high prices and social antagonism—are driving the new comers southward again. Added to these influences are the northern climate, which most negroes find uncomfortable, and the business stringency which leaves so many of them unemployed in the industrial sections.

The South understands negroes better than the North does, and in spite of a northern impression to the contrary, on the whole, the South treats them much better, as many negroes who went North have learned.—Ex.

Periodic Bilious Attacks

Persons subject to bilious attacks at regular intervals know about when to expect an attack. They find that they have no desire for food when the attack is due but usually eat because it is meal time. Skip one meal and take three of Chamberlain's Tablets and you may be able to avoid the attack. Persons subject to periodic bilious attacks should not drink tea or coffee at any time. About Digestion

It is claimed that only half as much food is required when it is thoroughly masticated. Digestion begins at the mouth and thorough mastication of the food is of the greatest importance. ARKANSAS FARMER IS IN FINE SHAPE

Bennett's Health Restored by Tanlac Two Years Ago, and He Continues Well and Strong

"It was two years ago that Tanlac set me right and put me into shape where I gained thirty pounds in weight and I have been in the best of health and retained my weight to this good day," said Oliver P. Bennett, a well-known farmer of Union Township, R. F. D. No. 4, Little Rock, Ark. "I have been a farmer all my life," he continued, "but two years ago I got so I wasn't able to work and was beginning to think my farming days were over. My stomach got all out of order and my appetite was well nigh gone. My nerves broke down and I couldn't half sleep. My shoulders and chest hurt something awful, and I got so weak and all run down I was beginning to wonder where it was all going to end. I had been under treatment for two years, but in spite of it all I was growing worse and gradually losing in weight.

"Finally, I took a notion that Tanlac might fit my case. Well, sir, I never will forget how I commenced to pick up. Why, I never saw the like. I took six bottles and actually gained thirty pounds, as I said, and felt so well and strong I could go out and work from sun up to sun down. Ever since then I have been feeling fine and I have this good old Tanlac to thank for it all."

Tanlac is sold in Nacogdoches by Stripling, Haselwood & Company and Swift Bros. & Smith and in Garrison by the Dale Drug Company and all leading druggists.

A NEW ONE

Teaching Typewriting by Music

The Tyler Commercial College, of Tyler, Texas, in line with the progressive policy that has made it the largest business training college in America, recently conducted some experimental tests with music in their typewriting classes, and found the results so gratifying after thorough and exhaustive trials that they have adopted it as their regular method of teaching.

At first glance it seems almost laughable to combine music with the clatter of a typewriter, in a business institution. But a little study makes the remarkable results that have been obtained perfectly clear. Which typist will do the most work and the best work? The one who writes spasmodically, in jumps and starts, who writes one easy, familiar word "at ninety miles an hour," and has to slow down to pick out the next word because it isn't so easy, striking one letter hard and the next one light because he writes in spurts, or the typist who writes easily along at a steady, regular, constant speed, striking all letters exactly alike, and not slowing down for difficult words because he has learned to maintain a constant speed. It is obvious that the typist who has a regular, even touch will be the fastest and the most accurate. And the best known way to develop this regular, even touch is to start the student in with music, having him write in time with the music, which can be fast or slow in accordance with the ability of the class. Continued practice with the phonograph fixes the habit of regular, rhythmic writing, which means speed and accuracy.

The Tyler Commercial College has adopted this system of teaching typewriting because they have found it to be the best. This institution has always employed only the most modern and up-to-date methods in all departments of the students' work. They give the most thorough, complete and practical courses in bookkeeping, shorthand and typewriting, telegraphy, cotton classing and business administration and finance that can be had, in half the time and at half the cost of similar courses in other schools and also offer valuable courses of training by correspondence. Positions secured for all graduates. Write for large free catalogue.

TRIBUTE TO JIM HOGG

Austin, Texas, May 23.—Now that the State Federation of Labor at its annual convention in Galveston has given its official endorsement to the proposition of raising a fund of $100,000 for the endowment of a chair at the University of Texas in memory of the late Governor James S. Hogg, it is stated that immediate steps will be taken to raise this sum. According to Chris Callen of Austin, who originated the idea, the entire sum will be raised in short order. The state is to be well organized for the purpose. The fact that Governor Hogg began life as a printer in a country newspaper office causes the typographical fraternity and the labor element generally of the state to be in hearty sympathy with the movement to honor his memory in the manner proposed. It is not known at this time what the nature of the prospective new chair in the university will be. This is a matter that will be left to the good judgment of the board of regents of that institution, it is stated.

WILL NOT ABANDON LEASE

Fort Worth, Texas, May 23.—It is rumored we are quitting our lease known as the M. E. Mast lease one mile east of Woden, in Nacogdoches county. I want to say that this is a false alarm and we are just getting ready to do some real drilling. We have had very bad luck in this field, mostly due to our equipment, and this field being entirely different from other fields our driller had worked in has given him more or less trouble, but we have always believed that oil in paying quantities is on this lease, and we are still firm believers that in the near future we will have oil for the market from this lease.

We will be back on the job in a very few days with a full and new equipment, such as new rig, engine, tools etc. Then you will soon hear from us. No, we are not quitting, we are sticking, and when we quit the lease you can tell them there is no oil there. We have had many good showings at depths from 120, 150 and 230 feet. The last, we feel sure, is in paying quantities, any way, we will show you in a few days.
