LEGION CONVENTION WELCOMES OLD LEADERS

Convention Hall, Kansas City, Mo., Nov. 1.—The American Legion received its wartime commanders, Marshal Foch and General John J. Pershing, here today with a welcome fit for the heroes of victorious armies. Thousands of delegates and visitors to the convention of American veterans gave the great military leaders a tumultuous greeting that spoke for the affection of the American soldier and people for the two men. After hearing the visitors the convention adjourned until 10 o'clock tomorrow to permit the delegates and visitors to attend the dedication of the Kansas City memorial to its war dead and participate in the big Legion parade this afternoon. Marshal Foch brought to the Legionaries a personal declaration of comradeship and good-will from his government and bore the official greeting of France. Just the appearance of the marshal was enough to throw the huge hall into a frenzy of applause and acclaim, and General Pershing was given an equal ovation by the former soldiers who served under him. The standard of Missouri, Nebraska, Texas and Pennsylvania were carried to the stage and placed behind General Pershing. The Missouri standard got the honored position. Pershing was born in Missouri, and he extended on behalf of the Legion and his native state a formal welcome to Foch. Foch's eyes were moist as he stood with head bowed during the warm welcome. The demonstrations given both men were almost continuous, but when after the marshal completed his address, the big audience ceased all movement as the Marsellaise filled the hall, the crowd stood at attention. As the music ceased pandemonium reigned, the crowd standing up in chairs to give vent to their feelings.

"GREATEST MOTHER OF ALL"

It has fallen to my lot to direct the coming campaign of the Red Cross in Nacogdoches county, which opens on the 11th of November and closes on the 26th. The call of the Red Cross has many times been responded to liberally by the patriotic, loyal citizenship of Nacogdoches county, and I feel that I am talking to her friends, when I address you about her needs. You only need to know that this "Greatest Mother of All" is in need of funds, and you will do your utmost to satisfy her demands. This is not a campaign of education. You learned during the war of the noble work the Red Cross takes upon herself in this as well as other lands. You know how she camped about our fighting boys and tenderly cared for them when wounded, when sick or when in distress; how she lingered around the bedside of those the war left sick, and torn, and desolate; and how they still lean upon her as their friend and helper. The American Red Cross has softened, as much as in her power lay, the awful rigors of the reconstruction period. They re-entertained in their ruined homes, the Belgian and the French war victims and have fed by millions the starving babies of Russia and Poland. They have aided millions of people as to race or nation, but have been unable to render a service of any kind to the world.

The world is bowed before the American Red Cross in a solemn recognition of a debt of gratitude. And we are under a double debt: First, for the service it has rendered us and ours; second, for the happy privilege it has afforded the American people of fostering and supporting its noble purposes. It has brought us closer to every nation on the globe, and brought us nearer to the day when the sword shall be beaten into a ploughshare, and nations will appeal to a forum more humane, more just, than war, for the settlement of their disputes. The work of the Red Cross continues in these times of peace. It is still engaged in helping to feed and nurse to health the sick and hungry in Russia and other lands. The struggling American soldier is not neglected in his efforts to fight his way back to strength and self-reliance. Victims of storms and earthquakes everywhere are tenderly and promptly cared for. The Red Cross has become a part of our national life. We cannot now think of America without it. We cannot refuse to support it. To refuse to help her would be to turn the cold shoulder to the soldier's friend; to rudely put aside her request for reasonable financial aid would be little less than to affront the American flag.

Then, with but a single thought, the welfare of our country, and with united step, let us rally around this "Greatest Mother of All," and during the short campaign of two weeks allotted, contribute of our means in proportion to her needs and in harmony with our ideals. One-half of the money that is raised in this campaign will be expended by the Red Cross in Nacogdoches county; the other half will be forwarded to headquarters to be used in other fields. Solicitors will be ready in all parts of the county to receive your donations and to give you certificates of membership, and to bestow upon you the badge of honor—a little Red Cross.

SWEET POTATOES YIELD FORTY-NINE PRODUCTS

The marvelous possibilities of the future development of the sweet potato industry revealed in an exhibit of by-products of this valuable Southern crop at the Fair Grounds. Syrup, starch, vinegar, meal and flour are among the products on display. M. Hull, sweet potato expert, in discussing the products made from the sweet potato, cited the work of G. W. Carver, department of research experiment station, Tuskegee Institute, Ala., along this line. Professor Carver states Mr. Hull, has done more work with the sweet potato than any other living person, having developed more than 100 products from this lowly vegetable of our southern soils. The products enumerated are as follows:

Flour, four kinds; meal, four kinds; starch; bakery paste, five kinds; mock cocoanut; breakfast food, four kinds; gingerized potato; vinegar; ink; shoe-blacking; coffee, two grades, including an instant coffee; chocolate compound; bisque powder for making ice cream; tapioca (requires no soaking before cooking); dyes, 45, ranging in color from jet black, rich orange, through all the intermediate shades; candies, 14; stock foods, three in number; rubber; molasses woodfiller, 14 in number.

While some of these products, states Mr. Hull, are interesting, only from the viewpoint of the chemist a number of them are susceptible to commercial exploitation. Chief among these being starch and syrup. A large manufacturing plant has recently been established in the south for the manufacture of starch from sweet potatoes. This plant was established by an eastern concern that formerly made its starch from corn.—Shreveport Times.

NATIONAL COMMITTEE'S PLANS FOR THE FUTURE

St. Louis, Mo., Nov. 2.—The development of the National Democratic party into the "most militant and efficient organization within its capacity" and the dissemination of its principles among the people of the present national administration, is the program of the National Committee, as set forth in the platform of the party at St. Louis, Mo., today. The new democratic chairman, as expected today by the Associated Press, Mr. Hull expects to leave tomorrow for Washington.

Predicts Marshall's Nomination. St. Louis, Mo., Nov. 2.—United States Senator Hamilton Lewis of Illinois said today that the conflict between the McAdoo and Cox forces over the organization of the Democratic National Committee would make former Vice President Marshall the nominee for president in 1924. Lewis advocated the addition of the national committee and other party national committees, so long as they were not needed in elections.

NATIONAL CHAIRMAN

St. Louis, Mo., Nov. 1.—Cordell Hull of Tennessee will be chosen chairman of the Democratic National Committee this afternoon to succeed George White, it was announced following the refusal of Edward T. Goltzra, committeeman from Missouri, to resign to make way for Breckenridge Long of St. Louis. Long and Hull were the only two that all factions agreed upon.

Take Crack at Harvey

Convention Hall, Kansas City, Mo., Nov. 2.—The convention adopted a resolution reaffirming the attitude of the last convention relative to adjusting compensation. A resolution castigating Colonel George Harvey for the speech he made soon after his arrival in England was included in the resolution committee's report. The resolution was greeted with cheers and shouts of "You tell 'em."

GRATITUDE OF VETS FOR GENEROUS AID

Nacogdoches, Oct. 21, 1921. Judge E. B. Lewis, Adjutant, U. C. V., City:

Dear Judge Lewis—We are informed that the private subscription circulated in Nacogdoches lacked approximately $100 covering the estimated expenses of all veterans that have expressed a desire to attend the reunion.

An indicated in our former communication it is and always shall be a genuine pleasure and grateful privilege to the members of this Klan to contribute their possessions of every character to the support and encouragement of you and your comrades, and being informed of your lack of funds at this hour we avail ourselves of the opportunity to tender you another donation of $100 which is herewith enclosed and which we ask that you accept with our love and esteem. Yours very sincerely,

Stone Fort Klan, No. 98, Knights of The Ku Klux Klan.

The above letter with enclosure of $100 was received by me on the 22nd of October, the day the veterans of Camp No. 620 U. C. V. left here for the reunion at Chattanooga, Tenn. I have had no time since to give it attention and have time now after my return home on the 31st of October to do so. There was $558.75 donated in all for the old vets; the K. K. K. $200, the balance by the good citizens of Nacogdoches. This gave them $8.45 more than the cost of their tickets, which enabled them to pay all necessary expenses while at Chattanooga. It was a splendid reunion. The old soldiers and all others attending it seemed to enjoy it to the limit. Great praise is due to the committees for the splendid preparations made by them for the occasion and to the citizenship of that city for the courtesies extended, and the doing of everything that could be expected for the comfort and pleasure of the veterans.

Julius T. Carr of South Carolina was chosen to succeed General K. M. VanZandt of Fort Worth, Texas, as commander of the U. C. V. organization, and R. M. VanZandt was chosen as the first member of the next reunion. As an adjunct of the reunion, Nov. 29, I am a "honorary" member of the good will, appreciation and gratitude of the members of the veterans extended to them, and hereby tender their sincere and heartfelt thanks to the Knights of the Ku Klux Klan and the good people of Nacogdoches for what they have done for us.

SAN ANTONIANS HELD ON HUGE THEFT CHARGE

San Antonio, Texas, Nov. 1.—Charging them with baillee and embezzlement of almost $400,000 Paul and Peter O'Brien were placed under arrest today following the return by the grand jury of 325 indictments.

The indictments charge that the O'Briens brothers, while in the employ of D. Sullivan & Co., real estate agents, converted property to their own use. The defendants are the adopted sons of D. Sullivan, Jr., head of the firm, and the property mentioned in the charges is some of the most valuable on the main streets of the city.

Neither of the O'Briens would make a statement following their arrest.

Washington, Nov. 1.—The advisory committee of the American delegation to the armament conference, announced today from the White House, consists of 21 members, four of them women. The list includes General Pershing and Samuel Gompers. Hoover was the only cabinet member named.

Nothing Mysterious

There is nothing mysterious about modern banking methods. Most people know all about how to do business with a bank, but to those still unfamiliar, we offer the following information:

To open an account, merely bring your money to the bank. We will credit you with the amount and give you a pass book on which the amount of your deposit will be entered. We will also give you a check book. When you wish any of the money or wish to pay a bill, write a check for the amount and sign it. When the check reaches the bank we will pay it, charging it to your account. Every additional deposit of funds will be entered on the pass book which you have. We keep a complete record and do all the bookkeeping free.

SENTENCES AND SENSE

Ever since his eloquent plea for normalcy, voiced in accepting the presidential nomination, Mr. Harding has enjoyed national esteem as an orator of rounded sentences, full of melody and music.

Typical of the president's oratorical style is this striking sentence from his Yorktown address of last week: "In the sober circumspection, retrospection and introspection of these crucial times, we do believe there is sanity and urgent need in bringing the best thought of all great people into understanding and co-operative endeavor which shuns the alliances in arms and strengthens the concord of peace, so that each may realize its rightful destiny and contribute its utmost to human advancement and attending human happiness."

No more musical, restful juxtaposition of words could well be desired in the English tongue. The pleasurable sensation of their reading is the more complete because of the entire absence of any irritating or challenging mental suggestion.

WHY THEY QUIT

The Wetsley, Ont., Maple Leaf has ceased publication. In its farewell notice the publisher said:

"After a struggle of over 21 years, the Maple Leaf goes the way of most small country papers during the past four years. During these four years the cost of production has increased from 200 to 300 percent while the income is practically the same. This has caused the suspension or amalgamation of over 200 newspapers during the past few years.

The reason the newspaper graveyard is so full is shown by an editor who has been investigating the cause of the high mortality. He figures out that 1907 wages were at 100. In 1914 they had advanced to 178 and in 1921 the figure was 341. News print from 1907 to 1921 cost 177 in 1914 and 410 in 1921. Newspaper postage was 100 in 1907 and 400 in 1921. News paper circulation in 1907 was 177, in 1914 it was 192 and in 1921 it was 411.

More than 1,000 newspapers and publications have gone out of existence in the United States and a corresponding number of them in Canada.

WHO SUPPORTS THESE SCHOOLS?

Who is footing the bill for "free" education in the United States? The Institute for Public Service reports the results of some research into the question of teachers' salaries, which, in the light of present economic conditions, should be earnestly considered.

There are, says the report, 18 colleges in the United States which are paying full professors less than $2,000 a year, while 140 pay not more than $3,000. For instructors eight colleges pay less than $1,000, while 61 pay not over $1,500.

Conservatism has always been characteristic of academic institutions. Such salaries are doubtless a survival from the not so remote period when $1,000 was regarded by thousands of young people fitting themselves for the teaching profession as a prize to be striven for.

Tuition rates, public subscriptions and other means of support should be made adequate to pay the men and women who give their lives to the work of teaching, living wages, an income in keeping with the honor and dignity of their position in society.

THOSE WHO CAN'T READ

If what we learned from investigations carried on during and since the war comes anywhere near the truth, the problem of illiteracy goes somewhat deeper than we had supposed. We had thought that all we had to do to stamp out illiteracy was to make sure that every child received a primary school education.

But it seems as if that is not a positive guarantee against illiteracy. It may sound somewhat incredible, but among educators who have scanned closely the mental tests which were given our soldiers the opinion seems to be growing that people forget to read. Some of our so-called illiteracy is to be laid at the door of lack of occasions and inducement for reading. The school, it is maintained, might put all its resources to work to teach individuals to read fairly well, but still if by chance any of these individuals leave school at an early enough age, they could forget what they had learned.

As a matter of fact, a great many children leave school at an age before reading becomes a habit with them. No doubt a goodly share of these unfortunates eventually lead lives in which the ability to read is fostered because of necessity. But there still remains an alarmingly large number to whom this good fortune does not come.

STRANGE NOTES OF THE BIBLE

How the Man in Maine Buys Oregon Apples

COMMERCE lives through the interchange of products. California fruits are sold in Maine. Shoes made in New England are worn on the Pacific slope. Automobiles from Detroit traverse the Florida sands; the North smokes Southern tobacco. And so it goes.

Advertising has played an all important part in fostering business growth. Without it we would retrograde half a century, or more. Business would stagnate; large institutions which build cheaply by large production would fade into oblivion; we would live in total ignorance of many things which, might add to our wealth, health and happiness.

The bread and butter of business depend on advertising, and your interest in it.

Read the advertisements in this paper. They will be as productive of results to you as to the companies that pay for them. In half an hour, or less, you can metaphorically, visit the progressive stores in town—the various places that supply the things that go to make life what it is.

Read the advertising. It enables you to get more for your money by telling you what, where and when to buy. It is your daily guide to what's good to get.

Read it--reflect on it--it pays

WORD AND DEED

In view of the efforts of the Washington administration to put through a separate and negotiated peace with Germany that picks out material benefits of the treaty of Versailles and excludes everything suggestive of idealism, the words of Premier Lloyd George on the significance of General Pershing's placing a congressional medal of honor upon the tomb of an unidentified British soldier of the world war are strangely in contrast with the action of this country for a separate pact.

"This occasion," said the premier, "will always be a reminder, not only to this generation, but to all generations to come, that the fundamental aims of our two democracies are the same. It will be interpreted as a solemn pledge given to the valiant dead that these two peoples who were comrades in the great war are resolved to remain comrades to guarantee a great peace."

Unquestionably that is the hope of the majority of the peoples of both national and strictly in accord with the spirit of the Allied and Associated powers in the great war, but how is it going to be upheld in a particular sense by the United States and Great Britain when the former refuses to join with its war comrades in support of the treaty of Versailles? Our participation in tributes to the heroic dead of our allies shows our true place as a partner in one of the greatest undertakings in the history of civilization. No one, after reading the joint tribute to the dead of the Allied and Associated powers in the world war, can fail to note the contrast in the action of the new administration at Washington for a separate peace more concerned for material benefits than for idealism.

To say the least, the "awkwardness of it" is becoming more and more apparent.

'THIN, FLAT HAIR GROWS LONG, THICK AND ABUNDANT

"Danderine" costs only 35 cents a bottle. One application ends all dandruff, stops itching and falling hair and in a few moments you have doubled the beauty of your hair. It will appear a mass, so soft, lustrous and easy to do up. But what will please you most will be after a few weeks use when you see new hair—fine and downy at first—yes—but really new hair growing all over your scalp. "Danderine" is to the hair what fresh showers of rain and sunshine are to vegetation. It goes right to the roots, invigorates and strengthens them. This delightful, stimulating tonic helps thin, lifeless, faded hair to grow long, thick, heavy and luxuriant.

HARNESSING THE WIND

The wind has always been a good servant of mankind. From the earliest times it has been used to propel our ships, and it has also been employed, notably in Holland, to run mills. In that country windmills are engaged principally in draining the marshes and in grinding trass, a kind of earth used in the manufacture of cement. In the United States not a few farmers have erected windmills with which to pump water from wells.

But the wind is now going to be called upon to do many kinds of work for which it was never appropriated heretofore; for a way has been found for converting it into electric energy, which will be applicable to the operation of a great many machines. Moreover it will be possible to store this energy and use it at times when the wind is inert.

The announcement is made that after two years of experimenting engineers of two electric companies have succeeded in perfecting apparatus which generates electricity from the winds blowing at rates of from seven to 30 miles an hour, stores it up for use when needed and works day and night without attention. The equipment includes a heavy 50-foot steel tower, topped by a large wind-wheel, a generator, switchboard and battery. It has been demonstrated that the outfit will furnish enough electricity for ordinary farm needs. It will provide current for electric lights, irons, vacuum cleaners, washing machines, cream separators and other apparatus.

The importance of this invention can hardly be exaggerated. It opens up vast and inexhaustible sources of cheap power. It will permit saving of fuel. It will bring comforts and conveniences within the reach of many to whom they have heretofore been inaccessible. Much of the hard manual labor which has made farm life repugnant will be unnecessary, for the wind, converted into electricity, will do it.

THE POSTSCRIPT

It was fitting that the Harding-Hughes separate and negotiated peace treaty with Germany should be ratified at night. In its wholly materialistic spirit, excluding everything of idealism contained in the treaty of Versailles, it departs from the course of light advocated for international affairs by great Americans from the beginning of the republic and followed so scrupulously by the United States in the statement of its aims in the world war.

The new treaty, which has been described as a miserable postscript to a glorious chapter, is an unworthy of the best traditions of the republican party, upon which the entire responsibility of it rests, as it is of the best of the country itself. Former republican presidents had advocated such a League of Nations as is now functioning under the treaty of Versailles. Former republican cabinet members joined in an appeal to the senate to ratify without reservation the pact brought home from Paris by President Wilson. The republican who is now chief justice of the United States Supreme Court shattered the arguments of those who tried to create the impression that the existing League of Nations would be inimical to American independence. So it goes down in history that the league covenant was rejected by a republican senate not because it contained anti-American provisions, but because a democratic president had a conspicuous part in the shaping of it.

As the Harding-Hughes treaty was ratified with a thrill of pride, but due to nausea over the sickening mess of partisanship that has been delaying construction, it can be depended upon that the American people, when they cover from their weariness of the partisan debauch, will realize that the light for them is not upon the path of reaction, but only upon that ahead.

A HERO

Alvin Youk was rated as the first among our war heroes. Second was Joseph Oklahombi, according to Marshal Petain. Joe captured 171 Germans, single-handed. He is a Choctaw Indian. His comment about the army was: "Too much salute; not enough shoot."

Now Joe is living on a small farm in Oklahoma. He fishes, raises corn, and does chores for the neighbors. Mention his name to your friends. See how many recognize it. Probably none. Fleeting is fame—unless you are the top-notch. Even the holder of second place is soon forgotten.

A bolshevik continues to be a state of mind surrounded by whiskers.

REVENGE THAT WAS COSTLY

Australian Farmer's Fancy Method of Pest Destruction Could Hardly Be Called a Success.

A farmer living near Boree Creek, New South Wales, was greatly annoyed by the depredations of a hawk, which almost daily took toll among his chickens. Finally, after a good deal of trouble, he succeeded in trapping the bird alive, and, smarting under his losses, resolved upon a really elaborate revenge. Procuring a supply of "gell" (explosive), he fastened it to the unfortunate hawk's leg and attached a long fuse to it. Then, having lit the fuse, he released the bird and waited for it to fly into the air to annihilation. However, the trick failed to work. Somewhat dazed, no doubt, by the rough handling it had received, the hawk obstinately refused to move from a position near the door of the "humpy."

With the fuse sputtering fiercely, the farmer began to get uneasy, and he did all in his power to scare this "feathered mine" away, but at first with little success. Finally it rose in the air—but only to settle on his roof, near the chimney. Shouting and bombardment with stones and sticks alike failed to move it from this position, and with the perspiration streaming down his face and his hair beginning to stand on end the farmer was ultimately obliged to take to his heels for his own safety. The bird sat doggedly on the roof till the end came; then the luckless squatter, looking back, saw roof, chimney and hawk go up in one terrific explosion. He has now sworn off all fancy methods of pest destruction.—Wide World Magazine.

NEW IDEA IN MOTIVE POWER

Vertical Vanes Used in Windmills Foretell Possibility of Idleness in Any Weather.

Europe is facing a serious shortage of fuel, of all kinds. Coal, gas, gasoline, wood, alcohol—all these fuels are lacking. The result is that inventors have turned out in force to solve the power problem in new ways. A French inventor has developed a new form of windmill in which vertical vanes are used. The advantages of this form are said to be: Power—no matter in what direction the wind is blowing; noiseless operation; the windmill does not have to turn about, with consequent loss of time; there is no danger from strong winds or gales; it develops five times the power derived from usual forms of windmills; there is practically no upkeep or operating expense. The builder says that he is ready to undertake the building of such windmills in all capacities from one-half to 100 horse power and over. The windmill is recommended to be run in connection with an electric generator and storage battery, so that, when the wind is blowing, electrical energy is stored up for use during the calm weather. However, it is estimated that the windmill can operate in practically any weather, and but very few idle days are encountered throughout the year, writes Hereward Carrington in Leslie's. This windmill may prove of the greatest practical value to many farmers and those desirous of obtaining power cheaply and easily.

PROOF OF TRUE FRIENDSHIP

What More Could Be Asked of Any Man Than the Sacrifice That Is Here Recorded?

There are various ways of evidencing true friendship. Sorrow and suffering bring out the best in others, but it is our habit to be sympathetic and not always does it prove that sympathy and friendship are akin. When a man will lend you money without collateral he is indeed a friend.

But we find our true friends in other ways. The other day we were in a bar and we needed a hair cut. So we went into our favorite barber shop to find our favorite barber busy, and a man ahead of us.

We were about to depart without the trim we sorely needed, when the man ahead of us spoke up:

"You always have the same barber, don't you?"

"Yes," we replied.

"Well, I'm next for his chair, but I'm in no hurry. You just go ahead and take my turn. I'll wait."

There was friendship for you, and as we thanked him for his kindness we couldn't help remarking:

"Greater love hath no man than this, that he will give up his place in a barber shop for another."—Exchange.

Attention, Diogenes.

Diogenes, wake up! Here's your honest man!

Right here in Houston, recently, a man entered the consolidated railway ticket office and purchased a ticket for a child more than five years old. Then he promptly tore the ticket up.

It developed that a woman, accompanied by a child, departed from Houston within the last few days for a city more than 1,000 miles away, but did not obtain transportation for the child.

When the ticket was bought the purchaser was asked when the party was going. He replied, "They have already gone."

Then it developed that the man, conscience-stricken at the thought of cheating the railroads out of the cost of a child's ticket, decided to follow the old adage, "Better late than never."—Houston Post.

School children will scarcely be quoting from the Harding-Hughes peace treaty.

VIOLENT LOVERS OF WOMEN

Writer Implies That Fierce Woovers Are Not Altogether in Disfavor With Fair Sex.

A young widow complained recently to a magistrate of the action of an admirer of hers who had fallen into the habit of springing at her from doorways "like an angry lion." He swore that if he could not have her, no one else should.

Women say they do not like that kind of lover. But is the fair sex quite to be trusted when they make this statement?

Savage man did not ask the woman of his choice, "Wilt thou be mine?" He made himself a stout club with a good knob at the end and "ran after" the woman in the literal sense.

Above her head he swung the club with an energy peculiar to savage man. Tremblingly she answered, "Yes," long before he "popped the question." And the savage equivalent for a priest—if there was one—quickly spliced them. His fee consisting of immunity from a clout on the head.

Did the savage maiden enjoy this kind of wooing? No doubt she found her husband was not so savage as he appeared at first sight, and grew reconciled.

She had, undoubtedly, a certain fierceness of her own. And probably there were henpecked husbands even in those days.

There have been many savage woovers in history. King Henry VIII is a notorious example. There was no saying "nay" to King Hal. He had such a taking way with him that he took as many wives as he wanted. And his affection was keen as an ax. It only cooled with death—the death, that is, of the latest wife.—Exchange.

ETHER FIRST USED IN-BOSTON

In 1844 Horace Wells, a Dentist, Made a Successful Experiment on Himself.

In 1844, Horace Wells, dentist, Hartford, Conn., attended a lecture by Colton on nitrous oxid gas. In illustrating the lecture gas was administered to one of the audience, who became unconscious. This led Wells to believe that it might be employed to render painless the extraction of teeth. He tried it on himself and found that it was so.

During the same year William Norton, a Boston dentist, heard that sulfuric ether could be inhaled in small quantities to produce unconsciousness. Accordingly, he experimented. He was insensible for eight minutes. On recovering he concluded that ether might be employed successfully in surgical work. On October 16, 1846, Morton administered ether to a patient in the Massachusetts general hospital in Boston.

It was in November, 1847, that Simpson, famous Scottish scientist of Edinburgh, resolved to try personally the inhalation of chloroform. Sitting with his friends, Duncan and Keith, around a dinner table, he proposed that they inhale chloroform. Each consented to the test. First, their minds were livened; then they fell into a deep stupor. Simpson, recovering first, found Duncan snoring on the floor, and Keith, half-sensible, struggling to regain the chair from which he had fallen.

RASPBERRY COUSIN OF ROSE

Relationship Concluded, and Tomato, Pepper and Tobacco Are All Members of Same Family.

Onions are, of course, known as "kitchen lilies," but how many cooks or even gardeners are aware of the fact that asparagus belongs to the same family and is also a member of the genus lily? Or that the mulberry is a nettle, and that hops, figs, hemp and the rubber tree are all near relations?

Take, for instance, the common potato. Its nearest ally among our wild plants is the deadly nightshade. The tomato, the red pepper and the tobacco plant are all members of the same genus, which is known to botanists as the "solanaceae."

The sweet potato is nothing but a convolvulus, while the rhubarb and the buckwheat, though totally dissimilar in appearance, are from a botanical point of view nearly allied.

Raspberries, blackberries and all their varieties are "rosaceae," and closely related to the common wild briar.

There is not much apparent resemblance between parsley and the parsnip. Yet a botanist can tell you that they are both members of one family, and that this self-same family includes the carrot as well as various aromatic plants such as anise and coriander. Celery, too, comes in the same category.

Beet, however, has no kin with the carrot. Its nearest connection in the kitchen garden is spinach.

That the Jerusalem artichoke and the sunflower are related is fairly obvious. What is a little startling is the fact that the succulent lettuce is one of the same family, which includes also the daisy, dahlia, chrysanthemum, dandelion and thistle.

All the wheats, oats, barley, rice, and most other edible grains are derived from wild grasses. Even the sugarcane is of the same order as the little velvet-like grasses, which carpet tennis.

However, when it comes to Lenine and Trotsky, Russia has its stomach full.

If the former Russian czar and his family escaped to Japan and are there now, as reported, they are keeping quiet.

Probably the reason they did not invite the bank robbers and automobile highwaymen to the armament limitation conference was due to insufficiency of room to accommodate so many.

USE FRUIT TO MAKE JARS

Common Household Utensils Constructed of Peculiar Ware in Central Province of India.

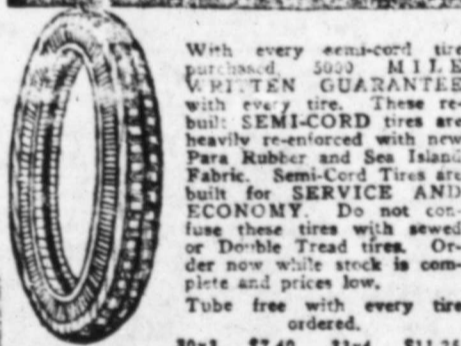

There is a peculiar ware that is made by the Banjaras in the central provinces of India from the fruit of the aoula. The fruit is collected and dried. It is then boiled in water until quite soft and pounded, the stones removed and the pulp beaten up and worked with the hands into a thick, brown, sticky mass. When this is quite ready the manufacturer takes an earthen vessel—any shape that pleases him—and covers it all over with a thick layer of coat of the pulp. This is then put aside to set a bit, and when hard rude devices are stamped round the neck and shoulders of the article, which is then set aside to dry. When entirely hard, the gharra inside is broken and the pieces removed. These vegetable pots are sold according to size from four to eight annas each.

The aoula tree is abundant throughout the forests of tropical India and Burma, and the fruits are frequently employed in medicine and for tanning. Another material used for making jars is the root of the great asphodel. The fleshy root of this plant, by drying in a sand oven and grinding, is prepared into a flour, which, when mixed with hot water, yields a most tenacious vegetable glue with which the Persians make great vessels for holding oil and clarifying butter. The native cobblers employ it in preference to animal glue in their work.

Manners. Morals and manners, which give color to life, are of much greater importance than laws, which are but their manifestations. The law touches us here and there, but manners are about us everywhere, pervading society like the air we breathe. Good manners, as we call them, are neither more nor less than good behavior; consisting of courtesy and kindness, benevolence being the preponderating element in all kinds of mutually beneficial and pleasant intercourse among human beings. "Civility," said Lady Montagu, "costs nothing and buys everything." The cheapest of all things is kindness, its exercise requiring the least possible trouble and self-sacrifice. "Win hearts," said Burleigh to Queen Elizabeth, "and you have all men's hearts and purses." If we would only let nature act kindly, free from affectation and artifice, the results on social good humor and happiness would be incalculable.

BIRTHDAY PARTY

Monday, October 31, the home of Mr. and Mrs. W. O. Stewart was the scene of a happy crowd of little tots gathered to celebrate the second birthday of little Marie Stewart.

The children had a great time playing games, then, led by little Marie they marched into the dining room for refreshments. The table, beautifully decorated, was filled with "goodies" for the children, the center piece being a beautiful birthday cake with its two lighted candles.

Each little one made a birthday wish, then little Marie blew out the candles. After partaking of the delicious refreshments some more games were played and the children went home after thanking Marie for a delightful evening.

Mrs. Stewart, in her usual charming manner, proved a delightful hostess. Marie received many pretty, and useful presents.

HALLOWEEN PRANKS

The Halloween roysterers were out in force Monday night and played the usual pranks. In some places pickets were torn from lawn fences and in the downtown district signs were transferred and other mischief perpetrated. Judging by outside appearances B. M. Isaacs had branched out in the barber business, while at J. Eichel's people were notified there was "Fresh Fish Today." An iron lattice was stretched in front of the Nacogdoches State Bank, which might have had the effect of keeping the customers out as well as the money in, and a penny slot weighing machine graced the front of Mayer & Schmidt's, together with a heavy barricade of boards. The Perry Variety Store also was barricaded, and all trash containers and their contents were thrown into the middle of the streets, making trouble for the garbage man. George Partin's menu sign was transferred to the "middle of the road," and various other stunts, mostly of a harmless nature, were pulled off. The injury to fences was the only real damage done. No one objects to the boys having rational fun, but they should not inflict losses by willfully destroying property, such as fences, which will cost a considerable sum to replace. Their effervescent spirits should find a less damaging outlet.

Health turns the Clock Backward

Breaking the Grip of Rheumatism on the Body

(Thursday Health Talk No. 28.)
(By R. W. Zilar, D. C.)

The principle characteristic of rheumatism is pain. There is dull and continuous aching, with severity and sharpness at times. If the pain would stop for intervals it might be more bearable, but the fact that it is continuous is what makes rheumatism the most dreaded of diseases.

The cause is weakened functioning of the kidneys, due to displacement of spinal joints at what is known as "kidney place". This displacement causes pressure on the spinal nerves. Chiropractic spinal adjustments restore the spinal joints to alignment and with the pressure removed the kidneys act normally and the disease gradually clears.

The members of the Junior Christian Endeavor Society of the First Presbyterian church were delightfully entertained Thursday night by Mrs. Paul Perkins with a Halloween party. The costumes of some of the youngsters were sure-enough up to the Halloween mark, and they were hilariously happy, judging from the noise they made and the spirit with which they entered into the evening's fun. The kindly hostess saw to it that her guests had a good time.

Those who are in a "run down" condition will notice that Catarrh bothers them much more than when they are in good health. This fact proves that while Catarrh is a local disease, it is greatly influenced by constitutional conditions. HALL'S CATARRH MEDICINE is a Tonic and Blood Purifier, and acts through the blood upon the mucous surfaces of the body, thus reducing the inflammation and restoring normal conditions. All druggists. Circulars free. F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, Ohio.

THE PAVING BOND MATTER

I wish to express my opinion and offer some suggestions, as a voter of this city, on the bond issue. Instead of voting $150,000 bonds with which to pave and gravel the streets and require the abutting property owners to pay one third on each side and the city to pay one third, which would work a hardship on some of the citizens, I would suggest a plan to pave and gravel all streets to the corporate limits. Now, instead of voting $150,000, let's vote $300,000. Take $250,000 and pave and gravel all the streets to all the corporate limits of this city without any charges to the property owners whatever. The remaining $50,000 to be used to sink another well at the light plant to give the city more water, and to extend the city water to every one in the corporate limits. In closing will say that we need not cash the entire $300,000 the first year, but say $150,000. This will give the city another flowing well and extend the water pipes, and make it easier on the tax payers.

M. G. Hazle.

Prof. J. O. Saterwhite, head of the Satterwhite Commercial College, Lufkin, was a visitor in the city Saturday. His school is among the successful enterprises of our sister city and is doing a great work in preparing young men and women for business careers through careful, painstaking instruction in stenography, bookkeeping and accounting, and graduates from his school are now occupying responsible positions, and making good at many places throughout the country. The convenience of this school to our county, reducing the expense of reaching it, is another recommendation. Graduates find no difficulty in securing desirable and remunerative positions.

POSTCARDS LONG JOURNEY

Twelve years travel for one cent. That is the cost of a trip that old Santa Claus, on a post card, received Wednesday afternoon, October 26, by Mrs. Will McPherson, wife of Cashier McPherson of the Waxahachie National Bank, has made since 1909.

The holiday card was mailed on December 22, 1909, in Atlanta, Ga., to Mrs. McPherson, who was then Miss Corine White of 607 West Main street, Waxahachie. Mrs. McPherson's friend who sent the Yuletide greeting has been dead about four years.

Though the card bears numerous postmarks, showing that it has visited many points during the 12-year journey, only one of the postmarks is legible. It is that of Bombay, India, with the date of Sept. 22, 1921. The card is well preserved to have made the long foreign voyage.

MAKING SYRUP BY NEW PROCESS

C. A. Manning has furnished the Champion with a sample of syrup that he is making by a new process. He secured the process from Louisiana. The juice is run through a sulphur fume, which, Mr. Manning says, causes all the impurities of the juice to come to the top by the time the juice reaches a boiling point. The skimming is done then, thereby eliminating the constant skimming while the juice is boiling to the syrup point. He has a thermometer and boils the juice to a point where it will not turn to sugar, or can cook it to the point to make sugar of. So far as we know this is the first experiment in this section with this method of cooking syrup.—Center Champion.

MOTHER! MOVE CHILD'S BOWELS WITH CALIFORNIA FIG SYRUP

Hurry mother! Even a sick child loves the "fruity" taste of "California Fig Syrup" and it never fails to open the bowels. A teaspoonful today may prevent a sick child tomorrow. If constipated, bilious, feverish, fretful, has cold, colic, or if stomach is sour, tongue coated, breath bad, remember a good cleansing of the little bowels is often all that is necessary.

Ask your druggist for genuine "California Fig Syrup" which has directions for babies and children of all ages printed on bottle. Mother! You must say "California" or you may get an imitation fig syrup.

Nacogdoches' contingent to the reunion of Confederate Veterans at Chattanooga, Tenn., returned Friday night in good health and spirits and report a glorious time. The only untoward incident that marked the journey occurred when Mr. W. J. Crossland, one of the Veterans, was relieved of his money and railroad ticket by a pickpocket at Shreveport on the way home. He was supplied by his companions with funds to replace his loss, and continued the journey with them.
